UNDER NEW LEADERSHIP AND WITH A FRESH NAME UNIONISTS STILL UNITED

Borden's Announcement of His Retirement Regretfully Accepted — Rowell May Go to Washington.

Special to The Toronto World. Ottawa, July 1.—Today, the fifty-third anniversary of Dominion Day, marked by the prorogation of a rather important session of parliament, and made still more eventful by the resignation of Sir Robert Borden as prime minister of Canada.

Definitely Announces His Retirement at Caucus of His Followers—Mr. Rowell Also Announces Decision to Quit, But Defers Action—Members of Caucus to Submit Names as Succeeding Premier to Sir Robert.

NEW PARTY IS FORMED

Ottawa, July 1.—With the announcement of the retirement of Sir Robert Borden definitely from their leadership and with the consequent necessity of naming a new chief, together with the all-important future policy of the party to be discussed, the caucus of government followers, following prorogation here today, will go down to posterity as one of the most momentous and significant in the federal political history of Canada.

Standing out with the retirement of Sir Robert was the choice of a new name for the party. There were many suggested, but the honor of being the sponsor for the successful one went to Hon. J. A. Calder, minister of immigration and colonization, who chose "the National Liberal and Conservative party," to be commonly known as the "National party."

There was no successor to Sir Robert named. Sir Robert had promised to retain his seat in the house and to support his successor to the best of his ability. Among the cabinet members there is also an agreement to stand firmly by the man who is ultimately named by the whole of the government supporters. Each member of the caucus is to submit the name of his nominee in writing to Sir Robert. Talk around the corridors after the caucus indicated that the two most generally favored are Sir Thomas White and Hon. Arthur Meighen.

A significant fact also is that prior to the general caucus the Liberal-Unionists held a gathering in camera and decided to stand by any man chosen by the larger gathering, also to agree to the fusion of the Liberal and Conservative identities. Some members believe that it will be easily possible to maintain the identity of both sides of parties.

The resignation of the prime minister—which is shortly to be placed in the hands of the governor-general, will necessarily be accompanied by that of all members of his cabinet. Hon. N. W. Rowell, president of the privy council, has already intimated that he does not feel that his mandate extends to joining in the formation of a new party.

On being urged to reconsider his resignation, however, Mr. Rowell promised to consult with his friends and to communicate his decision to the prime minister as soon as possible. The suggestion is made that, should Mr. Rowell retire, he may go to Washington as first Canadian minister. Representation of Quebec in the new government is being widely discussed. The names of Sir Lomer Gouin and of G. H. Boulvin, deputy speaker of the house, are suggested.

Exhibition Park was yesterday transformed into a veritable Hampstead Heath, when the English element of the city, as represented by the Sons of England Society, met there for their annual picnic and athletic demonstration.

The day passed quietly and enjoyably for all, with the exception, perhaps, of the judges and referees, who were too busy to enjoy themselves.

There was a fine display of infants at the babies' show—there were attendant babies and corpulent babies, but the referee disqualified them for running. Then the point arose as to whose decision should hold good, and the judge and referee were still arguing when they left the ground.

FINE DAY FAVORS LARGE ATTENDANCE AT THE REGATTA

Stunts and Ladies' War Canoe Featured Best-Attend- ed Water Sports in Years.

POPULAR OFFICIALS

Ideal weather and unusual features gave added zest yesterday afternoon to the Island regatta, held at Manly's Point, and witnessed by the largest gathering assembled in years for rowing, canoeing and swimming forming the ensemble of events, which were watched with keen interest. Among the features which were fully appreciated was the stunt waterplaning carried out by Lieut. Haro, an artillery instructor with a fine record of service at the front from a man who rose from the ranks and received his commission on the field, one of the highest honors which can be given to any soldier. Yesterday afternoon Lieut. Haro became for the nonce a Hawaiian waterplaner. He rode the waves on a slab of boarding, this improvised raft being taken in tow by a 30-mile-an-hour motor boat. Not satisfied with merely guiding the destinies of the craft, the planist suddenly stood on his head, and legs in the air he swallowed much water. Another feature of the regatta was the women's war canoe, this being the first occasion in which this canoe has entered the lists, Miss Fox, stroke, and women canoeists ventured in equal numbers to engage in the event.

