C. HUMPHREY TAYLOR.

The New Sidewalks Good Progress made toward their Construction.

A Basket Social Next Tuesday.

The meeting called for last Tuesday evening for the purpose of raising enthusiasm and funds for the construction of good sidewalks was not largely attended but resulted in an excellent and effective move toward the attainment of the desired end.

Besides the ubiquitous small boy and one or two spectators there were present the following progressive citizens: C. Humphrey Taylor, Arnold Porter, S. S. Miller, L. E. McFarland, H. D. Keswick, A. A. Rideout, William McAdam, C. C. Procter, John Thomas and Fred H. Stevens. Arnold Porter was elected to the chair and in opening the meeting stated the object in view of which the meeting was called. He said regarding the cost of sidewalks he had figured that a plank walk five feet wide constructed of hemlock, and extending a quarter of a mile, would cost $150. He was of the opinion that this amount could or should be easily raised. But would strongly advise that the work be not attempted until the money to pay for it was in sight.

S. S. Miller as next speaker said his experience in the construction of sidewalks was limited, but it chanced that at one time he resided in a village where the work of improving the streets was undertaken, and the scheme was successfully put through, funds being raised by pie socials, etc.

H. D. Keswick said when the present sidewalks were new and decent they were paid for by the proceeds of a series of basket socials and he could not see why the same thing could not be done over again.

C. H. Taylor thought there could be no question as to the urgent demand for new sidewalks. Speaking of the old time "socials," it was at one of these that he, a very young man, was first initiated into Hartland society. He endorsed the "social" idea; and though that money might have been raised by the "mock trial" of Monday evening had it occurred to the boys to charge an admission fee.

A. A. Rideout strongly favored the getting up of a concert, and also endorsed the "social" scheme.

H. D. Keswick said some help should be given by the road-master.

That west side of Main street disgrace was next brought into discussion. Mr. Porter was vigorous in protesting against conditions remaining as they are. He said the alley or "man-trap" between Richardson, Porter & Co's store and the Post Office was soon to be closed up. Some one then said G. R. Burt had given it out as his intention to put a walk along the front of the vacant lot between Keswick's store and the Ross building.

S. S. Miller moved an Executive Committee be appointed to devise ways and estimates of cost of new sidewalks. The motion was carried and C. H. Taylor, H. D. Keswick and Arnold Porter, together with two others, to be appointed later, were constituted the Committee.

Mr. Keswick moved that a basket social be held next Tuesday evening, April 12 in Burt's Hall. A. A. Rideout and Fred H. Stevens were elected a committee, with power to choose three others to handle affairs in connection with the "social." It was decided to have a short program of music, readings etc, and charge 10 cents admission, to those who did not bring baskets. The latter will be sold at auction.

THAT MOCK TRIAL.

Some time ago two of our popular young men, who are known to be slaves of "the evil weed" made a contract which in effect was that neither would use tobacco any more. The first to break the terms was to purchase a $3.00 hat for the other. Gordon McAdam, for one part, claimed that Frank Leighton, of the other part, had broken faith and he therefor made a demand for the hat, which was refused. McAdam resorted to law. A warrant was issued for Leighton's arrest, and Monday evening was the time appointed for the trial to come off. The plaintiff secured the services of Arnold Porter L. L. B. and the defendant sought defence through Allan A. Rideout, limb of the law. Judge Estey presided. The jury consisted of W. R. Gillin, G. H. Campbell, C. E. Morgan, H. E. Blakeslee, and J. W. Stevens. Mr. Porter stated plainly that his client and the defendant had entered into an agreement, that the first to see the other smoke was to be entitled to a new $3.00 hat, bought and paid for by the other party. He was prepared to prove the defendant guilty.

Gordon McAdam was sworn by Sheriff Charles Rideout, "to tell the lie the whole lie, and nothing but the lie, so help me Dr. Ayer." The book used was a revised version of Ayer's Almanac. Plaintiff related the circumstances under which the contract was made, and said he had seen defendant smoke in his own home. He entered the door and found him puffing away at a five cent cigar. Defendant quickly took it from his lips and threw it under the sofa upon which he was sitting. McAdam immediately picked up the cigar, where upon Leighton exclaimed "Ah! you've caught me!"

