LADY LAURA'S RELEASE

THE STORY OF A SPOILED BEAUTY.

CHAPTER VII.

"You are tired, mamma," she said. "Let me ring for Newsham. Oh, mamma," she cried suddenly, "I hope it is true! I do hope Captain Wynyard will marry Miss Rane; then he will not come here so often, and I shall have my darling mother all to myself again. I have been jealous of him ever since he kissed your hand. I hope he will marry her, for I am sure he loves her, and she returns his love. Good-night, mamma. I will send Newsham to you."

But Lady Rooden sat long after her daughter had left her, the words she had spoken ranking in her heart. "I hope he will marry her," was the wish she had expressed. "If he does," thought her ladyship, "the remainder of my life will be blighted."

When Doris Newsham, the maid, entered the room, she was dismissed almost immediately. Lady Rooden wanted to be alone, to have time to think. She had been so sure that Captain Wynyard loved her and would ask her to be his wife that not one doubt had assailed her. It was merely a matter of time, she had believed, and she attributed his not pressing her to the fact that he did

ITCHY PIMPLES ALL OVER FACE

And Shoulders. Burned Badly. Cuticura Heals.

"My trouble started with pimples breaking out all over my face and shoulders. The pimples were large and red and featured, and itched and burned so badly that I could not sleep. They were very sore and my clothing aggravated them."

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample which helped me. I purchased more, and after using four boxes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was healed." (Signed) William C. Brown, 29 Parkside St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Use Cuticura for all skin purposes. Beware of cheap imitations. Cuticura Soap should be used without soap.

comfort and consolation in the thought.

When Lady Rooden rose the next morning, she pondered what she should say to Captain Wynyard. She was determined to know the truth, and, if he loved Miss Rane, she would—

But her thoughts never went beyond that. All happiness in life would end if that were the case.

It was noon when the ex-captain called: it was an early visit; but he wanted to persuade Lady Rooden to go to a flower show. He made many apologies for his early call, but he could not help seeing that it was welcome enough to Lady Rooden.

She was looking her best, in an exquisite morning-dress of cream-colored silk and white lace, a knot of cream colored roses at her throat, and another in the gilt belt that was her sole ornament. Beautiful, stately, in the very prime of her loveliness, love shining in her blue eyes and softening her whole face and manner, her ladyship looked like a woman whom any man might be proud to woo and win.

So Vance Wynyard thought when his eyes rested on her. The pity of it was that he did not love her, that he never would love her, because his whole heart was given to another. With all her natural charms, in spite of the love that shone in her eyes, it was only for her money he cared, it was only for her money that he wished to marry her.

No one would have guessed this who saw his handsome face, so full of admiration or heard his pleasant words, so full of tenderness. As the two stood together in the drawing-room, with its pale blinds and rare flowers, they made a handsome pair.

"I heard some news about you last evening," said Lady Rooden, with a bright smile—a loveless smile she tried to make it, but he was clever enough to see beneath the surface. "News of me?" he questioned. "I should hardly have thought there was any news left to be told. I should think more stories have been told of me than of any other man in London."

"The cost of popularity!" she remarked. "The news I heard surprised me just a little."

"What was it, Lady Rooden?" he asked, calmly. He was prepared to hear anything, and was much relieved when she answered:

"I heard last evening for the first time of your great admiration for a beautiful woman named Gladys Rane. Is it true?"

Now was his opportunity—here was the chance he had waited for. He must not lose it.

"It's perfectly true," he replied, "that I both admire and love the most beautiful woman in the world; but the lady I love is not named Gladys Rane."

Lady Rooden's face flushed, and her eyes dropped before his glance. She knew now what was coming; the very desire of her heart was attained.

"The lady I love is far above me. She is lovely beyond compare; she has every gift and every grace. In my eyes she is a queen, and I am her most loyal knight. The name of this most sweet and gracious lady is Laura Rooden."

Her ladyship dropped her face upon her hands; the victory was won.

BEFORE MY BABY CAME

I Was Greatly Benefited by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sydenham, Ont.—"I took your medicine before my baby was born, and it was a great help to me as I was very poorly until I had started to take it. I just felt as though I was tired out all the time and would have weak, faint spells. My nerves would bother me until I could get little rest, night or day. I was told by a friend to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I only took a few bottles and it helped me wonderfully. I would recommend it to any woman. I am doing what I can to recommend this good medicine. I will lend that little book you sent me to any one I can help. You can with the greatest of pleasure use my name in regard to the Vegetable Compound if it will help others take it."—Mrs. HARVEY MILLIGAN, Sydenham, Ont.

It is remarkable how many cases have been reported similar to this one. Many women are poorly at such times and get into a weakened, run-down condition, when it is essential to the mother, as well as the child, that her strength be kept up.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent tonic for the mother as well as the child. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and does not contain any harmful drugs. It may be taken in safety by the nursing mother.

Oldest in The World.

By AN ANTIQUARY.

The oldest manufactured articles in the world are probably some chipped stones found on the Kentish Weald.

Far back, countless centuries before any attempt at civilisation, men were chipping stones into tools and weapons.

Knives, axes, hammers, scrapers, spear-heads, arrowheads, even awls for piercing skins, and roughly notched saws for cutting bone, were made of flint or chert or obsidian—any stone that would chip to a cutting edge hard enough to stand wear.

Some are clumsy things, some beautiful in design and finish, and their varying workmanship indicates far greater differences between the men who made them than exists between an Egyptian King of 1400 B.C. and an English citizen of A.D. 1923.

Solutrean "laurel leaves," or "shouldered points"—spearheads from Solutre, in France—are exquisite things, graceful in shape and finished in a manner which would be a credit to any modern craftwork. Yet they were probably made over 20,000 years ago.

Earlier still, Mousterian implements from the cave of Le Moustier, varying in shape and size, all have the businesslike way cutting edge distinctive of their period. Centuries before these the ruler Chellean and Streppan implements were made, their unworked butts still showing the natural surface of the stone. And away back beyond them, thousands and thousands of years ago, in the very dawn of human life, were made the "Eoliths" of the Kentish Weald.

First found by the late Mr. Harrison, a chemist, of Ightham, for many years they caused fierce disputes in antiquarian circles, one party agreeing with Mr. Harrison that they were artificial and another insisting that they had been chipped by natural forces such as landslips or streams in flood.

They are mere shapeless lumps of flint, but they show here and there some clumsy attempts at chipping to an edge. These chippings are generally slight and so difficult to recognise that there is some excuse for believing them accidental.

But it is a curious and significant thing that these Eoliths all "come to the hand," as a workman would say. When one is held in the hand so that it fits most comfortably to the grasp of palm and fingers the chipped edge will be found in the right place for striking a blow with the maximum of effect, and this is hardly likely to be accidental.

