The Philosopher.
A quiet old fellow with a quiet old smile. Whose clothes were far from the modern style. Looked up at the sky with his weather eye. And said as a child came drifting by. 'The beautiful day that have shown so blue. And I hope that snowstorm won't come true. But if it does, it will not be queer. You've got to expect 'em this time of year.' He talked that way when the sun shone hot. He smiled as he shared in the common lot. When Fate seemed grim, he could still smile some. As he waited for better days to come. And he said to the people for whom he cared. You must be cheerful and well prepared. Here's luck and I bid you 'ere get to learn To take your share when it comes your turn.'

Alberta News.
DEAR ACADIANS—Notes of a year's residence in the West may furnish something of interest to your readers. In common with other parts of Canada, the year, or the latter portion of it at least, has been marked by lack of employment and consequent hard times. Speaking of Edmonton and surrounding districts particularly, there have been few business failures, and Edmonton has dealt generously with her unemployed to help them through the past winter. Although probably 50 percent of those helped had no claim upon the city's generosity other than as "strangers within her gates," work was devised for all those who would work. True, the monetary return was not of a princely sort, but it tided many a family over a very trying period.

The problem of the "out of work" is likely to continue difficult of solution, especially in those newer western cities, until the steamship lines that bring them in are made responsible for their maintenance, for at least one year after landing, they should they fall in maintaining their selves for that period.

Hundreds of foreigners are brought in for railroad construction and other big jobs. These work for low wages during the summer and when work shuts down in the early winter there is nothing for them, but to "chick" for the cities and offer their services for any wage they can get, or failing this, become a charge upon public charity.

Profits from this class of immigrant has accrued to none except possibly the big contractor who has got his work done at a cheap wage, and the steamship company who has received its passage money.

At the present time there is an immense labor force in this province that can be utilized, and yet hundreds more are being sent in.

Only yesterday two hundred more mostly British, were heading for the railroad grade along the Lesser Slave Lake while double that number were a few days previously, waiting for employment in the same district, which railway contractors were unable to offer.

Passing my station on the E. D. and B. C. Railway may be seen men returning daily from the north country who have been disappointed in getting employment.

I have devoted considerable space to this question and it is a case where immigrants do not add to the prosperity of the country.

The Real Estate Boom, so much in evidence up to a year ago, is practically a thing of the past, and normal values both for purchase and rental now prevail.

Fortunes have been made in inflated and fictitious values, but to any sane person, viewing conditions impartially, the fact must be very apparent that land is not so scarce as demand such exorbitant figures as have been asked and in many cases paid.

City property holders now find themselves taxed on those higher values, and this is making an annual drain upon their profit margin which in the case of non-revenue producing properties must soon spell loss.

Edmonton's real property must be more in the trade that will come to her through the occupation by agriculturists of the rich farm lands adjacent, and her real connection with points more distant.

A vast area is being opened up to the north by the building of the Edmonton, Dunsmuir and B. C. Railway, and the Alberta and Great Westway Railways. The former is now in operation to the Lesser Slave Lake, 180 miles north of Edmonton, and will reach the Peace River, 150 miles further north, by the end of the present year, opening up a very large and fertile country as well as large stretches of good timber.

How to Cure Stomach Trouble.
THE COMMON CAUSE OF LACK OF BLOOD—THEREFORE YOU MUST BUILD UP THE BLOOD.
There is the most intimate relation between the condition of the blood and the activity of the stomach. The blood depends upon the stomach for a large part of its nourishment, while every act of digestion, from the time the food enters the stomach and is assimilated by the blood needs plenty of pure well-oxygenated blood. The muscles, glands and nerves of the stomach work only according to the quality of the blood.

The most common cause of indigestion is lack of rich, red blood. Not only does impure blood weaken the muscles of the stomach, but it lessens the product of the glands of the intestines and stomach, which furnish the digestive fluids. Nothing will more promptly cure indigestion than plenty of pure blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the safest and most certain blood builder. A thorough trial of these pills gives a hearty appetite, perfect digestion, strength and health. Here is proof of the value of these pills in cases of indigestion.

