LIGHTNING KILLED A HAMILTON BOY.

James Merrigold Lost His Life Under a Big Tree at Woodstock Yesterday.

Hamilton youth, 14 years of age, who has been attending the Baptist College at that city for the past three years, and was in his final year before entering McMaster University. Mr. Merricilogold was the only son of Robert Merricilogold was the only son of Robert Merricilogold was the only son of Robert Merricilogold.

A Woodstock despatch thus describes the accident: gold was the only son of Robert Merrigold, the well-known hotelman, of this city, and was a bright, smart boy in his studies. He was very well liked, and the news of his death came as a shock to his many friends. He was standing under a tree after a game of football had been postponed on account of the rain, when the lightning struck him, causing instant death and dangerously injuring a companion, who was with him. A peculiar feature in connection with it was that the tree was not touched. It is thought that Edgar Knight, who was Merrigold's companion, will recover. Mr. Robert Merrigold received the telegram last night about 630, saying that his son had been struck by lightning, but it did not state that he had been killed. He left on the 7 o'clock ar, and upon arrival in Wood stock learned that it had been fatal. The deceased, was not only smart in his gold, the well-known hotelman, of this the accident: deceased was not only smart in his lived.

Yesterday's storm at Woodstock proved fatal to James Merrigold, a Hamilton youth, 14 years of age, who good deal, and his most recent visit to

NO BLOOMERS OR NO MIXED CROWD.

It Collegiate Girls Play In Bifurcated Skirts Women Only Will See Them.

Whether it is just the proper caper for pretty girls in bloomer costumes to engage in a strenuous basketball game on a gymnasium floor before a mixed assembly was the ticklish question on which the Internal Management Committee of the Board of Education had to pass judgment last night. There was sadness in the camp of the Collegiate girls' basketball team, among rocters and supporters when the decision was made known today, for the trustees, at the risk of having themselves called "old fogies," and other names, agreed that the girls should be permitted to play only before audiences composed of their own sex. In doing this they upheld the hand of Principal Thompson. The girls were trying to arrange a basketball game with the Collegiate girls of St. Catharines. They asked permission to use the gymnasium, and in sked on having a mixed error and sixed on having a mixed error the collegiate girls of St. Catharines. Though the electrical storm was very severe last night and lasted several hours, very little damage was done. The electric lights were off a couple of times, but only for a few minutes on each ceasion. The street cars were tied up for a short time also. The lightning was exceptionally brilliant. A barn south of Webb's farm, near Rymal, was completely gutted the place.

Another Chapter in Troubles of

Edward Palmer, Stoney Creek, who was in the Police Court last Wednesday charging a young lad by the name of John Culp with throwing stones at his home, was there again last night, but on a very different mission—that of asking for a night's lodging for himself and family. For over twenty years he has been a resident of Stoney Creek, but fortune has turned her back on him, and lately he has been forced to accept any shelter possible to protect his little famly. Up to two or three weeks ago they had been living in a fruit shed, but as that was needed by the owner they had to move out. Some of the residents, taking pity on their destitute condition, offered them the use of the fire hall until such time as they were able to provide for themselves. After moving into the hall the were able to provide for them-After moving into the hall the nily were troubled greatly by boys owing stones at the house and othernight Mr. Palmer succeeded in catching the boys, John Culp, who was before Magistrate Jelfs and fined $5. While giving his evidence in court Mr. Palmer made a statement to him that Mrs. Culp had said that if the summons was not withdrawn against her boy the Palmer family would have to get out of town. This has come true Last night, unable to stand the bom bardment of stones, and antipathy of some of the residents any longer, the family came to Hamilton and applied at No. 3 police station for lodgings, which

No. 3 police station for lodgings, was given them.

This morning Magistrate Jelfs and Chief Smith held a consultation on the case, and an hour or so later the Palmers returned to Stoney Creek. They were advised to go to Reeve Millen, and tell him that they must have police protection. The Magistrate intends to see that law and order is enforced there and if necessary will send a couple of special policemen down.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gower wish to thank their many friends for their kind remembrance in their recent sad

Billy Whitla, the kidnapped boy, was the first witness. He repeated substantial ly his testimony of yesterday, the case against James Boyl he arrived at the house in leveland with Boyle they met a woman who Boyle told him was his cousin, Billy dentifed Mrs. Boyle as the woman had cared for him in Cleveland, and whom he had known as Mrs. Jones. He identified a nurse's outfit as the clothing Mrs. Jones had worn, and said she had red spots on her face, which she said were the result of having recently had smallpox. He said the woman told him to tell his parents she was 44 years old and very large.

The prosecution offered in evidence the note written for Billy to carry on the street car on his way to the Hollenden Hotel when he returned to his father. The defence objected, claiming it did not concern Mrs. Boyle. Billy stated, however, that it was given to him in Mrs. Boyle's presence, and it was admitted.

"Is the marquis not at the castle, then?"
"No, we don't know where he is just now; grandma had a letter some months ago from some place abroad, but it said not him go fine course. The was always very wild. Grandpa and he quarreled, and he—I mean Uncle Wolfe, of course—went off like—like a shot." "Is the marquis not at the castle, then?"

"No, we don't know where he is just now; grandma had a letter some months ago from some place abroad, but it said nothing of his coming home. You see he was always very wild. Grandpa and he quarreled, and he—I mean Uncle Wolfe, of course—went off like—like a shot. ..., here we are. Look; that's the castle!" and he pointed to a huge castellated pile which rose majestically above the trees on a height to their left. "It's a very large place, and very, very beautiful!"

"Tm glad you like it, I like it too."

"Come on," said the boy; and ne clasped Constance's hand and led her up the steps and into the hall.
"Here's Miss Grahame, Grandma!"

"Nothing in there?" asked the ranger.
As he spoke one of the men went toward the door.

