STEWART'S Home Made Bread,

THE BREAD MY DADDY LIKES.

Daddy is evidently not one of those back number lords of creation who believes that woman's place is in the home—and only there. His taste in a wife is an up-to-date woman who will prove herself a real companion. He knows that if she is a slave to her kitchen she can't enjoy the poise or have the interest in world affairs that a little extra leisure would make possible; and so he is pleased to eat MRS. STEWART'S HOME MADE BREAD—the loaf with the home made flavor.

The smiling, well-nourished kiddie doesn't look as though suffering because mother is progressive enough to buy good bread made by a bread specialist, instead of wearing out her life in the kitchen.

CHAPTER XXV.
IN LOVE WITH A PRINCESS.
"Carlo, come here, sir!" says the princess, and Carlo, with a side glance at the count, goes to her. "For shame, sir, for shame, to treat an old friend so!" she says. "He is good now, count—

—he is very obedient."
"Who would not be to such a mistress, your highness?" says the count, with another smile. "Carlo and I have not forgotten our old quarrels. Come hither, my good friend."

But Carlo firmly refuses to be cajoled, and Hal, now that peace is restored, turns to depart.

"Adieu," says the count.

"Good-by," says the princess, and Hal, with a subdued tone, goes up to the dog and pats him on the head; he couldn't tell why he does it, but he is rewarded by a gentle smile from the dark eyes; and, gathering up his two baskets, he takes his departure.

As Hal went down the long avenue he looked about him with a faint feeling of surprise. The sun seemed to have gone in, but it had not—it was just as bright as when he was in the garden, brighter, perhaps; and yet the day seemed suddenly dark and gloomy, as if the best part had gone out of it.

Poor Hal did not understand; until yesterday he had no more idea of love than a native of India has of ice, if any one had told him he was in love he would have been divided between the desire to laugh at the person and—if he were a man—to knock him down.

He tried to persuade himself that it was only a feeling of pity for such a bright, lovely creature leading a dull life which made him loath to leave her presence, and a desire to see her and hear her speak.

"I wonder," he muttered, as he went up the street, "I wonder who the dickens the old Russian mummy is? Her uncle, I suppose; that can't be, though. Must be a relation, or he wouldn't have the cheek to kiss her hand—found his impudence! These blessed foreigners have monopolized all the brass in the world! Must be a relation—perhaps her grandfather; no, not quite old enough for that. Confound him, whoever he is! That's a sensible dog, that Carlo. By George! if I hadn't held him tight, he would have made mincemeat of the count, wrinkles and all!"

Arrived at the hotel door, Hal hesitates and looks down at his precious basket of camellias.

"Old Bell will badger me to death!" he mutters; "want to know where I got 'em, and scackle for an hour. I'll go around the back way."

But, unfortunately for love's shy reserve, "Old Bell" is taking exercise under the shadow of the balcony in the yard itself, and stands open-mouthed, nearly dropping his book at Hal's treasure.

"My dear Hal! what exquisite flowers. Where?"

"Had 'em given me!" says Hal. "Fine, aren't they? I'll take them upstairs," and he hurries up the broad wooden steps.

With a selfishness never to be much condemned, he doesn't put the great white blossoms in the dusty saloon, where they would refresh the eyes of the hungry tourists, nor does he place them, as he should do, on the table of his own little room, and, having placed them with the utmost care in the milk-jug belonging to the washing-stand, puts them on the table, and sits and stares at them.

Presently a knock at the door, which rouses Hal, and causes him to blushing remove the jug to a remote corner.

TO WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

This Woman's Letter Tells You How to Pass The Crisis Safely.

Lascelles, P.Q.—"During the Change of Life I felt so weak and run down I could hardly do my work. The perspiration would pour over my face so that I couldn't see what I was doing. We live on a farm, so there is lots to do, but many who felt as I did would have been in bed. I took Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound and it did me a world of good. I tried other remedies but I put Vegetable Compound ahead of them all, and I tell every one I know how much good it has done me."

Mrs. DUNCAN BROWN, Lascelles, Prov. Quebec.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dizziness, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and dizziness should be heeded by middle-aged women, and let Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound carry them safely through this crisis as it did Mrs. Brown.

You are invited to write for free advice. No other medicine has been so successful in relieving woman's suffering as has Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound. Women may receive free and helpful advice by writing the Lydia E. Finkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

It is Bell, and he has a letter in his hand.

"Reading, my dear Hal? Am I disturbing you? Here is a letter from—the marchioness."

Hal takes it, and Bell goes to the window, shyly lingering.

"Any—any news, Hal?" he asks, timidly.

"Eh?" says Hal, with knitted brows. "I can scarcely make it out. Jeanne seems to have forgotten how to write since she became a great swell. Oh, look here, they're coming to the castle a week sooner than they expected; that will be pleasant news for your friend, the major-domo, and make him hurry up pretty considerably; and, look here, here's something about you."

"About me?" says Bell, blushing.

"Yes, but hang me if I can make it out. Here, spell it over, will you?"

Bell takes the letter almost reverentially.

"Will you ask Bell if he will be so kind as to tell them at the castle that there will be three more visitors that the list contains? You—you careless boy—would forget all about it, but Mr. Bell will not."

"That's one for me and ten for you, Bell," says Hal, with a grin.

"They are the Countess Stanhope, Lord Lane and Lord Nugent. The Countess must have a room with a southernly aspect. Shall I read any more?"

"Yes, go on," says Hal.

ter; Bell has gone over to the castle to encourage the major-domo, who is almost distracted by the shortening of the time left him for preparation, and by the news that three more suites of rooms are required. Hal has waited until Bell's back is fairly turned, and is now trying to convince the stable-keeper that the aforesaid Gothic specimen of the animal kingdom will not serve his, Hal's, turn.

"You don't surely call that a horse!" says Hal, speaking very slowly and loudly, as is an Englishman's wont when addressing foreigners, as if deaf. "It isn't a horse—it's a cathedral or a scaffold, or an animated skeleton from a museum—anything you like, except a horse!"

"But, my lord!" expostulates the man, gesticulating, "it is indeed a horse; a good, a grand horse!"

"Then he's a little too grand for me!" says Hal, scornfully. "Something with fewer bones, and more flesh and hair, is good enough for me. Is there such a thing as a horse in this confounded place?"

"The man raises his eyebrows and shakes his head.

"If mildred," he says, stroking the Gothic structure with an extravagant gaze of admiration, "if mildred is not satisfied with that charming quadruped, I do not know what mildred will do for another."

