Principal and Interest payable in Gold. Denominations: $50, $100, $500, and $1,000
Issue Price: 100 and Accrued Interest, Income Return 5 1/2% per Annum

The proceeds of the Loan will be used to pay indebtedness incurred, and to meet expenditures to be made in connection with demobilization (including the authorized war service gratuity to our soldiers, land settlement loans, and other purposes connected with their re-establishment into civil life), for capital outlay upon shipbuilding, and other national undertakings forming part of Canada's industrial reconstruction programme, and for the establishment of any necessary credits for the purchase of grain, foodstuffs, timber and other products, and will be spent wholly in Canada.

Payment to be made as follows:
10% on application; 20% December 9th, 1919; 20% January 9th, 1920; 20% February 10th, 1920; 31.21% March 9th, 1920.

A full half-year's interest will be paid on May 1st, 1920, making the cost of the bonds 100 and interest.
Subscriptions may be paid in full at the time of application at 100 without interest, or on any instalment due date thereafter, together with accrued interest at the rate of 5 1/2% per annum.
This Loan is authorized under Act of the Parliament of Canada, and both principal and interest are a charge upon the Consolidated Revenue Fund.
The amount of this issue is $300,000,000, exclusive of the amount (if any) paid for by the surrender of bonds of previous issues. The Minister of Finance, however, reserves the right to allot the whole or any part of the amount subscribed in excess of $300,000,000.

Payments

All cheques, drafts, etc., covering instalments are to be made payable to the Credit of the Minister of Finance. Failure to pay any instalment when due will render previous payments liable to forfeiture, and the allotment to cancellation. Subscriptions other than those paid in full on application must be accompanied by a deposit of 10% of the amount subscribed. Official Canvassers will forward subscriptions or any branch in Canada of any Chartered Bank will accept subscriptions and issue receipts.
Subscriptions may be paid in full at time of application at 100 without interest, or on any instalment due date thereafter, together with accrued interest to time of making payment in full. Under this provision, payment of subscriptions may be made as follows:

If paid in full on or before November 15th, 1919, par without interest or 100%
If remaining instalments paid on Dec. 9th, 1919, balance of 90% and interest ($39.52 per $100).
If remaining instalments paid on Jan. 9th, 1920, balance of 70% and interest ($70.34 per $100).
If remaining instalments paid on Feb. 10th, 1920, balance of 50% and interest ($51.08 per $100).
If remaining instalment paid on Mar. 9th, 1920, balance of 30% and interest ($31.21 per $100).
Payment of instalments or payment in full after November 15th, 1919, can be made only on an instalment due date.

Bearer bonds, with coupons, will be issued in denomination of $50, $100, $500, and $1,000, and may be registered as to principal. The first coupon attached to these bonds will be due on May 1st, 1920.
Fully registered bonds, the interest on which is paid direct to the owner by Government cheque, will be issued in denominations of $500, $1,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000, $50,000, $100,000, or any multiple of $100,000.

Payment of Interest

A full half-year's interest at the rate of 5 1/2% per annum will be paid May 1st, 1920.

AUTUMN

HERE is a nip in the air these mornings that must be rather sharp to the man who scrapes his chin when shaving himself.

If he used a Gillette Safety Razor, he would positively enjoy shaving every morning, he would look his best at all times, and there would be no cutting or chafing of the skin!

Furthermore, in the time he now takes to get his old razor edge as near right as he can, he could finish shaving with the Gillette.

Stropping and Honing would be a thing of the past for him. That alone is worth $5,—the price of a

SIR WILLIAM'S WILL

"Yes," she rejoined. "I must. I am very sensible—you have paid me a very great honor—all that you have said about a difference between us, does not, would not, matter, even if it existed. I am only the mistress of Bramley for a time, for a very short time longer. No, it is not that. But

"You do not care for me as I want you to do?" he said, his voice full of anxious trouble. "I was not so bold, so vain, as to dream that you would; but I hoped that in time—"

She drew away from him and shook her head.

"No, I could not," she said, in a low voice.

"Is there no hope for me?" he said. "Is there some one else?"

The color threatened to rise to Clytie's face, but she kept it back. She was silent, but he had no suspicion. Who could there be, he asked himself quickly, unless there was some one to whom she had given her heart before she came to Bramley? But in that case he would have made his appearance long before this.

"If there is no one else," he said. "Ah! I have no right to ask, I know; but if there is no one else, may I not venture to hope?"

"No, no," she said, quickly, and with a look of distress. "I could never marry you, Mr. Carton. And please accept my answer," she went on, hurriedly, as he was about to speak. "It is—final. It would be wrong not to tell you so, because I know my own mind; I know that I could never—"

His face was scarcely paler than usual, but his lips came together tightly in a straight line, and his eyelids drooped to conceal the flash of resentment in his eyes.

"Why, yes, why should we not be friends?" You have paid me a very great honor, a very great compliment, and it would be foolish of us to regard each other, as if we were mutually offended, as if we were enemies. Yes, we will be friends, Mr. Carton; and I hope you will come to the Hall as often as you care to do so, and as if nothing had happened. Indeed, I am not unselfish and disinterested in asking you to do so, because you have been so kind as to help me so many times, and I know that I shall need your help in the future.

"You shall put it that way, if you like," he said, with a smile, "though I know that your goodness, your sweetness of heart, prompt you to do so. And believe me that I am grateful, and shall be still more grateful for an opportunity of serving you. I will say good night now and here. I am scarcely equal to facing the others. I shall remember my promise, and will keep it. We are—just friends. Good night!"

He bent over her hand; but was too wise to raise it to his lips or even to press it, and when Clytie re-entered the drawing-room he had gone.

Heathcliff lay back in the corner of the fly that took him back to Bramley, his head drooped on his chest,

It's Pure Cleans sinks, closets Kills roaches, rats, mice Dissolves dirt that nothing else will move his arms folded, and with a scowl on his dark face which would have amazed the people he had just left, some of whom were at that moment remarking with approval on his admirable manners and his conversational ability. No man likes being rejected; and Heathcliff had more reasons than the usual one for disappointment and chagrin. His, but that Clytie's decision was a final one, that she would never consent to marry him, that it was not as her husband he could ever hope to reign at Bramley Hall. To a man of his nature it was well-nigh maddening that this girl, so small a pawn on the board of life, should stand between him and his desires.

