CHAPTER XXXIV.
THE SALE.
"Going, going!" he shouted. But before the hammer could fall, a voice named the higher sum.

The auctioneer turned his eyes upon the spot from which the bid had come, and Sampson twisted in his chair and half rose; his face red, his eyes gleaming with excitement and dread; but the crowd was thickest in that part of the room, and he could not see the person who had spoken. Burridge sat immovably, his heavy fowl set square, his eyes fixed on the table. Northam looked in the direction of the last bidder, but he could not distinguish him.

Northam bid another thousand pounds—for the advance was by a thousand now!—and waited. Burridge raised his eyes instantly, and the auctioneer, who was under Burridge's thumb, in his power, swung up the hammer and was bringing it down with the blow which would proclaim Mr. Burridge master of the Court, when the voice from the farther end of the room rose again quietly, but firmly.

The excitement was intense, almost intolerable; the crowd swayed and surged in its attempt to see who was bidding, bidding not only against cunning old Burridge and his overbearing son, but Lord Northam. But only those who were near the man could get a glimpse of him, and they were too excited to reply to the murmurs of "Who it is? Who is it?" Northam watched Burridge; would he raise those now strained old bloodshot eyes again? Suddenly the old man, on whom the gaze of all was fixed, drooped forward, as if some one had smitten him on the back.

There was a commotion among those near the table. Sampson rose and caught his father's shoulder. The auctioneer, alarmed, confused, dropped the hammer, mechanically crying "Gone!"

Sampson turned with a yell of fury, shouted something and held up his hand almost threateningly. But a shout, it was almost a roar, rose from the crowd.

"It's sold, it's sold!" they cried. "You're too late, Master Sampson! The hammer had gone down. 'It's sold! The Court's sold! Where's the man that bought it? Make way there; make way!"

Amid the shouts, the yells of satisfaction and derision, a small but well-tailored figure advanced through the press to the table.

"What—what name?" gasped the confused and now terrified auctioneer.

But there was no need for the purchaser to declare himself; a hundred voices shouted:

"Mr. Drayle! Mr. Drayle!" "Yes, 'tis Mr. Drayle!"

At the sound of the name, shouted again and again, as if the crowd could not cease to proclaim its excitement, old Burridge raised his head slowly and glared at his opponent; then, his large mouth outlined with froth, he fell forward on the table. Utterly disregarding his father's collapse, Sampson, his face purple, his hands clenched—sprang forward to the auctioneer.

"I protest!" he shrieked. "I protest!" "No, no; 'twas a fair sale!" yelled one of the crowd. "The hammer fell, the auctioneer cried 'Gone!' right enough!"

"I protest!" repeated Sampson. "This man—this Drayle is a pauper. He buy the Court!" He gave a cracked, insolent laugh. "He hasn't money enough to buy a pigsty!" A roar of anger, of indignation, rose from a hundred throats; the auctioneer, remembering that he was amenable to law, knowing that he had legally and validly sold the property, tucked up courage.

"That will soon be seen, Mr. Sampson," he said, facing Sampson's furious eyes. "The property goes to the highest bidder; he is required to pay a deposit." He turned to the clerk, white of face and shaking; a calculation was made, a sum stated.

Amid an intense silence, the silence of suspense, Bradley Drayle, who had stood at the table quietly, calmly, and with his old pleasant, cynical smile, drew a bundle of notes from his breast pocket and handed it to the auctioneer.

"You will find more than sufficient there, sir," he said quietly.

Relieved of their suspense, the crowd shouted triumphantly, and those nearest Drayle held out their hands, or carried away by their excitement, clapped him on the back. Still quite calmly, Drayle responded as best he could to their congratulations.

"Thanks, thanks!" he said. "But look to Mr. Burridge there. He is ill."

They carried the old man into the open air, and Sampson followed his prostrate father; but at the door he turned and shook his fist at Drayle.

"No sale! No sale!" he cried hoarsely. "I'll—I'll—"

"What name do you give as purchaser, sir?" asked the shaking clerk, though he had heard the name often enough during the last few minutes to remember it for the remainder of his life.

"Sir Darrel Frayne," replied Mr. Drayle, quietly.

CHAPTER XXXV. HER OWN TRUE LOVE AGAIN.

A large part of the crowd had gone out. But those who still lingered to see the last of the house, perhaps the one chance of their lives, gasped and stared.

"Sir Darrel Frayne!" said the unhappy auctioneer. "But—but he is deceased—"

"Then he must have died suddenly within the last hour," said Drayle, with his quaint smile. "Put down the name I have given you, please, and give me a receipt for that deposit."

He turned as he spoke, for a tall, thickly made gentleman, with an impassive face and prominent eyes, stood beside him.

"Permit me to congratulate you, Mr. Drayle," said Northam, with an unusual touch of excitement in his voice; "not so much on your victory but your announcement of my friend Frayne's existence. My name's Northam—"

Mr. Drayle held out his hand, and there was now no cynicism in his smile nor his greeting.

"I have heard of you, Lord Northam," he said; "and everything to your credit. Yes; Darrel Frayne is alive—"

"Where is he?" demanded Northam, for the first time breaking into another man's speech.

"Where do you think he is?" asked Mr. Drayle.

"Well, I can guess," said Northam, after a moment.

Drayle nodded. "Yes, he went there from the station. I came on here first. I'm only the father; you see, Lord Northam; and, therefore, properly left the first place of honor to the lover and future husband. Yes, we arrived in the nick of time. We have travelled from India at a speed which will, I think, make a record; and we reached here, as I say, just in the nick of time. Now let me thank you for your part in this business. I take it you were bidding—to save the Court from these Burridges?"

"That's so," said Northam. "I thought Frayne was dead; but—he was a friend of mine—and there was a kind of sacrifice in the idea of the old place falling into the hands of that kind of people. Besides—he paused and stared before him—"there was another to think of."

"I understand," said Drayle, with gratitude in his eyes and voice. "Lord Northam, there is just at present, and in some quarters, an outcry against the House of Lords; but for my part, though Cynthia sometimes tells me that I hold rather advanced opinions, I'd be quite content to uphold the House of Peers—if they were all Lord Northams! And that is all I will permit myself, and, doubtless, all you will permit me, to say regarding your kindness to my child. You have given a fresh significance to your old battle cry, 'Noblesse Oblige.' It's nice to be a nobleman. 'Tis still nicer to act as one— But I said I'd say no more, didn't I?" he broke off as Northam, reddening and looking shy and uncomfortable, held out his hand.

A little while before this dramatic meeting of these two original individuals, Parsons, who had gone into the garden to pick some flowers for her mistress' table, observed a man coming down the road.

For a moment, a moment only, he added in justice to Parsons' perspicacity, she thought he was a tramp; for his clothes were old and travel-stained, his hat was of the soft, "bendable" kind, favored of the colonial, and he limped slightly; but, as he drew nearer, something in his figure and gait drew her closest attention; and suddenly, when he had stopped by the gate and was opening it, she dropped the flowers and opened her mouth.

But before she could scream Darrel was upon her, and with one arm round her shoulders, clapped his hand on her mouth.

"No, you don't, Parsons!" he said, in a kind of whisper, and with the old smile which had long ago won the maid's heart as well as the mistress'. "Keep quiet, Parsons; he gave her a little shake. "I'm not a ghost, I assure you. Promise not to cry out, then! Right. Oh, my girl, where is she?"

"In the sitting room, sir!" gasped Parsons. "Oh, whatever shall I do! You mustn't run in upon her. She's been ill, Mr. Darrel—Sir Darrel, I mean, begging your pardon—"

"Ill!" echoed Darrel, his smile vanishing. "Ill and alone here—I beg your pardon, Parsons; of course, you're everything to her—"

"My dear young mistress has been very bad," said Parsons, half incoherent with excitement, "but she's better. And she hasn't been alone; Lord Northam—"

She stopped, for Darrel's face had gone white, and his hand had dropped from her shoulder.