Whether their makers were men more or less like ourselves, or some ape-like, more distant relation of the human race, none can say; but beyond all doubt these are the oldest manufactured articles in the world.

Brown Eggs Best.

One of the perennial subjects of discussion between producers as well as consumers of eggs was the matter of choice between white and brown eggs. In some markets, New York, for instance, the brown egg is greatly in disrepute and the white egg brings a premium price. In Boston, however, brown is the prevailing color in eggs.

Lately the United States Government has investigated and has settled the question by a scientific analysis. They have found that the brown shell is firmer and less porous and, therefore, the egg inside of the brown shell is in a much more sanitary package than that contained in the white shell. In other words, the egg of the Plymouth Rock is less susceptible to contamination than that of the White Leghorn.

Toasted sandwiches are delicious and are especially nice for cold weather luncheons. Many variations are possible, such as toasted bread with bacon, or a toasted roast beef sandwich.

Steel Workers Walk Out and Miners May Follow—Allied Warships Must Leave Turkish Harbors—English Statesmen Have Doubts of French Success.

STRIKE AT SYDNEY.

SYDNEY, Feb. 13. The spark that fired the train was the discharge of a spare supervisor in the steel mill. The Company claimed the man defied official authority and the discharge was made to enforce shop discipline. The Steel Workers claim the man was fired primarily because he was an active Union man. There the matter stands for the present with the Company mainly concerned with looking after the blast furnaces and other property, while the strikers and sympathizers are working hard to extend the walkout to all parts of the plant. So far there is no talk looking to negotiations for settlement. In some circles it is believed the affair will blow out a flare-up of short duration, while others fear that the venturesome spirits will demand that advantage be taken of the situation to press the demands for an eight hour day and fifteen per cent. wage increase; the two objects toward which the Steel Workers have been moving along the lines for some time.

The men simply walked out.

PRECIPITATED BY PERSECUTION.

SYDNEY, Feb. 13. "This strike has been precipitated by an incident which is only one instance of the persistent persecution of Union Workers in the Employ of the British Empire Steel Corporation," Forman Waye, M.P.P., official spokesman for the striking Steel Workers, declared in a statement to the Canadian Press to-night. "This fight is to establish the right of any man not only to join a Union and take active part in its work, but also the right to pursue those activities without being persecuted, singled out for discrimination or placed in fear of his job. This persecution must stop. I am now in conference with the United Mine Workers and unless we get justice I expect to see the whole of District 28 out in support of us." Questioned as to the strength of the Union, Mr. Waye said, "Actually about seventy-five per cent. are enrolled, morally one hundred per cent. are with us."

RUHR DEBATED IN COMMONS.

LONDON, Feb. 13. Although the addresses of Premier Bonar Law and Foreign Secretary Curzon at the opening of Parliament added little to what was generally known concerning Great Britain's policy on the Ruhr question, the British public knew to-day that both statesmen have "no doubts as to the success of the French venture. Bonar Law said frankly he did not see "how the French are going to get what they want." Lord Curzon expressed much the same opinion, pointing out that France and Germany are engaged in what might be termed, insurance tests. It became evident the Government had not decided to withdraw the British troops from the Rhine, but at the same time such withdrawal may not be far distant. "We don't know whether it will be possible for them to remain very long," said Bonar Law. The speakers on both sides dealt temporarily with France. Ramsay MacDonald, Labor Leader, admitted it would be inadvisable to oppose France directly, while urging the need of having the Ruhr controversy referred to the League of Nations. With regard to the Lausanne Conference, Mr. MacDonald told the Government it would eventually be obliged to recognize the Soviet Government and declared it would have been better at Lausanne had Russia been taken more into account. Premier Law confessed his belief that France in rejecting the British proposals at the London and Paris Conferences, was largely influenced by fear that if reparations were fixed at a smaller amount, as proposed by Great Britain, Germany would be able to pay the whole off in fifteen or twenty years, and would then become as strong and formidable as ever. In this respect, Bonar Law indicated the opinion that all credit should be given for French anxiety on the score of her security.

The English Election.

P. T. MCGRATH'S ADDRESS TO ROTARY CLUB.

The Rotary Club's weekly luncheon on Tuesday last, Sir Patrick McGrath was the speaker. There was a large attendance and the visitors present were Messrs. Faltrey, (Manager of the Royal Bank); L. E. Emerson, F. R. Emerson, H. B. Gillis, (Attorney), and J. R. Erler, (Port Commissioner, Ont.)

ordinary interest, first because of the number and varieties of the parties involved, and second because of the issues on which the election was fought. Most people look at political contests superficially, were interested only until the returns are announced, and then ceased to be concerned with the subject with the comments that Smith or Brown, as the case may be, had won and that everything was settled for a few years. The recent English election, he considered, one of exceptional importance, and its results well worth careful study. He first reviewed the causes which led up to the election and briefly sketched the British political developments since 1906. The lecturer then proceeded to deal with the results of the election. The first he pointed out was that the Government was a minority government. It had only 40 per cent. of the electors yet had 342 seats, while its opponents numbered 84 million votes and elected 260 men. Then of the 615 members, 178 or more than one fourth were minority members, that is men, who, while having a majority over their next opponent, did not have a majority of all the votes cast. Mr. Bonar Law, himself, was one of these, he was in a minority of four votes in Central Glasgow, while the other extreme was Mr. Privett, of Plymouth, who was the highest of four candidates, Conservative, Georgian Liberal, Asquith Liberal, and Laborite all of whom polled around 1500 votes so that he represented a constituency with only 26 per cent. of the votes. Of these, 178 were minority members, 30 were Conservatives who slipped in, so to speak, between the Liberals and the Laborites—while the Laborites themselves, who now doubled their membership in growing from 70 to 140, elected 50 members in this way. The Lloyd George party which was cut in half, from 117 in the last House to 60 in this, won probably 20 seats through private arrangements with the Conservatives, whereby these members would not be opposed on condition that they voted with the Conservatives on the more important questions arising in the House. The victims of all this combination of circumstances were the Asquith Liberal or "wee frees" as they are better known. In this election they put up 384 candidates. They had plenty of support in the country, and plenty of funds, but because of the combination of the above factors they carried only 59 seats, but some of their leaders were elected. Mr. Asquith himself in Paisley and Sir John Simeon, the greatest of living English lawyers, in Spen Valley. Proportional representation is advocated as a remedy for this condition of things and the Secretary of the Proportional Representation Society in analyzing the results of the contest gave the following particulars:—In the 546 constituencies contested—57 seats having gone by acclamation of which the Conservatives got 42, the Liberals got 5,375,634 votes, and obtained 297 seats, an average of one seat for every 18,110 votes whereas they would have obtained under Proportional Representation only 203 seats. The Laborites polled 4,232,732 votes and won only 138 seats, or one seat for every 30,872 whereas they should have won 153 seats. The Liberals polled 2,601,142 and polled 53 seats, or one seat for every 49,000 votes, whereas they should have got 207 and the Georgian Liberals polled 1,556,219 votes and got 48 seats, whereas they should have got 60 seats. Independents polled 343,870 votes and got 8 seats or one for every 42,884 votes, while they should have got 13 seats. Including the uncontested seats etc., the House would have been constituted as follows:—

