LARGEST STILL YET IS SEIZED NEAR CLINTON

Three Hundred Gallons Mash Is Found On Flyburger Farm.

RUNNING FOR SOME TIME

Managed by Expert Distiller, Now in Goderich Jail.

Clinton, July 29.—The largest and most elaborate outfit for illicit stilling that has been discovered in this district was captured yesterday, on the Flyburger farm, Culross Township, about three miles south of Teeswater.

From all appearance it had been running for some time, was being managed by an expert distiller named Paisley, who is now in the Goderich jail, accompanied by the proprietor, Flyburger, the two having been brought there by Huron County officers, W. T. Pellow and A. W. Whitesides, who made the capture. The outfit was located about a hundred yards back in the bush and consisted of a large still and auxiliary with all necessary appliances and a stock of about 300 gallons of mash on hand.

Inland Revenue Officer A. Porter of Goderich came to the scene of action and ordered the destruction of the eight barrels of mash and other appliances, while the stove, which had been specially made for the purpose, also the still, copper coil, etc., were brought to Goderich.

FIND WATER AT 50-FOOT DEPTH

Well Drillers Report Efforts Successful Near Lorne Avenue School.

Will Transfer Operations to New Site On Waterloo Street North.

Water at a depth of 50 feet. Such is the report of the expert drillers in the employ of the Ohio Well Drilling Company, under contract with the city of London to locate a possible underground river in this vicinity, who have been sinking test wells near the Lorne Avenue School property.

That the drillers have now ceased work at the latter location after striking rock at a distance of 28 feet beneath the earth's surface, was the report Saturday morning by A. O. Hunt, acting general manager of the public utilities commission. He announced that early next week the workmen will transfer their operations to a new site on Waterloo street north, not far distant from the river Thames.

Manager Hunt declined to state whether his department was inclined to view with any degree of enthusiasm the fact that water had been located at the Lorne avenue test well. Nothing will be announced as to the possibility of a steady flow of water from this source until the drillers have submitted their official report to the commissioners.

Hope was extended earlier in the summer, however, that a supply of good, fresh water would be obtained in this district, the last to be tested by the drillers.

In the meanwhile, progress is still delayed in connection with the city's well almost completed in the south-eastern section of the city, which the drillers are confident will yield at least 2,000,000 gallons daily for years to come.

Claims Anthracite Find Near Sudbury

HAMILTON, Ont., July 29.—Staking his reputation as a geologist on the statement, A. F. Coyne, now of Toronto, who spent many years in the coal fields of Scotland, declared to a representative gathering in the Chamber of Commerce tonight that anthracite coal was discovered by him near Sudbury, and lies there in commercial quantities until Canadian enterprise mines it.

Considering that he had given Willsie sufficient warning during the thirteen months, Mr. Bourne ordered men to commence work on tearing down the stable yesterday afternoon. Even with the doors and windows off, however, Willsie refused to leave and slept in the house. By noon, however, the contents of the house were in the street, and children in the neighboring field were picking up the shingles which had once composed the roof.

JULY PERMITS SURPASS ANY YEAR'S RECORD

164 Issued During Month, Making Total of 1,171 For 1922.

JULY, 1914, NEAREST

Surpassing all records in this city for the month of July, and also for the first six months in any year of London's history, 164 building permits have been issued for the month of July, 1922, making a total of 1,171 permits for 1922.

The nearest approach to this record for July building was made in the banner pre-war building month of July, 1914, when 157 permits were issued for work in this city. During July, 1921, Inspector Piper issued 112 building permits, bringing the total number for the first seven months of that year up to 811, which is 360 below the July record established this year.

The total estimated cost of the work involved for this month is $287,555, in contrast to $256,090 expended in city building during July, 1921.

For the first seven months of this year the total estimated cost of the permits issued is $1,653,880. The record number of permits issued during 1922 is explained by Building Inspector A. M. Piper as due to the large number of dwellings erected in London this year. In July, 53 new dwellings were commenced in addition to other building activity, which brings the aggregate number of dwellings for London this year to 347, which number surpasses the total for the twelve months of 1920 or 1921.

With five months more to go this year it is predicted that dwellings erected will be about the figures of 251 and 318 for the entire years of 1920 and 1921, respectively.

During the first seven months of 1920 there were 136 residences erected in London, while 1921 showed a total of 169 for the same period.

The principal buildings for which permits were issued in London during the month of July, 1922, are as follows: Brick store for W. V. Charlton on Ridout street, $8,500; funeral parlors on Dundas street for George E. Logan, $25,000; addition to St. Patrick's Roman Catholic church on Dundas street, $13,000, and a service station for the Imperial Oil Company on Ridout street, $6,500. The 55 dwellings for which permits were issued this month are estimated to cost $193,500.

Building permits issued to citizens by Inspector Piper Saturday include the following: T. Walker, for a one-story stucco addition to a residence on Cheapside street, costing $2,000; G. W. Kennedy, for a 1 1/2-story brick veneer dwelling at 1077 Richmond street, to cost $5,100; M. Russell, for a kitchen and stucco work at 602 Grosvenor street, estimated to cost $3,000; A. McNelis, for a 1-story brick veneer house on Cameron street, at a cost of $3,500, and R. H. Cullis to remodel a store at 237 Wellington street, damaged by fire, $450.

DROWNS IN EFFORT TO SAVE BROTHER

Montreal, July 29.—While striving to save the life of his younger brother, Marcel Mercier, aged 10, of Rigaud, was drowned yesterday afternoon in the Rigaud River, opposite Rigaud College. The brothers, with five other boys, were bathing in the river, when the child got beyond his depth. Marcel immediately endeavored to rescue him, but sank before reaching him. His brother, however, was pulled ashore by one of the other boys. The victim's body was recovered 20 minutes later.

Willsie Evicted From Filthy Stable Dwelling

HAD 13 MONTHS' NOTICE

FOR the past thirteen months Charles Willsie, the drayman, who a short time ago was summoned to police court as the result of charges of the board of health that he was living under unsanitary conditions, has been warned of eviction by Edwin Bourne, the owner of the stable on Oliver street, in which Willsie has existed for almost seven years.

Willsie ignored all warnings, and as a result his goods and chattels, upon which he places a value of a thousand dollars, but which are declared by neighbors to be worth not a dollar, are lined up on the roadside in front of his late residence, while two men, placed there by Mr. Bourne, stand guard to see that nothing is molested.

Considering that he had given Willsie sufficient warning during the thirteen months, Mr. Bourne ordered men to commence work on tearing down the stable yesterday afternoon. Even with the doors and windows off, however, Willsie refused to leave and slept in the house. By noon, however, the contents of the house were in the street, and children in the neighboring field were picking up the shingles which had once composed the roof.

"Bootlegged" Cigarettes Cheat Canada of Revenue

MANY PURCHASE CONTRABAND

RECIPROCITY between the United States and Canada was at one time a political platform in Canada, but those who sponsored this trade a few years ago little dreamed that it would assume the proportions now in existence. However, the greater part of this free trade is against the law, and is not recognized by the government of either country involved.

In fact, the United States authorities are doing all in their power to cooperate with the Canadian police to stem the extensive transportation of whiskey and other liquors into their country, while the Dominion police are up against a problem along with the customs officers to prevent the illegal influx of American cigarettes into Canada.

When a St. Thomas citizen was recently haled into police court and heavily fined for smuggling cigarettes into this country every day, folks said: "O, that will not last long. The game is not worth paying such a penalty for, and you can buy Canadian cigarettes at the cigar store and save money in the end."

But somehow or other these people were wrong, and customs officials admit that cigarettes are being smuggled into Canada more extensively than ever before. The cigar store proprietor who saw his business slump considerably by the enforcement of increased taxes on "fags," sought an explanation in the fact that many of his former customers had forsaken "my lady nicotine" in the interests of economy, or had decided to "roll their own."

Observation revealed the surprising fact that many of these former customers may still be seen with a cigarette between their lips as they stroll down the street, and it is usually a factory-made one at that. Inquiry as to whether the particular smoker has decided to patronize another store in the city, and why, usually brings forth the information that such is not the case.

18TH BATTALION PROPOSES REUNION

Veterans Plan To Hold Outing At Springbank, August 5.

At the quarterly meeting of the 18th Battalion Association in the Y. M. C. A. Friday night, preliminary arrangements were made for the annual picnic, the date for which was set as August 5, at Springbank Park. The annual outing will take the form of a grand re-union, and more than 1,000 old members of the battalion are expected to attend the celebration. Invitations will be sent out to all ex-members in every part of the province in an effort to make the re-union the most successful ever held by the association.

A novel and lengthy program of events is being prepared and together with two baseball games should provide plenty of amusement for the merry-makers. The ball game will be the officers vs. the other ranks, and the visitors vs. "A" company.

The chairman of the various picnic committees are: E. Ball, chairman of the sports committee; F. C. Pugsley, chairman of the visitors committee, and C. Finch, chairman of the transportation committee.

Arrangements will also be made to have the comrades who are patients at Byron and ex-members on duty at Wolsey Barracks attend the picnic.

One feature on the program will be a jazz band, under the leadership of Fred Young. This band has been the laughter-maker at numerous other celebrations and the association are counting on it to be one of the chief amusements at the park on this date.

POINCARÉ SLIPS AWAY IN MOTOR

French Premier Avoids Railroad Journey to Country Home.

Precautions Taken After a Warning of Intended Assassination Received.

Paris, July 29.—All Paris was surprised this morning when it became known that Premier Poincaré had slipped quietly out of the city, by automobile, for his country home in the Department of the Meuse, early today.

It had been announced last night that the premier had left by train for his week-end holiday. Elaborate precautions were taken at the railway station whence he was supposed to have departed, and it was said an engine had preceded the train to prevent a possible attempt to wreck it.

It was learned today, however, that a quick change had been made in the plans in order to avert any attempt on the premier's life, which might be made in connection with the announcement yesterday that a German plot to assassinate him was in existence.