Mrs. Alfred Austin, Varna, Ont., says: My system became run down and my stomach very weak. I had no desire for food and what I did take caused me great distress, and I did not get any nourishment, and I was gradually growing weaker, and could scarcely do any work at all. I did not sleep soundly at night and would have a feeling of dread. Some years previously I had used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with much benefit and this decided me to again try them. My confidence was not misplaced, as by the time I had used six boxes I was again feeling quite well.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by sending to The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Familiarity Breeds Contempt.
An inspector going through a plant in Illinois observed a set-screw projecting on a revolving shaft. He considered it particularly dangerous because the shaft was near a passageway and workmen were continually going back and forth past it. He called the manager's attention to it. "Don't you think," he said, "that that set-screw had better be cut off. Some one will get hurt some day if it is left that way." "I do not think so," the manager replied, "that set-screw has been like that for years. No one has ever been hurt by it. The fact that it is exposed and can be observed by anyone renders it safe from causing any accident." The manager had a habit of generalizing when speaking, and as he waved his arm to emphasize what he was saying, the sleeve of his coat came in contact with the set-screw and caught on it and in an instant he was whirled to death.

Chickens.
WALT MASON.

Now man goes forth and makes his garden, a hard and painful grid; and then the crime beyond all pardon destroys his peace of mind. His neighbor keeps a string of chickens, and they, inflamed with greed come o'er and scratch to beat the chickens, and dig up all the seed. And then the man whose wasted labor has set him seeing red, walks o'er to see that heathen neighbor and manures his head. Thus village feuds are often started, and people raise the dust, and men and women are broken hearted because some hens ran loose. In any town where leggy chickens run loose, in season of law, you may be sure that trouble thickens, and hearts are sore and raw. Old hens and roosters have created more trouble, caused more tears, than could in seven weeks be started by seven auctioneers. If you must keep a herd of Dorkings or other brands of fowls, oh, take them where their frantic workings won't stir up grief and howls. To some lone wilderness escort them, some desert far away; there you may coddle them and sort them, and watch the blizzard fools lay.—WALT MASON.

ALSO LETTUCE.

Government of Alberta, also traverses a rich country more north-easterly and will connect with the Athabasca River at Fort McMurray, where land boosters are now busy selling town lots. These two lines should largely increase the trade with Edmonton and open up some fine territory for settlement.

There is no questioning the great fertility of the Alberta soil, and wherever settlers farm intelligently they can make good money. I believe, however, that Nova Scotia of late has great a reward for honest labor as any part of our Dominion.

Story of the Wireless.
A few minutes before eight on a recent Saturday night a stranger called at Londonberry Postoffice and asked for gold for four £5 Bank of Ireland notes. He explained that he was just leaving for Canada, a tender at the quay, close to the post-office, being timed to start at eight for the liner, which was lying at the mouth of Lough Foyle. The post office clerk courteously took the notes, and handed him in exchange four little piles of gold which were in front of him. Without counting the money the stranger emptied it into the pouch of his emigrant's belt, which he thereupon strapped round his waist and departed.

As hour later, when he came to balance up for the night, the post-office clerk discovered his cash to be £20 short. No amount of checking made any difference; the figures would not come right. Later on in the night he sought the help of a senior official. Together they worked at the problem until three on Sunday morning. It then became clear that what had happened was that the stranger had carried away £45 instead of £20. What was to be done? The clerk did not know the name of the visitor, or even of the ship in which he was a passenger. The ship herself was probably already a hundred miles off the Dn-gal coast on her way to the far west.

It was a case of wireless and Sherlock Holmes to the rescue of a civil servant with £25 at stake. There is a wireless station at Malin Head, the most northerly point in Ireland. Calling up Malin Head, the clerk asked "Wireless" to ascertain the name of the Transatlantic liner which had left Lough Foyle on the night before. Away over the dark ocean went the request for information. Within five minutes the reply was in London derry: "Wireless reports Allan liner"—left Malin at 9.30 last night for Halifax." One point gained.