"Well, I'm not satisfied with that charming quadruped," says Hal. "In fact, I'd rather die the death than be seen on such a heap of bones. Take him back to the marine store shop you call a stable. He won't—he won't do; and here's something for your trouble."

At the sight of the silver, the man's face grows a trifle more intelligent.

"It is a pity!" he says, eyeing the horse regretfully, "a thousand pities that mildred doesn't like the horse, but—"

"Ah," says Hal, "let's have it. When one of you Germans begin to 'but' there's something behind."

The man smiles. He remembers, quite by accident, that there is still another horse in Forbach; by a strange chance it belongs to his, the man's, wife's brother, who would doubtless be willing to lend it to mildred for a consideration.

"All right," says Hal, "fetch him around—this is, if he is no relation to the charming quadruped."

After a decent interval the man appears, leading a horse which he has brought from another part of the stable, and which, being an improvement upon the first grand animal, Hal accepts, carelessly agreeing to pay about twice as much as the proper rate. "My wife's brother" having urgently required him for his own use, and only consented to lend him at the aforesaid increased tariff. Hal has a dim suspicion that he is being cheated, but is so elated at getting a horse of anything like a decent appearance that he throws the man two or three coins into the bargain, for his trouble is going around to the stable. Mounted on this steed, and inwardly groaning that he isn't his own shapely, well-groomed cob, Hal trots down the street and into the valley.

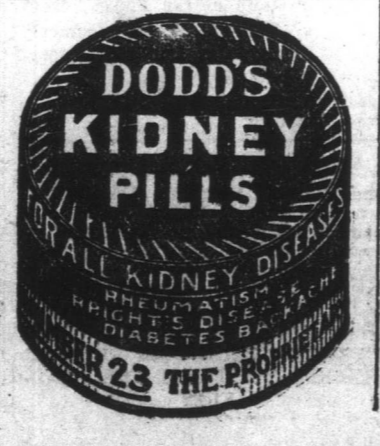

As he approaches the avenue leading to the Villa Verona, he pulls up into a walk, and, with a fine affectation of admiring the view, casts an anxious scrutiny up the drive; but there is on a gardener at work among the rhododendrons.

Hal proceeds, keeping a wary eye in every direction. He seems to know every stone in the stream by heart; he spent all yesterday afternoon fishing and fiddling by its banks, waiting and hoping for a glimpse of the white dress and straw hat, which did not make their appearance, however. He returned to the hotel in a very bad humor, and quite ready to pick a quarrel with the count, if he should make his appearance, and, in default of that highly-polished noblemen's presence, amused himself by teasing Bell, which he could always do by pretending disbelief in the existence of Homer, concerning which ancient poet Bell was enthusiastic.

And now, as he rode along, it seemed ages since he saw her yesterday, quite centuries since she looked up into his face and fastened the camellia in his buttonhole.

"I expect she won't ride this morning," he uttered; "or else she's had her gallop and gone home. Just my luck, and, if I were to see her, I don't know what I should say to her. I can't go on making her presents of fish. I might give her my penknife, just to create a bit of conversation. Oh, I'm making an idiot of myself."

But he still rode on, and still watched, meeting with nothing human excepting a boy driving cows, all through the valley and up the hill, the ascent of which caused his steed to puff and groan like a grampus.

"I'm glad I don't meet her with this beast roaring like a bull of Bashan," he grumbled; "and now, old man, we'll have a gallop along the top, just to see if you can bend your legs."

Any one less preoccupied would have turned to admire the scenery, but the grand expanse of fir-clad hills gets not a glance from Hal. Even his brother-in-law's castle, stretched out below him, grandly majestic in the sunlight, scarcely attracts his attention, and he rides on, with his eyes fixed before him, until suddenly, much to the astonishment of his horse, he pulls up.

Right before him, revealed by a sharp curve of the mountain land, is a girl on horseback. So motionless the steed and rider stand that they might be an equestrian statue.

But the noblest statue in the Vatican, could not bring the blood to Hal's face as the sight of the slim, habit-clad girl on her thoroughbred horse.

He becomes motionless, too, but presently Carlo bounds from among the trees with a deep bay, and the princess turns her head and sees him.

Hal rides up bare-headed, and is greeted with an innocent smile of surprise, and with as innocent a light of pleasure in her dark eyes.

"And you have taken my advice!" she says; "and so soon; and is it not beautiful?"

Hal looks around for the first time, but his eyes come back to her face almost instantly.

"Yes, very fine," she says, scarcely noticing the view. "Very fine."

"And the castle, do you see that?" she asks. "We are all in Forbach so proud of the castle! It is grand, is it not?"

"Yes," says Hal, throwing a swift glance at the noble pile.

"Our poor little villa looks an ant-hill in comparison," she says, with a smile.

"I don't think so," says Hal. "Stand still, you brute!" This was to the horse, of course.

"He is frightened at Carlo," says the princess. "Carlo, come here. Is he your horse?"

"Thank Heaven, no!" says Hal; "I got him in the village after a vast amount of trouble. He is the prize stud of Forbach. I wish you could have seen the animal they first offered me. Stand still, will you? I give you my word, I have had the greatest trouble to get him along when I wanted to go, and now—stand still!"

"Let us get down," says the princess; "I always walk to the point. It is dangerous to ride so near. This is a beautiful view."

Hal drops from the saddle, and goes to help her to dismount.

With a light touch on his arm, she floats down to the ground, and, gathering her habit-skirt, leads the way, Hal leading the two horses.

"Oh, you may leave Florida," she says; "she will wait anywhere for me for hours, if I wanted her to."

"And I'll tie my brute up here," says Hal, and he hitches the bridle to a tree.

"There," says the princess, extending her tiny hand, clothed in its white glove, and lets it drop upon her lap as she sits on the edge of the hill.

Cardinal Bourne Declares Against Conspiracies--Former German Raider Goes to Bottom--Scientists Have New Find--Fire Bugs at Work in Lancashire--Germany Urged to Refuse Allied Demands.

CABINET CHANGES.
 LONDON, Feb. 13. The George yesterday approved the appointments of Winston Churchill as Secretary of State for the Colonies, Sir Laming Worthington Evans as Secretary for War, and Lee of Fareham as First Lord of the Admiralty, and Sir Arthur Balfour as President of the Council of Agriculture.