The officers of the course yesterday were: Mayor Church, Pat Mulqueen, Major O. Heron, James J. Dolan, and the secretary for rowing, C. L. Carter. The committee comprised S. G. Reid, T. R. Lowden, H. Jenney, Harold Dibble, A. R. Denison and R. F. Wilson. Among the starters was George Briggs, an old-timer, who has shot his mark for more than twenty years. He was voted one of the most popular lights of the course.

The Argonauts won six of the nine rowing events in the junior doubles, 140 lb. single, junior four, senior four, 140 lb. 140 lb. and 140 lb. four. The Dons showed good form and won the senior single, junior single and junior doubles.

The canoe events were distributed among all the canoe clubs, the following results:

140 lb. single, junior four, senior four, 140 lb. 140 lb. and 140 lb. four. The Dons showed good form and won the senior single, junior single and junior doubles.

The senior tandem went to Balmby Beach with Smith and Attrell, but "Bill" Porter and Stan Reid gave them a battle all the way for it. The senior four was won by the Balmby Beachers with Attrell's crew, last year's intermediate champions, and they gave their opponents a good lesson in canoeing, a good beating. Parkdale finished second, this time.

The winners: Junior singles rowing—First heat—1, Stevenson, Argos; 2, Dons; 3, Parkdale. Second heat—1, Walters, Dons; 2, Dons; 3, Parkdale. Junior four rowing—1, Stevenson, Argos; 2, Dons; 3, Parkdale. Senior four rowing—1, Stevenson, Argos; 2, Dons; 3, Parkdale. Senior single rowing—1, Stevenson, Argos; 2, Dons; 3, Parkdale. Senior double rowing—1, Stevenson, Argos; 2, Dons; 3, Parkdale. Senior four rowing—1, Stevenson, Argos; 2, Dons; 3, Parkdale. Senior single rowing—1, Stevenson, Argos; 2, Dons; 3, Parkdale. Senior double rowing—1, Stevenson, Argos; 2, Dons; 3, Parkdale.

Choose Your Widow

The man who thinks only of himself—who doesn't care what happens after he's gone—forces his wife to assume too great a risk. His death is likely to mean a slavish, wage-earning career for his widow.

Of course, if abject poverty befall her, some charitable institution may appeal to a kindly public for money with which to keep her and her children alive.

But how different is the prospect for a woman whose husband, by means of life insurance, has made provision for her support in the event of his death.

What prospect has your wife if you should die tomorrow? The choice rests with you. Let an Imperial Life policy be the answer. It will provide her with a regular monthly income to begin at your death and continue so long as she lives.

Our booklet "Safe-guard your Legacy" tells about this feature of Imperial policies. Ask for a copy today. It's most interesting, and—it's free.

TORONTO SEEKS PASTURES GREEN

so he just put on his last year's clean suit and went forth on a day of pleasure. In other words, the majority of costumes out yesterday were of the darker and warmer order—white was by no means the dominating color.

It takes much more than an over-cast sky, little warmth from the sun, or the wearing of non-seasonable clothes to upset Toronto when on holiday bent. All the pleasure resorts and out-door amusements were well patronized, and showed a marked improvement in numbers over last year.

This may be accounted for in part by the fact that on last Dominion Day the street railway men were out on their annual strike, and the public did not get far away from home, whereas this year the strike was kindly pre-empted so as to allow the populace to use the cars on Dominion Day.

The two baseball games at the Island drew large crowds. In the morning there were 6,000 people present to witness the game between the Toronto and Hamilton teams. The afternoon game drew a crowd of 11,000 people. The game was a close one, but the Toronto team won by a score of 4 to 3.

