Ruled Destiny!

CHAPTER XXV.
A STREET QUARREL.

It almost seemed to her for the moment as if she had seen him before, and she looked at him with a quick, frightened pulsation of her heart.

He was particularly handsome, with a pair of dark, flashing eyes, and all the manner of a young man, though his hair, cut close to the head, was gray—almost white—and his face close-shaven.

It was a singularly striking face, and it affected Floris strangely; why, she did not know.

He did not see her, and would have walked past with a quick though not hurried step, but the man who followed him sprang forward and seized him by the arm.

The first man turned and faced him coolly enough, but with a glitter in his eyes that made Floris tremble.

"Well!" he said, in Italian, but with an English accent.

"You shall not go! Hear me! I say you shall not go!" said the man who held him, vehemently. "You—You English are all alike, you win our money and then you! You! Come back!"

"Thanks, no!" said the Englishman, with a smile that was more exasperating than any verbal retort.

"You will not?" shouted the other, through his set teeth.

"Certainly not!" replied the Englishman. "Why should I? I have won your money; is that what you complain of? You have won enough of mine, my friend."

The Italian ground his teeth. "You are a cheat!" he hissed. The Englishman laughed.

"You ought to know a brother artist when you see him, certainly," he retorted, quietly. "You are an authority on the subject whom I should not care to dispute."

"You mean—?" snarled the Italian.

"Just this, my friend—that if I had not cheated, as you call it, occasionally, I should have stood little chance against you who cheat always! Good-evening."

And with a simple movement he wrenched the man's hand from its frenzied clutch and turned away.

At the moment, while Floris was thanking her stars that the affair had ended and that she was free to go on her way, the Italian raised his hand, something gleamed brightly in the murky twilight, the Englishman uttered a sharp cry, and fell and staggered up against the post of the doorway in which she hid.

Crying for help as loudly as she could, Floris knelt down beside him and raised his head.

The street, so silent a minute ago, seemed to start into life as if by magic and a crowd gathered round the two figures—the prone man with his white face, and the kneeling girl with her gentle, pitying one.

In another moment the police came up, and Floris hurried home to tell the terrible story to Mrs. Sinclair.

Floris was slipping her tea half an hour afterward, when the servant announced the clergyman.

He was a very old gentleman, very greatly respected and beloved by the English community in Florence, and a constant visitor at the Violet Villa.

"I am late this evening, dear madam," he said, after exchanging greetings. "But I was detained on my road hither by an accident. I was crossing the road by the hospital when the porter ran across and called me in. A man had been brought in who had been stabbed in the streets."

Floris started and put down her teacup.

"He was an Englishman, and that is why they sent for me, of course. I found the poor fellow in the surgeon's hands, and very much exhausted. It appears that he was stabbed while coming out of a house in one of the streets of the square. I suspect it was a quarrel arising from some gambling transaction. His account of the affair was not very clear; indeed, he seemed anxious to hush the matter up, and was very reticent."

"Is he very badly wounded?" asked Floris in a low voice.

"No, only slightly, not dangerously; at any rate he recovered very quickly and, strange to say, has left the hospital. They tried to persuade him to remain, but he resolutely declined and came out with me."

"Is it possible?" breathed Floris. "He is an Englishman!" he said, as if that explained the man's obstinacy. "An Italian, now would have given in and laid there for a month. Poor fellow, I happen to know a great deal about him."

"Yes?" said Floris.

"Yes. He is a well-known man in Florence, and bears, I am sorry to say, too famous a character as a gambler. He came here, why, dear me, a few weeks before your arrival, my dear Miss Wood. A rich man it was reported, at any rate he seemed to be in possession of a large sum of money and, for a time lived in great style. He became a member of one of the fastest clubs here, and soon got himself known as a man who played continually and for large stakes. Then he disappeared for a time, and I heard that he had caught the fever. Perhaps that accounts for the chance which I observed in him this evening; his hair, which was dark, has become almost gray, as is sometimes the case with young men with black hair. His name is Raymond, Oscar Raymond."

Floris turned the name over in her mind for fully a minute, but she could not recollect ever having heard it before.

She went upstairs to her room, and setting her lattice back, looked out on to the city with its countless lights beaming like fireflies in the darkness; but it was not of Florence or the scene she had seen in the streets that she was thinking; strangely unaccountably, her thoughts had traveled backward to Lord Norman, and more clearly than she had seen him for months past his face rose before her mental vision. And yet it did not occur to her that the face of the wounded man, Oscar Raymond, was like that of her lost lover.

Perhaps if Oscar Raymond's hair had been black and he had worn a mustache, the resemblance would have been too great to escape her notice, but in the six months of despondency Oscar Raymond had altered and aged considerably, and it would have been impossible for him to repeat the comedy which had proved a tragedy for Floris Carlisle!

CHAPTER XXVI.
AN ATTRACTIVE BOTANIST.

THREE weeks passed and the routine of Floris' life went on unbroken like the daily round of a well-made clock, and she had almost "remembered to have forgotten" the incident of the gambling fray. She had so far forgotten it that she had resumed her old solitary wanderings about the city, and one afternoon was seated under the trees in the square with a book in her hand, and her eyes fixed on the emerald hills, when she became conscious that some one was standing beside her.

She awoke from her reverie with a start, and was startled to see the Englishman she had last seen lying on the cold stones, standing quietly at her elbow.

He raised his hat as she looked up, and his dark eyes met her startled gaze with a calm but earnest appeal in them.

"Do not be alarmed, I beg of you," he said, in a soft grave voice. "I fear that I have startled you."

"No—a little, perhaps," said Floris, looking up at him slowly.

She noticed as she did so that his face was more pale and haggard than when she had first seen it, and that his left hand was thrust in the fold of his coat.

"This is the second time I have been unfortunate enough to alarm you," he said, gently, and with a touch of genuine self-reproach and regret in his voice. "I beg you to forgive me."

"There is nothing to forgive," said Floris, calmly.

"Yes, there is a great deal," he said, gravely. "I have not forgotten"—he stopped, as if uncertain how to proceed, then went on after a pause—"I

"You are fond of flowers, study them, madam?"

"Yes," said Floris.

"I judged so from the contents of the book. I also am fond of flowers, I have a collection, a poor one, but there are some rarities among it. Should I be asking too much if I begged you to accept of two specimens, madam?"