CARDINALS ON SINN FEIN.
 LONDON, Feb. 13. Cardinal Bourne, Archbishop of Dublin, in a pastoral letter to the clergy, which was read in churches to-day, refers to the "grave reason to fear that the sin of my flock, impelled by the love of country and the yearning for the realization of the lawful aspirations, are unscrupulously allowing themselves to be misled by active sympathy with even actual cooperation with societies and organizations, which are in opposition to the laws of God and the Catholic Church."

THE BRISTOL CITY IN DISTRESS.
 SYDNEY, Feb. 13. Word was received to-night by Vincent Mullins of the Marine Department, that the steamer "Bristol City" was sixty miles from Louisburg, bound for that port, making speed of four knots. The message further stated that the vessel had not received assistance up to that hour and was burning all combustible fittings in an effort to keep up steam. The steamer Sheba left to render the Bristol City assistance to-day.

TREATY NOT YET SIGNED.
 LONDON, Feb. 13. The permanent Peace Treaty between Poland and Soviet Russia, negotiations for which have been under way at Riga for some time, will probably be signed within a few days, according to a wireless despatch from Moscow received here yesterday. (Saturday's message stated that the Treaty was actually signed.)

CHURCHILL IS HOPEFUL.
 LONDON, Feb. 13. Addressing an English Speaking Union farewell to Lord Reading, Viceroy of India, Winston Churchill, the new Secretary of State for the Colonies, on Saturday said that so far as the Dominions and the British Empire were concerned, the new principle developing was common consultation among members of the British Empire with regard to difficulties of any one of them. No decision concerning the status of one nation of the Empire could be taken in a final way without consultation between the whole body of Empire. The Dominions would share with the Motherland in the responsibility of dealing with the great dominant questions and decisions which affected the common fortunes of the whole body. This principle, Churchill said, might be found to have its usefulness in relation to parts of the Empire as far apart and widely different as Ireland and Egypt. We all know how great the difficulties are, and the more unwise to solve our problems. "I am hopeful and confident that in a few years our present difficulties in Ireland and Egypt will be greatly diminished and that the nations which are now a reproach and stumbling block to the supreme cause, the English Speaking Union has at heart, may be found managing their own affairs and unfolding their own destinies peacefully and prosperously within the elastic circle of the British Empire."

BRITAIN'S WAR DEBT.
 WASHINGTON, Feb. 13. More than one suggestion that Great Britain's war debt to the United States be written off has come from British sources, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said yesterday, after Secretary Houston had been closeted with the committee for two hours' discussion of the status of United States Government foreign loans. The committee members, said Houston, had confirmed that the British Government had made a formal proposal to cancel the debt and that the Treasury Department had refused. The first intimation that such a proposal had been made was given by J. Austen Chamberlain, British Chancellor of Exchequer, in a recent address in Birmingham, England. Some senators said the course of Secretary Houston in dealing with such suggestions had been "eminently satisfactory." Mr. Houston was said to have reiterated that the only course open to him was to follow the law authorizing the Treasury Department to exchange the present allied certificates of indebtedness for long term notes.

INCENDIARISM IN LANCASHIRE.
 MANCHESTER, Feb. 13. A number of simultaneous outbreaks of fire in several mills and factories in Manchester, Fallsworth, Royton and Rochdale on Saturday night were accompanied by suspicious circumstances, such as the employment of inflammable liquids and fleeing men acting suspiciously, some of whom were fired at. Sir Robert Peacock, Chief Constable, considers that he has obtained convincing evidence that the fires were due to the work of Irish incendiaries. No serious damage resulted from the fires, each of them having been quickly discovered and quenched.

COMMUNISTS AND NATIONALISTS FIGHT.
 LONDON, Feb. 12. Two were killed and fifteen wounded yesterday in a conflict between Communists and Extreme Nationalists at the naval shipyard, Montefalcone, Italy, says a Rome despatch to the Central News.

GERMANY DEFIANT.
 BRESLAU, Feb. 12. Paul Loebe, President of the Reichstag, urges Germany in an editorial in the Breslau Volksrecht, to refuse to comply with the Paris reparations demands, suggesting that occupation of the Ruhr be permitted by the Entente which, he says, would be compelled to attempt operation of the mines.

PASSENGER TRAIN ATTACKED.
 CORK, Feb. 12. One soldier was killed and a number of others wounded to-day in the attack on a passenger train outside Mill Street Station by a hundred armed men who fired on the cars from both sides of the line.

Girl-Wife Tortured.
 Because a bullock died, a girl-wife was thought by her mother-in-law to have brought bad luck to the home and to be a woman of ill-omen, says a Bombay message. She was, therefore, starved and branded with a red-hot iron ladle on various parts of the body. The mother-in-law is a Marathi woman named Tarabai, and she lived with her husband, Marutray, and her son, Dattatraya, by another husband, at Chinchpookhi. Dattatraya was married to a girl named Chandrabai, aged 15 or 16. Chandrabai lived with the accused and her husband. When the bullock died Chandrabai starved for three days, looked her up in a room, kept her blindfolded, and brought her downstairs to work.

BEEF.—The beef market is quiet. There is no change in quotations since our last issue. The decline in rate of premium on American Exchange during the last two weeks has had the effect of reducing the price of beef to $2.00 per barrel, otherwise the price at points of shipment is unchanged. The packers price is the same. There arrived by the S.S. Rosalind this week 600 barrels of beef. The only demand at present is to fill requirements for the Sealers, which this year will be small owing to reduction in crews. Nonetheless is $32. Libby's Special Family $39.

MOLASSES.—The price of Molasses in the local market continues at the recent decline to $1.10 per gallon for Fancy, and $1.00 for Choice, tierces are more attractive prices, but it is regarded as a risky article to handle owing to the possibility of its turning sour.

SUGAR.—Latest cables from New York say that "Raws" are now down to pre-war levels, and are said to be under the control of production, so that unless an improvement favorable to refiners takes place, production is likely to be curtailed. The local price under the F.C.B. control is still 23 1/2 cents per pound wholesale. American White Granulated was quoted in New York at 5 1/2 cents a pound last Monday. It is thought that the present rate of consumption will not absorb the stocks of F.C.B. sugar in less than five months.

POTATOES.—The recent stormy weather has had the effect of stiffening up the price of potatoes, as very few of the farmers can get around, and there are no large stocks of imported held. We should not be surprised, however, to see a slight advance next week as the frosty weather will preclude any imports for two months at least. Local rates quoted at $4.00 to $4.50 and imported $5.20 per barrel.