It is understood that the premier is planning to carry out his original intention of participating in the unveiling of the war memorial in the Argonne tomorrow, near his country home at Campigny, and that before leaving Paris the premier had discussed the alleged plot and the precautions considered advisable.

At the time of the assassination of Dr. Rathenau a report was current in Berlin that the next victim would be Dr. Joseph Wirth, the German chancellor, and the French premier, but no attention was paid to the report here at that time.

The information which reached the French government yesterday, it was made known today, was from the Belgian government, not through the Berlin police, as was first stated.

The alleged plot had been worked out with such detail, both as to the organization and the means the monarchists intended to employ to accomplish their end, according to the official report, that the French government felt it could not safely disregard it. After considerable deliberation it was decided the best means of frustrating the attempt was to make a public statement, which accordingly was issued yesterday.

PREDICTS LIBERAL AND CONSERVATIVE MERGER

Senator H. Laird Reports Union Be Discussed in Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, July 29.—A fusion of Liberal and Conservative members of the federal parliament, who hold moderate protection views, with the object of safeguarding the eastern interests, is predicted by Senator H. W. Laird, who returned to Regina yesterday from the east, according to a special dispatch to the Free Press. Senator Laird said that such a merger is being widely discussed at the present time in eastern parliamentary circles, according to the dispatch.

Sir Thomas White is the most likely leader of the new party, and it is believed he would be able to form a government which would have a substantial majority in the House, the dispatch continues.

Some extreme protectionists among the Conservatives and a number of extreme free traders among the Liberals, would probably hold away from such an arrangement, but the large majority of the members of both parties, Senator Laird is reported to have said, would be willing to enter this new union of old parties.

MARCH OR JUNE MAY SEE ELECTION IN OLD COUNTRY

London, July 29.—Canadian Press Cable. While there is much talk during the year of a general election it has come to nothing, and the present gossip runs in the direction of forecasting that March next will see an election, if governmental and financial considerations are not unfavorable, or perhaps June if trade happens really to pick up.

REPORTS U.S. SUBMARINES SAID TO BE MISSING, SAFE

Los Angeles, California, July 29.—All twelve of the submarines en route from Los Angeles to Hampton Roads, Va., under the convoy of the tender Beaver, were said at the local submarine base to be accounted for this morning. Two of the submarines were out of commission and are being towed, it was said, but no serious trouble is being experienced. Early reports were to the effect that four of the submarines were missing.

BRITISH MINERS URGE PRICE RISE

Want Coal To Yield Better Wages Than Now Paid.

DISCUSS BLACKLEGGING

London, July 29.—(Canadian Press).—Higher coal prices were urged at a meeting of the national coal board, which has been called at the request of the Miners' Union, to consider the economic position of the coal mining industry. The employers promised to consider the union leaders' proposal to fix prices nationally at a level, which would yield better wages than are being paid at present, as well as better profits.

The coal mining industry throughout the country is improving with great rapidity on account of the inundation of orders from the United States, Canada and the continent.

The Miners' Union officials decline to discuss the question of "blacklegging" by supplying coal to the United States, pending a meeting of the Miners' International Union at Frankfurt next week.

Concession in British ports is beginning to threaten interference with the exportation of coal to America. This is particularly true of Wales and Northumberland, where there is a super-abundance of tonnage, but where the facilities for loading are inadequate. The loading facilities are limited by the two-shift arrangement, which the dock workers imposed upon the employers during the war, and which they have since refused to alter, the result being that loading is entirely suspended for six or seven hours out of every twenty-four.

NEGOTIATE AGREEMENT.

Knoxville, Tenn., July 29.—A wage agreement granting $2.50 a day increase to 5,000 miners in 25 operations in the Kentucky-Tennessee field was negotiated at Cincinnati yesterday between the unions and the Kentucky-Tennessee Coal Operators' Association.

NATIONAL ARMY CAPTURES BRUEE

Acquire Valuable Dispatches On Movements of Irish Rebels.

Dublin, July 29.—Today's National Army communique announces that Free State troops captured the village of Bruee, two miles from Kilmallock, at 9:20 o'clock last night, together with the insurgent occupants of the village, and their arms and ammunition. The irregulars had established a strong position there after their retreat from Limerick.

Glenveagh Castle, which for some time has been the headquarters of irregulars in County Donegal, and from which they have conducted constant raids by roving bands, was captured by National troops yesterday. Four separate contingents converged at the castle early in the morning and entered unopposed. The eight occupants of the garrison were taken prisoner, including D. J. Donovan, chief of the "irregulars" intelligence department and conductor of the Republican "war bulletin" service.

The capture included, besides arms and ammunition, important dispatches containing information on the strength and movements of irregulars in that county, beside a large quantity of merchandise that had been looted from trains. The National troops also captured twenty-four irregulars nearby, who were believed to have escaped from the castle while the Free State troops were approaching.

Stricken With Illness Parkhill Lad Reveals Identity

MISSING SINCE MAY.

CONCEALING his identity for more than two months, Eddie Willis, 16-year-old ward of the Children's Aid Society, who disappeared from the home of his foster parent, W. L. Walker of Parkhill, last May, and who had not been located since, was stricken with a severe illness at the farm of Alfred Miller, near Clondelohy, and, fearing that he might die, confessed that he had run away from his Parkhill home.

Mr. Miller notified Inspector W. E. Kelly of the Children's Aid Society, and immediately had the boy removed to Dr. Hyndman's Hospital at Exeter, where his condition is reported as critical. Inspector Kelly, in turn, notified the boy's mother at London, and she is now at her son's bedside.

When Eddie Willis left his foster parent he came east and arrived at the farm of Mr. Miller. Informing him that his name was Ted Burrell, the boy applied for work and was hired by Mr. Miller. For more than two months he worked with Mr. Miller, who was satisfied with the youth's services.

On Friday he was stricken with a sudden illness, and in fear of fatal consequences, confessed to his employer that Ted Burrell was an alias, and that his real name was Eddie Willis. He requested that Inspector Kelly be sent for as he desired to see him.

When that official was notified, he followed the usual course of the

FIND BODY ON G. T. R. TRACKS

Officials Telegraph Brantford Police, Who Arrest Three Tramps As Suspects.

No Clue Discovered as to Dead Man's Identity.

Brantford, July 29.—Following the finding of an unknown man's body beside the Grand Trunk tracks near Canfield Junction, three men were arrested this morning suspected of knowing something of, or being implicated in the murder of the victim.

The body was found near the tracks at Canfield Junction by G. T. R. officials after a freight train had passed through there early this morning. The G. T. R. officials telegraphed the local police, and the freight train was met by officers when it pulled into Brantford.

In consequence, George Williams, Mike Duncan and Joe Wilson, three alleged tramps, were caught in one of the box cars of the train. They were brought before William Buskard, J. P., on a charge of trespassing on the Grand Trunk property and were remanded until Monday.

Up until noon today there has been no clue discovered as to the dead man's identity.

Galician Girl Beats All Winnipeg Pupils

WINNIPEG, Man., July 29.—Of thousands of pupils of public schools of Manitoba who wrote on examinations for entrance to high schools, all were surpassed by a Galician girl, native of Austria, Mary Kondratuk, who secured 843 marks out of possible 900. None of Winnipeg city school students came near that mark. She started school only three years ago with scarcely any knowledge of English. She is a resident of Goodlands, Man.

Arresting Saunders under a railroad bridge near Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

Constables Shaver and Fife explained afterwards that they believed that they had apprehended the alleged "wild man," said to be haunting graveyards in the London district.

Counsel for Saunders declares that his client was first brought to Springbank to be identified by a man named Dunn, who, with others, was said to have seen the stranger lurking near Woodland Cemetery. While the officers assert that Dunn recognized the man, the latter states that he can bring sufficient persons from his boarding-house to prove that he had not been in or near the park in question, as claimed, during the past two or three weeks.

While the so-called "wild man" as first reported, was described as being of elderly appearance, Saunders is about 30 years of age. His wife is visiting relatives at this moment, he states. He is a returned soldier.

County authorities declined to comment upon the situation Saturday morning.

LAUNCH DRIVE TO AVERT COAL SHORTAGE LOOMING AS MENACE TO INDUSTRIES OF DOMINION

Canadian Manufacturers' Association Calls Meeting Monday To Conduct Survey of Conditions and Discuss Possible Remedies—Railways Carrying One-Tenth of Normal Freight Receipts.

TORONTO, Ont., July 28.—Although the anthracite coal situation has so far principally occupied public attention by virtue of its intimate interest to every household, the commercial fuel outlook is now pressing for urgent consideration.

No scarcity of the bituminous product used for manufacturing, has yet been experienced, but with an announced shortage in receipts for July of 116,000 tons, and with an estimated shortage of 750,000 tons by the end of August, the prospect is far from reassuring.

In order to fairly appreciate the exact situation, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association has called a meeting for Monday afternoon to conduct a survey of conditions, and to discuss possible remedies.

The total amount of commercial coal which has entered this city from all sources this month, statistics show, is only 16,100 tons, as compared with 118,000 tons for the same period last year.

No anthracite has entered Toronto since early in June, and, latterly, there has been a considerable falling off in the bituminous receipts. What little has been received comes from Pennsylvania and Michigan, in small quantities.

It is estimated that the railways are only carrying one-tenth of their normal amount, and, as a result, freight receipts are being hard hit.

No coal has entered Toronto harbor since July 22.

If, as is suggested, coal comes from Alberta mines, it is thought that the price, delivered in Toronto, would be at the least $22 per ton, and probably $25.

J. McIntosh, manager of the trades department of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, stated today: "That we are losing in output on the continent some 4,000,000 tons a week, and as to getting coal from Wales it would take somewhere around 2,000 boats to supply one week's shortage."