He spoke with such gravity and respect that Floris could not find it in her heart to refuse the offer.

"I have a friend who will be very glad to have them," she said, simply. "I am her assistant, and the book was for her use, not mine. Will you send them to the Violet Villa?"

"I will," he said.

Floris went home in a strange condition of mind.

The man's manner—his words, had affected her curiously. She found herself going over them in her mind with a wild sense of having heard them before, or rather having heard the voice before. She said nothing to Mrs. Sinclair of the meeting, but set to work that evening with a strong determination to forget the whole occurrence. In the morning, a messenger from one of the hotels brought a packet and a note addressed to Miss Lillian Wood.

With an unusual tremor, Floris opened it.

It contained in addition to her book, a packet enclosing half-a-dozen dried specimens of what she knew at a glance were rare flowers, and a note. It ran as follows:

"Madam: I send the book which I found, and the flowers. It would afford me a deep satisfaction if you would allow me to offer you the remainder of my collection, which I hold as useless unless it prove of value in your eyes. Yours very truly, Oscar Raymond."

for I must have been the cause of great uneasiness and alarm to you. I wish that my friend had made his rash attempt half an hour sooner or later."

It was said so coolly, with such an utter lack of regret against the man who had attempted his life, that Floris gasped at him with renewed interest.

"I am glad that you are better, that you were not badly hurt. I mean," she added, glancing at his arm, "that you were not killed."

"Oh, it was nothing," he said, quietly; "but it might have been worse but for you, madam."

"For me?" with a quick glance of surprise.

"Yes," he said, in a low voice. "You stanching the wound in time; they said at the hospital that my recovery owed everything to that."

Floris looked down.

"I did very little; I was too frightened. But—with another upward glance—"how did you know it was I?"

"I saw you for a moment as the blow was struck, and at the hospital they gave me this."

And he took from inside the breast of his coat her handkerchief.

"My handkerchief!" she murmured. "I had forgotten it."

And she held out her hand.

He was looking at the handkerchief with a strange, intense expression in his eyes, and it dwelt in them still as he turned them on her and held out the handkerchief with a reluctance which, though not marked, Floris did not fail to notice.

"I would have returned it sooner," he said, "but the police—they are always fond of mystery—desired to give me your name. Perhaps they were right, yes, they were quite right—you had suffered enough anonymity. Not having your name, I was forced to wait and watch for you. I have seen you twice before, but not alone, and I wanted to see you alone and thank you."

Floris inclined her head. It affected her, this knowledge that she had been watched and waited for by this strange man.

He stood beside her silently for a moment, then he said:

"There was something else of yours, madam, which fell into my hands. A book—"

"Yes," said Floris, quietly.

"It was picked up close by the spot where I fell; and they gave it me under the impression that it belonged to me. I will restore it to you if you will tell me where I may bring it."

"Send it to the Violet Villa," said Floris, "if you please."

He bowed. Floris was about to rise and give him good-day when he spoke again.

"You are fond of flowers, study them, madam?"

"Yes," said Floris.

"I judged so from the contents of the book. I also am fond of flowers, I have a collection, a poor one, but there are some rarities among it. Should I be asking too much if I begged you to accept of two specimens, madam?"

He spoke with such gravity and respect that Floris could not find it in her heart to refuse the offer.

On recommendation of the Military Service Board and under the provisions of the War Measures Act, 1914-16, and the Military Service Act, 1916, the following further Regulations have been approved by His Excellency the Governor in Council.

W. W. HALFYARD,
Colonial Secretary,
June 28th, 1918.

14.—After any class or sub-class has been called out, and after the expiration of the time limited by the calling out proclamation for reporting for service or making applications for exemption, any man, who may reasonably be supposed to be a member of the class or sub-class called out, many, at any reasonable time, be accosted by any Magistrate or Justice of the Peace, or by any commissioned or non-commissioned military officer, or by any police officer or constable, and questioned as to all or any of the following matters, to wit:—His name, occupation, place of employment, abode, date and place of birth, and any other matters relevant to show whether or not he is within such class or sub-class, or whether or not he has reported for, or is exempted or exempted from military service; and the man shall, if required, produce his certificate or such evidence as may be in his possession. If he has any, showing that he has reported, or is not at the time liable to report, and it shall be the duty of any such man so questioned to answer truthfully, and to the best of his information, knowledge and belief, all questions so put to him.

15.—If any man so accosted and questioned does not answer, or does not truthfully answer, all questions put to him touching the matters aforesaid, or, if the officer questioning him has reasonable grounds to believe that the answers are untruthful or evasive, he may detain the man and take him before a Justice of the Peace to be dealt with according to law; provided that nothing in this regulation shall affect the application of Section 12 of the Military Service Act, 1918.

16.—It shall be the duty of every person to answer any questions which may be asked of or submitted to him orally or in writing by the registrar or by any military or police officer relating to the age, occupation, abode, address or domestic position of any man who may reasonably be supposed to be a member of any class or sub-class called out or to any class which may be of use in determining whether such a man is entitled to exemption or enabling him to be found or identified, and any person who fails to answer any such questions shall be liable, on summary conviction, to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars, nor less than twenty-five dollars.

GOURARD'S WORK.

WITH THE FRENCH FORCES IN FRANCE, July 17.—General Gourard, the head of the Dardanelles was the French commander who barred the advance of the German Crown Prince in the Champagne. It was he who to the east of Rheims in one day brought the host of Germans to a standstill. This was done with only incomparatively insignificant losses among his own men in consequence of his admirable defensive preparations. About 20 different divisions have been identified in the front lines of this sector. Along the front by the end of the first day of fighting half of these divisions had been badly mauled. The preparations by the French taken before the Teuton offensive began was such that the Germans were unable to capture a single prisoner in the Champagne for many days before the attack. The Germans were therefore deprived of the possibility of obtaining information regarding the French plans.

RAVAGES OF TUBERCULOSIS.

NEW YORK, July 17. The war has served effectually to disclose that mortality from tuberculosis during the four years of hostilities among the civilian population and in the armies of all the countries engaged, has at least approximated the total number of soldiers killed in battle, according to Dr. Livingstone Farrand, Director of the American Commission for the Prevention of Tuberculosis in France. The men called to the colors in this country's draft, it declares, is one of the striking conditions of the prevalence of the disease in the United States.