And the worst of it was, that she would thus stand in the bitter end; for, though she sometimes looked frail she was strong and healthy, and would most certainly marry some other man.

He let himself into the gloomy house, and paced up and down the room with a kind of wolfish impatience at the fate which seemed to mock him and balk him at every turn. Ah, well, there was nothing left for him but to devote himself to business, to develop the works and slowly scrape together the fortune which would enable him to enter public life and partially satisfy the ambitious spirit that worked like yeast within him; but strive as he might, succeed as he intended to succeed, he would never be master of Bramley.

He was too restless to go to bed, and he turned to the table and fell to work on some papers which were neatly piled there. It was routine work, and he proceeded with it almost mechanically; but presently he came upon a half-sheet of paper upon which was scribbled some figures and signs used in chemistry. He regarded it absently for a moment or two, as if he had forgotten what it was; then he remembered; it was the analysis he had made of the contents of the vial which had proved fatal to Martha Brown.

He took up the half-sheet of paper and, leaning back in his chair, regarded it thoughtfully. Suddenly he put it down on the table and drew back his chair, eyeing the paper with a strange expression on his face, an expression that was almost one of terror, of repulsion; and yet he continued to gaze at the scribbled figures as if he got up and went to the fire and warmed his hands, for a chill had crept over him that caused him to shudder. He resolutely kept his back to the table for a time, but presently he glanced over his shoulder, and after a while, he advanced slowly to the table and took up the paper again; it shook in his hand. Though the rest of him was as cold as ice, his head began to burn, his eyes grew dim, so that the figures and signs danced in a demoniac fashion.

He glanced furtively from side to side, as if there were other presences in the room, as if he were listening to some insidious voice whispering in his ear; indeed, he actually waved his shaking hand as if to wave the voice away, but it seemed to persist; and, after a minute or two, he sank into the chair, and with the paper crumpled in his hand, sat staring before him, his face white as death, his dark eyes glowing with a terrible expression in them.

And the voice still continued to whisper and he to listen, now with no impatience or resentment, but with something near akin to acquiescence.

CHAPTER XX.

The following morning Stanton almost burst into the breakfast-room of the Hall where Clytie and Mollie were still lingering over the meal. They had been discussing the party at the Towers at which Mollie, at any rate, had enjoyed herself amazingly. On their way home Clytie had asked herself whether she should tell Mollie of Mr. Hesketh Carton's proposal; but had decided that she would not do so. A rejected proposal should remain a secret between the two persons principally concerned; besides, the fact that Mr. Hesketh Carton had dared—Clytie knew that that was how Mollie would put it—to ask her to be his wife, would only render the already strained relations between Mollie and Mr. Carton still more strained, and render the friendship between him and the two girls almost impossible.

So when Mollie had demanded to be informed what Clytie and he were talking about in the conservatory, Clytie had managed to satisfy her without disclosing the truth.

"Lord Stanton," said Mollie; and the boy bounced in with such an obvious air of excitement that Mollie feigned a dramatic start, and exclaimed:

"Don't tell me! I can guess! The Towers is burnt down!"

"EH? No, no!" he said, laughing, but rather ruefully. "Nothing's the matter; that is—Oh, I say, I beg your pardon for rushing in like this, but I was afraid you'd gone out. Something has happened, though. I have just had the most extraordinary letter from Jack Douglas."

Clytie rose, on the pretence of seeing that the kettle was boiling—the servants did not wait at breakfast—so that neither of the others saw the sudden flushing of her face.

"You've not had your breakfast, Lord Stanton," she said. "Sit down and join us."

"Ah, yes," said Mollie. "Sit down—if you can. But don't give him any—"

PIMPLES ON FACE CUTICURA HEALS

Caused Disfigurement. Itchy and Burning. Had Restless Nights.

"My face came out in little pimples that were sore, and I scratched them constantly, and then they turned into scales, causing much disfigurement. The skin was so itchy that I irritated it by scratching. The burning was fierce, and I had many restless nights. This trouble lasted about a year before I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and after using three cakes of Soap and two boxes of Ointment I was healed." (Signed) W. Byrns, St. Basile, Que., Nov. 23, 1918.

thing to eat or drink till he has told us what is the matter. Once you put food before men they forget everything else, as I know to my bitter cost. Lord Chillingford went through half his dinner last night before he condescended to address a remark to me; and I felt inclined to take his plate from him. Now, what about Jack Douglas—I beg his pardon, Mr. Douglas?"

"Why, he's gone!" exclaimed the lad.

Mollie glanced quickly at Clytie; but Clytie was on her guard now, and looked quite calm and serene; for, of course, she was not even surprised.

"Oh, gone on a holiday?" said Mollie. "Well, I suppose he wanted it; I ought to say deserved it."

"But he's gone for good!" almost shouted Stanton.

"Gone for bad, you mean," corrected Mollie, suavely.

"I can't make it out. It almost looks as if he were offended about something; but I can't guess what it is. I saw him yesterday and—gave him a cheque. We had a few words about it; I mean, he thought it was too much. Of course it wasn't; I'm not so unbusinesslike." Mollie laughed derisively. "Anyhow, it wasn't too much; and he took it at last, and promised to come up to the Towers last night to go over the specifications. He didn't come—first time Douglas has broken an appointment—and this morning Mrs. Westaway brings me this letter. She was awfully cut up, half in tears and half-nasty with me—as if I were to blame!—says Douglas left the cottage last night, or, rather, early this morning; that he kissed Polly good-bye and told her he was going, but that he was coming back; but the letter says—"

"Is the letter confidential, or may one, or, rather, two, be permitted to hear it," said Mollie, smoothly.

"Of course!" he responded. "That's why I brought it round!"