HAY.—The market is weak and prices have declined considerably this week. This was chiefly owing to the arrival of no less than 2,800 bales by the S.S. Manola from St. John, N.B. The price is now $55.00 per ton, as against $58.00 the previous week. There will be no scarcity the coming months such as prevailed last season and the price is likely to hold between $54 and $58. The Lady of Gaspe also brought 251 bales.

GRAIN.—The large shipment of $474 sacks from St. John, N.B., by the S.S. Manola this week, has steadied the market here, but we would not be surprised to see an advance in the course of the spring. The market closed two points higher at Chicago yesterday. Grain dealers in the United States have lately been expressing the opinion that the bottom has been reached in oats and that March will show an upward tendency. In the local market White Oats are $4.40 to $4.50 per sack, Mixed $4.20 to $4.40 and Black $5.20.

FEEDS.—Two thousand bags of bran were brought here by the S.S. Manola this week. Feeds in general are a little lower. Corn Meal is $3.30 to $3.50. This is the lowest since the war, but there is no decline in milk. Feeds were at an average of $4.00 a year when the milk was advanced, and now feeds are down to $3.30. The public naturally expect that the price of milk should be reduced.

The Declaration of Right.
 After the flight of James II., the Prince of Orange called an assembly known as "The Convention," which differed from a Parliament only in the single fact that the writs by which the members were summoned were issued by one who was not yet a king. The throne was then declared vacant, and great debates ensued on the settlement of affairs. Some proposed a Regency; others that Mary should be Queen, while William, her husband, and nephew of James, should hold the title of King for her life-time only. Both plans, however, were pointedly rejected by William, who declared that he would go back to Holland rather than accept a position inferior to that of his wife, who was the daughter of James II. A document called "The Declaration of Right," which was then drawn up and passed, determined in favour of the Parliament all the points in dispute with the Stewart kings. William and Mary were declared King and Queen; the Convention was, also, declared to be a Parliament. A new coronation oath and new oaths of allegiance and supremacy were prepared, and in this way the crown passed from James to William. Towards the end of the year the Declaration of Right was confirmed and extended in "The Bill of Rights," which ranks after "Magna Charta" and "The Habeas Corpus Act," as the third great charter of British freedom. It gave Parliament absolute power over the Army and the Navy, over the courts of law, and the succession to the crown, thereby making it supreme in the State.

Produce and Provisions.

PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS.
 (From Saturday's Trade Review.)
COFFISH.—The shipments of cod-fish to foreign markets this week were the smallest for the year, and amounted to only 4,551 quintals from St. John's in Job Bros. schooner Neatherton for Alicante, and 20 quintals from Job Bros. & Co. in the S. S. Sabie I. to Halifax. Following were the shippers: By the Neatherton, Messrs. A. H. Murray & Co., 852 quintals; Baine Johnstone & Co., 560 quintals; Harvey & Co., 382 quintals; James Baird, Ltd., 200 quintals; Monroe Export Co., 516 quintals; F. G. House, 380 quintals; Job Bros. & Co., 1,781 quintals. The S.S. Rosalind's outward cargo is, not included as the figures were not returned to the Board of Trade.

COD OIL AND CODLIVER OIL.—The shipments of Common Cod Oil this week amounted to 4,665 gallons to Boston by the S.S. Lady of Gaspe. There was no refined Medicinal Oil sent out. The demand for both kinds is still very dull, but there is every confidence that there will be an improvement as the spring advances. Values in both qualities have now fallen down to pre-war rates, and as holders purchased most of their oil when the market was up to its highest prices locally last fall, they are not disposed to sell till they see a prospect of coming out of the business without losing too much money.

FLOUR.—The wheat markets have strengthened up again, advancing this week five cents per bushel from the lowest point. It is reported that the United States have already exported all the wheat they can spare. Canada has sent out about one hundred million bushels and has available fifty millions. Export demand continues brisk. In the local market leading brands are offered for $14 wholesale, and under grades $13.50 to $13.75. The imports since New Year were 5,457 barrels, as compared with 14,158 barrels this time last year.

PORK.—The S.S. Rosalind brought in 289 barrels from New York this week, putting the imports since New Year up to 1333 barrels, as against 3961 barrels last year. The market shows considerable weakness, according to latest American reports. This condition is said to be due to a curtailment of exports to Europe as well as a slowing down of U.S. domestic demand. The stock of hogs and hog products is said to show a considerable shortage compared with last year. The imports since New Year were 5,457 barrels, as compared with 14,158 barrels this time last year.

BEAN.—The bean market is quiet. There is no change in quotations since our last issue. The decline in rate of premium on American Exchange during the last two weeks has had the effect of reducing the price of beans to $2.00 per barrel, otherwise the price at points of shipment is unchanged. PAINT INSURANCE IS WHAT YOU NEED

EVERY wise property owner insures his buildings against possible damage by fire.

And yet we find many a man failing to insure his building against the certain deterioration of unprotected wood or iron, exposed to the constant wear and tear of the weather. Keeping your buildings regularly painted is insurance against deterioration. Good paint protects and beautifies the surface to which it is applied—it keeps wood from cracking and checking—it keeps iron and steel surfaces from rusting. the style in 1782 it was proclaimed on Valentine's Day. About noon the Mayor and Corporation, preceded by a band of music, and attended by twelve decrepit old men, called from their dress "Red Coats," walked in procession to proclaim the mart, concluding by opening the antiquated and almost obsolete court of "Pre powder." Like many old customs of this nature, it was, by the middle of the last century, no longer attended for the purpose it was first granted, business having yielded to pleasure and amusement. Formerly Lynn Mart and Stourbridge (Stirbitch) Fair were the only places where small traders in this and the adjoining counties supplied themselves with their respective goods, but no transactions of this nature now take place. The thrifty housewives, for twenty miles round, used to lay in their annual store of soap, starch, etc., and the booth of Green, from Limehouse, was for three generations the emporium of such articles. A great deal of money was spent, and immense numbers of persons assembled from all parts. Neither was there any lack of incitements to unburden the pockets; animals of every description, tame and wild, giants and dwarfs, tumblers, jugglers, peep-shows, etc., all united their attractive

"Oh, please don't do that, sir!" whimpered Georgie. "You'll find all the money we've got in an old waistcoat in the kitchen."
 Two minutes later a bruised and battered wreck was heaved through the front door of little Georgie's dwelling-place, and sat for a while in the gutter and blinked.