CRIMELESS ANTRIM.

TORONTO, July 17. The Belfast correspondent of the Evening Telegram cables to-day: Justice Gordon at the Antrim Assizes in Belfast, congratulated Antrim upon its freedom from lawlessness and its part in the war, there being six petty cases amongst the population. The county had done well in supplying men to fight for freedom and the Empire. Factories were aiding materially in providing supplies. Farmers had increased tillage. The women of Antrim County were doing their full share of war work. To-day is the last day shirkers in this country have to present themselves. Ireland for the last three years has been the happy hunting ground for Jews, Socialists and conscientious objectors, who were in the main against Ireland's conscription originally. Failing to return to Great Britain, they will be treated as absentee reserves.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, July 17. The battle continued to-day with stubbornness along the whole front west of Rheims. Despite his efforts the enemy was not able to make further advance. Our troops, by their heroic resistance and incessant counter attacks, checked with alternate advance and recoil the thrust of the enemy. South of the Marne the fighting proceeded on the wooded slopes north of Stagnan, La Chappelle and Monthodon. Spirited actions north of Comblizay and Fostigny enabled us to hold the enemy on the southern outskirts of Boulogny and Chatignieres. East of Oullier, the Germans succeeded in regaining a footing in Montvoisin. Between the Marne and Rheims the battle continued north of Roull and to the Bois du Roi which the Germans penetrated, and which our troops defended foot by foot. The forest of Courton likewise was the theatre of violent engagements. The enemy holds the line west of Nanteuil La Forêt. Pourcy, the objective of powerful attacks, several times, reached, could not be reached by the Germans. A brilliant counter attack by the Italians, west of this village drove back the enemy into the Ardre valley. Numerous enemy dead before our lines testify to heavy losses suffered by our adversaries. The situation is without change in the sector of Virgny and southwest of Rheims. East of Rheims we broke up an attack between Beaumont-Sur-Vesles and Sillery. Our positions remain intact along the whole Champagne front. Eastern Theatre—The usual artillery activity was displayed along the whole front. In Albania our troops made new progress north of the Devol River. We occupied the village of Mevan, capturing about thirty prisoners. Many Germans between the railway and the south bank of the river appear to have made good their escape to the north bank at several points during the night.

ITALIAN OFFICIAL.

ROME, July 17. (Official.) On Monday evening a British detachment penetrated the enemy's line southeast to Asiago. Heavy losses were inflicted on the garrison and 24 prisoners were taken. Repeated enemy attacks yesterday resulted in lively activity between the southeastern slopes of Sasso Rosso and the Brenta. North of Grappa the enemy heavily stormed our advanced lines south of Coltoison, but was driven back. Two hostile planes were brought down.

PREPARING TO FLEE.

LONDON, July 17. Reports received in Tokio state that Bolshevik leaders in Ichnak region have taken alarm at the camp executed by the anti-Bolshevik elements at Vladivostok and are preparing to flee toward Mongolia, according to an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Tien Tsin.

ENEMY PLANES DOWNED.

LONDON, July 17. Between July 4th and 4th we destroyed 26 enemy aircraft, and one of ours failed to return, reads the official statement of operations on the Italian front.

PROBABLY MORTALLY WOUNDED.

PARIS, July 17. Lieut. Roosevelt, youngest son of ex-Colonel Roosevelt, a despatch says, was returning from a patrol fight when he was attacked by a German squadron. It was seen that Roosevelt suddenly lost control of his machine, having probably received a mortal wound.

MEATLESS DAYS ABOLISHED.

PARIS, July 17. The abolition of meatless days in France after July 29th, is ordered in a decree issued to-day.

SPANISH DIPLOMATS ON TORPEDOED SHIP.

ATHENS, Greece, July 17. It is announced from a Spanish source that a Spanish steamer, on which Minister Lopez was returning to Spain, has been torpedoed by a German submarine. The ship flew the Minister's flag; the diplomat and his family have been rescued. The German Government had been notified of the Minister's departure a week in advance.

RAINS SLOW DOWN FIGHTING

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, July 17.—A downpour of rain over the battle zones between Chateau Thierry and Dormans, on the Marne front, has served to slow up operations since early this morning. In the neighborhood of Passy in the river bend district the Americans further improved their positions to-day. Fighting continued throughout the day in the region of the counter attack begun by the American forces yesterday.

EXECUTED FOR TREASON.

PARIS, July 17. (Havas Agency).—M. Duval, Director of the Germanophile newspaper Bonnet Rouge, was executed early to-day for treasonable actions against the Government.

ATTACKING GERMAN TOWNS.

LONDON, July 17. British aviators again have attacked Offenbourg, near Karlsruhe, and Thionville, near Metz, says the official statement from the Air Ministry last night. Good bursts were observed at Offenbourg and a fire followed by an explosion was started at Thionville. The statement reads: On July 15th railway sidings and sheds at Offenbourg were successfully bombed. Good bursts were observed. On July 16th we attacked railway and sidings at Thionville; several bursts were observed.

GERMAN AIRBROME DESTROYED.

LONDON, July 17. The destruction by fire of a new German airrome, with 22 airplanes, near Nivelles is attributed to the work of German revolutionists in the army, says an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Amsterdam to-day. Nivelles is 17 miles south of Brussels. Ten Belgian and German non-commissioned officers have been arrested. The day before the fire, adds the despatch, a secret meeting occurred in a canteen at Nivelles where the scheme for destruction was discussed.

BELGIUM MUST BE FREE.

LONDON, July 17. German newspapers give prominence to an interesting statement on Belgium, by Prof. Hans Delbrueck in the Neus Wiener Journal. An Exchange Telegraph despatch from Amsterdam reads: Germany will lose nothing by declaring her willingness to evacuate Belgium without conditions and to reinstate her independence and integrity. Germany has plenty of other safeguards. Belgium is not only a German question, it is a world question. No peace is possible in the world unless Belgium is as free as before the war. Even America has the greatest interest in Belgium. Until Belgium becomes free the world cannot even permit the indirect rule of Germany over her.

YOUNG ROOSEVELT MISSING.

