The Snake Scotched Justice Done.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Then, suddenly his mind shifted to another subject: Fanny Mason. He had wearied of her very quickly, and had discarded her and closed the house at St. John's Wood. He had endeavoured to effect the separation "amiably," but Fanny in a fit of passion had refused the money he had offered her and had disappeared. He dismissed her from his thoughts. After all, she could do him no harm. It was very unlikely that she would return to Lynne. She must have saved money from her allowance, and she had, of course, taken the jewellery he had given her. Nor there was no need to worry himself about Fanny Mason. He forgot that she was wanted as a witness, and that detectives were searching for her.

He went slowly back to the house and met Doctor Campbell coming out of the library.

"The earl?" asked Talbot, with every appearance of affectionate anxiety.

"He is asleep. I was going to fetch Welford to sit with him."

"I will stay with him," said Talbot. "I would rather; he would like it."

"I am going for some medicine," said Doctor Campbell, "and I shall not be long. Don't let him agitate himself; if he should wake, keep him quiet."

Talbot stole in. The old man was lying back in his big chair sleeping of mental and physical exhaustion. Talbot sat down and looked at him keenly. He might die at any moment in this death-like slumber. Was the will in Veronica's favour destroyed? His eyes went to the safe, and he started. The keys were in the lock. It would only take a moment.

He stole to the safe, and, glancing over his shoulder at the earl, opened it. There were a number of papers and deeds filed methodically inside, and with noiseless haste he turned them over. Presently he found one endorsed "Will."

He untied the red tape and ran his eyes over the document. It was a will made soon after Veronica's flight, and left him Wayneford and the money! He smiled with satisfaction, then searched for the Veronica will.

Just as he had found it, he heard a step outside, and with a start he tossed the will back into the safe and stole to a chair. The step passed, and he went back to the safe. A moment afterwards the folded parchment was on the top of the fire. It caught at once, and he watched it until it had smouldered into a heap of charcoal. He was gently and cautiously stirring it into the body of the fire when the earl awoke with a deep sigh and looked round him confusedly.

"Talbot!" he said.

Talbot got up and went to him with affectionate anxiety.

"Are you better, sir? Will you come to bed now; is there anything I can get you?"

"No, no, thank you. It was good of you to stay with me."

The voice and tone were strangely gentle for the once stern and cynical earl. "You know that I quite appreciate your position, your disappointment. But my son, Talbot! My own son!"

"Yes, yes, sir; very natural," assented Talbot, soothingly. "But you must not agitate, excite yourself. Will you not come—"

"No, no. There is something I want to do. Come for me in half an hour. You need not be afraid to leave me. Go please, Talbot."

There was the old tone of command in the voice, and Talbot could not disobey.

When he had gone the earl rose with difficulty and, steadying himself by the furniture, went to the safe. He noticed the disordered condition of the deeds and frowned thoughtfully and presently he found one will.

He laid it on the table and searched for the other; but it was not there. Had Bolton taken it? No; he remembered seeing him replace them both with the other will in his hand he moved back to the fire and stared at it mutely, and suddenly he saw a fluttering ember of parchment.

None of the Denbys were fools. In an instant he had leapt to the right conclusion. The keys had been left in the safe, Talbot had been kneeling by the fire—

The old man shrank as if he had been struck. That a Denby, the man so nearly become his heir and successor, should be guilty of an act so heinous overwhelmed him with grief and shame.

The perspiration stood out in beads on his forehead and he trembled like a leaf. Then his lips moved.

"Be it so!" he muttered. "He has lugged a pit and fallen into it. He Denby, a common criminal! He has lugged the pit, there let him lie!"

Certainly Mr. Talbot Denby's unlucky star was in the ascendant, for the will the earl held in his hand was that he had made in Veronica's favour. Talbot had destroyed the wrong one!

It caught at once, and he watched it until it had smouldered into a heap of charcoal. "No, no. There is something I want to do. Come for me in half an hour. You need not be afraid to leave me. Go please, Talbot."

—"Lord Denby," murmured Mr. Sainsbury.

"I beg your pardon, Lord Denby, if you prefer it, is remanded on a charge of willful murder!"

Veronica looked up quickly, and with a catch in her breath.

"But you yourself said he ought to be discharged!"

Mr. Selby smiled again.

"So I should have said if the evidence had been twice as strong, Miss Fresham. If I am to speak plainly— She was pale now, and her lovely eyes met his bravely.

"Yes, yes; oh, yes, speak plainly, please!" she murmured.

ous to do so the moment his doctor will permit, and I should not be surprised if he refuses to wait for the permission," said Mr. Selby.

His surmise was a correct one, for the next morning the earl came down early, and Welford followed with his lordship's hat and fur coat.

"Surely you are not going out, sir?" said Talbot, with grave remonstrance.

"Yes," replied Lord Lynborough, eyeing him sternly. "I am going to the pris—to see my son."

"You will let me go with you, sir—as far as the town?" said Talbot.

It would make a favourable impression if he were seen accompanying the earl.

The earl declined with a gesture.

"Thank you; but I prefer to be alone," he said, and his eyes rested on Talbot's piercingly and with almost open contempt.

If the Food Ferments

Chronic dyspepsia is essentially a disease of the intestines rather than of the stomach. The trouble is caused by the food passing too slowly along the alimentary canal and fermenting instead of being digested.

By using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you can get rid of this congested condition of the digestive organs in quick time. The liver is awakened at once, the bowels are regulated and the system is thoroughly rid of the poisonous waste matter which has been causing so much trouble.

Biding Their Time.

