THE BIRCHALL CASE.

How the Prisoner Spent the Day Before the Trial.

The Case Begun—Choosing a Jury—Birchall Retains His Phenomenal Self-Possession.

WOODSTOCK, Sept. 22.—Last night, according to the statements of the jail officials, Birchall was resting quietly, apparently undisturbed by the approaching event. He spent the day much as he has spent other Sundays since his incarceration. In the morning his spiritual adviser, Rev. Rural Dean Wade, attended at the jail, and the usual service was held, the clergyman and the prisoner only taking part. In the afternoon Mrs. Birchall paid her husband a visit, remaining with him as long as the regulations permitted. She shows more clearly than ever the effect of the nervous strain upon her, and gives way more easily to her sorrow. The prisoner returned to his night cell at the usual hour, and went to bed early.

The statement that Neville I. Pickthall whose name has been connected with this case, had disappeared and could not be found was most satisfactorily proven to be an erroneous one by that gentleman appearing in town Saturday, and he is ready to give his testimony when called upon.

In the churches several of the preachers made more or less direct reference to the case which is occupying everybody's attention. In Chalmers Church Rev. W. A. McKay, in the course of his sermon, said: "A young man is found dead in a neighboring swamp. He has been murdered. A more cruel, cold-blooded murder has seldom been heard of. One charged with the murder lies in yonder jail, to be put tomorrow on trial for his life. Our town is stirred over the awful event as seldom before. A very deep interest is taken in the matter, not only throughout this whole land, but also in the United States and across the Atlantic. Let the investigation be thorough and impartial and let justice be done, is the stern demand everywhere."

Rev. Mr. Verden, of Cathcart, who occupied the pulpit of the Central Methodist Church in the absence of the regular pastor, Rev. Mr. Russ, used the pending case to enforce the lesson of the value of human life.

Rev. Dr. McMullen, pastor of Knox Church, did not speak of the trial in his sermon, but in his prayer he pleaded for divine grace to the prisoner, for wisdom to those who were to sit in judgment upon him and for the vindication of justice in this as in every case.

Birchall's Trial Begun.

THE PRISONER'S APPEARANCE.

[Special to the ADVERTISER.]

WOODSTOCK, Sept. 22.—Birchall's trial for the murder of Benwell opened this morning. The prisoner, who had slept well during the night, rose early, dressed in the suit he has worn during his incarceration and had breakfast. He then made a careful toilet and came out of his room the picture of a pleasant-faced young gentleman of good taste. He was brought to court at 10:40 in a cab accompanied by his special guard, John T. Entwhistle, Deputy Sheriff Perry and Chief of Police Young, of Niagara Falls. He looked pale and rather excited in his new surroundings, but betrayed no more nervousness than any other person taking an important part in the case. There was a throng of people about the courtroom, but beyond curiosity no emotion was expressed by those in the crowd at the sight of prisoner. Entwhistle took his seat immediately behind the prisoner. The box in which the prisoner sat is a temporary affair, and is so built that as he sits in it his head barely appears above the top. This will be a great disappointment to those who desire to follow the expression of the prisoner's face.

Judge MacMahon entered the court room at 10:40 and went to his room. The formalities of the court were most impressive. During the calling of the jury the prisoner stood quietly and seemed to take only the interest of an ordinary spectator in all that passed. His face betrayed absolutely

NO UNUSUAL EMOTION.

A number of ladies in court, sitting on the stage behind the judge's bench, kept him under close scrutiny, but he did not seem to notice them. Neither Mrs. Birchall nor her sister, Mrs. West-Jones, were in court. Following is a list of

THE JURY:

Albert Clare, Augustus Bushel, Robert Murray, Donald Murray, Albert McCann, Daniel McLean, Joseph Lingbielo, A. P. McKay, Jas. McKay, Geo. Christopher, John McKay, J. D. Smith. The jury having been sworn all the Crown witnesses were ordered to withdraw until 1:35 p.m. The departure of those summoned as jurymen about half cleared the court room, so many were they.

OPENING FOR THE CROWN.

B. B. Osler, Q. C., leading counsel for the Crown, rose at noon to make the opening speech. He began with a fair and moderate appeal for justice to the prisoner and explained that it was only fair to the defense that they should know the case that the Crown had to present. Mr. Osler went on to state the circumstances of the tragedy beginning with the finding of the body. There was nothing of special interest in his statement of the case except indications that there would be clearer evidence than ever of the presence of Birchall and Benwell on the train and near the swamp at the time of the alleged murder.

(Press Dispatch.)

WOODSTOCK, Sept. 22.—Among the preparations showing the greatest enterprise is the telegraph apparatus of the Great Northwestern Telegraph Company which is run into the court room so that messages and reports can be sent direct from the reporters' tables. Birchall was faultlessly dressed in dark clothes and carried in his hand a neat Derby hat. His face was pale and the pupils of his dark eyes dilated. The prisoner when arraigned pleaded "not guilty" in a firm voice, and on being asked if he was ready for trial, Blackstock, Q.C., rose and announced himself as prisoner's counsel and ready to proceed. The challenges in securing the jury were not many on either side, and most of those of the defense were for "favor," in other words, because the juror had formed an opinion against the prisoner. The last juror was chosen at 11:50, after about three quarters of an hour of proceedings. Mr. Osler, Q.C., dwelt upon the prisoner's career of deceit in Woodstock in 1888, when he was known as Lord Somerset. His statement was only one side of the case however, and the defense will have an opportunity to challenge every utterance.

BUSY LEISURE.

How Mr. Gladstone Spends His Holidays.

Hundreds of Tons of Grapes Destroyed at Marseilles—The Sultan of Zanzibar Will Deal Severely with Slave-Traders.

Hundreds of Tons of Grapes Destroyed.

MARSEILLES, Sept. 22.—By the collapse of a canal bank yesterday six square miles at Mallemart were submerged. Hundreds of tons of grapes were destroyed and many cattle drowned.

Arab Slave-Dealers to be Severely Dealt With.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—A dispatch from Zanzibar says the Sultan will deal severely with the crew of Arab slave-dealers captured by boats from a British man-of-war. All the members of the crew except the captain, who was shot by the English, escaped to the shore, but several have been captured.

Patti's Russian Arrangement.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—It is now just twenty years since Patti took St. Petersburg by storm and received the memorable decoration of the Order of Merit from the Czar's own hands. She is to celebrate the anniversary of that event by returning this winter for twelve appearances in St. Petersburg and Moscow, six in opera and six in concert. She is to receive $60,000, in addition to a free special railway train and expenses for herself and suite.

Mr. Gladstone's Holiday Occupation.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—That distinguished Hellenist, Mr. Gladstone, having finished moving all his books into his new library at Hawarden Castle, is now filling in his holiday leisure by writing a lot of essays for his favored magazines. A new hint of the amazing range of his versatility is given today in the announcement that he will shortly publish an article on the Mosaic diet, with special regard to the dislike of the ancients for pork, to which, by some unexplained mental process, he thinks is due the fact that the Jews in Germany show a very small percentage of color-blindness.

LAST MOMENT DISPATCHES.

Emperor Francis Joseph and Count Kalnoky have returned to Vienna. The Fremdenblatt comments on the significance of the imperial meeting and the Austrian Emperor's decoration of the German Chancellor.

Wm. O'Brien, speaking of the arrest of Dillon and himself, says the Government evidently intend to have a sort of state trial, which would cover every petty act and imprudent speech since the Tipperary fight commenced.

Two families of gypsies camped at the ford of the creek about a mile north of Evansville, Ark., the other night. Next morning six out of a party of nine were found drowned. It is supposed a cloudburst deluged the spot.

The Verner family at Danville, Ill., consisting of the husband, wife and three small children, have been poisoned by rat poison, which was put into a new pump. One little girl died, one of the boys cannot live, and it is doubtful if Mr. Verner can recover.

A terrible fight occurred between a sheriff's posse and a gang of Italian railroad laborers near Wayne Court House, Va., Friday. A new contractor put laborers to work in a cut formerly worked by the Italians. The Italians refused to allow anyone to work in the cut until they had received their pay. Firing became general and lasted some minutes. Several Italians were found in the last throes of death and several more were wounded. The sheriff's men escaped with a few severe bruises and took about twenty prisoners.

THE WORLD OF WORK.

Eight thousand lace workers are idle at Calais in consequence of the strike.

The labor conference at Sydney has sent a telegram to John Burns requesting him to prevent the engagement of foreign labor in England.

The International Brotherhood of Railroad Conductors has decided that Toledo shall be the headquarters of the order. Past Chief Conductor W. Howard will be re-elected.

A movement is on foot to establish an eight-hour league in Toronto, and it has been decided to call a convention of representatives of all labor organizations in Toronto and vicinity for the purpose of organizing, if deemed advisable, for that purpose.

The Toronto Trades and Labor Council have instructed their Municipal Committee to wait upon the civic authorities and urge enforcement of the penalty due to the violation of the clause in city contracts calling for the payment of a minimum rate of 15 cents per hour for manual labor performed on such contracts. It is claimed that in some cases only 14 cents and even 13 cents is paid.

Blown to Atoms.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 25.—The boiler of an engine attached to a freight train on the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railway exploded last night at Sherman Heights. All that can be found of the engineer and fireman is a coat. The brakeman was seriously injured and the engine was blown to atoms.

She's a Farmer at 100.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Sept. 22.—The oldest woman in the Union county is Mrs. Nancy Baker, who has just attained the age of 100 years, and at a recent reunion four generations were present to do her honor. Mrs. Baker was born near Springfield, N. J. She has lived near her birthplace for a full century, never moving more than 40 miles from her father's homestead. During her life she has been accustomed to drinking strong tea or coffee at every meal. Her face sight is remarkably good, as she has never used eyeglasses. Her voice and her memory for dates are remarkable. Her appearance would not indicate an age above 70 or 80 years. Mrs. Baker personally conducts the management of a farm near Westfield. It is twelve acres in extent, and one of the best paying farms in Union county. During the past harvest time Mrs. Baker went to the harvest field to watch the men cutting hay. One of the laborers did not swing his scythe to suit, and, taking the implement from him, she showed him how to use it in an efficient manner. She remembers when central New Jersey was one vast wilderness.

CHILDREN'S DAY.

Specially 'Twas Given That They Might See the Fair.

What the Wee Ones Talked About and the People Who Were There.

Exhibits Were Attractive and Races Keenly Fought—Jottings from the Buildings and Others Elsewhere Caught.

Half a yard, half a foot, half an inch onward, into the Western Fair came many hundred. They went there to reason why, went there to seek reply, went there to run —or fly—bravely and hungered. Children in front of one, children to left of one, children all round one, shouted and clustered; there by the peanut stands, there by the big brass bands, lively with feet and hands, many were mustered.

That the little people appreciated having Saturday set apart especially for them to witness the sights of Western Ontario's great Fair was evidenced by the swarms of them to be seen. The weather was cold and rather cloudy, but no rain fell, and occasionally the sun beamed forth so as to remind those who tread terra firma that it was only withholding its warm rays in order to give sufficient for the remaining big days of the Fair. The main building exhibits were all in place, and the steam power was for the first time supplied to the shafting for the various processes of manufacture. Business cards and catalogues, no matter how numerous, could not meet the demand. The youngsters began to arrive in squads at 8 o'clock in the morning, and until the afternoon continued to crowd in through the gates. Most of them brought heavily-laden lunch baskets and appeared prepared to stay for a good, solid day's fun, while their numerous nickels were rapidly transferred into taffy, popcorn and lolly-pops. They surged through the buildings, disregarding the "hands off" signs, asking questions enough to worry any but very patient attendants and enjoying and wondering at all they saw as well as everything they heard. Around the sideshows they clustered and gazed in open-mouthed amazement at the men who proclaimed the wonders of what could be seen by stepping on the inside, or cheered with delight as the big swings and merry-go-rounds gave them cause. When the sports in the ring commenced they strung around the picket fence and applauded the exploits of the rifle expert or showed interest in the horse races.