Nothing further could be done until morning. After breakfast time the postoffice clerk looked up the clerk of the Allan L. in Office in Londonderry with the view of getting the man's name. Yes, said the shipping clerk, Y. Sweeney, was the name of the man who carried the notes.

Y. Sweeney, from Canada, carried in our office on his way to the tender. I asked what money he had and he replied, "Some five-pound Irish notes." I said they should be changed for gold otherwise he might have trouble in getting them cashed on the other side, and recommended him to try the post-office for change.

Meanwhile, the Allan liner was rapidly getting outside the radius covered by the wireless installation at Malin Head. "Halloo, Malin Head!" once more was clicked on the telegraph wire from Londonderry. "Call up Allan liner,—and ask the purser to seek out Emigrant Pat Sweeney, from Cavan. Get him to open his belt and return twenty pounds overpaid by mistake."

An anxious half-hour was spent by a Londonderry post-office official and those who shared the knowledge of his threatened loss. Sooner than was thought possible came the response: "Halloo, Derry! Purser has recovered twenty pounds, and will bring it back when the ship returns."

Love Your Work.
Do not look on your work as a dull duty. If you choose you can make it interesting. Throw your heart into it, master its meaning, trace out the causes and previous history, consider it in all its bearings, think how many even the humblest labor may benefit, and there is scarcely one of our duties which we may not look to with enthusiasm. You will get to love your work, and if you do it with delight you will do it with ease. Even if at first you find this impossible, if for a time it means mere drudgery, this may be just what you require; it may be good like mountain air to brace up your character.—Lord Avebury.

To Him Who Overcometh.
A good many of the fights in which we overcome in Christ's Name are fought with our basetting sins. These may be laziness, selfishness, lack of confidence in our ability, or weakness of will. We have to fight these things in ourselves. Again we have to fight against other temptations. One may be tempted to use profane words, to say what is not true, to go with bad companions or to do something which the inward monitor-conscience declares to be unwise, immoral and shameful. To him that overcometh in the battle with temptation the dear Lord will give blessing and reward.

When Mr. Gladstone was travelling once he purchased a beautiful bunch of grapes. At the custom house the officer refused to set the grapes pass, saying that they were dutiable. Gladstone refused to pay, whereupon the custom house officer insisted. Gladstone took them out of the basket and ate every one of them. "Now stop me!" said the "Grand Old Man," triumphantly, as he took his seat in the train bound for Brussels.

Teachers Organize in West
That 'blood is thicker than water' is exemplified by the formation at Moose Jaw last month of an association to be composed of teachers in Saskatchewan who formerly taught in the Maritime Provinces or who are natives of these provinces. The charter members present at the meeting numbered nearly fifty and as many more are expected to join as soon as the organization campaign is launched.

'Maritime Provinces Teachers' Association of Saskatchewan.' The idea originated with H. W. Hewitt, a former Nova Scotia teacher and newspaper man now resident in Saskatoon. He sent the 'ferry cross' among the teachers gathered at Moose Jaw on the occasion of the annual meeting of the Provincial Educational Association, as when, in the midst of conflicting events, enough had gathered together to make a start, explained his proposition, which was enthusiastically accepted by all present. In quick order organization was completed, the following office bearers being elected: President, H. W. Hewitt, Saskatoon; Vice President for Nova Scotia, Miss Bertha Oxner, Saskatoon; Vice President for New Brunswick, J. M. Nason, Watrous; Vice-President for Prince Edward Island, Mrs. K. Rowe, Macklin; Secretary-Treasurer, Charles I. Macnab, Saskatoon; Editor in chief of the Association's organ, H. W. Hewitt, Saskatoon.

Once a year the members will meet at the banquet table when old acquaintances will be renewed and new friendships formed. The traditions of the home provinces will be maintained. Means will be taken to keep former and present Maritime teachers in touch with one another, through exchanges of ideas, letters, objects, etc. All will unite to boost the old home, to bring about a better understanding between the east and west, and to give a welcome and correct information to intending new comers. District Associations will be formed.