The feeling against the Morris Government is daily growing in intensity. Daily we receive reports from different districts of the turn of the tide and of the running of the wave of unpopularity against the Government. The people are biding their time with a fixed and stolid determination to mark their ballots for the overthrow of the P. Party. Everywhere the feeling is the same and hosts of voters realize the mistake they made in assisting to put Morris in charge of the Government. They bitterly regret the mistake they made, and they declare that never again will they be caught napping.

The talk everywhere is that if the Election was held this fall, the Morris Government would be completely swamped, and they realize that the Government policy is to hold on as long as possible in the hope of something turning up to give the Government party a chance. They expect that Government money will flow like water this fall and next summer. But the expenditure on public works will have no more influence in stemming or even turning the tide. The minds of the people are fixed on turning out the Government, and the longer the Government puts off the evil day the more pronounced the verdict will be.

That Sir Edward Morris feels the ground slipping from under his feet is evident from the fact that he began his political canvas eighteen months before the time he declares he will hold the General Elections. But he is making no progress in his effort to regain a firm footing. Reports which are gradually coming in of his reception in the District of Burgeo and La Folle, and at ports of call of the Glencoe on his way back to Placentia show that the people have gone back on him. The report we published of his tour of Bonne Bay shows that he made no headway there in spite of all his exertion. He is gone, and everybody realizes it now. It is the common talk of the street, you can feel it in the air. It prevails everywhere. Morris's Day is Done, and everybody is glad.

Archbishop McDonald Dead

Intelligence came to-day in the cable message of the death of Archbishop McDonald at Antigonish. The deceased churchman, retired from the diocese of Harbor Grace some six years ago, where he had ruled as bishop for some quarter of a century. He came to that diocese from Canada, and during his long episcopate earned the love, esteem and regard not only of the people of his own church but also of the members of other churches. Outside of strictly church affairs he was much interested in education and agriculture, and Harbor Grace owes much to his initiation and example in the cultivation of the soil and the rearing of farm stock. Among other experiments he made was one to try the growth of wheat in Harbor Grace. His interest in agriculture was not confined to Harbor Grace, but extended to the whole island. So impressed was the Government with his knowledge and zeal in this direction that he was appointed a member of an Agricultural Commission which reported on Agricultural possibilities of the island and recommended Agricultural Settlements.

During his episcopate he completed the Cathedral at Harbor Grace, which was destroyed by fire, and then rebuilt the present edifice after the fire. He also remodelled the palace at Harbor Grace. When he resigned his episcopate he was made an Archbishop and retired to Canada, where he remained till he passed from Time to Eternity.

All Bluff.

WINNIPEG, To-Day.

Unionist talk in Ulster is all bluff, said Sir Thomas Whittaker, M.P., the well known publicist and financier of London. They said the same thing forty years ago, when we were about to disestablish the Irish Church. They were going to lay down their lives then. They want to bed instead. Home Rule for Ireland will be law inside of three years, if we can carry the bill through the House of Commons three times. I feel that it will be easily accomplished. Sir Thomas said they were all agreed that we need a powerful navy and we would welcome the free co-operation of Canada.

When you go shooting you should take with you a small bottle of Peroxide of Hydrogen as an antiseptic and a couple of bandages. You may very likely need them, as, on the barren, the smallest scratch or burn is annoying and may be dangerous, and it is well to take no chances. Peroxide is a powerful non-poisonous antiseptic; and can be used as well for a mouth wash or gargle as for a dressing. We have handy four ounce bottles of Peroxide of the best and strongest kind in general use for 15 cents; and bandages of different kinds and widths.

As an Autumn Tonic our Quinine and Iron preparation is not surpassed. Containing no alcohol. You get the full benefit of these well-known remedies. Price 40 cents a bottle.

A Bright Idea.

The head of the family had been reading on account of a rear-end collision on a railroad. As he laid the paper aside, he remarked, "I think that the last car on a train is always the most dangerous to ride in." Little Ethel, seated close by, passed several moments in deep thought. Then she looked up brightly. "Why don't they take it off, Papa?" she asked.

Not True.

We received a letter from Mr. J. S. Lumsden, Chief Engineer of the S. S. Bellaventure, stating that the report of his marriage is absolutely false. He wishes it to be contradicted, and to know how the report originated. We have sent to him the original copy and we hope he will give the writer his deserts. We shall assist him to do so. He does not regard it as a joke. Nor do we, and it is high time such kind of jokers were made to realize the enormity of their offence.

Waste in Fisheries.

A Paper Read Before the Council of the Board of Trade on the Question of Fishery Offal and the Treatment of the Dog-Fish Pest.

BY E. M. JACKMAN.

I submit that a solution of this problem will not lie in the direction of an expensive method of collecting offal, some process must be found of a cheap, easy and a quick plan by which the valuable parts of the fish such as—

TONGUES, SOUNDS, HEADS, ROES, etc. will be put up as a delicacy in jars and packages, and the head, entrails, eyes, bones, and such fish as flatfish, dogfish and all other fish of no present commercial value as a food product be reduced by simple process to a fertilizer. A good chemist will find a simple plan of reducing this offal, and if the fishermen are organized into co-operative societies, for the purpose of co-operative production a solution of the offal problem and the dogfish pest will be found. I ask then in all seriousness if it is not a reflection on us to be throwing back into the sea as waste such delicacies as the tongue, sounds, roes the choicest parts of a codfish, while other countries are treating them as a food and chemical, and making big money out of what we consider of no value; while our offal is allowed to fester near our stage heads an eye sore and a menace to the health of many a fishery settlement.