PARIS, July 17. Lieut. Quentin Roosevelt of the American air service, youngest son of the former President, is missing. His machine was seen to fall within German lines; it was not in flames when it fell. Philip Roosevelt, Quentin's cousin witnessed the battle in the vicinity of Chateau Thierry in which Quentin was engaged and saw the machine fall but did not know until later that it was that of his cousin.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

LONDON, July 17. The official statement follows: We secured a few prisoners during the patrol encounters north of Bethune and west of Merrville. The hostile artillery developed great activity during the night with gas shells on the Villers-Bretonneux front. This morning the hostile artillery and trench mortars have shown increased activity in the Albert sector.

AT HUGE COST.

LONDON, July 17. Despatches arriving in London this evening say that at only one point did the enemy advance to-day and then at huge cost. After two unsuccessful attempts the Germans on a front of six miles pushed into the first line to a depth of one and a half miles at its deepest points at Rheims mountains.

BRITISH SHIPS CARRYING AMERICAN TROOPS.

LONDON, July 17. Of the 631,829 American troops brought to Europe in the months of April, May and June, 350,956 were carried in British ships, according to a statement made in the House of Commons to-day by Sir Leo Money, Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister of Shipping. He added, arrangements were being made whereby we hope to carry larger numbers in the future.

GERMANS CLAIM 15,000 PRISONERS.

BERLIN, July 17. Eighteen thousand prisoners have been taken by the Germans in the present offensive, according to the claim of the war office in its report from general headquarters to-day.

Which Years Are Happiest?

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

We fell to talking the other day, as to which were the happiest years of a man's or woman's life. The occasion was the birthday of a young man. One of the guests, in toasting him, congratulated him on being about to enter upon the ten happiest years of a man's life—the years from twenty-one to thirty-one.

Then we all began to question among ourselves if that were true. A high school teacher once told me that the five happiest years of life were the years from sixteen to twenty-one. At the time, that seemed to me absolutely authoritative, since it came from one of those all-wise beings, a teacher. As I look back, now, I can see that he was probably not more than twenty-three or four himself, and perhaps not wholly qualified to judge. He had rather a wretched time with the discipline in school and I suspect the root of that statement may have been that he was happier at college than he had been in his teaching. I should like to see him now and ask him the same question. I think he might give a very different answer.

One woman at the party, a grandmother, said that the happiest year of her life was the first year of her married life, the year before her eldest son was born.

Two other women, however, declared that the first year of their married lives had been the least happy in their existence.

And Yet I Dreaded to Graduate. So far, my own happiest year would have been the year after I graduated from college and yet, when I was in college I dreaded graduation most terribly and thought it the end of all happiness—perhaps that may be a crumb of comfort to those who have the unhappy habit of dreading changes.

There is, of course, a strong tradition to the effect that youth is the happiest time in life. I wonder if any reader friends could give evidence to the contrary. I love the late afternoon in summer when the trees throw long level shadows across the lawn. I think that time of day is just as beautiful in its way, as morning. I wonder if this is true of life.

What Were Your Happiest Years? What do you think are the happiest years of life, you reader friends who have lived long enough to have the right to say? Take up a pencil, sometimes when you are not too busy, and share your experience with us. Does memory paint the freshness of the morning of life as the fairest, or can you say with Browning: "Grow old along with me; The best of life is yet to be— The last of life for which the first was made."

I fell from a building and received what the doctor called a very bad sprained ankle, and told me I must not walk on it for three weeks. I got MINARD'S LINIMENT and in six days I was out to work again. I think it the best Liniment made.

ARCHIE E. LAUNDRY, Edmonton.

Great Explorers. Sir Alexander Mackenzie and Captain George Vancouver are two explorers about whom Canadians ought to know more than they do. These two men were so modest to leave monuments to themselves.

The name Mackenzie was given to the great river to the Arctic by others than the explorer himself. Similarly Captain Vancouver gave names to Burrard Inlet and Point Grey, after two friends in the navy, and left his own unmarked. But others filled the blank by attaching the name Vancouver in later years.

A man less well-known than these two, but who endured more hardship than either, and made more extensive explorations, was Robert Campbell of the Hudson's Bay Company, who discovered the Yukon and went up to its source sixty years before the famous gold rush. The Yukon river should be called the Campbell. This remarkable and devout man spent some twelve years in travelling, in a sort of Livingstonean way, all through the regions that have since been opened up to civilization in the north. The explorer's son, Mr. Glenlyon Campbell known as Glen, was a member at Ottawa, and died recently at the front.

RESPONSIBILITY. The old idea changes. We have slowly come to see; He who journeys o'er life's ranges, Is not care and duty free. There were days that we seemed blinded By the light of pleasure's sun; But to-day we're serious-minded. There are tasks that must be done.

Life is not a round of pleasure. Not a time for frivolous play; And then tossing it away, It is sacrifice and labor. It is struggling for goal, It is battling with a sabre. For the beauty of the soul.

We are thinking deep and deeper, As we march along to-day; Each is now his brother's keeper, Each must build the better way. There are hours for honest laughter, There are days for gentle fun, But we know now they come after. All the serious tasks are done.

Never more our souls shall tarnish In the late days of ease; We have scraped beneath the varnish In this struggle overseas. And by every spire and steeple That is raised unto the sky, We are coming through, a people With ideals worth keeping high.

Destroyers War on Enemy U-Boats.

London.—Here are the reasons why some German submarines did not return to their bases: A British destroyer recently sighted through the morning mists a German submarine rolling lazily on the surface, only a few yards ahead. Thirty seconds later the destroyer stove a great hole in the U-boat's hull.

There was the usual oil patch, but not satisfied with this evidence, the British naval authorities dragged the spot. The battered submarine was found on the bottom. Two destroyers actually saw another U-boat accounted for, after a sporting fight, in which the enemy craft certainly gave them a run for their money.

The first destroyer was bringing up a merchant vessel to rejoin a convoy from which it had become separated. As they reached the convoy a torpedo struck another of the merchantmen. The destroyer turned and fairly leaped through the water to the U-boat's position. The crew felt a shock as the destroyer passed over the spot.

Then destroyer No. 2 sighted the periscope and dropped a depth bomb. This seems to have increased the damage, for the submarine reappeared a moment later, astern of both destroyers. They opened fire, scoring three hits. The wounded Boche refused to surrender, and tried to submerge.

