Into the Chesapeake Rive to Escape Arrest.

Baltimore, Aug. 4. — Capt. Hambury, of the schooner Early Bird, reports that "Abe" Taylor, the Norfolk negro wanted by the Baltimore police, who made his escape from Sergt. Lancas-ter of the central district on July 20, by jumping overboard from the Old y Line steamer Georgia, was picked by him about 125 miles down the ay. Taylor, it is said, swam all the yay from Baltimore. The negro had a life-preserver when first sighted, but when the schooner went about and picked him up he rid imself of it. Taylor was sighted or his journey down the bay by several vessels, and each time when assistance vas sent him he refused to come out of the water, saying that he was swimming for a prize. When the Early Bird hailed him h gave the same explanation, but the suspicions of Capt. Hambury were Morgan Crashes His Launch Into Hospital Ship.

New York, Aug. 3.—Puffing at a big black cigar, J. Pierpont Morgan yester-day gave the mate of his yacht Corsair a lesson in how to run a naphuna launch on the East River. At the conon in how to run a naphtha clusion the launch was not much injured, although it tried to sink the tug street ferry terminal.

Incidentally, because she did not sink he drove four boatmen to drink. They had hoped to rescue Mr. Morgan. But he only got his feet wet.

"Give me the helm," he said to the mate. Grasping the wheel with a firm hand, he steered her ahead, or thought he did. The next moment she bumped into the Runyon, and a sea sprang over the side, filling her. Again the financier, heedless of the water, though not so accustomed to seeing it in a launch, as in stocks, turned the launch about, and ran into the derrick The smoke was coming in angry clouds from the big cigar, when, with a fresh start the launch shot out to the Corsair—and ran into the St. John. Again Mr. Morgan backed away. Then he returned the wheel to the mate and the launch gyrating and bounching on the ebbing tide landed the financier at the Corsair's side with soaking shoes. Four boatmen from the neighboring piers rowed back in silence.

The Session.

Parliament will be prorogued on Saturday, but whether dissolution will follow is a state secret. Expressions dropped by members of the Government seem to imply another session, but it is probable that the Government has not yet made up its mind.

Last year the House sat for the record period of seven months, accounted for by the debate on the Grand Trunk Pacific contract. This year there was not the same reason for a prolonged session, though the House has it is being damaged by the British prebeen sitting for five months, Some ference. The investigators might conmembers of the Opposition complained of its length, and were naively told by the Premier to look around them for the cause. The average member of Parliament cannot spend five or six months at Ottawa, except at great sacrifice, and it is not surprising that the House has to do business day after day with one-half the members in attend-

The present session, like its predecessor, was pre-eminently a railway session. The Government submitted amendments to the Grand Trunk Pacific contract, which the promoters claimed were necessary to the finacing of the undertaking. The contract, in its amended form, is not likely to place any additional financial obligation on the Canadian people. In the original agreement the Government undertook to guarantee the bonds of the mountain section to the extent of $30,000 a mile. Under the new agreement the Government guarantees 75 per cent of the cost and there is reliable engineering testion of construction, whatever it may be; and there is reliable engineering testion.

WANTS TO THROW BOMBS Queer Card Makes His Way Into

Durand's House. Pittsburg, Mass., Aug. 3. - Lenox has been much alarmed over the appearance of a deranged man at the ountry residence of the British ambassador, Sir Mortimer Durand. The stranger asked for money. He made harangue when refused, and said he admired the assassin of Minister Von Plehve and that some day he would throw a bomb himself. He was dissuaded from entering the embassy and after a time went away to reappear later at the residence of Miss Adele Kneeland, of New York, where he again demanded money. A contractor who was on the ground attempted to detain the fellow, but he ran and got away. The police were notified and searched the town for the man, who had made good his escape. The incident stirred up the diplomatic circles in Lenox.

The sustaining influence, of course, is the prospect of a bumper cotton crop. The Erie stocks have been notably strong on the declaration of the semi-annual dividend on the first preferred. The advance in Frisco second is generally attributed to pool work. Louisville and Nashville made another sharp advance, which has been helped by London buying. American Cotton Oil jumped sharply today. The standard jumped sharply today. The standard railway stocks have acted well. Met-ropolitan advanced sharply after the opening and then reacted somewhat. The steadiness in the market is in contrast to the bearish talk of traders.