Summer School of Science.
The Summer School of Science will hold its annual session at Charlotte town from July 7th to July 27th. Every effort is being made to make this one of the most delightful and profitable meetings in the history of the school. Owing to the financial Department of Agriculture there will be no fees for enrollment nor tuition this year. It is expected that those who qualify in Physical Drill will receive the sum of $15 from the Department of Militia and Defence. Over $1000 was given last year in scholarships and prizes. The same, or even a greater amount, will probably be donated this year. Provision will be made for several additional courses, among them a school of methods in which instruction will be given in teaching the common school branches. Other information regarding the school is given by the calendar, copies of which may be obtained from J. D. Seaman, Esq., Secretary, Charlottetown, P. E. I.

No Newspaper Man There.
The report of the Nova Scotia Hospital for the past year has been issued, and a journalist commenting upon it says: One of the interesting revelations from a newspaper man's standpoint is the fact that no editor has ever appeared among the list of patients. They have had no quarrels with their editors, and no friendships formed. The traditions of the home provinces will be maintained. Means will be taken to keep former and present Maritime teachers in touch with one another, through exchanges of ideas, letters, objects, etc. All will unite to boost the old home, to bring about a better understanding between the east and west, and to give a welcome and correct information to intending new comers. District Associations will be formed.

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFFVILLE, N. S., MAY 29, 1914.

Closing Exercises at Acadia.

Ideal weather conditions attended the exercises in connection with Acadia's seventy-sixth anniversary. Summer, which has been lingering in the lap of spring for too long, has at length come with a rush, and warm sunny days and balmy airs have caused the buds to burst and the leaves to unfold. Vegetation has advanced with leaps and bounds during the past few weeks and summer-like days with blue skies and green fields and leafy trees combine to make the scene fair. Anniversary week was too early for the apple blossoms, but visitors were well pleased with the beauties spread out before them.

The opening event of the Anniversary exercises was the concert given by Miss Evelyn Starr, violinist, in College Hall on Saturday evening under the auspices of the A. A. A. Miss Starr, who recently returned from Europe where she has spent several years in study, proved herself an accomplished artist and delighted her audience by her splendid work. Miss Theresa Frazz accompanied her in her usual able manner. The selections by the Acadia Orchestra under the direction of Miss Beatrice Langley were very much enjoyed.

'Baccalaureate Sunday' attracted an unusually large congregation to Assembly Hall and the seating capacity was taxed to the utmost. After the student body of the University had assembled the members of the college graduating class entered to the strains of the processional played by Misses Charlotte Layton and Irene Genter, undergraduates, and took the places reserved for them. Dr. Cutten conducted the service, and after prayer by Rev. G. O. Gates, pastor of the Baptist church, introduced the speaker for the morning, Rev. Shalier Matthews, D. D., Dean of the Divinity Faculty of the University of Chicago. The sermon, based on 2 Cor. 1:24, 'By faith we stand,' was exceptionally attractive both from an educative and spiritual viewpoint. The perplexities of the ancient Corinthians, who were under the ministry of the Apostle Paul, were due to questionings on their personal, social and eternal welfare. The same problems confront the present age as well and may be solved only by faith in the guiding hand of the eternal God in each individual life. Dr. Chipman, '55 pronounced the benediction. Very pleasing music was rendered by a choir of students from the seminary and college under the direction of Mrs. Richmond, one of the selections being 'Hark, hark, my soul,' in which Henshaw took the leading parts.

The evening service was conducted under the auspices of the College Y. M. C. A. The speaker of the evening was Dr. J. H. McDonald, editor of the Maritime Baptist and a former principal of Acadia Seminary. Dr. McDonald took as his text: 'Quit you like men,' 13th verse last chapter first Corinthians. He also quoted from Tennyson: 'Man am I grown, a man's work I do,

Live pure, speak true, right wrong.

Follow Christ the King.