Geo. Porter was the first witness called. He said he knew defendant for several years, and had heard of him long before he ever saw him. He was present when contract was made, and

Ode To The Owing.

You may talk about the tariff, and protection and free trade,
And party panaceas for oppressing human ills,
And "improving trade conditions," and the boom that wheat has made,
But the way to stir up business is to pay
your little bills.

If you owe the grocer twenty, and he owes the butcher ten,
And five more to the coal man, and 1 to the ice man five,
Your payment of the twenty helps along three business men,
And the payments they can make in turn make other people thrive

Idle money in your pockets doesn't do you any good;
Unless your bills are all paid up in full
it isn't yours.
Just pay up all you're able, as you wish that others would;
That's the recipe for hard times that invariably cures.

If you pay what you owe others, others still can then pay you;
It's the circulating dollar that the pulse of business thrills.
So set your money working, and then watch
what it will do.
For the way to stir up business is to pay
your little bills.

How an Old Bachelor Went Bye-lo.

The trumpets had just sounded retreat when my servant came in to pull down the curtains and light the lamps in my bachelor quarters. Our regiment was stationed at Fort Spokane, many miles from a town.

"It's very cold out side, sir," said Dolan, as he gave the fire an extra poke that sent the shadows flickering and dancing on the wall. "I believe, sir, it's below freeze. Why, sir," continued Dolan, thoughtfully, "it's as cold as the night we marched to—"

His sentence was never completed, for just then we heard a faint, timid knock.
Dolan opened the door and then with a half-grin he turned to me and said, "A lady to see the lieutenant."

"A lady?" I thought, and half-unconsciously rose to meet her.

"Walk in, me lady," said Dolan, rather ceremoniously, and then my eyes beheld a little figure muffled from head to toes.

"I ruuned away," came boldly from under a big soldier fur cap, almost covering the entire face. "I see cold."

A moment later Dolan and I were both on our knees taking off her overshoes, leggings, and what to my bachelor eyes seemed interminable wraps. It was a pretty picture that met my gaze. A pair of big blue eyes, a head of brows, wavy hair that tumbled in all directions, and a little red mouth that smiled back at me.

"Dick Ransome's kid," whispered Dolan to me; "the mother was buried yesterday."

"And the father?" I asked; but Dolan shook his head.

The child seemed not at all disconcerted and while she prattled away to both of us impartially Dolan, in a few words, told me her history. The substance of it was that her father Ransom, a dissipated private in F Company, and Betty was left motherless, as Dolan had said.

"But who's taking care of her now?" I asked.

"Nobody but Ran-om, sir. I suppose the kid was left alone and wandered off. It'll be a lesson to the villain," he concluded, under his breath.

Now as my establishment was run in a pur-ly masculine fashion, and Dolan was cook, valet, and general factotum, the advent of a female, even of tender years, seemed likely to disturb the usual order of things.

"About dinner, sir?" asked Dolan, actually interpreting my thoughts. After some little time we gravely decided to put a place for Betty at the table, but to confine her to bread and milk.

The experiment was not a complete success. Though Betty's behavior at the table was irreproachable, she rather upset our well-laid plans by asking for whatever she wanted, and to the everlasting disgrace of Dolan and myself, getting it. "After all the little one isn't much trouble," I thought, as I drew my rocker up in front of the fire after dinner, reached for my pipe and lay back in reverie.

"I want my mamma," and I felt the little one at my knee. "Betty wants her mamma!"
I reached down and lifted her up in my lap.

"Shall I tell you a nice story?" I asked, hoping to divert her thoughts from the mother lying under the winter snow Shall I tell Betty about the fairies?"

"Betty wants"—and then with a sudden clapping of the little hands, "Betty wants bye-lo!"

Bye-lo? What in the world was bye-lo?
Probably something to eat. Dolan would know.

"Dolan!"

"Yes sir," he answered, hurrying in.
"The little girl wants bye-lo."

"Sir?"

