CHAPTER XIX.

"Will you not take it?" she asked tremulously.

"Not if you will keep it," he answered, gently and gravely; and at the tender words, spoken without a touch of reproach, the girl's composure faltered, and she burst into a passion of tears.

Without a word, and with the same tenderness in his manner which had marked his words before, Stephen put his arm round her and drew her to his side, holding her and giving her the support of his arm until the passion of tears was over and she stood leaning against him, very pale and exhausted, but calm again.

"You are better?" he said. "Yes? That is well, my child." He was holding her in his arms caressingly; he had slipped on the ring, and was keeping it in its place with his firm gentle touch. "We will leave it there, Sidney, for a few weeks yet," he added, softly; "and then I will take it off and replace it with a plainer one. Dear," he went on, bending over her tenderly, "if I could see anything in the future for you happier or better than this, I would give you your freedom; but I think you will be happier under my care than you are now; and you can trust me, Sidney."

"And you will help me?" she said, eagerly, looking up at him with pleading, passionate eyes. "Stephen, you are so clever and so strong, and he is innocent. You know, and he—"

The words died away upon her lips, killed by the sudden change on his face, which had grown cold and stern and hard. Afterward Sidney remembered that sudden change, and thought that she knew its cause; now that it only pained her, she did not try to account for it.

"Dear," he said, gently still, but with coldness in his voice which had not been there before, "let us understand each other. In all things I will study your wishes, in all things, save one. You shall command me, and you shall have ample means to gratify all your fancies; but, Sidney, in that one thing I must be firm. I cannot allow my

HER NERVES BETTER NOW

Received Much Benefit by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chatham, Ont.—"I started to get weak after my second child was born, and kept on getting worse until I could not do my own housework, and was so bad with my nerves that I was afraid to stay alone at any time. I had a girl working for me a whole year before I was able to do my washing again. Through a friend I learned of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and took four bottles of it. I gave birth to a baby boy the 4th day of September, 1922. I am still doing my own work and washing. Of course, I don't feel well every day because I don't get my rest as the baby is so cross. But when I get my rest I feel fine. I am still taking the Vegetable Compound and am going to keep on with it until cured. My nerves are a lot better since taking it. I can stay alone day or night and not be the least frightened. You can use this letter as a testimonial and I will answer letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. CHARLES CARSON, 27 Foley St., Chatham, Ont.

other woman in the whole world? Do you not know that to have you as my wife is the greatest happiness the world can hold for me, save one?—and I think—I hope—I believe that greatest happiness of all will be mine by and by—the happiness of knowing that my wife loves me in the same way—although in a lesser degree perhaps—as I love her. May I hope it, Sidney?"

There was no answer. The pretty head was resting upon his breast, the fair face hidden against his shoulder; but, though the sweet lips were silent, there was eloquence in the little clinging hands, in the soft pressure of the pretty shining head as it rested against him. Stephen Daunt's heart was beating fast as he bent his head and said, softly:

"May I, Sidney?"

"Stephen, is it true? Would it be happiness to you?"

Very shyly and sweetly the words were uttered, Stephen drew her yet more closely to his beating heart.

"Darling, I have told you," he whispered—"the greatest happiness life can hold for me!"

"Then, if you will have it, if you really care to have it, it is yours."

It was well perhaps for Stephen Daunt and for Sidney Arnold that this sunny dream of happiness should be granted them now in the short calm which preceded the storm that was so soon to burst over them. And such dreams are very pleasant, full of a golden, sunlit, gorgeous beauty, and are only bitter when the dreamers awake.

YESTERDAY'S LATE MESSAGES

ST. PIERRE VESSEL HIJACKED.

HALIFAX, Sept. 21. Five thousand cases of whiskey, one hundred and fifty barrels of malt and many cases of other beverages, were hijacked from the steamer Jean Louis, owned and registered at St. Pierre, Mtq., by pirates, 22 miles S.E. of Sankaty Head, on September 10th, according to statements made by the steamer's captain on arrival here today. The booty was transferred to the Charming No. 2, of New York. The pirates robbed the Jean Louis of all articles considered of value, including the ship's papers and the captain's personal possessions.

LINER AGROUND AND RELOADED.

SOUTHAMPTON, Sept. 21. The Royal Mail steamship liner Orbia, which went aground Saturday afternoon near the needles off the Isles of Wight, while bound for New York from Southampton via Cherbourg, reloaded, undamaged, and proceeded on her way.

PRINCE BACK IN THE ARGENTINE.

MENDOZA, Argentina, Sept. 21. Thanks to strenuous work by the railway engineers on Saturday, the railway line from Chile to Argentine Republic was sufficiently cleared of snow to permit the passage of the special train of the Prince of Wales to Mendoza.

BIG WHEAT CROP IN U.S.A.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21. Reports made public today by the Agricultural Department from 29 countries, representing 85 per cent. of the world's wheat crop, indicated an eight per cent. increase in production over last year or a total of 2,852,000,000 bushels. Abundant harvests in Canada, Europe and North Africa was the outstanding feature of the report.

FROST IN PRAIRIE PROVINCE.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 21. Recording a maximum dip of 12 degrees of frost in Alberta, during last night, a cold wave swept across the prairie provinces, carrying varying degrees of frost, stopping threshing operations and accompanied by heavy rains. Higher temperature and drying winds is the forecast. No serious damage is reported.

Wedding Bells

PNYN—THOMAS.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in the Cathedral of St. John the Baptist on Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 16th, the contracting parties being Miss Ida Pynn and Mr. Arthur S. Thomas, both of this city.

The bride looked charming in a dress of heaver Canton crepe trimmed with beaver and a rhinestone ornament with hat to match, and carried a shower bouquet of carnations and sweet peas. She entered the church leaning on the arm of her brother-in-law, Mr. Frank M. Ewing, who acted as father giver in the absence of her father. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Frank M. Ewing, who also looked charming in a dress of burnt rust Canton crepe with hat to match, carrying a bouquet of carnations and sweet peas.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Canon Jeeves, B.A., Rector of the Cathedral. After the ceremony the bridal party motored to the residence of Mr. Frank Ewing, Parade Street, where a reception was held and the usual toasts proposed, after which the happy couple left by train for Holyrood, where the honeymoon will be spent. The presents received were numerous and costly, testifying to the esteem in which the young couple was held.

C.T.

Mrs. Arthur Johnson will be "At Home" to her friends from 3 to 5 p.m. on Thursday and Friday, the 24th and 25th, at her residence, 145 Patrick Street.

One of the Years Greatest Films

'SINNERS IN HEAVEN' HIGHLY ENDORSED BY PUBLIC.

Without hesitation we award the blue ribbon as the week's best picture to "Sinners in Heaven," the latest cinema opus from the Paramount organization, which opened last night at the Nickel Theatre. For dramatic strength of story, excellent characterization, pictorial beauty and able direction, this picture is the finest of the famous novel of the same name by Clive Arden, adapted to the screen by James Greelman and produced by Alan Crosland, is miles ahead of many of the recent screen offerings.

If the word "super-film" had not fallen into disrepute because of misuse and abuse, we would be sorely tempted to apply it to this photoplay. As it is we will have to content ourselves by heartily recommending it to each and every motion picture "fan."

The unusual theme of the story made its transfer to the silver sheet a delicate operation, so to speak; and the fact that it has been accomplished with admirable finesse, so that even the most rabid puritan will find nothing to criticize, reflects great credit on scenarist and producer. And yet, all the vitality and dynamic dramatic power of the story, which won the prize in England as the best novel of the year, has been preserved intact. Personally we believe that "Sinners in Heaven" as a picture will be even more enthusiastically received than was "Sinners in Heaven" as a book.

Briefly, the plot unfolds the adventures of a man and girl who find themselves cast away on a desert island with no apparent hope of rescue.

Bound by a life-time of conventions and tradition and loyalty to her fiancé back in England, the girl struggles against her overwhelming love for the man—but in vain! And the manner in which these two work out their salvation provides some of the most gripping drama ever flashed on the screen.

Bob Daniels and Richard Dix portray the two leading roles, and to say that each scores a distinct personal triumph is but stating a fact.