TALLON NOW RETICENT.
MONTREAL, July 28.—In reply to the official statements issued here by the Grand Trunk Railway and by the Railway Association of Canada with regard to the railway shopmen's dispute, the officials of division No. 4, Railway Employees' Department, American Federation of Labor, had nothing to say tonight.

"I prefer to not publicly carry on a controversy with the Grand Trunk Railway regarding the repair of American locomotives and cars in Canada," said R. J. Tallon, president of the shopmen. "I have no comments to make," said James Somerville, vice-president of the International Association of Machinists, after reading the statement of the Railway Association, in connection with the charge against the railways of "unlawfully forcing" reduced wages on their employees.

The officials of the shopmen were formally informed today of the appointment of Isaac Pitblado, K.C., of Winnipeg, to represent the railways on the board of conciliation. The men's representative is James Simpson, and as soon as these two have decided on a chairman, the board will start its sessions. It is possible that these will be held in Montreal.

25 British Lawmakers To Tour Canada.

MONTREAL, July 28.—Twenty-five of the 60 members of the British Houses of Lords and Commons, who were invited to tour Canada in September with the Montreal Board of Trade, on its trip to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the founding of that organization, have signified their intention of accepting the offer, according to a cable received today from Sir George McLaren Brown.

The tour starts from Montreal on September 1 and ends here on September 30. It gives members of the party an opportunity of seeing the various cities of the West, Middle West and Pacific Coast.

Parents "Frame" Child to Get Rid of Burden of His Support

MONTREAL, July 28.—To rid themselves of the burden of supporting their ten-year-old son, a mother and father "framed" the child and had him arrested on a charge which they hoped would land him in a reformatory for at least two years.

This is the story behind the arrest of a youngster on a charge of having stolen five dollars from his father on a complaint laid by his own mother.

The officials of the juvenile court have taken the lad in hand and are keeping him away from his parents in the belief that he may be severely dealt with if he returns home. Action against the parents is being contemplated.

A few days ago the mother visited the court and asked that the boy be taken into custody as he had stolen $5 from his father. Court officials advised the woman to bring the boy to the court so that they might question him and deal with him according to the degree of his delinquency. But the mother protested that her ten-year-old was a "tough guy," and that he should be severely dealt with. Doubting the existence of so young a bad man, the officials agreed to look into the case.

"Did you steal five dollars from your father?" the boy was asked. "Sure, father told me to," the child answered. He then went on to tell how he had heard his father and mother discussing a plan for ridding themselves of him, and how his father had ordered him to steal five dollars so that he might be arrested and sent to a reformatory.

The situation, of course, is not as serious as appears on the surface. The plan had only just been completed with a capacity of 30,000 horsepower, and less than one-third of that is being marketed. When all the power is marketed power could be sold at $21.23 if delivered at 22,000 volts, or at $19.57 if delivered at 110,000 volts. And should the machinery for 70,000 horsepower be installed it would be possible to reduce the rates to $14.96 and $13.73 and still take care of all carrying charges.

It is reasonable at the outset to defer the establishment of a sinking fund to pay off the bonds for construction and to capitalize interest charges. But the Gregory commission is concerned about the danger of pyramiding interest charges and will recommend strong action by the hydro and the government to get a larger market for the plant's output. In no other way, it is believed, can the plant be saved from excessive rates.

$50,000 BAIL ASKED FOR TWO HELD FOR ROBBERY
MONTREAL, July 28.—A $50,000 bail bond was this morning demanded by Judge Enright in the cases of James Thomas, alias Galardi, and John Valicuff, who were arraigned on a charge of robbing the paymaster of the Dominion Textile Company of $29,000 on July 7.

Peter Bercovitch, K.C., representing the company, in requesting the high bail, told the court that the penalty for the offence with which the accused are charged is life imprisonment, with the lash.

Boy Impaled On Limb of Tree Dies In Hospital Thinking of Mother
DETROIT, July 29.—Leaving his father and mother at the dinner table, 11-year-old Charles Lester ran into the back yard of his home, 1009 McKinstry avenue, where a well-seasoned pear tree spread stately limbs high above Charles' head.

With a boyish desire to be "up high," the boy clasped his knees about the rough tree trunk and pulled himself up to where he could sit on a long limb and look out over the house tops.

But Charles somehow slipped, apparently as he changed his hold from one limb to another. His father, lying down, and almost asleep, thought he heard a cry. Then a sharper cry brought him out of his drowsiness as he recognized Charles' voice and the agony in its tones.

When the boy's father reached the yard he found neighbors reaching for Charles who was impaled on the jagged stump of a dead limb. The father, assisted by others, lifted the boy to the ground.

Charles was rushed to a hospital and all along the way he hardly thought about himself.

"Tell mother I'm all right," he said, over and over again. "Don't let her worry about me."

But at the hospital Charles died of loss of blood.

Charles was born in Spain, the native land of his mother.

Marie had been held by Mrs. A. Stolman as security for a bill of board and lodging incurred by her father. The father is serving a term in the house of correction for contributing to the dependency of his child.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenney came here and sought custody of the child. Mrs. Stolman refused to give her up until the bill was paid. Judge Asa C. Adams agreed to permit the Kenneys to pay the bill, amounting to $30, and gave them custody of the child.

Excitement in Fire Runs High Toronto Blaze Marked by Accidents, Including Death of Fire Horse.

TORONTO, July 28.—Several features of interest marked the destruction of the old R. C. Y. C. building, at the foot of York street, by fire tonight.

A young lady motorist was injured when she drove her automobile into the rear of a city sinking wagon while steering out of the way to avoid being run down by a motor fire engine. "Paddy," one of the horses attached to a hose wagon, dropped dead while speeding toward the fire and Miss Toronto I. the motor racer owned by W. Commeford, was destroyed.

Federal Cigarette Tax Boost Proves Costly.

MONTREAL, July 28.—According to a statement given out today by C. S. Richardson, secretary-treasurer of the Dominion Cigar and Cigarette Association of Canada, raising the excise tax on cigarettes cost the federal treasury more than a quarter of a million dollars during June, the first month the new taxes were effective.

Incidentally the cigarette taxes fell considerably more than half a million dollars below the estimate made by Hon. W. S. Fielding, minister of finance, in his budget speech.

During the month of June, 1922, there was a drop of 96,057,136 in cigarette sales.

Reciprocity in Canada.

WHATEVER may be the result of present or future negotiations with United States for the bringing about of reciprocal trade relations, the evidence of the past does not indicate the success of the movement in the future.

It is possible to find reference to the idea of reciprocity at a very early date, and in the times of many of the public men before and after confederation. When the late GEORGE BROWN was a candidate in Kent on behalf of the Reformers of that county in 1851, reciprocity was one of the things he advocated. It appears at various times, is mentioned as the cause for a serious difference between the parties that were then negotiating for the bringing about of confederation. JOHN LEWIS, in his life of GEORGE BROWN, in "The Makers of Canada," states that "the immediate and assigned cause of the rupture was a disagreement in regard to negotiations for the renewal of the reciprocity treaty. It is admitted that it was only in part the real cause, and would not have severed the relations between men who were personally and politically in sympathy." LEWIS, at that time president of United States, was regarded as being favorably inclined to a renewal of the agreement between the two countries.

In 1865 the imperial government authorized the formation of a confederate council on reciprocity, made up of representatives from Canada and the other North American colonies. BROWN and GALT being named as the representatives from Canada. Stormy sessions followed, the charge being made by Mr. BROWN that "GALT had flung at the heads of the Americans every concession that we had in our power to make, and some that we certainly could not make, so that our case was foreclosed before the commission was opened."

THE reciprocity treaty of 1874 also played a large part in the attempts made to get on a fair footing for mutual trade with United States. GEORGE BROWN believed the treaty of 1874 was of advantage to Canada, but of still more use to United States; he held, above all else that the weak point in such treaties was in the fact that they could be repealed at the caprice of either party, and held that any such arrangement must be made to cover a period of years. Failing such an arrangement it was better that each country should take its own course and that Canada should seek new channels of trade.

The reciprocity negotiations of 1865 failed because the provisions relating to the free exchange of the products of the two countries were entirely set aside, and the duties proposed to be levied were almost prohibitory in their character. The free list, it is recorded, offered by United States, reads like a diplomatic joke: "Burr millstones, rags, firewood, grindstones, plaster and gypsum." The industrial element in United States was in the ascendancy then, and no particular value was attached to access to the Canadian market. The complaint was made that in all the bargaining, Washington was trying hard to get access to Canadian fisheries and canals, and fighting shy of real reciprocity in trade. Canadian feeling began to turn in similar channels, and this was plainly shown in the discussion preceding the election of 1891. Canada had in the meantime developed industrially, and the idea of protection against United States encroachments had gained considerably.

THE FIELDING-PATTERSON pact of 1911 was the most recent opportunity the people of Canada had to make known their views on the question of a trade agreement with United States. That question was fought out almost entirely apart from the actual proposals of the agreement. Provision was made for an interchange of the natural products of the soil, and the fight was waged on whether our factories would be put out of business by United States factories, and whether Canada would be annexed to United States.

Since then matters have drifted. High tariff interests in the republic have had control of legislation, and instead of encouraging trade with Canada, the whole trend of events has been to make it an impossibility. An awakening to the folly of this idea is going to come, and is coming, as many of the best thinkers and writers continue to warn Washington of the folly of shutting Canadian produce out of the markets to the south. Mr. FIELDING admitted on returning from his last visit to Washington that little could be done at present. A great many people in both nations know it would be advantageous to have an interchange of many of the natural products of these two countries, but sentiment in that direction finds it hard to make its voice heard against the tariff builders on both sides of the line.

Buying Debentures.

THE CITY of London, through its treasurer, JAMES BELL, is offering debentures for sale to the public. These debentures are issued for varying terms, according to the wishes of the purchaser, and bear interest at 5 per cent per annum.