He took out the letter, which poor Jack had written in his misery, and read it. Mollie drummed on the table with an air of impatience and something like vexation; but Clytie sat perfectly still, her chin in her hands, her eyes fixed on the cloth.

"You see, he gives no reason," said Stanton, aggrievedly. "I recommended him to take a holiday, because he was off color, and he had been working jolly hard and wanted a change. I had not the least idea that he'd got the hump of the whole thing, as he evidently has, and was going to leave the place for good. I don't know what I shall do without him. Feel as if I couldn't carry on without Douglas," he continued. "And I hate the thought of his going like this, as if—as if something were the matter and he'd been badly treated. What do you think in the matter?" he asked, looking from one to the other, anxiously.

Clytie made no reply, but Mollie shrugged her shoulders and said: "I don't know. I suppose it would be wicked and unladylike—which is worse than wicked—to suggest that the admirable Mr. Douglas had gone on the spree."

"Mollie?" murmured Clytie, reprovingly.

"Well, you suggest something," retorted Mollie, defiantly. "But—what does it matter? I mean, that the world will not come to an end because Mr. Jack Douglas has suddenly left Withercombe without rhyme or reason."

"That's all very well," remonstrated Stanton; "but what am I to do without him?"—He looked from one to the other ruefully. "I feel like—a man without—without—"

"Without his purse," put in Mollie, in an undertone, fortunately too low for Clytie to hear. "You will have to do without him. Engage another man to take his place."

Stanton shook his head. "Don't like doing that," he said, wistfully. "Seems—seems sort of disloyal you know. Besides, I got fond of the beggar. He was such a decent chap. Almost like one of ourselves. You could talk to Jack Douglas as if—as if he were your brother, don't you know?"

Mollie shrugged her shoulders. "Well, I'm afraid I can't help you; unless you take us on in his place, and talk to use like—like sisters."

"I shouldn't like you for—a sister, Miss Mollie," said the lad, with a sudden blush.

"And I'm not at all convinced that I should like you for a brother," retorted Mollie calmly. "You would be too much of a responsibility. Did you ride over, or did you run all the way? If the former, and you promise to be good and not bore us about Jack Douglas, Clytie and I will ride over after lunch, in your charming society, and pay our duty call to Lady Mervyn. I do not know whether it is of very great importance to you or the world at large, but I like Lady Mervyn; and it is always a cause for surprise with me how she could have deservied the evil fate of being the aunt of a certain young gentleman I know."

The lad grinned. "You always make me laugh, Miss Mollie," he said. "But, all the same, I am awfully sick about Jack Douglas."

"And I'm sick of him, for the present," retorted Mollie; "so let's drop the subject. Have you finished?" If so, come and help me feed the dogs. Clytie, I'll order the horses for three o'clock."

Clytie drew a long breath of relief when they had left her alone. He had gone for good; what did it mean? Had anything happened since she saw him, since she had promised to wait for that story of his? She rose, with a little gesture of helplessness, and went about her routine work. There were letters to read and write, accounts to be gone into and checked; and she strove to go through her daily tasks and thrust Jack Douglas from her mind; but every now and then she found herself gazing at the paper and wondering what his letter could mean.

Why had he said that he should not come back; where had he gone? She was inclined to make herself unhappy over these and similar questions; but she was determined that she would not do so. Indeed, the spring of hope that had started in her bosom was still flowing freely, and her newly born interest in the estate and the people buoyed up; and she went about with a cheerfulness and the high spirits which of late had displaced themselves in her voice and movements.

TIMELY RECIPES.

CHERRY SALAD

Lettuce, cherries, mayonnaise dressing, cherry juice and peanuts. Arrange crisp lettuce leaves on a flat salad plate. Scatter the cherries through the leaves. Pour over a mayonnaise dressing, first adding one tablespoonful of cherry juice instead of vinegar. Then arrange a few cherries over the top. The cherries should be stoned and a peanut placed inside to keep the shape.

CHERRY PUDDING

Mix a cupful of stale cake crumbs, a well-beaten egg, three tablespoonfuls of sugar, one tablespoonful of melted butter, half a cupful of milk and enough flour to make a stiff batter, adding a teaspoonful of baking powder with the flour. Put a thick layer of seeded cherries in the bottom of an earthenware baking dish, sprinkle generously with brown sugar and pour over for half an hour, serve with a hard sauce flavored with almond extract.

POTATO RUSK

Take one pint of milk, three eggs, a cup of butter, a cup of potato yeast and enough flour to thicken. Make a sponge, and when light stir down and let rise again, then stir down once more and when again light knead into dough. Cover and let double its original bulk, then make into light biscuits and fill the pans. Cover and let rise again and bake for half an hour.

GOOD RUSK

To two cups of raised dough add a cup of sugar, two ounces of butter, two well-beaten eggs and knead into a rather stiff dough. Cover and set to rise, and when light mold into small biscuits, place closely together in a buttered biscuit pan, cover and set to rise again, and when light brush the top lightly with a little white of egg, sift sugar and a little cinnamon or chopped almonds over them and bake in a bread oven for from 30 to 45 minutes.

BUTTER SCOTCH

Put one cup of sugar, one-quarter cup of molasses, one and one-quarter tablespoonfuls of vinegar, three tablespoonfuls of boiling water and one-half cup of butter into a saucepan and boil until, when tried in cold water, the syrup will become a brittle candy. Turn into a buttered pan and when nearly cool mark into squares.

IF WORLD SPUN FASTER.

Conjunction has often been made as to what would happen if the earth were to rotate faster upon its axis than it does. Of course, if it went 18 times as fast as it does now, bodies at the equator would weigh nothing—a person would jump up into the air and fall to come down again. A man might weigh 200 at the poles and nothing at the equator, while his weight would vary for intermediate points. If he approached the equator he would get lighter and if he receded from it he would get heavier. A man could carry a house on his shoulders very near the equator, while near either pole he could only carry what one can now. On this account labor would be very dear near the poles and very cheap near the equator. It would certainly be interesting to know which section of the earth would be more populous—whether everyone would go north for good wages or go south for cheap workmen. The railroad problem would be momentous unless the railroads all ran east and west, when a uniform rate would obtain on any particular east-and-west line.