Hearts of Oak

Baltimore Sun: A British liner left her course to seek a German ship to transfer to the former enemy a tiny package of rare antitoxin necessary to save a woman's life. The action of Captain Gemmel, of the Tuscania, in turning back on this mission of humanity Captain Wittstein, of the München, calls "one of the most gallant acts ever performed by a captain of a merchant vessel." And yet a few short years ago the two men, both naval reservists, would have been as eager to sink each other's ship, with all aboard, as they were this week to co-operate in aid of a single passenger stricken in mid-ocean. Loyalty to strange gods makes human beings sponsor curiously inconsistent actions. But there is one loyalty, that of gallantry in time of need, in which the British merchant seaman is second known to fate.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Canon Jeeves, B.A., Rector of the Cathedral. After the ceremony the bridal party motored to the residence of Mr. Frank Ewing, Parade Street, where a reception was held and the usual toasts proposed, after which the happy couple left by train for Holyrood, where the honeymoon will be spent. The presents received were numerous and costly, testifying to the esteem in which the young couple was held.

Little Jack Rabbit
by David Cory

Old Mr. Dog was a very wise sort of a person. In his early youth he had been a great hunter, but as the years went by, and his teeth fell out one by one, he made up his mind that he would build a hut for himself in the Shady Forest and spend the rest of his days studying the ways and habits of Mother Nature's Cheerful Children. One morning as he sat in the doorway of his log cabin reading the Bunnymore Bugle, along came Little Jack Rabbit.

"Hello, Bunny boy," barked Old Mr. Dog, looking up over his spectacles. "Have you done the cross word puzzle this morning?"

"No, I had no time. You see, I must bring in the kindling wood, feed the canary and polish the front door-knob every morning before I go out to play," answered the little rabbit.

"Well, I've plenty of time," laughed Old Mr. Dog. "In fact, I had so little to do this morning that I made up a Cross Word Puzzle. Will you take it down to the paper for me? Perhaps the editor will publish it. Wish he would," and Old Mr. Dog smiled at the little bunny.

"May I see it?" asked the little rabbit.

"Maybe you can solve it," answered Old Mr. Dog, handing the bunny boy a sheet of paper on which he had printed the puzzle.

"I'll wait till it comes out in the paper," said the little rabbit, and away he hopped to the office of the Bunnymore Bugle in Rabbitville. Reddy Comb, the rooster newsboy, was standing at the door, and kindly led the little rabbit up to the editor's room.

"Of course I'll print it," promised the editor, after reading it. "It looks mighty good to me. A regular Rabbitland Cross Word Puzzle. All the Shady Forest Folk and Pleasant Pasture People will enjoy solving it. Old Mr. Dog explains in his letter that the puzzle contains the names of many of our friends. Ha, Ha! everybody will work hard to find his own name."

"Oh, I'm so glad you will publish it," laughed the happy little rabbit. "Old Mr. Dog is a lonely sort of a person. It will cheer him up to see his puzzle printed."

"Look in to-morrow's paper and you'll find it on the last page," promised the kind editor, and handing the little rabbit a big blue pencil, he added: "Hop along and tell everybody you meet that a Cross Word Puzzle by Old Mr. Dog will be printed in the Bunnymore Bugle to-morrow morning. Explain that many of our friends will find their names in the little squares if they have a Who's Who Dictionary to help them," and with a laugh, the nice editor bowed to the little rabbit. My, what a polite editor he was, just as nice and kind as the editors your Uncle Dave met when he visited newspaper offices all over the country.

"He's going to print it! He's going to print it!" shouted the happy little rabbit to Reddy Comb, the rooster newsboy. "You'll have a lot of papers to sell to-morrow, for I'm going to tell everybody I know that there's to be a Rabbitland Cross Word Puzzle in the Bugle to-morrow morning," and away hopped the little rabbit, clipper-ty, clip, hipper-ty lip.

"Goodness me," laughed the little bunny. "I hope the Cross Word Puzzle's funny. I must buy a new pencil, a rubber, or two, to show Uncle Dave what a bunny can do."

and with a hop-tee-tydy the little rabbit hopped right into the next story.

He is repudiated by the real leaders of German trade unionism.

"Vorwärts," the principal organ of the Social Democratic Party, declares that the German Communists are not only inciting workers against one another but are also now importing foreign Communists to stigmatize the leaders of the working classes as traitors.

"What was why the Communist Party of Germany got the secretary of the English Miners' Union to speak in Germany," says Vorwärts. "We are bound to admit that Cook distinguished the task allotted to him by a demagogic lack of conscience. He could attack the tried leaders of German workers all the better because all he knew was derived from the swindle Press of Bolshevism. . . . A German Communist cannot swindle more stupidly or more infamously than Cook swindled."

"It must be made clear that to create better co-operation of English and German trade unions such missions as Cook's must be stopped."

TO-MORROW'S SPORTS.

The attraction for to-morrow afternoon will be the C.L.B.-C.C.C. Footballers' Sports, at St. George's Field. The committee in charge have the arrangements well in hand, and an enjoyable programme of field events is assured. The Inter Collegiate events promise to be very interesting, particularly the Relay Race, and the Tug-of-War on clats. Four splendid cups have been secured to be competed for by the schools, whilst the prizes for the open events are very attractive and well worth the winning. Owing to the large number of teams entered in the Mercantile Football Series, it has been found necessary to run off preliminaries. These are to be played to-morrow morning. The ticketholders and judges will be appointed by the N.A.A.A. As this is the last sports for the season a large attendance is hoped for.

The Bell Island Committee have made all arrangements for the welcoming of the visitors, and the day promises to be one of real enjoyment for all. At night a dance will be held in the Star Hall, the music for which will be supplied by the Methodist Guards Band. The party will meet at the Club rooms to-morrow morning at 9.30 sharp.

"K.O." FOR PHIL SCOTT—BRITISH "HOPE" DEFEATED BY SPANISH WOODCUTTER.

Dramatic Sequel To His Three Victories In A Week.

Britain's hopes to find a challenger to Dempsey in Phil Scott, the London ex-freeman, received a set-back yesterday.

Scott met Paolino, the Spanish woodcutter, at Bilbao, and was knocked out in the sixth round. He was on the defensive practically all the time.

The crowd showed some disappointment at the display put up by the boxers. The match was refereed by Carpenter.

Scott claimed a foul after his knock-out, but this was not allowed.

SPANIARD FORCES PACE.

Scott Alleges "Questionable Blow" After Being Knocked Out.

BILBAO—The heavyweight boxing match, between Paolino Ukudun and Phil Scott, was decided here to-day before 12,000 spectators, with Carpenter acting as referee.

The public showed some disappointment at the contest, which was apparently not as fine a display of boxing as they had expected.

In the first round neither man had the advantage, both confining themselves to feinting tactics. In the second round Paolino began to force the pace, but without much result, the Englishman defending himself with his left.

The Spaniard made a furious onslaught in the third round, resuming it in the fourth, which ended up in some in-fighting.

In the fifth the Spaniard again resumed the offensive, and Scott clinched.

At the beginning of the sixth the Spaniard repeated his forcing tactics, and seemed to be pressing the Englishman hard. That Scott fell.

He alleged that there had been a questionable blow, but Paolino was proclaimed the winner. Both boxers were loudly cheered.—Routier.

Hope To Fight Dempsey.
Scott's defeat by the Spanish woodcutter is another set-back to one who considered him a British "hope" capable of meeting Dempsey.

It comes as a dramatic sequel to his "week of victories" in London, when he defeated three opponents at the London Ring in six days.

After his last fight—with Gipsy Daniels—however, it was reported that he had injured one hand, and this may have proved his undoing against Paolino.

Scott has had speedy success as a boxer. He was formerly a fireman, but proved so successful in friendly bouts that he turned professional and was promptly picked out as a "hope."

Recently he posed for medical students as a model of anatomy, and also underwent tests for the benefit of science.

Paolino, his vanquisher, was formerly a woodcutter. He is noted for his amazing strength rather than for his skill.

Townsend's Victory.—In a heavyweight contest at Stockholm, Jack Townsend defeated the Swede, Karl Johnson, by a knockout in the first round.—Routier.

Return of Prince Blocked by Snow

TRAIN FORCED TO REPAIR TO SHELTER IN CHILEAN MOUNTAINS.

LOS ANDES, Aconcagua, Chile, Sept. 16.—(C.P.)—A storm raging in the Cordillera prevented the Prince of Wales from crossing the Andes yesterday. He was on his way to Argentina, but had to turn back.

The Prince left Valparaiso Monday night after some delay owing to heavy snow in the mountains and reached Los Andes, the Chilean terminus of the Trans-Andean Railway, about 6.30 o'clock yesterday morning. Rain was falling heavily, but the line was reported clear.