The speaker took each injunction of the poem and applied them to every day life as the embodiment of real manhood, purity of life, truth in the inner parts, social service, consecration to Christ. Others said if so then brains are all important, for without brains money is useless, but the heart ruleth the mind, and so the heart that is love is the ruler of the world.

The heart must be pure to live right. There must be a passion for truth in order that discrimination may be made between right and wrong. To right wrong is the call of social service. It had been said that Christ asked too much of the rich man when he asked for his property and life, but it was not so as Christ gave in return a cross and a career, a career in which he would suite at anything opposing the approach of human life nearer the Christian ideal.

On Monday afternoon the class day exercises of the graduating class of the Seminary were held in College Hall. The hall was crowded and the program rendered was excellent. Miss Florence Morse, the class president, welcomed the visitors in a nicely delivered speech, which was followed by the reading of the minutes and the roll call by the secretary, Miss Dora Baker. Miss Helena Laws sang a song entitled, 'If No One Ever Marries Me,' which was much enjoyed. Miss Margaret Manning read the class history, and Miss Hazel Alward the prophecy which was one of the best heard here for some time. Miss Dora Baker's valedictory was also excellent. The program was brought to a close by the singing of the class song and the giving of the class yell.

The closing exercises of Acadia Collegiate Academy were held on Monday evening in College Hall. The processional march was played by Misses Pearl Dodge and Marguerite Woodworth. Rev. E. D. Webber led in a short prayer. Harold H. Tutis delivered an essay on 'Canada's Duty to the Empire.' This was followed by a vocal solo by Miss Ethel Miller, John I. Mosher read the history of the class, and W. Raymond Acker gave the valedictory. A violin solo by Miss Muriel Miller and a vocal duet by Misses Margaret Keade and Eunice Curry were much enjoyed. How to Secure Best Results from Fertilizers

Basic Slag, in itself is not a complete fertilizer, as it only supplies Phosphoric Acid and Lime. In order to derive the full benefit from the Slag, Potash (and in some cases Nitrogen) must be used with it, since the same underlying principle demands for plants as well as for animals a "balanced ration."

In Great Britain the beneficial effects from a combination of Basic Slag and Potash are so well known that the term "Slag and Potash" is one with which every farmer is familiar. Old Country experience with these materials has been amply confirmed by numerous experiments conducted in the Maritime Provinces.

We can supply you with all high grade fertilizer materials, Potash, Nitrate of Soda, Acid Phosphate, Basic Slag, etc., at lowest prices. You can mix these yourself at home and save 25 to 40 per cent. in fertilizer cost. Call and see us.

Dr. Cutten in his address spoke as follows: 'The year has been a record one as far as the application of the students to their studies is concerned. Outwardly there are unmistakable evidences of prosperity in the erection of the several new buildings. The emphasis in the curriculum is placed upon under-graduate work, and to maintain a high standard in the arts course. The recent fire has made the need for a new residence for college men imperative. In the next future we hope to add to our plant the following buildings: A five story building, a residence for young men and a gymnasium, toward the latter the student body has pledged already $2000. Acadia has received during the year in requests about $180,000. The class of 1914 has undertaken to contribute $200 toward a collection of books bearing upon the history of the Maritime Provinces to be deposited in Acadia's new library building. This year the class of 1914 completed the payment of their pledge of $250 made in 1904. The president concluded by paying a tribute to the faculty and one to the board of governors.

The three gentlemen upon whom honorary degrees had been conferred addressed the audience. Dr. Chipman emphasized his remarks were particularly to the new graduates, giving them advice that will not soon be forgotten.

LIFE THREATENED BY KIDNEY DISEASE

His Health in a Terrible State Until He Took "Fruit-a-Lives"

B. A. KELLY, Esq.

HAGERVILLE, Ont., Aug. 26th, 1913.

"About two years ago, I found my health in a very bad state. My kidneys were not doing their work, and I was run down in condition. I felt the need of some good remedy, and having seen 'Fruit-a-Lives' advertised, I decided to try them. Their effect on me was most satisfactory. Their action was mild and the result all that could be expected. My kidneys resumed their normal action after I had taken upwards of a dozen boxes and I regained my old-time vitality. Today I am as well as ever, the best health I have ever had."