A great many adults were there, too, and were quite as interested as the smaller folks. The judges in nearly all the departments got through their work and the coveted red, blue and yellow cards were displayed with pride by the successful exhibitors. In the various buildings, the machinery hall, the cattle sheds, horse stables, and open air departments everything is now ready for the great crowds which are expected each day this week.

THE AMATEUR PHOTOGRAPHERS.

Among the main building attractions is the exhibit of the members of the London Camera Club in the amateur photographers' classes at the southern side of the main building gallery. During the past year the amateur photographers of the city organized a club and secured a large meeting-room in the Robinson Hall, Dundas street, in which is situated one of the finest dark-rooms of the city. There the members have met from time to time, and the benefit derived from the interchange of ideas and the use of the dark-room is shown in the specimens of work displayed at the Western Fair. The officers of the club are: President, A. J. Ferguson; vice-president, the Dean of Huron; secretary-treasurer, Mr. H. J. Jewell; executive, H. E. Saunders, J. A. Muirhead, J. B. Dignam. Among the members who exhibit photos are A. J. Ferguson, H. S. Saunders and J. F. Hood who show landscapes, figures and interiors, and when considered in connection with some of the professional work, their efforts are really creditable. Mr. J. R. Seavey also shows some fine photographs, the display of interior work being splendid. This section attracts considerable attention and those interested in amateur photography can fully appreciate this exhibit, while the benefits of such a club—open to all who wish to join—are apparent.

During an interval in the racing events Prof. C. A. Damon, the world-renowned rifle and pistol shot, better known as "Left-handed Charley," gave an exhibition of his skill. The first part of his programme was devoted to the rifle shooting. An assistant held a number of small composition sheets on a stick, which the shooter broke with the rifle held in every conceivable position and with his back to the target by taking sight in a small piece of looking glass. His work with the revolver was still more satisfactory, and after shooting at all kinds of target shots he shot about a dozen cards from the head of one of his men. The climax was reached when he cut an ordinary card in two as clean as a knife. The light was bad for rifle shooting on account of the trees in the neighborhood, but the performer managed to hit a quarter thrown into the air. The crowd loudly cheered the performance.

Speeding in the Ring.

The special attractions in the horse ring were brought on shortly after 2 o'clock when the Seventh Fusiliers band entered the lower end of the ring, and marched up to the judges' stand, and from there to the band stand, from which they discoursed an excellent programme during the afternoon. The gentlemen who consented to conduct the racing events were: Ald. Dreaney, starter; Messrs. J. Marshall, J. R. Minhinnick and D. McMillan, judges; L. Odell, time-keeper; and Frank Leys, clerk.

THREE-MINUTE TROT.

The first event brought on was the three-minute trot. Six horses were entered in this race, drawing the following positions: Bay John, Paddy, Billy B., Fly, Little Ted and Woody G. After several false starts they came down well together and were sent off, Johnston's Bay John taking the lead and gradually pulling away from Paddy, his nearest competitor. At the half mile the positions were unchanged, the leader trotting like an old-timer. On the last half the other horses began to string out, Billy B. taking third with the roan some distance behind. The finish was made in the same order, Fly and Woody G. being distanced. Time—2:45.

In the second heat the four remaining got away nicely, and the pole horse took the lead. At the half mile it looked as if the Johnston gelding would pump out, but he stuck to it and won the heat. Little Ted and Paddy made a good race for second, but the roan repeatedly broke. He finished second, but was put back for crossing Paddy. Billy B. was distanced. Time—2:42¼.

An interval of half an hour between the second and third heats gave Bay John a chance to freshen up, and when the three horses were sent off in the last heat he again went to the front, and led all the way around the course, finishing in 2:43½. Paddy secured second money, and Little Ted third. Summary:

Three-minute trot—Open to all; best 3 in 5. Prizes $50, $30 and $20:

Bay John, b. g., E. F. Johnston, London	1	1	1
Paddy, g. g., H. McKay, London	2	2	2

Fly, g. m., G. H. Monger, Lobo	dis.
Woody G., c. g., James McCartney, Thamesford	dis.

Time—2:45, 2:42½, 2:43½.

STALLIONS' TROT.

A field of seven horses took the track for the stallions' trot. Jack Stanton got the pole, the other horses getting the positions in order—Tom Birr, Morelight, Sir Bonner, Valentine George, Ed. Clay and Chester. The result of the race surprised a great many of the spectators. Morelight trotted in fine style, but was not fast enough for the company. Stanton went to the front, but broke badly, cast one of his fore shoes, and was passed by Ed. Clay, who had steadily pulled out from the rear. The chestnut continued to increase his lead and finished easily two lengths ahead of Stanton, Morelight getting in third. Time, 2:45½.

In the second heat the chestnut went rapidly to the front, and before half of the ring had been traversed was several yards in advance of the field. The others could not keep up the pace and strung out all along the track, Stanton and Morelight being second and third respectively. The chestnut won the heat in 2:42, Sir Bonner being distanced.

Ed. Clay broke badly on the first half mile and was passed by Stanton. The bay was unfortunate enough to cast another shoe and was in turn passed by Chester. Ed. Clay went to pieces and Morelight crept into third place. The Stratford horse passed under the wire a winner in 2:44.

Chester was the pole horse for the fourth heat and kept it all the way around the course. Morelight improved his standing by climbing into second place. Stanton and Ed. Clay finished third and fourth respectively. Time, 2:43½.

Morelight showed good speed in the final heat, but could not keep up the Chester gait and dropped behind into third place. Stanton and Chester made an excellent race for first place on the home stretch. Chester proved too fast for Stanton, who broke just in front of the wire and Chester finished a winner in 2:45. Summary:

Stallions' trot—Open to all stallions not less than 15½ hands high and sound, and had been a full season in the stud of 1890. Prizes $50, $30 and $15.

RUNNING RACE.

Old Glendaly had everything his own way in the running race, Malin, his jockey, pulling the old timer up occasionally in order to allow Bay Billy and Bolander to catch up. Black, the jockey of Bay Billy, pushed his horse hard in the first heat, but had no show with Glendaly. Bolander was ridden by the veteran jockey J. Bone, but was not in the race. The first heat was won in 2:00 and the second in 2:08 by Glendaly. Bay Billy secured second money. Summary:

Running race (open to all) best two in three; prizes, $40, $20 and $10:

Glendaly, b. s., Frank Sage, London	1	1
Bay Billy, b. g., James McCartney, Thamesford	2	2
Bolander, c. g., J. S. Severance, London	3	3

Time, 2:00, 2:08.

BOYS' RUNNING RACE.

The running race for horses ridden by jockeys under 14 years brought out four competitors. When the jockeys were in the saddle the judges could not believe that they were within the prescribed age, but on inquiry all protested that they would not be 14 until the next month. Astronomer, an Aylmer horse, won the race with ease, Tom, an Ingersoll animal, getting second. Time not taken. Summary:

Boys' race—Open to horses that had never competed for public money, to be ridden by jockeys under 14 years. Prizes, $10 and $5:

THE DOG SHOW.

The dog show was opened at noon to-day and it is beyond doubt the best ever held in the city, as the entries are more numerous, while the cream of the Toronto Show is also here. Among the entries are found the Woodland kennels of cocker spaniels, Woodstock; Dixon kennels of Gordon setters, Philadelphia; the Kildare kennel of Irish setters, of Pittsburg, Pa., valued at $60,000; Covert's famous Irish setters, of Chicago, including the great challenge setter, Dick Swiveler, valued at $15,000; Cryer kennel of pugs from Philadelphia; Chestnut Hill kennels of collies, Philadelphia, including nine entries amongst which are Squire and Scotilla, the pair being valued at $20,000; Wooddale kennel of fox terriers, of Troy, N. Y.; August Belmont's kennel of fox terriers from New York; Oxford kennel of fox terriers, this city; Seminole kennels of Irish setters, Philadelphia; Wilson's kennel of German boarhounds, from Chatham; Brant cocker kennels, from Brantford; Shelley Hudson's great kennels of English setters from Covington, Ky., valued at $60,000; Pottersburg kennel of St. Bernards, belonging to S. F. Glass. The greatest attraction of the dog show is the great German boarhound Melac, belonging to Dr. Nichol, of Chicago, valued at $20,000. He is a dog of immense bone and height, standing nearly 36 inches and weighing nearly 200 pounds, and is one of the finest specimens of the breed living. He was bred in the Emperor of Germany's kennels.

TUESDAY'S PROGRAMME.

A large number of American visitors are expected from Michigan, Ohio and other States of the Union, as the day is set apart as "United States Day." A CENTER OF ATTRACTION.

Bowman Kennedy & Co.'s exhibit of general shelf and builders' hardware, sporting goods, silverware, etc., is the center of attraction in the crystal palace at the Western Exhibition. It is something special and is certainly worth seeing. For size, skill, neatness and variety it has never been surpassed during the annals of the Western Fair.

They occupy one of the four large squares situated in the center of the palace, to the southeast of the water fountain. Their exhibits, like their warerooms and offices, 189 to 182 York street, are models of neatness, and go to show how their business is conducted, and judging by the steady increase in their trade during the three years they have been in business they are fast becoming the leading wholesale hardware of the West.

Returning again to their exhibit the visitor sees large cards extending some nine feet from the floor built in a pyramid form, on which is displayed cutlery of all kinds, including pocket and table cutlery, scissors, razors, etc.; a large variety of builders' hardware, on which neither labor nor money has been spared to make the display a good one; axes, cross-cut saws, files, mechanics' tools, farming tools, such as forks, hoes, rakes, spades, shovels, scythes, etc., all tastefully arranged.

Leading up a flight of stairs above all this is another display of Hares' brass tea scales, carpet sweepers, and another pyramid of powder tins, representing the different lines they handle, including FF and FFF sporting; Northwest and Orange rifle; also the celebrated Trap and Lead-shot powder, well and favorably known to sportsmen. Messrs. Bowman, Kennedy & Co. are headquarters for powder, as they handle it in large quantities. They have a large, substantial brick magazine some three miles from the center of the city, and get their powder in by the carload, so that they can meet all competition in this line.

To the south of this pyramid proper are two large show cases, No. 1 containing silverware, one of the finest displays ever shown in this city, one article alone—an epergne (consisting of nine pieces) and listed at $162—is worthy of special notice. In fact the whole collection is simply "elegant." Case No. 2 consists of sporting goods, and is also a very fine display, including breech-loading shotguns, rifles, revolvers and ammunition of all kinds. For good reliable guns the above named firm is in the front rank. Although they are compelled to handle some low grade goods to meet competition; still they do not recommend them. The Richards, Clabrough and Greener guns, both hammer and hammerless, are the kind of arms they delight in selling and guns they can recommend and will also be recommended by any one using them. Their motto is good goods at close prices and good treatment of their customers. Give them a call.

THE RECLINING AND HAMMOCK CHAIRS.