"Stop, sir!" he exclaimed, sternly.

"Not a thing shall be touched."

"There's nothing to take; we are poor," said Fenton, shrugging his shoulders. "See for yourself."

"What is all this?"

"My friend was a scientific man and fond of experiments," said Fenton, earelessly.

"Oh, indeed," said the ranger from the room, and he took up one or two glasses and retorts curiously. "Science in the backwoods; that's something new!"

He came out a moment or two afterward with a nine in his mouth, and a ackwoods; that's something new!"

"Right," said the ranger. "We shall overtake the wagon in five minutes. Why, is that it coming back?"

As if in answer to the question, the door was flung open, and one of the rangers rushed in.

"Quick, guv-nor! We're tracked! The vigilants are on us; ten to one!"

The ranger looked around.
"So many as that?" he said. "Sure?"
"Sure and certain."

The ranger tapped Fenton on the shoulder with a laugh.
"I'm afraid I shall have to make for another direction than Melbourne," he said. "You be off and take care of the lady and the old man. Good-night. I'll leave you a horse."

lady and the old man. Good-night. I'll leave you a horse."

"Fate, as it will sometimes, had played all the cards of circumstance in Rawson Fenton's favor.

He led the horse—he had even got a horse thrown in!—to a shed at the back of the hut, and then went inside. Throwing some logs on the fire, he flung himself down on the bare ground to think, and not to sleep, worn out as he was by fatigue and excitement. His hand struck some light object, and it rolled along some light object, and it rolled along the floor. He thought it was one of the uppals for the moment, and felt for it. But it was not one of the gems, in earch of which Doctor Grahame had ost his reason; it was a ring.

Fenton held it to the blaze and looked the think had never seen it before the tit. He had never seen it before the tit. He had never seen it before the content of the second of the second Fenton held it to the blaze and looked at it. He had never seen it before. It was a man's signet ring with a strange crest—though most crests are singular—a broken lance with an eagle perched on the fracture. It was not the doctor's crest; Fenton had never seen him wear a rign; could scarcely believe in the possibility of his possessing one. Whose could it be? Had one of the bushrangers dropped it? That was the only explanation. He folded the ring neatly in the formula he had taken from Doctor Grahame's pocket, and, overcome by exhaustion, tretched himself full length and slept.

CHAPTER III.

Twelve months later a young lady stepped from the train at Berrington Station. She was alone, and dressed in plain mourning, and there was that indescribable look in her face which speaks so eloquently and unmistakably of a heavy sorrow, lived through yet not forgotten.

A porter came up, and after a giance or a nearly sorter came up, and after a glance at the beautiful face touched his hat and asked respectfully, though she had alighted from a third-class carriage:

"Any luggage, miss!"

"A small portmanteau," replied Constance; and at the sound of her voice, so low and sweet, the man touched his cap again.

Constance looked around the station, "Can you tell me the way to Brakespeare Castle?" she said.

"Well, miss, it's three miles or near," replied the porter. "You'll take a fly!"

As he spoke a carriage dashed into the station yard, and almost before it stopped the door was flung open and a little boy of seven or eight ran out, and, heedless of the footman, callout, and, heedless of the footman, calling to him in respectful remonstrance, ran through the gate-way onto the platform.

Constance was losing herself in girllike admiration of the beauty and grace of the little fellow, when he ran up to her, and sweeping off his cap, said:

"Oh, please, are you Miss Grahame?"

"1es, I am Miss Grahame," said
Constance.

"Don't call me Lord Lancebrook," he said, "call be Arol."
"I' will," assented Constance.

you don't mind that?" Arol said after a short pause.

"Not in the least, I like quiet. It will seem like a rest to me who have been travelling about so much."

"You see, grandmas had a great deal of trouble. First her husband, my grandfather, the marquis, died, and that was bad, wasn't it?

"And tancebrook wishes me to go into the hall with him, Lady Brake-speare," she said.

"Oh, it's some trick or nonsense," exclaimed Lady Ruth. "Tell him to go and take his seat, Miss Grahame, please."

"And then my uncle, who's the marquis now, he couldn't be found, and poor grandma didn't know whether ke was alive or dead."

"Poor lady!" said Constance, gently.

"Yes, it was very—trying.

"I am very glad to see you, Miss Grahame, you have had a long journey. And now you will like to go up and rest. Arol dear child, ring the bell."

Constance changed her dress and made a tour of her rooms. They seemed to contain every luxury which a woman could desire.

As she stood and looked round, the tears rose to her eyes for the second

As she stood and looked round, the tears rose to her eyes for the second time that day. The first time they had been called up by the loving words of the little Lord Lancebrook; now they were caused by the remembrance of the rough, rude hut in far-away Australia. If her dear, dead father could only have been with her, to enjoy the rest and ease of all this luxury, was her thought? come:
"I can't help it! It isn't my fault. He told me to fetch some one, and I preferred you to Aunt Rue."
"He—who?" she asked.

If her dear, dead father could only have been with her, to enjoy the rest and ease of all this luxury, was her thought!

But Constance was not of the "crying" order of girls, and she rapidly brushed away her tears, and sat down and wrote a line to the kind-hearted woman of fashion, Lady Armstead, who had procured her the situation at the castle.

"He—who?" she asked.
"It don't know. Come in here."

If opened the door of the library as he spoke, and Constance saw the tall figure of a man standing in the centre of the room.

The portrait in the picture gallery of Lord Wolfegang flashed before her mind, and she knew the man who stood before her was the long-lost Marquis of Brake-speare.

had procured her the situation at the castle.

All the afternoon Arol escorted Coustance over the house, showing her its many points of interest. At eight o'clock the dinner-bell rang out sonorously, and with its last peal Lord Lancebrook appeared at the door.

