gressing? There is an opening for just such an enterprise in the Valley, and there is no valid reason why Bridgetown should not sesure it. The history of the boot and shoe dence in the success of a manufactory solidly established. As staple articles of trade, there are perhaps no fancy profits to be made, but the product of good honest work will find a market that will give a mergin sufficiently large to pay a fair dividend on the money invested. There is no use in saying that such a business cannot be carried o successfully in Nova Scotia, as Amherst can give the lie direct to any such statement Twenty odd years ago a factory was started in that town with a small capital and em ploying only five or six men; to-day the in crease of business has raised the working staff to about two hundred and fifty men; the company has always paid a ten per cent. dividend and also built up a large reserve fund. Try to buy stock in the Amherst Boot and Shoe Co., and you will soon find whether there is money in the business or not. What has been done in Amherst can be done in Bridgetown under careful and enthe Town Council and the Board of Trade spirit, and lend their best influence towards the establishment of a factory that will stim ulate the business of the town and county and take an important place among our industries. Let us make a strong pull to cardustries. Let us make a strong pull to carry to a successful conclusion the work that has already been done.

—The postal conference just closed at London, resulted in an agreement for a postal rate of two cents per half ounce for all letters to be transmitted between Great Britain, Canada, Newfoundland, Natal and Cape Colony. This arrangement is largely due to the enterprise and activity of the Canadian postmaster general, Hon. Mr. Mulock, who brought the matter up and has now the satisfaction of 'knowing that, even if he exceeded his powers when some months ago he took upon himself the responsibility of establishing such a rate, without consulting the other parties concerned in the reduced rate, the course is now clear, and he many ride his hobby with a free rein. The Canadian popole will welcome the reduced rate of postage, but will hardly be satisfied with the "limited field over which it operates." stride has been taken toward a complete American victory that must soon follow. Much of Cuba still remains unconquered, but no fortified port can stand the combined assault of the invading naval and military forces. An expedition against Porto Rico has been sent forward, and that island is too poorly garrisoned and equipped to offer serious obstruction to the American forces.

HECTOR MACLEAN. HECTOR MACLEAN.

Mr. Hector MacLean, whose portrait accompanies this sketch, died early last Tuesday morning, at his home in Granville, after an illness of a few weeks which at first was not regarded as dangerous. Mr. MacLean was a great-hearted, enterprising man and his loss will be keenly felt, not the interprise of the state man and his loss will be keenly felt, not only in Bridgetown, but over the whole countryside. He had a broad knowledge and spent himself freely in furthering the interests of the various local corporations in which he was interested. As a member of the Municipal Council he was a model public servant, and to his untiring work is due many of the carefully planned and executed improvements in our county government. Of massive stature and rugged, hearty appearance, he looked fit to reach the century mark when last seen on the streets, but the inevitable end was very near. He was a inevitable end was very near. To the Editor of the Monitor:

Dear Sir.—Referring to L. D. Morton's letter in re the above subject in Monitors of the 18th inst., I beg to say, generally, that the spirit manifested is contemptible and the opening paragraph that of anything but the words of a true sportsman. The decisions of the judges were unanimous, and their desire and determination to go by the National Association rules was above the criticism of a novice, who probably knew about as much of the above rules as the ordinary horseman does of navigation.

criticism of a novice, who probably knew about as much of the above rules as the ordinary horseman does of navigation.

Mona Brenton drew sixth positich in the race, in the ordinary way, and won the first heat in splendid shape—and, if one robin made Spring, she would have won the race then and there. But, unfortunately for L. D. Morton and Mona Brenton, it was a race requiring three winning heats in order to secure first money. Now, in reference to the second heat, over which L. D. Morton has such a long kick: Had the judges dealt out to him the strict interpretation of the rule, they would have distanced Moha Brenton has such a long kick: Had the judges dealt out to him the strict interpretation of the rule, they would have distanced Moha Brenton steep them, or interfere with another horse seeking to come on the inside of the selected position, "shall be ruled out." Mona Brenton, after entering the homestretch, swerved first to the right; and then, when Slipp, with Lina Bell (seeing room) sought to come inside, swerved again inward to the pole, plainly interfering with Lina Bell. Now, it was plainly incumbent upon the judges to have distanced or ruled out Mona Brenton's driver, they should place him last instead.