There are also fish in plenty in our waters that we consider useless, and throw away from the nets as waste that are considered delicacies in other countries, take the Mussel as an example, its fish is a splendid food, but the shells are of greater value, they are used, as you all know, for the manufacture of Pearl Buttons and ornaments. Whole settlements on the Mississippi River and its tributaries are making a living out of the Mussel Shell Industry. It would be of interest to the fishermen of Newfoundland if the Board of Trade would ascertain the value of the Mussel Shells per hundred weight or ton. I know that pearl buttons are going up every season. As mussels are very plentiful on our coast line it would also pay us in time to look into the possibilities of breeding fresh water mussels in our large river beds.

Then again we have a great waste in our bait fishes, and the cry of no bait is often a just judgment and nature's penalty for the abuse of God's gift to our country. The amount of stale bait that is allowed to rot and is thrown overboard is enormous. There is another asset within reach of nearly all of our fishery settlements that needs scientific treatment. I refer to the unlimited quantities of Kelp, goose grass, etc. that is strewn around our coast; we all know that certain kelp contains valuable chemicals. If we had a good chemist and organizer he would show us that in the economy of nature even kelp and sea weed that strew our beaches was put there for some useful purpose. The burning of kelp into ashes is quite an industry among the fishermen of Ireland. This kelp ash is used in large quantities as a fertilizer. In this

Manufacture of Iodine, and a considerable trade is done between Ireland and Glasgow in the supply of this product. It is obvious that with our immense quantities of kelp and cheap wood fuel we can supply large quantities of kelp ash and probably use it up ground with fish offal as a basis of a fertilizer. In this neglect of our sea grasses we have another form of its waste. If an example is needed to further illustrate waste, and prove to us that the things of to-day that we consider waste and of no value may to-morrow be very valuable, I need only point to the fact that since the dawn of creation the waters of Petty Harbor ponds were running wasteful into the sea, and in flood often damaging the homes and stages of the fishermen of Petty Harbor, now by the application of science they are under control, and as God intended them, they are there to serve man's use and benefit, by supplying us with light, heat and power that are essential accessories of modern civilization, and in passing I desire to express the hope that this Board of Trade will make a representation to the Government urging the desirability of reserving all the water powers of the Peninsula of Avalon for public utilities.

In considering the value of waste in connection with our fisheries, we naturally ask the question "What does Norway do?"

With Their Offal, By the courtesy of the Marine & Fisheries Department Mr. Simonsen has placed at my disposal the very latest fishery statistics which covers a period dating from last April 1911, to April 20th, 1912. A reference to their fishery exports of cod roes, cod heads, and sound bones is enough to convince any patriotic Newfoundlanders that the hour has now arrived to grapple with the problem of waste. Norway exported in 1911-12, 16,550 lbs. of cod roes valued at $336,211 and in addition to the above they dry large quantities of cods heads for cattle feed; the heads are dried in the air, and later by means of heat in special ovens or open fireplaces, when thoroughly dried it is ground up into meal or flour and is used by the farmers as cattle feed. This meal contains on an average from 50 to 60 per cent. of albuminous matter, two per cent. of fat, and 28 per cent. of phosphate of lime. I have no statistics to show the value of the codfish meal used for home consumption, but Mr. Simonsen assures me that a very large quantity of heads are sun dried and used locally as cattle feed. Now let us take cod roes. The Norwegian export 35,000 brls. valued at $238,711, a total of $672,922 of offal.

That We Throw Away to pollute the sea. The average total of these products from Newfoundland the past ten years was $5,000 per annum. This I submit is enough to open our eyes and minds to the importance of finding a plan of disposing of our fishery waste.

Then again if we look at the herring exports we find that last year they exported 22,529,906 cases of herring flour valued at $709,412. This flour is made from small herrings and from an excess quantity of herrings left over by bait carriers after the fishermen are supplied. The process of making this flour is something like making cods heads guano, the herring is steamed, then pressed and ground. The meal made from fresh herring contains more protein and more fat than from cod, the former ranging from 60 to 80 p.c. to 18 p.c. to 12 p.c. The low percentage of phosphate of lime 8 p.c. to 18 p.c. is due to the fact that the bones of herrings are not so rich in mineral matter. Before this meal of flour is made.

The Oil is Extracted, and the value of the herring off exports last year was $258,376. If we look at our fishing grounds in Placentia Bay, Salmonier, Connaigre, Bay of Islands, and Bonne Bay, we will see miles of fishing grounds with white bottoms where thousands of tons of herring were thrown overboard to rot and pollute the grounds, is it any wonder that our people are poor men on such criminal waste is going on? I consider that it calls for an active herring. I have been told by people who knew that fishery in its palmy days that it was no uncommon thing for American and Canadian vessels to have a cargo of half frozen herrings, and if a soft spurt came on to dump thousands of barrels overboard on the grounds and get fresh cargoes.