In the first gallery of the main building, just back of the northern stairway, was the unique display of the Reclining and Hammock Chair Company, of Parkhill. The chairs turned out by this company are simply a new revelation of comfort and adaptability. Time was when the world marveled at the production of a chair which, by means of complicated mechanism, could be made to assume a variety of stiff positions. The new gospel of ease, however, presents a chair which conforms absolutely to the position of the person occupying it. To move the body is to move the chair, so that it supports the frame most comfortably in any position. Moreover, this chair can be swung at a moment's notice and used as a hammock chair, the pleasure of swinging gracefully being added to the comfort of the most desirable reclining chair ever produced. There is a most useful and valuable [illegible] feature to this chair also. In a m[illegible] it can be doubled into compact shape for removal to the summer cottage or the ocean steamer, to be swung on the veran[illegible] placed on the deck as may be [illegible] There is a head-rest, easily adjus[illegible] and adding much to the value of the chair as a reading-chair. There are samples on exhibition differently upholstered, showing the great variety in which the chair can be made. Its low price as compared with other reclining chairs (ranging from $8 upwards, according to the style of upholstering), and its durable construction and fine finish, make it a thing to be desired in every home in Canada.

A NOVELTY IN KNITTING.

One of the most ingenious of the many labor-saving mechanical appliances in the main building at the late Industrial Fair was the Standard Automatic Knitting Machine, which was to be seen at work in the gallery just over the soap works. The machine is the invention of Mr. Kay, of Messrs. Kay & Co., Georgetown, the well-known manufacturers of power and hand knitting machines. The contrivance is of the simplest possible character, yet, withal, wonderfully perfect in its structure. It was only completed on Thursday last, and is the first ever exhibited in Canada. The advantage it possesses over ordinary power machines is obvious when it is stated that one girl can look after from five to seven of them, each capable of turning out from six to ten dozen of knitted goods in a day. The inventor has overcome the difficulty that has puzzled mechanicians for years—how to provide for the heels of the stockings being knitted automatically. The machine is so constructed that it adjusts itself when time for knitting the heel arrives, and when the heel is finished it goes on with the foot just as if controlled by the human will.

A SUCCESSFUL COMPANY.

A reporter of the ADVERTISER, taking in the late Industrial Fair, met a leading fire insurance man, and in conversation learned from him that the fire insurance business in Canada this year was likely to be more profitable than for many years.

Turning around he saw Mr. McCabe, managing director of the North American Life Company, of Toronto, and the reporter, anxious for news, thought it a good opportunity to learn how the life business was progressing. Mr. McCabe was ready to give any information desired. He said: "So far as our company is concerned, I certainly think it will be the best year we have ever had; at least, that has been our experience up to date. The outlook for business is encouraging, crops have been fairly good and prices are satisfactory; this means a help to our agents, and the result, more business for the company, besides, policy-holders will be better able to contribute and increase their insurance. I see no reason why all our properly-managed home companies should not meet with a fair measure of success this year." The reporter suggested that several companies had a great variety of plans now, and inquired whether they excelled the old plans. "Undoubtedly," said Manager McCabe, "formerly a man had to pay till death, whereas now he has the option of terminating his contract at the end of fifteen or twenty years, and, if the policy be on the investment plan, he will not only have his life insured for the term, but in addition get a good return for his money. Talking of the old plan reminds me that two or three years ago one of our vice-presidents, a man of successful and financial experience, mentioned at one of our agents' conventions that he had been insured for many years in an old Scotch company and had paid in premiums considerably more than the face of the policy. He regretted very much that when a young man no opportunity was offered him to secure an investment policy such as our company is now offering the public.

"The North American has gone further than this, however, and is issuing policies upon which, after being ten years in force, the company will lend the insured the balance of the premiums to make his payments, and if the insured should die before the end of the investment period the full amount of the policy becomes payable without deduction of the loan. Yes, we think it is a splendid plan, as it offers the insured so many advantages.

"Now, for one getting up in years or a young man wishing to save some money we have a 7 per cent. guaranteed income bond."

"What form is that?"

"Why, at the end of fifteen or twenty years the insured can draw out his cash surplus, have a paid-up policy for the full amount of his policy, and in addition draw an annual cash income of 7 per cent. on the face of the policy so long as he lives."

Further conversation with Mr. McCabe was abruptly terminated by the pressure of the crowd carrying the reporter to another part of the building.

AWAY OUT WEST.

Distinguishing Characteristics of the Opening-Up Lands.

Ontario Men the Principal Settlers Now Going In.

To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:

As many of my friends wished to hear from me regarding my impressions, etc., of Western Canada, I know of no better means of speaking to them all at once than through "the paper."

Never, perhaps, was the advice of Horace Greely more ardently followed than at the present time. "Go West" seems to be a favorite maxim with young and old. Hundreds are daily crowding westward by the various lines of communication with the great Northwest and British Columbia. The immigration returns for the first six months of this year show the number of bona fide settlers to Manitoba and the Northwest Territories to be in January, 230; February, 232; March, 2,146; April, 1,863; May, 1,904; June, 1,098, or a total of 7,478. A large proportion of those came as far west as Calgary, and most of them were from Ontario.

The immigration agent at Vancouver informed me that the number of immigrants who landed in that city alone average 1,400 per month. Some who go west are invalids, others tourists or pleasure seekers, but the great majority are in search of homes and fortunes in the Far West. It is needless to say that many will be disappointed, while some may realize their brightest hopes. The Northwest and British Columbia are fields for "rustlers," and those who cannot make a living in Ontario are not the class who make money in the West. As a rule those who accumulate wealth are hard workers and men of keen perception and good judgment, combined with prudence and perseverance, without which qualities it is difficult to succeed in any country, under almost any circumstances.

"Dull times" in the East appears to be one of the principal causes of this great west-bound human tide, but the same complaint is to be found among certain classes in these western districts. The country from Winnipeg to the coast is overstocked with speculators, lawyers, doctors, artisans, mechanics, school teachers, merchants, clerks and laborers. Of course rustlers in any of these lines jump in and make money in their own or some other line of business, but not a few are doomed to disappointment. In the East you hear of a few who make fortunes, but nothing is said of the many who struggle for an existence. Too many are looking for "snaps," and only few find them. An insane desire to make money without hard work appears to be the malady of our time. Men who are willing to work at anything rather than be idle, seldom have any difficulty in finding employment.

Some are induced to the Western Provinces by the pamphlets and reports of land agents and speculators. These reports are the bright side of a picture that has its dark side as well. Gold is not picked up in the streets, nor does the land flow with milk and honey. In these Western Provinces as in every other new country the early settler has many difficulties to encounter, but perhaps none so great as were met and mastered by the sturdy pioneers who carved out homes for themselves in the primeval forests of Ontario. A new country has some advantages. Social pride does not demand a palatial country residence at the expense of a mortgage on the farm, and where means do not justify them, the fast horse, the top buggy, the organ, the piano, balls and parties and two or three suits of clothes for Sundays can be dispensed with without you being considered "behind your neighbors."

What the Northwest requires is producers with some capital. For this class there is ample scope and high reward. Millions of fertile acres capable of producing in abundance all kinds of grain and vegetables, besides great ranching and grazing districts, producing nutritious herbs and grasses sufficient to feed and fatten millions of horses, cattle and sheep. The principal drawback to farmers in portions of the Northwest is occasional summer frosts, but these do not materially affect stock raisers.

In Manitoba Portage la Prairie is the garden of the Province. For productiveness there is nothing in Ontario to equal it. Southern Manitoba is also a fine agricultural district. In short, Manitoba is a fine agricultural Province, but the winters are cold and severe. Owing to the dryness of the atmosphere the same degree of cold is not felt so keenly as it would be in Ontario, but any person who says the cold is not felt there is either a very unfeeling individual or a strict economizer of the truth.

Assiniboia, west of Manitoba, is fast becoming an important territory. Regina, its capital, is the seat of government of the Northwest Territories and the headquarters of the Northwest mounted police, of which there are about 1,000, distributed at various points throughout the Territories. The Regina and Long Lake Railway opens up the country to the north. It will, no doubt, soon be extended to Battleford, on the North Saskatchewan. Between the line and the Qu'Appelle River to the north is a large tract of wheat-growing country. From Swift Current to Medicine Hat a good stock-raising district lies between the line and the Cyprus Hills to the south. Six of the Canadian Agricultural Company's farms are situated along this district. The farm at Swift Current has 85 horses, 500 cattle and 2,000 sheep. The other farms of the company are similarly stocked. The climate, especially in the western portion of the territory, is milder than that of Manitoba.

But for pure water and a climate delightful, though subject to sudden changes, Alberta, east of the Rockies, bears the palm. The winters, as a rule, are mild and nearly two months shorter than in Manitoba. Last winter was the severest known in the territory since 1886, yet bands of horses and herds of cattle pulled through without any assistance. There were some losses, but had ranchmen taken the precaution to put up sufficient hay there would have been no cause for complaint. Alberta is larger in extent than England and Wales combined and intersected by numerous ice cold, crystal clear mountain streams abounding with fish and wild fowl. Wood for fuel is scarce except near the mountains and along the banks of rivers, but this want is supplied by the immense coal beds which underlie the whole territory. Generally speaking the country is a rolling prairie of black sandy loam, covered with rich grass and bedecked from early spring till late in autumn with roses and wild flowers. Crocuses, lilies, violets, lupines, blue, pink and white, bluebells, crimson roses, wild thyme and many other beautiful floral gems whose sweet aroma permeates the air with a delightful fragrance are here in rich profusion spread. Alberta is the great stock country of the West. Some of the ranches have as many as 10,000 head of cattle besides large herds of horses and flocks of sheep.

British Columbia is not an agricultural country, but there is an ocean of wealth in her mines, timber and fisheries. The country is a veritable "sea of mountains," yet it contains some of the most productive agricultural valleys in the Dominion. In visiting Lulu Island, the delta and valley of the Fraser River to Chilliwack one is struck with the wonderful productiveness of the soil — wheat averaging 40 to 60 bushels to the acre, oats 60 to 120, barley 60 to 80, potatoes 30 tons. In viewing the deep waving yellow wheat fields it was pleasant to contemplate the reapers singing "In this wheat by-and-by." Mr. Harding, of Lulu Island, has just harvested, threshed and sold off 23 acres 43 tons of wheat, or a little over 62 bushels to the acre. I am credibly informed that as high as 41 tons of potatoes have been grown on an acre, 5 tons of hay, and 27 tons of onions on 1 1-5 acres. The climate is much milder and more equable than east of the Rockies and in the fertile valleys vegetation grows in rank luxuriance. I have seen ferns and timothy six feet high, flowers hanging over the fences, and trees that vied with mountains in height and size. I had the curiosity to measure five trees that averaged in circumference 42 to 66 feet. Douglas pines averaging 8 to 12 feet in diameter and 300 feet high are common. It will seem incredible to eastern readers that 43,000 feet of lumber have been sawed out of one log and 33 cords of wood without a knot cut from one tree. It costs from $200 to $300 to clear of stumps an acre of British Columbia timber land, and until this is done the soil is of little productive value. My next will be "a trip across the C. P. R. from London to Vancouver." For the present I am yours truly,

T. J. MURPHY.

The seventeenth annual harvest home of the Boston Methodist Church was held on Wednesday evening and proved very successful. A series of accidents occurred a few days ago at Granton. In Mr. Frank Brooks' horse-power, used to drive his machinery, two boys had a narrow escape for their lives. The power is outside of the building, and hid from view of those working inside. When working in the shop the other day the horse stopped, which led Mr. B. to go to the door to see what was the matter, when, to his surprise, he found Mr. Jas. Foster's 6-year-old boy stripped quite naked, and his clothing wound around the knuckle coupling the spindles. The boy was not much hurt. A little later in the day, on hearing the screams of a child, he looked out and found a small boy with his legs down through the wheel of the horse-power. He was rescued, badly bruised, but fortunately no bones were broken.