At the baseball game at the Island park was a tremendous crowd of people. The morning the crowd at the dock reached to the railway crossing awaiting transportation across the harbor. The crowd was justly called the "family circle" as in each little party one could see pa, ma and two or three children. The latter usually carried the provisions for the day's outing and by many times it was dropped on the sidewalk and roadway, it promised to be well mixed by feeding time. But little things like that do not matter when one is out for a day's holiday.

Regatta Draws Many.
The Island regatta drew a fairly large crowd, but by no means a record one. Water sports were almost continuous from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and some good racing was witnessed. The Sons of England sports at Exhibition Park were as usual a big success, this popular meeting drawing a very big muster of old country people. The horse parade proved quite as attractive to lovers of the horse as any of the previous meetings and competent judges said this year's parade was the best seen for many years past. The various cricket matches and football games drew good gatherings of the lovers of both these sports.

The horse racing at Hamilton took many thousands of Toronto people to that city. They traveled by boat, by rail and by motor car. The Hamilton highway was as thick with motors all day long as flies in a cheap eating house out west, but up to a late hour last night no serious accidents had been reported to the police.

Scarboro Beach was just packed—there is no other word but "packed" to describe the number of holidaymakers who spent the day there. They were a usually animated and well dressed spectacle. The weather alone was responsible for this—pretty, well dressed girls had to wear sweaters, a usually attractive by brilliancy of color, but they do not lend enchantment to the symmetry of figure.

The Toronto World

FOUNDED 1827. A morning newspaper published every day in the year by The World Newspaper Company of Toronto, Limited.

FRIDAY MORNING, JULY 2.

Will the Drury Government Stand by Adam Beck?

The municipalities of Ontario and the people generally, we think, have taken it for granted that the Drury government would back up Sir Adam Beck and the Hydro radial policy.

That policy has long been the settled policy of the province of Ontario. The Hydro Radial Commission was created by the legislature of Ontario, and the government of this province has already underwritten the debentures issued pursuant thereto.

Within the past few months negotiations have been carried forward by the Hydro Radial Commission for the acquisition of electric lines controlled by the Dominion government and the city of Guelph respectively, and these negotiations beyond doubt were carried on with the knowledge and with at least the tacit approval of the Drury government.

Now, however, a hitch or a halt seems to have been reached. Under the contract between the Hydro-Electric Commission and the municipality of Guelph the street railway of that city with some suburban extensions was to be turned over to the commission on July 1.

The whole question of Hydro radial is to be considered. Announcements thru the press by anonymous ministers of the crown are not always reliable. Changes in government policy should come from the prime minister and from him alone.

Take the case of the Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto Line. This runs from the Niagara frontier to St. Catharines. The Hydro Radial Commission has surveyed a line and acquired most of the right of way from St. Catharines to Port Credit, including right of way and terminal facilities in Hamilton.

Debtors for many millions of dollars have been issued. Everything is ready to build from the centre of the downtown district in Toronto to Port Credit. Acquiring the Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto Railway was a big step in the Hydro radial program to connect Toronto with the Niagara frontier.

We believe, therefore, that a clear statement of policy is due from Premier Drury to the people of Ontario. The Hydro radial is entitled to unqualified and enthusiastic support.

It should not be handicapped by half-hearted support or by provoking delays. The people want Adam Beck to be given a free hand and any attempts to tie his hands by any government contemplating anything so foolish. But the prime minister should not sit on the fence. He should get down, take off his coat and help Adam Beck.

Budgeting for Strawberry Jam.

The strawberry is king today, and its reign will be short, its effects will be prolonged to those who face a unique economic situation. Relatively, strawberries are cheap, which means that strawberry jam need not be outrageously dear. It is a relief from contemplating the distresses of a war-stricken world to turn to a strawberry budget, in which cream does not figure.

They say strawberries are cheap because the canner did not contract with growers on account of the high cost of sugar. Wherein is a mystery. Canners have never before been known to be shy about putting the costs on the consumer, whatever they are, or are alleged to be. In the dread of committing themselves to a big outlay on sugar for strawberry jam due to something more than a guess that before winter sugar will be cheaper because profiteers will have been checked? That is a speculation, tho, which is perilously near a question of public economic policy and the shadow of a much attenuated board of commerce. It is the purely domestic aspect of strawberry jam that interests economical people in these first July days.