U. S. TAX ON FISH.

Tariff wars rarely end in beneficial results for the countries engaging in them. Invariably it is the consumer who gets squeezed, because in the end it is the consumer who pays. United States fish firms are urging that an additional duty be placed on fish imported into the Union, believing that thereby the fishing industry will be strengthened. Eastern and Western United States fish firms have decided that it is necessary for protection that a higher tariff be made on foreign fish, and to that end have sent a deputation to consult with the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives, the members of which are considering a revision of the whole American tariff. New York, Boston, Gloucester and other Atlantic fish ports favor the extra taxing of imported fish, and California fish canners as well as Alaskan producers and Seattle salmon and halibut catchers, with other big fish concerns on the Great Lakes ports all agree that it is well to protect home fish industries by building a tariff wall in order to keep out foreign competitors. Americans do not take kindly to competition in the produce of the seas. Those who engage in the catching and purveying of fish do not want any interference with their trade by outsiders, and deeming that they are able to supply the whole demand they now ask for the imposition of a tariff barrier, against Canada, and Newfoundland primarily.

American fishing interests claim that foreign fish can be caught, brought into Atlantic ports and sold at a lower price than that for which American fishermen can sell. As an illustration of this, American fish journals make use of a solitary instance, which has been sent broadcast to every fish centre in the States. The facts are these: Early in January of this year the steam trawler "Sir John French," owned by Halifax parties, arrived at a Boston fish pier with a trip of haddock and cod, which was sold in competition with American caught fish and met with ready purchase, though the prices paid are not given. It is urged, however, that the wages paid the crew of the British trawler is much less than that demanded and received by American crews. Hence it is argued that to permit foreign competition on an even basis would be to put the American fishing fleet out of business. Action was immediately taken by the American Fish Association of New England to represent this to Washington, and to instruct a deputation to proffer a request for the imposition of a duty, in the interests of their business. The agitation is still keeping up and it is not beyond belief that the Ways and Means Committee will accede to the request made them. So far as Newfoundland may be affected by the placing of a duty on fish going into United States markets, we have only to sit tight and watch developments. The game is in our own hands, or at least we hold a number of trump cards, which can be played to advantage when United States makes the lead. It will be time enough to act when it is known precisely just what Congress will do, but it is as well to serve notice on our American friends that it is a queer rule that won't work both ways.

Opposition Candidates.

The political campaign in the Harbor Main bye-election contest will be opened in earnest today, with both parties in the field. The nominees of the Squires-Coaker Government, with Doctor Campbell, Minister of Agriculture and Mines, as tutor and stage manager, have already had several days of work, and this morning the Opposition candidates left by train to begin their canvass of the district. In his selection the leader of the latter party has made no mistake, for with Dr. W. E. Jones and Captain John Lewis as standard bearers of the Liberal-Labor Progressive Party, the electors of Harbor Main will have men with whom they are so well acquainted that they need no introduction to any portion of the district. Dr. Jones was returned at the head of the poll in the general election of 1919, but as is well known, was unseated on a technical point of law, but has not lost any of his popularity on that account. Captain Lewis, of Harbor Main, one of the foremost fishermen. He represented that district from 1904 to 1908, during which period no man could have done more for the interests of his constituents. His acceptance of nomination as the colleague of Dr. Jones will be hailed with pleasure by his many friends, who will rally around him, adding their strength to that of the other supporters of the Opposition. Mr. Main has nothing more to expect from the Squires-Coaker candidates, than illusory promises. The voters have experienced some of the handicaps imposed upon them by the domination of Mr. Coaker, and they do not desire a continuation. Hence on March 12th they will roll up such a majority for Jones and Lewis as will make the Coaker candidates' vote look like a five cent piece on a punchen head.

At Cochrane St. Church.

Dr. Bond Preaches Powerful Sermon.
The service at Cochrane Street Methodist Church last night will long be remembered by those whose privilege it was to be present. The singing was good. The pastor of the Church, Rev. Dr. Bond, was at his best, vigorous, earnest, clear and distinct. A powerful and what must be a most searching appeal was made to the congregation particularly the young men of the church from the text "Run, speak to this young man." The A. A. A. brief synopsis of the sermon may be summarized thus:—"When two ships pass at sea it is customary to exchange the signal 'Where are you bound.' Each ship is sailing for a definite port. The response to the above inquiry has often shown many a good captain that his compass was wrong and that he was off his course. The ship in order to reach her destination safely must have a true compass and a qualified seaman for a captain. Young man, said Dr. Bond, where are you bound? What is your chart? What is your captain? Reference was made to a voyage across the ocean of the pastor accompanied by his father over 50 years ago. In the Allan Line, Captain Brown, this captain because of his expert knowledge of the sea, and his capable handling of his ship, became the commander of the Allan Fleet, but when in command of the crack ship of that line, crashed her into the rocks near Yarmouth and she became a total wreck. Only a few years ago Captain Smith, the Admiral of the famous White Star Line, whose splendid record of seamanship justly entitled him to his proud title of Captain, the vessel which he occupied, set sail from the port of Liverpool in the ill-fated S.S. Titanic, with a most distinguished list of passengers. This ship combined all that the ingenuity of man could suggest for comfort and safety; was considered an unshakable ship, yet on her voyage crashed into an iceberg, and with terrible loss of life sank within a few minutes of the accident and took her place at the bottom of the ocean in the cemetery of dead ships. It matters not how competent the commander, how expert his knowledge, our lives are not safe in their keeping.
There is only one chart, the Word of God, only one Captain, Jesus Christ, who holds the wind and the waves in the hollow of His Hand, that we can trust to navigate us safely and securely through the billows of life's turbulent sea.
Without that chart, and without that Captain, man is but a derelict, drifting helplessly at the mercy of every wind and wave on the surface of life's ocean—a menace to the home, to society, to the church and the general well-being of mankind.
Dr. Bond referred to a young man, who in after life, became the most famous Admiral of the U. S. Navy. During his young manhood days he prided himself on being able to swear like a trooper, smoke like a furnace, and take as stiff a glass of rum as one who had doubled Cape Horn.
On a voyage with his father the Admiral-to-be states that he was called into his father's room and asked what his aim in life was; the young man replied, he intended to command a ship and walk the quarter deck as his father was doing, to which his father replied, that unless he entirely changed his life he would continue before the mast a drunken seaman, kicked and cuffed about and finally die of fever in some foreign hospital.
From that hour, a resolution was made and kept that by the grace of God he never again would swear, never again would he smoke or drink a glass of intoxicants, and he remained as one of America's most famous naval commanders, Admiral Farragut.
Dr. Bond said that the world's extremity was God's opportunity, and that already from the heap of ruins, from the chaos, confusion and misery of the present age, there was an eminent evidence of a revival of truth and honor and integrity of purpose, a deep spiritual awakening of man's highest powers and a resolve to get back to first principles. For the period of reconstruction and reorganization that faces the world, the essential qualification of every man and every woman is to possess God, to have Him captain our lives and shape our courses, and from the present days of stress and strain and uncertainty, suspicion and intrigue there will be evolved an era of genuine peace, of justice and equality, contentment and Christian living.
The Pastor closed with the tremendous question, "Is He yours?" after which the congregation joined in singing that most inspiring hymn "Fight the good fight with all thy might; Christ is thy strength and Christ thy light; Lay hold on life and it shall be Thy joy and crown eternally."
Dr. Bond announced his subject for next Sunday night as "Methodism, what it is and what it isn't."—Com.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