"Er—ah, yes!" he said, huskily, and averting his face. "Quite so. I'll go on to the inn—"

Parsons actually caught him by the coat—and blushed for a week afterward, whenever she remembered it.

"Oh, no, no, Mr. Darrel!" she cried, in a hushed voice. "You mustn't, you mustn't! She's expecting you, as you say; she wouldn't have it that you were dead! You must go in, Mr. Darrel; but I must go first and prepare her, break the news. You wait in the porch, then, and I'll come to the window and wave my hand."

She turned toward the open door, but slackened her pace discreetly before entering. Cynthia was at the old-fashioned and much battered writing table, and she did not look up as Parsons came into the room and stood behind her.

Blacking & Mercantile Co'y, Ltd., Amherst, N.S.

Dear Sirs.—Nearly one year ago I had my first order of "Mathieu's Syrup" from you. It was not known in this country, and I gave samples to several families whom I knew would use it. After a few weeks I began to have a call for it, and made has increased wonderfully since. I have not the least doubt but that it will soon be the best selling remedy for coughs, colds, etc., on the market. In my store here sales are good and our people ask for it. Several stores in this country now keep it in stock and report sales increasing. I have bought from you since August 16th, 1907, 4 Gross and have only three dozen on hand at this date, and which I am holding for retail trade in my store. Yours truly,

A Common Mistake.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

The other day I heard a self-sufficient young man calmly announce that all this classical music which people make such a fuss about is stuff and nonsense. "Most people just prefer to like it," he said. "There is no real music to it."

Now, as I believe I have said in a previous talk, I have all respect in the world for anyone who will be honest about his preferences in such matters, even when they differ from those of the majority. I like the honest man who admits he prefers Conan Doyle to Shakespeare, and "Row, row, row" to a selection from Wagner; but I don't like the man who insists that he is right in his preferences, and that all the cultured and educated people who think differently from him are fools.

And yet this is the attitude of a great many people in many matters.

Now of course each of us must do his own thinking for himself, and make up his mind what he believes and what he likes, for himself, if his beliefs and preferences are to have any real weight and value. Nevertheless it behooves all of us to have due respect for any opinion which a large number of educated and cultured people hold. Even though we cannot share it, we ought to admit that there is probably some good in it or else they would not hold it.

Of course the world would never progress at all unless people thought for themselves and had the courage to question the established order, but there is a big difference between the attitude of intelligent inquiry and the attitude of ignorant contempt which the young man I quoted, and a great many people, young and old, assume. Personally I must say I like the simpler melodies, and would infinitely rather hear a good singer sing some simple old folk song like "Coming Through the Rye" than an aria from an opera. But I believe that this is simply because I haven't sufficient musical knowledge to appreciate the more wonderful music, and I take every opportunity to hear it in the hope that some day I may understand it and enjoy it as I should.

It is not right to pretend to like anything or believe in anything just because other people like it or believe in it. But neither is it right to entirely ignore the opinion of any large class, especially when they are educated and intelligent people.

Spencer, himself one of the most independent thinkers of the world, says that when any idea or custom has persisted for centuries you can be sure there must be some good at the root of it, no matter how foolish it may appear. And so when any idea or custom is approved by millions, beware how you set yourself against it. There is one chance that you are right and the rest of the world wrong. There are about nine million, nine hundred and ninety-nine thousand, nine hundred and ninety-nine chances that the shoe's on the other foot.

Housework Drudgery!

Housework is drudgery for the weak woman. She brushes, dusts and scrubs, or is on her feet all day attending to the many details of the household, her back aching, her temples throbbing, nerves quivering under the stress of pain, possibly dizzy feelings. Sometimes rest in bed is not refreshing, because the poor tired nerves do not permit of refreshing sleep. The real need of weak, nervous women is satisfied by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and as Mrs. Briggs and others testify:

It Makes Weak Women Strong and Sick Women Well.

"This 'Prescription' cures the cause of women's weaknesses, heals inflammation and ulcerations of the uterus, encourages the appetite and induces restful sleep."

Dr. Pierce is perfectly willing to let every one know what his "Favorite Prescription" contains, a complete list of ingredients on the bottle-wrapper. Do not let any druggist persuade you that his unknown composition is "just as good."

Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" contains a complete list of ingredients on the bottle-wrapper. Do not let any druggist persuade you that his unknown composition is "just as good."

Mrs. Briggs, Barrington, St. Dunstons, Ohio, writes: "Having taken your 'Favorite Prescription' for a bad case of intestinal disease and constipation with in the world like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Purifying Lotion' which I am now enjoying the best of health, and thank Dr. Pierce for his wonderful medicines which have done me a world of good."

ing, and are made of handkerchief linen.

In one evening gown, lemon-colored chiffon and blue chiffon are combined; in another, palest pink and brick red.

Soft draped mantlets of souple taffetas and crepon sole harmonize in coloring with the afternoon gowns they are worn over.

One of the most striking new paraisols is scarlet, with clusters of cherries fastened between the ribs to suggest a border.

Cliffon evening scarfs are bound at the sides with self-toned satin and weighted at the ends with passementerie or embroidery.

A charming necklace is a slender chain of gold loosely knotted about the neck, the ends weighted with large precious stones.

Indian Island Notes.

Before the Premier's visit we were enjoying summer weather. Since that it has been the worst for a number of years. In fact the past three or four days has been like winter. Some say the Premier brought the ice and cold shivers with him, while others say the Premier has treated him so coolly that we deserve a cold nip.

A public meeting was held in the Orange Hall on Wednesday night. The Chairman, Mr. Richard Collins, introduced the Premier to the audience. In rising the Premier told the people that he was their brother and friend and that he had come amongst them to find out their wants. The country was never so prosperous. New fish markets were opened up, fish entered the American markets duty free, and fish was a good price. Now that the duty was taken off sugar the poor fisherman could live like the rich man and have sugar in his tea.

Ah! Sir Edward, you forgot to tell how much the poor old country was in debt. Why, bless me, the fishermen know all about it. Talk about taking the duty off sugar, an old gentleman said the other day, yes, and forty other things they ought to take the duty off. Men are not going to be influenced now as they were fifty years ago. Will some one tell how many of our young men during the last four years have to leave the country for other lands? Generally at the end of every four years all are brothers. How much better would it be that at the beginning of the first year if all were brothers.

Woodford Turned Down.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Last Sunday Mr. Woodford, Minister of Public Works, and Mr. Whiteway, of St. John's, paid us an official visit. They came here by automobile, stopped at the Court House and waited till the people came from church. The object of Mr. Woodford's visit was to hold a public meeting in the building of a new block to the public wharf. The old Tory clique who had the squandering of the road monies since Morris' advent to power, turned out in force to get the spending of the grant also. The independent voters of Harbour Main who have come to the conclusion that their mismanagement of public monies must cease, turned out also to throw from power these political graballs. Mr. Patrick Brick, the leader of the Tory band, proposed Mr. Stephen Doyle as foreman, and Mr. Peter Hann seconded the motion. This motion was opposed by Mr. Parsley who proposed Mr. Nicholas Lacour, and his motion was seconded and approved by the crowd of stalwart voters who were present. This second motion was most displeasing to the "Knight" who resented Mr. Parsley's interference, although backed by the mass of voters, old him he had no business at the meeting and even went so far as to say he would have Parsley's job taken away from him. Well what an influential man Pat thinks he is. He tells the great Woodford the people of Harbour Main vote as he says. Wouldn't that make a horse laugh? Mr. Kennedy moved that the House divide on the two men and Mr. Nicholas Lacour was elected foreman by a large majority, only ten heeled voters for Doyle.

Woodford's heeleders felt themselves small but they felt no smaller than Woodford himself who brought Mr. Whiteway to address the meeting. He evidently saw the strength of the tide, realized he would soon be on the shoals and did not speak.