"Don't stand there saying 'Sir!'" I answered, somewhat unjustly, "but go and get it for her!"

"Get what, sir?"

"Bye-lo, you blockhead!" I thundered.
"Don't you know what it is?"

"Shure I don't, sir," answered Dolan somewhat reproachfully. "Bye-lo? Bye-lo?"
repeating it a number of times. "What is it,
sir?"

The little one answered it for us:
"Bye-lo! Betty wants to go bye-lo. Sing
bye lo."

"Shure 'tis singin' she means, lieutenant," said my irish henchman.

At last we were on the right track. "Bye-lo, sing bye-lo" continued the young despot in petticoats.

There was a pause and then Dolan said, "I once knew a song called Barlow—Billy Barlow; maybe 'tis she's pronouncing wrong,
sir."

"Dolan," somewhat coaxingly, "do you think you could—"

But an emphatic shake of the head was Dolan's reply.

"You might try" I continued. "I've frequently noticed that men with throats like-you"—Dolan made a grab at his throat that was rather funny—"generally sing, and sing rather well, too."

After all, vanity can move us to good as well as to evil.

"If the lieutenant only thought I could,"
said Dolan.

"Try it," I answered, heartily. Try it,
Dolan."

"Bye-low! Sing bye-lo," commanded my lady.

"I think, sir, if I turned me back, for which I ask your pardin—"

"Good idea. Turn your back and sing."

Dolan turned his back, and as I stooped to whisper something to the youngster on my knee, there came a terrific howl that rattled the very windows.

I knew a young soldier called Billee Barlow, with an accent on the "low" that was simply appalling.

"For heaven's sake, man, let up," I shouted, while Betty cried with a little sob in her voice, "Bad man, bad man."

Poor, dear old Dolan? Plainly it was not Billee Barlow the youngster meant, so back to his pots and pans he went and the trouble began again.

"You sing bye-lo for Betty," and a little hand patted my face caressingly. "Rock Betty and sing bye-lo."

"Can you sing it?" I asked.

The question was an inspiration, for she began to croon in a sweet, childish treble:
Bye-lo, baby, bye-lo, baby,
Bye-lo, baby, bye-lo, by.

Then came the request, "You sing bye-lo for Betty."

There was a lump in my throat as I held the motherless little one close to me and began:

Bye-lo, baby, bye-lo, baby,
"Pwitty, pwitty," and a pat on the cheek was my reward. "Rock Betty and sing more."
Bye-lo, baby, bye-lo, baby.

I went on and on. The big blue eyes began to close and the little hand slipped from my shoulder.

Bye-lo, baby, bye-lo, baby,
I sang slower and slower, lower and lower.
Bye-lo, baby, bye-lo, baby.
Bye-lo, baby, bye-lo, baby.
Bye-lo, baby, bye-lo, baby.

LIMESTONE.

A very sad affair occurred in this village a few days ago, when Ralph Getchell committed suicide by shooting himself through the head with a revolver. Just why he did so will never be known. He was a very fine Christian young man. He gave a rather peculiar testimony in meeting a few days before his death. He said among other things, that all was as dark as a dungeon, but he was holding on by faith. Some think religious affairs unbalanced his mind, others point to a love affair. He left for his text the 10th Chapter of Job. If any of your readers will take the pains to read that Chapter they will see what darkness he must have been in. The affair has caused profound sorrow in the community.

A great treat was enjoyed by the people of this town in hearing Rev. Mr. Taylor lecture on the broad subject of Temperance. Among other things, he said women were taking the lead of the men intellectually. The young nation is being weakened by beer drinking and smoking, and at the present rate of things in 25 years there will be a woman in the Presidential chair.

The Crow and the tax-gatherer are in the land.

Several new churches are to be built in Aroostook this summer. We wish Hartland success with the bridge may it be a sure thing.

WINDSOR.

A heavy snow storm accompanied by a gale of wind set in March 31st and continued until April 1st piling snow from three to five feet high.

A flock of wild geese passed over this place April 2nd on their way north.

Mr. Dickinson lost a horse one day last week.