While offering these debentures to non-residents as well as citizens of London, CITY TREASURER BELL comments that it should not be necessary for them to go out of town, but that they should be bought up speedily by Londoners.

With the city of London behind them, these debentures offer gilt-edge security, and Mr. BELL cites the forecast of several young men who have invested their savings in them. They are sold in $100 denominations or any multiple of that sum. They bear coupons which are to be clipped off when the interest is due, and which can be redeemed at any bank.

The only advantage possessed by Victory Bonds over city debentures is the fact that the income from some of the former are not assessable for Dominion income tax, while that from city debentures is assessable.

By purchasing local debentures residents of London are helping their city, and at the same time are bettering their own financial condition. Few other investments offer the same security and dividends.

In addition, Mr. Citizen, by such an investment is showing his faith in his own city in a practical manner. The city treasurer states that he has experienced no trouble in disposing of the debentures, and quite often has orders for their delivery placed with him by ratepayers long before they are due to be issued.

All of which goes to prove that shrewd Londoners are quick to grasp a sound business opportunity when it is presented to them.

The Book of Genesis.

PLEADING FOR more frankness and outspoken honesty in teaching the Bible, REV. J. PATTERSON SMYTH, late professor of pastoral theology in the University of Dublin, is bringing out a series of five books. In the first he deals with the Book of Genesis, probably the favorite ground for more discussion and controversy than any other section of Scriptures. When a man's mind burns up with the idea of criticism he naturally turns to Genesis to get his start.

DR. SMYTH does not tear Genesis to pieces—he rather glorifies in the simple grandeur of a book that "dashes off with a master hand in a few bold words the history of a million years. In the beginning God created heaven and earth. We are not enlightened as to the tools and processes by which these things were fashioned, or the period occupied in the operations."

Right at the start the author deals with the claim of Genesis being mythical and traditional, and that the ancient Biblical records were produced long after they happened. To which comes the answer that GREEN or PROF. GARRETT or any other historian wrote much the same as the inspired writers of old. This is important to remember, especially if you are easily scared by higher criticism. You will not think of doubting these historians' account of William the Conqueror merely because historians wrote his story 300 years after his death.

Coming direct to the Story of Creation, DR. SMYTH holds that its simplicity lies on the very surface. It evidently belongs in its simple form to simple people in the simple child ages of the old world. Some years ago a sensation was created in the religious world by the discovery of a similar Creation Story and Deluge Story in Abraham's old home in Chaldea. It is written on clay tablets, and in its same simple style of many gods with evil passions. The other tells of one God, holy, just and good. The inspiration of the Old Testament can come from other comparisons. The dark ages of Greece and Rome had gods only of filth, and deeds of cruelty were done to please them. Against this the early prophets of Israel pleading only for righteousness, and mourning for their sins. In the words of the author: "You feel at once this sense of God's presence, of God's inspiration, of God's great purpose to raise up one nation as the teachers and prophets of the world."

THE final act of creation, making of man in God's own image, the bringing into existence of a being with the spark of God in him, is dealt with in a straightforward and well-reasoned manner. That is the constant question of the man—what am I? Why am I here? Where am I going? Even in spite of the Fall much of the likeness of God remains in man. There is a spark of God's nature in every one of us; we have a consciousness of God; we have a feeling within, smothered and spoiled at times, but there just the same, a great eternal rule of right and wrong. That is the God spark.

After Creation came the Fall of man in the Garden of Eden. DR. SMYTH warns against allowing children to get their heads full of vicious and flippant versions of this incident. Teach it bravely—show that the sense of sin called for a realization of the need for covering—make that lesson reach away down into present times when men realize their sin and their need for a covering, and that covering is the Saviour. There was a great purpose in the temptation of our first parents. God does not want or demand innocence; to Him righteousness is the thing most dear, and by righteousness DR. SMYTH means innocence preserved in the presence of temptation.

The writer goes on to deal with events following the flood, and tells in plain, straight narrative the life of Abraham, the covenant, the sacrifice of Isaac, the story of Rebekah, of Jacob and Esau and the vision at Bethel. His interpretation of Joseph makes fine thoughtful reading, and is of almost inestimable value to the parents in the home who want to instruct their children, to the teacher in the Sabbath or day schools, and to Bible students generally. The Musson Book Company of Toronto is bringing the series, five in number, out in Canada, and DR. SMYTH'S effort is an undoubted acquisition to the literature of the year.

LITTLE 'TISERS

The Walford Guide-Advocate tells of a hog that was sold dressed at 515 pounds. It makes one shudder to think of the fine strips of bacon that would be carved from this collection of fatness.

St. Catharines Standard: "When a man like Jack Dempsey will attract 4,000 people in Ottawa at $3 each, it should make an ordinary Canadian war veteran wonder what he went to war for."

A Hamilton man, fishing near Peterboro, caught a black bass 23 inches long that weighed 7 1/4 pounds. That fish ought to be put in a cage and taken around Canadian lakes as an example to other bass of what a real fish should look like.

It's an old phrase, "The sound of the binder is heard in the land." But it's got a great meaning this year. Let the binders do their work, let the threshers go ahead and finish it, and more will be done to put this great land on the highway to prosperity than can be accomplished by all the orations, meetings, resolutions, elections and conferences that could be held in a century.

PREMIER DUBRY states that he is not going to the country this year. October, 1923, is the proper date, and there is no reason so far to rush in ahead of that time. There are always a number of people who can imagine very excellent reasons for plunging into an election ahead of time. Something quite unusual will have to happen to bring an election in Ontario before the early fall of 1923.

Toronto University has a point to settle. President Falconer wants to retire Professor Craig, 67 years of age, and the recipient of a $2,000 a year retiring allowance from the Carnegie fund. Craig does not want to retire, claiming he is still fit for work. Without making any comment on the merits of the case, there is always a considerable amount of sympathy for the man of 67 who refuses to take the count of Father Time.

The Milwaukee Sun brings up an incident that shows that political history is not a thing of the past in Ontario. The Sun says: "A Bruce County teacher on reading the answer given by a pupil on a promotion examination as recorded in last week's Sun said it recalled one given by a Paisley boy at the entrance examination some years ago when asked to 'tell what you know of the Pacific Scandal,' ironically inscribed upon his paper 'It's a darned Git lie.'"

Speaking at Amherstburg on "Graham Day," the Hon. GEORGE P. GRAHAM gave the school children a good idea, and one that teachers should not fail to grasp: "Education does not mean simply that you can solve a certain geometrical problem. Education which we receive at our schools is but a development of the mind, so that in the years to come that mind is sufficiently developed for us to be able to grasp the more logical things of life. We must not run away with the idea that all we can cram into the heads of our children in the matter of doing sums is education."

Wait a minute until we catch up. Here comes the Simcoe Reformer with the following that simply takes all the wind out of our sails: "D. B. FREELAND of Woodhouse threshed his wheat on the afternoon of July 19, the machine arriving at 1:30 p.m. Later in the afternoon 140 bushels were drawn to the Norfolk Milling Company, and there ground into flour and transported home. At 7:30 p.m. the family sat down to dinner at which bread, made from the wheat, was served. Mr. FREELAND has every reason to believe he has established a speed record for Norfolk farmers."

NOAH'S POETRY

AWFUL, ISN'T IT? When half-past six has gone and struck, I rise from off my humble couch, and often feel as though my rest had left me still 'bout half a grouch.

'Tis then I wander to the tap and turn the water for a scrub, to see if I can't make myself just half a man and half a dub.

I squirt into the looking glass and have a feeling of disgrace to think I've grown such whisker rows upon the furrows in my face.

And then I get my shavin' rig and start to lather up my head to see if I can't snatch once more a bit of beauty what has fled.

I polish my head so I can see to hack the stubble and the straw, and take the chistles and the weeds what's come and camped upon my jaw.

One great big swath I try to make, a tear comes 'quirtin' to my eye—them whiskers won't budge off at all, no matter how I yank and try.

I gaze upon my claysome then, it feels like cuttin' briars and thorns—my wife has used the bally thing to carve the bulwarks off her corns.

—NOAH.

READ YOUR CHARACTER

By Digby Phillips.

NO. 278—PICKING THE PERSEVERING.

Perseverance is a virtue in more ways than one. It is of particular value in most lines of business, both to employer and to employee.

Moreover, it is a thing which shows only in a person's record, unless you are more or less familiar with the science of characterology and know the signs of it.

Often records are not available for consultation when you are considering hiring an applicant, or else they are not thorough or trustworthy for one reason or another.

You may then have recourse to your observation while you are putting the applicant through a test.

Probably your best indication of this virtue will lie in the handwriting. To be sure you should have a specimen of writing on unruled paper. If the lines are straight and even that is one strong indication of perseverance, patience and will power. If the lines are carefully and firmly crossed, that is another sign. If you see that, in addition to this, the applicant is a brunet rather than a blond, and has a concave rather than a convex profile, you have several indications which, taken all together, will warrant your belief that he possesses this business virtue.

The latest acquisition to the Woodstock police force is Charles S. Johnston of that town. His height is 6 feet 2 inches. He will be paid $450 a year and buy his own clothes.

Last night several of the ratepayers who own property along the south bank of the river which the city proposes to annex, held a meeting at Mr. James Learn's house. By request the mayor was present and had a friendly conference with the ratepayers. The latter intend to consult their solicitors as to the city's power in the matter and named Messrs. Trowbridge and Norton as a deputation to wait on the city council to ascertain the best terms that would be granted them in the event of amalgamation.

South London and London Councils of the Royal Arcanum Society met at Springbank yesterday. The prospect of rain was unfavorable for a successful picnic as far as numbers were concerned, but those who were present had a merry time. Several old time ball players, including Messrs. R. Southam, R. K. Cowan, A. L. Parnell and School Trustees, Macpherson and Thomas Gilman were just getting down to work when rain came. Not being a league game, the score at the end of the second inning was accepted. It was 5 to 4 in favor of South London Council.