Journeys to the south would be even more popular than they are now, for they would make everyone feel better and in buoyant spirits; more springy, too, so that people could walk farther without getting tired, and could jump over any obstacle that presented itself without coming down with too hard a thump.

There is no planet now known that has such a rapid rotation as is pictured here, but there are several where man would weigh a great deal less than on earth. On the moon a man would weigh only fifty or sixty pounds and could jump as many feet without suffering serious discomfort. But this state of affairs obtains over the whole planet, because it is due to absence of gravitative force and not to centrifugal, as would be the case on the rapidly rotating earth.

Extracting Salt From Ocean.

Experiments in Norway with a view to extracting salt from ocean water by means of electricity have been successful, and two salt factories will be started for this purpose in the near future. In recent years it has been difficult to get salt from abroad and sometimes it has been impossible to salt down the fish. The new salt works should greatly improve the situation.

TEACHERS' MEETING.

The Brockville and East Leeds Teachers' Association met on Saturday, November 8, in Brockville, the object of the meeting being to hear the report of the executive committee as to progress made in organizing the association throughout the inspectorate.

The executive reported enthusiastic meetings at Lyn, Mallorytown, Athens and Toledo, where local associations have been formed. Brockville teachers have been organized for some time. The purpose of the local branches is to enable rural teachers to meet frequently to discuss professional topics, questions of the day, etc. This will result in bringing to the rural teacher the advantage, now enjoyed by city and town teachers, of being able to meet other teachers and exchange ideas. The result will be better teaching, better teachers, and added prestige to the profession.

An animated discussion arose regarding the low salaries now being paid teachers. A schedule for the province was proposed; resolutions favoring same passed; and are being forwarded to the O. E. A. For rural teachers and urban assistants a minimum of $900 increasing yearly to $1,700. Principals of two to five rooms, $2,400 to $3,300. The consensus of opinion was that since the H. C. of L. had more than doubled, the minimum of $900 was low and reasonable, since a teacher receiving $500 in 1914 should be getting over $1,000 now.

ROCKSPRING.

On Friday evening, October 31st, Miss Stella Richards was given a shower by the people in this vicinity, at the home of Mr. W. Burridge. Over a hundred were present and an enjoyable evening was spent in games and music. Tuesday, Nov. 4th, a pretty wedding took place at five o'clock, when Miss Stella Richards, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Richards, was united in marriage to Mr. John N. Hinton, by Rev. M. L. Hinton, uncle of the groom, assisted by Rev. Wells, Addison. Miss Sadie McShane was bridesmaid and Mr. Willie Hinton was groomsmen. Many useful and beautiful gifts attested the popularity of both bride and groom. The happy couple and Rev. Hinton left on the ten o'clock train for the latter's home in Campbellford. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Hinton will reside in Rockspring.

Greenbush

Obituary.

Our village is called to mourn the loss of a much respected resident in the person of Mrs. Wm. Spence, who passed away at her home on November 5th. The deceased had been in a poor state of health for some time, but the end came suddenly, caused by heart failure.

Mrs. Spence was a daughter of the late Mr. Frank McVeigh, and leaves to mourn her loss, besides her husband and one son, Ronald, a sister, Mrs. H. Wiltsie, and one brother, Mr. Wesley McVeigh.

The funeral was one of the largest ever held in Greenbush church, after which the remains were taken to Brockville cemetery for interment. Those attending from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Dawson and Mr. and Mrs. Clint Dawson, Jones Falls; Mr. C. Kerr and Miss Elsie Kerr, Elgin; Mr. and Mrs. H. Wiltsie, Gosford; Mr. and Mrs. Milt. Kilborn and Mrs. K. Edgers, Frankville; Mr. Delmer Kilborn and Mrs. Jackson, Plum Hollow; Dr. and Mrs. Kelly, Delta; Mr. and Mrs. Thad. McVeigh and Mrs. Baker and son, Ward, North Augusta.

Rev. Wm. Wells officiated at the funeral service, the members of the Canadian Order of Chosen Friends conducting the burial service, the pallbearers being members of that order.

The deceased had spent all of her life of forty-eight years in this neighborhood and was of a kind and sociable disposition. The sympathy of many sorrowing friends has been extended to the bereaved husband and son.

Mr. W. Henry, of Smiths Falls, was a recent visitor at the home of his father-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Bellamy.

QUESTIONS FOR THE FAMILY.

Brotherly kindness is one of the attributes of God's Spirit. Does brotherly kindness take advantage of another's necessity, to enrich ourselves. How many of us love as we wish to be loved, and forgive as we wish to be forgiven?

Do we forget that some brother or sister needs the help which our Christian influence would give, quite as much as we need the help from others which we too often do not get?

Do we believe that God expects us to be co-workers with Him in the bringing in of His kingdom into the hearts and lives of men?

Do we believe that God expects us to use the talents which He has given us (individually) for His glory?

One of the Family.

FRANKVILLE.

The monument to be built at Toledo in memory of the deceased soldiers will be pushed to completion. A general subscription through the township will be taken in the near future.

Mrs. Carrol Livingstone was taken seriously ill on Wednesday evening last. Dr. Bourns was consulted and she was at once taken to St. Vincent de Paul Hospital, at Brockville, where she was immediately operated on for appendicitis by Drs. Cornell and Judson. At present writing she is progressing favorably.

Most of the returned soldiers of this vicinity were in Brockville Monday and attended the banquet in the evening.

Mrs. W. M. Hanton has so far recovered as to be able to be dressed and sit up in her room.

A. E. Crummy returned from a two months' visit in the Northwest on Sunday.

Mrs. Annie Voss, of Pittsburg, Pa., who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. M. Sheffield, for a few weeks, left on Tuesday for Brockville, where she took the train for her home.

W. R. Richards returned on Tuesday from a few days' trip to New York.

A reception for Benjamin Yates and bride was held in the home of his parents on Thursday evening last. Quite a large company was present and the young couple received several useful and valuable presents.

