WHEN LOVE Came Too Late.

CHAPTER XVIII.
"I've Found Him!"

Making his way as much by slipping in and out like a lurcher as by force, he threaded the Strand throng, and, crossing Leicester Square, went up to the Palace of Amusement, which stands, glaring with light and gilding, at the northern end.

For a moment or two Seth looked up and down, then approached one of the boards which hung outside with a glowing list of the attractions which awaited the person who should be fortunate enough to possess the shilling necessary for admission.

He stood looking on for a minute, with the dense, vacant expression of a man who cannot read; then, beckoning to a matchbox who was hovering about him, said:

"I don't want no lights, but I'll give you a penny if you'll read this 'ere."

The boy grinned, and, with an air of suppressed pride and pity nicely commingled, read down the list of celebrities which made up the night's programme.

"But what's the use, guvnor," he said. "They've all done their turn and gone 'cept one or two. There's only Bella-Bella and the ballet left."

Seth's eyes flashed with a momentary satisfaction.

"What's her name?" he inquired.
"Bella-Bella," replied the urchin. "She's got to go on; she's prime, she is! If you ain't seen her you ought to. She's put on near the last, because the swells drop in late, don't you know. Look at 'em going in now," and he jerked his matchbox toward several men in evening dress who were then ascending the steps. "She's the great draw, and no wonder! You should just see her! She's stunning, that's what she is! Plank down yer shilling, guvnor, you won't be sorry; there ain't a trapeze artist in London to beat her."

"All right, I will," said Seth, with an air of indifference, and, tossing the boy a penny, he went in and paid his shilling. But the shilling seats were too far from the stage to please him, and he changed into the stalls, took a cigar and a glass of whiskey-and-soda, and cast his keen, cunning eyes round him.

The Palace of Amusement, as every one knows, is perhaps the most magnificently decorated place in London, and its appointments are palatial enough to startle and bewilder the countryman who sees them for the first time; but Seth's carefully guarded countenance displayed no surprise or bewilderment, whatever he may have felt; and he sat and smoked and listened to the band of forty first-class performers, and watched the mixed audience of "swells," counter-jumpers, and frivolous women with half-closed eyes.

Several of the gentlemen who had entered just before him had taken seats near his, or were lounging against the elaborately-gilded and painted walls with that air of loag-suffering boredom which distinguishes their class, and Seth, while he gave one sharp ear to the band, kept the other open to the conversation around him.

"Just in time," yawned one gentleman. "I suppose her ladyship's going to perform to-night?" he said, addressing the chairman, a fat man in evening dress, with a large diamond—or something fairly resembling it—in his vast expanse of shirt front, and stones of great value—or none—in his wristbands.

"Oh, yes, my lord," he replied, with an oily smile. "Bella's on the spot to-night."

"In a good humor, eh?" remarked another, with a laugh. "The last time we were here she cut up rough and wouldn't go on."

"That was because there wasn't quite large enough audience for her, Sir 'Arry," said the chairman, who appeared to know them all. "She'll be all right to-night; the house is nearly full. Won't you take a seat, gentlemen? Plenty of room, my lord," and he waved a be-riding hand toward the table.

The young lord—he was little more than a boy—glanced up at the ropes and the net above his head, and laughed.

"No, thanks," he said. "That net doesn't look overstrong, and much as I adore Bella-Bella, I don't care to have her dropping on my head."

Seth, who also was not lacking in wisdom which prompts a man toward self-preservation, got up and leaned against the wall out of reach of the net.

"Oh, she won't fall, my lord," said the chairman, with a satisfied smile. "Bella knows a trick worth two of that; trust her for taking care of herself. Here she is!" and, striking the table in front of him with an ivory hammer! he shouted, "Order, gentlemen!" in stentorian tones.

The band grew louder, and then, amid a general silence, a woman sprang on to the stage.

She was tall, but so exquisitely made, and every limb so perfectly proportioned, that she did not look more than a medium height. She was, of course, dressed in silk tights, which displayed her handsome figure, and that small portion of her attire which was not composed of silk tights was of ruby plush, flecked here and there by diamonds, which in this case were real; but few would have given a second glance at the diamonds after seeing her face. It was a singular one. She was dark, and her hair, tightly coiled at the crown of her shapely head, was black, and the face was striking in its mixture of audacity and simplicity. She came to the footlights with a smile that was at once defiant and self-assertive, but at the same time there was a look of almost gentle deprecation, of child-like gayety, in her dark eyes.

It was as much her beauty as her marvelous skill on the trapeze that drew the crowds to the Palace during her engagement.

As she came forward in the glare of the footlights, Seth raised his eyes and looked at her with piercing scrutiny, then softly and slowly drew back, slid back, into the shadow of the balcony.

Her appearance was the signal for a loud outburst of applause, and a buzz of excitement ran through the audience, "the swells" drew a few inches nearer, as if fascinated, and the band, which had paused during her reception, broke into a gay and exhilarating air.

She acknowledged the enthusiastic welcome with a smile and a nod, while a couple of stage attendants in gorgeous liveries seized a rope that hung from the lofty ceiling, and with every sign of respect brought it within her reach. She sprang at it as a cat springs at a bird, and, with a grace and ease almost incredible, drew herself up to the trapeze, which hung at a giddy height above the stalls.

Trapeze performances are very much alike, but Bella-Bella's was distinguished by its audacity, and the grace with which it was executed. She and the trapeze seemed to be part and parcel of the same machine. One moment she was swinging by one hand, her lithe body at right angles; the next she was suspended by her feet and nothing else, her face smiling down at the audience beneath her, as if to hang head downwards forty feet above the earth were the commonest of feats. There was a ladder suspended lengthways just below the ceiling, and, with an effort which seemed effortless, she reached it, and traveled along it, first by one hand and then by one foot. Then she dropped like a feather to the trapeze again, and knelt on one knee. Suddenly, while the applause was almost deafening, she uttered a cry of feigned terror, and dropped like a stone into the net beneath. Broken as her fall was by the net, it would have shaken the life out of an ordinary man, to say nothing of woman, but almost instantly she was on her feet again, and, seizing the guide-rope, was slowly swung onto the stage.