"I thought I'd show you the way down; you might feel shy, being first time," he explained, naively.

He was magnificently dressed in purples satin, with broad old Moniton collar and cuffs, and looked as if he had stepped out of one of the frames in the picture-gallery.

He was the long-lost Marquis of Brake spears.

"Do nit be frightened," he said. "I told Arol to bring some one to me, some friend of my mother."

His tone was meant to reassure her, but it had the contrary effect.

"I have frightened you, I see," he said. "Will you sit down and wait a moment?" Arol, do you know who I am?" he asked.

"I think you are Uncle Wolfe." he said. "You are right; I am," replied the marquis.

"You look so grand that I scarcely dare kiss you in case I should spoil you," said Constance.

The marquist Constance did not know what to say, so she wisely remained stient. He looked at her for a moment, thoughtfully, then he said:

dare kiss you in case I should spoil you." said Constance.

"I'll risk that, Miss Grahame. Of course I're got my best things on because Lord Elliot's coming, you know.

He gave me this watch—see. It's a very good time-keeper. I wound it up once, I did indeed, and—ah! here he is!" and he drew his hand from hers and sprang from the stairs into the arms of a gentleman who had just entered the hall.

ness, "cried Lord Lancebrook from his perch. "She won't mind; she's not like beauty of his beach, as he inclined his head, as well as he could under the cirrneustances, to Constance. "Forgive us, Miss Grahame. Arol spoils me; in fact, we spoil each other."

It was not a particularly elaborate menu, but the dinner seemed interminable to Constance, though the beauty of the room and the air of luxury surrounding her were exerting their natural glamor over her. The only break in the enchantment was the sharp, incisive voice of Lady Ruth, Arol's cousin, which seemed to break in with metallic precision every time Lord Ellicht bett formula.

Suddenly, as the sweets were being handed round, and in a moment of comparative silence, a bell rang out loudly.

The marchioness started, and looked round a little nervously.

"What can that be?" she asid in a low voice.

"It was the hall bell," replied Lady Ruth, promptly, and without putting down her spoon. "Whom do you expect?"

"Expect? No one, my dear," said the marchioness.

"Expect? No one, my dear," said the marchioness.

A minute or two clapsed, and Constance had forgotten the sudden loud ringing of the bell, when the door opened, and Lord Lancebrook came in.

He stood looking round in a half-heaitating manner, and Lady Ruth said, sharply:

"You are before your time, Arol. The dessert is not in yet."

"Never mind," murmured the marchioness, apologetically. "Let him come in"; and with a smile she beckoned to him.

"Yes," said Lord Elliot. "Come and try this jelly, Arol," and he signed to a footman to place a chair next his own. But Arol shook his head with an unsubut heart sick."

"But Arol shook his head with an unsubut heart sick."

"But hope may be realized some day, dear Lady Brakespeare." said Constance gently, "and you would not be too startled—it would not be too great a shock if he came quite suddenly, as you say?"

The old lady looked at her with a piterous little look in her placid, gentle eyes. "My dear, why do you look at me so kindly and pityingly?"

Constance had got her into the half by this time, and had closed the drawing room door behind them.

"Yes," said Lord Elliot. "Come and try this jelly, Arol," and he signed to a footman to place a chair next his own.

But Arol shook his head with an unusual gravity, and, going up to Constance, drew her head down to his, and whispered:

"Come out into the hall, Miss Grahame. I want you."

Constance rose; she did not know what else to do CASTORIA For Infants and Children.

A TRICK THAT FAILED.

True to its instincts, the Ottawa slanderbund, after making its unmanly and dishonorable attack upon Hon, Mr. Pugsley, based upon Premier Hazen's partisan report, sought by a petty trick to obtain a snap verdict in the Common suddenly ending the debate when the House was half empty. This bit of tactics was quite in keeping with the character of the attack and the men who made it. Hon. Mr. Pugsley's exposure of the falsity and partisanship of the Hazen Commission's report left Mr. Crothers and his fellow slanderers nothing upon which to proceed but what had been pretty thoroughly ex posed and refuted. Mr. Crocket's four and a half hours' speech was a pitiful attempt to bolster up this disgraceful effort to damage the Minister of Publi Works: but it fails miserably, Pugsley left them nothing upon which to found an excuse for bringing the matter into the House; while his enquiry as to why the New Brunswick Government did not take the action called for-if it was intended for any thing but purposes of slander-and proceed in the courts against him, remainof Hon. Mr. Pugsley's course in himself appealing to the courts when the New Brunswick Government showed no disposition to take action itself, the rse of the Opposition is significant. and hardly needs characterization. Its on the House when only 153 members are the men engaged in slandering the Minister. But their little plot failed, well as it had been laid for their purpose, and even in a House so depleted of members the motion was defeated by a majority of 27.

The question is one which should not have been allowed to occupy the time of Parliament to the cost of the coun try. If the Hazen Commission's report is an honest one, Mr. Hazen should, long ere this, have brought the matter into the courts. That he has not done so, but has used it to furnish material for the slanderbund, and has left it to Hon. Mr. Pugsley, the man sought to be aspersed to petition the courts to take action, is an indelible disgrace upon the record of the New Brunswick Government and upon that of the Otta-

LET IN THE LIGHT!

It would be a thousand pitie were it to deserve to forfeit public confi dence by open defiance of public opinio by the Commissioners refusing to take conducting important business in secret

The attitude of two of the Commi sioners is that the public have no righ to know the facts as to the hearing of disposition of charges against the police brought before it; and that therefo the press shall be excluded and that re ports of the case shall not be given ou In the absence of instruction by his co leagues, the third member of the Con mission Police Magistrate Jelfs, who al ways stands for doing the public business with the full knowledge of the public, does not feel free to give out a state.

