talkin' about it," replied Mrs. Ball, "and they said they had heard that Mrs. Rogers had bought a fine lot and was goin' to build, and that she was as lively and as interested in the plans as if she was just married. I don't believe it, and I tell 'em so. Why, here it is time for her to die, according to the Bible, and she's taking a new start in life. And you think it's really so poor, do you?"

"I don't know," replied Cerinthy. "Jenny's husband is a contractor and he's been asked to name his price for buildin' the house. He told Jen last night that it was goin' to cost considerable and have fine porches and plate glass, a built-in-ice-chest, and I don't know what all."

"Well, I suppose it's none of our business what she does," said Mrs. Ball, "but I guess every one would think it more sensible if she would give up house keepin' at her age and go and live with her married daughter in Ohio."

"She thinks she shows her good sense by stayin' in her own home," returned Cerinthy, "and Mrs. Williams, the judge's wife, thinks so too. She declares that old people are not as old, or do not seem as old, as people of their age, did twenty-five and thirty years ago. Nowadays if they have a chance they enjoy life and keep about, and plan for the future, when folks of their age used to say they were 'in the sare and yellow leaf' and did not attempt to do anything more."

"There's truth in that," replied Mrs. Ball, emphatically.

"I remember how mad Widow Lovell was when her daughter was getting ready to get married to that Presbyterian minister and he told her patronizingly that they would give her a cozy corner in his home. She was only fifty and was as smart and active as could be. Why, she was as lively as a young girl in a day as her young daughter. It was laughable to hear her talk on about 'that cozy corner.' 'No cozy corner for me' she would say. 'He can keep it for his own mother if he likes, but it's too cramped a place for me. You'll not have the privilege, my revered son-in-law,' she said, 'of telling your friends that you have given your mother-in-law a cozy corner in the paragon; no, indeed.' And Widow Lovell lived on to be seventy-eight years old, but she never took possession of that cozy corner, but lived and died in her own home."

"There goes Mrs. Rogers now into Mrs. Williams' garden," she exclaimed. "They exchange plants and slips every spring, and I guess that's what she's there for now. Hear her laugh! It's her merry heart, I guess, that's kept her so young feeling and so smart. They say she's up at six o'clock every morning and does her marketing before breakfast, and works about her home as much as any young woman."

"Law' yes," replied Mrs. Ball. "She does all that and much more. She has lunch parties, and a reading club of old folks every week at her home, and teaches her class in Sunday-school. But for all that she's seventy, and might expect to drop off any time, and I can't see why she should think of building a new house."

"I'm going to run over and see what she says about it," and Cerinthy drew up her shawl and was out and across the two lanes and in Mrs. Williams' garden in a minute.

"Good morning, friends!" she exclaimed. "Isn't this a lovely May morning? I suppose you are making an exchange of plants as usual."

"Yes, we're talking about them, but we are not exchanging just yet. I have set out my currant and raspberry bushes all along the fence in my new lot. Of course I can't do much with the flowers until the house is finished."

"I suppose you don't know what a sensation you've made about that new house," said Cerinthy. "You're quite the talk of the town. Folks wouldn't believe it at first, and some of them can scarcely believe it now."

"Why not?" said Mrs. Rogers. "I'm sure I don't know why one of my age who is as well as I am and with money to pay for a house should not build one. Ever since the old home was burned and I have been boarding and feeling as if I was about half-living, I've been thinking of building. Why, I expect to grow younger rather than satisfaction than much ease and freedom from care in the home of her married daughter, to whose friends, or the most of them, she could never expect to be other than Mrs. Benton's mother.

And now all those who thought it foolish for her to build when she was seventy, and who see her with her sweet happy face, sitting by her fire in her beautiful sitting-room, and who hear her say, "I'm so thankful I have this lovely room to age in," share in her gratitude, and wish that many old people had the same blessing.—The Standard.

Country Boys.

Mothers who live in the country often wish they had better opportunities for their boys.