A roar like that of the wild beasts of Ephesus rose from the excited audience, and she stood looking round with slightly flushed face and parted lips, scarcely bowing, but receiving the general applause as if it were her due—as, doubtless, it was—then turned to go. As she did so she glanced down at the group of gentlemen, and gave them an almost imperceptible nod.

"All right," said the young peer, with a smile; "she'll come. Did you see her nod? By George! she was better than over to-night; what do you think, Harry?"

"Yes," drawled the man addressed. "Some night she'll be 'best; and that will finish her! Come on; she won't take long, and there'll be the devil to pay if we keep her waiting."

They moved languidly toward the gorgeous corridor, with its electric light and mosaic walls, its costly hangings and tropical ferns, and Seth, whose sharp ears had heard every word, softly and cautiously followed them. The men passed out, and made their way round to a dimly-lit street at the back of the vast building, and Seth, keeping well in the shadow and having anything but the appearance of a man who was following them, lurked at their heels. They stopped at a door over which was a lamp bearing the words "Stage Entrance," and one and all took out cigarettes, and smoked them with an affected sort of patience.

"Confound her, what a time she is!" said his lordship. "I suppose if we went on without her and left a brougham she'd cut up rough?"

"For a certainty," said Sir Harry, "and we don't want the evening spoiled."

As he spoke the door opened, a woman's voice said in clear, bold accents, "Good-night," to the doorkeeper, and Bella-Bella came out.

"Here you are, then!" she said, nodding to the group. "What are you waiting for?"

"You said you'd come to supper," said his lordship.

"I didn't," she retorted.

"You nodded your head," said Sir Harry.

"Well, there was nothing in it," was her swift response.

His lordship laughed, languidly.

"Oh, come on!" he said; "the brougham's in front."

"Then bring it round," she commanded. "The pavement's damp, and I hate wet like a cat."

As she spoke she glanced round. Seth had kept in the shadow—out of sight, as he thought—but her eyes, not unlike his in their keenness, saw him instantly, and she leaned forward, with a quick, and, indeed, catlike movement.

"Who's that?" she inquired.

The men turned and stared at Seth, and, after a moment's hesitation, he came forward. As he did so she shrank slightly, very slightly, and her face paled for a second; then she laughed, and held out her hand.

"Well, I never!" she exclaimed. "It's you, is it? How are you?" The group of aristocrats stared with the languid surprise which fashion permits. "How long have you been in London? Have you been inside? What did you think of me?" Then before Seth could reply she turned her flashing eyes on the group. "Well!" she said, defiantly, "what are you staring at? This is a friend of mine—a relation—my cousin Seth. He's just up from the country. Aren't you, Seth? Sorry I can't join you at supper; he and I want a talk," and she held out her arm for him to take.

"Oh, nonsense!" said his lordship, with a disappointed drawl. "You can talk after supper as much as you like. Bring your cousin with you."

She laughed strangely.

"So I will!" she said. "Come on, Seth. Let me introduce you: Lord Wardlaw, or the Baby; Sir Harry Roke, and so on and so on," and she nodded to one and the other. "Now, then, where's that brougham? My cousin's going to ride with me and you, Baby; the rest of you can go as you like. Come on!" and, linking her arm in Seth's, she led the way to the carriage.

They drove to one of the restaurants and ascended to a private room, in which a brilliantly lit supper-table was laid out. Bella-Bella swung her hat and plush jacket to a waiter, and sat herself at the head of the table, and motioned Seth to the seat beside her. She took no further notice of him—an example which the rest politely followed.

The waiters brought an elaborate supper: champagne of the first brands flowed like water; and while the laughter and the chatter grew louder and louder, Seth worked his way through the long menu, and swallowed glass after glass of the costly wine with the keen enjoyment and the impassiveness of an Indian, a Turk, and a gypsy!

As the meal proceeded, Bella-Bella's spirits rose. Her clear, bell-like voice rang out above the rest, her laughter set the glasses tingling, and presently she placed, to be cheerful, amiable, and humor, said:

"What about a song, Bella?" (To be Continued.)

Everyday Etiquette.

"I have been chosen on many occasions as a chaperone for my daughter and her young friends, and I have often wondered if I did the part correctly. What would you say were the duties of a chaperone?" asked Mrs. Brown of a lady noted for her ease and grace in social ways.

"Well, it is her duty to arrive promptly at the appointed meeting place, to be cheerful, amiable, and maintain proper dignity. She will be introduced to all members of the party with whom she is not already acquainted. She must not leave the young girls under her care until she has seen them all safely to their doors, or knows that they will be returned home under reliable escort," replied her friend.

CHEVROLET!

The most complete and equipped Motor Car ever offered regardless of price. This is some assertion to make, but everyone knows that I am the pioneer in the automobile business in this country, and I can honestly say I have never seen its equal. It has two unit starting and lighting plant, three speeds, forward and reverse; gate changes, 30 x 3 1/2 tires front and rear, 3/4 floating rear axle, which means there is no strain on the axle shafts, the load is carried on the housing. Springs are of the latest shock absorbing cantilever type as used on high-priced English cars. Four cylinder motor valves in head and improved double jet zenith carburetor, which gives twenty-seven miles to the gallon of gasoline.

Plenty leg room in front, also in Tonus; in fact the biggest small car ever offered to the motoring public. Replacement parts of these cars are exceptionally low. A full line already in stock.

How Stephen C. Morris Was Killed.

Copy of Letter from His Commanding Officer, B. E. F.