Well, Mr. Editor, Woodford received a waking up, as he thought Harbour Main was solid for him. He listened too much to his few chosen heeleders who he thought controlled the votes of the people. They have enjoyed for the past four years the various Road and Marine Grants but very little work is done in return for the money. Our roads and bridges are in a disgraceful condition, so much so that people have become disgusted and determined to place the public monies in competent hands to spend as was evidenced in the appointment of the foreman for the new block last Sunday. With Mr. Nicholas Lacour as foreman, the people have every confidence that the work will be done, the money judiciously spent, everyone get an equal share of the grant, the favored few will be put on the same level as any ordinary voter and that we will have as fine a coastal wharf as there is in the country. It must be very disagreeable to Mr. Woodford to have favour appointed foreman, as this is the man that Woodford would not give any recompense for the horse that he had killed on the track a few years ago although others got what they asked.

Woodford and his friend, Whiteway, left immediately after the meeting not having got a solitary cheer. He evidently realizes that his day is done when the people get the chance as they turned down his friends at the public meeting.

Yours truly,
 VOTER.

Assembly Dissolved.

Yesterday the Governor dissolved the Assembly which was called together for the first time on May 31st, 1909. The men who took their seats four years ago are no longer members and the Assembly itself has gone out of existence by the exercise of the Governor's prerogative by the advice of his Ministers. Had the exercise of this prerogative been delayed until the end of this week, the Assembly would have expired by force of the law provided for such a contingency, which runs as follows:

"The House of Assembly shall continue . . . for four years from the day on which they shall by proclamation be appointed to meet, unless sooner dissolved, and no longer."

No House of Assembly can be called together, for there is no Assembly to call together, nor can there be until after the General Election, which will take place in November. For at least six months, no matter what emergency may arise this state of jeopardy must exist. The Government has run into this perilous state with its eyes open, for warning after warning was given of the risk the course would entail. Indeed, during the Session of 1912 a large number of the electors prayed the Government to go to the polls in the fall of 1912, but that course endangered the profits and perquisites and advantages which the members of the People's Party were enjoying, and Sir Edward determined to hold on to the Government for another twelve months at any cost.

Now that the Assembly is dissolved, the outstanding feature of the Administration which has been kept in existence by the Morris majority in it attracts attention. That feature is undoubtedly the financial bungling of the Administration. That bungling has shown itself in the piling up of an addition to the Public Debt of some Seven Million, in the bungling as to the cost of branch railway construction, in the bungling promise to pay the contractors in gold, and in the borrowing of money in instalments in a market growing more and more tight.

The next feature of the Administration has been the givings out in the way of timber grants, jobs, patronage and a general administration of financial affairs on a most extravagant basis. The waste in connection with the Morris Agricultural policy has been colossal. It has resulted in a mere system of providing jobs and reckless givings-out, which has disgusted the whole community. The grants of timber lands to members of the party and the relatives of members and ministers have been so barefaced that they have met with general condemnation of the community. Altogether the performance of the Administration has been sorry spectacles and little regret will be felt that an end has come to the Assembly which supported the Administration which made these things possible.

Dissatisfied.

The city councilmen will shortly send a deputation with Hon. M. P. Gibbs to the City Council to confer with the latter body for a modification of certain rules passed last year. These have to do with the lighting of lamps at sunset, which they claim is unnecessary in the summer season, the wearing of badges on their hats and the painting of numbers on their lamps.

The Goosebone Prophet

The goosebone seer, he fills a sphere of usefulness and honor; he works with v i m; compared with him the scientist's a goner. He scans the trees and hump-b e e s, he marks the light a n d shadow; and—hear him speak!—he says: "Next week is fair and clear the air, though hot as southern Tophet; no storm in sight, but that's all right! Don't blame the goosebone prophet! He sees the squirr'l, its tail acurl, for winter rations straining; 'that sign ne'er fails,' the prophet wails. 'To-morrow 'twill be raining.' To-morrow brings no rain, by jings! It's dry as dust or tinder; no clouds are seen and all things green are roasted to a cinder. 'The government aint worth a cent,' he says, 'at prophesying; them 'ficial chaps, they go by maps, doodads, and flags a-lying. I'd meet them all, both great and small, and beat them all together; a man must read each twig and weed if he'd fore-tell the weather.' But Uncle Sam still keeps his ham cyclone and rain disburser; the goosebone seer full well may seer—he can't be any wors'er.

Gentlemen.—In January last, Francis Leclaire, one of the men employed by me, working in the lumber woods, had a tree fall on him, crushing him fearfully. He was, when found, placed on a sled and taken home, where grave fears were entertained for his recovery, his hips being badly bruised and his body turned black from his ribs to his feet. We used MINARD'S LINIMENT on him freely to deaden the pain and with the use of three bottles he was completely cured and able to return to his work.

The Western Act

Rossley's theatre was crowded at both shows last night. The Lorraine Buchanan Company have made good, and their work is enjoyed by rich and poor alike. A good clean performance given by as good performers as could be had in New York or elsewhere. They have several fine acts. Billy Devan is a great favorite, his beautiful voice has charmed all who have heard him. To-night is the last chance of seeing "An Arizona Courtship." On Thursday there is an entire new act. Mr. Chester Cook, though suffering from a severe cold, manages to get some good hearty laughs out of the audience in his funny and original jokes. Harry Ingram was well received and had to respond to two encores. It is a splendid show and all should see the "Arizona Courtship."

Not Got the People in the Hollow of Their Hands.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—For some months past the question of extending the public wharf at Harbor Main has been engaging the attention of the public and aroused quite an amount of dissatisfaction. Some weeks ago a public meeting was convened and a commissioner appointed to provide timber for the construction work thereof. Neither the Commissioner nor his henchman foreman satisfied the public. Another public meeting was convened to dismiss the Commissioner and his henchman and to appoint a new foreman. A week ago the meeting was held at which Mr. Woodford, Minister of Public Works, was requested to be present, and was present, having hastened from the city by auto for the purpose, just as the congregation was dispersing from the church. The Tory chiefs held a council standing on the road, and decided to convene a meeting forthwith in the Court Hall. The people assembled in the hall and after the preliminaries were gone through of electing Messrs. James Woodford, Chairman, and P. D. Hannan, Secretary, both being proposed and seconded by Mr. P. F. Brick, the Deputy Mayor of Harbor Main, member Woodford explained the object of his mission to meet the people after mass and to discuss the pros and cons re the building of the public wharf and, intimidated his desire to have a local man for foreman and him to be the choice of the people, and further he wanted it to be distinctly understood he had no friends nor favorites in Harbor Main. Finally the stage for the appointment for the foreman came, and Mr. P. F. Brick again proposed Mr. Stephen Doyle (brother-in-law of the Mayor, Mr. Patrick E. Woodford and Chairman James). Some people present disliked the manner in which Mr. Brick, the Deputy Mayor, was trying to run the whole show in the interest of his boss the Mayor, and his henchman, and Mr. William Parsley proposed Mr. Nicholas Lacour to be appointed foreman. The proposition to elect Mr. Lacour rattled Brick, who became mad and looked wild and he insisted on the chairman putting his motion to the House. Mr. Parsley urged that his appointment be put first, which was done in the "aye" and "nay" order, to which he objected and asked for a division of the House. At this stage of the proceedings, Mr. Brick lost his head altogether, waxed wrathy and denounced Mr. Parsley, acquainting the meeting he came there to obstruct the business and threatening him with expulsion. In order to prevent any further friction or down-pour of hot air from Mr. Brick, Mr. P. Kennedy, merchant, a shrewd and successful one too, who saw into "Paddy's" bluff and bluster, doubtless seized the strategic moment and moved that the House divide on the two men. It was done, with the result that Mr. Lacour was elected almost unanimously. None voted for Mr. Brick's motion except the Mayor and their Tory henchmen and heelers. Mr. Parsley's motion was carried for Lacour's appointment amidst cheers which shook the rafters of the costly Palace of Justice. In the struggle for supremacy, Mr. Brick received a barbed wound, became sorely vexed being baffled in his little game for once. Even Minister Woodford could see without any help of an oculist that his glory is fast fading in his stronghold Harbor Main, and showed evident signs of distress and disappointment at the weakness of his chief supporters here. However there is one very prominent feature of the whole proceedings which he doubtless realizes and regrets, that Mayor Patrick E. Woodford and Deputy Mayor Patrick E. Brick have not got the people of Harbor Main in the hollow of their hands. It must have struck Mr. Woodford very forcibly when the meeting went wild with delightful enthusiasm over his General Mr. Brick's defeat. It must be remembered that the Mayor kept behind the scenes this time allowing his Deputy to do the work of the gladiator and pull the wires for him, but it was evident that all was "cut and dried" to have Mr. Doyle appointed, but the people were up to the dodge and resented the dictates of the fallen gladiator. Meetings heretofore were all one-sided. The Deputy had all his own way, notably in the agricultural meetings and if any person outside the Tory circle of heelers would raise his voice he was immediately hounded down, especially Liberals, and called ugly names, so much so that the attendance at meetings has dwindled down to a few dozers, who keep on the face and the cod—so-called by the ex-President. The Society is in existence four years nearly and no agricultural progress or improvements to justify its existence except