Stephen Giberson of Bristol has moved in the store recently occupied by Thomas Simms, who has gone to Vancouver B.C. Mr. Giberson intends carrying on a general trade.

Candy parties seem to be the order of the day. John Glass had one the night of March 30th there were a goodly number present.

Mr. James Saunders has two men employed cutting cord wood.

FORT FAIRFIELD.

War, war, that is all you hear in this town several town loafers were boasting of their readiness to go, when a disgusted bystander remarked. Yes if war was declared today before dark you would all be over the border the subject was dropped. We all hope and pray for Peace.

Now spring has come all seem to feel more cheerful. Times are looking up some Potatoes hold about the same $1.25, eggs 10 cts, butter 18-20 cents.

A very fine sermon was delivered in the Baptist Hall last Sabbath by R. v. Mrs. Sprague in the absence of the Pastor Rev. Frank Bradeen who at present is visiting his near Bedford.

New Church Members.

Rev. Dr. Chapman of Woodstock and Rev. Mr. Ross of Hartland, pastors of the Methodist church in their respective towns exchanged pulpits on Sunday.

Dr. Chapman preached a very carefully prepared sermon on the subject of Baptism. Of course his plea was for the sprinkling method and his illustrations were logical, his premises well-founded. He freely admitted that the mode of baptism availed nothing. The requisites for the fulfilment of the ordinance were a truly repentant heart and the application of water. The reverend gentleman delivered upon the mode of baptism more especially for the benefit of several candidates who were in waiting. At the close of the sermon, baptism was administered to four persons, who with four others were received in the church.

NEW TIMETABLE.

The new timetable which goes into effect next Monday is quite different from that in force all winter. Trains going north will run as follows: Express as now; Hobo arrives at 3 32 p. m. and remains here 10 minutes and crosses south bound express: Freight arrives at 10.35, departs 10.50, a. m. and crosses the south bound "hobo" here. Going south the Hobo will leave here at 10.50; a. m. Freight, arrive at 11.20 a. m.—departs 12.45; Express leaves at 3.42 p. m. The first train to leave Woodstock for the north departs at 9.30; and the last train to arrive at Woodstock from the north gets there at 4.22 p. m. Parties desiring to go to Woodstock and return the same day can do so by boarding the 10.50 train, and returning on the train leaving Woodstock at 2.30.

Seeds Given Away.

We wish to prove to the public that our essences and spices are of a superior quality. With each cash purchase of a quarter pound of spice or a ten cent bottle of essence, we give one 5 cent package of garden or flower seed. This offer holds good for the remainder of this month. Estey & Curtis.

New Buildings.

Geo. W. Boyer and W. S. Henderson have each begun the erection of new buildings on Main Street. Both buildings will be large tenements with stores on the ground floor.

J. T. G. Carr is raising the roof of his smaller warehouse and is going to finish the upper flat of the same for an annex to the Commercial Hotel, giving the popular hostelry about ten extra rooms.

R. W. Richardson's new house is rapidly nearing completion.

On Thursday a number of young people met and spent a very pleasant evening at the residence of Mr. John Reed.

P. O. Box, 17.

A skeleton of a man, and close to its bony fingers a nugget of the gold he had died to win; the skeleton of his faithful dog beside him; gold scattered around him. Such is the weird story that comes from the North. No artist ever conceived of a more appalling picture of a quest of gold and its tragic ending. What a story the fleshless lips could tell if they could speak! A long and tedious search for the yellow metal; many disappointments; triumph, exultation; the homeward journey begun, the suffering by the way, exhaustion, and then death. Had he companions, and if so where are they? Did thoughts of home and children sustain him in his last struggle for life? These and countless other questions we may ask in vain: for the grinning skeleton on the Arctic desert tells only one thing that men will care to learn—namely, that somewhere beyond the desert there is gold.—Victoria (B. C.) Colonist.

On Thursday an old man, while at work on G. W. Boyer's new building was struck in the head with a potato thrown by a village boy or a "young man." The old gentleman held a broad axe in his hand and when the missile hit him he dropped it. The sharp blade cut through his shoe, making an ugly gash in his foot. The boys laughed. Such things as this occur almost daily.