Without questioning the motives of the Mayor and Judge Snider in arriving at such a decision, we cannot but feel that their course is mistaken and ill-ad-No good-only evil-can flow from it; it may lead to wrong to officers; and it causes the public to lack pect it of a "public-be-d-d" disposition that is doubtless far from to deal with the men and charges made against them as they chose, and that i they prefer a secret tribunal the mer and the public cannot object. That is something approaching sheer insolence The Police Commissioners are servan of the public, and they owe the publi not only a performance of a specified duty, but they owe it respect and consideration. This is not the most import ant feature of the case; this secreey this refusal to trust the public-is bad culated to secure justice in the cases

There is no difference in the mora There is no difference in the moral character of the transaction between the action of the hurglar who goes to a man's house at night and takes from him a part of that which he receives for his wheat, and the action of the gambler who goes on the board of trade, and, by betting on the price of the product, brings down that price and takes that much from the farmer's income.

We believe that the farmer and the man who buys his product should both be left to buy and sell in accordance with natural laws, and that prices should not be affected by the action of other ople speculating upon their product r the benefit of the speculators them selves.

My position is this: If two men are betting as to which can spit the nearest to a crack in the floor, and the floor belongs to them. I may not be justified in interfering; but when their betting affects the price of a product which my people either use or produce, and by that betting increase the price to the producer. I am justified in interfering. I believe such gamblers ought to be restrained just as much as if these speculators waited until the farmer sold his wheat, and then by stealth or force took the money from him, if the price is reduced, or waited until the consumer labored and earned his wages, and then took from him that portion which would be measured by the increased price, if the price is raised.

It is worth while for the thoughtful reader to give this matter some consideration. We suppress lotteries because of their deleterious influence upon the public; yet none are forced to enter them or sustain loss by their operation We legislate against gambling houses wish to do so venture their money there. The gamblers in the food products of the country, however, reach pocket the hard earnings of both pro ducers and consumers, and without their will or consent. It would seem to be a case for public interference and regula tion. Surely, if society undertook the mizing the evils of the practice.

The lesson of the trial will not be lost upon the Hindus.

The shareholders of the Ontario Bank can hardly be said to be happy just now. A deficit of $576,000 has to be nade up, and the holders of $1,000,000 of stock find themselves liable to pay nearly $600,000, or $60 per share, under the law, which imposes on owners of bank stock a double liability. aken into consideration when the Daughters of the Empire contemplated producing Gilbert and Sullivan's famous comic opera, "The Mikado," and on ac count of the storm the attendance last evening at the opening performance in Bennett's Theatre was not what it should have been. Nevertheless, those who did attend saw a production that was well up to the standard set by Hamiltonians in anything they may attempt

Certainly the work accomplished, even though it was a first night, and the majority of the amateurs rad never been before the footlights before, was a credit to those who had charge of their train-

As is well known, the score of this bright and breezy opera is tuneful and melodious from overture to finale, and with hardly an exception, there was not a line of music or a cue that was missed by the performers.

The chorus was large, and its singing showed the result of long and careful training. One thing noticeable was the attack, which was excellent, and the tone was well balanced.

the principals. Without an exception Too much cannot be said of the work of the principals. Without an exceedion all had their parts up to perfection, and besides this their singing was of a high order. Among the gentlemen the nonres of the evening were divided between Mr. Harry Burkholder and Mr. Arthur L. Garthwaite, in the roles of Ko-Ko and Pooh-Bah, respectively. The parts afford splendid opportunity for many humorous situations, and they were maist the most of. Mr. Burkholder is a versatile comedian, and is able without difficulty to draw the sober lines out of the faces of his audience. He sang well, too, and his topical song in the first act made a hit. Mr. Garthwaite was the "Lord High Everything Else," and his immobility of countenance and big voice caused many a laugh. His two solos, be sides his work in the various trios and quartettes, were well received.

Playing the role of Katisha, the elderly lady in love with Nanki-Poo, she made a distinct hit, and brought out many a hearty laugh. She had several good solos, and sang them with expression. marries, but despises, was a laugh from start to finish.

The orchestra, which was augmented to sixteen pieces, under the able direction of Dr. C. L. M. Harris, was excellent, and there was not a mistake made. A word for Dr. Harris, too. Under his careful, conscientious guidance, he brought the musical portion of the opera to its completion, in his usual painstaking manner, and much of the success of the opera is due to his earnest efforts. The suggestion made the other day, that Dr. Harris be the head of a permanent organization such as was brought into existence for "The Mikado," and put on an opera every year, is a good one, and worthy of consideration.

VETERANS OF FIRE BRIGADE

Had a Fine Time at Their Banquet Last Evening.

Volunteers of Old the "Daddies" of Present Efficiency.

Mayor, Chairman Gardner, Chief TenEyck and Other Speakers.

The first annual banquet of the Ham-Iton Veteran Firemen's Association, held last night in the Vineyard Hotel, was an unqualified success. Despite the stormy weather, the Vets were out in force, and all enjoyed themselves immensely. The supper table was laid with all the good edible things this country can produce, and many foreign luxuries as well. Toasts were drunk and the night enlivened by songs and

and the night enlivened by songs and recitations.

Chief Thomas Stevens presided, and after the diners had done full justice to the repast, made a short speech, in which he referred to the pleasure it afforded him to be there and see so many of the old faces, the faces of men good and true, who had helped him in days gone by to pull the old engine when any of their homes were in danger from the devouring element. The present association was organized by Richard Butler at the time of the carnival, when they paraded and came in for so much praise. The eighty members who had turned out on that occasion had stuck together, and the association had been formed. The old engine they pulled through the streets the day of the parade had been located in Beamsville, and brought back to the same old engine house in which it held the place of honor fifty years before. Mr. Stevens thought the City Council should buy that engine and put it in the museum at the Dundurn as a relic and as a tribute to the old firemen. "When we are all gone it will be there to represent us," he said. Though the old vofunteers had dwindled down from eight hundred to eighty, the remaining few had turned out gallantly, he thought.