It's failure is obvious, and the Secretary of the Board should be called upon to give publicity to the accounts and show how and where the annual grant of $200 is distributed. How is it that we have had no report from the Harbor Main agricultural society this last year? The Deputy Mayor threatened the expulsion of all and sundry that dare to give trouble or obstruct his little game and dodge to run the show. He should use the big boot nearer home and eject himself on times and the ring of satellites who infest the postal telegraph office when the public mails and telegrams are expected to be secretly and socrally handled. What confidence can the public have in such an office so kept, and what greater nuisance can the public suffer than to have their postal and telegraph office infested by people who have a right whatever there, and to be compelled to transact their private business in the hearing of those who loiter around the public offices to sneak in to people's private affairs? I am informed that the Deputy Mayor says he will attend no more meetings where there are so many "jackasses" present, and I assume that it is only when there is a select society he will in future attend. This course will cause regret if decided upon, as there will be a serious loss of amusement at the meetings if there is nothing to kick up their hind-ers at. The truth is, Mr. Editor, that the Deputy Mayor got hit on the raw and is feeling a bit sore. He didn't expect to get such a set back, and that in the presence of Minister Woodford, who looks on "Paddy" as Keeper-custodian of the votes of Harbor Main. Woodford himself met a cool reception. No one greeted him clear of his Tory heelers, and he did not receive a cheer from the meeting while the House rung with cheers for the popular and capable Nicholas Lacour, the people's choice, for whom none better could be selected to do the construction work of the wharf and the Commissioner's too, if he were entrusted. But the Tory policy isn't to trust the outport man with the Commissioner's of big works but to send out some one of the hosts of well-paid city inspectors instead, who thus take the money from some worthy outport man. Surely the time is at hand when competent and prominent outport men should realize how they are now being shunted from the Commissioner's ships.

Yours gratefully,
ONE WHO WAS PRESENT.

Makes Hair Grow.

All drug stores sell SALVIA, and it is guaranteed to grow hair or money back. The time to take care of your hair is when you have hair to take care of. If your hair is getting thin, gradually falling out, it cannot be long before the spot disappears. The greatest remedy to stop the hair from falling is SALVIA, the Great American Hair Grower, first discovered in England. SALVIA furnishes nourishment to the hair root and acts so quickly that people are amazed. And remember, it destroys the Dandruff germ, the little pest that erases the life that should go to the hair from the roots. SALVIA is sold by first-class drug stores under a positive guarantee to cure Dandruff, top falling hair and itching in ten days, or money back. A large bottle costs 50c. At a prominent dinner last night urgent, calm, patient efforts were suggested for a friendly solution of the difficulty with the United States. The speeches were marked especially by the abstention from any misleading or inflammatory utterances, and it was admitted the American Government was confronted with a difficult problem to solve. The speakers included Baron Shintawa, President of the American-Japanese Association and President of the Tokio Chamber of Commerce, Baron Shimada and Baron Jokichi. Baron Shimada indicated that racial prejudice was one of the causes of the present trouble, and that there was an agitation against Japanese in Canada, Australia, and other places as well as in California. Should the Japanese fall in the struggle against the attitude of the white race, it would adversely affect the future of all Asiatics. He added that the strong reason why the Japanese were disliked was because they were regarded as an aggressive nation.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Now that the C. H. E. Exams are being adversely criticized perhaps a few words from an humble teacher surpassed twenty six years experience may not be amiss. Last year in "Notes from the Ancient Capital," relative to the laying of the corner stone of the New Boys' Academy by His Grace Archbishop Howley and under the non-de plume of Castle Hill I wrote the following to your paper: "While listening to the eloquent discourse of His Grace on education my thoughts reverted to the very able speech of the Hon. M. P. Gibbs delivered in the Legislative Council last winter on the Council of Higher Education and the merits of religious education in school. I think that speech is one that every right thinking and God-fearing man should feel proud of. It should be printed in pamphlet form, and distributed broadcast throughout the country. I expected something similar from the able and learned editor of the Chronicle, but was sadly disappointed. I appreciated Mr. Gibbs' remarks re the Council of Higher Education. I have had some experience of the Council of Higher Education, and must say I am a great believer in it. Since its inception there has been a great educational awakening, so much so that the remotest settlement in the land has given its influence. Previous to the establishment of the C.H.E. the irregularity of attendance had a harmful effect upon outport schools, but the Council of Higher Education has been an important factor in eliminating this great evil. The C.H.E. exams create a great rivalry among the children, among the teachers in each parish, and it has a great effect on the parents in the way of sending their children regularly to school. It also exercises a wholesome influence among the different denominations for first place in the different grades. There is a certain amount of pride in the make-up of everyone of us, and consequently children, parents, and teachers will go to all in their power to make a good showing at the exams. Abolish the Council of Higher Education and you eliminate all these actors which help in a great measure to raise the standard of education in our schools. This system of education shifts the brains of the community and gives the poor man's child a chance. I have known people to be opposed to the C.H.E. because the poor class of children who had no ability surpassed those higher in the local grade scale at the exams. The C.H.E. may not be perfect, and no doubt it can be improved upon, but here is no denying the fact that it has done a great deal of good and has justified its existence. It is easy to say, but requires men of great talent to build up. In my humble opinion the abolition of any of the grades of the C.H.E. would be a step in the wrong direction, and would be apt to lead to that educational apathy characteristic of former years." Since writing the above I have been more and more convinced that the C.H.E. has been instrumental in giving an onward impulse to education in the outports, for the schools which entered candidates for the exams, maintained a higher standard of efficiency than those that did not. To confirm this fact, I need only divert to the adjoining parish of Argentea, whose former pastor discontinued the C.H.E. exams, for a number of years and whose schools regressed to such an extent that they were the worst under Mr. Burke's superintendance, but since the present incumbent, Fr. Ashley, resumed the exams, the schools in that parish have greatly improved, and two or three of them are second to none under Mr. Burke's supervision. As a proof of the effect of the C.H.E. exams on the regularity of attendance I may cite the case of the Superior School at Dunville, whose average attendance previous to Christmas was about twenty-five, but owing to a change of teachers the school was not re-opened till some time in February, and then it was deemed advisable not to enter any candidates for the exams, and the result is that the average attendance has dwindled down to fifteen or sixteen. The Hon. J. A. Robinson says that Mr. Clarke shows in one brief paragraph the canker worm at the system's core, the sacrifice of the mediocre, and a few precocious or brilliant children, and I am sure no teacher would be so callous and so devoid of all sense of justice and fair play as to devote all his time to the brilliant scholars and leave all the rest in their ignorance. If this canker worm really exists in our system I believe it is a very small germ that would require the aid of a very powerful microscope to discern, and which could be very easily eradicated by applying a little serum to the noxious animalcule in the shape of a reprimand from the boards and a protest from the parents whose children suffer.