There has been much expectation and considerable excitement over war matters, and it seems that the climax has been about reached this week. The situation between the States and Spain is assuming a more peaceful aspect.

The Famous Crawford Wheel.

MR. S. S. MILLER
Agent for Crawford Bicycle.
Hartland, N. B.

I find the 1897 Model Crawford I bought from you a most satisfactory, and I believe the best value in the market for the money. It ran better and cost less for repairs than many of the so called $100 wheels selling in this vicinity last year. I find the Crawford people satisfactory persons to do business with and do not hesitate to recommend any one wanting a high grade wheel at a moderate price to purchase a Crawford.

Little Hugh, aged 4, son of Bert Smith of this village, received two ugly gashes in his cheek by falling on a sharp piece of sheet iron. Dr. Estey put four stitches in the wound and now the little fellow is almost as well as ever

The young men whom Goaler Jones and Sheriff Foster arrested on suspicion of firing Sidney Lloyd's buildings are being held for trial at the Circuit Court which opens the 26inst. It is then that Annie Canovan and Mary Tucker will be tried.

The Circuit Court that opens the 26th will be of unusual interest. The docket includes the famous Tucker case, the case of the Crabb boys spoken of last week: and the man Craig who stabbed with a pitch fork a constable in the discharge of his duty.

Ada, four year old child of Isaac Withrow died of inflammation of the brain at her home, South Knowlesville. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Addington Giberson at house and the Free Baptist church at East Windsor. The child's father was one of the party that left for British Columbia last week.

Girls, dont forget to prepare a basket for the "Social" next Tuesday evening.

Damase Cyr, while trying to put the speed belt on for running a shingle machine in the Kennedy Island mills, near Edmundston, Thursday morning, slipped and the saw split his left arm from elbow down to wrist. Two doctors were called. They held a consultation as to whether the arm should be amputated.

John E. Jones, a farmer resident of this place died of hemorrhage of the lungs at his home at Montague, Maine, on March 9th. His remains were buried at that place, but later may be brought here for interment. He has a son buried in the old grave-yard here. He leaves a wife, one married daughter, and two sons.

At the Baptist parsonage, Florenceville, on April 2nd, Harry W. Stiles was married to Lizzie A. Gallupe, both of Florenceville. Rev. A. H. Hayward pastor, was the officiating clergyman. Also at the residence of the bride's father, Forest Glen, N. B., on March 30, by Rev. Mr. Hayward, George Miles McCrea of Perth Centre, to Albina Jane, second daughter of Deacon Alexander Walker, of Forest Glen.

A terrible calamity occurred at Shawneetown, Ill. on Sunday. There were 200 lives lost in a manner similar to the horrible Johnstown flood of nine years ago. A levee that confined the Ohio River burst and let the waters rush in upon the town. The disaster was terrible. Only two buildings of a town larger than Hartland remain. The others were swept away on the turbulent flood, and the occupants endeavoured, often vainly, to scramble to the roofs for safety. Many buildings caught fire and added terror and greater destruction to the scene. One fourth of the population escaped: the remainder were drowned or killed. No food, not even for a single meal, was left in the town. The affair was truly terrible.

Nurse Morris' Secret.
Explains How She Saves Mothers' Lives.

The Critical Time of Natority and the Methods of a Famous Nurse to Restore the Mother's Strength.

From the Evening News, Detroit, Mich.

No woman is better fitted for nursing, or has had more years of practical experience in that work than Mrs. Moses Morris, of 310 Fourteenth street Detroit, Mich. For twenty years she has been recognised as the best and most successful nurse in confinement cases, and over three hundred happy mothers can testify to her skilful nursing and care. Always engaged months ahead, she has had to decline hundreds of pressing and pleading applications for her services. She has made a specialty of confinement cases, and has made so high a reputation in this city that her engagement, in all cases, is taken as a sure sign of the mother's speedy recovery.

Mrs. Morris was a nurse in England before she came to America, and so was her mother and her mother's mother before her. When asked once by a leading physician the secret of her great success in treating mothers in confinement cases, she said she used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People in such cases, as they build up the mother more quickly and surely than any other medicine she had ever used.