One of the destroyers dashed again. There was a grating and scraping of metal. The U-boat was cut clean in two. Both halves appeared on the surface for a few seconds, then sank. Victim number three died quickly. A destroyer sighted the periscope and crept within fifty yards before being sighted. The U-boat dived. A depth bomb disturbed the water, but that explosion was only a fire-cracker compared to the blast of the U-boat's magazine. A black water jet shot up 30 feet. When the waters calmed, the tell-tale oil patch appeared.

Another submarine went almost the same way, except that the destroyer dropped three depth bombs. Grappling irons located the wrecked submarine on the bottom the next day. An American destroyer won the honor of blowing up a submarine when the latter persistently tried to pick off a merchant vessel from a group under British and American convoy. The submarine was visible under water when the charge was dropped from the destroyer, and a moment later pieces of wreckage bobbed up.

That makes five submarines marked off the active list of the Boche "navy."

Intensive Productions.

The papers announce the astounding fact that in America a ship has been built and launched in twenty-seven days, a speed in shipbuilding which easily beats all records; whilst Mr. Ford, of motor-car fame, is turning out, they say, two submarine destroyers per day, in addition to the 2,000 automobiles which is his average daily output. This is what is called intensive production, and the perfection of modern machinery and labour-saving devices alone makes it possible.

Regarding the wonderful riveting performances we are now daily hearing about, this work used to be done by hand with the hammers, but now it is done by a special tool driven by compressed air, and making 1,900 blows per minute, or 60,000 blows each hour. By this hammer, easily manipulated by one man, rivets can be driven home at the rate of eight every minute.

What this means to shipbuilding any shipwright will tell you, for there are thousands of steel rivets in a ship's construction. This is but an example of the great speeding up process which is going on in the world's work. It is all to the good. It means less toll and more leisure in the long run—that is, the same work which once took a week to accomplish can now often be finished in a day.

SLACKERS.

The men are driven forth to work, to keep the pulleys humming, and any chap who tries to shirk will surely get what's coming. The lad who used to bask all day, is busy as a gopher; in times like these it doesn't pay to show up as a loafer. Male idlers find their day is over; if they've a kick they can it; the man who has no useful chore must hunt another planet. But how about the dame serene, through life so idly ambling, who burns up tubs of gasoline in vain and foolish rambling? Her thoughts are still of trifling things, of laces and of collars, of blondined hair and diamond rings, and shoes at twenty dollars. She thinks the war a horrid bore to which kings are addicted; her heart of colloid is sore, that sugar is restricted. She sees her loyal sisters strain and sigh in useful service; and sighs like this give her a pain, they make her tired and nervous. Oh, let's dragon the stall-fed dames, say to them, "Work or perish," and drag them from the silly games that they ignobly cherish. If Jack must use his strength and skill to help preserve the nation, it's only fair that Sister Jill should work out her salvation.

The Real Robinson Crusoe.

Of all those who have revelled in the pages of Daniel Defoe's immortal masterpiece, how many have any knowledge of the real Robinson Crusoe—Alexander Selkirk?

It was in the little Fifeshire village of Largo, on the Firth of Forth, that this worthy first saw the light, being regarded even in boyhood as little less than a ne'er-do-weel. When at last he ran away to sea a good many there were who were not particularly sorry.

According to Defoe, the time spent by Crusoe on the desert island amounted to some thirty years or so; the real Crusoe, however, was on the island just four years and four months. When he was at last rescued from his Evil-less Eden Selkirk immediately returned to London, where he met Defoe. Reaching his native village again, the adventurer discovered that his people were in church. The sudden reappearance of the long-lost wanderer caused a sensation. Shortly after this Selkirk married a girl named Sophie Bruce, and a little later once more disappeared from Largo. For a time it is understood he served as a Lieutenant on the British warship Weymouth, but what year he died in, or where he was buried, are secrets never likely to be solved.

(4) Any person obtaining or attempting to obtain a larger supply of Coal than he is entitled to under these Regulations shall be guilty of a breach of the same.

(5) Every Coal Vendor shall furnish on Monday morning of each week to the Department of Shipping a full list duly certified by him in writing of the names and addresses of all persons to whom he has sold or delivered Coal during the previous week, and the quantity sold or delivered.

(6) Every Carter of Coal shall be supplied by the Vendor with a delivery note for each lot of Coal stating the name and address of the person to whom the Coal is to be delivered. No Carter shall deliver Coal to any person other than the person named on his delivery note.

(8) The penalty for a breach of any of these Regulations shall not exceed $500.00, with or without imprisonment not exceeding Three months, and may be imposed and recovered upon summary conviction before a Justice of the Peace in the name of the Minister of Shipping.

(9) The Minister of Shipping may from time to time suspend the operation of these Regulations or any of them and for such periods as he may think fit by notice in two daily papers, and may from time to time revive and bring the same again into force by notice in the manner herebefore set out.

(10) During the suspension of any regulation as provided in Section 9, the Department of Shipping may permit any Coal Dealer to sell or deliver, or any person to receive, a quantity of Soft Coal not exceeding ten tons, and if such person shall satisfy the Department of Shipping that ten tons is insufficient for his needs, the Department may, by written order to that effect, allow such persons to receive a larger quantity.

(11) The provision of Chapter 1 of Consolidated Statutes (2nd Series) relating to the construction of Statutes shall so far as the same are applicable apply to these Regulations. July 18, 21

Whoop Her Up! Whoop her up for the last week of the Victory Loan Campaign. If you haven't bought a Bond yet, do so now, and swell the big total for the last few days. If you have already subscribed see if you can't reach on another Bond. If you know anyone who is in a position to participate but who hasn't done so, get after him and keep on his trail until he comes across with the needed. Make the closing days of the campaign red hot ones. We have a war to win. Do your part in helping to win it.

THE SUSA.—The S.S. Susa left LaSalle at 3:20 p.m. yesterday coming south and is due here to-morrow. Capt. W. R. Gossie and T. Mercer. Capses of Palm Beach cloth, natural color, are being worn with the summer frocks. Pale Georgette crepe is the best material for afternoon frocks and dinner gowns.

To-Day's Messages.

10.00 A. M.

PARLIAMENT TO ATTEND DIVINE SERVICE.

