PREFACE.

In undertaking the responsibility of issuing the Annual Directory, the Executive relied to a large extent upon the officers and members using their influence to procure advertisements so as to cover cost of printing.

We regret that very little exertion has been made in this direction; as a consequence the Executive cannot congratulate themselves on issuing it free of loss. Though the loss is comparatively small, there was no necessity for any, considering the extent and influence of the Society. We trust more efforts will be made in future issues. The importance and usefulness of the Directory will, we feel confident, be fully realized and appreciated.

For any errors or omissions, the Executive cannot be held responsible, as every opportunity was afforded Secretaries of Sub-ordinate Lodges to send in full and correct returns.

Supreme Grand Secretary.

Where Should the Consumer Buy ?

In the ordinary course of trade the consumer buys his tea from the retailer, the retailer from the jobber, the jobber from the importer, the importer from the producer; this is commonly known as the regular channel of trade. This is necessary in most cases, as many merchants, both wholesale and retail, have not sufficient trade to purchase from place of growth.

STROUD BROS.

are one of the few firms who have built up a trade sufficient to enable them to purchase from first hands, and the benefit of such buying enables them to be the medium through which the consumer of tea can purchase that article without paying several profits.

STROUD BROS'. name has become a household word in every home in this great Dominion, and their teas are noted for their