2nd of August, 1916. Dear Mr. Morris,—I very much regret to inform you of the death of your son, No. 33416, Pte. Stephen C. Morris, by accident on Saturday last, 29th July, 1916.

The accident occurred at 11.50, whilst your son was performing his round of duties on his motor cycle.

This was to have been his last journey on the cycle as he was to leave for the Base the next morning for the purpose of taking up a commission in the Royal Flying Corps, and it was a very cruel circumstance of fate which brought about his death at this important period of his career.

A court of inquiry was held the following day, at which it was found that no one was to blame for the accident and the only one who could possibly throw any light on the subject would have been your son himself.

His death has been keenly felt by all ranks of the unit, amongst whom he was very popular, and his untimely and conscientious manner earned for him the respect of all.

He was a faithful worker, about which he was very particular, and a good soldier, and his death has robbed the army of a valuable man.

All ranks join me in extending to you and family their profound sympathy.

Yours faithfully, Lt.-Col. Commanding, No. 3 Can. Field Ambulance.

If it could be procured the fishermen report a good sign of cod for trawls and hook and liners. The catch is 725 qts. with 50 for last week. Three motor boats and 25 dorries are fishing.

Aug. 26. From J. R. Courage (Conne to Great John)—I am informed the fishery is the best in fifteen years, and prospects are good with codnets. No bait is now being used and only 50 dorries and skiffs are fishing. The catch to date is 5870 qts. and for last week 300.

Vandalism.
 It was a great pity that two or three police officers were not supplied for duty at the garden party at Sillverton yesterday. By six o'clock at least forty rough lads were troublesome at the shoot the shute, and around the tea tables very annoying by snatching cake, &c., as it was passed by the ladies to visitors. Later they commenced stealing the apples from the trees, eating some and throwing others at their pals, but many times to the serious injury of ladies and children. It was with considerable patience that gentlemen onlookers avoided giving some of the scamps a good thrashing. It is high time this rowdiness and vandalism in our Parks and on such occasions was killed out.

The Beginning of the End.
 A cynic might remark that the end of the war has had many beginnings, and if all that has been said in the British press is at liberty to choose as the most important any particular link in the unbroken chain of events. First and foremost of all, undoubtedly, was the battle of the Marne, but we might go even further back and find in Great Britain's declaration of war upon Germany, and the introduction of the British fleet, the deciding event of the war, which had just begun! It was not, however, until the Crown Prince had fallen at Verdun that discerning critics saw the first real approach of the end they had known to be inevitable. Many were content to believe them, taking on faith what they lacked the knowledge to see for themselves. Last Sunday occurred the event which has made it plain to all the world, decided Germany including what the terrible issue of the war will be, and how terrible to those who provoked it.

Boys Arrested for Larceny.
 Last night two boys, aged 16 and 18 years respectively, were arrested under warrant by Sgt. Savage and Constable Kelly for larceny. They appeared in court to-day charged with stealing a quantity of garden bulbs, empty bottles and brin bags from the premises of Mr. Richard White, Waterford Bridge Road. The lads were not asked to plead and were remanded for eight days, as they are supposed to have knowledge of other larcenies committed of late and into which the police detectives are now enquiring.

Striking Germany Through Persia.

(New York "Sun.")
 Persia is on the crossroads between Europe and the Orient; it is the link connecting the British and Russian empires, and through it passes Russia's roadway to the south and the land route from the West to India and Central Asia. It is thus, the key to the middle East, and an alliance such as is reported from Petrograd of Russia, Great Britain and Persia, has more significance than "the straightening of the friendly relations between these countries."
 Persia now has been so thoroughly partitioned that its interests were not the paramount consideration in the. Apparently a commission including Russia is to decide what assistance Persia requires from England, and how Russia is to control the expenditures. A military force is to be developed by the Russians in the north, and another by the British in the south. While this arrangement may be to the temporary advantage of Persia, it practically gives two powerful neighbors the control of Persian finances and arms.
 The foundation of the present friendly relations between Great Britain and Russia was the convention of 1907 by which these two old enemies were to end their intrigues in Tibet and to divide Persia into two zones of influence. The unusual quality of this agreement was its frankness: Russia was to be undisturbed in the north, Great Britain was to control the Persian Gulf and adjacent Persian territory.
 Through this agreement German schools in northern Persia lost their influence and the business of German banks decreased. The Kaiser was forced to negotiate with his rival Powers to remove the blockade on his Bagdad railway. He was allowed to extend the line across the Persian border but he was compelled to withdraw opposition to Russian railway building in the north. He was still in negotiation with Great Britain for the exploitation of the Mesopotamian oil fields and the navigation of the Tigris when the war began.
 The new alliance shuts Germany entirely out of Persia; so far as trade conditions are concerned it is equal to the conquest of a colony. In other respects both Russia and Great Britain have taken advantage of the war to strengthen their positions in this part of the East. The British are in control of the lower Mesopotamian valley and they have shown increased interest in southern Persia. In their advance into eastern Turkey the Russians occupied Ispahan, and made northern Persia a base for operations. They have just opened a railway from the frontier to Tabriz, and have undertaken the extension of the line to connect up through Baluchistan with the British Indian railway system at Peshawar.
 In strengthening their control of the Asiatic situation Russia and England seem determined to crush the Kaiser's hopes of expansion in Asia and of an empire in the East.

matter, but it involves one dramatic possibility in the shape of joint naval and land operations. The railroad line runs so close to the sea as to be easily swept by naval guns, and with the nation that has control of the Adriatic would lie a great advantage. Hitherto the Austrian fleet has more than held its own in the Upper Adriatic, but it is a question whether it will venture out in full strength to try conclusions with an Allied fleet that has probably been prepared for such a development.

Concerning the Missing Boys.
EVERYTHING POSSIBLE IS BEING DONE.