- Conservatives, 256.
 - Laborites, 137.
 - Asquith Liberals, 106.
 - Georgian Liberals, 69.
 - Others, 17.
- From this it will be seen that the Government, instead of having a majority all over the others, would have been in a minority of 103 votes.
- The next point the speaker called attention to was that Bonar Law was elected practically with a blank cheque. No Premier in England history had ever made so few promises, or had ever gone to the country on a platform with few planks, practically he submitted himself to the electors in this way. The country is tired of extravagant promises and wild adventures at home and abroad, what it wants is tranquillity and stability, and this I intend to give it as speedily as possible. It was a policy that certainly appealed to the country and its response was unmistakable. Mr. Lloyd George had

Supreme Court.

KING VS. J. A. BASHA.

The accused, who is represented by Mr. W. J. Higgins, is charged with arson. The hearing opened at 11 a.m. when the following jury was sworn: E. J. Evans, Wm. Antle, H. Gillett, Gladstone Tessler, Arthur O'Neill, Matthew White, John J. Murphy, Chas. Dutoit, John W. Dooling, Thos. Thistle, Ernest Evans, Geo. Hammond.

Mr. Mews, opening the case for the Crown, outlined the events leading up to the arrest of the accused. The defendant's warehouses on Water Street were found on fire on the morning of Sept. 29th, the accused leaving for H. Grace the previous evening. The fireman made an entrance through McNamara's store and found the fire in the centre of one of three rooms on the second floor. In that room was a partition closing off a cupboard. After putting out the fire it was found that the partition had been burned and a hole had been burned through the floor. The firemen were called a second time to this place and found the fire in the same room. An examination by the police disclosed some pieces of burnt rag, which smelled of kerosene oil. At the time of the fire Basha had $11,000 worth of insurance on his goods, and estimates made by fire adjusters placed the damage at from $2,700 to $7,000.

The first witness called was Wm. Noel, Surveyor, who identified plans of Basha's premises made by him and put in evidence.

John C. Parsons, Photographer, identified photos taken by him of the place on the day of the fire. These were put in evidence.

Capt. Patrick Kane of the West End Fire Co. was next called and said he was the first to reach the scene in response to the alarm, and when his men entered the place they were met by dense volumes of smoke, which were discovered to be issuing from over the door of the middle room. This door was broken open and the whole place appeared to be on fire. The partition was burned sufficient to allow egress through the opening, and there was also a large hole in the floor.

Before the firemen left they were perfectly satisfied that the fire was all out, but at 5 a.m. another alarm was sent in, and when they responded they found the whole place ablaze again, having extended to a back room and up the stairway.

Supt. Dunn was called and gave somewhat similar evidence, after which recess was taken.

2 1/4 Ton Saw-Fish.

Mr. Frank Mitchell-Hedges, the explorer and deep-sea fisherman, whose investigation of the marine fauna of Panama Bay has attracted much attention, has caught a saw-fish off Taboguilla Point of unusual size and scientific interest.

The fish towed his small fishing boat for 400 yards, directly towards Mr. Mitchell-Hedges's yacht Carra, passing so close that it was possible to cast a line from the yacht to the boat, and eventually to take up the strain on the capstan in the stern of the yacht.

The catch then swung the yacht round, dragged it off, anchor and all, and towed it about the bay for three hours. During the time it was impossible for anyone to guide or play the fish, but when it was exhausted Mr. Mitchell-Hedges, Dr. H. L. Casey and four men hauled it in close enough for Dr. Casey to fire four explosive bullets into its carcass.

At the island three fishing boats were required, all pulling together, to tow the fish from the Carra's anchorage. The greatest difficulty was experienced in beaching it, and this was accomplished only by floating it in on the tide.

It measured 29 feet in length and 19 feet in girth, and weighed approximately 2 1/4 tons.

Mr. Mitchell-Hedges and Dr. Casey dissected their catch and removed 36 young. These saw-fish proved that the number of teeth on the saw bear no relation to the age of the fish, since each had 18 teeth on one side and 19 on the other, the exact number found in adult fish.

The young saw-fish, says the Star and Herald, were taken to Santo Tomas Hospital. One specimen was presented to the hospital museum, and the remainder will be preserved for Mr. Mitchell-Hedges.

By Way of Comparison.

On Tuesday, the Advocate re-published that famous fishermen's supply list of last fall, showing the sum of duties thereon. This is the same list, with our contemporary, with but little regard for the truth, says utterly confounded the Telegram and News. Our good friend is somewhat similar to the Germans in that he is possessed of a short memory, for it may be remembered that the Telegram on November 7, 1922 reproduced the Advocate's list, taxed under the Squires tariff, and by way of comparison printed a similar list, the duties on which were computed from the Cashin tariff, showing a difference of $46.19 in favor of the latter, equivalent to a charge of 110 per cent. extra extracted from the pockets of the fishermen, by the Squires tariff with its infamous sur tax, super tax and sales tax. The Advocate is not felicitous in publishing this precious list at the present juncture. If by request, as it alleges, then somebody must have been having that journal, a task not fraught with insuperable difficulty. To-day, again by way of comparison, we reprint on this page, for the benefit of the fishermen the list of supplies under discussion, with the rates and totals of duty as calculated from the Squires tariff of 1922, and the Cashin Tariff of 1919, and likewise request of the fishermen to read it carefully, cut it out and hold it for reference to controvert the arguments of the Squires-Coaker spellbinders when they come around with their fairy stories of making reductions in the tariff. Furthermore, let the fishermen note that in the days of the Cashin Tariff the price of fish averaged somewhere about ten dollars per quintal. As the Advocate boasted that "the price of fish is what Coaker makes it," it is also well to remember that under the sky high tariff of Squires, the price of fish averages but five dollars. Therefore the toilers are losing on both ends. Over double duty on outfit and but half value for codfish. Consider then, fishermen whom you have to blame for the present condition of the Colony, an exorbitant tariff and the price of fish far below the rate that will give you a fair return for your labor. Isn't it about time to send the jinxes to their political doom?

Saint Valentine.