I would like to ask the Superintendent of Education for the Methodist schools if the efficiency of the Carboner school, over which the learned editor of the Daily News presided for many years, has been impaired by the present system? I am inclined to think the educational status of that school is as good to-day as when the able and popular editor of the Daily News moulded the young idea. In conclusion, I may state that I have no bias for defending the C.H.E. I believe in it because it gives the poor man's child a chance, it stimulates emulation, it enables the superintendents of education to select the best material for pupil teachers who were formerly the nominees of people with a pull or the favorites of the Chairman of the Board of Education, and enables every boy and girl to compete for prizes and scholarships, even the Rhodes' Scholarship which has already been won by two poor outport boys, who were it not for the C.H.E. might have never come to the front, like the flower which the poet sings of:
"Born to blush unseen
And waste its sweetness on the desert air."
Yours truly,
W. J. POWER,

Olive Lost Off Twillingate.

At 12.30 to-day information reached the city that the schr. Olive, owned by Messrs. Goodridge & Sons, was lost off Twillingate this morning by colliding with ice. Nothing further of the happening was received. The Olive was chiefly used as a coaster by the owners, although she used to make an occasional trip to foreign ports. She left here five weeks ago with a freight for Nipper's Harbor. It is thought she got caught in the heavy ice jam reported by Capt. Keane of the s.s. Prospero off Twillingate, was stove in and sunk. The Olive was 87 tons nett, was an old vessel but was rebuilt 3 years ago.

Bad Cod and Salmon Fishery.

People who arrived here from the West Coast recently say that the fishing from Pashthrough down to Placentia up to date has been very poor both for bankers and shore men. Where last year up to date they had reported for about 10,000 qtls. fish, this season to date hardly a tenth of that figure is estimated. From Hermitage west last year big shipments of fresh salmon were made to the Provinces, but this year up to date this department of the fishery along the coast has been a blank.

How Editors Get Rich.

After a great deal of worry and study we have at last figured out how so many country editors get rich. Here is the secret of their success. There is a child born in the neighborhood. The attending physician gets $10. The editor, gives the loud-lunged youngster a great send-off and gets $0. It is christened, and the minister gets $5, and the editor gets $00. It grows and marries. The editor publishes another long-winded flowery article and tells a dozen different lies about "the beautiful and accomplished bride." The minister gets $10 and a piece of cake. The editor gets $000 and a request to carry the groom's subscription account another year. In the course of time she dies.

An Absent-minded Inventor.

Several new stories have just been told about the famous inventor whom Canadian and Americans both like to claim, though he is really a Scotchman, namely Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, who now makes his home in that beautiful city of Washington. It appears that Dr. Bell hates the sight of his great invention, the telephone, so much that he does not make use of it unless he has never appreciated its usefulness. Dr. Bell tells a child began to cough in the middle of the night, and the family feared the cough sounded croupy. He went to the telephone and asked a medical man to come over at once. It was an inconvenient hour, and the medical man desired some reason. When he heard what it was he asked why the child could not be brought to the phone. The inventor was immediately struck by the idea that it was quite possible, so the doctor decided over the telephone that the child did not have croup.

New Fish Preserving Process.

Colonel Bianchi, of the Imperial Russian Army, accompanied by Professor Leonidas Spassky, His Excellency Vladimir Ivanovitch Kovalevsky, and Professor Danilevsky, member of the Russian State Council, paid a visit to Hull this week with the object of giving a practical demonstration before a representative gathering of shipowners and traders of a scientific process of fish preservation. This process is the invention of Professor Danilevsky.

Warning To Mariners.

The demonstrations were made in the large room of the Institute at St. Andrew's Dock, where J. McEneaney, President of the Hull Fishing Vessel Owners' Association, presided over a very large gathering of owners and merchants. Three processes of fish preservation were described in detail by Professor Danilevsky, who claimed that by their use vessels might be in the White Sea for a month or six weeks and yet bring their fish to market in an absolutely fresh condition.

Warning To Mariners.

The ingredients used were neither drugs nor antiseptics, but a food which was used in everyday life. All that had to be done was to immerse the fish in the solutions, and all that was needed was a moderate cool temperature. Fish he claimed, might be preserved for months, and by one process it could be kept in shop or market uncovered for a considerable time. Quantities of fish were then placed in tubs and will remain undisturbed in the solution for about three weeks on the premises of the St. Andrew's Club. At the end of that time the Professor and his colleagues will return to Hull and the result of the experiment will be announced. From The Fish Trade Gazette of London.

Why Duffy's Malt Gives Health and Strength.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has been for fifty years one of the greatest restoratives known to medical science

Why? Because it contains in a form most available for the human system, the wonderful strength-giving power of nature's greatest food—grain—combined with unusual tonic properties obtained through the process of malting and distilling which has been exclusively used by us since the beginning.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

One of the results of this process is to obtain a whiskey of such purity and quality as complies with the test requirements of the United States Pharmacopoeia.

As the pharmacopoeial standard does not require that the grain be all malted, as found in Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, it will be seen our process gives a whiskey superior to the requirements of the United States Standard.

Another result is to secure that wonderful palatability and delicacy of flavor for which Duffy's has always been celebrated and which renders it acceptable to stomachs which will not even retain other whiskeys or the most easily digested food.

For the aged, for those who are "run down," for persons suffering from stomach disorders, nervousness or similar ailments who need a real builder-up of the whole system, nothing is so certain to bring quick and positive results as Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.

Placentia Bay Improvements.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I notice in your issue of the 17th inst a communication signed "Cooper's Cove" in reference to the bridging of Placentia Gut, and calling on the people of Placentia and Marquis to assert their rights in re Railway extension to their end of the District. Passing over the mighty enterprise of bridging the Gut, I will with your permission make a few remarks on existing conditions in Placentia Bay, generally and particularly in regard to the idea suggested by the remark of your correspondent as to a fast daily steamer from Placentia throughout the Bay, etc.

We, of the Bay, whilst reserving judgment as to the genuineness of the sentiments expressed by "Cooper's Cove" are keenly alive to the difficulties and drawbacks which exist in our Bay under present arrangements. We are far behind our neighbours of other places in the matter of steam communication, and one steamer—the S. S. Argyle—is insufficient to meet the increased freight and passenger accommodation caused by the augmented trade and commerce which has now assumed extensive proportions. Complaints are many from various settlements of the inconveniences which are in evidence in the transmission of correspondence and transportation facilities and it is a matter for regret, and I voice the feelings of the people of the different centres of the Bay whom I have interviewed on this matter, when I say that all are unanimous in a demand for a strict enquiry with the object of securing a betterment of existing unsuitable conditions.

So much are our commercial and other influential men in earnest in this matter that it is being under consideration by prominent citizens to adopt means looking forward to the formation of a company for the subsidizing of another steamer (in connection with S. S. Argyle) in an effort to ameliorate present grievances. A petition was presented to the House of Assembly the past season signed by some one thousand people asking for Railway connection, going to show the deep interest taken by the people in this important matter.

People are realizing how unfairly they have been dealt with in the past. Take the important settlement of Long Harbour, for instance. This place may be said to be in its primitive condition and a stranger to the elementary necessities of civilization: no steam communication, scarcely a public road, no humanizing agency of refinements or social usages to lighten the surroundings of their isolated position. The same may be said of other centres. That such backwardness exists is inconceivable and one can only wonder how such things can be to-day in this age of progress and improvement.

The only possible solution for such neglect of such an important District is that owing to the isolated position of our people, situated as they are, in many cases, on the numerous islands which dot the Bay. United action on the part of the people is almost impossible.

It is now confidently looked forward to by all that the time has arrived when in conjunction with our fellow countrymen throughout the land that our wants will be attended to and that the Premier will see to it.

That this part of the Bay will be given that meed of Justice and Right which as a prominent portion of the extensive District of Placentia and St. Mary's, its importance, demands, and we will look forward in confident anticipation to see at an early date the presence of a sister ship accompanying the present one in the performance of "daily" trips around this hitherto neglected portion of the Island.

Our Western neighbours can boast of four mail and passenger boats, and we learn from information to hand that the presence of three of them laying in port together at a time is not uncommon.

No need for me to dwell on the untold advantages to be derived by the people of the Bay generally in the event of Railway connection with Jersey Side or Dunville, as "Cooper's Cove" suggests.