In the sparsely settled farming districts one is apt to find his sympathy and commiseration going out to the children whose homes are in these lonely and seemingly unattractive places. Remote from towns and villages and compelled through scant comradeship to rely upon their own resources for enjoyment, it would indeed appear to some that their isolation and homely surroundings were things to be regretted. But if we knew all that these know, perhaps we would find that they have less need of pity than ourselves. They are very close to nature and nature takes care of her own. The first messages of spring are given to the farmer's boy. The mild south wind which softens the ice and sets the meadow brooks to overflowing also causes his spirits to thaw and overflow. It is to him that the first blue bird calls out her sweet and cheery welcome, and it is his sharp ears and eyes that discover the pioneer robin in the top of the tall maple. In his brown fist he brings home the earliest spring flowers, blue violets, anemones, and adders' tongues. The pussy willow blooms for him before others see it, and all the creeping, crawling and flying things report their advent to him before the rest of the world is aware of their arrival. It is not always he who travels farthest that learns the most. The intelligent boy who has spent a dozen years or more on a fifty acre farm, almost every square foot of which he has worked over with hoe, or ax, or soy, gets to have a very thorough knowledge of a large part of the earth's surface, even though he may never have crossed the limits of the county in which he was born. Being for the most part mechanically employed, his faculties are alert to what is going on around him. He sees the wild creatures in their moods, surprises them in their most furtive errands and sooner or later draws their secrets from them. He has, or should have, good health, strong limbs, endurance, and a love for nature. Mothers, if you have boys and live in the country do not pine for a city life till they are grown up. This is my view of the case and I know both sides of the question, for I have lived in both city and country, and seen children brought up with every city advantage come to naught, and those brought up in the country reach high stations in life. The lack of advantage rarely keeps a boy down if he has true merit in him, and an excess of advantages does not lift him up if he is lacking in the true elements of success.

The Only Perfect Dye Stuffs in the World.

The scientific preparation of dyestuffs and putting them up in proper shape for family dyeing has been brought to perfection by Wells & Richardson Co., who are proprietors of the celebrated Diamond Dyes.

These popular dyes have banished from the homes of Canada madder, fustic, log-wood, cochineal and all other antiquated dyestuffs. The work of home dyeing is now done quickly and successfully by Diamond Dyes; the process is one that would astonish our grand parents.

To-day millions all over the world use the scientific Diamond Dyes in preference to all others. Diamond Dyes commend themselves to all who use them, because they are the strongest, brightest and fastest, and the easiest to work with.

Diamond Dyes, like all other perfect and popular preparations, are largely imitated in style of package and the way they are put up. These imitations are worthless and adulterated dyes, ruinous to all kinds of goods and dangerous to handle. Great caution is advised when buying dyes for home use. Ask only for the "Diamond"; see that the name is on every packet.

The Summer Girl—Oh! I love nature so! The Farmer—Well, miss, things is just as nacheral around here as they are anywhere.

A Millionaire's Predicament.

Baron Rothschild was once caught in a predicament that many people experience daily, and that is getting into a conveyance of some kind, and then not having the money to pay the fare.

The driver of the omnibus into which Rothschild entered demanded his fare, and the baron, feeling in his pockets, discovered that he had no change. The driver was very angry. "What did you get in for if you had no money?"

"I am Baron Rothschild," explained the great capitalist, "and there is my card."

The driver scornfully tossed the card away. "Never heard of you before," said he, "and I don't want to hear of you again. What I want is my fare."

The banker was in great haste. "Look here. I've an order for a million," he said, "give me the change," and he proffered a coupon for that amount.

The driver stared and the passengers laughed. Possessing a truce of the baron entered the omnibus at the moment, and taking in the situation, immediately paid the fare. The driver realizing his mistake, and feeling remorseful, said to the baron:

"If you want ten francs, sir, I don't mind lending them to you on my own account."

Largest Estates in Britain.

The largest estate in the United Kingdom is the lordship of Sutherland, the property of the Duke of Sutherland. The estate is no less than 739,200 acres in extent. The estate of Reay, in the same part of Scotland, is also very large, extending about 30 miles in length and 15 to 20 miles in breadth. These estates far exceed in extent any continuous single estate in England, Oas of the largest in the latter country is the Ailesbury, or Savernake, estate, in Wiltshire. It comprises, besides the park in which the ancestral mansion is situated, at least thirteen parishes, the whole estate consisting of about 55,000 acres, and extending for a distance of more than 12 miles.

a course of Ayer's Pills the system is set in good working order and a man begins to feel that life is worth living. He who has become the gradual prey of constipation, does not realize the friction under which he labors, until the burden is lifted from him. THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., JULY 16, 1897.

Editorial Chat.

Ratepayers in arrears for taxes of water-rates will be interested in an announcement in another column. We understand it is the intention of the authorities to make no exceptions this time. The proposed changes in the water rates cannot take effect before the first of next year. Rates now due must be paid in accordance with the scale now in force.

Hot weather has come to us at last, and the papers this week have had accounts of numerous deaths and prostrations from the heat in most of the U. S. cities. As a result we may expect an increased influx of tourists to our town. Wolfville with its beautiful scenery, cool breezes and pleasant drives and walks proves a haven of refuge to the inhabitants of the hot and crowded cities at this season.