OPPOSITION TO DAVID.
LONDON, Feb. 13.
King George, accompanied by Queen Mary, the Prince of Wales and the Duke of York, at noon, Tuesday, will upon the session of Parliament, which promises to be a test of the continuance of the Coalition Government of Prime Minister Lloyd George. Constructive measures, which head the programme, include new budget schemes of protection to safeguard the key of industries against foreign competition and to prevent the dumping of foreign goods, and also for remedying exchange conditions: a plan for relief of the unemployed, probably by public works, new drink licensing regulations, creation of Irish Parliaments under the Home Rule Bill, and reform of the House of Lords. Viscount Grey, in the Lords, and Lord Robert Cecil, in the Commons, will be spokesmen and supporters of the League of Nations. They will fight the Irish and financial positions of Lloyd George, and a strong group of younger members are expected to rally behind them.

GOVERNMENT AID.

SYDNEY, Feb. 13.
According to word received here to-night, the Canadian National Railway is to take a moderate amount of coal from the Inverness collieries at an advanced price, so that the mines may be re-opened and work given miners who have been idle for about a week past. On Friday one week's deferred pay was given the men.

AN IMPORTANT INVITATION.

BOMBAY, Feb. 13.
In response to an invitation, former Premier Aga Khan is en route to attend the forthcoming conference on Near Eastern questions in London. The invitation has created a favorable impression here, and is regarded as an indication that Moslem claims are receiving official recognition. Aga Khan, above all others, has the confidence of India Moslems, and it is considered his representation in London may pave the way to peace.

WEEK-END FATALITIES.

BELFAST, Feb. 13.
A number of deaths occurred in Ireland over the week-end. General headquarters reported to-day that a military lorry was bombed last night by a hand from behind a wall near Bootstown, in South Dublin. The fire was returned, the report said, and some of the attackers were seen to fall. Military suffered no casualties. A Dublin tragedy, evidently connected with the foregoing, occurred when James Brophy, who, according to his relatives, had not quit his house for some time, was shot dead in bed, and John Healy, was also shot dead; his body was found in the street this morning.

AROUSING BRITISH SENTIMENT.

LONDON, Feb. 13.
The Labor Party and the Peace and Unification Council, for the past few weeks, have been conducting a great campaign through public meetings throughout the country, intended to arouse the British people to a denunciation of the Government's policy of repression in Ireland. Leaders of the Labor Party, including Lord Buckmaster, presiding at such meetings at Golders Green, yesterday, declared that conditions in Ireland were calculated to corrode the very foundation of the British Empire. "We do not claim to be imitating Gladstones," said the Prime Minister sarcastically, "but we would not be surprised if Lord Buckmaster, 'but if we were, we would light such a flame in England as would not be quenched until it had consumed this Government and the evil it has done.'"

Cecil Denounces Government.

LONDON, Feb. 13.
Lord Hugh Cecil, M.P., for Oxford University, in a speech at the meeting of the London Times on Ireland, declared that the Government's record is "one of bloodstained inefficiency," and Sir Hamar Greenwood's advent as Chief Secretary, "if it imparted vigor to the administration, also blenched it with horrors." He charges the Irish constabulary with infamous crimes, and asserts that the Government would have been far wiser to have kept the administration in the hands of civil magistrates.

Doing Good Work.

DELHI, Feb. 13.
A great impression was produced by the Duke of Connaught's speech at the inauguration of Wednesday of the Council of State and Indian Executive Assembly, in which he made an earnest appeal for the cessation of the present war, and the obliteration of bitterness and the obliteration of mistakes made in the past.

Still in America.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.
No order has been issued for the deportation of Lord Mayor O'Callaghan of Cork, and he will not be deported, Michael Doyle, one of his counsel, said last night after a conference yesterday with Secretary of Labor Wilson.

"Prince of Pilsen."

FINAL PERFORMANCE A GREAT SUCCESS.

Saturday night's performance of that highly successful comic opera "The Prince of Pilsen" brought to a close one of the most delightful musical productions that it has ever been the lot of local play-goers to see. From the first performance to the last capacity audiences greeted the players, nor were they backward in showing their appreciation of the excellent music and acting. The "Prince of Pilsen" was, however, particularly unfortunate in the respect that atmospheric conditions on several occasions during the run of the opera were of such a nature as to cause the cancellation of several performances. Saturday afternoon was no exception to this and a great many people were disappointed at losing their last opportunity to see the production. The last performance on Saturday night was by far the best of all, the performers seeming to do their very utmost to make the finale a particularly brilliant one. It is rarely that a St. John's audience has had the opportunity to see a presentation of such a spectacular nature and that it was appreciated, there can be not the slightest doubt. To all connected with the staging of the production, too much praise cannot be given. The energetic work of Professors King and Hutton, who were responsible for the perfection of the orchestral, vocal and dramatic numbers, cannot be sufficiently praised, but the ultimate success of the production is tribute enough to their excellent work. To Dr. Hewlett, who not only undertook the leading role, but who was also responsible for organizing the whole affair, great credit is also due, whilst everyone who took part deserves to be complimented on his or her share in the great success attained. The work of Mrs. Norman Alderice, who was responsible for the decorations, Mr. Hugh Anderson, who not only made a most capable stage manager, but also wrote many of the local parodies, Mr. Gerald Foley, master of "pops," the dancing of Mrs. Cleary's clever pupils, and the scenic designs of Mr. Dan Carroll, all added tremendously to the success of the show and cannot be overpraised. The orchestra was a revelation to competent critics, and the overtures and accompaniments were feats of music, as are all to seldom heard locally. The Knights of Columbus, their Grand Knight, Mr. C. J. Cahill, the Opera Committee, Messrs. C. J. Cahill, C. J. Ellis, J. A. McKenzie, J. F. Mahon and R. J. Power, through whom the production of "The Prince of Pilsen" was arranged, and last but not least, the generous hospitality of Mr. Peter O'Mara to the performers during the stormy weather, all are deserving of "special mention" in connection with one of the most enjoyable events in which it has been the good fortune of citizens to participate for many years. The "men behind the make-up" Messrs. W. J. Higgins, M.H.A., J. Baxter and P. Brown, did their work thoroughly and effectually, as was only to be expected from such capable and efficient beauty doctors. The box-office officials, ushers and attendants were also most assiduous in their duties and under their supervision everything ran smoothly and comfortably.