It has been said that strawberries are relatively cheap. Not so long ago it was customary to get them in the height of their season at three boxes for a quarter. Some housewives remember during this century buying four boxes for twenty-five cents. It is painful to revive memories like that while you try to assure yourself that twenty cents a box for number one quality, buying by the crate, is purchasing good fortune.

Like some luscious corporations, the strawberry is almost all water. At how much a pound do you suppose you pay for the flavor? Take the strig off a good average crate of berries and you have about twenty-four pounds for five dollars and forty cents—it is the price of sugar.

In the unbelievable days before the war mother making jam used pound for pound of sugar and strawberries. But now, with sugar at twenty-two and a half cents—the price that frightens the Dominion Canners—she will take chances of getting a good jell on five pounds of fruit to four pounds of sugar—say, twenty of sugar to twenty-four of strawberries. By the time sugar and strawberries have been boiled together for a good hour and put in the jars the most of the product will weigh will be forty pounds—thirty-eight is nearer exactitude. The costs then are strawberries $4.40, sugar $4.50, gas 10 cents, labor, at charwomen's rates, $2.50, total $12.50, or a trifle over 31 cents a pound, without reckoning overhead for use of kitchen, jars, cooking utensils—and housewife's direction.

Consideration of this financial showing suggests a question for students of the high cost of living and the just cost of enjoyment. Strawberries can be preserved in syrup, at half the cost of sugar for jam. But the the preserves are delicious, you eat them with a spoon. You spread jam on bread and use it more or less frugally in tartar and other mother's delights. Strawberry jam is more traditional than strawberry preserves, and the there are many happy departures from grandma's culinary orthodoxy, perhaps it is enough for one morning to work out and digest the current cost of strawberry jam.

Census for a Cancer Worm?

While Dr. Glover of Toronto has been developing a serum which, according to remarkable evidence furnished by hospital clinics, almost instantaneously reduces the sufferings of cancer patients, and appears to dissipate the growth, European savants are calling for a cancer census, on the strength of discoveries about rats devouring cancer from worms embedded in cockroaches. There has been no extensive census of cancer cases such as might lead to classification of conditions which produce more cases in one locality than another, and the discovery of special causes for the origin of cancers.

Before the war, Professor Pilliger, using rats in certain researches, found some of them had cancer in the stomach. He learned that these rats were trapped at a sugar refinery that was infested with cockroaches. The cockroach ate the eggs of a worm, which hatched within its body and became encysted in its muscles. Swallowed by the rat, the worms inflamed its stomach, causing cancer—at least, that is the belief of investigators of the phenomenon.

So far nothing resembling a parasite has been found in human cancerous tissue. Ehrlich, the great German bio-chemist, always connected cancer with food eaten, and a few days before the discovery of Dr. Glover's serum was made known, the European press was giving prominence to the call for a census too, in the hope of discovering something about the origin of cancer in humans analogous to its reputed origin in rats. Great discoveries are often made in

KINGSTON POWER ALLOTMENT.

Kingston, Ont., July 1.—Manager Folger of the civic utilities received a letter from Chief Engineer Gaby of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission, stating that it was impossible just now to give Kingston 2,000 additional horsepower from the Trent owing to the lowness of the water in that river this season. CANADA'S BIRTHDAY HONORED IN LONDON Observed by Reception and Banquet by the High Commissioner.

London, July 1.—Dominion Day was celebrated here with the customary high commissioner's reception in the afternoon and dinner in the evening. Sir George Perley presided at night, supported by Lord Milner, the colonial secretary, the American ambassador, the Greek minister and the Bishop of London.

Lord Milner said the influence of Canada was certain in future to extend far beyond its own borders, and the greater interest he took in matters beyond her borders, the better for all of us, instancing, as an example, the Ottawa conference regarding the West Indies as a step of happy augury.