August 31st, 1916.
 Dear Sir,—There have been so many enquiries made by the friends of those who were reported as missing in the action of the 1st July in France that, in order to lessen the anxiety to the fullest possible extent and afford the utmost satisfaction, I wired to the Prime Minister in London, asking him to take up the question personally and endeavour to obtain additional information. I am now in receipt of a cablegram from Sir Edward Morris to the effect that everything possible has been done by the Record Office through General Headquarters to obtain complete lists and the information as obtained has been forwarded to the Colony. Repeated efforts are being made by the Record Office, through the War Office and the Foreign Office, for possible information in relation to the missing men, in the hope that some of them may be prisoners of war. Of the men who went into action July 1st all have been reported on lists of killed, wounded and missing, except about half a dozen, who do not appear on any lists. Enquiries regarding these are still going on, but Sir Edward intimates that he will make a special effort himself at the War Office and will wire any information he may be able to obtain.
 So far as it has been possible to ascertain we have only two prisoners of war in Germany—Coombs and Darton—who both receive from England warm clothing and food.
 Ten large packages of decessant soldier's effects have been shipped by the Record Office to Newfoundland and will double each come forward at an early date.
 I shall at once acquaint the public should I receive further information in relation to the men of the Regiment from Sir Edward Morris or from the Record Office.
 Yours truly,
 J. R. BENNETT, Colonial Secretary.

Kaiser's Sermon to His Army Chaplain.

Now you repent and take a pious dope, And give your hands a rest from hymns of hate, And bid your priests renew their faith and hope,
And all in saintly language—two years late;
For God, remembering, turns His face away
From lips that with their high vows loosely palter,
Nor takes from unclean hands the gifts they lay Upon His holy altar.
—Sir Owen Seaman, in Punch.

A very remarkable address has been given by the Kaiser to his Army Chaplains. One of them, Dr. Ott, thus describes the scene:

"It was more than a meeting of the Kaiser with the Field Chaplains; it was a new binding together of the Empire of God, a union of the Sword with the Bible, a satisfaction of the Church by the State. . . . He spoke to us for half an hour. He spoke vigorously, skilfully, quite freely, now in the light tone of conversation, often with a hearty laugh, then again seriously and emphatically, at times with strong temperament, often with classical emphasis. . . .

"He to whom so much power has been given over our fate and the fate of the peoples, spoke with such grace and true piety. He is a guardian of souls, a father of the Church. It was once more a pleasure to be a German and a Christian. It is a pride and an unspeakable happiness, as our Chaplain-General said, to be permitted at the call of such a Kaiser to bear the banner of Christ among the banners of victory of our troops. . . .

"We stood in a half-circle. The dull light of lamps, mingled with the faint light of the day, fell upon a pair of calm, grave, firm eyes. They flashed when brave deeds were reported, and there was a golden gleam in them when a jest gave occasion for laughter. . . . The Kaiser departed with an amiable smile as he had come. A climax of our life in the field had passed. A new and exalted splendor surrounded the future."

The Kaiser's address ran thus: "It is a time of sifting. The world war divides and takes the chaff from the wheat. You, gentlemen, have to work to teach the German nation to take things seriously and to accept the present as a time of trial. It is important to understand that life is a trial. We need practical Christianity to bring our life into harmony with the personality of Our Lord. Live simply according to His acts and His deeds."

"Gentlemen, how fascinating and marvellously manifold is this personality. We have only to study it thoroughly. We must live with the Lord. "Suppose the Lord entered this moment through that door, could we look into His face? Going to church once a week is not enough. He must become the ideal of practical life. Determine to live according to the Lord's teaching. You shall bring before us a vision of God. Who now certainly, perhaps as Judge, passes through the world. You must represent Him and show Him to us."

The Emperor then dwelt on what might deprive the German nation of the spiritual value of war, namely, the desire to complain and criticize. "I have often considered," he said, "how this can be cured. It cannot be done by repression, or laws, or orders. It must come from within. From outside it cannot come. There must be peace in your hearts. Then you will be strengthened to face the bad days, and, what is more difficult, the good days."

"I believe that the men who are now in the trenches will be different men when they come home. Impress upon them that they must retain in the future the thoughts which fill them now. Everybody must admit that our nation is great, that it has without complaint or hesitation sacrificed everything for the great cause. This inspiration is derived from God. Give the men in the trenches my greetings and impress upon them the need for firm reliance on God."

Household Notes.

When beating the white of an egg be sure that there is no grease on the beater. It will prevent the eggs from frothing.

Fresh fruits and green vegetables supply the iron and mineral matter necessary to the general well-being of the system.

Brussels sprouts will not develop properly unless the lower leaves of the plant are broken off just when the sprouts are forming.

The bones left from roast beef or lamb can be put into a pot with potatoes and boiled. They will give the potatoes a rich flavor.

To make cottage cheese of fine texture, have the water with which you scald the curd merely hot. If it is boiling the curd will be very hard and lumpy.

If there is a stubborn spot on white paint, that can not be removed with soap and water, dip a wet cloth in whitening and rub the spot. It will come off with ease.

ROMANIAN ACTIVITIES.

BUCHAREST, To-day.

Romanian troops have made progress in their crossing the Austro-Hungarian frontier during the night of the 27th and after lively fighting reached a number of points, including Mount Fagatcelul, northwest of Nyerlagapo, Kinspeclia Hill west of Gyergo, and the village of Rosscu, four kilometres (about 3 miles) east of Kronstadt. Our artillery fired on Orsova, destroying a column, our Fourth Army Column taking seven officers and 734 men prisoners. An armed enemy tug opened fire on Turu-Severin and retired to Orsova, under the fire of our batteries. Austro-Hungarian monitors opened fire on Guirvo but were compelled to retire by our artillery.

RUSSIAN SITUATION UNCHANGED.

PETROGRAD, To-day.

The situation on the western Russian and Caucasian fronts is unchanged, says an official statement issued to-day.