In response to the toast to the city, Mayor McLaren arose and expressed the pleasure it gave him to be present. He said that the fire brigade was one of the things Hamilton people were very proud of, and he thought that it was in its present state of efficiency. Though the night was rather disagreeable, he had no doubt that the fireworks in the sky was in honor of their banquet.

Alderman Norman Clark responded to line toast to "Our Guests," and told of he to the cost to "Our Guests," and told of he cast to "Our Guests," and told of one of the greatest of virtues, in his opinion. "We have had but small fire

CURFEW BELL

Was Used in many Places During the Middle Ages.

There are several old bells in Scotland, Ireland and Wales; the oldest are often riveted together, says the London Globe. t the monastery of St. Gall in Switzer-nd the four-sided bell of the Irish misnary St, Gall, who lived in the seventh

The curfew bell is that about which most has been written and said. It has been written and said. It has been therefor that it was only used in dred years, being raised in 1836 by the Emperor Nieholas. It is nearly twenty feet high, has a circumference of sixty feet, is two feet thick and weighs almost two hundred tons. The second Moscow bell, which is the largest bell in the world that is actually in use, weighs 128 tons. There are several bells extant which weigh ten tons and over, of which Big Ben, the largest bell in England, weighing between thirteen and fourteen tons, is one. Big Ben is unfortunately cracked.

Every Dish of Banquet Made of Potatoes.

The curiew bell is that about which most has been written and said. It has been thought that it was only used in England, but it was quite common on the continent in the middle ages.

The ringing of bells by rope is still very poular in England, especially in the country, where almost every hamlet, however small, has its church with its peal of bells, which are often remarkably well rung. The first peal of bells in England was sent by Pope Calixtus III. to King's College, Cambridge, and was for three hundred years the largest peal in England. About the beginning of the year 1500 sets of eight bells were hung in a few of the large clurches.

In the middle of the seventeenth century a man named White wrote a fomous work on bells, in which he introduced the system of numbering them 1, 2, 3, 4, etc., on slips of paper in different orders, according to the changes upon 24 bells at two strokes a second would take 117 million years.

One of the most famous bells in the Potatoes.

One of the most remarkable menus ever drawn up must have been that of the feast to which Franklin, Lavoisier, and other distinguished men sat down as guests of Parmentier. Every dish at this banquet was made of potatoes, and even the brandy and liqueurs were the product of the same vegetable.

This was Parmentier's final proof to his skeptical fellow countrymen that potatoes were not poison, as they persisted in believing. Lonis XVI. himself was one of Parmentier's sarilest converts, granted him land on which to grow his plants, and did not disdain to wear the potato flower as a bouttoniere. Then Parmentier cleveriy posted guards around his potato fields by day and withdrew them by night, so that people were tempted to come then, steal, eat and be convinced. The all potato ban quet was the climax of the great campaign.—From the London Chronicle.

Kept you in the house for the last four days, you say, and you've mentioned it to me several times? Now, don't say that. Be kind enough not to try to hurl anything like that at me. This is the first minute I've known anything about any callous on your foot as you call it, and I couldn't guess it, could I, merely because you've been moping around? Huh! I'm in bad, that's all. I'm what they call in Dutch. Here I am asking my wife to go out into the country on the first really decent, civilized Sunday of the year and she stands me off with some kind of a fairy tale about having something the matter with her feet that I never even heard about. Only blooming day in the week that I have the chance to enjoy a little air and sunshine and here I get flagged this way. By George! It's discouraging, depressing, disheartening and a lot of other things. Irritating, too, when it comes to that Doggoned irritating for that matter.

Of course you can't see it, but I call it pretty decent for a man to invite his wife to go out into the country with him of a fine spring Sunday, and there are not many fellows who'd be soft enough to extend their wives that kind of an invitation. Well, here I skate to the centre with a well meant invitation to you to spend the day with me out under the blue sky, and this is what I get. Take your word for any old thing. That's what I'm here for. I'm the dandiest little word taker in this section of town, if I do say so myself; but, anyhow, just to please me, won't you at least give an imitation of some body trying to slip on a pair of shoes?

Can't do it, eh? Oh, of course you can't. Don't suppose you can ever get on a pair of slippers, eh? one of the witnesses declared that he had been informed by the man who sold the site for No. 12 police station that he had had to give $1,000 to Chairman Proulx, of the Police Committee, as a condition to selling property to the eity. This statement created a tremendous sensation in the court, and the witness was sharply cross-examined as to it, but stuck persistently to his story.

This point was made by Fred Leclaire, manager of the Theatre Royal. He swore that he had been living as a tenant of Pierre Leclaire, the owner of the property which was sold to the city for the new police station. Pierre Leclaire, he said, had frequently consulted him regarding the sale, and had told him that a condition was that if the city bought the property he was to give $1,000 to Ald. # $30.000 FOR A NEW SITE.

But Aldermen Do Not Agree About Isolation Buildings.

Scarlet Fever Continues and City Has Not Accomodation.

Monday August 2, Fixed Upon as Civic Holiday.

The Finance Committee decided vesterday afternon that $30,000 is the amount the people will be asked to vote for a new hospital site. While the aldermen were unanimous about this they differed over the advisability of enlarging the present isolation buildings. The Council settled this question some time ago by voting against spending any the lower portion could, with material more money on the present grounds. Ald Hopkins revived the matter yesterday when he made another appeal to his colleagues to add another storey to the scarlet fever and diphtheria wards at a cost of about $10,000. This would provide accommodation for the next ten years, he said.

"If something is not done at once," he said, "You will have scarlet fever all over the city. They are so growded.