ROD AND GUN FOR NOVEMBER.

The November issue of Rod and Gun, published by W. J. Taylor, Limited, at Woodstock, Ont., keeps big game hunting stories well to the fore. Williams' thrilling story, with cover cut to illustrate, of "The Gun That Would Shoot a Mile," "A Nova Scotia Moose Hunt About 1840 and Another in 1913," by T. S. CANADA'S FUTURE DEPENDS ON LOAN

Steady Employment and Prosperity Hangs on Victory Loan.

Canada's future prosperity depends to a great extent upon the success of the Victory Loan. No country can exist upon trade within its own boundaries. Canada counts on the trade with Great Britain and other allied countries to keep the flood of good times in the country.

The surplus products of the farm and the factory find their way across the seas. The revenue of the farmer and the manufacturer is dependent on this trade relationship being sustained. The employment of many hands depends on the orders that come to the firm. The pay envelope only comes with steady employment.

Great Britain and overseas countries are still desirous of continuing trade relations, but, overwhelmed with war expenses, they must be given credits for the time being. The farmer and the manufacturer must be paid for their products and manufactured articles in cash. Therefore, Canada must finance the proposition to keep the tide of commerce coming this way. But in order to have the money on hand to do this great thing, Canada must borrow from her people.

The Victory Loan offers bonds to subscribers paying 5 1/2 per cent. interest. The guarantee behind the bonds makes them an absolutely safe investment. Victory Bonds are accepted as collateral at any bank, and can easily be turned into money at a profit. It is then to the interests of every Canadian to subscribe for all the Victory Bonds he can, for it is profitable, it is patriotic, and it is necessary for the continued prosperity of the country.

CANADA NEEDS MONEY

War Expenditures Still to Be Met From Proceeds of Victory Loan.

The war is over and won; but Canada's main expenditures for war will not be complete until well on into 1920. The $610,000,000 raised last year has all been spent, $400,000,000 having been largely devoted to soldiers—to maintaining them, bringing them home, providing the necessary medical services, training them. Most of the balance of the loan was lent to Great Britain to enable her to buy our surplus products. And money is still necessary—for soldiers, for providing markets for our surplus products, for the needs of reconstruction. And that is why another Victory Loan is necessary. Canada still needs money, and needs it badly.

A Good Investment.

Speculation is one thing. Investment is another. The majority of citizens want an investment, not a speculation. And they want a safe investment. Victory Bonds fill that requirement as does no other investment. Because behind every bond there is the national wealth of Canada—a wealth so great that it staggers the imagination.

Canadian Bank Clearings.

That Canada is well able to support the Victory Loan is clearly shown by the Canadian bank clearings for the current year. They indicate that the year's total will exceed $15,000,000,000 compared with $13,775,000,000 in 1918. And the year's total clearings should be three times those of 1909.

Must Subscribe More.

Dividing the people of Canada into three classes—the comparatively poor, the moderately wealthy, and the very wealthy—it would seem that if contributions to the Victory Loan constitute service to the nation, the moderately wealthy class is hardly doing its share. Of the money subscribed to the Victory Loan 1918, two hundred and seventy-one million dollars were in bonds of $5,000 and under, ninety-four millions in bonds of between $5,000 and $25,000, and three hundred and one millions in bonds of $25,000 and over.

Be true to yourself. Buy Victory Bonds.

You did it before. You can do it again. Buy Victory Bonds.

Canada pledged her last man and her last dollar. Redeem that pledge in Victory Bonds.

If the fighting were still raging, you wouldn't hesitate to buy Victory Bonds.

To make the Victory Loan a success is a national obligation. It may be that you are the deciding factor.

If you are concerned about the future welfare of Canada, buy a Victory Bond and make it a sure thing.

Don't forget the future of your children. Lay a good foundation with a Victory Bond.

Would you lend a soldier $50 if you knew it would save his life? Buy Victory Bonds and keep the military hospitals up.

If you appreciate a good investment you will buy a Victory Bond.

You deceive no one but yourself when you say you can't afford a Victory Bond.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson VIII. Nov. 23, 1919. Jesus Corrects John's Narrowness.— Luke 9: 46-56.

Commentary.— I. Greatness in Christ's kingdom. (vs. 46-48). 46. There arose a reasoning among them.—While Jesus and his disciples were returning from Caesarea Philippi and Mount Hermon, where Jesus had made important revelations of himself, the disciples were reasoning, or disputing, upon subjects that were entirely foreign to the revelations they had just received. Which of them should be greatest—Honor had been conferred upon Peter, James and John, in that Jesus had taken them only of the twelve on the mount with himself, and they were questioning who of their number would occupy the highest place in the kingdom which they were expecting to see set up shortly. Jesus knew that the disposition among his disciples toward self-seeking must be rebuked, and he proceeded to teach them and all the world a great lesson. 47. Perceiving the thought of their hear.—In Matthew's record of this incident it is stated that Jesus asked them what they were disputing about on the way, and they did not answer him. They did not desire to make the humiliating confession, and, so far as Jesus was concerned, it was not necessary, for he knew what their unuttered thoughts were. Took a child into the house.—Jesus called a little child into the house. (18: 2). As the house was probably Peter's, the child may have been his. Set him by him.—Jesus placed the child before the disciples to illustrate the truth he was declaring. 48. This child in my name.—Matthew records other words of our Lord: "Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven" (18: 3). The necessity of a humble, teachable, submissive spirit is urged. The self-seeking spirit is out of harmony with the spirit of the gospel. Jesus both exalts childhood and shows the need of having the childlike spirit. Receive me.—One who possesses the humble, childlike spirit receives Jesus. Receive him that receives me.—Not only does he receive Jesus, but in receiving him he receives the Father. This explanation shows the oneness of Christ with the Father. He that is least shall be greatest.—They who humble themselves shall be exalted; and they shall be brought down who exalt themselves. Jesus taught that greatness in his kingdom consisted in true obedience and faith and in humble, devoted, faithful service in the sphere in which one is providentially placed. They who seek greatness are destined to be disappointed, for greatness in Christ's kingdom does not come through efforts to obtain it.