The American ambassador, Hon. Mr. Davis, created great laughter by declaring that in regard to the invisible boundary to which allusion has already been made, the national beverages were now identical on both sides. He said in part:

"We are working out together the absolute proof that nations can live side by side in amity and concord. Canada is, in my sober judgment, destined to be the great interpreter of the two great branches of the English-speaking peoples."

JUDITH OF BLUE LAKE RANCH

By JACKSON GREGORY.

CHAPTER VI. YOUNG HAMPTON REGISTERS A PROTEST.

It was after 8 o'clock when Tripp rode in on a sweat-soaked horse. Judith met him in the courtyard, giving him her two hands impulsively.

"I'm so glad you've come, Doc!" she cried softly. "Oh, you don't know how glad—yet."

She called Jose to take Tripp's mount, and then led the way into the great living-room, where deep cushions and leather chairs made for comfort.

"I'll give you time to draw a second breath," she told him, forcing into her tone a lightness which she did not quite feel, even tho a surge of satisfaction had warmed her at the first thrust of his horse's hoofs. "Then we'll talk."

She switched on the lights and turned to look at Tripp. He was the same little old Doc Tripp, she noted. His wiry body scarcely bigger than a boy's of 14, he was a man of 50, whose face, like his body, suggested the boy with bright, eager eyes and a frank, friendly smile.

"Prettier than ever, eh, Judy?" Tripp cocked his head to one side and gave his unqualified approval of the slim, supple body and superb carriage of this girl of the mountains, warming to the vivid, vital beauty of the rosy face.

"Been driving those cow-college boys down at Berkeley plumb crazy, I'll bet a prize colt!" Judith laughed at him, watched his slight form disappear in the wide arms of a chair which seemed fairly to smother him in its embrace. Then from her own nook, by the fireplace, she opened her heart to him:

"It's not just that Trevors has crippled me by taking all of my milkers away; not just that he has come near doing I don't know how much harm to having Cromby turn those calves with the lung-worm out into the fields with the others; not just that during the last few months he has lost money for us right and left; not just that Benny, the cook, has tried to fire the range."

"What's that last?" said Tripp quickly. "Tried to smoke you out, huh?"

She told him briefly. How she had first seen the smoke as she came back to the ranch house, how she had sent Jose on the run to get some of the other hands to see that the fire did not spread; how, a little while ago, Carson, the cattle foreman, had come in and assured her that the damage was negligible.

"It was just a brush fire," said Judith. "Thank Heaven, things are pretty green yet. Carson says it might have been lighted by Benny, who, it seems, is one of Trevors' hirelings, and not above this sort of thing; or it might have been accidentally started by some careless hunter. Anyway, and that's enough for me, the fire broke out close to the trail that Benny traveled on his way to the Western Lumber camp. But it isn't just these things which have set me wondering, Doc. What I want to know is this: in how many other still undiscovered ways has Trevors been such a careless hunter. And what else will he have ready to spring on us now?"

"Just what do you mean?" Tripp looked at her keenly.

"This case of lung-worm, to begin with: where did it come from?"

"Imported," said Tripp. "Trevors bought those calves, or, at least, four of the sick ones, last month. Brought them in from somewhere down the river. Smuggled 'em in, so far as I am concerned. Never gave me a chance to look them over." He paused a second. "Especially imported, I might say."

"But she shook her head. "Maybe I am seeing the dankest of big. But I don't think so. And it will be a lot better for Blue Lake ranch if I see them that way at the beginning. And as for the law, I am sure, I'm not sure that Trevors of the lumber people would be averse to getting us involved in a lot of legal intricacies. Oh, he has been careful not to leave any definite proof behind him."

"I know it!" cried Judith. "That's the sort of thing I am afraid of. He has gone to the limit of inventing one disease among our calves, what other plagues has he brought to the ranch? Has he imported any other outside stock?"

"No. He's been busier selling us a sacrifice than buying, just as I would you. Never another head, as you bought lately—unless. Well, you eyes twinkled at her, "you count 'em on!"

"Pigeons!" repeated Judith. Tripp nodded. "Funny, isn't it," he went on lightly—"that a man like Bayne Trevors should be so naive about his fancy little cooling, innocent-like pigeons? Don't hear them in the morning."