St. Valentine, priest of the Christian Church was put to death on February 14th, in the year A.D. 269, by order of the Emperor Claudius II.

St. Valentine had come to the aid of the martyrs during the persecution of Christians by Claudius, and for this, he was thrown into prison by the prefect of Rome, Calpurnius.

So radiantly happy was St. Valentine that he converted his guard, the chief officer, Asterius, to whose blind daughter he restored sight, the age of miracles having not yet passed away. Not only Asterius but his whole family were converted and when Claudius heard of it, he condemned Valentine to be beaten with clubs, and afterwards beheaded on the Flaminian way. The Saint's head is still preserved in the church of Saint Sebastian, Rome, and his body at the church of Saint Praxedis in the same city.

There is also a Spanish Valentine who was a bishop. He suffered martyrdom also, and his body is preserved at Baga in the Asturias and his head at Toro, on the River Duero.

The ancient town of Anney, France, has the preserved remains of a Saint Valentine. The mnemorial of Sociellanos, in Albacete, Spain, has among its sacred relics the remains of still another Saint Valentine. This Saint was martyred at Rome and buried in the cemetery of Saint Calixtus. Pope Urban VIII, wishing to make an offering to the monks at Sociellanos, disinterred these remains and presented them.

At Hamme, in Belgium, yet another Saint Valentine is venerated, his remains being among the city's sacred relics. These were extracted from the catacomb of Saint Laurence on the Flaminian Way, and given by Pope Gregory XV, in 1623, to Count Louis Egmont; part of these relics were translated to Armentieres on the Lys, upon the French frontier.

Another Saint Valentine reposes in the church of the Jesuits at Ghent, Belgium, so that it is evident that the name was a very common one among the martyred saints of antiquity.

In addition to these a Saint Valentine and twenty-four soldiers are said to have been martyred in Africa. And there was a Saint Valentine first Bishop of Ternamo in Umbria, who was seized and beheaded in the year A.D. 373. His crime was that he had healed the crippled son of a citizen of distinction, named Crato. The customs connected with Saint Valentine's day seem to have had their origin in the conventional belief general in England and France, during the middle ages, that on February 14th, i.e. halfway through the second month of the year, the birds began to pair. For this reason the day was looked upon as specially consecrated to lovers and as proper occasion for writing love letters and sending love tokens.

COAST BLOCKED WITH ICE.
S.S. Cabot, which left here on Tuesday for St. Mary's Bay, with a cargo of provisions and a number of passengers, struck very heavy ice rounding Cape Pine, and was obliged to put back to Trepassay where the passengers for St. Mary's were landed. The Cabot was reported to-day off Renewa steaming through slob ice. The Coast reports that the wind is on the land to-day, and there is no chance of making progress through the ice floes. The Cabot will not likely reach port to-day but will probably shelter at one of the harbors en route.

On Tuesday night last an enthusiastic gathering of young people attended the dance organized by the officers of the C.L.B. Cadets. The affair took place in the Grenfell Hall. The floor thanks to the careful attention of the Committee and Mr. Holmes, was in excellent shape for dancing. An orchestra from the C. L. B. Band, under the leadership of Bandmaster Morris, provided lively music throughout the night, which added to the enjoyment. At 10.30 an excellent supper was served, after which dancing was resumed and continued to an early hour yesterday.

Five hundred Dusseldorf telephone girls, yesterday, refused to work in the same room with a lone French girl, and walked out in a body. SEEKING BRITISH AID.

LONDON, Feb. 15.
M. Letrocquer, French Minister of Public Works, and General Payot, Quartermaster General of the French Rahr Army, are in London to-day to explain to Premier Bonar Law the difficulties encountered by occupying authorities in transporting coal from Ruhr to France. It was understood that French officials would ask the Government to permit the French Rahr Army to transport coal through the British Rhineland zone, but whether the concession will be granted is a matter of conjecture, and public opinion is strongly divided.

Published by Authority.

His Excellency the Governor in Council has been pleased to appoint Mr. William G. LeGrew (Burr) Barrister at Law (Twillington), to a survivor of Lumber. Mr. Thomas Legge, Barrister at Law, to a member of the Board of Education for the District of Barachois, in place of Mr. Geo. Shears, retired.
Dept. of the Colonial Secretary, February 15, 1923.

Minister had a joint conference with Mr. Wolvin and Mr. McDougall at Montreal, Mr. Wolvin and Mr. McDougall leaving that evening for New York and the Prime Minister leaving the following day for Halifax to connect with the steamer. Sir Richard Squires arranged that Mr. Gillis should be sent to Newfoundland to look after the matter of Bell Island employment so that the confusion and dissatisfaction of last year in connection with the re-opening of the mines might be avoided. In referring to Mr. Wolvin Sir Richard said he was a man with whom it was a pleasure to do business because of the prompt way in which he met appointments and the business efficiency with which he and his distinguished legal adviser Mr. Markey concluded the matter from a legal standpoint as soon as Mr. Wolvin accepted the minimum proposition which the Prime Minister was prepared to discuss, namely, an average of 3400 days pay per week for the months of February and March and 9000 days per week for the months of April and May, as against 4800 days pay per week which was the maximum it was possible to secure in the negotiations a year ago.

FISHERMEN! CONSIDER THIS.

Squires is Taxing You Over 110 per cent. on a Part of Your Outfit

Compare the Tables Beneath and Judge For Yourself.

(From Evening Telegram, Nov. 7, 1922.)

That statement of planters account, the total duties collected on a similar outfit, did not amount to forty-two dollars. Therefore it is conclusively proven by no less authority than the Advocate itself that to-day the planter who purchases an outfit for the fishery as furnished below is paying in duties over double the sum demanded of him four years ago. As every item shown in this list, carries a specific tariff rate, the value does not make any difference to the revenue but as assumed for the purposes of proof that the Squires tariff bears a great deal more heavily on the fishermen than that of the previous Government. These are figures that will not only talk, but will convince fishermen that the Advocate has discovered a mare's nest and fallen into it. Follows the list published by that paper yesterday:

SQUIRES TARIFF.

Article	Total Price	Unit of Duty	Total Duty
150 lbs. salt	$300.00	.08 per hhd.	$24.00

CASHIN TARIFF.

Article	Unit of Duty	Total Duty
150 lbs. salt	Free	—

55 lbs. Soap		$41.87

The difference between $88.00 of Squires taxation on the above articles mainly used by fishermen, and the $41.87 of the old tariff is $46.19. Just that sum in excess time, fishermen of Newfoundland, is being extorted from you by such Liberal-Reformers as Squires, Coaker, Campbell, et al. Do you need further proof? Is it not high time to begin making a change?

St. Bon's Rink.

FORMAL OPENING BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR.