CHICAGO RAILWAY STRIKE AVERTED.

CHICAGO, To-day.

A general strike of six thousand freight handlers set for 1 p.m. to-day, affecting practically every railroad in Chicago, has been averted. It was announced to-day. The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway agreed to the demands of the union for permission to collect dues from company property. Four hundred strikers returned to work at the Rock Island freight houses. There are fifteen hundred men employed by five railroads still on strike, according to union officials.

NATIONAL STRIKE SEEMS CERTAIN.

CHICAGO, To-day.

Throughout the entire country to-day railroads great and small gathered their forces to oppose the strike set for next Monday. An undercurrent of feeling, reported from Washington that the catastrophe would yet be averted, was made by E. P. Ripley, President of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway, who was a member of the committee which conferred with President Wilson and spokesmen for the railroads; but the Presidents who returned this afternoon from the conferences with the national head intensified the pessimism felt here. The railroads can now see no hope of settlement before Labor Day and are making every preparation for eventualities.

CONSTERNATION IN SOFIA.

ZURICH, To-day.

There is consternation in Sofia, the capital of Bulgaria, over the approach of Russian troops through Dubrudja, according to the news reaching here from Austrian sources. Rumanian aeroplanes are reported to be directing the fire of artillery in the fighting between the Rumanians and Austrians which is going on in all the mountain passes.

FRANCE FLIES FLAGS.

PARIS, To-day.

For the first time since Italy entered the war the French Government to-day ordered flags to be raised over all official buildings in recognition of the declaration of war by Italy against Germany and by Rumania against Austro-Hungary.

GERMANY IN EXTREMIS.

AMSTERDAM, To-day.

The Frankfurter Zeitung says that at a meeting of the Social Electrical Union of Greater Berlin, proposed for yesterday, when deputy Reichstag members spoke of peace, he was prohibited. The paper says a general examination of all men of military age in Germany, who previously were exempted, was now taking place. German officials who heretofore have been declared indispensable, the newspaper says, are also being examined.

THE RAILROAD STRIKE IN U.S.

WASHINGTON, To-day.

All the influence of the administration was brought to bear to-day in an effort to persuade the Railroad Brotherhood leaders to cancel or postpone the order calling for a nationwide strike on Monday, while the members of Congress began paving the way for legislation designed to prevent or stop the threatened industrial trial strike. Little tangible progress was made in either direction, but nevertheless in official quarters to-day there still prevailed confidence that in one way or another the walk-out would be averted.

THE BALKAN SITUATION.

LONDON, To-day.

Rumania's invasion of Austro-Hungarian territory continues in the mountainous regions from Ostrovo on the railway northeast of Orsova in the Gyergo mountains eighty miles north of Kronstadt. On the Danube from the Iron Gate of Gurgivo opposite Rastchuk in Bulgaria there have been reciprocal bombardments at several points by Austro-Hungarian war craft and Rumanian shore batteries. A Zeppelin hostile aeroplane dropped bombs on the Rumanian Capital, Austria acknowledges retirement of her forces from the Mountain region to previously prepared positions in the rear. It has been followed by claims by Rumania that the troops of King Ferdinand arrived at a point within three miles of Kronstadt, the chief commercial city of Transylvania. Vienna admits that the Rumanians are engaged with the Austro-Hungarians in the Gyergo mountains, which shows that off the northwestern front Rumanian hostile forces have invaded Transylvania to a distance of some 20 miles. The Rumanians are also near Koedzi Vasarhely, about 40 miles northeast of Kronstadt. While Bulgaria thus far has not entered into hostilities against Rumania, a News Agency despatch says that Rumania has decided to send an ultimatum to Bulgaria demanding the evacuation of Serbia. A despatch from Constantinople reports that Turkey has declared war on Bulgaria. In the Macedonian theatre violent fighting continues between the Entente Allies and the Austro-Germans and Bulgarians. Paris claims that to the west of the Vardar River the French gained additional ground, and that in the Lake Ostrovo region the Serbs repulsed attacks by the Bulgarians. On the Struma front near Lake Doiran the batteries of the Entente Powers violently shelled the Bulgarian positions. Drama in northeast Greece has been seized by the Bulgarians after a fight with Greek troops, according to unofficial advices received in Paris. An Albanian detachment under Essad Pasha, once commander of the Turkish first army, has arrived at Salonika to aid the Entente forces. No official move has yet been made by Greece to meet the demand of the portion of the population headed by former Premier Venizelos to have Greece join the Entente Allies, but an official despatch from Athens says that the re-mobilization of the Greek army is under consideration. The extension of the British lines south of Martinpuich on the Somme front in France, there has been little activity except by artillery on the part of the belligerents on the western battle line, where inclement weather still prevails. Likewise on the front in Russia and Galicia there have been no important changes in the positions, although in the Carpathian region the Russians have captured the Panker Mountain on the Hungarian border. The village of Rafalovo by the Stritza Nadvorona River near the border. In the fighting between the Turks and Russians in Asia Minor the Turkish army from both sides claim minor successes.

EXTRAORDINARILY INDEED!

LONDON, To-day.

The British press representative at Salonika sends us a report which is current there that King Constantine of Greece, has fled to Larissa, in Thessalonica to take refuge with 300 Uhlans. The text of the official message, which is dated Tuesday, reads: "This evening's sensation is that King Constantine has fled from Athens to take refuge with a German escort of 300 Uhlans who have been waiting for him several days at Larissa. Another report is that the Allies have already landed a strong force at Piraeus, which has been heavily engaged with a Greek army in battle around the King's country house at Lathi, where several Greek princes have already fallen. Perhaps to-morrow will bring more light upon a situation which is extraordinarily involved even for the Balkans.

ALL IS NOT WELL WITH THE GERMAN ARMY.

PARIS, To-day.