In Norway all these herrings would go to the reduction factories to be boiled into oil and fish meal. The total value last year of what we would consider waste Norway realized as follows:—
Herring flour ..... $709,412
Herring oil ..... 258,376
Cods' Heads Guano ..... 336,211
Cods' Roes ..... 312,543
$1,616,542

Gentlemen, in the face of these figures and in view of the large quantities of offal in connection with our fisheries and the alarming increasing of the dog pest, I submit that the hour has arrived when this problem should be grappled with. For some years the dog fish pest has been growing at an alarming rate, and this year it has seriously interfered with our cod fishery, especially on the South West Coast; we have no data to give us in estimating the loss in the catch of fish and damage to gear, but from a description of the extent of the pest given by intelligent fishermen I consider that it calls for an active united effort on the part of all interested in the Colony's welfare. The policy of extermination, I submit, is out of the question. First, because it is impossible to exterminate or materially lessen the quantity of any species of fish life; second, in the economy of Nature, these pests are designed by Providence for some useful or necessary purpose and are intended ultimately to serve in some form or other "Man's use and benefit," and for us to imagine that he can through his puny efforts upset the balance of Nature by exterminating these pests that have their proper place and function in the food chain is to invite disaster. In discussing this phase of the question we have something to guide us I read recently a very interesting diary of a Greenock Merchant Yachtman who after cruises yachting around the coast of Scotland about 110 years ago. He discovered the loss and hardship the dog fish pest was to Scotland and he tells us how they met the difficulty. They rendered the liver into oil and made a fertilizer of a compost of peat and lime with the fish. I understand that a Mr. Foran, of Argentina used to buy all the dog fish caught in that locality for the value of the liver and manure. By the information submitted by the fishermen and the fact that the Canadian Government is grappling with this problem, and having erected three Government Reduction Plants, I do not think it is probable that this problem by any Government establishing Reduction Plants in large centres for two reasons. First, because they will not be as economically worked as the private ones on a commercial basis; second, the establishment of Reduction Plants with a large staff will entail considerable expense and in a few hours all the fish and loss from the beginning. Even if these objections were overcome in my opinion the migratory habits of this fish, and the fact that a sustained supply within the area of a Reduction Plant will operate against this industry being ever placed on a commercial basis unless it is considered as a means of dealing with the problem of our whole fishery waste.

I submit that the way to face this difficulty is to organize the fishermen into co-operative societies for the purpose of saving roes, heads, and sounds and other non-food fishes and fish offal, and also to manufacture dogfish into oil and fertilizer. We all know that it will not pass each fisherman to treat the fish offal of his own catch, but social science teaches us that what is impossible in the individual is easy when a number of men engaged in production combine to keep themselves by helping each other.

I offer, therefore, as a solution of this dogfish pest and the problems of waste in connection with our fisheries the adoption by the fishermen of the principles of co-operative production. A brief reference to the progress of co-operative production in Denmark, France, England and Ireland will enable us to judge if this system can be introduced in connection with our fisheries. Personally, I am of opinion that within a few years the principles underlying co-operative production will be uppermost in the minds of men who are honestly seeking an adjustment on a sound basis by which producers will share in a more equitable distribution of the fruits of their industry.

Home Dressmaking.

BY H. L. RANN.

Home dressmaking is a form of domestic economy which women resort to when they want to save up the price of a new set of furs. It is a nervous occupation and requires great muscular agility on the part of the patient.

The chief requirements for this kind of dress-making are a bolt of blue gingham, a reservoir of hope and a set of surveying tools. With these ingredients a dress can be made that will last a long time, as it is seldom worn after the first offence.

The greatest aid to home dressmaking is the wire form, a device with movable ribs and adjustable shoulder blades which a woman can stick pins into without drawing blood. The beauty of this invention is that it never stands on one leg and makes a new skirt hang like a gunny sack on a vinegar barrel, as is so often the case with the human model.

With the aid of these forms and a tape line a woman can just see how she looks when she loses her head. She can also prevent calling in one of the neighbors with a 42-inch waist measure, who is willing to pose in a top-sided attitude while exchanging unbridled opinions about somebody who is not present.

One of the most picturesque sights we know of is to see an agile housewife with a determined nature and a wondrous pin, circling rapidly around some hopeless victim and jabbing her full of pleats, tucks and pinholes.

One of the penalties of home dressmaking is that the husband has to prepare a new and flowery rhapsody over every dress, before the basting threads are ejected. In all other respects, however, it is one of the most beneficial forms of human endeavor.

Don't Scold an Irritable Child.
See if Tongue Isn't Coated, Stomach Sour and Bowels Waste Clogged.

Mother! Don't scold your cross, peevish child! Look at the tongue! See if it is white, yellow and coated! If your child is listless, drooping, isn't sleeping well, is restless, doesn't eat heartily or is cross, irritable, out of sorts with everybody, stomach sour, feverish, breath bad, has stomachache, diarrhoea, sore throat, or is full of cold, it means that little one's stomach, liver and 30 feet of bowels are filled with poisons and foul, constipated waste matter and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

Give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours all the clogged up waste, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of your little waste clogged bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you will surely have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowels cleanser and regulator needed—a little given to-day will save a sick child to-morrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixer of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting, genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

Thirty Thousand a Year From 12 Acres.

Every Cent is Made From the Soil Itself; Nothing is Manufactured Except With the Assistance of the Soil and Nature.

"Thirty thousand dollars extracted from twelve acres of ground every year, of which at least twelve thousand dollars the farmer puts in the bank as profits after paying all expenses!"

This is the record of a farmer near Cleveland, Ohio, who was formerly a city man, but who went back to the soil and made good. His name is Martin L. Ruetenik, and the story is told in Technical World Magazine by Stanley L. McNichol.

"From the city with its blare of noises and its dusty streets," we are told "this man sought out a little farm, settled down and is now making as much money as the head of many a successful business corporation. After a weary struggle of several years the ground gave forth its bounty and to-day he is clearing over a thousand dollars a month, owns and operates two automobiles and several carriages—has a cosy home and a happy family."

"In one year—1907—the farm returned twenty thousand dollars in profits, the gross receipts being about double that sum. For this year Ruetenik hopes to realize a total of about fifteen thousand dollars in profits, after all expenses are paid."

"Thus this enterprising farmer is making one thousand dollars an acre per year from his land. It is true that he has become a specialist, yet it is also true that every cent is made from the soil itself. Nothing is manufactured except with the assistance of soil and nature."