As soon as the special train began to take the grade the rain changed to snow and at Juncal Station, on the Argentine border, 6,750 feet altitude, it became evident that the train was not going to get through without considerable difficulty. It proceeded, however, and about 12 miles from the summit of the pass a gang was sent ahead to clear the road, while the train was backed into one of the numerous shelters constructed on the mountainside as a protection against blocked lines by the fall of masses of snow.

Returned to Juncal. Shortly after the train returned to Juncal with the idea of attaching a snowplow, but it was finally decided to go back to Los Andes in the hope of making a fresh start to-day. Snow had been falling steadily all morning, and the pilot train, which set out a short time before the royal one, got through, but snow slides blocked the road between the two trains. Los Andes was reached at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

The Prince witnessed quite a thrilling incident while walking in the streets of Los Andes after the return of his train. He was passing a shop, but stopped to watch an affray between two men. One of them drew a knife and, stabbed the other. The wounded man fell to the ground, but, rising quickly, hurled a large stone at his assailant, then collapsed and was taken to a hospital. The man with the knife was arrested.

Advices from Mendoza say that a landslide occurred at Kilometer 55 on the Trans-Andean Railway yesterday morning a few minutes before the train bearing the Prince of Wales as due to pass. The slide, which completely blocked the line, occurred soon after the snowplow and pilot engine had passed.

It is again snowing heavily on the Chilean side of the mountains.

'Judgment of the Storm'

A WONDERFUL STORY.

Thrilling Feature Voted the Best Seen in This City This Season.

As already stated in these columns, "Judgment of the Storm" a super special now showing at the Majestic Theatre, is by far one of the most outstanding films of its kind screened in this city. The dramatization was indeed very impressive, and from start to finish, the audience last night enjoyed a series of thrills seldom offered in any one subject.

The story was written by a young Pittsburgh girl and was chosen as the best from several thousands of photographs submitted to the Palmer Photo-play School. An extensive publicity campaign has been mapped out by F. B. O. to back up the picture.

There is an excellent cast headed by Lloyd Hughes, Hughes is capital as John Trevor and gets every ounce out of the part. Myrtle Stegman, as his mother, puts in a very convincing performance. Lucille Rickson, George Hackathorne, and Clair MacDowell render good support. There is an excellently staged storm, and throughout, the production is very good.

The story concerns a youth whose mother runs a gambling den. When he discovers this, following the death of a young man in the place, he offers himself in place of the man who was killed and works on the farm. In a terrific storm he saves the twins of the farmer lady and her son, and is reunited with his mother.

As there are three shows every week now at the Majestic Theatre, to-night is the last opportunity the public of St. John's have of seeing "Judgment of the Storm," and all should avail of this one and only opportunity to see the greatest picture shown this season.

VAIL-BECK.

Gower Street United Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding yesterday, when at 5.30 p.m. Rev. Hammond Johnson united in the silken bonds of matrimony Mr. Geo. C. Beck, well known young business man of Placentia Bay, and Miss Alma Vail of Lower Island Cove.

The bride, who was given away by her uncle, Mr. Hedley Garland of the G.P.O., was attired in rare blue satin, with veil and orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of carnations and maiden hair fern. She was attended by Miss Louise Beck, sister of the groom, who wore a gown of white silk Canton crepe with black picture hat. Mr. Lewis Hollett of Sound Island ably supported the groom.

After the ceremony the party drove to Quill Vidi and from thence to Bowring Park, returning at 7 o'clock to the Sterling Restaurant where supper was partaken of. The health of the bride was proposed by Mr. Garland in a happy speech and was ably responded to. A very happy evening was spent, after which the bride and groom, repaired to the home of the groom's uncle, South Side West, where further entertainment for the many guests was provided.

The groom's present to the bride was a rope of beautiful pearls, to the bride a diamond pendant, and to the best man cuff links. The many valuable presents and congratulatory telegrams received testified to the popularity of the happy young couple, who left by to-day's express for Arnold's Cove their future home.

Mrs. Harmsworth Dead

MOTHER OF A FAMILY OF DISTINGUISHED SONS.

A gentlewoman of unique strength of character and sweetness of disposition has passed away in the person of Mrs. Harmsworth, of Poynter's Hall, Totteridge, widow of Mr. Alfred Harmsworth, and mother of the late Viscount Northcliffe. She had reached the great age of 86, and was a younger daughter of Mr. William Maffett, a Dublin land agent. The Maffetts were descended from a Scottish family settled in County Down. At the age of 28, when she married Mr. Alfred Harmsworth, then a master on the staff of the Royal Hibernian School, Dublin, Miss Maffett was a travelled and well-read woman, with a great talent for music. Three years after their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Harmsworth moved to London, and made their home at Hampstead. The young wife did not feel that the career of an assistant schoolmaster was one worthy of her husband's abilities. She induced him to enter as a law student, first at the King's Inns, Dublin, and, in 1866, at the Middle Temple. He was called to the Bar in 1868. Fifty-five years later (1924) his widow and their eldest surviving son, Viscount Rothermere, presented £20,000 to the Middle Temple for the establishment of a benevolent endowment to be known as the "Alfred Harmsworth Memorial Fund" in his memory. The affection existing between her and her sons, her eldest, Lord Northcliffe, in particular, was a very deep one. Her influence was never used in the ignoble cause. Mrs. Harmsworth took the closest interest in her grandsons and granddaughters, and she was especially pleased when one of the former, Mr. Esmond Harmsworth, was returned to the House of Commons in 1919 as member for Thetford, which constituency he still represents. He was then 21 years and five months old, and was the youngest M.P. who had sat in Parliament for over a century. Mrs. Harmsworth's most interesting travel experience was her visit with her eldest son to the United States and Canada at the time of Theodore Roosevelt's tenure of office. She had lunch at the White House with the President, who treated her with exceptional distinction, and always retained a great admiration for her. The interment took place in St. Marybone Cemetery, East Finchley, in the grave in which Mr. Alfred Harmsworth and Lord Northcliffe are buried. The chief mourners were Viscount Rothermere, Mr. Cecil Harmsworth, Sir Leicester Harmsworth, Sir Guy Harmsworth, Mr. Charles Harmsworth, Mrs. Mrs. Wild and Mrs. Burton, sons and daughters. Lady (Lucas) King and Mr. St. John Harmsworth were unable to attend. The first part of the service was held in the little church of St. Andrew at Totteridge, and was conducted by the vicar, the Rev. C. W. McLaughlin. On the coffin was a large cross of lilies, with a card inscribed, "With her children's everlasting love." Three large caskets were filled inside and out with floral offerings, which included tributes from the directors and staffs of the newspapers and other concerns with which Mrs. Harmsworth's sons are associated.

A NEW WORLD FEDERATION
Is Its Consummation Feasible?

Public attention in Newfoundland has been directed of late to the trade treaty arranged between Canada and the West Indies and particularly to the clauses which place us at a disadvantage in the matter of marketing our fish in certain of the Islands. It does not matter what view we take of the pact—whether we regard Canada's action as unneighbourly, or whether we admit that there was no reason why the Dominion should consider our interests one way or another—we cannot overlook the fact that in our isolated position Newfoundland stands in danger of being ignored with even more serious consequences in the event of other treaties of a similar kind being effected. Speaking in Amherst, Nova Scotia, on Tuesday last, the Prime Minister of Canada referred to the difficulties which faced the Province in disposing of its products, owing to the long and expensive rail haul to the Upper Canadian markets, and to the high tariff wall which shut them out of the United States, and he intimated that he would seek to provide new and wider markets by means of trade agreements, preferential tariffs and treaties.

Do these proposed agreements threaten to place us at an even further disadvantage in the markets of the world, and what can be done to prevent such a calamity?

The main difficulty with which we are confronted in any attempt to negotiate a preferential trade treaty is that it is beyond our power to offer our customers reciprocal concessions. Already Jamaica threatens to cancel the 25 p.c. preference agreement with this country because the advantages are altogether too one-sided. Last year, for instance, we purchased from Jamaica goods valued at $2,257, but the Jamaican imports from Newfoundland amounted to $124,817.

What is the position in relation to our chief markets? The returns for the year ending June 30th, 1924, are given in the Board of Trade Report as follows:—

Countries:	Imports:	Exports:
Spain	$ 87,818	$2,158,024
Portugal	59,314	2,018,493
Italy	952	1,045,336
Brazil		985,332
Greece	66,897	345,648
British West Indies	659,793	782,964
Foreign West Indies	691	679,567

In practically every case the balance of the export trade is so heavily in our favour that there would seem to be little chance of these countries seriously considering any proposals in the nature of a preferential agreement, and under the present tariff system it is questionable if we could afford to forego any considerable portion of the revenue collected on goods imported from these countries.