The committee appointed by the town council last week to confer with the management of the Dominion Atlantic railway with regard to the widening of Elm avenue from Front street to the railway station has been successful. The management met them in a most generous manner and readily consented to the changes asked for. They will also furnish two train-loads of gravel for levelling and grading. These changes when carried out will be of great benefit to the town both from the standpoint of appearance and convenience.

As will be seen by notice in another column a public meeting has been called for Monday evening, August 2nd, when the subject of sewerage will be up for discussion. The matter is a most important one and there should be a full attendance of ratepayers. Sufficient notice has been given to enable ratepayers to prepare themselves to discuss the matter understandingly. It is to be hoped that our citizens will get all the information possible before the meeting so as to be prepared for the discussion and that the outcome of the meeting may be such as will advance the best interests of the town.

Beach Echoes.

Evangeline Beach formally opened for summer season on Friday last. As the Wolfville Band was not yet organized and the merry-go-round was not yet completed, the opening was not widely advertised as formerly, consequently the attendance on that day was small. We hope however, in the near future to have a day when both these necessary adjuncts to pleasure will be present.

Since and before the opening day this season has been visited by a number of private parties from Wolfville, Kentville, Canard and Windsor.

Mr and Mrs D'Almeida and family have taken up their abode at the Beach for the season.

Next week will be a good one for bathers, as the tide serves in the afternoon. Come down on your "bike" and have a dip.

Parties from Kentville, Wolfville, Grand Pre and other places have engaged the four cottages which are now in process of erection.

This week while people in town were suffering from the great heat those who visited the Beach were delighted to find it cool and breezy even through the sunniest part of the day.

Belcom's Beach Express commenced its usual summer tour to and from Evangeline Beach, on Monday of this week. This cheap and delightful drive has been fully taken advantage of by the tourists who are residing in our town.

There has been lots of excitement in town this week. A carriage was overturned one evening, throwing the occupants out. The next day a gentleman from White Rock, ran his team into that of a lady from Canard, with the result that the White Rock man had his carriage badly smashed. A well known resident of our town was driving down Highland avenue when his horse stepped on a stone and fell, upsetting the carriage, and smashing it considerably. Last, but not most amusing of all, was the collision between two ancient female pedestrians, who met at the corner of Linden avenue and Main street. One of the old dames had on her arm a large basket, containing a dozen or so boxes of strawberries, while the other had her arms full of "bargains." They met, and great was the meeting thereof. The strawberries went flying hither and thither, being comically intermingled with the "bargains to 5 cents" cotton. The old ladies gave expression to their thoughts in appropriate language. Could we afford space for any quotations they would be found quite spicy.

The officers of Wolfville Division for the current quarter are as follows: W. P. Howard A. Moore, W. A. Miss Ernie Bishop, R. S. B. O. Davison, A. R. S. Miss Grace Patriquin, F. S. Miss Sadie Shaw, Treas.—Miss Edith Toye, Chap.—G. V. Rand, Comd.—Mrs B. O. Davison, A. Coad.—Miss B. L. Fisher, I. S.—Miss Cecelia Eastwood, O. S.—Miss Ethel Eastwood. The meetings of the Division are being well attended and the members manifest a lively interest in the work of the order.

From the Ancient World.

Messrs. Grenfell and Hutton have discovered on the borders of the Libyan deserts one of the oldest papyri known, bearing the words of Christ. The value of this find in the interest it will arouse in the whole Christian world, proves inestimable. It comprises a dozen leaves, each 5 1/2 by 3 1/2 inches in size, remarkably well preserved, and clearly written in uncial characters of the ancient Greek, and dates about 60 years after the crucifixion. It has been translated, and is found to consist of detached sayings of Christ, without context, each beginning with the words, "Jesus saith." The translation will soon be published by the Egypt Exploration Fund. An immense edition at a few pence a copy, will be provided, so as to reach everybody.

Other discoveries have been lately made in Egypt of almost inestimable value. Large rolls of papyri have been unearthed, that cover a wide range of literature, poetry, law and ethics. The contents of this new discovery, range from the first to the sixth century, and has furnished to the literary archaeologist at least as many papyri as have hitherto existed in the whole of Europe. The discoverer expects that 10 to 20 years will be occupied before the papyri are fully deciphered.

Canning.

Prof. Russell and wife, of Truro, are visiting at Mrs. Chas. Miller's. Mrs. Kirkpatrick and son are visiting her mother, Mrs. Wickwire. Mrs. A. M. Lockwood representing "The Golden Milling Co." of Ontario, is in town.