II. For Christ or against him (vs. 49, 50). 49. John answered.—The conversation continued, but the subject was changed. It may be that the words, "In my name," which Jesus had just used, reminded John of what he and his fellow disciples had recently done. Master—John recognized Jesus as the great Teacher, casting out devils in thy name.—The life and works of Jesus were having a great influence. There were some who had come to have great faith in him, although they did not accompany him in his labors. They were able to exercise faith that subdued and cast out evil spirits, but it was done in the name of Jesus. It is evident that the exorcism was real and not pretended or fancied. We forbid him.—The disciples believed they were doing right in commanding those who were using Jesus' name in this way, to refrain from it. They fancied that loyalty to the Master demanded that course, because he followeth not with.—The disciples' loyalty, as they regarded it, was of the nature of bigotry. The language conveys to us the idea of a strong party spirit among the disciples. Jesus would soon give them a broadened vision. 50. Forbid him not.—There should be no hesitation on our part to encourage those who are doing really good work for the Lord. Through prejudice and narrowness the Jewish leaders had sought to discredit the mission of Jesus, and their prejudice had grown into intolerant opposition and hatred, he that is not against us is for us.—If we are not on the Lord's side, we are arrayed against him. There is no such thing as being neutral so far as our attitude toward Jesus Christ is concerned. John meant well in the course he took, but he failed in understanding some of the principles of the gospel and Jesus gave him and his fellows an impressive and needed lesson.

III. James and John Rebuked (vs. 51-56). 51. Time was come that he should be received up.—Jesus was now entering upon the last six months of his earthly ministry, and before him lay these months of labor and the events that were to culminate in his ascension. These events included his arrest, unjust trial and condemnation and his sacrificial death. He steadfastly set his face.—He was firm in his determination to go forward in the course that lay clearly before him. To go to Jerusalem.—He was leaving Galilee for the last time and his labors would henceforward be in Perea and Judea. His objective point, however, was Jerusalem and always was he moving directly or indirectly toward the place where he was to lay down his life. 52. sent messengers before his face.—52. sent messengers before his face.—To prepare for his coming. He had some friends there and enemies also, and the messengers would make known to the former his coming and would seek protection for him from the latter. 53. did not receive him.—The people of one of the villages of Samaria, the name of which is not mentioned, were unwilling to give Jesus a welcome. The reason for this is announced in the next clause, because... he would go to Jerusalem.—This is the only village that is spoken of as not receiving him. However, there was no friendliness between the Samaritans and the Jews, and they had no dealings with one another. It was evident to the Samaritans that Jesus was coming toward Jerusalem, the

DOES NOT SEE LASTING PEACE

German Ex-Chancellor is Not Hopeful.

Gives Views On Belgian Deportations.

Berlin cable: Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the former German chancellor, stated in the course of his testimony to-day before the sub-committee of the National Assembly that he did not believe during the war, and does not now believe, in a lasting peace. Herr von Bethmann-Hollweg in his answers to the members of the sub-committee who are endeavoring to determine the question of the responsibility of the war, said that the peace terms, suggested by Germany, on December 12th, 1916, were a compromise between the views of the military and political authorities. "As regards our strategic demands (regarding Belgium and the eastern frontier), I did not believe that a comparatively long period of peace would be granted to us. I am still to-day unable to believe in a lasting peace, particularly after we have had exhibited to us the state of mind, in which the Entente has founded what it calls a real peace."

Minister Hinzheimer asked why the Belgian question was not placed at the head of the German demand. Bethmann-Hollweg replied: "It is very easy to say after the event that everything was wrong. We were then confronted with the collective notes regarding peace terms, which was one of complete rejection and demanded the dismemberment and destruction of Germany. Were we to say: 'We will be good children. We will give back Belgium and pay indemnities into the bargain.'"

Questions regarding Belgian deportations brought out warm support from Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg for Gen. von Bissing, the former Governor-General of Belgium, who, he said, had opposed the deportations. The former Chancellor said he was not in a position to stop them, although he thought them politically stupid, but that the policy had been introduced by the military authorities as an urgent political necessity. Governor-General von Bissing, said Bethmann-Hollweg, had taken up the matter personally with Hindenburg and Ludendorff, and had obtained certain alleviations in the mode of applying the deportation policy, but in general he was unable to force a change in the policy, as the military authorities declared that they had need of it.

He replied affirmatively to a question asking whether they had not died in large numbers from cold and hunger, and whether they had not been used for work for which they had not qualified.

PUZZLES EXPLAINED

There are two articles in general use that have undoubtedly caused many persons to scratch their heads in perplexity—the automatic cigarette lighter and the thermos, or hot and cold water bottle. The pocket-lighter consists of a small tube, at the bottom of which is packed some cotton soaked in alcohol, ether or other inflammable and easily evaporated liquid, at the top of which is a small framework holding a thin vertical wire. When the top of the tube is opened the wire in a short time becomes red-hot and the alcohol vapor ignited therefrom. The first explanation one would naturally offer is that the friction of the rapidly-moving vapor would render the wire warm; but on second thought this would seem to be too great a heat for so small an amount of energy.

The real reason, however, lies in the wire itself. In most of the lighters the action is practically the same. The wire is either what is known as platinum sponge or some other metal sponge that has the power of absorbing gases rapidly. Whenever anything absorbs gases, that thing has made the gases occupy less space or volume, and whenever gases occupy less volume they are said to be compressed, and whenever gases are compressed they invariably become hotter, the amount of this heat depending on the amount of compression.

A great many things possess the power of absorbing gases, charcoal being a notable example. Although charcoal absorbs a good many times its own volume of gases, it does not become appreciably hotter. It takes the metal sponge for that; for it absorbs hundreds of times its own volume of gases and does it in a short time, thus not allowing for the radiation of the generated heat. So the little wire is generally heated to redness, ignites the wick fed by the alcohol, and the thing is ready for business. To afford some idea of the intensity of heat necessary for this, it may be stated that to red heat a wire requires several hundred degrees. When a gas is heated one degree centigrade it expands exactly one two-hundred-and-seventy-third of its volume at zero centigrade. Conversely, when a gas is compressed one two-hundred-and-seventy-third of its volume at zero centigrade, it is heated on degree.