The formal opening of the St. Bon's new Rink took place Tuesday night, before a large gathering of parents and friends of the College. His Excellency, Sir Wm. Allardye, who formally declared the Rink open, was accompanied by Lady Allardye. His Grace Archbishop Roche, unavoidably absent, was represented by Mr. McDermott. His Honor Mayor Cook was amongst other prominent citizens who occupied the gallery, where the Vice Regal party, the Christian Brothers and Clergy were assembled. The rink was decorated for the occasion, presented a lively appearance with its multi-colored festoons. On projections along the walls were displayed numerous trophies won by the College. The gaitery of the scene was enhanced by several hundred boys who wore Carnival costumes. His Excellency and Lady Allardye were extended a hearty welcome by the Principal, Rev. Bro. Ryan, who, in his opening remarks also expressed regret that his Grace the Archbishop was unable to attend the ceremony. In speaking of the erection of the rink, the Superior paid a tribute to Brother Brennan, under whose supervision the steel frame was erected. Mayor Cook, Engineer Ryan, Bowring Brothers and the Furness Withy Co. were praised for special assistance rendered. The workmen, for the completion of such a splendid structure, carried out despite the most trying conditions, were also highly praised by the speaker. Although the principal, Rev. Bro. Ryan, assumed the responsibility of the undertaking, being both architect and contractor, he did not say anything on the matter beyond stating that the structure was substantially constructed and must speak for itself. The cost did not reach $10,000, towards which $2,000 had already been paid. At the request of the principal, His Excellency was given three hearty cheers before declaring the rink open. Sir William expressed in a few words the pleasure it gave him to have the opportunity of declaring open such a wonderful building, devoted to the purpose of physical culture. In everyday life, said his Excellency, it was necessary that there should be sport as well as work, and the physical and the mental development must combine to get the best results. Advising the boys in their play to always remember their benefactors, who had placed such a splendid building at their disposal, his Excellency capitulated his youthful auditors by a story of his own school days, when those who would not play were called "Sallys." Before declaring the Rink formally open, Sir William, on behalf of the boys, thanked the fathers and mothers and all those who had contributed toward the erection. In a short speech, said how pleased he was to see the Rink at St. Bon's an accomplished fact. For 25 years there had been talk of building a rink, but nothing materialized until last fall, when in an incredibly short time the rink was built. He congratulated Rev. Bro. Ryan on his achievement, as the encouragement of good clean sport tended to good temper and good nature.

President W. B. Howley on behalf of the St. Bon's Old Boy's Association expressed the pleasure it gave them of seeing such a fine building erected for the use of the pupils and he joined with Bro. Ryan in welcoming his Excellency the Governor and Lady Allardye. But a short time ago his Excellency's predecessor had unveiled the bronze tablet, the gift of ex-president, Sir M. P. Cashin, as a memorial to those who had gone, but this new rink was a monument to those now living, and those who will in future attend the College. He congratulated Rev. Bro. Ryan and his assistants on the work they had accomplished.

Mr. J. G. Higgins spoke on behalf of St. Bon's Senior Hockey team and eulogized the work of the President who in the short space of one year of his taking office had seen the erection of such a splendid and useful building. He spoke words for his foresight and energy. Following the speeches his Excellency asked for a whole holiday for the boys in honor of the occasion. The announcement was greeted with enthusiastic cheering. The Junior and Senior hockey teams then played a match which resulted in a score of two goals each. Dr. C. Fox acted as referee. The Mount Cashin Band, under Capt. A. Bulley, was present throughout the proceedings, and rendered delightful music.

"The Great Moment"

Battered by Tempests And Seas.

TRAMP STEAMER SHORT OF FUEL—ONE OF CREW WASHED OVERBOARD.

S.S. Bellingham, Capt. Henry Morgan, 21 days from Falmouth, England, arrived in port at 9 a.m. yesterday short of coal. The ship has a cargo of pulp wood for Boston and Baltimore. On January 30th or six days after leaving Falmouth, the ship ran into a N.W. hurricane. Mountains of sea swept the decks smashing the ventilators and other fittings. As night came on the fury of the storm increased. Huge seas threatened to engulf the ship at any moment, one of these swept seaman E. C. Head off the forecastle deck to his doom. Three other seamen managed to save themselves through being caught in a tarpaulin which was ripped off No. 1 hatch by a heavy roll of wire which broke loose. As soon as the seas cleared the decks, Capt. Morgan, taking big chances put his ship about in an attempt to rescue and although a diligent search was made not a sign of the unfortunate man was seen. On Feb. 3rd another gale was experienced during which the rudder chain snapped leaving the ship helpless, with huge seas continually being swept by the rudder chain were made and all went well till the next day when a storm, with sleet and snow, set in. For three days the ship was hove-to and not until the 8th inst could progress be made. Previous to leaving Falmouth the Bellingham had a desperate encounter with the elements and the ship was near being lost, according to the following clipping taken from the Daily Mirror of Jan 15th:—"After experiencing terrific weather and having her steering gear broken by mountainous seas, the American steamer Bellingham has arrived at Falmouth. She was bound from Rouma in Finland. On the steering gear being damaged she was left at the mercy of the waves which were so high that they smashed down the steamers funnel and it seemed certain the ship would be put off. The position was perilous, as the Bellingham was being washed fore and aft and was in danger of being lost with her crew of 40 hands. There were also 5 stowaways on board. (These were landed at Falmouth.) Two life boats were smashed, the top of the wheel house was carried away, hatch covers and all deck fittings were swept overboard. Working like tigers for many hours, the crew eventually managed to secure the rudder amidships with wire hawsers and the Bellingham was steered by the help of steam winches."

was food up. The derricks were lashed across the decks and the proportions of towing cables so coated were they with icy spray. Captain Morgan who is only 38 years old has had 22 years experience of the sea. For the past 8 or 9 years he has been sailing in the North Atlantic and he says during all his time he never had such an experience. Many other ships were caught in the same storm but most of them more or less damaged made for the Azores. The Captain feels keenly the loss of seaman Head. He was a young man of excellent education being a college graduate. Considerable was well liked by his shipmates. He was well liked by his shipmates. He was a native of Los Angeles, California. The Bellingham is taking 500 tons of coal from S.S. Modena. After having her steering gear, which is somewhat damaged, repaired and her bunkers replenished the ship will resume her voyage to Boston and Baltimore.

Blackguardism.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—For a specimen of blackguardism of the meanest type I think that double column contribution to the Advocate of Tuesday, Feb. 13th, signed "Union Man" is the most perfect of its kind seen for a long time. The person who wrote that foul letter must be as empty headed as void of all sense of decency.