It has been intimated that negotiations will be undertaken with the West Indies to safeguard our fish business, and in his interview at Halifax, the Prime Minister is reported to have stated that following the Washington Conference, he would proceed to Ottawa to discuss trade matters with Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance. It is gratifying to know that the problem is receiving the most serious attention of the Government, and it is earnestly to be hoped that from these consultations a solution will result.

The West Indies, it is only reasonable to conclude, will consider any proposals solely from a business point of view, and will expect in return for any concessions a quid pro quo, and the question is can we give it? The West Indies agreement is essentially a reciprocity treaty, but the point which concerns us particularly is that by it the Federal authorities have secured for Nova Scotia material advantages in the matter of disposing of her fish. One of the objects of Ottawa in this connection, it must be presumed, was to ally in a measure the feeling in the Province that it had not been receiving a proper share of consideration at the hands of the Federal authorities. Up till now Newfoundland has been Nova Scotia's most formidable rival in this trade, and however desirous the Federal Government may be to enable this country to enjoy the same privileges as those secured for the Province, it hardly seems likely that they would take any such action and thereby revive the animosity of the people of Nova Scotia.

It has been suggested in an unofficial quarter that advantage might be taken by Newfoundland of Article VIII in the Canada-West Indies Agreement, and that negotiations should be opened with the idea of making it a tripartite pact. The Article reads: "Save as herein otherwise provided this Agreement shall not interfere with any existing preference or with the granting of any future preference by the Dominion or by any other part of the British Empire or with any existing preference or the granting of any future preference by the said Colonies among themselves."

The only possible basis for an agreement including all three parties, would be the granting of preferential rates by all concerned. This would undoubtedly be satisfactory to Canada, from whom under present circumstances we are purchasing approximately $11,000,000 worth of goods, but how should we make up for the loss of revenue not only on the amount of importations taxable now, but also on the additional quantity which she would supply under a preference system, and which formerly was obtained from other sources?

A more serious result of any such agreement would be that the preference granted on Canadian goods would automatically erect a tariff wall against British merchandise. This would defeat the very object which the Mother Country is trying to encourage, namely, closer trade relationship between herself and the Overseas Dominions. Further, any such agreement would most certainly be regarded in this country as the first step towards Confederation, and it is useless to attempt to disguise the fact that the slightest movement in that direction would arouse considerable opposition in the Island.

Since there are such insuperable obstacles in the way of a solution of our problems in the directions mentioned, is there any other way out? Is it possible, for example, that out of our difficulties may arise a discussion of a far bigger question, namely, the federation of the British Dependencies in North America? It cannot be denied that even if events are not already leading in that direction, the consummation of such a union is eminently to be desired. The minds of the statesmen both in Great Britain and Overseas are occupied with the question of fostering improved trade relations within the Empire, and everywhere it is agreed that the closing up of the ranks is essential in order to meet competition and to preserve our entity.

The uniting of the British West Indian Islands, Canada and Newfoundland in a New World Commonwealth would be the most important event in the Empire's history and the advantages which would result both individually and collectively would be incalculable. Impossible as this vast project may appear at first glance, it must be remembered that there are precedents for such a federation. The Commonwealth of Australia is one and the Union of South Africa is another, and in the case of the suggested union, neither the geographical difficulties, conflicting commercial interests, nor the racial differences would present any more serious obstacles than those overcome in the federations already accomplished.

In the event of such an alliance being formed, what territory in the whole of British North America would constitute a better nucleus of the Commonwealth than the Oldest Colony, with St. John's as the Capital? Looking at the matter from a purely local standpoint, we are unable to conceive how it could be otherwise than to our advantage. Newfoundland would not be derated; she would not sink, for example, from a position of independence to that of a province. Retaining her present status, she would be enabled to participate in all trade privileges at present agreed upon, and that, without any sacrifices, and she would then fulfil her destiny as the gateway of the Western World in the fullest sense. If St. John's as the most centrally situated of the cities of the Commonwealth became its capital, we should have reached the highest peak of our ambitions.

A Name for the New Hotel

There is much talk and discussion at the present time, over the name to be given the new Hotel now being built here by The Newfoundland Hotel Facilities, Ltd., and several suggestions have been offered.

The promoters, at first, called it "The Newfoundland Hotel" with the idea of advertising both the Hotel and the Colony by the use of the word Newfoundland. Later it was called "The Royal Newfoundland Hotel." While the word Royal adds distinction it tends to eliminate the remainder of the name for people speak of "The Royal Hotel" or only "The Royal" rather than of "The Royal Newfoundland Hotel." As abbreviations are very popular to-day, if the latter name is adhered to, the Hotel will lose its distinct identity and become merely one of the many Royal Hotels, some of them very insignificant, which are scattered over the face of the universe.

Shakespeare's "What's in a Name" applies here as well as elsewhere and no matter what name it may bear, the Hotel will fill the long felt want for which it is being built; but in order to select a suitable and popular name, it would be interesting to have a contest, with one or two prizes offered, for the name that the judges would consider most valuable from an advertising and historical point of view, the contestants being obliged to state the reasons for their choice.

It is not generally known that while excavating for the foundations of the cellar and cold storage part of the Hotel, the contractors unearthed two tunnels, one of which is supposed to have communicated with Signal Hill in the olden days. This information should lead to some research work on the part of those who are historically inclined and perhaps the public archives could supply some details as to the construction as well as to the destruction of old Fort William.

Tug Boat Arrives Short of Supplies

S.S. Coalapolis, Capt. Verill, arrived from Middleborough, Eng., yesterday short of supplies. The ship met with adverse weather conditions, having been 24 days on the Atlantic bound to Halifax. The Coalapolis has been purchased by Messrs. G. S. Campbell and Company, Agents for the Red Cross Line at Halifax, to be used as a tug boat. As soon as a fresh supply of coal and water has been placed on board she will continue the run to Halifax.

A magisterial enquiry into the death of John Laxman, which occurred at the General Hospital, was begun at the Magistrate's Court yesterday afternoon, when Dr. Fox and Superintendent Parsons gave evidence. Laxman was serving a three months' term at the Penitentiary for a breach of the Alcoholic Liquors Act.

"So This is London"

BRILLIANT 3-ACT COMEDY THOROUGHLY ENJOYED.

Laugh after laugh greeted the Harkins' players at the Casino last night in the presentation of "So This is London," a brilliant 3-act comedy by Arthur Goodrich. The entire company is included in the cast. The opposing characteristics of the Englishman and American are the basis of the play. One moment it is kidding or spoofing the English, and in the next the American is being kidded. In other words the play is fifty fifty or an even break between the two great nations.

The play, under the direction of Joseph Selman, met with a splendid reception, and the audience was kept in a hilarious mood throughout the performance. To tell the story of the play might spoil the interest for future audiences. Of the players we wish to say that Miss Deane was delightful as Elinor Beauchamp, the English girl. Mr. Joseph Selman played the part of a brusque American business man, and his portrayal was perfect. Mr. Fred Neilson took the part of Sir Percy Beauchamp. Those who saw him in the "Acquittal," as Kenneth Winthrop, the murderer, could scarcely suspect he possessed the consummate humor necessary for the part he played last night, as an English gentleman. Miss E. Du Bois as Mrs. Hiram Draper, the American wife, was charming. She is an actress of much experience. Her burlesque of the character in the second act brought forth peals of laughter. Miss Mary Jepp as the peace-maker between the two families played her part with splendid success. She faultlessly represented the wife of an English nobleman. Miss Doris Haslett as the English mother was equally as charming. Mr. Demler as the American boy and Rex Benware as the English business man were both excellent, and Messrs. James Bliss, James Morey and George Rodgers in smaller parts rounded out a most acceptable performance.

The ladies of the company wore gowns that appealed to the good taste of the spectators, and the stage settings were all that could be desired. The singing by Mr. Rogers added considerably to the enjoyment of the evening. He has a splendid voice, and it is hoped he will be heard in future performances.

Last night there was a crowded house, and extra chairs had to be placed to accommodate patrons. The boxes, too, were filled. The play will be repeated to-night, and tickets may be had at Chessman's. To-morrow being a general holiday reserved seats will be on sale at the box office of the Casino from 10 a.m.