French military experts have predicted the Kaiser's dismissal of Von Falkenhayn and appointment of Von Hindenburg to take his place as a sign that things are going wrong in the German army. An official to the North German Gazette states this week that the Germans might withdraw from the great Noiret salient in France which the Somme offensive is intended to obliterate. It is pointed out that only if a popular hero like Hindenburg decreed such a retreat would it be accepted without trouble from the German people. The expectation is that it will be Hindenburg's strategy to begin the shortening of the German lines everywhere. Lt-Colonel Bousset said to-day that Hindenburg's appointment to the post of supreme commander by the German court party, headed by the Kaiser, to popular opinion. General Delacroix said the incident shows that the German army is badly shaken. Moltke was made the scapegoat for the Marne; Falkenhayn was for the Verdun defeat and the Russian offensive.

HINDENBURG AND FALKENHAYN.

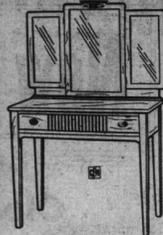

ROTTERDAM, To-day.

A despatch says the military crisis in Germany is reported on excellent authority to have been the climax of a bitter conflict between Falkenhayn and Hindenburg over the Verdun offensive. Hindenburg was utterly opposed to any offensive in France, but wanted to strike immediately a blow at Russia. For this he was prepared not only with a plan of campaign, but with preparations actually behind the front in Courland. He made a demand on the General Staff for additional forces to carry out the enterprise, but they were refused him by Falkenhayn, and Hindenburg's plan was over-ruled in favor of the offensive against Verdun. Behind Falkenhayn in this disastrous decision was the German Crown prince, who is held by well informed persons to be really responsible for the colossal blunder of Verdun. The fall of Falkenhayn is regarded here as one of the greatest significance, even imperiling the Hohenzollern dynasty.

ENGLISH COMMENT ON GERMAN CRISIS.

LONDON, To-day.

The morning newspapers to-day devote many columns to a discussion of the retirement of Von Falkenhayn and the appointment of Hindenburg as Chief of the German General Staff. Under such headlines as "A Crisis in Berlin" and "Welcome to the Wooden Man," all profess to see in the sudden change of leaders a sign of Germany's weakness. The Times says: "In her deadly peril Germany is unlikely to have chosen a new Chief merely to placate public feeling. We shall do well to take Von Hindenburg seriously and to recognize that though conditions are against him, he is no weakling.

The glimpses we have had of him suggest a man with simple ideas which often make for success in war. The Times military correspondent expects some immediate alterations of strategic ideas in the German conduct of war, adding "all this summer Von Hindenburg has been eating his head out on the Russian front while the troops for whom he clamored have been frittered away at Verdun. His interest and predilections are believed to lie in the east. He belongs to the strategic school which would have struck in the east. The position points to the probable shortening of the front in France and Flanders, and he is to-day the only man in Germany who could order the ruthless shortening of western front without collapse of public faith."

A Hot Weather Joke.

There are those who declare that the Germans have no sense of humor. Whether they have or not is not in our province, for the moment, to determine. But we are strongly of the opinion that evidence exists that the recent hot wave has extended over the territory of the Teutonic Allies. Witness the following from the Scottish American:—

"Recently a Dutch paper invited replies to three questions regarding the future of the Hague Congress. Is it desirable (1) to continue the work of the Congress? (2) to hold a third Congress after the war, attended by neutrals, with the object of preventing future wars? and (3) to ask such a Congress to conclude a treaty for securing the better maintenance of international law?"

"Of the many replies received, that from Baron Stengel, of Munich, one of the German delegates to the first Hague Congress, is perhaps the most remarkable. He declares that in future the Hague Congress will be quite superfluous, as the final and decisive victory in this war must fall to Germany, which will then be in a position to give peace to the civilized world. The whole course of the war has proved that amongst all the nations the Germans have been specially chosen by Providence to stand at the head of all cultured peoples, as they have not only the necessary strength and power, but possess all the intellectual qualities, and form the garland of culture in the whole of creation. Therefore, it is unnecessary to continue peace work of any kind, as the Germans, with the sovereignty over unruly neighbors, will also assume the office of guardians of the peace. Subject to Germany's superior leadership in every respect, he concluded, is, therefore, the surest and only means to the prosperous existence of the neutrals, who would do well to join Germany voluntarily, and trust in her. There is no more tender and more ideal nation than the Germans, and under her guardianship all international law is entirely superfluous, as we from our own instinct allot each his right."

Mere comment is of course superfluous. It must have been a hot, a very, very hot summer in Berlin.—Halifax Morning Chronicle.

To clean a white wool coat, it is said to be a good plan to rub the soiled spots with dry ground rice, and then shake off. Bits of fresh cloth should be used as each becomes soiled. A good French dressing is made with ½ cup olive, 2 tablespoonsful of red wine vinegar, 1-3 teaspoonful salt, ¼ teaspoonful paprika and a dash of onion jusice. Blend thoroughly.