For a number of months Joseph Irwin, a Mersea township farmer, has been missing grain from his warehouse. Suspicion pointed to a neighbor named Knight, who raised but little grain, but always had enough to feed his stock. Of late the midnight excursions to Irwin's granary became very frequent and he decided to try and catch the thief. Thursday he secured an old-time bear trap and set it near the granary. Friday morning he went out to see the results of the night's catch and found Knight with his leg in the trap. Knight's eldest son, to revenge the injury done his father, tried to burn Irwin's barn Friday night. He was found inside the barn with a coal oil can pouring the liquid on the hay. He escaped and a warrant has been issued for his arrest.

London, Monday, Sept. 22.

OUR DISTINGUISHED VISITOR.

It is not often that London is honored by a visit from a statesman so universally esteemed as the Right Honorable the Earl of Aberdeen, who arrived in the city this forenoon, and for an hour or two was the guest of the Mayor and corporation and the directors of the Western Fair.

While it is to be regretted that the noble Earl was so pressed for time that he could make but a flying trip to the city, and for this reason was unaccompanied by his wife, it must be satisfactory to the citizens to know that his Lordship was charmed with the Forest City and its surroundings, and expressed admiration at the meritorious character of the Western Fair. He was, it need scarcely be remarked, assured by his guides that the exhibits of stock, agricultural products, and manufactured articles were fairly representative of the industry of the people of the West, and the capacity of their fields and workshops. The center of a country so uniformly productive, with a population so intelligent and progressive, could scarcely fail, under proper management, to provide a superior exhibition, and that the Western Fair generally is. The exhibition of 1890 is no exception to the rule.

Though Lord Aberdeen is only a little over 40 years of ago, he is a statesman who has already made his mark in the world. Coming of a race of prominent citizens of Britain, he has well upheld the prestige of the family name. His father was Prime Minister of the Coalition Government that managed affairs during a portion of the Crimean war. He was a particular friend of Queen Victoria and Prince Albert, and both repeatedly went in state from the city of Bon Accord to the Aberdeen mansion, Haddo House. The present Earl succeeded his brother, who early in life adopted the role of a sailor, and had a romantic career, which was brought to an untimely close by his being drowned at sea. He is a member of her Majesty's Privy Council, and has held a number of prominent offices in the Government of the Empire. Being a staunch Liberal and a warm friend and admirer of Mr. Gladstone, he has been closely associated with the veteran leader ever since he entered public life. When the last Liberal Government was in power, Lord Aberdeen was appointed Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, and so sincere a friend of the Irish people was he known to be that there was universal regret when the Gladstone Government was defeated, and he resigned his post. The chronicler of the departure from Kingston says the scene was long to be remembered. It seemed as if the populace had turned out en masse to wish the Earl and his estimable Countess godspeed, and not a few of the impressionable race were in tears because of parting with a couple who had made the welfare of the people their own, and had treated them with so much more consideration than many of the haughty occupants of the Castle who had gone before.

It must not be supposed, however, that the Aberdeens turned to account the better side of their natures solely for the winning of the sentimental Irish. Truly can it be said that if ever there was a noble man and woman, as exemplified in everyday life, the Earl and Countess of Aberdeen answer the description. We read at times about the manner in which some members of the titled nobility of Great Britain squander their talents and health in riotous living, and set a very bad example to those born in a humbler station. Lord and Lady Aberdeen are the very antipodes of these unworthy scions of the nobility. They have a life's purpose, and there can be no mistaking what it is; they live to do good. On their Aberdeenshire estates they have won the respect and love of their tenantry and employes by many acts of kindness. Lady Aberdeen is at the head of an association for promoting the welfare of domestic servants that has branches all over the kingdom; it has been of incalculable benefit to a very large number of girls. Nor does the Earl think that his relationship with his tenantry begins and ends with the half-yearly collection of his rents. He takes an interest in the everyday life of his people. He strives to make their lives less humdrum than they would otherwise be. He has taught them habits of frugality and inspired them with the idea that life is worth living, no matter how humble one's origin may be. Love of reading good books, of cultivating garden plots, of friendly competition in the products of the farm and garden has all been encouraged, and the country over the Aberdeen estate is regarded as a model. The example set, too, has been contagious, for the Earl's kindness to and consideration for his tenantry and crofters has induced some less liberal landlords to follow his example. Occasionally his Lordship's acts take a very practical turn, as, for example, when during the recent depression in the price of farm products, coupled with short crops, he remitted a half year's rental to the whole of his tenantry, which meant a loss to him of at least $100,000. The other day, he revalued the whole of his estates, and voluntarily reduced the rental.

Lord Aberdeen has spent a very considerable portion of his time in the British metropolis, as, indeed, all members of the Imperial Parliament must do if they attend to business. He and the Countess and their interesting family have lived at Dollis Hill, N.W., a splendid mansion, which has recently been sold by the Earl for $450,000. But in the great metropolis, with its busy Parliamentary life and many social engagements, the noble peer and his good wife have not been unmindful of their responsibilities. They have literally gone about doing good. They heard and listened to the bitter cry of outcast London and identified themselves with more than one of the ameliorating agencies for the reclamation of the neglected members of society. Lord Aberdeen has succeeded the Earl of Shaftesbury as president of the Mission Union and has spent much time and money in promoting its interests and in aiding the work of the Ragged Schools. His Christian co-operation has been given to every good work brought under his notice, and his self-denying wife has also entered the field of philanthropic effort, and won much praise for her self-denying labors.

Lord Aberdeen is an elder in the Established Church of Scotland, and was selected by Mr. Gladstone as Lord High Commissioner to the General Assembly. But he is no bigot, and sees much to admire in every Christian body. While he has been tarrying in Hamilton, he has attended services in various denominational places of worship. His Lordship is a firm believer in the principle of arbitrating international difficulties as a means of averting war, and he was a member of the International Parliamentary Conference which met prior to his sailing for Canada.

The Countess of Aberdeen is the Hon. Isabel Maria Marjoribanks, youngest daughter of the first Baron Tweedmouth. She was married to the Earl in November, 1877, and has ever since been identified with him in promoting the welfare of those by whom they are surrounded. She is as pretty as she is good. She captivates all with whom she comes in contact, and has the rare faculty of making those she meets—no matter what their station in life—speedily feel thoroughly at home in her presence. An illustration of this capability was supplied on board the Parisian when the party were on their way to Canada. Lady Aberdeen not only made friends of all her fellow-women passengers in the cabin, but went down into the steerage and sought out the women and girls, and had some pleasant intercourse with them. She romped with the little ones, told them stories, and acted towards them all, as an observant sailor remarked, "as if she had been their sister." She is, indeed, one of nature's noble-women, whom to know is to respect and love. It was, Earl Aberdeen has explained, a disappointment to her not to be able to visit London.

The Earl and Countess are blessed with four interesting children. Lord Haddo, the heir, is 12 years of age; he has just returned to Scotland to attend school. Lady Marjorie is a pretty little girl of 10, and there are two younger boys. The Earl and Countess will take a trip over the C. P. R. to the Pacific Coast, and return home before winter sets in. They make friends wherever they go.

INCENDIARY FIRES.

The course of Boston underwriters in refusing insurance to Jews on the ground that it stimulates them to burn up the assured property is not justified by statistics. On good authority it is said that about 26 per cent. of the fires annually occurring are willfully caused. Very little of this property is burned to get the insurance. Out of the loss of $7,769,690 from incendiary fires in 1886, the assured lost over and above the insurance nearly as much as the companies lost by their policies, or $3,835,808 to $3,933,882, which is losing about as much as one gets. Incendiary fires are also shown to occur in greater numbers in agricultural districts where Jews are not than in the towns where they are. As the wave of incendiarism reaches its highest attitude in the tobacco and cotton States cupidity can hardly be the cause of the crime, as the loss to the assured is generally greater than the gain. The prevailing motives to the infamous crime are such as are due to the depravity of men, and not to vices peculiar to the Jews.

—Haddo House, the northern seat of the Earl of Aberdeen, is pleasantly situated on the bank of the [illegible]Ythan, and is about five miles from the nearest railway station. As Earls' dwellings go, it is not an old building, having been erected about the beginning of the last century. The former seat of the family, near the same spot, was named Kelly, and was in 1664 the scene of a famous raid, when the Sheriff-Principal of Aberdeen was charged to capture the then Sir John Gordon. The grounds around Haddo House are extensive and beautifully wooded, and there is a fine deer park near. A prominent object at some little distance from the house is a granite obelisk, erected by George, the fourth Earl of Aberdeen, in memory of his brother, Sir Alexander, who was aide-de-camp to the Duke of Wellington and fell at Waterloo. The Aberdeen family property lies within three or four adjoining parishes, and includes about a dozen separately-named estates, one of these being Gight, with its romantic "Braes," and its quaint old castle, at one time owned by the mother of Lord Byron.

ROMANCE OF THE REBELLION

How Capt. Miller Kept Green the Memory of Pretty Jennie James.

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—About 30 years ago a young captain of United States volunteers sat behind a curly-headed maiden of 18 at a camp meeting. The curls were tantalizing and the captain could not resist the temptation of pulling them. The influence of that timid pull has been felt for 30 years and now the maiden of that camp meeting pulls down the neat little plum of $63,000. The captain was James H. Miller, the maiden was Jennie James, the daughter of the postmaster at James' Switch, Ind., the banner bearer of the chief Sunday school of the Switch, and the belle of that section adjacent to Indianapolis. James Miller's infatuation for the curls extended to the entire personality of Miss Jennie, and when his regiment was ordered to Virginia he took away the heart and a gold ring of Miss Jennie's. The heart got back to her, but the ring never. She tired of waiting for Capt. Jimmie and married another soldier. She has married two other soldiers since. Mr. Miller married, too, but the ring he had taken from that curly-headed lass always kept her memory fresh with him. So the other day when he died he left her $63,000.

Mrs. Jennie, whose last soldier's name was Rowland, lives at 89 Desplaines street, where she was seen yesterday morning in her two squalid little rooms, tending a squalling baby. "I have written for money," she said, "and now I am going to wait for it. Then I'll go back to Indianapolis to live." The gratifying information of the legacy was first received by Mrs. Rowland through the dispatches in the morning papers.

THE COURTS.

Proceedings of the Oxford and Perth Assize Courts.

WOODSTOCK, Sept. 22.—In the case of Ross vs Murphy, et al, and an administratrix's bond, defendants, Murphy and Hayes, became the sureties for Lydia Ross, and an administratrix for her husband's estate. The administratrix became possessed of $2,000 insurance money which was to be destributed. She left the country, neglect to make the necessary distribution, and the action was brought by one of the creditors, who had obtained a judgement for $366 against the sureties. Murphy, one of the sureties, acknowledged the liability and consented to pay. Judgement reserved.

Walters vs. Kent, a slander case, was settled

Peacock vs. Lund, a slander case, was made a remanet.

Fallowfield vs. Hutchinson, breach of promise case, brought over from the London Assizes, was made a remanet.

Buchanan vs. Gonder, an action to determine the construction of a contract. Judgment for $375 50 with full costs.

Tripp vs. Pope was an action to set aside a conveyance. The plaintiff is Dr. Tripp, of Ingersoll, and the defendant is Mrs. Pope, his cousin. The property in question is a 200-acre farm situated near Ingersoll. The case was laid over owing to the illness of the defendant.

Alfred Wright was then placed on trial charged with rape, his alleged victim being Rebecca Skillings. George Sanderson will be tried for a similar crime on Alice Price.