"But Judith was not to be distracted by Tripp's talk. She smiled at him, however, as a smile, about as faint as understanding and appreciated the purpose back of his light words.

"We're all going to have our hands full for a spell, Doc," was what she said. "To Trevors, with a free hand here, it must have appeared as a simple matter to make so complete a failure as to force us, encumbered as we are into selling out to the highest bidder inside the door. When he counted young Hampton as a man without business experience and Judith Sanford as a girl without brains! But, Doc, he must have known, too, that at any time there might occur the very thing which has happened—that he'd be in the look of his law and equity. We are a man, don't he? You've caught him, luckily, at the dawn of the game, before it is too late. I think that the obvious thing for you to do is to make certain that all the rest of the stock are in shape. Will you begin tomorrow making a thorough ration?"

"Yes," he answered. "You're right, then, Judith. There's nothing to making sure."

"He's not thru with us," continued the girl thoughtfully; "you could see that in the look of his law and equity when he left. Just what he was to make on his play, I don't know. But I do know that the Western Lumber is offering us only a quarter of what it'd be willing to pay if they had to. That means that the price could afford to bribe Bayne Trevors pretty heavily and still save him a million on the deal if he succeeded in the thing he has begun."

"In his way," admitted Judith thoughtfully, "Trevors is a big man. Big men cost big money. And, besides, it looks to me as tho he were a heavy stockholder in the Western Lumber. He'd stand to win a few ways."

"Another thing I want you to do, Judith, when you go to look up the old men whom Trevors has been crowding out of the Western Lumber and Johny Hodge and Kelsey and Harry and Ted Bruce. We'll need their names. We've got to have men that understand a thing as law in this country, you know."

"But she shook her head. "Maybe I am seeing the dankest of big. But I don't think so. And it will be a lot better for Blue Lake ranch if I see them that way at the beginning. LAKE RANCH

"I knew it!" cried Judith. "That's the sort of thing I am afraid of. He has gone to the limit of introducing one disease among our cattle. What other plague has he brought to the ranch? Has he imported any other outside stock?"

"No. He's been just selling at a sacrifice. But buying, just as I would you. Never another head has he bought lately—unless," and Tripp's eyes twinkled at her, "you count pigeons!"

"Pigeons!" repeated Judith. Tripp nodded. "Pigeons," he went on lightly, "that a man like Bayne Treavor, hard as nails and as free of sentiment as a mule, should fancy pigeons is a little queer, isn't it?"

"But Judith was not to be distracted by Tripp's talk. She smiled at him, however, to show him that she had understood and appreciated the purpose back of his light words.

"We're all going to have our husbands for a spell, Doc," was what she said. "To Treavor, with a free will, it must have appeared rather a simple matter to force us, en masse, into selling out to the highest bidder inside the year. Especially when he counted young Pollock as Hampton as a man without business experience and Judith Sanford as a girl without brains! But, Doc, he must have known, too, that at any time he might occur to the very thing which has happened—that he'd lose his job. He strikes me as a rather long-headed man, doesn't he, you? Now, a man who saw ahead, like you, on this very contingency, would have been than one trick up his sleeve. We've had the stock in shape. Will you be in tomorrow making a thorough investigation?"

"Yes," he answered. "You're right here, Judith. There's nothing like making sure." "He's not through with us," continued she thoughtfully; "you could read that in the look of his jaw and eyes when he left. Just what he stands to make on his play, I don't know. But I do know that the Western Lumber crowd is offering us only a quarter of what they're willing to pay if they had to. That means that Treavor could afford to bribe Bayne Treavor pretty heavily and still save half a million on the deal if he succeeded in the thing he has begun."

"In his way," admitted Tripp thoughtfully, "Treavor is a big man. He can't lose big money. And, besides, he looks to me as though he was a heavy stockholder in the Western Lumber. He'd stand to win two million."