"Ruetenik's little farm, contains eighteen acres in all, but only twelve are under cultivation. Eighteen men are employed on these twelve acres every square inch of which is made to produce revenue in the way of vegetables."

"Martin Ruetenik is a brilliant example of a man who has learned to use his brains. Beginning on a piece of land without any special advantages as to fertility or adaptability and without any experience as a farmer, this man, by dint of hard work, intelligent direction, has covered the little farm into a veritable gold mine yielding as it does twice the value of the land per year, after all expenses are paid."

"Scarf as the average farmer does about 'book larnin' and the farmers who attempt to sow and reap their crops from advice bound between cloth covers, this farmer makes them sit up, for Ruetenik is a 'book-made' farmer. In addition, he has been a very close student of government and experiment station reports. He has also cultivated a penchant for experimenting. Although cautious to a degree, he is constantly at work seeking to improve the quality of his vegetables and to discover new means for getting them to the people when the prices are highest."

"Back in 1883, H. J. Ruetenik, President of Calvin College, Cleveland, grew inexplicably weary of city life. He decided to go back to the soil and reap his brain and exercise his body. He had a sixteen-year-old son, Martin L. Ruetenik, whom he decided to take with him."

"The Rueteniks started in to do some scientific gardening. They read up the newest methods of fertilizing their land, discussed the best ways of planting, cultivating and harvesting their crops."

"When the college professor and his son balanced their books at the beginning of the first year, they discovered that they had lost about five hundred dollars. The same thing happened the second year. The third year the balance was somewhat smaller. So it was the fourth year. The fifth year they broke even and thereafter the profits began to appear."

"The younger Ruetenik began studying the use of hothouses in raising farm crops. Doing a general gardening business from the very first the young man discovered that more money could be made from certain crops, and as money was what he was after, he promptly began to specialize in these crops—celery, tomatoes, asparagus, lettuce, pie plant, beets and several other vegetables. The main crops, however, were celery, tomatoes and lettuce."

"It was about 1888 that young Ruetenik built his first greenhouse. It was ten by fifty in size and has since been torn down. He started growing lettuce and tomatoes for the early spring and later fall markets, when it could be obtained from other sources."

"The greenhouse didn't pay its way the first year nor the second year either. A little thing like that, however, didn't discourage Ruetenik, who about this time purchased his father's interest in the farm and began running it alone. He kept right along and the third year the greenhouse broke about even on receipts and expenditures. Thereafter it began to pay big money."

Marshall Bros.

Ruetenik built three or four greenhouses each year for five or six years until he had a total of about twenty-five houses in 1900, since which time he had made no new extensions, being kept busy looking after their contents and always maintaining them in first-class order. He had 120,000 sq. feet or nearly three of the twelve acres of land under glass.

"In a number of these houses crops of lettuce are raised all winter. Beginning about the end of July the little plants, some 255,000 of them this year, were set out. The crop was in shape for the market about the end of August and from that time until the first of the next June lettuce is being sent to market almost every day. The garnish on the roast at Thanksgiving or Christmas in many a home comes from Ruetenik's hothouses. He plants and raises three crops of lettuce in his hot houses each year. In the fall he sells a case of forty heads for as low as 25 cents or as high as $2.00, according to the season, the supply and the demand. Lettuce which he sells to the Cleveland wholesaler 'for five cents a head the grocer sells to the consumer for about fifteen cents, so that there is considerable profit for others from Ruetenik's business."

"Tomatoes are another of Ruetenik's profitable crops. He sows his seed in the hot houses about February first. While the snow is swirling about the glass roof the tender plants shoot up, the temperature being kept from sixty to eighty degrees as required. The little plants are carefully tended and trained in one tall vine, being hung with twine to a series of wires above. Some vines grow six and eight feet high, with tomatoes hanging ripe and red every three or four inches. A year ago Ruetenik sold 12,000 baskets of ten pounds each from fourteen greenhouses at $1 a basket, or a total of $12,000. The crop which is sowed early in February is marketed from June fifteenth to August fifteenth—long before home-grown tomatoes are available in the Cleveland territory and when they sell at from eight to twenty cents a pound.

"Cucumbers are another profitable crop raised by this gardener. He begins his crop early in the spring and harvests it late in May and early in June. His crop the past year consisted of 500 bushels which is sold at $2.00 a bushel, realizing $1,000.

"Four of the nine acres outdoors are set to celery, some 200,000 plants being grown. These plants are put out in June and July and are harvested in September, October and November, when they sell for about $2.00 per 100 plants. Such a crop is worth to Ruetenik about $4,400.

"Pie plant is raised on sections of the twelve acres which are on a hillside and which cannot well be cultivated for other purposes. Over $200.00 a year per acre is realized on the pie plant. Each plant of rhubarb lasts about five years and is then replaced. Each year about fifty tons of manure, costing $1.00 a ton, are scattered over the acres devoted to pie plant.

"Several acres are devoted to asparagus, beets, carrots and other vegetables, which are set out just as early as possible so they can be marketed a few weeks ahead of the regular crop. A patch of about an acre of sweet corn was grown this year and sold at 25 cents a dozen ears. Three weeks later a neighbor living almost next door sold his sweet corn on the Cleveland market for two cents a dozen! Such is the difference in men. Ruetenik uses his brains and the other fellow don't."

Four Men Drowned.