Those who are opposed to this scheme argued that the site to be purchased might include a number of buildings that could be used temporarily for this purpose. This did not satisfy Ald. Hop-line." As soon as you get a site," he "You will begin monkeying with

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A. was held at the Central Association building yes terday afternoon, and a fairly good number of the ladies attended. Rev. E. J. Etherington presided and conducted the opening exercises.

The treasurer's report showed the total receipts to be $4,020.65, of which $265.17 was from Milady's Home. The expenditures amounted to $202.65, and balance on hand is $200. Mr. Best, the secretary of the Y. M. C. A., addressed the ladies on the importance of the work being done by the association. He said the association work was not a new subject to the ladies, but he thought there might be some among them who would realize more fully the importance the association plays in the after life of the man and also the part it plays in the present. He thought it possible that there might be some ladies who did not altogether understand the work, and it might be advisable to instruct them. First of all he showed that the efforts of the ladies had in a number of instances proved the salvation of the association, as the Ladies' Auxiliary had always been to the front in any understating and by their zeal had surmount-

The directors and staff have been greatly helped by the ladies, and they are greatly indebted to them for their help. Mr. Best spoke of the necessity of keeping the place, as there were other attractions that would draw the young men away. The ladies should not forget the real object of the association, as it was organized to help man spiritually and physically, and had grown from one association to a large number of them. He said the real object was the salvation of men and the directing of their energies along better lines. The best proof that the association is increasing is the gain in membership, which has been increased about 400 each year, the number at present holding cards being 4.800. The retiring president, Mrs. Gallagher, gave a short address, and thanked the ladies for their earnest support during the seven years she had been president. She hoped the new president would receive the same support she had enjoyed. The newly elected president, Mrs. (Dr.) Wickins, said she had no hesitancy in accepting such an honorable position, when she knew what an earnest band of workers the ladies were. # Notice to Amateur Ball Teams

Although the baseball season is young, the amateur baseball managers are getting busy arranging their baseball nines, like the big league managers. The Times will publish news and scores, challenges, and all matter relating to the amateur baseball players. So let the baseball managers get busy and send along their challenges, and the names of the players they would like to have join their nine. All communications should be addressed to the Baseball Editor, the Times.

GALLOPERS AT THE WOOD-BINE TRACK YESTERDAY.

Toronto, May 7.—The track was filled with horses yesterday, but it was work day for very few, and no fast moves were shown. Jockey Musgrave was at work with the Seagram string, and it must be said that the president has a lot of beautiful horses. They are well advanced for a member to bring in his friends at from their preparation at the home farm, and need little to sharpen them right into racing readiness. The change from the quietude of their surroundings at Waterloo to the bustle of the course rather excited some of them, and yesterday Bouquet, the star of the lot, was willing to run off with her boy. Jockey Musgrave, who will wear the first colors, has joined the stable, and is galloping Toronto, May 7.—Here is a letter from Dr. W. N. Robertson, one of the old guard, to Mr. H. B. Howson, warmly supporting the effort that is being made for a cycling revival:

Delighted to observe that a cycling revival has come, just as the industrial age has now fully come. It seems to be a trait in nature to have hills and valleys, hot seasons and cold seasons, retrogression and progression in trade, and, surely, the tima now is that "cycling" should again become the most popular sport, inasmuch as the masses, i.e., a greater number of people can enjoy "cycling" than any other recreation. It is truly the greatest good to the greatest number.

He who would live to a good old age, who would carry youth and freshness, symmetry and beauty of mind and body into ripe years, must have a cultured heart and educated mind, and a well kept body fostered by cycling and with the use of a low-geared machine.

My entity here, at times, without a cycle may be likened unto the death in life in Siberia. It may be that I was too fond of cycling in the days that are past, yet I have no regrets—on the other hand, I have profited thereby, both morally and physically.

Regret very much that my position at present will not permit me to take any active part in your worthy organization, nor even to use a cycle. Wishing you every measure of success. Yours

CHINESE BURIAL

Preparations Elaborate, Especially When It Is An Emperor's Funeral.

When It is An Emperor's Funeral.

The death of the Emperor of China happened far away, both in time and distance, but the Embassy which left St. Petersburg on Saturday to attend the funeral will find itself in ample time for the ceremony.

The Chinese are not inclined to hustle, especially when they are burying an Emperor. The successor to the throne must indulge in one hundred days of "unrestrained grief," and the mourning of a less acute nature must continue for another two years.

The will of the dead monarch must be carried to the gate of "Heavenly Rest," and there read to the assembled crowd. When the astrologers appoint a favorable day the coffin is taken to the temporary palace on the hill within the imperial enclosure accompanied by the new ruler, who for twenty-seven days presents fruits and viands to the deceased.

Then the death name, by which his irtues will be known to posterity, is hosen for the dead man, and when the lowers on high and those on earth have been introduced to his late Majesty under the new cognomen he may be re-moved to the wooded valley fifty miles from Pekin where the dead Emperors of the present dynasty repose. The new Emperor goes along with it, or at least receives it at every halting place en route.

Finally when food, money and clothes have been given to the deceased he is left in peace. It is a long business, this funeral, and the Russian delegates have no need to scurry across Asia for fear of missing it.—From the Pall Mall Gazette.

SIGNS IN STANDS AFFORD AMUSEMENT TO O'LOUGHLIN

"Silk" Describes Some of the Amusing Things That Come Under an Umpire's Observation.

"Reading the signs posted in the grand stands and dressing rooms around the country amuses me very much," remarked Silk O'Loughlin the other night.

"One sees all kinds of notices pinned to the walls as to the dire things that will happen to the fan who says anya robber, and so on and so forth. Did the police put him out? No, indeed! He was immediately the hero of the game. Why not put up bulletins in every stand notifying the fans that the umpire, while lame and halt and partially blind, perhaps is still a human being, and entitled to go home to his family in peace?