"Another thing I want you to do, Judith, is to try to locate all the old men whom Treavor let go. Jimmy Hodges and Kelley and Harper and Brock and Bruce. We'll need them. We've got to have men that crooked money can't buy."

"Aren't you magnifying things, Judith?" asked Tripp quietly. "There's such a thing as law in this country, you know."

But she shook her head. "Maybe I am seeing the dangers too far. But I don't think so. And it will be a lot better for Blue Lake ranch I see that that way at the beginning. And as for the law, it costs money. I'm not sure that Treavor or a lumber people would be averse to things involved in a lot of legal trickeries. Oh, he has been careful not to leave any definite proof behind."

Continued Tomorrow Morning.

Public Notice Closing of Part of O'Hara Avenue. Notice is hereby given that the Council of the Corporation of the City of Toronto proposes, after the third day of July, 1920, being the date of the last publication of this notice, to pass a by-law to close that part of O'Hara Avenue lying between the right-of-way of the Canadian Pacific Railway and a point about 20 feet north of the southerly limit of Lots 72 and 73, East 37th St.

The proposed by-law and plan showing the lands to be affected may be seen at my office in the city hall.

The Council will hear in person, or by his counsel, solicitor or agent, any person who claims that his land is prejudicially affected by said by-law, and who appears to be interested.

WILLIAMS SUPPLY DEPARTMENT For Machine Shop and Power House Supplies

CONSIDER Due consideration, backed by thoughtful study of many patent plans, will convince the most skeptical that the American Steel Split Pulley is undoubtedly the most perfectly designed Steel Pulley procurable today. Why this claim?

AMERICAN STEEL SPLIT PULLEYS They are the original Steel Split Pulley. Arms not riveted through pulley face, but riveted to internal strengthening rim flanges. Flat "A" braced arms (edge on) cut the air and save power.

End of arms all milled to exact length. Rim made like a channel iron. Central flanges and safely beaded edges.

THEY ARE THE BEST Because they cannot fly to pieces. Because they are 40 to 50 per cent lighter than a cast iron pulley designed for equal service. Because they are split and have interchangeable bushings. We are representatives and carry the largest stock of these pulleys in Canada.

"GODMOTHER" CITIES. The "godmother" idea to help towns in the devastated area in France to rebuild, is becoming very popular. Many cities who did not suffer from the German shells and bombs have taken a town that was the target for the German artillery as a "filiol" and are lending their support and money to rebuild. M. Binet-Vaillier, a widely known newspaper man in Paris, has undertaken a campaign to show the French people that they cannot expect the Americans to help rebuild the devastated areas unless they try to help themselves. The city of Paris has adopted several towns, and a total fund of a half million francs was raised. Other large cities are doing the same, and material aid to the shell-torn towns and villages that formed parts of the battle front will be given.

ITALIAN COINS. A silver dollar is now being coined by the Italian government especially for its trade in the African colony of Tripoli, and it is likely that this new dollar will become the medium of trade all around the Red Sea. For one hundred years the most widely used coin in the Red Sea district has been the Austrian Maria Theresa dollar, of which about 200,000,000 were in circulation there at the beginning of the war. It is estimated that at least one-third of these have been melted down in the last seven years. The new Italian dollar greatly resembles the Maria Theresa dollar, because the Arabs are so conservative that any radical change would have prevented its introduction.

WHOLESALE FRUITS AND VEGETABLES UNSETTLED CLOSURE OF CORN MARKET Predictions of Falling Off Receipts Next Week Caused Rally.

Chicago, July 1.—Predictions of a falling off in the volume of receipts after this week rattled the corn market today from weakness that had shown during the first part of the session. The close was unsettled, but lower, 1-16 advance, with September 1920-1-4 to 1920-7-8, and December 1920-7-8 to 1920-7-8. Oats finished off to 1-16 up, and provisions unchanged to 4-16 off.

The temporary advantage which bears in the corn market, by closing the earlier trading was due to a rally in crop conditions estimated in various private assessments. Receipts were liberal, and the weather nearly ideal. Selling, however, overdone, and when shorts tried to cover they found all offerings had come from plentiful.