DR. BISHOP'S ADVICE
POSITION IMPORTANT

BY DR. R. H. BISHOP.

It is common for most people to droop their shoulders unconsciously, and hence acquire a faulty posture.

If you would avoid serious results in later life, you must correct this faulty position early.

A case of round shoulders is a sign of spinal curvature. The spinal column forms the central support of the body and its 34 joints should be constantly exercised to develop grace and suppleness of motion.

It is believed that defective eyes are prominent factors in the cause of spinal curvature, since the curvature is affected by the tilting of the head

TO THE EDITOR

MARKET CONDITIONS

Editor Advertiser:—May I be permitted to write a few lines in answer to the remarks of Ald. Drake, reported in your paper of the 26th inst. First, may I ask what has the question of a lunch counter to do with the fishing expedition on which the worthy alderman was engaged? The composition of the committee, too, strikes me as being a bit fishy.

It is a well-known fact that the inquiry emanated from the Grocers' Association. How comes it then that Ald. Drake is a member of the committee? Being a grocer himself, it appears to me that he is acting both as an accuser and judge, and if it is true (as I believe it to be), that no man can serve two masters, Ald. Drake showed little judgment in acting in the capacity indicated.

That the whole business is a mistake I firmly believe. "Live and let live," is an axiom that is too seldom practiced. In fact, if there is a by-law against huckstering, to my mind it is quite illegal, infringing as it does the principle that nothing shall be done that is in restraint of trade.

Though not directly affected, may I be permitted to say that all these inquiries, whether against the civic fish stall, the butchers or the hawksters, are not in the interest of the consumer.

To limit competition in order to create a monopoly in the interests of grocers or any other class can only have one object, viz., raise prices. Now, as to the matter directly concerning the fish stall, the Ald. Drake's remarks is: "He would not drink tea at the market lunch counter because of the smell of fish coming from the civic fish stall." He also insinuates the lunch counter should be closed.

Note the logic of the alderman. The lunch counter being closed, the reason assigned being (not that the smell is bad, but because of the smell coming from the fish stall.

Let me show how ridiculous the proposition is by putting it in another form. I will not dance at the Casino because of the smell of the refreshment being cooked at the refreshment booth next door. Common sense would ask why not move the booth. I guess this would suit the alderman, but he would first have to prove that the smell of fish is detrimental to public health and is a nuisance.

The medical officer of health is a frequent visitor to the market basement, and I can count at least six aldermen who are occasional visitors there. None of these have complained of the smell discovered by our municipal Sherlock Holmes. It's a better use, say, for instance, in getting justice to the garbage men in the employment of the city, or seeing that the citizens are not robbed by the big interests. In conclusion, may I thank the alderman for the cheap ad he has given me. As Henry Ford says, "Every knock is a boost." I am, faithfully yours, J. F. THOMSON.

LEARN A WORD EVERY DAY

TODAY'S word is FUTILE.

It's pronounced fu-till, accent on the first syllable, the u long, and the i short.

It means—useless, trifling, ineffectual.

It comes from the Latin futillus, meaning "that easily pours out, or leaks loose," derived from the root of fundere, to pour out.

It's used like this: "He made a futile effort to prevent the calamity."

Q.—Which is the sunniest part of Canada?

A.—Victoria, B.C., claims to be the sunniest part of Canada. For eleven months of 1921 Victoria had 2,061 hours of bright sunshine, the average daily amount being six hours, or more than sunniest Britain in the Channel Isles.

The BOOKSHELF

EDITED BY CARR

COURAGE. By J. M. Barrie. Hodder & Stoughton, Publishers, Toronto, 60 cents.

"You remember that someone said that God gave us memory so that we might have roses in December." That was one of the unmistakable phrases which told the assembly at St. Andrew's University in Scotland that the new rector, who stood speaking before them, was in truth Sir James M. Barrie.

And Barrie's theme was "courage." Surely there is redemption for the world despite all the hard words of our prophets, when the earth's cables will be set vibrating to record in every corner of the globe, the words of a commencement oration, given by the shyest and most spirituelle man of letters of our time—because they were great! Or that the supply of every periodical on this side of the water which published the cable message, and every foreign paper containing the text, was immediately exhausted by a voracious public—indeed that a book should have been on the presses no sooner than the words were out of the speaker's mouth—because it was what we all needed more than any other thing—courage. We are not yet hopeless.

But when one comes to lay hold on that speech of Barrie's which is an endeavoring to do with "courage" before me in its most tangible form—the book—it is difficult. To say it is filled with the most delicate humor seems trite; or, to make an essay of it, a cruelty to its gentle simplicity. Some way, one cannot think of it as ever having been written—it must have only been said.

It seems most to be a kind of happy and altogether satisfying record of natural words, in which there is one theme, courage, and two sets of characters, which appear as Barrie's characters usually do, with utter freedom.

One of these is the group of the older men in the world, which he designates to the graduates as their "betters," and the other is Barrie himself, or the unruly side of him (the side that writes the plays), whom he calls "M'Connachie," he says, "as you should use it in the great fight that seems to me to be coming between youth and their betters—by youth, meaning, of course, the issue lies with M'Connachie."

Imagine the disarmament to the prospect of an academic dissertation—in the naive of the apology. "My special difficulty is that though you have had literary rectors here before—the big guns, the historians, the philosophers—you have had none, I think, who followed my more humble branch, which may be described as playing hide and seek with angels."

Who would have believed it? "Playing hide and seek with angels" from the rostrum of St. Andrew's! And "It is M'Connachie who has brought me to this pass," he says, "M'Connachie, I should explain, is the name I give to the unruly half of myself—the writing half. We are complement and supplement. I am the half that is dour and practical and canny, he is the fanciful half, my desire is to be the family solicitor, standing firm on my hearthrug among the harsh realities of the office furniture, while he prefers to fly around on one wing. I shouldn't mind him doing that, but he drags me with him. I have sworn that M'Connachie shall not interfere with this address today, but there is no telling."

Those are a few of the words which make "courage" a classic, and I believe that even as he delivered them, Sir James knew they were M'Connachie's!

Is your factory a museum?

YOUR job as a manufacturer is to keep in touch with the buying public and to make it trust you. Otherwise, the buyer is indifferent to your product, and your factory becomes a museum for dead stock.

Your closest contact with your customers is your advertising in the Daily Newspapers. The people who buy this newspaper today did so yesterday and will do so tomorrow for one prime reason—to get the news. The shopping crowds at any department store prove how closely such news is read. Perfect your contact through the advertising space you rent for today, and give them more news—today's news of your product, your prices, your service and your avenues of distribution.

You can do this in only one way—through the Daily Newspapers.

If you tell the truth and do your job as well by the readers as the daily newspaper does by you in providing and retaining them, you will not need to advertise in any other way.

NEW INVENTION PROTECTS
MOTORISTS FROM GLARE

Glascio Visor Supplied and Fitted by London Art Glass and Mirror Works.

"Yes, eye strain is one of the chief drawbacks to the full enjoyment of the motor car, but there is no real protection in any appliance on the front of your car unless you can see through it."

This is the way one dealer expressed himself with regard to the "Dazzle Danger." This, as all motorists know, is a real menace to the safety and pleasure of motor car travel.

He went on to say: "So many disastrous accidents have been due to the glare of sun, snow, street lights, blinding automobile and street car lights, that people strongly feel the need of means for absorbing the blinding beams without interfering with the vision. A person may argue that he is as careful a driver as ever owned a car, always gives the other vehicle plenty of room, drives slow, and is always alert for mishaps. That particular person may be sure about his own ability and care, but what about the other fellow? One must remember that the other motorist must be taken into consideration also.

"Many clever inventions have taken care of the driver's own carlenses, dimmers and other appliances.
But these all leave him at the mercy of his fellow drivers. What good is a dim light on your own machine if the man coming towards you, full-tilt, has a glare which sends out dragon-like beams?"

"In a new visor, made of colored glass, which unlike other visors, is perfectly transparent, there is a remedy which takes care of both sides of the trouble. With this on your machine you can rest assured that the danger from the other driver is reduced to a minimum. No matter what the strength of his light it is automatically dimmed by the glass on your own driver, yet your vision is not in the least impaired.

"The Glascio Visor, equipped with this transparent colored glass, makes driving absolutely safe from the dangers of glare or dazzle, whether of headlight or snow, of stretches of burning sand or that white-hot glow from concrete roads at mid-day. The visor is so placed that one can see through it by a slight raising of the head, and yet it is out of the immediate range of the eyes. It is restful, comforting and presents a clear sight of the road ahead.

"In this matter of protection, the transparent colored glass (which, by the way, is the same as that used by leading opticians), seems to solve the problem, because it begins at the beginning—on your own car; your safety is "up to you," and not to the other fellow.

"For this reason, and because motorists have discovered that safety like charity, begins at home, this combination of the Glascio Visor and transparent colored glass, is having a tremendous success.

"The London Art Glass and Mirror Works of this city have supplied hundreds of cars with this anti-glare device, and the demand for the Glascio Visor, with the transparent colored glass, is increasing every week, because motorists are coming to realize that it is an insurance that automo-

Succeed In London

UNTOWARD booms and mushroom-like growths in real estate have had no place in the rise of the city of London.

Founded in 1826, it is now the commercial metropolis of Western Ontario, one of the finest districts of the Dominion, where natural resources, coupled with thriving industry, have made home and business life all that could be desired.

There is no record of a single year in the history of the city of London, when industry has been entirely devoid of progress. No matter what the conditions, economical and financial, in other countries, or even other parts of the Dominion, London has steadily advanced.

At the beginning of the year the prediction was freely made that London was about to enter upon a period of unprecedented industrial expansion, and although but half the year has elapsed, businessmen of the city are confident that the city is well on the way to even greater prosperity.