Britishers Defeated U. S. on Gallery Ranges.

gallery range has been demonstrated by the victory of the British team in the international small bore match just ended. When the American rifle team was in England last summer taking part in the shooting contest at the Olympic games, Gen. James A. Drain, president of the National Rifle Association and captain of the team, was approached by the secretary of the Society of Miniature Rifle Clubs of Great Britain with a proposition to hold a friendly match with small bore rifles on gallery ranges. The conditions of the matchs were fifty men a side, each man firing 90 shots at 75 feet, on a target having a half-inch counting bull's-eye, counting ten points, a one-inch sighting bull, counting 90, and eight concentric circles 34 of an inch apart, counting from eight to one, the rifle used not to be over 230 calibre. Any sights were allowed not containing glass, and any position could be assumed in firing.

After the condition were decided upon, Australia asked to be allowed to come into the contest, which was agreed to by the United States and Great Britain.

A cable message has been received from the British Association announcing that their team made a grand total of 14,583 points of a possible 15,000, or an average of 291 per man.

The scores of the American team

The scores of the American team were 14,179, showing that they were beaten by 404 points. Australia has not yet been heard from.

rovest, Fish and Game Commissioner James S. Whipple has been instrumental in getting an appropriation to establish a farm for game bird propagation. After considering various desirable places in the State it has been decided to locate the farm in Chenango county, southeast of Utica. That is the most central point and shipping facilities in every direction are most excellent.

About 148 acres of land is required to begin with, the larger portion to be fenced. Five or six coops will be constructed for breeding places and sections of the farm divided into separate compartments. Hungarian partridge, English pheasants and quail principally will be propagated. The English pheasants are great egg producers, laying from ninety to a hundred eggs each season. Eggs will be hatched under common hens.

MARKET EXPERTS TALK.

New York, May 7.—While leaders back and fill with a chance of reaction on unfavorable crop report to be published this afternoon, we expect to see the beat kind of buying on all reactions, and consequently would advise purchase of good stocks generally on the dips with the idea of their reaching into new high levels before long. It will not be long before Reading will be taken in hand and given another sensational advance. For the time being, however, speculation is centred in specialties, and such rails as Denver, R. I. and N. Y. C. speculation is centred in specialties, such rails as Denver, R. I. and N. Y. There is reason why these will be advanced. The industrial list presents quite as favorable opportunities. We expect to see Lead advanced before long. We do not regard Smelting, Copper and C. F. I. as worthy purchases for the long pull. The talk of a new stock issue ahould help Canadian Pacific. Keep long of W. U. Buy Cotton on breaks for turns.

A very decided contrast in business characterized the market yesterday. 'Floor traders were much more disposed to follow movements in specialties, with American Cotton, Oil, K. S. U., Corn Products and V. C. all having a good movement upward. High price for cotton oil 66, 1-4 below the big board. Generally, however, prices on the consolidated for these issues exhibited relative firmness, profit taking only having an effect at the highest. Standard issues were also well bought, although dealings in them showed a material falling off. Reading changed hands as high as 158 1-8, compared with 152 on the other board, and S. P. sold at 122 3-4, against 122 5-8, with the top price of U. P. 188 3-4, however, compared with 188 7-8 on the big board.

New York, March 7.—There is nothing that I can see to change my former advices to you, except to advise to keep long of stocks on all setbacks. There may be some reaction this afternoon; you must not be afraid to buy any of the active stock. I think S. P. and U. results, and a taxation of land values is on the Liberal programme in Great Britain, but Fairhope is the only example of an attempt to demonstarte it in the face of adverse laws. The fact that the experiment has been successful in spite of the levying of taxes by the state and county is a striking bit of evidence for those who think there may have been something in George's doctrine.

It is a curi-us fact that the only aerimonious critics of Fairhope have been men who were themselves single taxers, and just now there is raging a hot controversy among them about it.

Sifted down, it comes to the immemorial inability of social reformers to agree among themselves about details. The opponents of Fairhope want a democratic rule substituted for the rule of the Fairhope corporation, arguing that the running of a so-called "bucket shop," returned a verdict of guilty in the United States District Court here to-day.

FOUNDERS OF COMMUNITY.

The founders of this community were E. D. Gaston, James Bellangee, J. B. Hummel and Alfred Wooster. They were all lows men, devoted single taxers and practical folks. tax colony. There are people in it who never heard of the single tax or who don't believe in it. All of them, however, take their leaseholds from the corporation upon the same basis as do the devotees of Henry George.

A SINGLE TAX CRITIC. A SINGLE TAX CRITIC.

The most prominent among the singletax critics of the Fairhope enterprise is Joseph Dana Miller, who has been for many years one of the leaders in that cult. In explaining his opposition to the enterprise, as at present conducted, Mr.
Miller said:

"The objection row seems to be among."

Miller said:
"The objection now seems to be among a number of the people of Fairhope that the government is not democratic. They object that they have no voice in determining the value of the land or the taxes they have to pay. That, however," Mr. Miller added, "has been remedied by a referendum taken on the assessments."

by a referendum taken on the assessments."

The criticism of Fairhope from the inside appears to proceed entirely from persons who are not single taxers, and who want to instal the old system of private ownership. The land values have been created by the presence of the community, and to that extent have justified the single-tax theory. Now that these land values, which originally were nothing, have grown to a remarkable asset, there are persons in the town who desire to reap the advantages of that situation by reverting to the old system of ownership.—Exchange.

FOUNDERS OF COMMUNITY.

The founders of this community were E. D. Gaston, James Bellangee, J. Blummel and Alfred Wooster. They were all Iowa men, devoted single taxers, and just now there is raging a hot controversy among them about it.