LONDON, To-day. Premier Lloyd George in a new words moved, ex-Premier Asquith seconded, and the members of the House of Commons unanimously adopted this resolution to-day, "that this House attend St. Margaret's, Westminster, Sunday, August 4th, it being the 4th anniversary of the declaration of war, to invoke Divine blessing on our just cause."

NOT VERY LUCID.

THE HAGUE, To-day. The text of the agreement for the exchange of prisoners between the British and German delegations, which was signed July 14th, contains provisions for the exchange of officers, non-commissioned officers and men, British and German prisoners of war and those interned in Holland as well as civilians interned in Holland and Switzerland. The latter will leave the country where they are interned, and the new arrangement provides that non-commissioned officers will be exchanged direct instead of being interned. German and British prisoners of war and civilians interned in Holland will leave the country, while their places will be taken by officers who have been prisoners for more than eight months, and other prisoners in poor health. The number of persons to be interned with the agreement of 1917, amounts to 7,500 sick or wounded British officers and about 2,500 German officers.

BORDEN'S MESSAGE.

LONDON, July 17. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency).—The following letter was forwarded by Sir Robert Borden to the Premier, to Lieut-General Sir Arthur Currie, Officer Commanding the Canadian Army Corps in France, on the former's return from a visit to the Corps in France. "We have returned from our visit with fresh courage from the renewed inspection of the men and confidence of the Canadian Corps was the most impressive of all. Could our countrymen have seen the gathering on Dominion Day or could they have been present the following day when the Brigades paraded in battle order, there would be no need of any message from the Canadian Corps to the army of Canadian people. My colleagues and I are solid you and all the forces under you God speed in your endeavours on the highest and most transcendent cause. The people of Canada are behind you to the end. They understand that no indecisive result can repay the nation's sorrow and sacrifice and we are assured, that under however stern a test, the glorious traditions of the past four years will be amply sustained. One could not say more."

FRENCH WERE READY.

FRNSCH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, July 17. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency).—It becomes increasingly clear that the enemy's strategic objective was to occupy the whole right bank of the Marne from Chateau Chateau Thierry in order to use the river as a shield for his uncovered flank in a final march towards Paris. The attack failed mainly because General Gouraud was able to keep constantly posted regarding the enemy's intentions, and the French were thoroughly prepared for such an attack. French patrols and raiding parties daily visited the German trenches and never failed to glean useful information of the enemy's positions. The very evening before the attack, trench raiders brought back and prepared the enormous accumulation of guns and ammunition behind the enemy's front was no secret to the French. The Germans began their attack with a carefully planned coup de theatre, for the benefit of the French civil population, by bombarding Chateaux.

NOON.

ENGLISH CROPS SHORT. WASHINGTON, To-day. Early drought and labor shortage in England has become a serious problem, according to cable advices received to-day by the Food Administration from the British Food Ministry. The situation is described as better than last year, the message said, but the anxiety is not yet over. Early optimism about possibilities of wheat crops will have to be revised owing to difficulties of newly broken ground and lack of labor. Barley and oats, potatoes and root crops also suffered.

HUNS EXHAUSTED AND DEMORALIZED.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, June 17.—German troops, in some portions of the trenches in Flanders, have been so exhausted and demoralized by constant British raids, attacks and bombardments, that many of them have fallen asleep at their posts, not caring whether they are killed or captured. An order issued to a Bavarian infantry regiment reveals the condition of affairs, which up to this time would have been thought unbelievable in an army notorious for the strictness of its discipline.

CROWN PRINCE LOST 100,000 MEN.

PARIS, To-day. The German Crown Prince, military observers here say, is now trying to convert a large scale failure into a show of minor successes which will make up in the eyes of the German public for the 100,000 men he has sacrificed. His goal now apparently is Epernay. The first operation included two parts. In the first, the Germans crossed the Marne in the Dormans region are struggling to widen and strengthen the bridgehead on the south bank; in the second, the German right centre which at the beginning of the action was along Dormans-Epernay road, facing southeast, is now pivoted on Virgny and runs north and south along a line through Virgny, Bouilly, Mussy, and Courtenon and Roye Woods. As the country in this direction is thickly wooded, and consequently easily defended, some military commentators believe the Germans will soon find the game is not worth the candle. Pursuing his now familiar opportunist policy, the enemy would content himself with establishing a defensive front towards the east, and turn his efforts southward in the direction of Mont Mirail, near Epernay, which strategically is second in importance only to Chalons. This is the hypothesis of the military writer, Col. De Thomassin.

ITALIANS GOOD WORK.

ON FRENCH FRONT, July 17. While both enemy and Allied armies generally were marking time this evening, the Italians carried out a brilliant counter attack near Poiray, North of the Marne, after the Germans had harried them by incessant attacks during the day. They drove the enemy back into the valley of the Ardre River and other sectors. North and south of the river Marne, many small local actions, but nothing far-taking of the character of general attacks and counter attacks have been on one attack at the same time, consequently numerous hand to hand encounters occurred. The enemy is still trying to force his way through Epernay, by way of Venault, on the north and Oueville and Montovillon on the south of the Marne. Montovillon changed hands several times, the French eventually gaining some ground. Heavy fighting with constant attacks and counter attacks have been taking place in the vicinity of Courton Wood, where owing to the nature of the ground the situation is most difficult, but nowhere did Germans obtain an advantage during the day.

The Moustache in Warfare

It was in warfare that the idea was evolved of soldiers having their chins clean-shaven to enhance their fighting powers.

In olden times, when fighting was encountered at closer quarters than now, soldiers' beards offered a ready means of seizing one another, and it was the man who first succeeded in seizing his opponent's beard who usually had the best of the bargain.

The early races are said to have affected a compromise in order to retain a fitter military appearance, and the ancient Egyptians who had cut off or could not cultivate or had been forcibly deprived of their beards often wore heavy false beards when they went into battle. When an enemy seized hold of their beard it came off instantly, and the Egyptian was enabled to despatch his enemy whilst the latter was in a trance of stupefaction and horror.

Our soldiers have not always worn a moustache. The Worcestershire Militia lay claim to first introducing the moustache, adopting it in 1758. In 1815 the cavalry commenced to wear moustaches, and forty years afterwards the custom became general throughout the whole service.