Mrs. Morris was seen at her pretty little home on Fourteenth Street, and when asked regarding the use of these pills in her profession, she said: "I have used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People since they were put on the market. They built me up when I was all run down and so nervous I could not get any rest. After they had helped me I began to use them in restoring mothers in confinement cases. There is nothing that can be prescribed or given by a physician that will give health and strength to a mother so quickly as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. It is true that in some cases where the father or parent were prejudiced against the much advertised Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I gave them as "Tonic Pills," but they all came out of a Dr. Williams' Pink Pill box.

"I have given them in hundreds of cases of confinement to the mother, and it is wonderful how they build up the system. I have practically demonstrated their great worth many times and have recommended them to hundreds of mothers for their young daughters. Yes, I have been successful in confinement cases, but I must give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People a great part of the credit for the speedy recovery of mothers. They certainly have no equal as a strength and health builder. You can say for me that I strongly advise that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People be kept and used in every house."

All the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves are contained, in a condensed form, in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental strain, over-work or excesses of whatever nature. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose bulk) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $3.50 and may be had at all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

THAT MOCK TRIAL.

corroborated McAdam's version. Other witnesses were William McAdam, H. D. Keswick, Herb. Dickinson, L. B. G. Thistle, and Stephen Durkee.

Frank Leighton, defendant called to the stand, said he had been loafing all winter and had been giving McAdam a good deal of tobacco off and on. He knew it was injuring him. He started out on March 25 to do him good. He would induce him to quit. He was first to broach the contract, he had agreed to it himself, and has not smoked since. (Smiles)

Herbert Dickinson in his testimony said he and McAdam went to Woodstock on March 25 and stopped at the Aberdeen Hotel. Evidence asked if McAdam bought anything there. Porter objected to the question. The judge gave a ruling in Rideout's favor, however, and Dickinson stated McAdam bought cigars and both smoked. McAdam, recalled, stated he went to Woodstock but did not buy any cigars and did not smoke.

There was much interesting testimony and lack of space is the only reason why it is not given.

The lawyers addresses to the jury were really specimens of oratory, and were teeming over with wit, satire, and salient points generally.

The jury after being out about five minutes returned with a verdict of soft beer for the jurymen and costs divided between the plaintiff and defendant.

The court room was packed, there being fully 200 spectators.

Reported from Winnipeg.

A letter from the boys, who left here for the west last week, says: We have arrived here after three days and nights journey from Hartland. This a fine city, is very level, and the streets are wide and clean. The snow is about 14 inches deep on the plains. There are some very fine buildings; have a nice Electric Street Railway. The stores are large and look nice under the electric light. We intend to start for the coast in the morning.

It is reported here times are very good at Seattle. The keels for 58 vessels are laid at that place. Eleven cars loaded with passengers left Montreal Wednesday morning, for the coast. Two train loads on the 29 so you see how fast people are crowding in.

Yours truly

My Rival.

About his brow are clustering curls—
 Curls with a golden tint—
 His eyes are bright, and in their light
 I always find a hint
 Of triumph, when he looks at me
 And smiles in his witching way.
 "I share the heart of the woman you love,"
 I hear my rival say.
 The woman I love, I know loves his,
 Her manner tells me so,
 I covertly watch, and in her eyes
 I see the telltale glow
 Of a love as strong as the years are long
 And as deep as the mighty sea,
 And I often wonder which she loves best,
 My triumphant rival of me.
 My rival and I are the best of friends,
 He surely will tell you so.
 The tender heart of the woman we love
 Is faithful to both, we know.
 No envious thoughts nor jealous pangs
 Have disturbed my dream of joy,
 For the woman, long since, became my wife,
 And my rival's our baby boy.
 —THOMAS HOLMES

"Little Muddy Turtle."