Success in London is a matter of seizing the advantages which the city itself offers and combining them with plenty of hard work and a genuine desire to get on. And as each individual citizen prospers, so much is added to the general prosperity of the municipality. Therein lies the secret of the greatness of London. No man may live here unto himself. His life is inseparably bound up with that of his neighbor and what benefits one, benefits all. Based upon that principle, public and domestic life in London have grown to be as fine as that of any city in the world.

ENVIABLE REPUTATION IS ENJOYED BY BARBER SHOP

Banner, of 417 Talbot Street, Employs Five First-Class Tonsorial Artists.

There is quality in all things. Although it may seem strange, even a hair cut or a shave has a degree of quality. Those who doubt this statement should analyze the grinch of Mr. Citizen on the morning that his shave does not turn out just right.

Such a grinch has never been bred in Banner's Barber Shop, 417 Talbot Street. A glimpse at the satisfied customers who leave this establishment is proof positive of the fact.

The five tonsorial artists employed at Banner's are experts in the trade; their long service as barbers ranging from 15 to 35 years, is a fact hard to equal in any other barber shop in the city, and their constant endeavor is to make new friends by their superior services. It gratifies them to please the large clientele of Londoners who daily visit this well known shop to have their needs attended to.

There has never been an apprentice at the shop under Banner's reign, simply because their work is not in keeping with the standards maintained there.

The shop enjoys an enviable reputation, partly due to the "boss," but more to the splendid services of his helpers. As a barber shop proprietor, Mr. Banner proudly points to more than 27 years' service, and as this followed eight years "learning how" he should be fully qualified in selecting helpers used to their instruments, especially so when he considers a dollar well spent if that

USED TIRE SALES WILL MAKE BAD TIRES GOOD

Motorists Are Advised to Pay Visit to 339 Talbot Street.

A "stone bruise" is the term used to describe the injury to a tire caused by striking some object with sufficient force to cause the fabric to be broken. It need not be a stone, however, that causes the damage.

The break in the fabric may be in only one ply or it may be in all of them, but in any case it is always the inside ply that breaks first.

Damage Is Inside.
An inexperienced driver, whose tire gets a heavy blow from a stone or a curb, usually looks over the outside of the tire to see if any damage has been done. But the old driver knows that if harm has been done the place to look for it is on the inside, and that any break in the fabric may be registered in the inside ply first.

If the tube is chafed through or cut after a bruise, the air will pass directly through the carcass and force the rubber side covering, and sometimes the tread, loose from the fabric.

When this happens the motorist generally terms it a blowout, and as a matter of fact it is, but contrary to the opinion often held, it is seldom caused by a defect in manufacture. It can generally be traced to an injury some time prior to the final breaking down of the tire.

As Good as Ever.
If your tire happens to be in such a condition take it to the Used Tire Sales at 339 Talbot Street, and it will be made as good as it ever was at a ridiculously low cost.

Then, again, remember that in the warm weather the danger of blowouts is greatly increased. When the warm rays of the summer sun fall on a tire the air inside expands sometimes threefold, and if the car is left long enough in the sun a blowout will result.

The Ontario Used Tire Sales are experts in repairing blowouts and all kinds of tire trouble, and will give the novice, as well as the veteran motorist, entire satisfaction.
They also make a specialty of selling rebuilt tires. So remember the address, 339 Talbot Street.

HORSE PREVENTS
ROBBERING OF DRIVER

Hamilton, July 28.—The remarkable "horse sense" of one of the animals used by the Hamilton Dairy Company saved the driver, William Stewart, from losing anything in a hold-up at 3:40 this morning.

Stewart was stopped by two men on MacNab street, one of whom, pointing a revolver at him, commanded: "Stick up your hands." Before he had a chance to comply with the request, the horse bolted, broke into a gallop, and despite the yell of the highwayman, "Stop, or I'll shoot," the horse continued on its mad career for several blocks. The police were notified, but failed to get any trace of the thugs.

ARE LONDON WOMEN GROWING FRIVOLOUS

Market Fruit Vendors Declare Preserves are Being Sacrificed For Picnics.

"If work interferes with your pleasure, give up your work!" Are citizens of London taking this advice, doubtful from an ethical standpoint, more and more to heart? In other words, are people and housewives and homemakers in particular, playing more this summer than they were wont to do in the past, at the expense, perhaps, of time-honored institutions?

The institution to which special reference is made is fruit-canning, with jelling and jam-making. Fruit growers of the district who do their vending on the market are inclined to shake their heads and preach sermons about modern tendencies and monas about modern tendencies, never in chasing after pleasure. Never in their lives have the long-established dealers witnessed such giddings about and picnic-going as appear to have swept off their feet even the most sedate of homemakers. Berries and other fruits fail to sell on Saturdays, not to the quality of other years, but simply because wives, mothers, homemakers are too intent upon picnic-going to do them up.

"There must have been a terrible lot of picnics last Saturday and the Saturday before," said a farmer, who is a large grower of berries, as he stood beside his crates a day or so ago.

"I never remember hearing about so many picnics before," said another farmer next to him quite snappily.

Run About Country.

"What are women coming to?" exclaimed a fruit farmer, when asked his experiences with picnics by the Women's Department of The Advertiser. "Truth to tell," he continued, "a week ago Saturday was as good as a market day as the Thursday and Tuesday before, though we had splendid berries in. Any of the other growers will tell you the same thing. Ask 'em, farmers, farmers' wives."

WITH THE BRIDES

SMITH-FOSTER.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at Christ Church rectory, Delaware, on Tuesday, July 25, when Pearl, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Foster, of Komoka, Ont., was married to Charles B. Smith, of London, Ont. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. H. Croly. Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Smith are spending their honeymoon in Muskoka, and after August will be at home to their friends at 82 Duchess avenue, London, Ont.

market gardeners, fruit growers, bucksters. Where are the women who used to come to market Saturday mornings to secure a large amount of fruit at the right price in order that they might do it up Saturday afternoon and evening? Where are the women who thought about stocking their preserves cupboards and providing for their families first and amusement afterwards? Off to Port Stanley and Springbank on picnics and running about the country in automobiles.

"You didn't dispose of all your fruit, then?"

"A ridiculous price," he grumbled. "Another market gardener had a similar tale of woe. 'The women come alone,' he said, 'on a Saturday, admire your fruit and tell you they would love to do up a whole crate of it, but they simply can't. They must go to a picnic.'"

Thursday, a woman who had been out of town all July until a few days ago, hurried down to the market and approached a market gardener whom she knew.

"Oh," she said, "so you have raspberries left, and nice quality, too? I cut up my holidays short because my conscience bothered me over not having any small fruit. I'd love to take a crate of yours, but it is out of the question; I have to go to a picnic this afternoon. I suppose that means we won't have any raspberries put away this year."

"Couldn't you do them before you go to the picnic?" suggested market gardener, who happens to be a good salesman to boot.

Picnics No Joke.

"If I could have them right away, delivered at the door, I'd take a crate," said the homemaker.

"I'll take them right up within ten minutes," answered market gardener, who negotiated with his neighbor to look after his wares in his absence.

The homemaker in this case showed a sincere desire to preserve as well as picnic by riding right along home on the fruit delivery wagon.

"But there aren't many women who are interested as these days," said the long-experienced market gardener, shaking his head.

"Do you suppose it is all fun for homemakers and house mothers going to picnics Saturday afternoon, Tuesday or Thursday, for that matter?" asked The Advertiser, as a come-back for all the criticisms to which she was listening during the tour of the market.

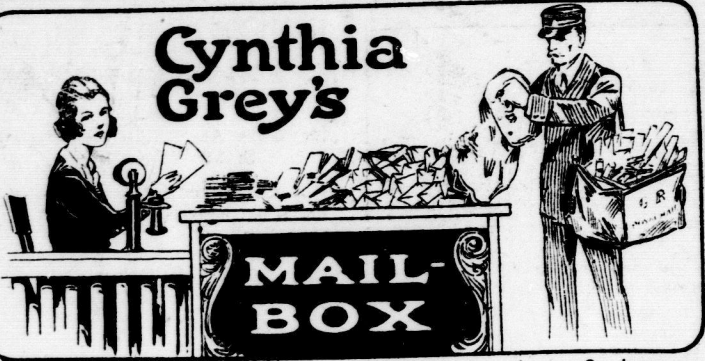

"Why, isn't it," said a fruit grower with a touch of well-bred intolerance in his tone.

"What about the cooking she must do, and the lunch packing? And didn't people used to make the complaint against wives and mothers that they stayed at home too much, shut themselves up over hot pots and pans in warm weather when they should be outdoors increasing their store of health and strength, and living with their husbands and children in their amusements? What about the old quarrel that wives made their husbands help them with the fruit on Saturday half-holidays instead of letting the poor dears enjoy a well-earned rest?"

From the fruit grower's point of view, the "old-fashioned" housewife of say a year or two ago or more had her excellent points, her wisdom and thrift, her considering of the fruit cupboards and attending to their replenishing that reacted in making Saturday fruit sales jazz merrily ahead, permitting dealers to go home early with light freight, but heavy purses and light hearts.

FANNED BY LAKE BREEZES.

Could I have Berkshire Lass's address? I also am from old London, and it would be very nice to get in touch with anyone from there. I have five children, four boys 14, 10 and 5, and a daughter 10 months old. We live alongside the Lake Huron beaches, and it is a pretty resort and full of visitors just now. I am so glad T. C. C. has been able to get out in the chair, and we all bless Maw for her big, kind heart. I hope T. C. C. will have much pleasure in her chair. Please find small mite for the fund, which is growing fine. Inclosed please find stamped addressed envelope for Berkshire Lass's address. Good-bye, Miss Grey. I wish you were up on Lake Huron beaches, as the breezes from the lake are lovely now. HAPPY SARAH.