The new dike across the river is progressing favorably. The heavy tide caused a failure in the first attempt to place the sluice.

Quite a building boom seems to have struck Canisling. Mr. H. G. Martin has built a handsome store. The R. W. Kinman Co. have purchased three stores which they intend to tear down and re-build with a large block. Many dwellings also have been greatly improved. Mr. A. D. Paysant has completely altered the inside of his house, putting in new floors and stairways. He has also graded the front yard and built a terrace along the west side of the house.

There are two Presbyterian ministers in Winnipeg, both Nova Scotians and laborers for a time in this Province. Rev. Joseph Hogg, of St. Andrew's Church, where the late Assembly met, is a native of Clyde River, Shelburne, and has been nine years in Winnipeg.

When seventeen years of age Mr. Hogg obtained a first-class license, and taught in three superior schools in Nova Scotia. He has been an extensive traveller, having visited large portions of Canada, United States, Europe, Asia, and Africa.

Since his settlement at the finest manse in the city and a grand church. Four years ago Rev. C. B. Fitch had charge of the immediate department of our public schools and has filled the position faithfully. She has won a large place in the hearts of her pupils and the people of Wolfville generally, and all will learn with sincere regret that it is not her intention to remain in our school. The ACADIAN joins a host of friends in wishing every success in her future field of labor.

A Society of Christian Endeavor was found in the Presbyterian church at Horton on Tuesday evening last, and as that congregation are noted for making a success of everything they undertake, we will look for good results. T. H. Blenus, one of the oldest and most respected citizens of Cornwallis, Kings county, died on Saturday morning, the 10th inst. Mr Blenus was nearly 82 years of age and was widely known as a man of sterling integrity and honesty of purpose. Blessed during the greater part of his life with great strength of mind and body, his hand and heart were ever ready to answer the demands of neighbor and friend. His death removed one of the old landmarks of the community in which he was so long, so well, and favorably known. The interment took place on Sunday afternoon in the family lot of the Church street, Cornwallis, Episcopal cemetery, Rev. de Reid, of the Baptist church, and Axford of the Episcopal church, officiating. The deceased has been a member of the Christian church for more than 50 years.

Cape Negro, Shelburne Co., has an old lady who will be 99 years of age if she lives till September. Her name is Mrs Rebecca Swaine, and she has two sisters, Mrs Rachel Swaine and Mrs Temperance Hattie, twins, 95; another sister, Mrs Abbie Swaine, is ninety-two, and a brother, J. Freeman Swaine, 84. Mrs Swaine has good eyesight, and sews and knits without the aid of glasses. She is yet able to go out, and quite frequently calls upon neighbors. Her sisters and brother are also enjoying good health. This family certainly takes the prize for longevity. Mrs Swaine is undoubtedly the oldest person-to-day living in Shelburne county.—Yarmouth Herald.

Insanity In Summer

BROUGHT ON BY NERVOUS AND MENTAL TROUBLES.

Painful Celery Compound the Great Tower of Safety.

Nervous diseases when aggravated by mental disturbances produce more cases of insanity in the hot weather than at any other season of the year.

Nervous sufferers have a dread of hot weather. Finding themselves deeper in the pit of misery than they were in the spring and early summer, they are in utter despair.

Sleeves are Drooping. Sleeves droop at the shoulders and gradually lessen until they are fairly tight at the wrist, and this cuts off the last resource pocketless women had for disposing of the essential handkerchief.

Gratifying Intelligence. Word Received of the Complete Recovery of Mrs. John Dowdy.

Buying a College. "Western colleges come cheap," says a Connecticut paper in commenting on the gift of $20,000 from Francis A. Palmer, of New York, to a college in Iowa.

They had a funny incident at Yale College one day. Professor Silliman was going to experiment with laughing gas when he overheard a student say that under its influence no one was responsible for what he said, and he would take advantage of this and tell Professor Silliman what he thought of him.

"Integrity, My Boy." Charles Sumner was very fond of his page in the Senate, and often kept him with him in his rooms. One day he asked suddenly: "Harry, do you know what makes a great man?"

"Integrity, my boy! Honesty, courage! but integrity, not to be bought or sold! Do what you believe to be right. Like Daniel, of whom the princes said: 'We find no occasion against this man Daniel.' They found no flaws in his accounts, no loose ends of business, and no slips of the golden truth."

Character takes shape by a very slow process. No one becomes at a bound that into which he fully matures. Silently, and in a measure imperceptibly, we tend in this direction of life.

Johnnie called his mother, stop using that bad language. Why, replied the boy, Shakespeare said just what I said.