We are not aware of how our friends of Point Moll, Marquis and Pond Head feel on the matter, but speaking for the Bay generally I am in a position to state that the people of this Bay, notably Harbor, Buffett, Haystack, Ragged Islands, Red Island and other localities hope to see their requests attended to and that they will have no reason to complain in the future.

Progressiveness is now the order of the day. That the people of these portions of the Bay (places noted above) are in earnest in the matter of increased steam communication and Railway connection has been made manifest by the public meetings held the past winter, and they wish it to be understood and it is their desire that considerations of a purely political character will not be allowed to divert attention from the all important question under consideration.

Our thanks are due and are herewith tendered to "Cooper's Cove" for his gratuitous advice to the taxpayers of Point Moll, Marquis and down to Pond Head, but regret that he forgot to include the people of the other prominent settlements of the Bay (equally interested) whose names appear on the petitions presented to the House of Assembly in the session just closed, and who as co-workers with the people of the above named settlements are unanimous in their desire to obtain for the Bay the privileges sought for, viz., Railway extension and increased steam communication and transportation facilities.

Whilst recognizing the rights of the good people of Placentia and expressing the hope that their aspirations re Bridge may become an accomplished fact, we are fully aware of the many sarcastic remarks and satirical utterances of certain self-opinionated and know-all individuals who are criticising and using every effort to throw cold water on the project under consideration, but would inform such that in our judgment the interests of even the "common people" should receive attention.

Though the Bridging of the Gut is feasible and amongst the possibilities of the future, our claims must appear to the unbiased and impartial observer, of execution, cost much less financially and add to the comforts, convenience, and general interests of the many less favoured in the past than their neighbours of Yc Ancient Capital.

Anyway, we think it would be wise on the part of our friends to give the Bridge idea a rest for the present. It has been now for many years before the public and "bobs up serenely" on the eve of each succeeding General Election.

Thanking you, in anticipation, Mr. Editor, for space accorded.

Yours truly,
VOX POPULI.

Exhausted Nerves Sleepless Nights

Continually Grew Worse Until Or. Chase's Nerve Food Restored Vigor and Strength.

Mrs. Campbell.

What misery to lie awake nights and think of all sorts of things without being able to get the rest and sleep which is necessary to restore the nervous energy wasted in the tasks of the day.

This symptom of sleeplessness is one of the surest indications of an exhausted nervous system. You must have sleep or a breakdown is certain. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food feeds the feeble, waned nerves back to health and strength. In a few days you obtain the natural, restful sleep which helps so materially in restoring vitality to the nerves and strength to the whole body.

Mrs. Sarah Campbell, 108 Alma street, St. Thomas, Ont., writes: "For months I was so bothered with nervousness that I could not sleep nights. There were other symptoms of exhausted nerves, but none caused so much misery, and I found myself continually getting worse. I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and it was not long before I noticed great improvement in my health. It built up the nervous system wonderfully, strengthened the nerves and enabled me to rest and sleep well."

Loss of the Erna.

We take the following from "Shipping Illustrated," of May 17th:—

"The report of an inquiry held at Glasgow into the loss of the steamship Erna, has just been published. The vessel was not her last voyage since Feb. 28, 1912, on which date she passed Kildonan, in the course of a voyage from the Clyde to St. John's, N.F. The Erna, a steel screw steamer of 3,496 gross tons, was built at Greenock, in 1890, and was originally owned by the Stoomvaart Maatschappij Nederland, from whom she was purchased in September, 1911, by Messrs. Murray and Crawford, for the purpose of being converted into a sealer. The price paid was £14,500. The vessel was classed 100 A1 at Lloyd's, the date of her last survey being Feb. 24, 1912. Extensive alterations and repairs were carried out on the ship, and on Feb. 14, 1912, she was taken to her loading berth, where she shipped 2,440 tons of coal. On her last voyage she was commanded by Captain T. M. Linklater, and carried a crew of 28. Mr. R. A. Jones, the late chief officer, who left the ship for private reasons on the day she sailed from Glasgow, stated in his evidence that the crew were nearly all specially selected men, and highly skilled in the handling and management of boats. No fewer than 26 of the men belonged to St. John's, N.F. As passengers the Erna carried Mrs. Linklater, Master Linklater, Miss Oakes and Mr. Thomas of St. John's, N.F., and a boy, name unknown. Evidence was given in regard to the hurricane weather and high sea encountered in the North Atlantic by the Anchor Liner Columbia, early in March, 1911, at which time the Erna was making her last passage. The Inspector stipulated the following answers to the questions submitted on behalf of the Board of Trade: The cost of the vessel to her owners was £14,500. Her value, when she sailed on her last voyage was said to be £40,000. She was insured by her owners for £25,000 on hull and machinery; £2,000 on freight, and £5,000 on disbursements, a total of £32,000. Having regard to her age and other reasons, and to the weather she might encounter crossing the Atlantic, I am not satisfied that she was in good and seaworthy condition as regards hull. Her equipments were good and satisfactory. Her cargo was, according to the evidence, properly stowed and secured from shifting. She had more than the required freeboard, and was in good trim for the voyage to St. John's, N.F. The cause of the loss of the Erna must remain purely a matter of conjecture, but I am of opinion that she perished in the gale experienced by the steamship Columbia on March 6 and 7, 1912, and at no great distance from this ship's position."

Who Makes It Hard?

THE FISHERIES BEING RUINED BY MORRIS'S POLICY!

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—The fishermen's curse is ringing in the ears of Sir Edward Morris these days. Planters at present in the city outfitting for the fishery are giving open expression to their opinion of Statesman Morris, the borrowing Premier. His authorized organ, the Herald, in yesterday's issue, asks the vital question editorially, "who makes it hard" for the fisherman, and then goes on to state reasons why certain merchants on Water Street are curtailing their usual fishery supplies this spring. I am told one firm and to a lesser extent another, a guarantee is being demanded even from planters of independent means, who have always paid their accounts;

But Who Makes It Hard, that is the question. The answer may not appear plain to all at first sight; may we not follow Morris and the political pawns who constitute the so-called People's Party through their extravagant and shadowy political borrowings, with which to get two or three or five men, as the case may be, to prosecute the fishery successfully? It is Morris's evident intention to make it harder and more difficult this year than ever, for any enterprising young man to engage in the fishery business of his native country. The undeniable statement of Mr. Kent, made in the Assembly, at the last session, is that 7,000 men have forsaken the Labrador fishery alone within the past five years; and that 500 schooners have had to swing to their moorings for want of men to crew them since Morris got in power. The fact is that Morris at the present time dare not look the conditions his frenzied financing is surely bringing about in this colony, squarely in the face. He realizes that his railway policy must end disastrously; but he hopes for the present at least to hull the people into a false sense of security and grant him another lease of power in which to

"Finish His Work"

But Sir Edward yourself and colleagues have already sounded the lowest depths of political turpitude and the people are awake to the danger spots which lie in the course you are now driving the ship of state. Where are those fine young men to-day who have been told to go to the fisheries to take a "shot" at a sure thing in railway construction work at $150 per day? Many of them have left home and friends and are now found at Sydney. They will never again engage in the staple industry. Does Morris care? Nothing, so long as the long green comes his way fast enough. Another considerable per centage of them have moved farther along to the Canadian West and the U. S. A. The balance are scattered over five ranches of railway.

"Princes and lords may flourish and may fade; a breath can make them, as a breath can make them; our country's pride When once destroyed, can never be supplied."

We can understand encouraging men to settle at places where steady employment is available, such as Grand Falls, Bishop Falls and Bell Island; but we see nothing but permanent and disastrous consequences as the result of this "bubble" of prosperity we are told will result from bringing the end of the job for a few henchmen and heeled, but what of the common laborer? Oh! he must go back to the fishery. As a reward for his ransoming he will not find himself the possessor of a Morris chair in which to take it easy and enjoy a well earned rest; but rather can we picture him beginning the struggle anew, wearing a collar marked "you share of the burden of an eight million dollar debt for railway extension placed on you for all time by Sir Edward Morris and his Government 1909-13-14 to you forever."