You Should not Have to be Asked.

You should not have to be asked to subscribe to the Victory War Loan. If a man offered you a Five Dollar Bill you would not have to be pressed to accept it if you were assured that it was a present. The interest, at the rate of 6 1/2 per cent, which you will receive on all money you invest in VICTORY BONDS is a present from your country. The Government pay you for the use of your money, and at the same time use the money you loan them in providing for your protection from the horrors of war. You win both ways. But while making money on the transaction you are doing "your bit" in the Great War. Surely there was never a proposition placed before you which carries so completely its own endorsement upon its face. Over four million people thought similarly in the United States when the first great Liberty War Loan was launched there, because that huge number of people eagerly subscribed to the issue, and have also invested their money in succeeding loans. This chance is now offered you. It is yours to accept or turn down. Answer the knock of opportunity at once. It may be the last you will get. Don't miss it.

The Red Cross Mother.

She goes with your boy every mile of the way
From home and over the sea;
She greets him in France at the very dock,
With cheer and sympathy,
She trudges along the dreariest march,
A constant companion, she!
When the murderous shrapnel takes its toll,
Here is the outstretched hand
To succor the wounded and bring them back.
From death in No Man's Land,
For hers is the spirit that gives and helps.
The heart that can understand!
Reckon the sum of one mother's love,
Then double, and double again;
Multiply this yet a million times,
For a million women, and then,
Far more than all these is her tenderness—
This world-wide Mother of Men!
—Marie V. Caruthers, in The New York Times.

Hr. Grace Notes.

Traps are still doing excellent work with codfish, but hook and line men are doing practically nothing.

Rev. A. A. Holmes leaves by today's train for his new mission at Pouch Cove. We wish the Rev. gentleman who has become very popular here and his family equally so, a very successful term in his new charge.

A slight thunder storm passed away to the north of us this morning, the weather shortly after clearing up, and just now, 1.30 p.m., we are enjoying delightful weather.

Miss Mary Butler, daughter of the late William Butler, passed away on Thursday last, of consumption, after a long illness, aged 22 years. Another young person, Miss Effie Snow, aged 17 years, succumbed to the same fell disease on Wednesday last. Another victim, a young married woman was claimed last week. Cannot something more be done to stamp out this destroyer of youth. Are the authorities doing all they can? Are the people who have loved ones taken thus, able to afford to destroy all clothes that cannot be properly cleaned? Let all doctors be given power to have everything necessary destroyed, not counting the cost, that fact will be sufficient recompense for many hundreds of dollars. Give the doctors the power; don't handicap them as has been done in some cases, at least.

This subject brings to our mind a case that is very plain, showing how this disease is passed along from one person to another. A woman with a small family was stricken with the malady a few years ago, right here in this town. The services of a very healthy young woman of a neighboring outport were secured to nurse the sick one, who died after a few months. The young woman then got married, and almost immediately was seen she had contracted the disease. A healthy, very healthy girl was secured to nurse her, and after her death the poor girl, too, was seen to be suffering from consumption and died a few weeks ago. Has everything in this house been destroyed or properly fumigated? Has the doctor power to enforce this? If not, he certainly should be given a free hand, and even an assistant to be sure that all his instructions are carried out to the letter. This is, to our mind, the way to fight that dread disease.

Legal Sharks.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—There are certainly some legal sharks in this little town of ours. Last week a lawyer charged a poor fisherman in a nearby settlement $25.00 for making out his son's exemption papers.
This fisherman is over four score years and has a son lately returned from the firing line, minus a leg; another son in the Navy, and because a third has been called up (although coming under Section B), our legal friend charges him $25.00 for making out the papers. This is certainly unjust. It is reported in the same settlement a lawyer has been down the past week or two and charging as high as $40.00 for getting a man clear. That sounds at the least anything but patriotic.
If the proper authorities wish to move in the right direction, or if the legal gentleman (?) whom the cap fits so neatly, wishes for profits of the above statement, I will gladly supply the same free of charge.
Yours in anticipation of justice,
—ANTHONY SHARK.

An Architectural Gem Destroyed.

Yesterday (Monday) evening, flames of fire were observed issuing through the belfry window of Holy Cross Church. A large crowd, including the sergeant and soldiers here on military duty, hastened to the scene, but the fire had gained such headway and control that scarcely anything could be done but stand off, and with sorrowful hearts and tearful eyes witness the destruction of the handsome church, its furnishings and fittings, its gold and silver ornaments and vessels. This gem of architecture was erected in 1897 by the famous builders, the Farfys, of Brigus, under the supervision of the Rev. Fr. Murphy, the then Parish Priest, and was admired by all visitors for its elegant proportions and handsome equipments. It was dedicated with imposing ceremonies and functions in November, 1899, by Bishops MacDonall, Howley and McNeil, and a numerous retinue of priests from the three R. C. Dioceses. Past Pastors of this Church were Rev. Dr. Murphy, Rev. J. Mackey, the late Rev. J. W. Donnelly, Rev. M. P. Dwyer, the late Rev. G. J. Battcock and the present beloved Pastor Father Finn. During his pastorate two new wings were almost completed. The loss to the Parish of Holyrood is a severe one. The Church, its furnishings, fittings and requisites, the sacred vessels and ornaments, vestments and cloths—all consumed and approximates a net loss of $30,000. Fortunately it was covered with insurance for $4,500. The origin of the fire is uncertain. Some far away observers noticed the fire through the Sanctuary window and thought it at first the reflection of the luminary. But immediately after flames were bursting through the lower window, and it became obvious the whole interior was on fire. We thank Almighty God no one was injured or none of the nearby houses suffered any damage. But while we sympathize with Father Finn and his people on their loss, let us have abundant faith, hope and charity, that with a united effort and fixed determination of their internal and external friends they will surmount this temporary adversity, and a grander and superior Church will rise phoenix like from the ashes of that destroyed.

Published by Authority.

Under the provisions of the War Measures Act, 1914, His Excellency the Governor in Council has been pleased to order that the following Regulations respecting Lights shall come into effect as and from this date.