PERTH ASSIZES.

STRATFORD, Sept. 22.—Logan vs. Kirk, et al. was an action on a bond against Mr. Kirk, P.L.S., of Stratford, and his sureties, Mr. Easson and the executors of the estate of Jas. Boyd, deceased. It appears that nearly ten years ago Mr. Kirk contracted to construct a ditch in the township of Logan, and after it had been partially constructed abandoned the contract on the understanding, as he says, that he should be paid any balance due him after the work was completed, and on the further condition that his sureties should be relieved. Mr. Kirk sets up as a defense to the action that the work was improvidently carried on by the township in completing the work, and that instead of a balance being due the township, he is entitled to recover from them. Action dismissed with costs on the township.

Hay Bros. vs. McGrory—Action on grain contract. Judgment for plaintiffs for $270 and costs.

Hill vs. White et al.—Action on mortgage upon lands in the township of Grey. Judgment for defendant for sale of lands and recovery of $469 and costs.

Shore vs. Shore et al.—Action on a will. Dismissed with costs.

Zilliax vs. Dean et al., Lillico vs. Atcheson et al., Darfling vs. Bank of Hamilton—Adjourned to Chancery Sittings.

Bank of Hamilton vs. Smith—Action on note for $575; to be heard by Judge Wood on Sept. 24.

Curtis vs. Richardson—Action to have land in Elma discharged from mortgage. Defendant ordered to execute discharge upon payment of $30. No costs.

Closing Day of the Windsor Races—Baseball, Lacrosse and Other Events.

THE TURF.

THE CLOSING DAY AT WINDSOR.

WINDSOR, Sept. 21.—Yesterday was the closing day of the Windsor Driving Park Association's fall meeting, and the fine sport presented was in keeping with the splendid races of the two previous days. The grand stand was an array of empty seats. Two out of every three associations would have called the 2:22 race off, but the Windsor stockholders are not men of that stuff, and never break faith with the public. The meeting has been a grand success in every manner except the attendance. The judges, Messrs. Joseph White, Wm. Millard and John J. Foster were congratulated on all sides upon their fair decisions. In the fifth heat of the 2:22 trot Roadmaster finished first, but the judges were satisfied that Albatross was not driven to win, and they declared it no heat. The driver of Albatross was warned that he must do better, and he went out and won the next heat and race. Summaries:

DOUBLE-TEAM TROTTING RECORD BROKEN.

Two thousand people saw the double team trotting record for a mile of 2:15¾, made by Maxey Cobb and Neta Medium in 1884, beaten by a quarter of a second at the Philadelphia Driving Park Friday. The team that broke the record was C. J. Hamlin's Belle Hamlin and Justina. They were driven by Mr. Hamlin himself, and made the mile in 2:15½ on the second trial. Friday's record is disputed by a number of turfmen who timed the horses and claim that the mile was only trotted in 2:16¼. Summaries:

NOTES.

Guy trotted an exhibition mile at Cleveland on Saturday in 2:12¾ on a heavy track.

Mr. Donley, Aylmer, has sold his span of ponies to Mr. J. C. Pearson, of Toronto, for $350.

Baldwin won the 2:30 trot at Port Huron on Saturday in straight heats. Time, 2:32, 2:27¼, 2:29½.

The race for the Lancashire Plate of 12,000 sovereigns, was won by Gen. Byrne's colt Amphion at Manchester on Saturday.

J. D. Creighton, the millionaire horseman, of Omaha, has bought the 2-year-old filly Evangeline (2:28¾), by Director, from S. T. Hugeiy, of Danville, Ky., for $10,000.

A London cablegram says: The Prince of Wales has not been in luck this year at the races. At Goodwood he lost very heavily, so heavily that it is said he found it difficult to negotiate a satisfactory arrangement to cover the losses with one of the fashionable Jewish family of Sassoons whom Mrs. Arthur Wilson innocently and ignorantly invited to her Doncaster party, and who, from being in high favor with the Prince, has now fallen under the shadow of royal displeasure. Lord Randolph Churchill, on the contrary, has been very fortunate at Doncaster. His horse l'Abbesse de Jouarre won, and Lord Randolph is understood to have taken out during all the season, some £14,000.

BASEBALL.

DRAUGHTS.

The news that Mr. Wyllie, the "Herd Laddie," has been defeated in his match at Brisbane with Mr. R. S. Mar, the champion of Queensland, has caused some excitement among draught players, and fears are for the first time expressed by his friends, as to the result of his forthcoming match with Mr. Reed, the champion of America. Mr. Mar was holder of the Glasgow Central Club medal when a few years ago he removed to Australia to become Government analyist of Queensland. He played with Mr. Wyllie in the spring and got beaten—the score being Wyllie 3, Mar 1, drawn 7. On the present occasion ten pairs of games were played at restricted openings, and Mr. Mar seems to have had the best of the play all through, the score at the end being Mar 5, Wyllie 3, drawn 12.

THE STICK.

At Montreal on Saturday the Ottawas defeated the Shamrocks in a championship lacrosse match 4 goals to 1.

THE WHEEL.

A cablegram from London says: Several more cycling records have been broken this week, viz., from six miles up to 22 miles, the latter distance being covered in 59 minutes 6 1-5 seconds. The 50 miles has also been ridden in 2 hours 38 minutes 3 seconds, being 54 seconds better than the previous best time. The 100-mile tricycling record has been reduced to 6 hours 40 minutes 22 seconds, while in twelve hours' continuous riding 164 miles were covered, being 5½ miles better than the previous record.

SCENES OF HORROR.

Latest Particulars of the Reading Disaster—Twenty-One Bodies Recovered —Other Railway Wrecks.

READING, Pa., Sept. 20.—When daylight dawned on the scene of last night's wreck on the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad, near Shoemakersville, the full realization of the indescribable horror of the night before was first fully revealed, and the sickening spectacle of the wrecked train and its victims was presented in a terrible scene. The engine lay in four and a-half feet of water while the body of the engineer, John White, was still pinned underneath the heavy ironwork, his arms extented in an appealing manner above the water. Next lay the tender, the baggage and mail cars and passenger coacher, the cars overturned, pinning the unrescued victims in a death embrace at the bottom of the river. The scene on the bank of the river was a ghastly one. There lay a long row of the dead, which was increased as one after another of the bodies were brought out of the water.

The wreck occurred in this way: A down coal train separated above Shoemakersville, and another coal train following after ran into the rear section. The loaded coal cars were thrown over on the east track just as the passenger train came dashing past, and the engine striking this obstruction the wreck of the passenger train followed. It is claimed that the passenger train followed so soon after the crash of the two coal trains that the employes had no time to go back to warn the approaching passenger train, which dashed into the wreck at the rate of 65 miles an hour.

Up to 10 o'clock this forenoon a total of 21 bodies had been taken out, and the list injured is now about 50. Following is a revised list of the dead: John F. Miller, Cressona; George Greenawale, mail agent; Pottsville; John White, engineer, Pottsville; James Templin, fireman, Pottsville; William D. Shomo, Reading; Harry Jacoby, stonecutter, Pottstown; Joseph Becker, chief burgess, Mahanoy City; Solomon Hoover, aged 60, Pottsville; Mrs. Edward J. Fox, aged 41, Pottsville; Edward J. Fox, aged 41, Pottsville; George R. Kearcher, aged 45, Pottsville; Harry Louglin, conductor of express; John Osburn, Philadelphia; Mrs. J. E. Fredericks, Pottsville; J. E. Fredericks, husband of the above; Joseph Bausman, Philadelphia; N. C. Vanderslic, Phœnixville; John Scheidle, Philadelphia, P. and R. engineer; Michael Summers, Mahanoy City; Frank Hassman, Mahanoy City; Geo. Lambert, Tamaqua.

A COLLISION AT CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—At 8 o'clock tonight a switch engine on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad ran into the rear of an excursion train on the Illinois Central near Eighteenth street. Four mangled corpses were dragged out of the wreck, and it was ascertained that at least three other persons were seriously injured and six others slightly. The collision took place near Douglas Park, and the victims were Sunday excursionists returning to the city. The four dead were two sisters named Gonnan and two young men, identity unknown. Of the injured Miss Pilgrim was dying when taken from the wreck. The others wounded seriously were Henry Niemann, face smashed and hurt internally. Albert Berger, leg broken and foot crushed. Mr. Riewig, head and arm badly cut. Mrs. Bork, collar bone broken. Richard Hoffman, leg mangled. E. Korn, rib broken. Otto Schroll, Lena Riewick and Eastman were hurt but not dangerously.

OTHER WRECKS.

LA PLATA, Mo., Sept. 21.—Two Santa Fe freight trains collided near here last evening. Brakeman Gills was killed and one engineer and one fireman were dangerously hurt.

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Sept. 21.—A freight train on the Beso Road, twelve miles from here, was dashed into from the rear to-day by a fast freight. Jas. Shields, engineer, and Fireman Cuphers were fatally and Fireman Reynolds badly injured.

PATERSON, N. J., Sept. 20.—Train No. 14, the Wells-Fargo express, eastward bound on the Erie Railroad, crashed into a through freight at Middletown summit about 4 a.m., killing Conductor Duffy, Flagman Stewart and fatally injuring a brakeman. All were in the freight caboose.

NEOGA, Ia., Sept. 21.—A wreck occurred on the Wabash, St. Louis and Pacific Railway near here about 3 o'clock this morning. Engineer Martin Eskridge, Fireman Burke and Brakeman Williamson were killed. The train went through a burning bridge 50 feet high.

Mr. Job Scales, of Toronto, writes: A short time ago I was suffering from Kidney Complaint and Dyspepsia, sour stomach and lame back; in fact, I was completely prostrated and suffering intense pain. While in this state a friend recommended me to try a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. I used one bottle, and the permanent manner in which it has cured and made a new man of me is such that I cannot withhold from the proprieors this expression of my gratitude.".

Children!
This is citizens' day.
Thousands of them!
"Gimme a card, mister!"
They had a big day of it.
To-day the balloons go up.
The dog show is about ready.
Grown-up people were numerous.
The youngsters were everywhere.
The Waterloo people come to-day.
The fruit and flower exhibits are fine.
All the big side shows have brass bands.
The machinery halls are worth seeing by everyone.

Tommy, Willie, Mary, Susie, and all the rest were there.

"How many cards did you get?" "I've got 100 just since dinner time."

The cattle, sheep, pigs and horses were not all in position Saturday, but are all right to-day.

Fakirs, peanut vendors, hot taffy men, and meals-at-all-hours stands contest with one another for patronage.

The silverware exhibit by Messrs. Bowman, Kennedy & Co. is in the main building and well worth seeing.

Wigwams for the accommodation of the painted and tattooed Indians have been erected near the judges' stand.

The demand for picture cards, fans, catalogues and programmes on Saturday was enormous. The little people tried to get their money's worth.

Some of the girls and boys who could play were allowed to preside at the pianos and their friends stood around and admired by the hundreds, blocking the thoroughfares.

The Agricultural College, Indian tribes, Dominion Experimental Farm and Manitoba exhibits are in what was formerly the dairy hall—along with the Southern States exhibit.

Mr. M. Gleason has erected a mammoth dining tent. From its size it would appear that the host had made preparations for accommodating all the visitors to the World's Fair.

"Broncho John" and his troop of genuine cowboys arrived at the grounds about 6 o'clock and encamped in the center of the ring. There is one young woman with long tresses and a wide sombrero.