Wouldn't I JUST like to be where you live this hot afternoon? Nothing I like better than moonlight on the water, a track of silver or gold leading into a wonderful country, where everything desired comes true. But though you row and row, and sail and sail along that track, you are quite to the end. Am forwarding the address of Berkshire Lass this very mail. Sure she will be delighted to hear from such a cheerful correspondent. Thanks for mite.

MAKES WAR ON PESTS.

Dear Miss Grey,—I am a newcomer to your corner. Please excuse lead pencil, as I have just moved, and can't find pen or ink yet. My people always insisted on taking another paper, but now we have moved out of town a few blocks, and there is no delivery of it this far. Thank goodness there is an Advertiser delivered at my door each day. I do and always have loved the dear old Advertiser, and I have waited a long time to have my way about taking this paper, so you see everything comes to those who wait.

I have just moved out of an old hotel, where I was compelled to live for twelve months on account of the scarcity of houses, and this hotel, when we moved into it, was almost alive with bedbugs. I did not know what to do to kill them before they got into my furniture, so I just took a pan of gasoline and a whitewash brush and went over the rooms I was using, woodwork, wall-paper and everywhere I saw the mark of the bugs. They vanished as if by magic. I just had to repeat the operation once, and I have not seen one live one, but plenty of dead ones. The beauty of the gasoline is it will leave a mark. Put it on good and heavy for a few days, and do not use a fire in the rooms for one or two days, until it is thoroughly dry. When I moved into the new house, I am at present the men who moved me here put my bag of sugar on the pantry floor. A few days after I wanted some sugar for canning, and behind it was just covered with little red ants. I swept them down with a broom and poured boiling water on them to kill them. I then looked around and found where they were coming up under the base board on the floor, and I took the coal oil can and poured the oil all along the base board, and they all vanished as if by magic.

These two pests are frequent trials to the busy housewife, and I hope this remedy will help others, as it has helped in my home.

I see something in The Advertiser about helping to get a child out of a hospital. Please explain it to me. I will help it along if possible. Again thanking you, I am, sincerely yours, LADY NAPOLEON.

Have been immensely amused to read about your warfare against bedbugs and ants, though I can appreciate the fact that it wasn't in the least funny to you while you were going through the grand siege. Am glad you have the information. I think we will have to dub you Lady Napoleon, since you haven't chosen a name for yourself. May you never meet another bedbug again. Am so glad our paper is your favorite, and trust it will always be up to our expectations, especially our Women's Department. You must help to keep it bright and useful by writing often.

Of course you know about the War Memorial Children's Hospital in London, which is to be opened in September, and which will provide treatment of all kinds for children of Western Ontario, orthopedic, etc. Well, the Mail-Box family some years ago started out with the idea of contributing $500 to endow a scholarship, but that amount was reached almost stretched until they were determined to make the gift $1000 to endow a cot in memory of the well-known Dr. Boxter who gave their lives in the Great War. Every day the money is coming in, a little bit at a time, five cents, ten, twenty-five, with an occasional dollar bill as a big boost. We have already turned $720 over to the treasurer of the hospital committee.

Writing you, as you requested, to answer questions you did not want published.

Temperance: Thank you for generous offer to help "A Pitiful Case." Have forwarded you the address sent in to me. Thank you also for mite, one of the "mickies" which is going to give us that "muckle" thousand dollars for the S. C. H. before very long.

PLANTS WATER THEMSELVES.

Here I am again so soon. Hope you won't mind. Please to see my letter in print. I am inclosing money for the S. C. H. fund, and also a little hint for flower lovers, as I've read lately that the box-hits have lovely gardens of flowers, and I am sure some have plants indoors during summer and wonder how they will be watered while they are away on holidays. Here it is: Place a large bowl or pail of water on a chair or the floor (chair the best), and arrange plants round the bowl, and place one end in the bowl, and the other end of the stem place in the water.

Husband and Wife Nearly Dead With CHOLERA

The chief symptoms of cholera are vomiting and purgings occur either simultaneously or alternately, and are usually sudden and very violent, and the matter ejected from the stomach has a bilious appearance and a nasty bitter taste.

On the first symptoms appearing, Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry should be taken, and the trouble checked before it becomes serious.

Mrs. Isaac Smith, Campbellton, N. B., writes: "We have been using Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry for cholera. My husband and I were pretty nearly dead with it until we started to use your medicine, and thanks to it, we have found great relief, and are recommending it to all our friends."

77 years reputation stands behind "Dr. Fowler's," therefore you are not experimenting with some new and untried remedy when you get it.

KINTORE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE.

The July meeting of Kintore Branch W. I. was exceptionally good, over forty being present. Meeting was opened by old singing "Old Kentucky Home." Some parcels of warm clothing were brought in to be sent to Northern Ontario, and it is hoped more will come in at next meeting. The picnic date was not decided. It was decided to invite Mrs. Greenaway of the War Memorial Children's Hospital committee to come and speak at the next meeting. Some discussion took place regarding sending help, in the line of fruit, eggs, etc., to Woodstock Children's Shelter. Two very good papers were given on "A Girl's Preparation for Life," by Mrs. A. Chalmers and Miss Belle Stainton. A very well rendered vocal duet was given by the little Misses Helen Dunster and Mary Skelton. "You Can't Play in Our Yard." A paper was read by Mrs. Dunlop, which Mrs. Blashill prepared on "You Cannot Buy With Gold the Old Associations." Music by the Misses Whetstone was much enjoyed. Miss Bessie Henderson read the poem entitled "The Prairie Rose." A delightful piano solo, after which the roll was called. Tea was served, and a pleasant social half-hour spent. Thorncliffe branch W. I. is to be invited to visit Kintore on Aug. 30, and give the program.

Miss Clara Waring, who is leaving shortly for India, was present and gave an address. The society took this opportunity to present Miss Waring with a life membership certificate. After the meeting the ladies quilted a quilt for the missionary bazaar. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

WOMEN'S HOME AND MAGAZINE PAGE

ARE LONDON WOMEN GROWING FRIVOLOUS

Market Fruit Vendors Declare Preserves are Being Sacrificed For Picnics.

"If work interferes with your pleasure, give up your work."

Are citizens of London taking this advice, doubtful from an ethical standpoint, more and more to heart? In other words, are people and housewives and homemakers in particular, playing more this summer than they were wont to do in the past, at the expense, perhaps, of time-honored institutions?

The institution to which special reference is made is fruit-canning with jelling and jam-making. Fruit growers of the district who do their vending on the market are inclined to shake their heads and preach sermons about modern tendencies and chasing after pleasure. Never in their lives have the long-established dealers witnessed such giddings about and picnic-going as appear to have swept off their feet even the most sedate of homemakers. Berries and other fruits fail to sell on Saturdays, not because berries and other fruits are not up to the quality of other years, but simply because wives, mothers, homemakers are too intent upon picnic-going to do them up.

"There must have been a terrible lot of picnics last Saturday and Sunday before," said a farmer, who is a large grower of berries, as he stood beside his crates a day or so ago.

"I never remember hearing about so many picnics before," said fruit farmer next to him quite snappily.

Run About Country.

"What are women coming to?" exclaimed a fruit farmer, when asked his experience with picnics by the Women's Department of The Advertiser. "Truth to tell," he continued, "a week ago Saturday was not as good a market day as the Thursday and Tuesday before, though we had splendid berries in. Any of the other growers will tell you the same thing. Ask 'em, farmers, farmers' wives."

WITH THE BRIDES

SMITH-FOSTER.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at Christ Church rectory, Delaware, on Tuesday, July 25, when Pearl, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Foster, of Komoka, Ont., was married to Charles B. Smith, of London, Ont. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. H. Croly. Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Smith are spending their honeymoon in Muskoka, and after August will be at home to their friends at 82 Duchess avenue, London, Ont.

market gardeners, fruit growers, bucksters. Where are the women who used to come to market Saturday mornings to secure a large amount of fruit at the right price in order that they might do it up Saturday afternoon and evening? Where are the women who thought about stocking their preserves cupboards and providing for their families first and amusement afterwards? Off to Port Stanley and Springbank on picnics and running about the country in automobiles.

"At a ridiculous price," he grumbled. "Another market gardener had a similar tale of woe. 'On a Saturday, come along,' he said, 'on a Saturday, come along, and tell me they would have time to do up a whole crate of other fruits, but they simply can't. They won't have time to touch it. They must go to a picnic.'

Thursday, a woman who had been out of town all July until a few days ago, hurried down to the market and approached a market gardener whom she knew.

"Oh," she said, "so you have raspberries left, and such nice quality, too. I cut my holidays short because my conscience bothered me over not having any small fruit. I'd love to take a crate of yours, but it is out of the question. I have to go to a picnic this afternoon. I suppose those who won't have any raspberries put away this year."

"What do you do them before you go to the picnic?" suggested market gardener, who happens to be a good salesman to boot.

Picnics No Joke.

"If I could have them right away, delivered at the door, I'd take a crate," said the homemaker.

"I'll take them right up within ten minutes," answered market gardener, who negotiated with his neighbor to look after his wares in his absence.

The homemaker in this case showed a sincere desire to preserve as well as picnic by riding right along home on the fruit delivery wagon.

"But there aren't many women who are interested as that that means," said the long-experienced market gardener, shaking his head.

"What you suppose it is all fun for homemakers and housewives going to picnics Saturday afternoon, Tuesday or Thursday, for that matter?" asked The Advertiser, as a come-back for all the criticisms to which she was listening during the tour of the market.

"Why, isn't it," said a fruit grower with a touch of well-belligerence in his tone.

"What about the cooking she must do, and the lunch packing? And didn't people used to make the complaint against wives and mothers that they stayed at home too much, and shut themselves up over hot pots and spits in warm weather, when they should be outdoors increasing their state of health and strength, and living with their husbands and children in their amusements? What about the old quarrel that wives made their husbands help them with the fruit on Saturday half-holidays instead of letting the poor dears enjoy a well-earned rest?"