Obituary

JAMES MIFFLIN LAWRENCE.

The intimation yesterday morning of the sudden illness of Mr. James Lawrence was followed shortly afterwards by a brief message to the effect that he had passed away, death being due to a paralytic stroke.

To those who were acquainted with the deceased, and they were many, the news was learned with deep regret, for all who had occasion to associate with him in any manner held him in the very highest esteem and regard because of his unflinching courtesy and his cheery disposition.

Born in Bonavista, seventy one years ago he came to St. John's in 1869 with his brother Thomas, whose death occurred two years ago, and entered the employ of the late Samuel Carrall, the grandfather of Mr. Arthur Carrall. After serving his time, he started a carriage factory business in partnership with his brother near the site of the Croftie Hotel. Following the fire the factory was rebuilt on its present site on Gower Street.

Prominently identified with the Nfld. British Society, he was always foremost in promoting its welfare, and in addition to being a Past Master he held up to the time of his death the position of President of the Board of Guardians, Prince Albert Branch.

He was a prominent member of St. Thomas's Church, of which he was for years one of the eldersmen. When Dr. Jones founded the Llewellyn Club Mr. Lawrence was elected as Vice President, and he remained a member of the Committee for some time. He was identified with St. Andrew's Brotherhood since the days of Canon Arthur Wood. In his younger days he was a member of the Cathedral Men's Bible Class and he retained his connection with the harbor mission boat to the end. In every respect he was an exemplary citizen, his whole life being a steady contribution to integrity and faithfulness.

The surviving relatives of the deceased are one son, Jack, who resides in the U.S.A.; two daughters, Edith, the wife of Mr. S. Roger, and Nellie, who resides at home, and there are two brothers living George of this city and John in Bonavista. To the bereaved the Telegram extends sympathy. The funeral takes place from his late residence, 53 Hayward Avenue, to-morrow afternoon.

The Delegation and Newfoundland

Newfoundland did its full duty to the delegates, and accorded them a reception worthy the good name of the people. This is proverbial of our land, and long may it be so, for the good of all concerned.

The visit now rates as past history, in which dual interests are involved, and which may have great results on both sides. Newfoundland has ever been loyal to the Empire, nor has she ever swerved in her allegiance to the Flag; and if the visit of the delegates will tend to strengthen the bond of unity between the mother and the child something worth while shall have been accomplished. There may be changes in the administration of government, and she may eventually become part of Canada, and with the British West Indies, form one great dominion; but whatever her destiny may be, we want to see her still under the folds of the Union Jack, and still a part of the great British Empire. As a British dependency she has held her own in the past, and as such she will continue. Let who will talk of annexation to the U.S.A., Newfoundland is British to the core.

This is one lesson which the visit of the Imperial delegates taught us, and it is a lesson we do well to remember. The Empire needs the confidence of its people, and she looks to them for loyal support, and the great majority of them are giving it. But there are danger spots within the Empire, and there are various factions at work for her overthrow, and some of them very pronounced. This is regrettable, but it is the case. No impartial person can read the current literature of the day, nor can they read the messages sent by the public dispatches without feeling convinced, that among the enemies of the Empire, some of the most dangerous are within her own gates.

Against the machinations of such agencies as these there is need of caution; hence every prop that supports the Empire is worthy of recognition, and we think that the Parliamentary Deputation should prove a strong prop. All their words breathe of Empire, and they stood shoulder to shoulder for the best. They wish to see the Empire at its best, and when they shall have finished their tour of the Empire, and have learned its vastness, they will see as never before, how great was their mission, and what a tremendous responsibility was entrusted to them.

But coming nearer home there is room for reflection as to where we ourselves stand in the estimation of the deputation. We may not be aware of all they saw or heard or thought; but we do know that they have departed from us with a wider conception than they brought with them. In many of their speeches they plainly intimated this. Thus they will be in a position to refer to us with certainty, and having read some of our local literature, they may be counted upon to speak with authority. The delegates learned a lot about Newfoundland in a short time; of course it was their business to do so. In this there is a lesson for our own people, for some of them have neglected to learn or to understand their own country.

And yet we have quite a nice share of local literature; all of which supplies useful information at first hand. Last Tuesday an article was published in the Daily News by Visior, which would be worth while if read in every day school in the land. The article, or rather articles, for there was a second, treated upon Ferryland, and was replete with history and savoured of romance, and abounded with good sense, and was one of the many of the best, which for a quarter of a century Visior has given to the public. Such writings as these are what Newfoundland needs.

Among several other publications which of late have appeared, that of Mr. R. Hibbs may be said to be the most up-to-date. "Newfoundland for Business and Pleasure" is the title of the book. The title is well chosen and really suggests the contents as well as the object of the book. Mr. Hibbs has done well in his endeavour to elevate his country, and to place her in a better position before the public; and just now, when we seem to be on the eye of some "real tourist" trade, his book will certainly be in demand. We congratulate the author and wish him well. His success is identical with the country's, for if his book is read the country will be better known and her facilities of travel better understood.

We say the delegates saw and learned a lot of Newfoundland. We ourselves should take a leaf from their book, and request ourselves with our own history, much of which is being lost. The British parliament did its duty in sending out the deputation, and in including us so early in the programme; and the deputation did its duty while present with us. Let us now do our part and arise to the opportunities of the hour. There is something that we each can do. It may not be much, but little or much, let us do our part, and put our "shoulder to the wheel" for the land we love.

(Concluded on Friday.)

I can perform feats of strength that no other man of my weight in the world would risk his life to try and duplicate, yet two and a half years ago I was no stronger than you are. Now I am not altogether interested in myself alone and would like to see you become just as strong and just as healthy as I am and would like to get a full three month's course of 12 lessons, one lesson each week.

You do your training at home, anytime in the day or evening that suits you best. I guarantee to improve you 100 per cent. during the three months you are under my training. I have exercises to suit every person—men, women and children, from the age of three years upwards. My oldest pupil is 82 years of age. I instruct doctors, lawyers, clergymen, business men, and men who do manual labour. It does not make any difference who you are, where you were born or what you are doing unless you have done the proper exercise you are not enjoying the pleasure of having a well developed body. Health, strength and development go hand and hand. It is quite impossible to have one alone without the other two. This is your first opportunity in Newfoundland to get a personal course in physical culture and don't wait for it to come your way again as you may have to wait a long while. Get busy while I am here and don't waste time thinking about it. I will be very pleased to give you a helping hand. The opportunity is yours to buy a well developed body for the small sum of ten dollars. Are you ready? I am with you. A wise person will not let this opportunity pass them.

Says Labor and Capital Should Stand Together

PRESIDENT OF SEAMEN'S UNION AT CANADIAN CLUB.

A strong plea for a better understanding between capital and labor was made by J. Havelock Wilson, president of the National Union of Seamen, when he addressed the members of the Canadian Club at the Windsor Hotel this afternoon on the industrial situation in Great Britain.

"It is what I started to fight for 50 years ago and what I am fighting for today," said Mr. Wilson. "Capital and labor have an affinity, there is a common interest between the two. Some people are foolish enough to say that the interests of capital and labor are not identical. That is their nonsense. Capital cannot make headway without labor, nor yet can labor make progress without capital."

It was this he had in view when negotiating for his union with the shipowners, continued Mr. Wilson. In this connection he made the statement that he had a mandate from the members of the union to agree to the reduction in wages that has caused the disturbances in the shipping world.

It is scornful attack on labor leaders who sought all the publicity they could get out of labor disputes, Mr. Wilson told of the manner in which the negotiations with the shipowners were conducted. There was no bitter struggle, no brilliant speeches on the part of the labor leaders, but only men gathered round a table in an attempt to settle the question.

"There are some working men," said the speaker, "who like to applaud brilliant speeches. I am not concerned about that."

Mutual Confidence

"Speaking of the industrial situation in England Mr. Wilson said: 'I was not always good natured. I remember a time when I was one of the hottest men in England. But I was a patriot. I always believed in my country and the British Empire, and what I started to fight for 50 years ago was a better relation between capital and labor.'

"I have been trying to find a solution whereby the workman should have what he is entitled to and capital get all it is entitled to receive as a result of a combination of the two forces."

"For the last seven years in the Old Country I have been pleading for industrial peace. I would like the employers to have more faith and confidence in Trade Unions. I know some of you look with a degree of suspicion on labor unions, but I am not going to complain of that because I have seen for many years you have good ground not to have confidence. I have seen labor unions started very favorably, but as soon as they got power they lost their heads and tried to do impossibilities."