Messrs. Alex. Johnston & Co.'s exhibit of leather and findings stands unrivaled for completeness. Their taste deserves the special attention of the association, although no prizes are offered in their class.

The large wooden booth near the grand stand has been secured by a number of the ladies interested in the Mount Hope Orphanage, and they are there prepared to cater to the wants of the visitors of the Fair in the line of refreshments. There a dining-room is to be found, where hot meals of the "good square" variety can be obtained for 25 cents. Those interested in the work of the Home as well as the general public in look of good substantial refreshment should look for the Mount Hope booth.

SPECIALLY MENTIONED.

TEACH BABY TO WALK.

In the southeast corner of the main building gallery will be seen on exhibition something at once novel and original. This is the Champion Baby Walker, manufactured by A. Burkholder, 205 Dovercourt road, Toronto, and it is safe to say that such a unique, handsome and useful article of furniture has never been offered to the public. The chair is circular in form and beautifully embellished, with an aperture for a baby in the middle. When placed in this, the child can run about secure from danger, but if too young to walk, can sit contentedly on a soft and elastic cushion, playing at the same time with its toys, for which, on the surface of the chair, ample room has been provided. If tired, a seat can be adjusted so that the little one may rest most comfortably. When no longer required these chairs can be upholstered and transformed into a magnificent ottoman. No house should be without one, and an inspection of the exhibit cannot fail to convince a person of their utility.

UNIQUE HARDWARE EXHIBIT.

The display of carriage gear and hardware by Messrs. James Wright & Co., in the carriage building, is at once varied and complete. The goods are all taken from the regular stock carried by this enterprising firm and include every improvement and patent known to the carriage trade on the continent. Models of the most improved designs in gear are shown, together with wheels, nuts, bolts, etc. From a carriage standing complete ready for the brushes of the painter, down to the latest wrinkle in the comfort-insuring spring, nothing has been omitted. Handsome nickel trappings and lanterns of every style are also shown, which give but a faint impression of the extent of stock carried by the exhibitors. Several fashionable and well-known patterns in cutters and sleighs are also shown to good advantage. Take a look at James Wright & Co.'s space in the carriage building.

NOTHING SUCCEEDS LIKE SUCCESS.

Business, in these days of keen competition, can only be obtained by strict attention to the wants of the public, combined with enterprise and experience. Among the firms in the city who have acquired this enviable position through a like process, is that which is known far and wide as "Oak Hall"—a name truly magical in import to thousands who have reason to feel gratified for its existence in their midst. Prosperity is almost invariably the result of energy, integrity and ability, in a business as well as an individual sense, and surely Oak Hall may justly lay claim to the possession of these attributes. Its very name has become a synonym for business excellence; its reputation is unbounded in area. The line of goods which this firm handles is one which is rapidly growing in popularity—namely, ready-made clothing. Carrying as they do a most complete and carefully-selected stock, Oak Hall is essentially the headquarters of this class of trade in the city. Some idea of the quality of the goods which have won the admiration of their customers may be obtained in the main building, near the western entrance. Here an exceedingly fine display is exhibited to admiring visitors, including all branches of the ready-made clothing line. Special attention should be given to the overcoat department, the goods ranging in price from $5 to $30. The latter are perfect models of the tailor's art, beautifully lined with satin, and it is safe to say they are among the handsomest articles ever offered to the public. The genial manager, Mr. Alf Taylor, and an obliging staff of clerks will be found at Oak Hall, 150 Dundas street, always pleased to show visitors the stock.

THE LONDON WAGONS

Among other exhibits in the implement shed is that of Messrs. Patterson & Jolly. This well-known firm has two of its famous "London" wagons on exhibition, which, for general farm purposes, cannot be excelled, while in appearance they rival successfully anything of a similar nature shown. The "London" Mower, another of their wares, also occupies a prominent place in their display, and, judging by the favorable comment passed upon it, promises to make many friends among the farmers.

THE LIGHTNING ARTIST.

Mr. W. L. Judson, in his lightning portrait sketch performance, in the main building, forms not the least interesting part of the exhibition. Portraits are finished in fifteen minutes, while landscape scenes occupy less than five minutes. The former sell readily at $2 each, while the artist has more than he can attend to in the landscape line at 25 cents each.

SOMETHING WORTHY OF INTEREST.

The champion Canadian Clydesdale stallion, MacGregor, now to be seen at the Western Fair is attracting great attention. This magnificent colt is a bright bay with three white feet, foaled May 7, 1886, and during the only times exhibited has won prizes at the South Ontario Exhibition, the Arthur Union Fair (twice), the Guelph Central Exhibition, the Elora Spring Show and others. At the Arthur Spring Show he beat the renowned Prince Imperial II., which had never been before defeated. The latest triumph that MacGregor won was at the Industrial Fair, Toronto, where he took first in the competition of heavy draught stallions, 4 years and upward. The MacGreger was sired by the celebrated Cornyn MacGregor that never was beaten. His dam, Flora, was sired by the grand stock horse, Prince Imperial, winner of the first prize at the International Show of the Royal Agricultural Society of England, held at Kilburn in 1879. The invincible MacGregor is the property of Mr. R. C. Gibson, of Arthur, Ont., who is a brother of Mr. J. L. Gibson, of J. H. Chapman's, in this city.

TORONTO LETTER.

A Driver Charged with Murder—Interesting Will Case Settled.

TORONTO, Sept. 22.

Negligence on the part of C. P. R. employes is charged in writs issued to recover damages in connection with the Brock avenue fatality. Three writs have been issued: Hugh McNeilly, father of the boy Chas. McNeilly, for $16,000; Mary McLaughlin, mother of the boy Peter McLaughlin, for $10,000; and the Sisters of St. Joseph for $700 for damages for the destruction of the wagon.

Mr. Lyman Dwight, superintendent of the Manitoba division of the Great Northwestern Telegraph Company, was on Friday morning united in marriage to Miss Kate Laidlaw, daughter of the late Geo. Laidlaw. Miss Bertha Angus, of Montreal, was bridesmaid, and W. Dwight Wiman, of New York, was groomsman. The happy couple left for the East by the morning train.

The action brought by the executors of the will of the late Mrs. Michael Robinson against the husband of the deceased was decided on Saturday, the jury declaring the codicil invalid on the ground that she was of unsound mind when she made it. The estate is valued at $25,000, and Robinson's share of the estate was considerably lessened by the codicil. When the executors entered the will for probate the defendant claimed the will was made while the testatrix was of unsound mind and under undue influence. The executors entered the action to compel the defendant to prove the allegation.

John Kellackey, 62 years of age, of Brunswick avenue, a laborer in the employ of the city, was run over by a wagon on College street on Saturday evening and sustained fatal injuries. One of Clarke Bros.' wagons, driven by William James Elliott, No. 233 McCaul street, turned the corner at a lively pace, and before Kellackey could get out of the way he was knocked down by the horse, trampled under the animal's hoofs, and the wagon, which was heavily laden, passed over his body. An inquest will be held this afternoon. The charge registered against Elliott is that of murder, the intention of the police being to prove that the death was caused by culpable negligence.

RECIPROCITY.

A Growing Feeling in Its Favor—Mr. Wiman's Prophesy.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—Mr. Erastus Wiman said to a reporter on Saturday: "The prospects for unrestricted reciprocity with Canada are better than at any former time in the history of the movement. Had Mr. Sherman's amendment been pressed it would have been part and parcel of the McKinley Tariff Bill, a party or administrative measure against which the Democrats were bound to vote. Among the Democrats are many strong friends of the cause, who will support reciprocity as a separate measure. This was the reason why Mr. Sherman withdrew his motion, or rather did not press it. Then again it was more than suspected by our friends that had the Sherman offer been made through the McKinley Bill the Tories at Ottawa would have gone through the ceremony of pretending to accept only at the critical moment to propose impossible conditions as a means of getting out of it or securing its failure. The delay will be productive of good. The feeling in favor of the widest reciprocity with Canada is, as anyone can see, growing apace at Washington; and I think the November elections will help it on. I will stake my existence on the adoption of the offer before the dissolution of the Dominion Parliament, even if the elections should occur this year"

UNDER THE SEMAPHORE.

Mr. W. N. Warburton, late of the Erie and Huron Railway, has re-engaged with the company, and will assume the duties of his position at once.

It is the general opinion at Winnipeg that the Grand Trunk people are working with the Duluth and Winnipeg Railway in the building of the road from that city to the head of Lake Superior. The recent visit of Sir Henry Tyler and Grand Trunk officials to Winnipeg was in this connection. Construction may begin this week, in which case Winnipeg will have direct connection with the Grand Trunk by next fall.

BRITISH LIVE STOCK TRADE.

John Swan & Son's weekly report says: The number of fat cattle on offer has been rather over that of last week. Owing to the warm weather and the unsatisfactory state of the meat markets wholesale buyers have not been able to operate to any extent and on this account trade for fat cattle has been quieter all over at rather less money. The English markets generally have been duller and there are not now many buyers coming here from the South. Fat sheep have been shown in fair average numbers. Trade for this class of stock, on account of the bad returns from London, has been a shade worse at lower prices. The supply of fat lambs has been shorter and these fully maintained last week's prices. Ewes of good quality scarce and dear. For the best class of calves trade was similar to last week, but there is only a moderate inquiry for secondary qualities. Pigs were a short supply and made rather more money. There have been considerably more store cattle shown this week, principally from Ireland, but owing to the original high cost price sales were difficult to effect, and a clearance was not made. Store sheep are coming to hand in fair numbers, and meet a fair trade at quite late rates. About 1,400 Canadian cattle were shown in Glasgow this week, and they met a middling trade at unsatisfactory prices, a considerable number being left unsold. There were rather fewer milch cows on offer in Edinburgh, the better class of which met an active trade at an advance of £1 a head; secondary made about late rates. Best beef, 8s 3d; secondary, 7s 6d to 7s 9d; inferior, 6s 6d to 7s per stone. Best mutton, 8d, in a few cases 8½d; heavy sheep, 7½d; ewes, 6½ to 7½d per lb.

LONDON WELCOMES THE LAIRD.

The Distinguished Guest at the Fair—The Earl Favorably Impressed with the Great Exhibition and the Forest City—Speech by the Visitor at the Tecumseh House This Afternoon.

The announcement that the Right Honorable the Earl of Aberdeen was to arrive on the 11:20 train from the East drew an immense crowd to the G. T. R. station this morning. Shortly after the time it was due, a train was seen approaching and a general rush was made towards the edge of the platform, while the Mayor with the aldermen and a few prominent citizens held themselves aloof, and prepared to receive their distinguished guest. But it proved to be another train than the one looked for. Shortly before 12 o'clock, however, the right one did arrive. Mayor Taylor, Col. Lewis and Major Gartshore entered the rear car and in a few minutes returned ushering

THE EARL.

A stop was made on the platform, where the Mayor briefly tendered his Lordship a welcome to the city. The party then proceeded to the cabs which were waiting. In the first cab were Right Honorable the Earl of Aberdeen, Mayor Taylor, Col. Lewis and Major Gartshore; in the second ex-Mayor Cowan, Ald. Skinner, John Cameron and Ald. Fitzgerald; in the third Ald. Anderson, Ald. Wallace, Ald. Moule, Dr. Leonard, Ald. Wallace; in the third, J. D. Clarke, Ald. Glass, Ald. Luney, Ald. Heaman; in the fourth, Ald. Shaw, Geo. C. Davis, Ald. Taylor, E. T. Essery and Chief Williams; in the fifth, A. O. Jeffery, C. A. Kingston and Col. Tracy.