Hundreds at Quidi Vidi.

"Elizabeth Fearn" the Attraction.

Yesterday afternoon some hundreds of citizens wended their way to Quidi Vidi Gut to view the stranded schooner "Elizabeth Fearn," as she lay keel awash and her starboard bilge fast on an underwater outcropping of the nearby hills. The vessel had not broken up despite the high wind blowing since she went ashore at 5 o'clock Saturday morning. The owners, Messrs. W. J. Higgins, M.H.A., J. Baxter and P. Brown, did their work thoroughly and effectually, as was only to be expected from such capable and efficient beauty doctors. The box-office officials, ushers and attendants were also most assiduous in their duties and under their supervision everything ran smoothly and comfortably.

Child Nearly Decapitated

Dreadful Tragedy at St. Joseph's. A passenger who arrived here by the Sargona on Friday last reports a terrible tragedy as having occurred at St. Joseph's, Placentia Bay, on Feb. 1st. It appears that a young man named Clarke was cutting firewood near his home, when a little girl named Fardy, only 4 years of age, ran out to pick up some split from under the chopping block. Clarke, not seeing the girl, raised the axe and brought it down on her head, almost severing it from the body and killing her instantly. A gloom has been cast over the whole settlement by this tragic occurrence, and to the grief-stricken parents, the Telegram extends its sympathy.

Standard of Gold.

Dear Sir.—In your issue of Friday appears the following:—"Real Meaning of $4.86%." Much interest has been centered in Sterling of late, but few people know the real meaning of $4.86% as the value of a Sovereign. In defining coinage of to-day the Financial Post says that a Sovereign means 123.27447 grains Troy of English Standard or Crown gold, that is gold 22 Carats, 11-13 fine. Thus a Sovereign contains 113.0016 grains of pure gold. One dollar (Canada or United States alike), contains 25.8 grains Troy of United Standard gold 9-10 fine, hence one dollar contains 23.22 grains of pure gold and a Sovereign is equal to $4.86% as much gold in a Sovereign as in a gold dollar, that is all this means.

The above simply means the Minting of the gold ingots to assimilate with the Standard gold of the United States and Canada—or vice versa—but has nothing whatever to do with why a Sovereign was fixed as the New York Standard of Exchange, viz $4.86 2-3.

Import Business—Export Business—Sterling Exchange.

I am not going into the question of either imports or exports of the country, but simply to point out, that in buying Sterling exchange from any of our Banks—or the payment of a draft, for £100 Stg. at Par $4.52 2-3, equalling $452.23, this draft is converted into dollars and cents, the rate of exchange varying from time to time. But the "par," or exact equivalent of the Sovereign or pound Sterling is $4.86%, the expression among Bankers being "9 1/2." This term "9 1/2" is a constant puzzle to young bank officers very few of whom have given it any study or can figure quickly on it without a conversion table. It requires a great many years of banking experience in the Sterling and Foreign Exchange business to do this. The most expert Canadian bankers can never make a rapid mental calculation on the Canadian par of Exchange, and always have to go back to the New York method based on the more sensible term of $4.86% to the pound Sterling.

The Canadian term arose as follows:—In 1789 the United States Congress fixed the value of the English pound at $4.86 2-3, or $4.8618. Subsequent increase in the fineness of the Sovereign, increased the value to $4.86% ($4.8668) or a premium of about 9 1/2 per cent. on the old par of Exchange, $4.44. In arriving at the equivalent in English money the Canadian banks have to convert their own par of exchange 9 1/2 into American par $4.86%, when one operation only would be necessary if we quoted on the American basis. Our Canadian banks all quote on American Exchange. An effort will be made during the present year, among the American and Canadian financiers, to bring the gold Standard of $5 to be on a par with the English Sovereign, to be fixed at $5.00.

Dangerous Walking.

The streets are in a terrible condition to-day, the pavements for the most part being covered with ice and making it very dangerous for the pedestrians. Several people fell to-day, some of them being pretty badly shaken, and it is to be hoped that the Civic Commission will be able to get the ice removed during the day before any serious accidents occur.

Hockey Notes.

The Faldians and St. Bon's clash to-night in what will probably be a most exciting game.

There will be a couple of changes in St. Bon's line-up, Gibbs replacing "Doc" Power in goal, and Joe Murphy playing centre instead of Eagan, who is not quite fit yet.

The line-up will be:—

ST. BON'S	FALDIANS
A. Gibbs	goal
Higgins	Nix Hunt
Muir	defence
Murphy	H. Rendell
Cahill	centre
Callahan	Tait
Sparis—St. Bon's—J. Gibbs, Power, Brien.	right

The St. Bon's and Mehodist College teams meet to-morrow morning in the first game of the second round of the Inter-Collegiate series. A win for the former will give them the championship.

The Polite President.

SOME STRONG LANGUAGE.
The latest messages received from Mr. Coaker indicate that the gentleman is very wrathful, and in a message covering some 10 sheets of Anglo forms received yesterday the word "dam" occurs frequently. The Board of Trade for not acting on his instructions are practically annihilated while the now a citizen president of the Advisory Board also had an epithet hurled at him. The latter it appears cabled the ten Oporto to merchants in reference to a message from them delivered during the past week and its tone did not evidently suit Mr. Coaker. The reply received from the merchants it appears has put Mr. Coaker's scheme in the air. They say that if Mr. Smith, the Government Commissioner, insists on seeing their books that they will throw over all fish now held on consignment in their stores. Mr. Coaker, on the other hand, insists that all fish for Oporto, either out right sales or consignments, must be controlled by him. A disagreement between Hawes' firm and Coaker is also reported, one of the former's agents incurring Mr. Coaker's displeasure. The Board of Trade has called a meeting of fish exporters for to-morrow morning to consider the latest cables which are considered serious. It may be added that Mr. Coaker has threatened to jump the "business" if the Trade does not fall in line with his suggestions, to-morrow.