Meet As Friends.

Wilson continued that he wanted unions to run on sensible lines, so that when disputes had to be settled representatives of capital and labor would meet as friends and not as enemies.

"At the present time in Great Britain I know of controversies that come on. Instead of settling these ordinary questions in a matter of two or three hours, these conferences are drawn out for two or three weeks, sometimes months."

The result was that trade was depressed as it had been in Great Britain this year by the threat of industrial shares had fallen disastrously in many cases.

"This is due to stupidity, instead of getting together and ending disputes in a few hours there are those who try and make a spectacular display."

Delegates were photographed going into the conference room, photographed again coming out, with a serious look on their faces. They have to be photographed at every angle of the game.

"Sailors may be stupid," said Mr. Wilson, amid laughter, "but by Heavens we have got past that part of the game."

After further references to the publicity given to such matters, Mr. Wilson went on to recount what had happened in the matter of the sailors' wages. They had received an advance of £1 last year, because trade seemed to be improving, but when the reverse happened and trade got worse a reduction was accepted. This did not suit the Reds, but the strike that had commenced was not a strike of seamen, he avowed, but a strike of unemployed, aided by the Reds.

Trawlers Fight 'Plane

POACHING WAR OFF THE CLYDE.

So defiant and resourceful have become trawlers poaching in the Firth of Clyde—a cruiser and a hydroplane have been useless to prevent the illegal fishing—that the submarine chaser Spycy has been drafted into those waters.

One morning a seaplane which has been assisting the Fishery Board's cruiser Vigilant swooped down upon a group of eight trawlers off Ailsa Craig. Orders were given for the trawlers to heave to and await the coming of the Vigilant.

Far from complying with this order, the trawlermen offered the stoutest resistance to the effort of the crew of the hydroplane to get to close quarters. The two officers of the Vigilant who manned the plane found themselves menaced with long poles wielded by the men in the trawlers, who had taken care that their faces were well blackened so as to hide their identity.

Barrier of Flame.

Lumps of coal were thrown at the officers. A hose was turned on them, and finally fireballs, composed of cotton waste soaked in oil and set alight, were thrown into the sea. These formed a most effective barrier, and, in face of the danger to the petrol tank, the plane had to return to the cruiser.

Every trawler was in disguise. The names and numbers and letters which denote port of registry were all carefully hidden, either with a covering of netting or sacking, or with an oily substance which is easily compounded and can readily be removed when the vessel makes for port.

The seaplane has not been long added to the equipment of the Vigilant, and its success in tracing poachers has apparently aroused the resentment of the trawlermen. They argue that there was an element of sport in the old order of things, when the Vigilant had to depend entirely upon her own speed, which was not always superior to that of the vessel chased.

To prevent the repetition of such an incident as that which has now come to light, the Spycy, which has a speed of 23 knots and has business-like guns, has made its appearance in the Firth of Clyde waters.

15-Miles Chase.

Two trawlers, one belonging to Aberdeen and the other to Fleetwood, were fined £165 and £135 respectively at the Campbelltown Sheriff Court for illegal fishing in the Firth of Clyde, concealment of their identity, and refusal to stop when called on by the fishery cruiser.

Evidence was given that seven trawlers were sighted by H. M. S. Vigilant in prohibited waters and a hydroplane was sent out. All steamed away, and although one was overhauled she refused to stop and made her escape.

The next day two trawlers were sighted and one was chased by the Vigilant for 18 miles before she hoove to. The other was intercepted by the Spycy.

A BUMPER CROP FOR 1925.

According to the Bureau of Statistics, just issued, the crop estimate of Canada for 1925, has the wheat yield at 381,000,000 bushels, almost 130,000,000 bushels greater than that of 1924, and beating the high-water mark of 1915 by 15,000,000 bushels. It was thought that as the season advanced the crop would not be so large, owing to storm and drought, insects and disease. The acreage sown to wheat this year exceeded that of 1924 by about 150,000 bushels. The average yield per acre this year was 17.3 bushels, as against 11.9 bushels in 1924. The quality also promises to be fair. The effect of such a bumper crop on business in general should be good although the prices may be less than last year.

THE MODERN CRIMINAL MIND.

The crime wave which is rampant in the United States and growing throughout parts of Canada is calling for much comment from newspapers and magazines. Some writers lay the blame on the home and the schools, while others think that the clergy have failed in their office by not instructing the youth in the true principles, character-building and the essentials of right conduct. It is a principle that when a person goes wrong some one must be made the scapegoat. The following is taken from the New York Commercial:

Walter B. Brown, of Montclair, N.J., one of a party of excursionists on the steamer City of Boston hearing the cry "Boy Overboard" threw off his coat and leaped into the water. He saved the drowning boy after an heroic struggle. Returning to the steamer he found that a thief had stolen his purse containing $200 from a pocket of the coat he had dropped on the deck before engaging in his work of rescue.—News Item.

The modern criminal mind is the meanest mentally that the world has ever known. In the days of Jesse James and highwaymen of his brand, had such a one been on the boat when Brown jumped overboard to save the boy from drowning, Brown's belongings left behind would have been perfectly safe and Jesse James would himself have jumped in to save the boy in all probability.

But the modern criminal is too low down mentally to be fitly described in a language consisting of more than 40,000 words, many of them terms of epithet, opprobrium and reproach.

The criminal of the present has no compunction against taking human life wantonly. Every gunman is a sneak. Not one of them has any reverence for anything that decent people respect of reverence. All are parasites in that they will not work; all are sneering fools who hate decency of any kind; the virtues that are worthy attributes of human beings they flout. No crime is too mean for them, no vice too low, no act too cowardly.

The modern criminal has no love for family, home or country. He will kill a baby for his bottle, if the bottle could get a few cents and, as in the case cited, the spectacle of an heroic deed which should and does claim the admiration and applause of decent persons, is merely to him an opportunity to ply his hellish calling.

If to-morrow a typical present-day thug could get a few dollars by setting fire to a building and killing twenty persons he would not hesitate for a minute.

It is the sort of creature which the foregoing description fits, who come in for especial consideration at the hands of juries, courts and parole boards, composed of supposedly intelligent individuals.

While it is not possible to truthfully say a word in extenuation of the modern criminal, he has yet become the loving concern of modern "psychologists" with a penchant for coddling those who betray the most evil natures. This strictly modern practice of making pets and companions of hardened felons explains the prevalence of crime in the United States.

Who will say that if the thief who stole Mr. Brown's purse were caught and convicted that he would not be permitted to go on "suspended sentence"? And who will say that if he were convicted and sentenced that some "prison reformer" would not ask that he be given his "freedom"? Also, who will say that if by some rare chance he were sent up that a parole board would not hastily turn him loose? Indeed, who will say that there is any likelihood that a jury would be found that would convict him?

When a few years ago the sobbing sentimentalists were crying all over the place and declaring that rough treatment for the criminal class is all wrong, a foolish public permitted them to have their way. Now we have not only more criminals per thousand than ever, but what is quite as much to the point, the meanest brand that has ever been spawned. The more consideration they get, the viler in nature do they become.

respect of those in authority of both nationalities. During the absence of the French Chancellor, Very Rev. Canon Albert Valois, who accompanied the Archbishop to Rome last year, Fr. O'Rourke performed the difficult task of attending to the work of the whole Archdiocese, containing 806 Priests. After his ordination, he was assigned to St. Patrick's Church, as Curate, and after a year there was appointed English Chancellor. Rev. John L. O'Rourke is well known to many of the Clergy of Newfoundland, being an intimate friend of His Lordship Bishop Renault of Bay St. George's. On two occasions, when he was an ecclesiastical student, he visited Newfoundland and has many friends in St. John's and other parts of the island. During his stay at the Archbishop's Palace he refused the honor of being appointed a regular Canon. He has reached his 34th year, and from his work as lecturer on Apologetics at the Ladies' Normal School at the Mother House of the Sisters of the Congregation of Notre Dame, he bids fair to make an excellent Visitor of the Schools. He succeeds Rev. Father Martin P. Reid, who became Pastor of St. Thomas Aquinas Church. Father O'Rourke will begin his new duties this week and for the present will be stationed at St. Thomas Aquinas Presbytery, St. John's.