The comfortable tactics of Sir Edward on his trip to Fogo District when he tried to end the intelligent voters there has caused great indignation all over the country. The people will insist on Sir Edward ending the right horse and when he talks of financial breakers ahead, let him remember, that the Government of which he is the first minister, by their extravagance and contractual obligations have forged the chain and fastened the millstone around the necks of the people of this Colony that will prove the real cause for any future financial panic this unfortunate island may be visited with. The battle for the new Freedom of Newfoundland will be waged this fall when Morris and his comrades must go down and out without a doubt.

Yours truly,

Noah Webster.

By H. L. RANN.

Seventy years ago to-day Noah Webster laid down the pen that had never been sullied by a misspelled word and passed peacefully into another climate, leaving behind him an unimpaired name and a book which is consulted by stenographers often than any other work of fiction.

Mr. Webster was born in West Hartford, Connecticut, in 1758, and graduated from Yale college long before the campus was dotted with bull-dog pipes and white flannel pants. He taught school, read law, ran a newspaper and engaged in other mental pursuits until 1807, when he decided to enter the field of literature. With that object in view he began the publication of a fascinating serial story entitled Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, a work which has never been successfully imitated by anybody except Henry James.

When Noah's book was first published it made a tremendous hit. It contained a large number of words which Noah invented himself and which never had occurred to anybody else. Noah was one of the best spellers we ever had in this country, and the walls of his bedroom were decorated with medals which he won at spelling matches. His book was published in great pocket form and weighed 22 pounds, uncrated. It became immensely popular, as it could be used to hold a door open or as a substitute for a piano stool. Many a girl has learned to play the reed organ by perching unseasily on Noah's book and pawing at the pedals with both feet.

Noah was no relation to the celebrated long distance orator, Daniel Webster, but if it hadn't been for Noah, Daniel would never have been heard of outside of his own ward. Daniel borrowed all of the long, hard words which he used in his orations from Noah's book, and whenever he wanted to use a Latin phrase he would take one that Noah had made up and put in his collection at the back of the book. This made it pretty soft for Daniel, and so far as we know he never gave Noah any credit for it, but went around for several years in borrowed plumage, using some of Noah's best words without using quotation marks.

King George As Host

HIS MAJESTY RECEIVES FOR A STATE DINNER

Guest Night at the Palace Sees a Host of Brilliant Scarlet and White Liveried Servants in Attendance—Precedence Governs the Order of Going in to Dinner and Everything Else at Buckingham.

The clock in the servant's hall at the Palace has boomed out the hour of eight, and some dozen servants resplendent in the bright scarlet and white of the royal livery, who have been talking in groups about the big fireplace, leave the room and go upstairs.

They are servants who are to be on special duty to-night at the Ambassador's Entrance and in the large apartment just behind it, ordinarily used as a waiting-room, but which to-night has been converted into a cloak room. It is a guest-night at the Palace, and all the corridors and state apartments are a blaze of light, and bright with the colour of the floral decorations.

Let us have a look at the great state dining-room, where two tables are laid out. The royal table is a round one including the King and Queen, who will sit opposite each other. The table space allowed for each guest is two and half feet exactly, and the space has been carefully measured with a rule by the chief table butler in the centre of the table.

In the centre of the table is a massive gold bowl reposing on a gold stand some six feet in diameter. Running round the stand are little bowls about an inch apart. Each of these as well as the big bowl, is filled with bright crimson and white carnations, and round the stand extending about six inches from it, is a circle of red and white roses.

The table is glitter with exquisite cut glass, each piece bearing a royal crown and all the appointments are gold.

The general table is separated from the royal table by about six feet and is a long one. It is laid for thirty-six guests. The floral decorations are crimson and white carnations and the appointments are silver.

The room is lighted by two immense, electrically fitted crystal chandeliers, each containing forty lights, and by eight bracket lights at each side of the apartment. The brackets are in gilt and each contains six lights.

At each place at the two tables is a card with the number and the name of the guest who was to occupy it. A plan of the tables was sent a week ago to each guest, with his or her place and number indicated on it, so that everyone will know his place and with the assistance of the equiers and other members of the household they will readily find it when the party enters the room.

The guests will assemble before dinner in the blue drawing room, a beautiful apartment, the arrangement of which was the special care of Queen Mary, when Her Majesty came to Buckingham Palace.

Beyond this are the white drawing room and saloon—two very spacious rooms—and a smaller room—the red drawing room—and the staircases and halls are lined with the royal servants, and all is now in readiness for the reception of their Majesties' guests.

The dinner is for 845, and the guests began to arrive a little after 8.30.

The first arrival is the Russian Ambassador and his wife, followed almost immediately by the Prime Minister and Mrs. Asquith then comes another Cabinet Minister with Mr. Balfour. The guests are received in the blue drawing-room by half a dozen members of the household and two equeries are busy "pairing" the guests as they arrive in the order in which they will follow the King and Queen in to dinner. This is done in accordance with the strictest rule of precedence, and has been carefully planned by the master of the ceremonies.

The guests are marshalled at either side of the room to receive their Majesties, who will enter the apartment within a minute before dinner.

Then King and Queen will enter the apartment through the white drawing-room, and walk down the double line of guests, and then pass straight on to the state drawing-room followed by their guests.

The King and Queen with Prince Arthur of Connaught and half a dozen other royalties are assembled in the "Queen's" drawing-room. The Princess Mary and two of her brothers who will not, of course, appear at the entertainment—are romping about the room, and the princess causes some amusement by imitating with rather exaggerated staccato the walk of a certain foreign royalty whom Her Royal Highness stoutly declares she will make her model of deportment when she is old enough to appear at court functions.

The King moves towards the equery as he enters the room, makes some enquiries and says:

"Yes, I think that will do, Sir Charles. We will now go down."

The equery hastens down stairs to the blue drawing-room and announces "Their Majesties"; the hum of conversation, of dresses, and the royal party headed by their Majesties, enter the apartment, and walk past their guests who receive their host and hostess with bows and curtseys; and then the whole of the brilliant assemblage follow the royal party to the dining-room. The dinner is a long one and a triumph in culinary art. There were twenty dishes on the gold painted menu-card opposite each guest, which have, of course, been prepared by the celebrated royal chef, M. Gedarf.

them. Is anything known of the after history of these trees? Is the tract still administered? I ask re proximately, or as a prospective judicial factor (says a correspondent in the Scotsman) but from interest in a charming story, out of pure curiosity, and then the whole of the brilliant assemblage follow the royal party to the dining-room. The dinner is a long one and a triumph in culinary art. There were twenty dishes on the gold painted menu-card opposite each guest, which have, of course, been prepared by the celebrated royal chef, M. Gedarf.

Instant Postum

Is in thousands of homes where health is restored.

Former tea and coffee users who have felt the pinch of indigestion, headache, heart disturbance, nervous irritation, etc., have written by the score, telling of remarkable benefits following the change from tea and coffee to Instant Postum.

A level teaspoonful in an ordinary cup of hot water dissolves instantly and makes it right for most persons.

A big cup requires more and some people who like strong things put in a heaping spoonful and temper it with a large supply of cream.

Experiment until you know the amount that pleases your palate and have it served that way in the future.

"Thanks for the sample of Instant Postum sent me. I had been drinking coffee for a long time and thought it would be difficult to give it up, but I was mistaken.

"While I was drinking coffee I always felt exhausted and I weighed but 112 lbs. After using Instant Postum I soon recovered and now am as healthy as any person can be. I now weigh 120 lbs. and am steadily gaining in weight." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Postum comes in two forms.

Regular (must be boiled).

Instant Postum doesn't require boiling, but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in a cup of hot water.

Both kinds are sold by grocers everywhere.

Will He Ever Get It?

"Well," said Farmer Brown to the artist, how much will'ee paint my farm with me standing at the door for?"

"Ob five guineas," said the artist.

"Done," said the farmer. "Come to-morrow."

In due course the painting was finished. But alas! the careless artist quite forgot to paint in the worthy farmer on the picture of his farm.