The first game was a surprise to all but to the players and most rabid supporters of the Cubs, and it may be said without fear of contradiction that theirs was a popular win. The Wanderers, however, steadfastly held every bit of the ground and the game was interspersed with frequent kicks at some of the "un-piratical" decisions, and the Hartnett crew have yet to be convinced that Empire Chessman's interpretation of certain plays is correct. It was quite unusual, too, to see the veterans wrangling with Mr. Chessman, as ordinarily they have no occasion for so doing—it is generally their opponents who are obliged to do the protesting. The umpire's change was quite refreshing—even if some new deals were handed out. For the victors, Orr was the star, and his timely hitting in pinches was the feature of the game, though Harvey Thomas also proved himself to be the boy in the gap. St. John, the baseman, got in some clever work, but he gets his foot off the bag too quickly after getting the throw, which resulted in their losing a couple of the blue and whites. For the Wanderers King pitched well but seemed a bit worried over the umpire's decisions. Tim's big stick failed to work yesterday, all his hits being feeble, and he failed to beat the throw to first at any time. Mgr. Clouston, (whose brilliant catching has been a revelation all season) is quite optimistic with the Pennant in sight as they have only to meet the Red Lions on Wednesday next to complete their schedule. At present the Cubs and Wanderers are tied in points with one game each to play. The fans were expecting a spirited clash between the B. I. S. and Red Lions but their hopes were shattered when in the first two innings the Hiltz crew got 5 runs to the Irishmen's 1. It was clearly evident that the Lions were in the fettle after putting it over the Wanderers the week previous, while the B. I. S. seemed to be on edge as their fielding was wretched and in addition they ably sustained their last year's reputation as "Hitless Wanderers." The star, however, was Cooney, an experienced battery-mate to hold his assortment. Doyle, playing third for the Irish, showed remarkable dexterity for tagging propensities and saved his team from a more overwhelming defeat. Ring also played his usual cool game on the initial sack. The star, however, was Cooney of the Lions. Here, there, and everywhere with his hit like a steamgram, the Irishmen's efforts to reach the first sack were futile. He played the whole infield with skill and cunning, and in next Wednesday's game the Cubs will have to go some to master him.

GAMES YET TO PLAY.

Cubs vs. Red Lions.
B. I. S. vs. Wanderers.
This will mean a double header for next Wednesday afternoon and will also mean the most exciting baseball yet played in Newfoundland, as both the Cubs and Wanderers have to win their clashes to play off for the Pennant and Allen Cup, while if both should lose it will mean that the B. I. S., Red Lions, Cubs and Wanderers will all be trying in pinches to knock out schedule will have to be drawn up and played to decide the Championship. All four teams are therefore determined to be in the running, and between this and Wednesday afternoon some hard practice and hard work will be the result, while of course the dopsters and fans will be right there with the good advice to the respective managers.

War News

Editor Evening Telegram:
Dear Sir—Would you allow space in your valuable paper to say a few words and ask a few questions? I am a stranger here, and what seems very strange to me is: there is a Government Telegraph Office here, and I did not see one item of public news published for days. This was time and surely if the folks at the postal office are not interested in war they should allow that the other residents of the place would be; they ought to consider they are receiving the public money for publishing public news and are the servants of the public, and not let some other person that would do what they are paid for and won't.

Where are the members for this place, anywhere? They say they are the People's Party men and friends of the fishermen, and is this the way they are allowing the fishermen to be served? It is as well to be in the Arctic regions as far as public news goes as here. As far as I can understand the members are aware of this thing and for reasons of their own wink at it, as blood is thicker than water; but when they want the public vote again they may be asked to render an account of how they allowed the people to be served. The inhabitants are as eager for war news as ever I saw, and are always asking strangers for it, and they say they never get public news—only when they receive the papers, which is only three times a week. I say it's a shame for any people to be treated in such a manner by those they are not asking to do it for nothing but paying them well. Now, sir, I will say this much about the representative of Trepassy: if he is aware of this treatment the people are receiving he ought to be ashamed of himself. If he was capable of feeling any shame for allowing those conditions to exist and should not be allowed to be so a minute longer. Hoping I am not trespassing, I remain, yours truly,
A VISITOR.

McMurdo's Store News

THURSDAY, Aug. 31, 1916.
"Joy is upon the lonely seas
When Indian messengers
Forth to the billows and the breeze
Their odors from the shore.
Joy, when the soft air's fanning sigh
Bears on the breath of Araby."
These lines, from a poetess whom our grandmothers as women, and our mothers as girls, read in early and mid-Victorian times, came up before me as one caught a whiff of perfume from a burning pastille which rendered the air around pleasantly odoriferous. Enquiry showed that, rare enough, these pastilles were named most appropriately, "Pastilles of Araby." They are about the nicest thing of the kind we have met. A single pastille is sufficient to destroy all unpleasant odors in a room, and render the air fresh and lovely; an equally aromatic odor in it. Price 5c. a tin.

Hr. Grace Notes.

Mr. Thomas Sheppard, is in town on a business trip. Tom is a Harbour Gracian, one that has worked his way up to his present responsible position. May his visit to the home town be profitable and pleasant.

New potatoes of excellent quality are selling in town now at 15c. per gallon, rather cheaper than usual at this season.

Potato canker is very much in evidence again this year, but mostly among the potatoes known as Blue Noses. It is said the Dakota Reds and other red potatoes will have nothing to do with canker. If this be so the people should be made acquainted with that fact, and every blue nose should be driven out of the country (of course we mean blue nose potatoes).

Mr. John Farmer who returned here from Buffalo a couple of months ago, with his wife and family, is now at Sydney, where he has secured a good position at his trade, that of machinist. He likes Sydney and the work. It is likely his family will join him there this fall.

Mr. Wesley Parsons and his bride arrived by train from the West Coast on Thursday night. We take this opportunity of wishing the popular young teacher and his bride a long and pleasant journey through life together.

Master Frank Gordon returned from St. John's on Monday night after spending several weeks with his aunt and uncle, Mrs. and Mr. Geo. Snow, of Colonial Street. His sister Elizabeth who accompanied him to the city will remain a week or so longer.

Herring are very plentiful in this harbor at present and fishermen who have sets out are doing well.

Mr. A. J. Goodland, teacher of the C. of E. High School, with his wife and children returned a few days ago from a very pleasant holiday trip to several northern ports.

Drs. Strapp and Cron have their hands full these days, as new cases of measles are developing every day, and it looks as if very few of the children here will escape the measles this year. Several adults were also forced to stay abed and nurse this very unwelcome visitor.