Friday afternoon, Sept. 11th, will the Metropolis on account of a tornado which swept over the city a few minutes after 2 o'clock. Dark, conical shaped clouds gathered at the mountain vivid with lightning, and burst with a vengeance that has never been witnessed before. The Mountain saved the city from destruction. Wind, rain, hail, came thundering from the heavens, and for fifteen minutes terror and consternation reigned supreme. The elements came with a roaring, hissing sound, and then almost total darkness followed. It was a tornado, the first of its kind ever experienced in the city. The rain was whirled around in circles, the hailstones beat with vengeance against window panes and shutters, the wind uprooted thousands of trees and made kindling wood of thousands of others, horses and wagons were rolled over in the streets, the sewers were flooded, the street car service was put out of commission, in some cases for very nearly an hour, confusion reigned in schools, churches and big offices owing to the light being cut off, and over a million dollars' worth of damage was done to buildings, orchards and telegraph lines. One man was killed trying to avoid a falling wire, and two women and a boy were seriously injured. And to think that it took only from ten to fifteen minutes to cause such havoc! In some churches where the annual retreat for the school children was being held, many of the smaller children became hysterical, and pandemonium reigned for a time until the teachers and priests restored peace and quietude. In the schools the scene was one of terror for some and soltity for others. Some cried; others prayed; while others, again, sang. When the heavens cleared and the storm was at an end, all were glad.

Lone Voyager Starts on Long Trip in Arctic

OTTAWA, Sept. 15.—When Baron Byng's northward drive to the Arctic Ocean ended on August 1, at Aklavik, the northern outpost of civilization, another remarkable expedition began and, unless misfortune intervenes, it will be terminated about 12 months from now. Major L. T. Burwash, F.R.G.S., who accompanied his Excellency the Governor General to the Arctic coast, almost immediately afterwards, commenced the first one-man trip along the so-called "Northwest Passage" from west to east.

From what is known by officials of the Department of the Interior here Major Burwash is now at Coronation Gulf, about one quarter of the distance around the north and the east coast of the Dominion. The trip from Aklavik to Coronation Gulf was done by boat. From the Gulf for the remainder of the long, blank journey Major Burwash will travel by foot.

"LESS THAN THE DUST."

A Letter Friend wants me to prescribe some remedy for one of the oldest diseases in the world. "I wonder," she writes, "if—well, it's this way. I'm in love and he's more than wonderful. But it's a case 'less than the dust'—on my side of course. Even though you've never had such painful experience, you do seem to know so much and just the right thing to do. Would you write a talk about my case and tell me what to do? How I wish I could say something that would ease the million heartaches which this one is a type.

The Real Tragedy.

It is truly a poignantly painful thing to be in love when that love is not reciprocated. And yet, even if I knew of some way to cure her of her trouble I am not sure I should want to do it. While it is a poignantly painful thing it is also a beautiful thing. The greatest happiness in life is to love and be loved in return equally. But I do not think the greatest tragedy in life is to be loved—it is never to have loved.

And That Too Is A Compensation.

Of course unrequited love brings a great deal of pain but it also brings a certain kind of selfless exalted happiness that even requited love cannot bring. If the one you love loves you in return, you can't help subconsciously knowing that there is something earthly and common about him. But if he shines like a star above you, and you are "less than the dust," you can know what Emerson meant when he wrote, "Had I a lover noble and free would he were nobler than to love me."

"And Stab My Spirit Wide Awake."

Do you remember Stevenson's plea for the heart that is dead to the simple beauty and pleasure around it? "Lord thy most poignant pleasure take and stab my spirit wide awake."

That is what love does even when it is not requited—it stabs the spirit wide awake.

Of course nobody would wish such an experience to come to him. Just as no one would will that he should be saved from the curse of too much money and too little work. We want all the love and all the money we can get. As to what we give, we are less concerned. And yet happiness lies in giving more than in getting. I suppose the millennium will have come when people are ready to accept that truth.

Just Folks.

THE BUTTERFLY DISCUSSES EVOLUTION.

"In a very recent age," said a wise and serious sage to a butterfly with wings of golden flame,

"You were not so far to see you've a horrid ancestry. From a crawling caterpillar stock you came."

"Now you proudly spread your wings and you feed on dainty things. You are beautiful to look at, but I shrug my shoulders with disdain. When I think how very plain you must have been when you were but a slug."

Said the butterfly: "I know in some distant long ago As a caterpillar crawling on my way I was lowly as could be. But what's that to you or me? I am certainly a butterfly to-day!"

"As a caterpillar slow I could never guess or know What my purpose was while crawling on the bough. But I stretch my wings and fly. And you surely can't deny That I am a lovely butterfly right now!"

Trafalgar in Unholy Mess, Says Sculptor

LONDON, September 10.—Trafalgar Square, which carries all sentiments of pride of home to faraway Englishmen, is only an unholy mess that jars the aesthetic senses of Jacob Epstein, the United States sculptor.

Defending his last creation, the memorial to W. H. Hudson, the famous naturalist and writer, who died in London in 1922, which has been widely criticized adversely, Mr. Epstein in an interview says: "There are hardly any good statues in London. Look at that fearful concoction in front of Buckingham Palace. It is so big that one cannot avoid seeing it. Look at Trafalgar Square—what an unholy mess! It is the worst square in the world. Think of that column in the middle carrying a puny figure of Nelson, which is out of proportion and cannot be seen."

The sculptor's idea about the huge white marble memorial to Queen Victoria outside Buckingham Palace is more or less in agreement with the idea of the late King Edward, who, painfully affected by what he considered the fantastic appearance of the memorial at its unveiling ceremonies, said: "It's a good mate for the memorial to my father."

Our "Soft" Young Men

Dominated By The Women—Explorer To Lead a Manhood Campaign.

Are the young men of this country becoming "soft"? Mr. F. A. Mitchell-Hedges, the explorer, thinks they are, and that if the softening continues they will come under the complete domination of women, to the great detriment of State and sex alike.

Mr. Mitchell-Hedges' discoveries and explorations in the buried Maya city in the jungle of British Honduras, on which he was accompanied by Lady (Richmond) Brown, are well known. He is now organizing a campaign for a "renaissance of British manhood" to prevent domination by the sex which, according to him, is no longer the weaker.

This campaign will take the form of propaganda, mainly by speeches, in cooperation with various societies.

First Signs of Degeneracy. "The young men of this country are exhibiting the first symptoms of degeneracy, and the women are seizing the opportunity to become dominant," he said. "The spread of Communism, bad trade, and the growing distrust between the classes synchronous with a serious decline in the virility of the manhood of this country."

"Take sport as an example. The prestige Britishers held in nearly all games has departed, but women are rapidly coming to the front in this field. This reversal of the laws of nature has begun not only in sport, but in business, and is spreading to politics and Government offices. Woman revels in her conquests. It is her delight to subjugate and dominate men. She treats them as creatures to obey her whims, and at the same time looks on them with contempt."

"In a million homes throughout Great Britain to-day the right type of woman, who is married and has grown-up daughters, deplors this fact, which is leading to the disruption of many a home. Fathers find the greatest difficulty in keeping up with the demands of their grown-up daughters. While all this discomfiture by women is causing a serious state of degeneracy among our manhood, it is also undoubtedly resulting in a loss of trade, for the reason that we are losing the pioneer spirit which made our great Empire what it is."

Man Should Be The Leader. "Every clean-minded, healthy man should be an adventurer at heart. If he is a captain of industry and sends out his travellers to open up new markets he is doing pioneer work. If he has a shop and opens another branch that is pioneering. If he is a salaried man and changes his position to improve his lot it is the spirit of adventure that makes him do it. The adventurous spirit is what has made Great Britain the power she has been, and to-day that power is on the wane.

"The history of all great civilizations of the past is an analogy. There woman-worship became such an obsession that men degenerated and Empires fell as a consequence. It is urgently necessary that in this country there should be a male renaissance. In our public schools the pioneer spirit must be inculcated, pride of race must predominate, and we must realize that by the laws of nature man was fashioned to be leader.

"A national revival of our manhood will, I feel certain, do more than any legislation to wipe out unemployment, create better trade, bring back to us the respect of other nations, which we are in danger of losing, crush Communism, and restore our ideals."

Drivethis frightful disease out of your system.

Here is a woman who lay awake nights suffering from the destructive work of constipation. Read her letter and think what Kellogg's ALL-BRAN means to her.

I am writing this letter to tell you what I think of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, and what it has done for me. I had it only and it has saved me of indescribable pain and I feel it all to be wonderful. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Use this letter if it will help you and others. I thank you.