The paper which gave it publicity must be lost to all appreciation of its general influences for the common welfare of Bell Island as a community will be appreciated.

Rev. J. J. McGrath, P.P., the Pastor of St. Michael's Parish, was once more unanimously chosen as Spiritual Director, and Dr. H. A. Giovanetti as Medical Advisor.

Moore, and proposed the adoption of the following resolutions of condolence:—

"RESOLVED, that we place on record an expression of sincere regret at the passing of our Second Assistant Vice-President, Mr. John J. Moore.

His many sterling qualities had won him a high place in the esteem and regard of a host of admiring friends, who heard of his death with profound sorrow.

This Society sustains a distinct loss by his demise, for, whether an ordinary member, a Committeeman, or an officer, he was imbued with an earnest desire for the welfare of this institution and loyally supported its objects during a membership of over a quarter of a century.

"A Wise Fool," Cast

Composed of Artists.

PLAYERS ARE HEADED BY JAMES KIRKWOOD AND BEAUTIFUL ALICE HOLLISTER.

When George Melford's latest Paramount production, "A Wise Fool," comes to the Majestic theatre tonight, the public will see one of the strongest casts ever assembled for a photoplay. James Kirkwood, an eminent screen actor and director, is the featured player.

As the erratic Jean Jacques Barville, the hero of Sir Gilbert Parker's original novel, of which the picture is an adaptation, Mr. Kirkwood has a most delightful and entertaining role. Alice Hollister, a delightful actress, has the leading woman's role. Ann Forrest, who played the principal feminine role in "The Faith Healer," is seen as Zoe Barville. Alan Hale is excellent as Masson, and Fred Hunter, as Sebastian Dolores, a scoundrelly Spanish exile, provokes amusement by his rascality. Edward Sutherland has the leading juvenile role, and Truly Shattuck, a once famous comic opera star, plays Virginia Poucette. The cast is completed by Harry Dunfield, Charles Ogilvie, John Herdman and Lillian Leighton. Sir Gilbert Parker and George Melford collaborated on the scenario and William Marshall was cameraman.

Terra Novas Win

Over St. Bon's.

SCORE 4-3.

In the last game of the regular league series, the Terra Novas won over the St. Bon's in a rather patchy game last night. Only a small gathering was present and the brand of hockey was not exciting.

In the first period the Terras scored two goals and the St. Bon's one; Canning was the goal getter for the Terras in this period while Fox scored the St. Bon's tally.

After ten minutes of the second period had elapsed, Phelan evaded the score. Play then became a little lively and both teams worked hard for the lead, and shortly before the period ended Field found the net for the Terras, giving them a one goal lead.

The final period saw both teams working well, and some good individual play was in evidence. Clarke for the Terras and Phelan for the St. Bon's each scored, and the final gong sounded leaving the Terra Novas the winners by 4 goals to 3.

Mr. Ern Churchill was the referee.

The following players will line up for the Guards-Feldians team: Goal, Hunt; defense, Peterson, Rendell and Winter; forwards Munn, Coultas, Ewing, Payn and Herder. The Guards-Feldians team play under the Feldians colors, and Guards players will get their sweaters at the rink.

BANKERS' HOCKEY.

The first game of the Bank League schedule was played at St. Bon's rink yesterday morning between the Montreal and Royal Banks. The game was fast and furious right through, and resulted in a win for the Montreal team by 7 goals to 2. A large gathering of spectators assembled to witness the game. Mr. C. C. Robertson was referee.

THE CHILD IS THE SUFFERER.

While I was waiting for a telephone call in a little neighborhood shop, recently I witnessed an interesting neighborhood drama.

A new comer to the neighborhood was also waiting for a call. With her was a little girl, who presently proved herself to be one of the most thoroughly disciplined youngsters I ever saw.

She sat on the floor, her feet tucked up, and she kept looking at her mother, first one way and then another, and finally she refused to run back home when her mother suggested that.

The Last Straw, she said, was another neighbor's child.

As it happens, the lady in question is known among most of her friends as being very fond of children. She is always doing things for her nephew and niece. She has more patience with them in many ways than their own mother, and the neighborhood children love to go to her home.

But because she had the spirit to withstand being absolutely imposed upon by a thoroughly spoiled child she must be called a sour old maid.

That Child is Going to be Hated.

Do you know who I was sorry for in that group? The child. Because it's going to make herself thoroughly hated in the whole neighborhood.

new country. They do not know the customs of the country. They do not understand its laws. They are surely going to offend and make life uncomfortable for other people, and themselves, unless their friends who have lived in the country and understand its ways give them some tips about what is tolerated and what isn't. As their parents are presumably their closest friends it is up to them to give those tips. And when they fail, it is the child who is the worst sufferer.

Australian Cotton.

LIVERPOOL—The possibilities of Preston who, with a Liverpool cotton director of a big manufactory in acre at America, and that in two years it was expected Australia to be the world's cotton producer.

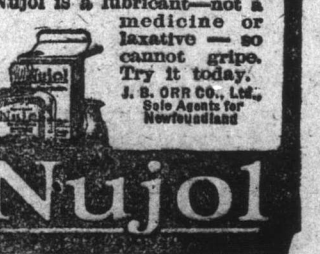

How Dare You! You should have seen the mother color up. With shame at her own negligence? Not at all. With indignation! She bridled like a hen whose nest has been attacked. "Come right here, Dorothy," she said, "and stay here." That sounded like a rebuke, but she softened it at once by buying Dorothy a piece of candy. She said nothing at all to Dorothy about trying to open the lady's handbag, and she glared at the offender who had dared speak sharply to her child in a way that showed it was Dorothy and not the woman she was protecting in keeping her by her side, and presently when the other woman went out she said: "How I do hate these sour old maids that haven't any use for children."

tempted queens and kings; ducks I ate with eager zeal, and a section of an eel, and a turkey stuffed with veal, and a pair of ostrich wings. For a man, though old and sore, must pretend he's not afraid; when the holidays are here he must march with the parade; he must join the joyous crew, he must cheer what others cheer, with a cock-a-doodle-doo, and a whoop-la undimayad. So I sat me down to dine with a gay and merry lot; they had younger works than mine, and they ate and then forgot; I have suffered ever since, and I curse the pies of mince, and the marmalade of quince and the oysters smoking hot. I am breathing fire and smoke like a dragon or a joss and a murrain I invoke on the pudding and its sauce; and I have sepulchral sighs when I hear you mention pies, and the briny soaks my eyes, and I am a total loss. But I hope to be restored to my health within a year, and I'll jolt the groning board when the Christmas days are here; yes, forgetting bygone aches, I'll consume the luscious cakes, and the things the baker bakes, rapidly as they appear.