There is much talk here of the letter signed "Progress," written at Western Bay and appearing in the Daily News in July. In that letter we see some very good remarks on train running, and as the Messrs. Reid are always endeavoring to do the greatest good to the greatest number, it would be well for them to study well that letter. The writer very clearly shows how the train hands by having a shorter day would benefit greatly by the change. The travelling public would benefit by arriving in St. John's a couple of hours earlier than now, and the railway terminus here, by making Harbour Grace the terminus for the North Shore Branch, instead of Carbonear, the plan could be easily worked out in condensed form it is as follows:—Train leaving St. John's at 8.45 a.m. would arrive at Harbour Grace at 1.30 p.m. By connecting at Harbour Grace with the North Shore Branch, the train could leave for St. John's at 2.45 p.m. instead of 3.15 p.m. as at present, arriving at the city at 7.25 p.m. instead of the present late hour. Arriving at St. John's two hours earlier than at present would benefit every person, particularly the often worn out railway men. The well written plan of "Progress" should be more talked and a great deal more written about by people who can see the benefits to be derived from the change. Harbour Grace would have no objection whatever to making the railway terminus here.

Wedding Bells.
A very quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Joseph's Presbytery, Signal Hill Road, on the 17th inst., the contracting parties being Miss Mary Power, housekeeper with Rev. W. Kitchen, D.P., and Mr. Philip Jackman, third officer of the s.s. Stephano. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Kitchen. The bride was attended by Miss Agnes Maher, Private Francis Power (1st Nfld. Regiment), brother of the bride, was best man. The groom's present to the bride was a gold necklace, to the bridemaid a gold ring set in rubies and to the best man a gold stick pin. Following the ceremony a reception was held at Smithville, only the immediate friends being present. The bride, who is a very popular young lady, was the recipient of many valuable and useful presents. The Telegram joins in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Jackman, who have made their future home at 3 Knight Street, a happy voyage over the matrimonial sea.

PATRIOTIC CONCERT ON BOARD.

The Red Cross Liner Stephano, Capt. Smith, arrived here at 10.30 a.m. to-day from New York and Halifax, bringing a full cargo. Delay was longer at Halifax than usual, owing to the big freight offering. From there the run to port was made in 46 hours. She brought 150 passengers, including 93 round-trippers. The following saloon passengers got off here. From New York—P. G. Dutley, Theo. Thompson, A. J. Murray, Miss S. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Goldstone, Mr. and Mrs. C. Evans, J. Shaw and J. Lamb, Rev. J. S. Garden Party.

Skilful organization and preparation, many willing hands, delightful surroundings and perfect weather conditions combined to make the great Garden Party at Silverton yesterday afternoon one of the most successful of its kind ever held here. The large crowd of holiday makers were out to enjoy themselves; the material was at hand, and they took advantage of it with a care-free spirit and a generous hand. Beautiful in themselves, the grounds were lent an added beauty by the tasteful arrangement of bunting, flowers, tents and stalls and all the gay apparel of a fête. Many of the visitors found enjoyment in the mere pleasure of rambling under trees and over lawns and in the glorious prospect from the steep hillside. But this was not because there was no other attraction. Sports of all kinds, original and varied, gave amusement to participants and onlookers alike. The Shoot-the-Shute was crowded from the moment the first venturesome passenger allowed himself to be hoisted (he was shot at lightning speed down the "facilis descensus." A close rival was the Can't Lose Competition, for a sufficiently obvious reason. There was also a Punch and Judy show, putting and croquet competitions, fortune-telling, potato and blindfold races, coconut shies, stepping stones—in fact, all the fun of the fair. Tables loaded with candies, fruit, ice-creams and other refreshments did their best to cater to overwhelming demands. The C. L. B. Band played popular and pretty airs throughout the afternoon, and a ventriloquist entertainment and display of war trophies were added attractions. The amount realized, $1,083.00, is a gratifying reward for the expenditure of much labor and thought. Sir Joseph and Lady Outerbridge deserve the greatest thanks for putting their charming premises at the disposal of the good cause, and its success will be gratifying to them. Too much appreciation, also, cannot be expressed of the efforts of the many ladies who helped at tables and in other ways. The affair adds one more to the successful endeavours of the Daughters of Empire and the money will be an invaluable contribution to the comfort and assistance of our boys on the other side.

Amusements.

AT THE CRESCENT.
A Diamond special three reel feature heads the list at the Crescent Picture Palace to-day. The "Love of Loti San" is a beautiful and touching Japanese story produced by the Selig Company. Henry B. Walthall, and Lillian Gish are presented in a strong Biograph drama, "The Burglar's Dilemma" or "The Abuse of the Third Degree." The "Fable of the Grass Widow and the Mesmeric and the Six Dollars" is one of George Ade's clever comedies, produced by the Essanay Company. The musical programme arranged and played by Professor McCarthy is a feature of this great show.

GRAND PROGRAMME AT THE NICKEL.

Immense audiences attended the performance at the Nickel Theatre yesterday afternoon and last evening and were delighted with the performance. The programme was made up of high class pictures, all being acted by celebrated artists. The Vitaphone blue ribbon feature film in five acts "Hearts and the Highway" is one of the finest subjects ever shown in this city. The social drama, "The man he used to be" was also a very beautiful subject and was very closely followed. This evening the programme was repeated. A number of costly films the best to be procured, are now shown at the Nickel.

organization and prepara- willing hands, delightful and perfect weather con- tributed to make the party at Silverton yesterday one of the most successful ever held here. The large holiday makers were out to themselves; the material was that they took advantage of it in a free spirit and a generous spirit in themselves, they were lent an added beauty by the arrangement of bunting, flags and stalls and all the while of a fête. Many of the and enjoyment in the mere rambling under trees and in the glorious prospect of the steep hillsides. But this because there was no other Sports of all kinds, organized, gave amusement to all and onlookers alike. The salute was crowded from the first ventures passed herself (for it was her shot at lightning speed faciliis descensus.)