As his Lordship stepped into the carriage he given was three hearty cheers, which he acknowledged by raising his hat. Among those on the platform were: Mayor Taylor, Dr. Leonard, Geo. C. Davis, E. T. Essery, Col. Lewis, Major Gartshore, A. O. Jeffery, Col. Tracy, Ald. Glass, T. B. Escott, Moses Masuret, Deputy Sheriff Glass, Ald. Fitzgerald, John Cameron, Ald. Moule, Canon Richardson, Ald. Skinner, Ald. Shaw, Ald. Luney, J. D. Clarke, Ald. Wallace, Ald. Taylor, Trustee Turner, Ald. Anderson, C. A. Kingston, Dr. Niven, Wm. Lind, Wm. Duffield, ex-Mayor Cowan, Rev. W. M. Roger, Rev. W. J. Little, Councilor Duff, ex-Mayor John Cummings (of Hamilton), Ald. Garratt, C. R. Sayer, Rev. J. A. Murray, Alf. E. Booker, Trustee Johnson, J. A. Neighorn, George B. Harris, Canon Newman, Dr. Hutchinson, W. G. McDonald, George C. Gunn, Harley Brown, Rev. M. E. Siple, Trustee Brady, John Fairgrieve, Superintendent Larmour.

AT THE GROUNDS.

The party drove off to the grounds by way of Dundas street, being preceded by Mounted Policeman Stanfield, formerly a member of the Northwest Mounted Police staff, and escorted by a detachment of the city police force. Large crowds lined the streets on either side. At the Fair grounds the carriages drew up in front of the general offices of the association, and various introductions took place. His Lordship had an affable word with President Porte, Secretary Browne, Directors Marsh, W. J. Reid and all the members of the receiving party. The main building was first visited. His Lordship was particularly interested in the mechanical apparatus in motion on the ground floor, and stopped to inquire about various manufactures, notably those of the London Furniture Manufacturing Company, the Featherbone Corset Company, and those of the McClary Manufacturing Company. The manufactured furniture and the display of decorated chinaware chiefly occupied his attention in the galleries. Subsequently the horticultural hall and various other departments were visited, his Lordship evincing keen interest in each. At the sheep exhibit he spent quite a little time. He inquired particularly about the Merino sheep, of which there were many fine specimens, and the Shropshires also attracted his attention. On several of these some of the aldermen lucidly lectured, to the edification of the Earl and all within reach. After spending a pleasant hour and a half the party drove back to the city by way of Queen's and Dufferin avenues. Opposite St. Peter's Cathedral a halt was made, and Chief of Police Williams was directed to call out the fire department. He did so, and the men responded in remarkably quick time. While the company waited Rev. Father Tiernan was introduced to the Earl, who pleasantly chatted with him for a few moments.

AT THE LUNCHEON

in the Tecumseh House, which was a choice one, the distinguished guest was introduced to Col. Aylmer, D.A.G., and Rev. Walter M. Roger, of King Street Presbyterian Church, who, by the way, is a Deeside Aberdonian. After the usual formalities, the toast of "The Queen" was given by the Mayor, who presided, followed by that of "The Earl of Aberdeen," which was given with all the honors.

The Earl, on rising, was received with loud cheers. He said:

The Mayor and Gentlemen,—You have given me a surprising welcome, which I assure you I shall not forget. It is evident that you are not forgetful on your part to entertain strangers, though I cannot say I feel I am a stranger. Since my arrival in Canada, I have received such genial and considerate courtesy and kindness that I begin to feel I am at home, more especially as I have met so many of the citizens of London who have come from the same part of the old country as myself. Certainly London is distinguished from the other parts of Canada in an eminent degree. It is natural that a visitor should take the liberty in public to answer a question which I have often been asked, namely, "How do you like Canada?" I have no difficulty in answering that question, but if I should give illustrations of the extremely favorable impression which has been formed in my mind thus far in my observation of Canada, I might get into difficulties. I notice in Toronto that in a newspaper report of part of my speech referring to this country, the article was headed, "Taffy for the Dominion." (Laughter.) I thought "Taffy" was a Welshman. (Laughter.) I am sure that everything I said was genuine and sincere. A man related to me an incident which perhaps may appear invidious. A gentleman was traveling in this country and discovered the hospitable custom which prevails in your hotels of providing a handsome and abund nt menu, such as this one, where they charge a stated sum for all you want to eat. He intimated his intention of taking the full value of his money and went right through the whole course, to the amusement of the guests and the astonishment of the waiter. That finished, he asked for dessert, and the waiter asked him whether he would have apple pie, pumpkin pie, custard pie, or cherry pie. He said he would take apple pie, pumpkin pie and cherry pie, and the waiter replied "what's the matter with the custard?" Laughter. I am assured with regard to the representation of Canada's products at the institution I have seen, I must say that I feel very much indebted to the Mayor, to the President of the Exhibition, and other gentlemen who accompanied me for the certainly interesting spectacle. I refer to the city as well, both as regards the way it is laid out and the beautiful parks in your midst.

His Lordship continued a capital speech by referring to Canada's future greatness, and spoke of Lady Aberdeen as his "three-quarters." He concluded as follows: I shall have to take my departure from among you, and leave you to finish the admirable luncheon of which I have already partaken a good share. You have ever my good wishes for the continued prosperity of this thriving institution. (Cheers.)

Lord Aberdeen proposed "The Mayor," remarking that he had indeed represented the city well in escorting him, a visitor, through the city. The Mayor replied, expressing his indebtedness to the Earl for his complimentary remarks regarding the city and Canada. He hoped his Lordship would be able to return and pay us a more extended visit soon. (Hear, hear and cheers.)

The company thereafter escorted the Earl to the train which the G. T. R. authorities kindly held till the proceedings terminated. Cordial handshaking followed, the company being meanwhile joined by Mr. G. B. Harris, whose acquaintence Lord Aberdeen had made in Scotland, and others. With a hearty cheer from the assemblage, the distinguished guest took his seat in the train, and was soon en route to Eastwood, where, for an hour or so, he will inspect Mr. Patterson's horses. Then he will proceed to Hamilton and make preparations for crossing the remainder of the continent to the Pacific coast, in which journey he will be accompanied by Lady Aberdeen. In the course of a month, the Earl and his family will sail for home.

LONDON AND ENVIRONS.

—Miss McLeer, of Hibbert, is visiting her sister, Mrs. T. S. Fitzgerald, of London South.

—Mr. Patrick Packham and family left for Chicago last evening, where Mr. P. has secured a permanent position as engineer on the Chicago and Northwestern Railway.

—Superintendent Larmour says that the way the people surged and crowded on the G. T. R. platform this morning before the Earl of Aberdeen arrived made it a wonder that nobody was killed or badly injured.

—A lively runaway occurred on York street this morning. A horse belonging to Mr. Norris was standing in a lane back of Slater's, when a youth named James Smith jumped into the wagon. The horse started off at break-neck speed and ran through the lane and across the street, colliding with the boulevard. The rig was somewhat smashed, and young Smith was thrown to the ground, receiving a severe shaking up.

—The parlor of the Y. M. C. A. was filled to overflowing yesterday afternoon, and the interest in these services is on the increase. Rev. George Boyd, of Queen's Avenue Methodist Church, delivered an impressive address from St. John, iii., 2: "We know that thou art a teacher come from God, for no man can do these miracles that thou doest except God be with him." Mr. James I. Anderson occupied the chair, while Mr. W. Bevin presided at the piano and Mr. Gardiner led the singing. Next Sunday afternoon Mr. J. Frith Jeffers, M.A., will speak and Mr. Harry Bapty will preside.

Talbot Street School Opening.

The school trustees for No. 2 Ward have issued a circular inviting parents and relatives of the pupils resident within the Talbot street school district to visit that school on Wednesday, at 2:45 p.m., to assist in the formal opening of the school, and the inauguration of the system of teaching the whole public school course in that district, and to inspect the new addition, the heating and ventilation, the cloak rooms and the many other conveniences calculated to add to the health and comfort of the pupils and teachers. The pupils now attending the Central school are expected to attend at that school at the usual hour in the afternoon, and march in a body to the new school and enter into their rooms. During the afternoon the classes will be open for inspection. At the hour named short speeches will be given alternately with music by the pupils. Every-one is cordially invited to attend.

THE METHODISTS.

Possible Consolidation of the London, Guelph and Niagara Conferences.

MONTREAL, Sept. 22.—Saturday morning was crowded with committee meetings. It is understood that the Committee on Annual Conferences will report in favor of a consolidation of the three western conferences, Guelph, Niagara and London, into two, and also of the division of the Bay of Quinte Conference between the Toronto and Montreal Conferences. This will precipitate one of the warmest debates of the meeting. There is some canvassing in view of the election of connexional officers though it is the general impression among the delegates that the present officers will likely be re-elected. Rev. W. H. Graham, chairman of the Waterloo district, Montreal Conference, has been ill ever since arriving at the Conference, but is now somewhat better. The Conference has been deprived of the presence of Rev. Dr. Burwash for days, through illness, but he is now better.

A Cold Winter Promised.

NORWICH, Conn., Sept. 22.—It is an old country saying in New England that winter comes when its springs are filled, and experience verifies it. In the opinion of the Connecticut weather prophet all signs indicate an early and notably rigorous winter. The early appearance of the fall cricket and katydid this season, the early flocking of migratory birds, which have begun their southward journey already, and especially these early, deluging, and prolonged September rains, all presage the early advent of winter and a hard and snowy one.

A Family Almost Annihilated.

MENTOR, Ind., Sept. 22.—The residents of this place are greatly excited over a mysterious disease which baffles the physicians, and has almost annihilated the family of George Davidson, a popular citizen. Last Tuesday the 7-year-old daughter was taken ill, and in eight hours died. An hour later a 9-year-old son was attacked and died in eight hours. The next day Mr. Davidson's only remaining children, three in number, were attacked and one after another died. All the physicians in the neighborhood admit they never saw anything like it, and don't know what it is or how to treat it. Mr. and Mrs. Davidson are prostrated, and it is feared they will not escape the fate of their children.

DALE'S DOUBLE LIFE.

Another "Jekyll and Hyde" Case in New York State.

WHITEHALL, N. Y., Sept. 22.—The story of the dual life led by F. S. Dale, who for three years past was at the head of the Dale silk mill, and which was recently closed after the failure of Frank & Co., of New York, coming as it does on the heels of another sensation of which Dale was the hero, has set the town almost wild.

When Dale came to Whitehall prominent citizens almost gave him a valuable water power, and subscribed money to help him to put up a magnificent building for his mill. Dale bought the finest house in Whitehall. He lived in elegant style, gave wine dinners, and carried himself like a millionaire manufacturer, to whom money was of little account and whose every wish could be gratified. He had a delightful family, and it was supposed that he was in every way a man who was proper in his private life as he was elegant in his personal manners. But soon the gossip of the village began to connect his name with that of Mrs. James Parke, whose husband belongs to one of the oldest and best families in the village. These stories, which were circulated quietly, did not gain publicity until three months ago, when Mrs. Parke suddenly left here after quarreling with her husband.

The next chapter of the story came soon. Bessie Parke, the 13-year-old daughter who remained with her father, was spirited away in the night. Her father made every effort to find her, but without avail. Mr. Dale was at once suspected of having had something to do with the case, and was subsequently arrested on a charge of abduction. This made the story so public that the local newspapers gave it ventilation.