About ten days ago a message was received by the Deputy Colonial Secretary conveying the sad intelligence that four men belonging to Trinity Bay were drowned at Cud's Throat. The deceased victims belonging to the schooner Susan M. Miller Master, which carried a crew of nine all told and which was afterwards a total wreck. The Solway which arrived last evening reports that only two of craft's crew were drowned. A confirmation of the former message has been received and the news broken to the bereaved families.

CABLE NEWS.

Special to Evening Telegram.
LONDON, To-day.
Twenty leading British motor manufacturers discussed a campaign to oppose the American invasion at a luncheon given by Ralph Blumfield, editor of the Daily Express, which he is promoting against American autos. The formation of a big British corporation out of the existing companies and the establishment of a Protective Tariff were the definite plans proposed. Several manufacturers made speeches in which they all agreed that British factories and workmen should supply the home market with low-priced machines, many thousands of which are now coming to England from America.

Whaling News.

According to news received by the Solway from the Labrador whaler Cachelot, operating at Huxley's Harbor, has only twenty three whales to date. Weather conditions have been very bad throughout the entire season and a great many days the steamer could not move clear of her station. Whilst this catch is roughly equivalent to what the Cachelot had this time last year, yet the prospects this season for the remainder of the voyage are gloomy as operations will likely be discontinued earlier than usual. The 23 whales landed will not pay for the expenses involved. Before any profit can be realized the whaler will have to have captured over fifty fish, particularly so this year as whale oil has reduced in price.

The whaler Cabot sails for thirty fish so far and she is high liner of the fleet. While fishing out of Balena she captured 25 and 5 out of Snook's Arm where she is now operating. At the latter place the Cabot had her propeller broken recently.

Dedication of Bell.

Hopewell Church was the scene of a very impressive ceremony yesterday afternoon, when the church people of that place gathered together in the House of God to dedicate the new bell, recently donated by the Women's Sewing Class to the Service of the Almighty.

The service, which was specially composed for the occasion, was conducted by the incumbent, Rev. E. K. H. Caldwell. There were present in the "chancel" the Revs. Canon Bolt, T. G. Netten, C. H. Field, H. Uphill, J. Brinton, J. Stead, A. Clayton and H. L. Pike.

After the singing of the "Old Hundred" and the opening prayers, which included a prayer for the donors, the clergy proceeded to the Tower, where the dedication was performed by the Rev. Canon Bolt, and the new bell pealed forth for the first time.

On returning to the Chancel an appropriate and instructive address was delivered by the Rev. J. Brinton, of the Cathedral staff. The Rev. gentleman took for his text, part of 2nd verse of Psalm 100: "Serve the Lord." After explaining the nature of the ceremony which had just taken place, the preacher went on to point out that just as in Baptism the child is signed with the Cross, so when that from henceforth it will serve Jesus Christ; so the bell has a Cross imprinted upon it, in token that from henceforth it is to be a servant of God. Its service is twofold: First, it renders a service in itself. Its shape (round) reminds us of Eternal Life—no beginning, no ending; its inscription reminds us that there is work to be done for God, work in which we, one and all, must continually bear our share. The cross reminds us of the sufferings of Christ. The three combine to teach us the lesson that it is through suffering and work we must enter into life.

Secondly, it renders a service by its sound. It sends forth its invitation over hill and dale, calling us to the public services of the Church; it will comfort the sick and afflicted, with the assurance that they are one with the congregation, although absent in body; and it will also remind the indifferent and negligent of their duty to worship together. Lastly, when it shall ring forth its solemn dirge for some dear soul departed this life, it will serve to stir our human instincts with our Christian hope, and bring us to our knees in prayer, that our brother or sister, child or parent may be protected and preserved on their journey into the unseen, and that they may find rest and peace in the adorable presence of their Saviour.

The Benediction brought to a close a memorable event in the history of Hopewell. The Bell is a sweet toned instrument and was manufactured by Meneely & Coy. of Waterbury, New York.—Com.

Mosque of St. Sophia at Constantinople Threatened with Destruction

The most famous church in Christendom during the elevations of the empire of Constantinople, is threatened with destruction. It is feared that the splendid dome, so long a symbol of veneration to Christian and Jew alike, will crush in a substructure and undetermined by the of a humid atmosphere, by quakes, fires and bombardments, dilatory, clumsy and inefficient attempts of the Turkish authorities, last twenty years, have been productive of harm than of good. The famous temple of ancient times, are disfigured by cracks, and the interior of the cupola itself, marked and alarming signs of age.

This exquisite work of art, in present form, dates from the century, but two earlier ecclesiastical structures on the same site destroyed in the turbulent times of the early eastern empire. The first Christian Emperor, Constantine, had a basilica erected on the site, which was destroyed the earliest in 325, and during the famous Battle of the Marston, in 532. In the great imperial lawgiver, Justinian, the great architect, began the construction of what is substantially the present structure. The actual construction occupied 10,000 workmen for years and the original cost has been estimated at $65,000,000.

The detail of its material and construction is full of marvels. The famous temple of ancient times was laid under contribution to furnish a structure which was worthy of the great days of early Christianity and imperial devotion. The golden dome of the tabernacle, surmounted by a cross of pure gold, weighing 75 pounds and encased with precious stones. The sacrosanct and other materials were of the altar cloths were embroidered with gold and pearls; the altar was composed of molten gold which were thrown pearls, sapphires, diamonds, onyxes and every other precious gem or material object could raise its costliness to the most imaginable degree. The interior was richly decorated with sculptured marble and mosaics.

The building covers an area of 100 square feet and is in the form of a large square, with the interior resembling a Greek cross. The magnificent dome, which crowns this product of an age of intense devotion, rests upon two great domes, which in turn are supported by a series of smaller semi-domes.