A Home Song.

I turned an ancient poet's book,

And lo! upon the page;

'Stone walls do not a prison make,

Nor iron bars a cage.'

Yes, that is true; and something more;

You'll find where'er you roam.

That marble floors and gilded walls

Can never make a home.

But every house where Love abides

And Friendship is a guest,

Is surely home, and home, sweet home,

For there the heart can rest.

The Drink Habit a Public Menace.

The proprietors of one of the United States railways have dismissed from their service a hundred and twenty-six men for drinking intoxicating liquor in violation of prohibitory orders. Notices were posted weeks ago that persistence in drinking would insure dismissal, and probably not a single one of the discharged employees has anyone to blame except himself. It should be noted that the offence thus punished is 'drinking,' and not becoming 'drunk.' In other words, all engineers, conductors, firemen, brakemen, and flagmen are on this road required to be total abstainers habitually, and not merely when on duty. It is said that many more dismissals are to follow.

The first thought in the mind of many a reader of this intimation will be that the treatment of the men by the company has been harsh. If it had been, it is stated that some of the men who lost their positions have grown old in the railroad service, and that some of them are among the most skilled employees of the road. But on second thought public opinion will probably be an unimpairedly able to the company. The action of the company, most is not based on the knowledge of the fact that the habit of drinking grows on anyone why indulges in it. One peculiarity of alcohol is to create a craving for itself on the part of those who use it, and the craving often becomes so intense as to be perfectly uncontrollable. But long before that stage is reached the victim may have all senses of sight and hearing so impaired that he can no longer promptly obey signals on which the property of the company and the lives of his passengers depend. Alarming has a tendency to demoralize the nervous system, and no habitual drinker should ever be placed in any position where he may be required to use danger suddenly and decide instantaneously what to do under the circumstances.

Blindness to Avoid.

A number of men were talking about various ailments, and after a while the conversation turned to the eyes. They began to speak of the eyes they had seen and finally such was stated what had been the greatest disorder in his life.

We publish them here, as we are sure they will interest you; in addition, they may suggest things which you yourself should avoid:

'Reading worthless books.'

'Did not stick to my trade.'

'Did not stick to anything.'

'Careless about my religious duties.'

'When I left my church and mother.'

'Not saving money when I was young.'

'Retained a position with a good firm.'

'Fooling away my time when I was in school.'

'Thinking that my love could do without me.'

'Would not listen to the advice of older people.'—Selected.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Work of Women.

The evolution of women's clubs in the United States is an interesting feature of life in American cities. At first these clubs were chiefly of a social and literary character, or dealt primarily with subjects of special interest to women. Of late, however, we find them appointing committees to deal with a great variety of practical affairs. The Christian Science Monitor enumerates some of their recent activities, and points out that they have to do with such practical matters as neighborhood and school centers, playgrounds, the recreation and care of parks and park ways; the care of laws, school and college work in general; as well as with educational extension, libraries, art galleries and public entertainments. Their work is thus of an intensely practical nature, and the sphere of their usefulness greatly broadened.

Go to school until you have graduated, if you can. An education is worth having for its own sake. It trains the mind to reason and enriches it with beautiful thoughts, and the possession of facts that are useful to know. It opens the door of good society to the person who has it. It is an accomplishment like a name or title. After you enter your teens, try to find out what work in life you would like to do and then direct your studies to fit you for the occupation. An electrical engineer, a doctor, a financier, a chemist, an editor, need different studies.

THE POULTRY HOUSE

Some Points Gathered From a Government Publication

Select a location that has natural drainage away from the building.

A dry, porous soil, such as sand or gravelly loam, is preferable to a clay soil.

In most localities the building should face the south, as this insures the greatest amount of sunlight during the winter.

Allow at least two square feet of floor space per bird.