HE DISOBEYED THE ADMIRALTY

Capt. Turner, of Lusitania, Admitted Fault.

Secret Evidence in Tragedy Made Public.

London cable: A Parliamentary paper made public to-day containing secret evidence in the enquiry into the sinking of the Cunard liner Lusitania shows that Captain W. T. Turner, of the Lusitania, admitted that he disobeyed the instructions of the Admiralty in steaming only at the rate of 18 knots an hour. The captain testified, however, that had he gone faster the Lusitania would have reached the bar at Liverpool before the vessel could cross it owing to tidal conditions. Capt. Turner also testified that he had not steered a zigzag course at full speed, as the Admiralty had ordered, because he thought this order applied only when a submarine had been sighted.

Capt. Turner claimed that the course he steered was far enough from land, if it was not exactly in mid-channel. He was trying his best, he said, to follow the Admiralty instructions, but his aim was to find land. Had he run into a fog without doing this, he asserted, he might have run ashore.

A despatch from London, July 17, 1915, said the Court of Enquiry into the sinking of the Lusitania found that the liner had been lost as the result of an act of a German submarine. The decision exonerated Capt. Turner and the Cunard Line from all blame and commended the discipline of the crew.

The only secret evidence known to have been taken by the Board of Enquiry was on the first day of its session, when the proceedings were interrupted in order to permit the court to enquire regarding certain instructions sent by wireless by the Admiralty to Capt. Turner. The Parliamentary paper made public in London probably has reference to this secret evidence.

WINTER WHEAT, RYE, LOOK WELL

Root Lifting is Now General in Ontario.

Fall Plowing is Well Forward.

The following is a summary of reports made by agricultural representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture: "The winter wheat and rye are looking well topped and vigorous, although considerable rye has been pastured this fall. Hay is hard to procure, as owners do not seem to want to part with it. It sells at from $2 to $3 a ton. Farmers are also keeping most of their grain to feed to their stock. Pastures have been in good condition for the time of year, and the milk supply has been fully normal. While there are some complaints that many unfinished cattle are being marketed on account of the scarcity of feed, the Lambton representative states that large numbers of prime steers have been shipped from that county to Buffalo during the past two or three weeks, and also that buyers from as far as Boston, Mass., have been picking up some choice cattle. On the other hand, he adds that one firm in Petrolia has brought in seven carloads of young stock from the northwest, most of them promising animals. While hogs are being freely marketed on account of the scarcity of coarse grains, farmers recently secured more inclined to hog on to their brood sows. A good supply of well-cobbed ensilage is reported to be on hand and more silos than usual have been put up in the western part of the province. Fall plowing is well forward, as the ground has been working easily with timely rains and comparatively mild weather."

SAYS EX-KAISER IS AN IMBICILE

Copenhagen cable: The Berlin Lokai, Zeiger, a copy of which has been received here, reports that Premier Hoffmann of Bavaria has protested against the prohibition of a public celebration Nov. 7, on the occasion of the first anniversary of the German revolution. Premier Hoffmann, the newspaper says, declared that reaction was on the march, and that the suppression of the celebration emanated from the bourgeois society, which was responsible for the war because it had "maintained an imbecile monarch on the throne."

Lady Astor Says Her Husband Wants To.

London cable (Canadian Associated Press).—Some people find it difficult to get titles, but my poor husband finds it difficult to get rid of his," declared Lady Astor, in opening her political campaign yesterday in Plymouth. Lord Astor said he was going to do all he could to get back to the Commons, but did not see why he should be deprived of his ordinary rights of citizenship. The contest is likely to be extremely fierce.

JAPAN'S HUGE NAVY PROGRAMME

Honolulu cable: An eight-year navy programme, costing $824,000,000, has been decided upon by the Japanese Government. It was announced here to-day in a cable message to the Shinjoubu, a Japanese daily newspaper. The programme includes the construction of four 40,000-ton battleships of the Nagato class, four battle cruisers, 28 light cruisers, 80 destroyers, 70 submarines and 30 other craft.

Education.

A professor of a western university has evolved a series of test questions for the educated which he avows is the best evidence of a real education. If you can answer "yes" to each and all the questions you are truly educated, the professor says. Here are the questions:

- 1. Has education given you the sympathy with all the good causes and made you espouse them?
2. Has it made you public-spirited?
3. Has it made you a brother to the weak?
4. Have you learned how to make friends and keep them?
5. Do you know what it is to be a friend yourself?
6. Can you look an honest man or a pure woman in the eye?
7. Do you see anything to love in a little child?
8. Will a lonely dog follow you in the street?
9. Can you be high-minded and happy in the meanest drudgeries of life?
10. Do you think that washing dishes or hoeing corn is just as compatible with high-thinking as playing golf or playing the piano?
11. Are you good for anything yourself?
12. Can you be happy alone?
13. Can you look out on the world and see anything but dollars and cents?
14. Can you look into a mud puddle by the wayside and see a clear sky?
15. Can you see anything in the puddle but mud?

THE "CLEAN CUT" AS TO ULSTER

Northern Parliament to Rule Nine Counties.

Under New Home Rule Solution.

London cable: Under the new Home Rule solution adopted by the sub-committee of the Cabinet, which provides for the creation of two Parliaments for Ireland, one for Ulster and the other for the remaining three provinces, it is proposed that there shall be a Council of Ireland, consisting of about 40 members, to be nominated in equal numbers by the two Parliaments.

These propositions, according to the Daily Telegraph, are understood to have been favorably received by the full committee. The next step will be elaborate details of the scheme. Until matters shall be further advanced nothing can be said as to the services likely to be reserved to the Imperial Parliament, but an important feature of the plan is that it contemplates the delegation of some of the reserved power, after a time, to the Council of Ireland.