Mrs. Parke has not been in Whitehall since she left so suddenly three months ago. Her husband started at once to gain a trace of her, his purpose being to recover his daughter. No clew to the whereabouts of Mrs. Parke was obtained, but a sensational story in regard to the life of Mr. Dale was brought to light. For the past six years he has been maintaining two separate households. While in Whitehall he appeared in his real character as Fred. S. Dale, manufacturer. He maintained a different identity entirely in New York, and was known as H. F. Sprague, a traveling man. The detectives who were shadowing Mr. Dale found him on Sept. 3 in the company of a dashing woman on Eighth avenue. They shadowed the couple until they separated and then followed them on their respective ways. This story, in brief, is that Mr. and Mrs. Sprague lived in a cosy flat on West Thirty-Fourth street, and Mr. Sprague on various occasions introduced Mrs. Sprague as his wife, and they were generally known in the apartment house as Mr. and Mrs. Sprague, and Mr. Sprague was thought to be a traveling man. He was away a great deal of the time, but made his headquarters at the flat when he was in the city. Mr. Parke has secured affidavits from persons who lived in the same apartment house with Mr. and Mrs. Sprague, from the grocery man who sold them groceries, and from other persons who had dealings with them. All these persons identified a picture of Dale shown them as the picture of Mr. Sprague.

DIANA WENTWORTH,

Or, The Professor's Daughter.

One sign of weakness was that she had completely given John up. That for which she would have fought to the death, had she been strong and well, she now renounced without one effort to retain it. It never occurred to her to make any inquiries about him. A month, more than a month ago, he had told her he would leave England in a week. What was the use of making inquiries which could have as result only one bitter reality? She shrank from it—she felt as though the anxiety of knowing all the circumstances and details of his departure would kill her. Had she been herself, she would have insisted on knowing everything, she would have inquired minutely into every circumstance; now she only felt that the joy of life was gone. She put off writing to Susan. With the cowardice of weakness she dared not inflict on herself a pain which she knew would be intolerable. Better keep out of sight, she argued. She had ruined two lives—his and her own; let her creep away and be forgotten.

She did her best to conceal her trouble. With her friends she made great efforts to be bright and cheerful. But sometimes she forgot that she was not alone, and sat brooding silently in her chair, or rose and paced the room, her hands behind her, her head now sunk on her breast, now held erect, as, over and over again, she recalled all her outer and inner life during the past year.

One evening she spoke. She and Mrs. Burland were alone. Mrs. Burland had just been singing, and by some odd chance had picked up "Carrissima." She sang it through and those who knew her voice do not need to be told that she sang it exquisitely. Turning round at the end to make some remark to Diana, she saw that she lay upon the couch in an agony of weeping. Now, through all this trouble, since the time when she had told her she had been ill two weeks, Toinette had never seen Diana weep. It was not easy to her to shed tears; with her they were the expression of the most poignant anguish which sorrow can inflict. In this case she augured good from them. At last Diana might be persuaded to relieve herself by speech. She was by her friend's side in a moment, persuading and cherishing her as only she knew how. Diana's fit of weeping lasted long, and when it ceased she was at first too exhausted to speak; but by degrees she became calmer and at last said:

"Toinette, I want to tell you everything—you ought to know; and I think I can bear to speak of it now."

"Yes," said Toinette, "tell me now. Perhaps it will not be so hard to bear when you have told it to some one; and it makes me terribly unhappy to see you as you are now. Both Richard and I are very anxious about you."

And Diana told the whole story, beginning with her journey to Jacewo, and going over every incidents, her mistake, her meeting with John, her liking for him, and his racy, unflattering speech; she told of the long summer, during which she had been as it were under a spell; her entire neglect of everything which did not bear upon her intercouse with John. She described how her regard had grown and deepened, and how she had tried to forget his frequent reminders of the difference between them in social position. She told of his interrupted declaration and of her relief that it was interrupted; of her grief over the loss of her kind friend and her shuddering away from any nearer relation; the belief that, under the manner she liked so well, lay hidden of necessity a rough and churlish nature. She described her meeting with Guy, his errand and her sudden return to England. She told of her cousins; her love for Gertrude; her half-liking, her half-dislike of Rupert; his confessions to her; her discovery of their plans to marry them, and her conduct on making the discovery. Her voice deepened and her eyes glowed as she told how, day by day, she missed John more; of her walk up the strange, gloomy valley to Becktop farm, and of the light which broke in upon her afterwards. John's return, her meeting with him, and the explanation to her uncle; the sale, and John's establishment at Becktop, were all dwelt upon; also Rupert's offer and her rejection of it, followed by his attempt to force her into a marriage at St. John's in the Wilderness. Her breath came fast as she described John's finding her and taking her to his house; his mission to the Abbey; Gertrude's pleading and her uncle's letter; her departure and her explanation to John the next day; her arrival at Whitfield, with an ever-increasing feeling of illness; Mrs. Cartwright's reception of her; her arrival at Tom's house, his announcement that he was married, and the subsequent blank. The story ended with the words—

"And now Toinette I have lost him forever, all through my own folly and weakness. I would give everything in the world to have him back, and it is all of no use."

Toinette had listened with fascinated attention. Her own marriage had been, in the opinion of many people, a most romantic affair, and, with her sympathetic nature, it was easy to enter into Diana's position.

"I am glad you have told me, very glad," she said. "Something may be done yet. I cannot believe that, even though you did not write he would leave England without making at least one attempt to see you, especially when he had promised to call here. We can at least find out if he did that. I will go and ask Sullivan now."

"Sullivan says no one of that name has called. Perhaps his leaving England has been delayed. Things connected with the Government are always unpunctual."

"I dare not think so," said Diana, shaking her head. "If it were delayed at all, it would scarcely be for so long, and if I once let myself think so, and then were disappointed, I could not bear it. Besides, he said he might not have time to call."

"That was before he knew what the obstacle was, and that it might be removed. If Mr. Garthwaite is the man I take him to be, he would never go away for years, leaving everything in this state of darkness, not even knowing where you are. You must not give up hope. Richard shall make inquiries, and you must write to Susan. It is only because you are ill and weak that you take so gloomy a view of things. If you were yourself, you would never be content to leave things in this way. I am thankful you told me. You must let Richard and me act for you; I promise we will do nothing without your knowledge and approval."

Diana agreed, and promised to write to Susan the next day, but it was rendered unnecessary.

M. Ungerer expresses the opinion that flowers and the perfume distilled from them have a salutary influence on the constitution, and, indeed, may be regarded as a therapeutic agency of high value. He says that residence in a perfumed atmosphere forms a protection from pulmonary affections and arrests the development of phthisis; thus, in the town of La Grasse, where the making of perfumes is so largely carried on, phthisis is rare, owing to the odorous vapors exhaled from the numerous distilleries.

—On Sunday afternoon as Mr. A. Dennis, of Lyons Corners, with his wife and child were riding along the Hamilton road their horse became frightened at something on the roadside, and wheeling around upset the buggy, throwing the occupants out, the animal participating in the general capsize. James Corsden, a stone cutter from Sarnia, was allowed his liberty.

A Notable Visitor.

Among those who attended the Western Fair on Saturday was the young man Pelly, who is an important witness in the Benwell murder case now on trial at Woodstock. Pelly was induced to come to Canada with Birchall at the same time that Benwell came, and he is thus an important Crown witness, having accompanied the other as far as Niagara Falls. It is Pelly's intention to continue in commercial life. He scarcely enjoyed his introduction to Canadian "gentleman farming."

Kate Purssell at the Grand.

The charming Kate Purssell will appear at the Grand Opera House this evening and Tuesday and Wednesday, in the thrilling border drama, "Queen of the Plains." This talented and attractive actress is seen at her best in this thrilling domestic story. Though the scene is located on the borders of civilization, the plot is one of absorbing interest, and the scenic effects are most realistic. Speaking of Kate Purssell, the Toronto Empire says: "Miss Purssell essays several characters during the performance, every one of which she is perfectly at home in. Aside from her physical charms—and Miss Purssell might, indeed, pride herself upon these—she has that versatility that enables her to interpret those several characters which go to make up the life of the piece. Miss Purssell is supported by a very good company, but she herself is the life of the play, and her acting can hardly be over-estimated.

Matrimonial.

A gay company assembled at the residence of Mrs. Morley, second concession of Yarmouth township, on Wednesday last, to witness the nuptials of her daughter Mina and Mr. Charles Edward Wilson, manufacturer, Union. The bride was attended by her sister Susie and Miss Minnie Arkell, of Aylmer, while Mr. Fred Morley, brother of the bride, and Mr. T. H. Weldon, of this city, officiated as groomsmen. Rev. Geo. Morley, uncle of the bride, performed the ceremony, after which the happy pair were deluged with congratulations. The bride had previously been the recipient of many valuable wedding gifts. She was deservedly popular in the district, and will be much missed by the associates of her early life. It is hardly necessary to say that both she and her assistants in the notable event looked charming, and wore most becoming costumes. After a short reunion with their friends, the happy couple left for a tour in Eastern Canada. They will visit Toronto, Kingston, Montreal and other cities. Among the guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Morley, Mr. T. H. Weldon, Miss Stevens, Mr. Fred Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Stevens and Mr. John Ward, London; Miss Phillips, St. Thomas; the Misses Arkell (4), Aylmer; Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, sen., and Miss Wilson, Union; Miss Turnbull, Sparta; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shore, and the Misses Morley (2), Glanworth; Mr. John Duncan and Miss Paterson, Elgin county.

Programme of Western Fair.

Monday—1. Single roadster, open to all. 2. Trial stakes, $100, for all ages. 3. Pair roadsters. 4. For best girl rider. Tuesday—1. For trotters and pacers. 2. Running, ¼-mile heat. 3. Hurdle leaping. The great attraction to the left on entering the main building is the display of W. S. Byers Barkwell, consisting of perfumes (for which he received the first prize at the Provincial Exhibition), toilet articles and pharmaceutical preparations, all of which are most harmoniously arranged in every particular and contained in an inclosed case, on either side of which are to be seen an elegant show of bottles towering to a great height and containing liquids of various bright and beautiful colors. But we would not do Mr. Barkwell, and especially our readers, justice if we failed to mention Barkwell's Sure Corn Cure and Barkwell's Bronchial Balsam. They are well-known and reliable proprietary articles which he sends to all parts of the Province. A new one has been added, the now famous Diamond Tea, the greatest blood remedy ever offered to humanity.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC.

Rubinstein, who lately returned to St. Petersburg, has composed a new concert overture, "Antony and Cleopatra."

"The Silver Shield," a new play which is credited with a London success, will be a feature of the coming season of Rosina Vokes, who will be supported in it by Emily Bancklen, Eleanor Lane, Courtenay Thorpe, Felix Morris and Ferdinand Gottschalk.

JEUX-DE-MOTS.

A witty lady says:

"That common DYES cannot DIE too soon."

"That some ladies really DIE in the attempt to DYE with worthless DYES, which give forth poisonous and deadly exhalations."

"That worthless imitation DYES are already branded by the DIE of public opinion, and must DIE 'ere they DYE long."

"That the DIES used in branding crude imitation package DYES, so as to have them look outwardly like the "Diamond" DYES, should be confiscated by law, so that the unwary be not deceived."

"That profit and pleasure cannot be found before DYING, if your DYEING is not done with Diamond DYES."

"That Diamond DYES while DYEING goes on never DIE, but always DYE so as to live in the hearts of the people."

"That Diamond DYES DYE to live; and although their consumers DIE, they DIE satisfied that what they DYED would retain color, brightness and beauty after they DIED; thus DYING with Diamond DYES gives consolation and sweet recollections, even when DYING."

"That seeing all these things are so; all may DYE and DYE easily, before the DIE of fate is cast, which calls on them to DIE."