Proper ventilation and sunlight mean a dry house and healthy birds.

The partial open-front house is conceded to be the best type for most sections.

The colony plan of housing poultry may be adopted to good advantage on many farms. This system does away with the danger of tainted soil.

The roosts should be built on the same level, two feet six inches from the floor, with a dropping board about eight inches below them.

Good roosts may be made of 2 by 2 inch material with upper edges rounded.

The nests may be placed on the side walls or under the dropping boards. It is best to have them darkened, as the hens prefer a secluded place in which to lay.

TWO PESTS OF CATTLE

How to Prevent and Control Lice and Ringworm

These two pests of housed cattle trouble most in dark, damp, dirty, badly ventilated stables. Remedial measures fall off only the animals are treated. So long as calves and adult cattle remain on pasture they are not bothered with vermin or skin disease; but when they go into winter quarters the trouble starts. The reason is that eggs ("nits") of lice remain in the stable from season to season, and the vegetable parasites of ringworm lives on damp walls, partitions, fences and other woodwork as well as on the skin of animals. Both pests, therefore, are acquired in the stable, if animals are to be made comfortable by keeping them free of lice and ringworm the stable should be specially prepared for their reception. Each animal should be allowed four square feet of window glass and five hundred to eight hundred cubic feet of air space in the stable.

Good ventilation, too, is absolutely necessary, and by preference should be of the King system. In this method of ventilation the fresh air enters at the ceiling, drives the hot air downward upon the backs of the cattle and is sucked out through wall vents near the ground-level and connecting with pipes discharging through a big chimney in the roof. The cleaning process consists in removing all loose trash, litter and soiling material, scrubbing walls, mangers, partitions, floor and ceiling with a 1-50 solution of caustic disinfectant or grade carbolic acid or solution of four ounces of formaldehyde or sulphate of copper to a gallon of water. Fresh-made lime-wash is then applied with a spraying pump, which forces the wash into every crack, crevice and crevice. An addition of one pound of chloride of lime to three gallons of lime-wash makes it more effective.

To rid animals of lice a 1-100 solution of caustic is made and sprayed on and brushed in, when the lice are not too cold, or an even more effective solution may be made by steeping four ounces of tar-soap-seeds in a gallon of boiling water and using when cold. Frequent applications are necessary, as the broods of lice hatch out from "nits" in cold weather and the infested part of the skin frothy with flowers of sulphur, or Perlan or pyrethrum insecticide powder. Mercurical ointment (blue ointment) is effective when applied to the poll of the head and along the backbone, but treated and washed and separated to prevent licking of the ointment, which is poisonous. Ringworm is indicated by the appearance of scaly, crusty spots upon the face, around the eyes and on the neck or other parts of young cattle. Treat by scrubbing and scrubbing each spot clean, and then rubbing in iodine ointment every other day until well.

"Horn itch" or ringworm may also affect adult cattle, causing itching, scaly spots on the body and especially about the tail-head. Treat by scrubbing clean and washing with a solution of two pounds of sulphate of copper to a gallon of water applied hot.

Ensuring Potato Crop

Canadian western farmers are remarkably ingenious in assuring themselves a crop. At least they are reported to be. An Ontario farmer told of an incident that occurred when he was paying a visit to a relative farmer in the Canadian West. He followed the trail for several miles and finally found his relative digging in a field. The man dug about eight inches and rooted out a good hill of potatoes. He dug to another depth and revealed a second hill. At still another depth a third hill of potatoes was forthcoming.

Mystified, the farmer from the east questioned the digger concerning the magnificent crop of potatoes, by hills, three deep. "Well," he said, "we plant them three deep this way in order to be safe of one crop at least. You see, in a dry season the upper hill is killed by drought, and in a very dry season the second hill is also lost, but it never gets so dry that the bottom hill is destroyed. On the other hand, when the season is wet the bottom hill rots, in a very wet season the middle hill goes as well, but it never gets so wet that the top hill is destroyed. In the third place, in a favorable season the result is three crops, as you see."—Toronto Globe.