 POTSDAM.—In a quiet residential quarter of Potsdam a group of women who formerly belonged to the aristocracy and the brilliant social circles of imperial days, are working daily from morning until night at stuffing teddy bears, toy elephants, dogs, and other animal figures. Their place of employment is a branch of a toy factory at Doberan, Mecklenburg-Schwerin. The factory provides the felt "skins," and it remains only for the local plant to fill them with wood-wool and to affix the necessary heads for eyes and nose. The playthings produced are intended primarily for export, and a heavy demand has been reported, especially during the pre-Christmas season. Children in foreign countries are promised a new German creation for next year's Yuletide in a plaything called the "Righting cocks." Already a few of them have been made here, and large contracts have been closed abroad. Teddy bears range in price this year from 1.60 marks for the smallest, to 95,000 for huge "brains" whose leather-soled feet are mounted on wheels.

BUD'S QUESTION.
 I know how dirt gets on my hands, I know how it gets on my face, I know every day that wherever I play There is always some dirt in the place.
 I know how it gets on my knees, For they gather it up by the peck, I know how the dirt gets all over my shirt.
 But how does it get on my neck?
 They're at me to wash all the time, There's nothing on earth I can do, But they say: "If you please, will you look at those knees
 And look at the face of him, too!" I know how I gather it up, I know that I catch every speck, I know how dirt comes to my fingers and thumbs, But how does it get on my neck?
 I don't use my neck when I play, I don't hit my neck when I fall, My neck doesn't touch dirty articles much, And it should be the cleanest of all, I know how my shirt waist gets black, I know how my stockings I wreck, I know how dirt lands on my face and my hands, But how does it get on my neck?

"There Were Many Things Which I Could Not Eat"

Mrs. H. Robert Wells, English Harbour, Trinity Bay, Nfld., writes:

"I was troubled with nervous dyspepsia—so much so that there were a great many things I could not eat at all on account of the distressed feeling afterwards. I used many different remedies, but they did me little good. Finally I tried Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills, and was surprised at the relief this combined treatment gave me in such a short time."

River of Ponds.

The Tragedy of a Small Settlement.

(By J. D. HENRY.)
ARTICLE V.
SPIRITY COVE. (Near Hawke's Bay.)—I always think that the country between Bellburns and Spirit Cove at the entrance to Hawke's Bay has a bleak winter face. During the summer the outlook is (or was) always so very different. I recall that in the brief months of the fishery and the seven months of open sea the entire landscape changes in many ways. Over the edge of bold rocks waterfalls splash down into the sea, and in some of the straight shore cooves there were, before these never-to-be-forgotten years of bad trade and widespread penury, some happy and prosperous little fishing settlements. Today, in mid-winter, these are mere memories and we know there is scarcely a glimmer of happiness and prosperity in the homes of hundreds of fishermen. Along the shore line there are a few forests of fir and spruce but the predominating features of the landscape are the great stretches of wind-swept and snow-free country. All that can be said of these barrens is that they will one day make level country for a coastal railway. The chief summer fishing settlement after leaving Bellburns is Hatterson, boasting the only Government rest camp between Daniel's Harbour and Port Saunders, a distance of thirty miles, and once this is left the traveller must reach River of Ponds or take to the camp and spend the night in the woods.

HARD REALITIES.
 It was at River of Ponds, a large crescent-shaped bay with a boulder-strewn beach and a river which is a popular summer resort for wealthy anglers, that I discovered a summer tragedy connected with the fishery. Everywhere along the coast, excepting at one or two of the large settlements, the traveller finds homes which are externally innocent of the luxury of paint and where the full flour barrel is no longer a feature of the winter stores. Families which at the time of the last election had sufficient for their common needs all the year round are to-day in penury. To them, at election time, the blatant political promises of "liberty and freedom" may have meant something; to-day these disillusioned toilers are up against the hard realities of a situation in which they plainly see that the false rhetoric of election days has not been translated into action. At River of Ponds times are very hard; the families there carry a full share of the common misfortunes of the coast. They have a greater trouble than their fellows, and it is this which constitutes the tragedy to which I have referred. In this last summer of their promises "liberty and freedom" four of the five small motor engines at the settlement were seized for debt and taken away by the police. I do not stop to state the legal facts of the case. The law may be right. These men, deprived of their means of livelihood on the sea, may have been too long and too heavily indebted—the consequence and curse of long credit and truck dealings—but still this fact stands out clearly, that they have been driven from the sea and crushed by an iniquitous system of credit trading fostered by the misgovernment of the country. These men, with their wives and children standing by, were silent witnesses of the law's removal of their engine and to-day, on the ice-covered beach at River of Ponds there are lying four useless empty boats to warn them that the fishery can earn them nothing during this coming summer. That is the tragedy of River of Ponds: four engines out of five taken for debt in a year when only a very few fishermen on the coast could possibly earn sufficient to pay their debts and keep their families! These unfortunate men must now take to the woods, and thankful they are that they can take to the hills for fur or the Hawke's Bay woods for work, for the memory of their fathers can no longer mean anything to them. The moral of this pitiable story is, that the law of Newfoundland, where the fishery means practically everything in the form of a livelihood for the people, should render a fisherman's motor boat engine immune against seizure for debt.

NEGLECT BY REPRESENTATION.
 The people of this settlement want a bridge across the fast running river. Their treatment has been so bad in the past that they ought to succeed with their application. In these important matters of bridges and roads it is known that there is no equality in the treatment of electoral divisions. Others get almost anything and everything they ask for; here we get practically nothing. For St. George's, Mr. Hall, Government engineer, has just prepared a detailed report on the numerous and expensive bridge schemes it is proposed to put through. Here in this part of St. Barbe we are almost without bridges and the few we have are weak and wobbly trestles which cost the country only a little poorly-paid labour. Bridges are a great need of the coast, and River of Ponds is an applicant for one at once because it has the last unbridged river on the main road along which so many men are travelling to and from Hawke's Bay. Not far, only six miles, from River of Ponds is Spirit Cove, from which settlement the traveller can see the feeble beacon light on Keppel Island and the great or revolving Canadian light on the long low-lying Point Riche. These lights are off Hawke's Bay, my destination this trip.