A Glorious Memorial.

Mosque of St. Sophia at Constantinople Threatened with Destruction.

The most famous church in eastern Christendom during the eleven centuries of the empire of Constantine, the mosque of St. Sophia at Constantinople, is threatened with destruction. It is feared that the weight of the splendid dome, so long an object of veneration to Christian and Moslem, will crush in a substructure, weakened and undermined by the ravages of a humid atmosphere, by earthquakes, fires and bombardments. The dilatory, clumsy and inefficient attempts of the Turkish authorities to strengthen and repair it, during the last twenty years, have been more productive of harm than of good. The superb mosaics of the interior, glorious relics of the early Christian art, are disfigured by cracks, and the exterior of the cupola itself shows marked and alarming signs of shrinkage.

This exquisite work of art, in its present form, dates from the sixth century, but two earlier ecclesiastical structures on the same site had been destroyed in the turbulent seditions of the early eastern empire. Constantine, the first Christian Emperor, ordered the building was totally destroyed, the earliest in 325, and the second during the famous Battle of the Placidia, in 532. Justinian, the great imperial lawyer, in explanation of the sacrilege, began the erection of what is substantially the present structure. The actual building occupied 10,000 workmen for seven years and the original cost has been estimated at $65,000,000.

The detail of its material and construction is full of marvels. Every famous temple of ancient paganism was laid under contribution to furnish a structure which was worthy of the great days of early Christianity and imperial devotion. The solid golden dome of the tabernacle was surmounted by a cross of pure gold, weighing 75 pounds and encrusted with precious stones. The sacred vessels and other materials were of gold; the altar cloths were embroidered with gold and pearls; the altar itself was composed of molten gold, into which were thrown pearls, sapphires, diamonds, onyxes and every other precious gem or material object which could raise its costliness to the highest imaginable degree. The whole of the interior was richly decorated with sculptured marble and mosaics.

The building covers an area of 70,000 square feet and is in the form of a huge square, with the interior resembling a Greek cross. The magnificent dome, which crowns this great product of an age of intense militant devotion, rests upon two great semi-domes, which in turn are supported by a series of smaller semi-domes, the whole exterior and the interior presenting pictures of unexampled and beautiful architecture.

With the fall of Constantinople in 1453 and the coming of the conquering Mohammedans, this splendid tribute of Christian faith was given over to desecration and sacrilege. All Christian emblems, pictures and decorations were destroyed by the fanatical followers of Mahomet, who first entered the city, but the original mosaics of the Justinian era escaped destruction and were later hidden from the view of the faithful by a coating of plaster. Since that time St. Sophia has been a Mahomedan mosque, jealously guarded from the Christian infidel. It is a reflection on the devotion of the modern nations of Christianity that, with their influence in Turkey, no steps should have been taken before now for the preservation of the wonderful building which, even now, after a lapse of fourteen centuries, remains a glorious memorial to the Christian faith.

Death and Destruction on the Labrador.

Big Storm on the 6th Sept.—14 Schooners and Many Lives Lost—Solway's Report.

The S. S. Solway, Capt. Parsons, arrived back from the Labrador at six o'clock last evening. Going north rough weather was continuous. The ship reached Rigolet on Friday, Sept. 6th, and left again in the afternoon of the same day. An attempt was made to get to Black Island but owing to a north east hurricane the ship had to run to Tuckaleck Pt. for shelter. The Solway lay at that port for ten hours waiting for the weather to abate. The wind, however, increased in violence, with mountainous seas were heaped up and continued to run for two days longer. Capt. Parsons decided to put to sea and the ship battled with the elements until Indian Harbour was reached. Here it was so rough that no mails or passengers could be landed for a time. After several hours delay boats came off from the shore and took the mail. The gale subsided just before the ship arrived at Long Tickle. The Stella Maris was met here. After the Solway's mail, freight and passengers had been transferred to her, she started on the return passage South which was just as rough as the outward trip.

Solway's Report.—Capt. Parsons reports that the storm of the 6th inst., reported briefly yesterday, was the worst he ever experienced. It was felt severely all along the Labrador and resulted in considerable damage to property and loss of life. Fourteen schooners were either badly wrecked or totally lost. Many crafts were on the fishing grounds when overtaken by the storm and the crews had to leave their belongings on board and take to their boats to row for the shore.

Drowning Fatality.—A sad drowning fatality occurred at Cut Throat in which two men belonging to the schooner Susan M. Miller, master, were drowned. The schooner was caught in the gale and was badly buffeted. She had a good load of fish on board the result of the crews toil for the summer. The crew stayed on board the vessel in the hope of reaching the shore before their vessel met with disaster. The craft was driven on the rocks and dashed to pieces, the crew being swept overboard. Their bodies never being recovered, and the rest reached the land after a desperate struggle. Not even a cod net was saved out of the Susan M. and she was a total loss.

More Drownings.—During the same terrific gale Wm. Clarke, a married man, belonging to Freshwater, Carbonear, fell over a cliff at Style's Harbour and was killed and fell in the water. His body was recovered and the remains left at the home of the deceased yesterday for interment. The same day Mrs. Parsons, belonging to Conception Bay, and who was employed as cook with Mahoney's crew at Tinker's Harbour, was accidentally drowned, her body being recovered by two fishermen. It is thought that the woman was washed overboard by a heavy sea, as when her body was recovered there were no marks that would tend to anything rash having been done.

Bodies Recovered.—As already reported, Capt. Wm. Griffin's Hr.—Wm. Kennedy's schr. of Carbonear, and schr. S. M. Ayre, Miller's Cove—Schooner Little Mystery, owned by John Squires, a total loss.