No Show at Kelligrews.

The special train which left here on Saturday evening with Dr. Campbell, stopped for a few minutes at Kelligrews. Here the Doctor was met by a well-known resident by appointment. The latter advised the Doctor that it was better to proceed further as the people at Kelligrews were hostile, and would likely show it in no uncertain manner if they were aware that members of the Coaker-Squires outfit were present. Picks and shovels were taken on board, and the train proceeded to Holyrood.

Fish Carrier Lost.

The Marine and Fisheries Department has received a message from Commissioner Kennedy at Malaga, saying that the schr. Marjorie McGlashan was ashore with her decks under water and probably a total wreck. The wind was high with heavy sea and the cargo was entirely lost. The Marjorie McGlashan was owned by Hickman & Co., and had 4,057 qts. of No. 1 fish on board loaded by Earle & Sons, at Fogo. She arrived at Malaga on Jan. 12th. It was a while beating out of Malaga bound to Genoa, that the shipwreck occurred.

Voodooism in Cuba.

The disappearance of young white girls, who are believed to have been carried off by negroes, and sacrificed in Voodoo rites, has greatly excited public opinion in Cuba, and for the first time since the cessation of Spanish rule, cases of lynching have occurred, writes a correspondent from Havana.

Voodooism has been practiced in Cuba under the name of "Brujeria" ever since the first African negro slaves were imported as laborers on the sugar plantations, about 400 years ago. It persists wherever any remnant of these people is found.

Brujeria is based on the belief in the power of certain idols to effect cures for physical and mental ailments and to grant requests concerning love affairs and cures etc., the believer having to make certain sacrifices. It is noteworthy that in Cuba, the negro utilizes images of Roman Catholic saints and assigns to them the powers supposed to belong to their idols. Where visits have been found somewhat resembling altars, the images of the saints being dressed in special colors corresponding to the idols they are supposed to represent, and around are fruits and vegetables, calabashes, strings of colored beads, and the ever present tom-tom, with out which the seances are never held.

Carried on Fetish Worship.

To comply with the law many colored societies have been formed, such as institutions for mutual succor, instruction, and recreation, and under this cover negroes in many cases have carried on their fetish worship. In modern times the "Brujos" apparently satisfied the demands of their deities by the sacrifice of animals, either white or black fowls, goats, or cats, etc., although cases had been known where they had taken away the bodies from cemeteries.

But about 11 years ago cases were registered where it was demonstrated that the Brujos were trying to obtain young white children for their sacrifices. Since then a number of young white children have disappeared and it is the general belief that these children have been murdered with the object of taking their blood and entrails for the Brujos' witch doctors, these being considered strong fetishes for the cure of ailments.

Though it has been difficult to prove the charges against any individual—the sacrifices being carried out in remote regions—several negroes have been convicted and have received heavy sentences.

In several cases no trace has been obtained of very young girls who have disappeared from their homes, but where the bodies have been discovered it has usually been found that the viscera have been removed.

Public Opinion Excited.

These outrages growing in number greatly excited public opinion, and in June of this year the first case of lynching occurred, the place being the Guanabacoa suburb of Havana. In this case a young white girl had been sent on an errand, but failed to return. She was eventually found in the company of a negro. By this time the indignation of the crowd had been aroused, one end of a rope was tied round the neck of the negro, and the other end to the tail of a bareback mule, and the mule flogged to a gallop.

Soon after this occurrence, another case again excited public indignation. At Matanzas a white girl disappeared, and after some time information was obtained that the body had been buried in the cemetery, under cover of night, and upon this being exhumed it was found to lack the brain, heart, tongue and blood.

Five negroes known to be Brujos were detained on suspicion of having been implicated in this sacrifice. The crowd attacked the prison, but were beaten off by soldiers. However, the negroes kept their lives. It appears that they tried to escape and were shot down and killed by the soldiers. Since those happenings other negroes have been arrested on charges of a similar character, and raids have Strange Illness Affecting Young Women.

Another remarkable manifestation of Brujeria is now engaging attention. Inquiries being made as to the strange illness affecting some young white women at San Cristobal, Pinar del Rio Province. It seems that a white man, godson of a negro "doctor," married a young white girl, and three days after the wedding took her to visit this negro.

N. F. Schooner for Transatlantic Race.

A recent issue of the Halifax Herald says:—
"It is reported that Newfoundland has under consideration the entering of a schooner in the King of the Belgians transatlantic race, which will be run off next summer and which will be open to sailing craft of all nations. At Belleoram, Newfoundland, there are some smart schooners, and one craft in particular, owned by Harvey & Co. of St. John's is looked upon as a possible contestant in the race. The craft referred to was to have entered in the Halifax schooner race last fall, but did not sail because the proper arrangements could not be made in time."

Just Folks

With a twinkle in his eye He'd come gayly walkin' by An' he'd whistle to the children An' he'd beckon 'em to come. Then he'd chuckle low an' say, 'No, You mustn't go to-day.' He'd beg to let him have 'em In a pack about his feet.

Oh, he spoiled 'em, one an' all. There was not a youngster small But was over-fod on candy An' was stuffed with lollypops. An' I think his greatest joy Was to get some girl or boy An' bring 'em to their parents All besmeared by chocolate drops.

Now the children's hearts are sore For he comes to them no more, And no more to them he whistles And no more for them he stops; But in Paradise, I think, With his chuckle and his wink He is leading little angels To the heavenly candy shops.

THE HAPPY PAST.

My auto didn't cut out vice, when New Year's Day invited vows, and now, instead of running nice, it's balky as the law allows. Two cylinders a re pumping oil, and when up heavy grades I climb, it's a radiator starts to boil, and oh, I have the dingiest time! I sometimes think, when steeped in woe, in grief that seems to have no end, of happy days of long ago, when Dobbin was my faithful friend. Year after year he plucked along, contented with his hay and oats, and seldom did his works go wrong, as go the works of modern boats. He had all kinds of pep and power, from blowouts, punctures, he was free; he made six past-asangs an hour, and that was fast enough for me. He didn't freeze up overnight, when he was in his stable stalled; no punk mechanics found delight in seeing he was overhauled. No carbon in his system formed, his carburetor didn't cough, he didn't back till he was warned, when in the morn I drove him off. And in those happy bygone times I had some kopecks in my duds; I always had the needful dimes to buy some sausage or some suds. But now I'm always in the hole, the motor car has wrecked my life, the stern mechanic gets my roll, and buys more 'diamonds' or his wife.