L. D. Morton should study the Association rules and keep clear of bad advisers, as the night after the race he seemed decidedly pleased with his position in the final summary.

In the fourth paragraph of his wonderful the receipt of the rec

L. D. Morton should study the Association rules and keep clear of bad advisers, as the night after the race he seemed decidedly leased with his position in the final summary.

In the fourth paragraph of his wonderful production he says: "I maintain that the speed of the party lay between May Blossom and Mona Brenton." So it would appear. But we would suggest to Mr. Morton the soundness of three of the cardinal "don'ts" of the safe going betting man: "Don't back a bad actor." "Don't back an indifferent driver or one ignorant of racing rules."

He also says: "Dudley Brenton, a half brother of Mona, was also unfairly treated by pronouncing the second heat a dead heat." We would advise the Bridgetown Driving Park folk to, in future, allow L. D. Morton to drive and judge also. It is surprising how much responsibility some people are willing to take upon themselves when there is a dollar in it.

Dudley Brenton was no match for Longfellow would have been removed and other drivers substituted. The judges nipped a fine little scheme just at the right moment, as they had a perfect right to do.

Mona Brenton made a splendid race and was universally admired from the judges' stand, and in a better driver's hands should do even better.

L. D. Morton is willing for someone to maintain Spanish rule in the Philippines and in restricting America to a coaling station on Ponape Island, in the Caroline group.

Dangers from Violent Exercise.

There is considerable diversity of opinion as to the safety with which women may in dulge in violent exercise in view of possible injury. As regard the heart, there appears to be but one opinion-namely, that that or gan, accustomed to a quiet life, may be dangerously and permanently crippled by the excessive strain in athletic sports. Experience in medical practice, says an eminent authority, teaches that the patient with a weak heart must be extremely cautious in his exercises, and the demonstration of a violent, exhausting effort which has been made was of a surprising nature. Many clinical observers in Germany and in this observation of the changes in the heart beats siderable dilation, which continues for a shorter or longer time after the exertion is ove- Ocular proof of this has been afforded by the Roentgen rays. Personal Adornment

To be dressed neatly, becomingly, and in good taste, that a person may not be an eye sore to those around her, is a duty not to be neglected. The time and money spent upon these requirements should be regulated en tirely by the means one has at her disposal thy habit as thy purse can buy, but not expressed in fancy, rich, not gaudy. For the apparel oft proclaims the man." A person with large means can employ an artist in all little thought or time upon such detailswhile another person with a limited purse, must give thought, time and ingenuity upon the altering and making over of such garments and material as may be at hand. Not only in the matters of dress should women be expert and painstaking, but in personal cleanliness, and in the care of the com-plexion. English women do not ignore these Allowances should be made for difference of climate, which in England is less change-able and more humid. The dry winds and sudden changes from heat to cold in America are very trying, and consequently greater care is necessary.

The dressing of the body involves many difficulties—first in importance being health—and to insure this perfect adaptability to the needs of the body nothing should prevent the free play for muscles, and all the vital organs to perform their different functions and ensure the perfect circulation of blood. Outdoor exercise cannot be entirely efficacious unless the dress be of proper length and

"That's so," agreed one of the natives

"I've got a scheme," said Mr. Drew dreamily, "for cheapening the cost of them by at least 50 per cent.

"How's that ?" quoth the native. "Of course I'm not peddling this ide around," said Mr. Drew mysteriously.

"Of course not," said the native." "I don't want it to get out before I get my patent papers." "To be sure," said the native." "This is the scheme," said Mr. Drew. "I would have just a short length of track material put together, and it would run chain. When the locomotive ran on to the rail in front, the last car would be picking up rails at the rear and passing them along over the roofs of the cars back to the engin again. You see? The train would be really laying its own track."

"By gum, said the native, "that's is

"It strikes me so," said Mr. Drew, modestly. "It certainly has a good many advantages. It is a great thing to have a train that will go anywhere you want it to go." "That's so," said the native.

"Say," he said, "what you goin' to do