As regards Ulster, the scheme is based on the idea of "the clean-cut" county option being entirely ruled out. Ulster would, in fact, be treated as a geographical unit, and the whole of the nine counties in the province would be embraced within the administrative area of the northern Parliament.

Burnishing Silver.

A machine for burnishing silver. The invention of a Swiss citizen, is now extensively used in many large hotels, restaurants and club-rooms. It is so simple that even an inexperienced person can operate it successfully.

The silverware is placed in a cylinder immersed in a soap solution and containing a quantity of small steel balls and pins. The cylinder is slowly rotated by a motor or any other suitable source of power. As the cylinder turns, the minute balls and pins each constituting a small burnishing tool, slide, tumble, or roll over the silver, removing all tarnish and dirt, and imparting to its surface that high gloss and finish which only well-burnished silver will show.

The small balls and pins are of several sizes, and as they roll over the silver they reach every corner and every crevice of the most delicate ornamentation. The surface of the silverware is cleaned as thoroughly as if a scratch-brush had been used, but there is practically no abrasion. Ten per cent. of the silver is lost every year in using the scratch-brush and buffer. Popular Science Monthly.

THE VERY LAST.

"I'm feeling very fit again, doctor. Do you think I'm going to die?" "My dear man, you are yourself. That is the best thing to do in the world that is going to happen to you."

ALWAYS THE SAME.

Wife—But wouldn't you be lonely and miserable if I went away for a week? Hub—Not a bit, dear. Wife—Then I won't go.

GERMAN TROOPS ATTACK LIBAU

A Copenhagen cable says: German troops, presumably belonging to Colonel Avaloff-Bernhardt's forces, supported by heavy and light artillery and an armoured train, attacked Libau Tuesday, but were driven off by Lettish troops who were supported by British artillery, according to a despatch received by the Lettish press bureau.

In the afternoon a German airplane dropped proclamations on the city. After a prolonged bombardment by the enemy artillery, a new violent offensive was launched in the evening. It was repulsed by the Letts. The enemy suffered heavily.

A Wild West at the Corners

A True Story.

(By Crawford C. Slack.)

Way back at Hemlock Corners things were going rather slow, There hadn't been a lecture in the Town Hall, or a show, There hadn't been a scandal, that is, one which had got out, And the gossips they were spoiling for something to talk about; There hadn't been a wedding, therefore been no charivari, There hadn't been no quilting held around, or husking bee, The Baptists held a social quite early in the fall, And Hi Simpson had a raising and that was the newsy all.

No. There wasn't much a-doin' round the Corners since the fairs, That is, of any interest save just every day affairs, Jim Hobson was still courting the little Widow Wing, And the gossips were a-saying they'd be married in the spring, There was to be husking, at the barns of Harry Goff, But he couldn't get no liquor so they called the whole thing off. The boys as usual gathered at the corner grocery store, And occupied the counter and the nail kegs as of yore.

A lieutenant was recruiting there for men to go to France, And the boys around were lining up and glad to get the chance, They were practising with rifles, had their shooting right down fine, And the most of them were spoiling for to hit the battle line, They could certain place a bullet every time within the ring, And were sure to plunk the Kaiser if he ever lifted wing, The champion was Pat Thorney, and he feared no mortal foe, He was first to put on colors and was anxious for to go.

The Corners' girls were knitting socks to give their soldier boys, But sighed because their going would upset their winter joys, Some were signing up as nurses and were going with the lads, While others joined the "Farmerettes" and going to help their dads. The women of the Institute were on the constant run, Collecting comforts for to send the men behind the gun. They were planning entertainments and writing off afar, To get some men of knowledge to lecture on the war.

Well, they ran across a fellow who said he was a friend Of England and her Allies, and was working for that end. He said he'd come and lecture any date which they might choose, That his talk was illustrated well with magic lantern views, He said they'd have to furnish some man for the machine To throw, while he was talking, the pictures on the screen. Now the Presbyterian parson at that was right at home, He agreed to act, and so they wrote the fellow for to come.

They engaged the Village Orchestra to give the thing a tone, It consisted of a fiddle, a cornet and trombone, The hall they decorated hanging flags and bunting there, And done their very best to make the thing a very swell affair. So on the date maturing the fellow came to hand, And started in to lecture upon the war-wracked land; He claimed, he was a Frenchman, but he had a manner shy, And Thorney said he'd gamble that he was a bloomin' spy. Now Thorney was a patriot with a love of country high, And he had an inborn hatred for a German or his spy.

The hall was overflowing, for there was a bumper crowd, Too, the chap could scarcely lecture and the praises they were loud, He eulogized old England he lauded plucky France, But he said the German armies would on Paris sure advance; He was praising little Belgium and her hero fighting King, When Thorney, clad in khaki, advanced up from the wing; Save the dim light from the lantern, why the room was rather dark, And the crowd thought Pat was having with the lecturer a lark.

Said Pat: "Let's see your papers just to make the matter clear, If you don't, you needn't dwell on France—I'll start a war right here." He was standing by that Frenchman with his thirty-two in hand, And the man was struck dumbfounded by the loud and stern demand. Pat again said, "Show your papers, and your travelling card to boot,"

And as they seemed not forthcoming, why he started in to shoot; First he fired at the ceiling, then he fired down at the floor, Then the crowd got panic-stricken and they started for the door.

The Parson lost his glasses when the lantern light went out, The women they were screaming and the boys began to shout, The Orchestra stamped in a manner all their own, Jim Kelly smashed his fiddle, and Smith his brass trombone. That Frenchman made his exit, and a hurried one, you bet, He may be in France by this time, or he may be going yet. The lieutenant came for Thorney and transported him that night, For such men as he were wanted in Flanders in the fight.

Thorney may have been o'er-zealous, but this I will say for you, That he spent three years in Flanders among the brave and true, He was never known to falter nor to back up from the foe, When they called for first-line fighters he was ready there to go, He is back now at the Corners from that war-torn field afar, And you never hear him boasting of his exploits in the war. Now he wears a silver medal, and will wink his roguish eye Should we ever chance to mention the night he ran the spy.