HAWKE'S BAY THE KEystone.
 On my way along the coast I have formed many new impressions of the fishermen. They are no longer under any illusions concerning the future of the coast; they believe it will progress and give them steady employment in years to come; but they do see, and see most clearly, that if for any reason the bottom falls out of the Hawke's Bay industry there will be absolutely no employment for them anywhere else this winter. In other words, they have been left by a disappearing fishery on fearfully thin ice and are almost without work. Others do not think so. Some of our public men appreciate the value of the press, and, by a free use of the papers of this and other countries, very successfully secure publicity for their official visions of an earthly paradise. One of these descriptions of domestic peace and affluence has just been published by the Department of Agriculture. I have read it with amazement in one of the ruined homes of this coast, and with all the materials for a flat contradiction to my hand. Here it is:

"We can point to communities where industrious fishermen have cellars well stocked with potatoes, turnips, carrots, beets and cabbage, and who during the fishing season provide themselves with a good supply of different kinds of fish for the winter; and in most localities rabbits may be got for 'skinned out for the foxes,' and 'such a well stocked larder provided, winter has no terror for the worker, and Newfoundland offers such inducements to every worker.'"

Why not go the limit in east coast deception and tell an envious world that this is a land flowing with milk and honey? Optimistic publicity of this kind has recently become a large part of the political game, but honest men in public life must despise and condemn it as a misrepresentation of the actual conditions on the neglected and stricken north-west coast. It is not only premature, but deceitful. If this is the real feeling in St. John's it accounts for the failure of the departments to do anything for the alleviation of the misery of those who live in the distant outports and small settlements. There are not half-a-dozen pigs north of Bonne Bay; rabbits are everywhere uncommonly scarce, in some places "skinned out for the foxes," and the well-stocked cellars and larders exist only in a few diminishing cases, and are at most, merely painful memories of those pre-war years when food prices were low, and men could get a living wage out of the sea.

POLITICAL PROPHETS PLATITUDES.
 Not only are we officially told that everything is right in the "well-stocked" homes of the people, but we have political prophets testing our gullibility with the plausible assurance that the flowing tide is with industrial reconstruction and progress. In this settlement I find in a widely-read Canadian weekly the following statement concerning "an improvement in trade conditions enjoyed by Newfoundland":

"Business is getting back to a sound basis. Deflation and reconstruction have been an exceedingly difficult and painful process, but the thoroughness with which they have been done means firmer and more rapid progress now that the tide has turned." It is not difficult to guess the source of this remarkable display of optimism. If "the tide" even remotely relates to north-west fishery prosperity I feel compelled to say that everything I have seen on this statement as a flagrant misreading of the hard facts of bitter poverty in many homes and the widespread feeling of despondency concerning the future of this particular industry. Along the coast I have just travelled there are hundreds of clever hard-working fishermen, ranking amongst the best types of Newfoundland's handymen, and to me it is remarkable that men of this class should be hard up, but hard up they undoubtedly are and, that too, through no fault of their own. Very few indeed have well-stocked larders, and where these are found, they are the result of the fishery, but are there because the men have drawn on the earnings of better days, or have been successful with their work in the woods or on the hills. Mostly, however, the fishermen on this stretch of coast are bankrupt in cash and gear, and their store credit is fast reaching vanishing point. There are no indications of a turn of the tide, and I do not know one fisherman who will read absolute-truth in the amazing proclamation "that the tide has turned." The waters of fishery prosperity are still dead low and they will probably remain low on the coast for another twelve months, because very few fishermen will follow the old calling if they can get work in the woods.

SMOKING TOBACCO

Let's give the pipe its due. All the credit for a good smoke should not go to the tobacco. Men smoked pipes centuries before modern tobacco in tins was dreamed of. They changed their blends too, occasionally—always seeking a tobacco a trifle more suited to their taste. Now you may already be 99 p.c. pipe-happy. The purpose of Edgeworth is to give you the additional one per cent. that makes complete pipe-smoking satisfaction.

"Edgeworth" Smoking Tobacco is made in two forms. Sliced Plug and Ready-Rubbed, and we honestly don't know which you will prefer. Both forms have their enthusiastic devotees. Try both and then decide which you like best.

"Edgeworth" is sold by all stores in convenient size tins and at popular prices.

Newfoundland's Opportunity.

The time is come when Newfoundland should make a special effort to introduce new methods in the cure of a certain percentage of our codfish to suit those markets that do not want salt cod as we send to European countries. There is a market in the United States for fresh codfish put up in cold storage and shredded form such as is used by the Gloucester firms. There is a good market for salt bulk fish. There are also the by-products of the cod, such as sounds, tongues, and cod-roses, which are

Capable of Infinite Expansion

Not only have we codfish, but salmon, herring, halibut, turbot, caplin and plaice, lobster and smelts, and a score of other qualities of edible fish which Newfoundlanders now do not use except for manure. The Canadian fishermen put no less than 24 species of fish on the market, and this is what makes their fisheries so valuable, three times more valuable than ours. We have confined our energies exclusively to salt hard dried codfish. The time is come now when all the other edible fish in our stores should be exported.

Capable of Infinite Expansion

The total value of Canada's fisheries is about $45,000,000, and codfish in all its forms of cure makes up only about half of this total, which goes to show that if Newfoundland were to develop all its other fisheries beside the cod with the same enterprise and energy as Canada, our fisheries would be twice as valuable annually as they are to-day. The herring fishery alone could be made as valuable as is the codfishery at present. We are only working on the fringe of the salmon industry, a business which, in the fresh and smoked state, could be made worth half a million dollars.

Capable of Infinite Expansion

This is the age of canned foods, and even this process is being improved on now by the use of glass receptacles for preserving fish food as well as fruit. Lobsters put up in glass receptacles will be used extensively in the Canadian market the coming season. It fetches a better price than that which is put up in tins. Newfoundland should wake up and get into the procession so as to get commercial value out of every fish that swims in our waters.

Capable of Infinite Expansion

There is a fish called tuna which is plentiful in the West Coast waters and when killed, cut up and prepared for market, is a choice article of fish food. The halibut and the turbot are plentiful enough to be worthy of special attention and development, and find a profitable market in Canada and the United States. Crabs, mussels and scallops are all worth developing and find a good market in the United States.

Capable of Infinite Expansion

There is another industry that is fresh fish food to the people. Faith, enterprise and capital are all that is wanted to make these subsidiary fisheries as valuable as the codfish marketed in the old style and by the old methods.—Trade Review.

Capable of Infinite Expansion

She waits thirty years but he never comes. A friend of hers, Jane Hathaway, is visited by a niece from Boston, Ruth Thorne, the girl, she has been employed on a Boston paper. She knows that a member of the staff whom she has never met is stopping in the village. His name is Carl Winfield and he is having trouble with his eyes. Ruth's aunt goes over to Europe to hunt up a youthful sweetheart, and Carl and the girl become acquainted and fall in love. Ruth takes her sweetheart to see Miss Almsie. The gray-haired woman is startled by his resemblance to the man she promised to marry. When she learns that Carl is Captain Winfield's son and that the captain died some years previous, she falls in a faint. From this time the faithful woman gradually fades away. Just before she dies she tells Carl that his father was her sweetheart of thirty years ago.