From the fruit grower's point of view, the "old-fashioned" housewife of say a year or two ago or more had her excellent points, her wisdom and thrift, her considering of the fruit cupboards and attending to their replenishing that reacted in merrily ahead, permitting dealers to go home early with light hearts, but heavy purses and light hearts.

PLANTS WATER THEMSELVES.
Here I am again so soon. Hope you won't mind. Please to see my letter in print. I am inclosing money for the S. C. H. fund, and also a little hint for flower lovers, as I've read lately that the Boxites have lovely gardens of flowers, and I am sure some have plants indoors during summer and wonder how they will be watered while they are away on holidays. Here it is: Place a large bowl or pail of water on a chair or the floor (chair the best) and arrange plants on the table and on the ground. For each plant, take a length of soft, loosely made string or wool. Soak it in water and place one end in the bottom of the bowl to touch the bottom, the other end of the string place in the soil near the

Could I also am Berkshire Lass's address? I also am from old London, and it would be very nice to get in touch with anyone from there. I have five children, four boys 14, 10 and 5, and a daughter 10 months old. We live alongside the Lake Huron beach, and it is a pretty resort and full of visitors just now. I am so glad T. C. C. has been able to get into the chair, and we all hope T. C. C. will have much pleasure in her chair. Please find small mite for fund, which is growing fine. Inclosed please find stamped addressed envelope for Berkshire Lass's address. Good-bye, Miss Grey. I wish you were up on Lake Huron beaches, as the breezes from the lake are lovely now.

Wouldn't I just like to be where you live this hot afternoon. Nothing I like better than the moonlight on the water, a track of silver or gold leading into a wonderful country, where everything desired comes true. I thought you row and row, or sail, sail along that track, you never get quite to the end. Am forwarding the address of Berkshire Lass this very mail. Sure she will be delighted to hear from such a cheerful correspondent. Thanks for mite.

MAKES WAR ON PESTS.

Dear Miss Grey,—I am a newcomer to your corner. Please excuse lead pencil, as I have just moved, and can't find pen or ink yet. My people always insisted on taking another paper, but now we have moved out of town a few blocks, and there is no delivery of it this far. Thank goodness there is an Advertiser delivered at my door each day. I do and always have loved the dear old Advertiser, and I have waited a long time to have my way about taking this paper, so you see everything comes to those who wait.

I have just moved out of an old hotel, where I was compelled to live for twelve months for account of the scarcity of houses, and this hotel, when we moved into it, was almost alive with bedbugs. I did not know what to do to kill them before they got into my furniture, so I just took a pail of gasoline and a whitewash brush and went over the rooms I was using, woodwork, wall-paper, and everywhere I saw the mark of the bug. They were as if by magic. I just had to repeat the operation once, and I have not seen one live one, but plenty of dead ones. The beauty of the gasoline is that it will leave a mark on the paper or woodwork. Put it on good and heavy for a few days, and do not use a fire in the rooms for one or two days, until it is thoroughly dry. When I moved into the house I am in at present the men who moved me here put my bag of sugar on the pantry floor. A few days after I wanted some sugar for canning, and behind the bag was just covered with little red ants. I swept them down with a broom and poured boiling water on them to kill them. I then looked around and found where they were coming up under the base board on the floor, and I took the coal oil can and poured the oil all along the base board, and they all vanished as if by magic. These two pests are frequent trials to the busy housewife, and I hope this remedy will help others, as it has helped in my home.

Also, girls enter business soon after leaving school—at an age when they most need rest and outdoor life. Their womanly development is hampered by the stress of working hours, hurried and often scanty meals. This is proved by the statement of Miss Eldora Acker, Lake Pleasant, N. S., who says: "I shall be glad if some other ailing girl will profit by my experience with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was very much run down; my face was pale and there were dark circles around my eyes. My appetite was bad, and I had no ambition to do anything or go about. I had once before been helped by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and decided to try them again. Of course you know about the War Memorial Children's Hospital in London, which is to be opened in September, and which will provide treatment of all kinds for children of Western Ontario. orthopedic, etc. Well, the Mail-Box family some years ago started out with the idea of contributing $500 to endow a crib. When that amount was reached ambition stretched until they were determined to make the gift $1,000 to endow a cot in memory of the loved ones of Boxes who gave their lives in the Great War. Every day the money is coming in, a little bit at a time, five cents, ten cents, with an occasional dollar here and a big boost. We have already turned $720 over to the treasurer of the hospital committee.

The chief symptoms of cholera are vomiting and purgings occur either simultaneously or alternately, and are usually sudden and very violent, and the matter ejected from the stomach has a bilious appearance and a nasty bitter taste.

Come To Church Tomorrow

"YES, I know all the excuses. I know that one can worship the Creator in a grove of trees or by a running brook, or in a man's own house, just as well as in a church. But I also know as a matter of fact the average man does not thus worship."

Here are a few benefits to be derived from church attendance:

"You will listen to and take part in reading some beautiful passages from the Bible. And if you are not familiar with the Bible, you have suffered loss."

"You will take part in singing some good hymns."

"You will meet and nod or speak to good neighbors. You will come away feeling a little more charitably inclined toward all the world, even toward those excessively foolish young men who regard church-going as a soft performance."

"Join in church work for the sake of showing your faith in your works."

Make your start in church service tomorrow. A fair trial of church attendance will convince you it's well worth while.

SAYS "GRIP" GERM CAUSES INFLUENZA

Famous London Physician Hopes Serum Treatment Will Effect Cure.

LONDON, July 29.—That influenza is predominantly a germ disease, which can possibly be cured by serum treatment, is the conclusion reached by Dr. James McIntosh, of London, after a lengthy study of the great epidemic of 1918-19, made for the medical research council.

The results obtained by Dr. McIntosh, a report of which today was published, are offered very tentatively. Dr. McIntosh is careful to make no positive claims. Indeed, any one who reads the evidence which he cites must come to the conclusion that his deductions might be put with much greater assurance than they are.

Dr. McIntosh believes that the cause of influenza is Pfeiffer's influenza bacillus, whose presence could

Find Drugs Smuggled Daily Into Montreal Peril Thousand Lives

MONTREAL, July 28.—According to those who are reputable authorities on the subject, over five hundred ounces of narcotic drugs are being smuggled into Montreal every day, a quantity sufficient to cause the death of at least a thousand persons.

The traffic in drugs recently assumed such alarming proportions that local authorities found themselves unable to adequately cope with the situation under existing regulations concerning the penalties for drug peddling.

Ottawa was appealed to with the result that judges have now the jurisdiction to sentence persons convicted of selling drugs to the lash. Other amendments to the act in question prescribe heavy fines and long terms of imprisonment.

Aliens convicted of drug peddling may, in future, be immediately deported irrespective of the immigration act. The publicity given to the appalling conditions in this city will, it is anticipated, tend to check the traffic.

Hospitals are unanimous in declaring that they have never had to deal with so many cases of drug poisoning before.

If not counteracted, can cause death. Experiments on animals with filtered cultures of the bacillus produced pathological changes similar to those found in man, and serum has been evolved which has produced rapid improvement even in severe cases of influenza.

KILLED BY AUTO TRYING TO SAVE PAIL OF BUTTERMILK

Robert Robbins of Freeman, 82 Years Old, Dies of Injuries in Hospital.

HAMILTON, July 28.—Robert Robbins, aged 82 years, of Freeman, gave his life in an effort to save a pail of buttermilk.

He had gone to the home of a neighbor on the road between Freeman and Aldershot, and had got some buttermilk.

While returning, he placed the pail on the side of the road while he stopped to chat with a man in a motor truck.

A motor driven by Fred Dawe, Winona, came up, and Mr. Robbins, thinking his pail was in danger of being run over, tried to rescue it and was knocked down by Mr. Dawe's car.

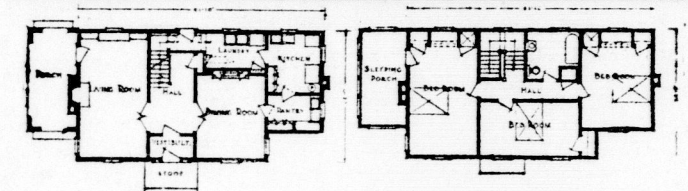

He was brought to St. Joseph's Hospital, but died from injuries this evening.

MACAROW CASE MAY END SOON

Thomas Mackay, Former London Inspector, Testifies At Bank Probe.

Tells of Report Made On Account of Montreal Branch.

MONTREAL, July 28.—The Merchants Bank inquiry is expected to end next week. When the court which is hearing the charge against D. C. Macarow, former general manager, of making false statements in the October, 1921, return to the government, adjourned at noon today until Tuesday, it was said that longer sessions would be held and that all the evidence should be completed by Thursday night.

Counsel for the defense completed his cross-examination of George Edwards, Toronto, chartered accountant, called in by the government to make an investigation of the bank's affairs prior to its absorption by the Bank of Montreal. He drew from the witness information to the effect that the brokerage firm of Thornton, Davidson were indebted to the Merchants Bank in the sum of $4,000,000 and that the bank had appropriated $3,400,000 to meet the debt.

Carried Call Loans.

The balance was carried as before as current or call loans of overdraft. Counsel endeavored to secure an admission from Mr. Edwards that if there was any misclassification it was to the disadvantage of the bank, but witness could not agree to this view.

N. K. Laflamme, K.C., counsel for defense, then cross-examined Mr. Edwards on the appropriations against bad and doubtful debts, and the returns of these debts for the period ended Sept. 30, 1921.

While there were tremendous crowds in town on several nights during the old boys' reunion and hundreds enjoyed themselves to the full in innocent, but noisy amusement, with very few exceptions there was no evidence of any indulgence in liquor, and in no cases police interference was required.

This morning, however, there was an aftermath, for about seven o'clock on the main street, two men believed to have been under the influence of liquor, got into a fight. The matter is under police investigation, but no police were in sight at the time.