Sifted down, it comes to the immemorial inability of social reformers to agree among themselves about details. The opponents of Fairhope want a democratic rule substituted for the rule of the Fairhope corporation, arguing that the running of a single-tax community by a private company is undemocratic. The answer of the Fairhopers is two-fold: First, that as long as the present system of taxation exists it is impossible to run a single-tax community on any other basis; second, that the initiative and referendum are in operation at Fairhope, and any time a majority wants a change in the system they can get it.

BRIGANDAGE RIFE. Constantinople, May 7.—There has seen considerable disorder surrounding Constantinople, and brigandage is being carried on in the very suburbs of the capital. This state of affairs is a result of the rapid changes in government, and undoubtedly can be laid to the doors of deserters from the former Constantinople garrison and political fugitives, who have undertaken to live on the country. Montenegro's National Dance.

The national dance of Montenegro is the "Kolo," somewhat similar to the Horo" of Bulgaria. Both sexes take part, crossing hands and forming an unjoined circle. The music they supply themselves, each end of the horn alternately singing a verse in honor of the Prince and his warlike deeds. The "Kolo" is always danced in any great national festival, and the effect of the sonorous voices and swaying ring is very fine. The attack on Mrs. Boyle was the finish of a most exciting day. James Boyle was convicted of kidnapping by the Court in record time. It took but one hour for the testimony of little Whilla, the kidnapped boy to convince Messrs. Anderson, Miller and Stranahan, Boyle's counse, that he had not a chance in the world. They took him out of court and urged that he plead guilty, but he would not. They finally convinced him that it atmospheric conditions which prevailed during the month which has just closed were most unsatisfactory, from the agricultural standpoint, and a great deal of warm weather will be needed in the next few weeks to bring about a normal state of affairs.

Mrs. Boyle tok a lively part in picking her own jury. She seemed to have a longing toward young and unmarried men. The jury was finally selected and one witness, Miss Ellen Boyle, siste; of James Boyle, placed on the stand when court adjourned putil to-morrow.

Committed Suicide in New York After Bride Left Him.

New York, May 5.—Inquiries concerning the identity of Geo. P. Armstrong, tho was found dead in his cottage in East Rutherford, N. J., this morning, a suicide from gas, indicate that he was formerly a captain in the British Royal Artillery, and had won a medal for ga oudan, and had carried himself off with Soudan, and had carried himself off with credit in India. His suicide followed the departure of his bride for New York on Friday evening, although her relatives in Brooklyn said to-night that her absence from him was to have been only temporary. They were married only on April 17 last.

CHANGE IN POWER PLAN.

Cataract and Hydro May be Submitted at Same Time.

Mayor Upholds His Course in Favor of Secret Meetings.

Sewer Trench on the Mountain Flooded Once More.

Another change of plans about deal ing with the power question has been made. It was the intention to have con sidered the matter at a special session to-night, but it has finally been agreed to deal with the matter at the regular council meeting on Monday night. Both the Cataract contract and the Hydro power by-law have been printed. the intention to submit both of them the intention to submit both of them to the people, the Cataract proposition as a contract, for the people to authorize the council to enter into, and the Hydro in the shape of a straight question, on which the people will be asked to vote yes or no. Some of the aldermen are opposed to this, however, and think that the Cataract contract alone should be submitted.

The Police Commissioners still refuse to discuss their verdict at the dark lantern session on Wednesday afternoon, when they investigated the story that officer had offered Mrs. Henry iswell $100 to withdraw a charge Buswell $100 to withdraw a charge against a man accused of assaulting her husband. The Mayor thinks that from the sketch of the proceedings he gave the public will not misunderstand the position taken by the board. 'And surely they can trust us as sensible men to come to a right judgment," he observed. The Mayor stated that had it not been for a report in a morning paper that the board had entirely exonerated the officer he would have said nothing yesterday. "I want to give the peope every liberty to believe that they have friends at court when they come to make a complaint. I believe the people want results, and I am willing to do anything I can to give them that. If the people cannot trust me, let them elect someone they can. But I think the course we are pursuing is the right one."

The excavations for the sewerage sy tem on the mountain top were pumped cut yesterday. The storm last night flooded them again, and the pump was at work again to-day.

A building permit has been issued to J. Orr Callaghan for a brick dwelling at the corner of Homewood and Kent streets, to cost $3,500. Charles Kidd has the contract.

Mont Blanc's Worst Disaster.

In the late summer of 1870 a scrate party set out from Chamonix to assend Mont Blanc. The amateurs were Mr. Randall, of Boston, U. S. A., Mr. McBean (American), and the Rev. G. McCorkin-dale, of Convold and the Rev. Co. tale, of Gourock, on the Clyde. The ook with them guides or assistants n ewer than eight persons from Cham-nix, and this was a quite sufficient number. As is usual, they passed the night at the innupon the rocks which are called the Grands Mulets. On the next day a number of persons below watched their progress through telescopes. They were seen to arrive summit and to begin the desce that time the weather had changed

Mickel, Ellicott, Diekie, Thompson, G. Smith, Hawker, Andrews, A. Smith, onix started out to try to learn some thing. Bad weather came on again, and it was not until the 17th that the fate of the party was ascertained. When the rescue party got up they found Mr McCorkindale and two of the porters rescue party got up they found Mr. McCorkindale and two of the porters about seven hundred and fifty feet below the top, with their heads right way up, but with their clothes somewhat torn, as if they had slipped and fallen. Abc. at three hundred feet higher up they came upon Mr. McBean and another porter sitting down, the former with his head leaning on one hand and the elbow on a knapsack; ropes coiled up, batons, axes, and knapsacks round about them still containing a little food. Upon Mr. McBean a notebook was found centaining several entries in respect to the occasion.