Sandy Islands—John Martin's schr. (name not known), a total wreck. Five Islands—Schr. Silver Queen, total loss, and season's voyage gone; and one other.

George's Island—One of Jerrett's schooners lost. Crew fishing ashore.

Duck Island—Blaker's schooner of Bonavista Bay, which ran in for shelter, a total wreck.

Wolf Islands—Melldora, Capt. T. Cutler, and Alexandra, Capt. J. R. Gillett, of Twillingate, drove from their moorings. Both these schooners were since picked up, the Alexandra at Bellefleur Straits, and the Melldora at Bellefleur Straits.

Griffin's Hr.—Wm. Kennedy's schr. of Carbonear, and schr. S. M. Ayre, Miller's Cove—Schooner Little Mystery, owned by John Squires, a total loss.

Sandy Islands—John Martin's schr. (name not known), a total wreck. Five Islands—Schr. Silver Queen, total loss, and season's voyage gone; and one other.

Dawe's crew of five men were swamped at Independent Harbour. Three of the bodies—James Holmes, Edward Holmes and Richard Jackson—were recovered. The bodies of Capt. Dawe and William Spencer have not been found. The vessel's company were out in their skiff endeavouring to take in their cod trap when a heavy sea capsized the boat and all five were thrown in the water and sank within a few minutes.

Wrecked Crews Return.—About fifty fishermen who lost their vessels came up on the Solway and were landed at the different ports of call. Besides losing thousands of quintals of fish, they lost their clothing but are thankful to have escaped with their lives.

No Fish Being Cured.—The weather for the past couple of weeks has been very backward; rain and fog has been incessant at all the ports and as a result no fish is being "made." Twenty-five vessels, foreign and local, are now on the coast awaiting cargoes. When the Solway was coming south Minn's vessel at Snug Harbour, and Rork's at Venison Island were nearly loaded. These will be the first cargoes to be shipped. So far not even an approximate figure of the total catch can be given. From Battle Harbour to Sandy Islands the catch is below an average, but from the latter place north the voyage is about an average one.

Patients Arrive.—About twenty patients, some of them sick and others who met with accidents, came up on the Solway. The greater number were landed at Conception Bay points, and three sick people were brought on St. John's to enter hospital.

Loss and Damage to Vessels During Big Gale.—Sloop Cove—Schooner owned by John Kennedy, Carbonear, with season's voyage on board, total loss.

White Bears—Cramm's schooner of Oulart, sank, but was refloated. Will likely be repaired and able to sail home.

Gushue's schooner of Brigus, total wreck, with all season's voyage and gear lost.

Immediately came a voice from the gallery, "Why not 'ar a crown apiece, guv-nor?"

Moral Lesson.
A negro, being asked what he was in jail for, said it was for borrowing money. "But," said the questioner, "they don't put people in jail for borrowing money." "Yes," said the darkey, "but I had to knock de man down free or fo' times before he would lend it to me."

Brotherly Love.
It was Bilkin's wedding day, and he was teasing his young brother-in-law. "Well, Johnnie," he said solemnly, "I'm going to take your sister a long way off and have her all to myself, where you won't see her any more."

"No, really, are you?" said the lad, curiously. "Yes, I am. What do you think of it?" "Nothin'. I can stand it if you can."

The Police Court.

Three drunks were discharged. A lad charged with assaulting and beating his step-mother was ordered to give a bond to keep the peace and also to leave the house.

A carman drunk whilst in charge of horse and cart was fined $2 or 7 days.

A drunk was released. A lad of 11 years of age was convicted of malicious damage to fruit trees and vegetables, the property of Wm. Barker. He was fined $5 or 14 days, but sentence was suspended.

Several owners of unlicensed dogs were summoned. An assault case was withdrawn.

PLENTY FISH ON LOCAL GROUNDS.—Fisher folks operating on the local fishing grounds have done exceptionally well the past couple of weeks. One of our prominent and successful planters, who was outside the Narrows yesterday in his motor boat said that the waters from Torbay Point to Petty Harbor, Motion, are teeming with cod and that he never saw fish more plentiful.

The very newest thing in Eyeglasses can be had at TRAPNELL'S, Eyesight Specialist.—sept. 9, 11.

SEAMAN INJURED.—On her last trip P. Youden, a sailor on the S. S. Fogota, met with an accident. While walking across the deck a heavy sea struck the ship throwing Youden off his feet. A cask which had broken loose fell across his left arm and badly crushed it. On arrival in port the injured man was attended by Dr. Stafford.

FISHERMAN DROWNED.—By the Solway we learn that a member of the crew of a Lunenburg banker which was fishing at Indian Tickle, was drowned on Sept. 6th. It was on this date the terrific N.E. storm prevailed. All the crew left their vessel in separate dories in the forenoon to work at their trawls. When evening came all returned except one, who must have been swamped.

The homely Suet Pudding, or the Dumplings for the Stew are lightest when raised with
"Paisley Flour"
The SURE raising powder.
The most digestible and enjoyable suet puddings are made by adding one part of "Paisley Flour" to eight parts of ordinary flour before mixing the dough. Steaming instead of boiling also helps to make puddings lighter.
"Paisley Flour" mixed 1 part to 12 of ordinary flour, makes delicious light piccrusts and plain pastry for tarts—no doughiness.
"Paisley Flour" is packed in 22c., 14c. and 5c. tins.
The 22c. tin contains 14 ozs. and will raise half a stone of flour.
" 14c. " 7 ozs. " 3 1/2 pounds of flour.
" 5c. " 3 ozs. " 1 "