"Yes, I like it," said the farmer, "But where's me, lad—where's me?"

The error he had made flashed across the artist's mind, but he tried to pass it off with a joke.

"Oh," he said, "you have gone inside to get my five guineas!"

"Oh, have I?" said the old fellow evidently greatly. "Praps I'll be comin' out soon and if I do I'll pay you; in the meantime we'll hang it up and wait."

PIT INTO CAPE PROBLE.—Borwick's barque Dunro, due here from Barbados with a cargo of molasses, put into Cape Broyle two days ago. She has been evidently detained by adverse weather and is awaiting a favorable chance to reach port. She should put in an appearance this evening.

To-night the President and Executive of the L.S.P.U. will meet at their hall to form a boys' branch of the Union and they hope that all the boys in the city who are at work on wharves or at any kind of manual labor will be present. In a conversation with President J. McGrath, which the Telegram had yesterday afternoon that gentleman said that the object of the formation of such a union was to improve the boys physically, morally and intellectually. In the first place it is hoped to impress the authorities with the necessity of making laws to prohibit boys of immature years from engaging in any kind of hard labor and the age to which such prohibition would apply would be 15 years and under. The idea is also to ensure that boys over that age and at work on wharves and other places a decent living wage, and to obviate labor of a character beyond their physical powers. Mr. McGrath says that the L.S.P.U. has a large hall, portions of which are unused and it is the intention if possible to start a night school for boys during the long fall and winter months so that they can at least receive a rudimentary education. Many working boys have already expressed their willingness to join and it is expected a large number will be present to-night.

Methodist S.S. Institute

The Meth. S. S. workers of this city purpose having a S. S. Institute in the basement of Gower St. Church on Wednesday next, June 4th. The event is unique in Meth. S. S. history here, nothing of the kind so far as we know ever having been attempted in the city before. The Institute is a miniature one-day convention, with less speaking and more discussion than is usual at a regular convention. Workers from the four Meth. Sunday Schools are the accredited delegates but the Institute will be open to any friends interested in Sunday School work in the city. The plan is to hold three sessions: from 10 to 12.30; from 2.30 to 5.30, and from 8 to 9.30. Papers from active S. S. workers in the city will be read, and discussions covering all the various phases of S. S. work will take place. Rev. T. B. Darby, S. S. Secretary of the Carbonear District, has kindly consented to be present, and give us the benefit of his experience. An interesting feature will be a Round Table conference to take place at 4 p.m., while the platform meeting at night will be one of more than ordinary interest. It is hoped that a great rally of S. S. workers and others interested, will arrive to make this a day long to be remembered. The Sunday School is the institution of the modern church, and nothing that concerns its efficiency can lightly be dismissed.—Com.

Trouble at Trepassey.

We learn from people who arrived from Trepassey within the past couple of days, that the people there have kicked and kicked hard against the track running over the beach without compensation being given them by arbitration or otherwise. The people claim the beach as their property and turned out en masse one day last week refusing to allow the rails to be laid over it until some settlement had been made with them. We also hear that shortly the Premier and Mr. Devereaux will proceed to Trepassey to try and adjust matters.

N.E. Gale at Trinity.

Within the past four or five days a violent north east gale was experienced. The storm began on Friday last and abated yesterday. In consequence no fishing was done as boats were unable to get on the grounds owing to the heavy sea raging. While the gale lasted the weather was intensely cold. The fishery is poor at present. The scarcity of bait is the cause.

Bank Fishery Poor.

A report from Burin to the Board of Trade, says that only one banker the Ada D. Bishop has arrived. The prospects for the codfishery along the shore are very poor, there being no bait supply. The total catch to date is 2,850 quintals, 2,100 of which were caught in the early spring on the Western Shore by four bankers. No dories or skiffs are now fishing.

Sailing of Digby.

The following passengers are booked to take passage on the Furness Liner Digby, which is due to-night from Halifax and sails at 10 a.m. on Thursday for Liverpool:—Mrs. Transfield, Miss Duncan, W. G. Harvey and wife, Misses Harvey (2), Miss Transfield, Rev. S. and Mrs. Snowden, Mr. Creighton, Mrs. Seyward and child and S. Willis.

End of Strike.

The Presidents of the different Unions met last night and discussed the outstanding dispute between the girls of Parker & Moore's Factory who came out on strike and those who did not. After a lengthy debate the dispute was amicably settled and when the factory, which was damaged by fire, resumes operations, each employee will go back to the work in which they were formerly engaged.

Trying For Griquet.

Last night the accompanying message was received from the s.s. Prospero at Conche:—
"Large body of ice from Horse Island all along the coast, but all ports. Prospero halted by flags flying and guns firing at every port; tedious getting along, but so far everything O.K. Will try and reach Griquet."

City of Sydney From Montreal.

The s.s. City of Sydney, Captain McDonald, seven days from Montreal, via Gulf ports, reached port at nine o'clock this morning. The ship called at Charlottetown, Summerside and Sydney. From the latter port the run was made in thirty-four hours. She brought a full freight and the following passengers in saloon: Mr. and Mrs. Knight, Messrs. McDougall, McDonald, E. Klesley, Wheeler, Holt and Glasgow and three in steerage.

Home's Report.

The S. S. Home, Capt. Harbin, arrived at Lewisport at 4.50 p.m. yesterday. Her report is as follows:—
"Made every port south to Lewisport, but could not get beyond Stag Island; bay still blocked with ice; impossible to get north."

Here and There

SAILS SATURDAY.—The s.s. Fokota, which goes on the dry dock tomorrow, will get her propeller blades fixed and will sail south Saturday.

Mr. McDougall, Asst. Manager of the Dominion Iron and Steel Company, at Wabana, was a passenger from Montreal by the s.s. City of Sydney, to-day.

FINISHES LANDING.—The s.s. Glenby finishes unloading her salt cargo this afternoon. She will tonight for Cape Torres to load deal for Bristol.

NEW FOX FARM.—A new fox farm is being started by two Nova Scotians who have purchased a site on the South Side of Carbonear. They have already commenced the building.

SCRRS. ICEBOUND.—A number of vessels have been detained at Shoe Cove. They are unable to get north owing to the ice blockade at Cape John.

BANKER OFF.—The schtr. Gertrude, with 500 quintals of fish on board, taken on her last trip, sailed yesterday for the Grand Banks. She baited at Salmonier.

VISITING BRANCH.—Mr. H. D. Reid, in the private car Terra Nova, arrived here at 7 p.m. yesterday. Mr. Reid was out along the Heart's Content Branch inspecting the line.

FIRST FRESH WATER SALMON.—The first salmon to be taken from inland waters was captured yesterday at South Branch. There were two fish, which weighed 8 and 10 lbs.

BUYING MORE COD.—Another large American schooner arrived at Rose Blanche, Monday past, and is purchasing a cargo of salt bulk fish. She is owned by the Gorton Fish Co., and the fishermen are getting $6 per quintal for their catch.

SALMON PLENTIFUL.—To-day as well as yesterday the city market was well stocked with salmon from Outer Cove, Torbay, Portugal Cove, Broad Cove and Blackhead. The price was 10 cents in some parts of the city, but at other places it sold for as low as 9 cents per lb.

WHALES PLENTIFUL.—The reports from LaSalle received yesterday stated that whales were plentiful there as well as herring and whitefish. The belief is that the big fish are after the bait and that if whalers were about good fares would be secured. The Cachalot is now almost ready and will be dispatched to that section.

FISHERMEN LEAVE.—By the express yesterday evening about 170 men, the fishing crews of Mr. Whiteley left here to proceed to the Straits where they will fish the coming summer. The men left for Humbermouth and will take the Meggie going to Bonne Esperance. The fishery will likely commence earlier this year than last.

LOAFERS AT LARGE.—Nightly a gang of fellows who are "lovers" of work, congregate in a forge on Barter's Hill to the annoyance of residents who fear that a fire will be the outcome. Last year the police visited this spot, found a goodly supply of liquor and arrested a quartette who got six months each.