W. W. HALFYARD,
Colonial Secretary,
Dep't of Colonial Secretary,
July 16th, 1918.

1. Measures shall be taken so that the glare or upward reflection from street or other outdoor lights in the City of St. John's shall be reduced to fifty per cent. of the normal. This Regulation will also apply to Bell Island, Conception Bay.
2. No light shall be lit in any public building, shop or private residence in the City of St. John's, except the windows in such public building, shop or residence are covered by suitable blinds or shades, so that the glare or reflection upon the heavens is reduced to fifty per cent. of the normal.
3. Head lights used on any motor cars or motor cycles in or near the City of St. John's, or in or near any settlement in the Districts of St. John's East or West, or on any road approaching St. John's or any of the said settlements, upon which lights may be visible at sea, shall be so obscured that the glare or upward reflection upon the heavens shall be reduced to fifty per cent. of the normal. Side lights on motor cars, motor cycles, or vehicles of any description must be obscured, and shall not be of greater strength than ten candle power.
4. It will be the duty of the members of the Constabulary to see that these Regulations are strictly enforced and all orders issued by them for their better observance shall be forthwith carried out.
5. Every person convicted of a violation of these Rules and Regulations before a Stipendiary Magistrate or Justice of the Peace, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding $100, or in default of payment, to imprisonment not exceeding Three Months.

CABLE NEWS.

WAR REVIEW.

Although the Germans are still attacking the Allied lines viciously on both sides of the Rheims salient, what gains they are making continue to be small on isolated sectors and seemingly are confined to the region along the Marne, and immediately southwest of Rheims eastward from the cathedral city. Through Champagne the French report that everywhere they are holding the enemy, and keeping their line intact. Notwithstanding the prodigious expenditure of shells by the Germans and the determination with which their troops are delivering their thrusts everywhere, the battles are being stubbornly contested and where the French and Italians have been compelled to give ground it has only been after infliction of extremely heavy loss to the invaders. The Americans nowhere have been forced to withdraw. On the contrary, near Fossy, near the bend of the Marne, between Chateau Thierry and Dormans they have made further improvements in their positions. Like their French comrades in arms the Americans also have been violently fighting with the enemy. Daily it becomes increasingly apparent that the strategy the German high command in the present battle has foremost for its consideration, the blotting out of the Rheims salient and the straightening of the line east through Champagne toward Verdun. The heaviest operations of Tuesday were southwest of Rheims where the enemy is trying to break through the hill and forest region, reach the railroad running from Rheims to Epernay and force the evacuation of Rheims. In these endeavors the German war office asserts that the Allied troops on the mountain of Rheims between Mantoul and north of Pourcy, the latter place being a scant five miles distant from the Rheims-Epernay railway. The French official statement admits that the Germans hold the line west of Nanteuil La Posse, about a mile and a half south of Pourcy and relatively five miles west of the railway. The German war office is now claiming the capture of 18,000 prisoners since the present offensive began. It is reported the French reserves have entered the fighting line along the Marne, and to the north of La Chappelle-Montedon they have recaptured lost territory. The Germans also, as expected, have brought up fresh forces in an endeavor to push forward their project in this region. There is a veritable deluge of shells from the guns of both sides along the entire Marne front. On the British front in Northern France and Flanders the Germans are keeping up a violent bombardment on various sectors, using both gas and high explosive shells. Gas has been used extensively on the Villers-Bretonneux sector, where the British for several days past have been delivering successful patrol attacks and taking prisoners. The Albert sector is coming in for an increased shower of shells of all kinds. Nowhere, however, has the German command seen fit as yet to fight an infantry engagement, if one was needed.

ARMIES INTACT EVERYWHERE.

ON THE FRENCH FRONT IN FRANCE, July 17. (By the Associated Press.)—Comparatively slight progress has been made by the enemy on the front west of Rheims, but his hope of effecting a breach in the line was not realized. The Allied method of defence proved wonderfully efficacious everywhere, resulting in maintaining the armies intact.

CONSIDERED A FAILURE.

PARIS, July 17. All the Paris military critics are in agreement to-day with a view that yesterday still further accentuated the failure of the German offensive the Havas Agency notes in to-day's review of the trend of comment. It is perhaps early to speak of victory, says the Echo de Paris, but we say that the enemy has suffered a gigantic failure which will cause a sensation throughout Germany. It may be asserted that the fifth German offensive is a very severe defeat for the enemy, says Henri Bidou in La Journal. The newspapers generally declare that when the time comes the Allied counter attack may be expected to drive the Germans rapidly back to the north of the Marne.

REGAINED GROUND.

PARIS, July 17. On the Marne front our troops of the second line and perhaps our general reserves already are entering the action, says the Temps to-day, in reviewing the progress of the offensive. Where our troops have resumed the offensive north of La Chappelle and Mont Hedon, we have regained ground.

THREW BACK ATTACKS.

LONDON, July 17. General Von Elnem's army, engaged in the German wing in the Champagne, yesterday delivered five attacks between Sulpes and Massige. All were repulsed with heavy losses. French counter attacks have brought German bridges over the river Marne under the fire of the French artillery of medium calibre.

BOX 920, ST. JOHN'S.

Published by Authority.

Under the provisions of the War Measures Act, 1914, His Excellency the Governor in Council has been pleased to order that the following Regulations respecting Lights shall come into effect as and from this date.

W. W. HALFYARD, Colonial Secretary.

1. Measures shall be taken so that no glare or upward reflection from street or other outdoor lights in the City of St. John's shall be reduced to fifty per cent. of the normal. This regulation will also apply to Bell Island, Conception Bay.

2. No light shall be lit in any public building, shop or private residence in the City of St. John's, except the windows in such public building, shop or residence are covered by suitable blinds or shades, so that the glare or reflection upon the heavens shall be reduced to fifty per cent. of the normal.

3. Head lights used on any motor cars or motor cycles in or near the City of St. John's, or in or near any settlement in the Districts of St. John's East or West, or on any road approaching St. John's or any of the said settlements, upon which lights may be visible at sea, shall be so obscured that the glare or upward reflection upon the heavens shall be reduced to fifty per cent. of the normal.

4. It will be the duty of the members of the Constabulary to see that these Regulations are strictly enforced and all orders issued by them for their better observance shall be forthwith carried out.

5. Every person convicted of a violation of these Rules and Regulations before a Stipendiary Magistrate or Justice of the Peace, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding $100, or in default of payment, to imprisonment not exceeding Three Months.