In one of the public schools of Cleveland, the teacher of the primary class has been reading Longfellow's "Hiawatha" to her pupils, and they enjoy the rhythm of the poem, if they do not understand all its verses. Says the Cleveland "Plain Dealer":

When they come to a hard word the teacher goes to the blackboard and draws a picture to illustrate its meaning. This the pupils find highly entertaining, and it helps in quite a remarkable way to fix the text in their minds. A few days ago they came to this line in the early part of the poem:

At the door on summer evenings sat the little Hiawatha.
 "At—th, door—on sum-mer evenings sat th' lit-tle—," read the children. "Go on," said the teacher; but they didn't go on. The name of Hiawatha was too much for them. They knew who Hiawatha was, but they didn't recognize his name.

So the teacher went to the board and took considerable pains in drawing. First, a wigwam with the poles sticking up above it, and a rude aboriginal painting on the side; second, little Hiawatha, with feathers in his hair, squatted at the wigwam door; third, a fine harvest moon. Then she pointed at Hiawatha and asked what it was. There was a general craning of necks and shaking of heads.

"Come, come," cried the teacher, "you know what that is."

Then one little girl spoke up. "I guess I know what it is, teacher."

"You may tell the class, Laura."

"I guess it's a mud turtle." And instantly, with one accord, the class glibly repeated:

At th' door on sum-mer eve-nings sat the lit-tle mud-dy tur-tle.

And the teacher feels that her reputation for artistic cleverness had received a cruel blow.

Tit For Tat.

Among the advertisements in a provincial paper there recently appeared the following:

"The gentleman who found a purse with money in Burford street, is requested to forward it to the address of the loser, as he was recognized."

A few days afterwards the reply was inserted:

"The recognized gentleman who picked up a purse in Buford street requests the loser to call at his house."

—Pearson's Weekly.

A Peculiar People.

It is a frequent accusation against Christians that little difference is apparent between them and people who make no profession of allegiance to Christ. This implies that some visible difference is expected. It certainly is true also that such a difference always has been insisted upon by Christians themselves, who thus have conceded the fairness of the claim that it ought to be evident. In what sense, then, is a Christian believer bound to be unlike others?

It is not enough to reply that he is bound to be pure, peaceable, unselfish and diligent in all good endeavor. This is true of him, but it is equally true of every one else. Nobody is a real Christian of whom this is not true—at least so far as concerns the ruling spirit and purpose of his life—but nobody of whom this is true is, therefore a Christian. Wherein, then, lies the peculiarity of the Christian? Is it not in this fact that he is animated, as no one else is, by the distinct purpose of imitating and honoring Jesus Christ?—Congregationalist.

A Young Emigrant

The following story told by Saturdays Montreal Witness is one that will certainly touch one's sympathy: When Jacob Fabian, aged twelve, arrived this morning at the Windsor station, having all alone, completed the journey from Finland, he met with such sympathy from the officials and others as caused the sturdy little fellow to break down for the first time. He began to speak in his own tongue, at which Constable Richards and the crowd shook their heads; but when the tears of grateful feeling began to fall, every creature understood him. In the end, too, one was found who could speak in the stranger's tongue, and from him it was learned that his father had left the old land some years ago, settling in Minnesota. From there he had sent money home to his mother, who took ill and died. Then his father sent over the price of his passage; he came out alone. He had still to go forward to his final destination, but his ticket was all right, and all he wanted, according to Constable Richards, was a good meal, which he immediately set about providing for the lad. It is an instruction of Sir William Van Horne that any passenger who, while waiting over, needs creature comforts, is to be supplied at the expense of the company. Jacob leaves in the evening for his distant home in the west.

The Montreal Witness reminds the people of Canada that great as are its gold fields its agricultural resources are greater and more enduring. We showed the other day that the hens of Canada yielded annually a great deal more money than the gold mines had yet done in any year, or any two or three years for that matter.—Victoria Colonist.

B. AIKEN, of Zephyr, Ont., is one in point. Her husband says that she had been doctoring with several doctors for inflammation of the Bladder for over a year.

"The last bottle I got from the doctor he said if that did her no good she would be compelled to have an operation performed. I luckily picked up a sample of Dr. Chase's K-L Pills in Mr. Dafoc's store, and my wife took one pill that night and one in the morning, and she has never felt the least sign of pain since. I will always keep Dr. Chase's Pills in my house for all our family complaints."