KATHARINE FRERLAND, (Address on request).

Rid yourself of constipation as thousands have done by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. It has brought prompt, permanent relief after all else has failed.

If eaten regularly Kellogg's ALL-BRAN relieves the most chronic cases. It is guaranteed to do so or your grocer returns the purchase price. Eat at least two tablespoons daily. Serve with milk and cream. Fine with fruits.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is made in London, Canada. Served in leading hotels and restaurants. Sold by all grocers.

She doctored a headache—but a Corn was to blame

A corn isn't just a local pain. The tiny nerves beneath it are on the "main trunk line," linked with all the nerve centers of the system. . . . Doctors know that a tiny lump of callus on the toe—no bigger than a match-head—may make one feel mean all over. Indigestion, a headache, depressed spirits generally, are often corn-reflexes. . . . And Blue-jay makes a corn so needless! A cushiony pad—as cool as velvet—fits over the corn, stopping the pain in five seconds. You wear this two days in blissful comfort. When you take it off, the corn retreats too, gently uprooted by the little brown disc of magic medication within the pad. . . . So dainty, so neat, so quick and sure. Science's final answer to the pain and nuisance of corns. For health's sake, end that corn tonight.

The Life of Canadian Parliaments

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 18.—(By Canadian Press)—The actual life of Canada's Fourteenth parliament, which was dissolved on September 5, was three years, eight months and 30 days. The shortest parliament in point of time was the second after Confederation which sat for one year and four months. The twelfth parliament established the record for longevity by carrying on its work for six years.

The length of service of each parliament since Confederation follows: 1st Parliament—4 years, 9 months and 15 days.
2nd Parliament—1 year, 4 months, 26 days.
3rd Parliament—4 years, 5 months, 25 days.
4th Parliament—3 years, 5 months, 28 days.
5th Parliament—4 years, 5 months, 10 days.
6th Parliament—3 years, 9 months, 27 days.
7th Parliament—5 years.
8th Parliament—4 years, 2 months, 26 days.
9th Parliament—3 years, 9 months, 26 days.
10th Parliament—3 years, 9 months, 4 days.
11th Parliament—2 years, 7 months, 28 days.
12th Parliament—6 years.
13th Parliament—3 years, 7 months, 7 days.
14th Parliament—3 years, 8 months, 30 days.

Four Canadian Parliaments have sat through five sessions, two have held six sessions and the twelfth parliament (war-time government) held seven sessions during its six years in office.

Canada's Commons in Coming Session

OTTAWA, Sept. 19.—(By Canadian Press)—The next session of Parliament—the 15th Parliament—will see a larger representation in the House of Commons than ever before in the history of Canada. Under the Redistribution Act, officially called the Representation Act, 1924, there is 245 members, ten more than in the last Parliament. The Act by taking away two members from Nova Scotia (14 members now instead of 16) and raising the representation of Manitoba from 15 to 17, of Saskatchewan from 16 to 21, of Alberta from 12 to 16, and of British Columbia from 13 to 14, leaves Ontario, Quebec, Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick and the Yukon unaffected.

In the re-allocation of seats among the provinces and the total increase of ten members, considerable changes in the boundaries of the constituencies have been effected. A summary of the alterations follows:

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND—No change.

NOVA SCOTIA—The Constituencies of Hants and King's are united (Hants-Kings). Shelburne and Queen's are divided (Queen's-Lunenburg and Shelburne-Yarmouth); South Cape Breton and Richmond, which formerly elected two members are created separate constituencies, each to return one member (Cape Breton South and Richmond-West Cape Breton).

NEW BRUNSWICK—No change, except in the name of St. John City and counties of St. John and Albert which is renamed St. John-Albert.

QUEBEC—While the number of members is unchanged the ridings of Missisquoi and Brome are combined, as are also those of Beauce and Berthier-Maskinong Chateaufort-Saguenay is divided, Chateaufort being created a separate riding while Saguenay is added to Charlevoix (Charlevoix-Saguenay); Montmorency, formerly united with Charlevoix, is joined with part of Quebec County in a new constituency (Quebec-Montmorency); a new constituency is created under the name of Lake St. John, while another new one (Mount Royal), on the island of Montreal, includes Westmount, Notre Dame du Grac, Montreal West, Hampstead and Mount Royal. St. Henri is made a separate riding and George Etienne Cartier is renamed Cartier.

ONTARIO—The ridings of Starmont and Glenagary is divided into two separate constituencies; Dundas and Greenville are united (Dundas-Greenville); Lennox and Addington are divided and added respectively to Prince Edward and Frontenac (Prince-Lennox and Frontenac-Addington); Hastings West is renamed Hastings South and Hastings East is added to Peterborough (Hastings-Peterborough); North Ontario is joined to Muskoka (Muskoka-Ontario); South Simcoe to Dufferin (Dufferin-Simcoe) and East Elgin to (Norfolk-Elgin); Essex is given three seats (East, South and West) and Timiskaming two (North and South); the ridings of Fort Wilk, Kenora-Rainy and Fort Arthur-Thunder Bay replace Fort William, Rainy River and Fort Arthur-Kenora; North, South and West York replace the present four ridings, while Toronto's representation is increased by four seats and now is composed of Parkdale, Toronto East, Toronto East Centre, Toronto-High Park, Toronto North East, Toronto North West, Toronto-Scarborough, Toronto South and Toronto-West Centre.

Somebody Flivvered in Ford Plant

HELD UP NEW MODEL OUTPUT. DETROIT—Many persons are wondering who "flivvered" in getting out Henry Ford's new flivver. When Ford's foremen and minor workers started putting the parts of the new Ford cars together they found trouble in making fits. Work was held up. Meanwhile material piled up.

A hurried investigation resulted in the discharge of numerous foremen. They held an indignation meeting, contending they had been following plans. They went to headquarters and convinced the authorities they were innocent and were reinstated.

More investigations resulted in engineering and drawing departments, and when the dust settled few old places were left.

The error is said to have cost Ford $10,000,000 in delays, corrections and junked material.

Ordeal by Porridge

London Observer: Till the modern age porridge had the reputation of being a wholesome food, but to-day Harley Street looks upon it askance. It is true that Scotland is a great nation, and that Scotsmen eat (or did eat) porridge, but that argument is waved aside by Dr. Woods-Hutchinson in true Johnsunian style. "The secret," he says, "of their wonderful success, both mental and physical, lies in the fact that any nation trained to survive a diet of oatmeal and the Shorter Catechism could survive anything and flourish anywhere." Recently Scotland is said to have abandoned porridge in favor of white bread and tea, with the result of rickets and Communism; which looks as if the new diet agreed neither with its body nor its soul!

Clocks and Socks

A SINGLE PAIR OF SILK AND LACE STOCKINGS MAY COST AS MUCH AS TEN GUINEAS.

The knitted sock or stocking is such an ordinary article of attire that we are all apt to take it for granted and to quite forget that footwear of this kind is a comparatively modern institution. Even Queen Elizabeth never wore stockings such as we know. Hens were made from two pieces of cloth sewn up at the sides, and the seams hidden by a decorative trimming. This trimming appears to be the origin of the modern "clock," which so frequently adorns both socks and stockings.

Recent researches show that Henry II. of France was the first person of importance to wear knitted silk stockings. This was about the year 1550. Fine As a Cobweb.

Just about a hundred years later, in 1650, the first stocking manufactory was established in Paris, in the Bois de Boulogne. It received protection from the Government, and was a gold mine from the start. In 1666 it was turned into a company, and from it arose the Society of Stocking Makers. Ribbed stockings were first made in England in the days of the Stuarts, but these did not catch on in Paris until a century later.

To-day you can buy in Paris a pair of silk stockings so fine that they will pass through a wedding-ring. Made with rose point lace insertions, they cost fifteen hundred francs a pair.

But even in London it is easy to pay ten guineas a pair for silk and lace stockings, while woolen sports stockings can cost as much as £24 a dozen pairs.

Passing of an Ayr Musician

The death occurred with startling suddenness on Thursday evening last of Mr. James M'Kissock, 1 Craigie Avenue, Ayr. In his scouted-out health he was about to mount his push cycle on Gordon Terrace Bridge, near his home when he had a seizure and collapsed. Conveyed in an ambulance to the Ayr County Hospital, it was found that life was extinct, death being due to natural causes.

Mr. M'Kissock, who was almost 70 years of age, was a native of the Auld Toon, and served his time as a carpenter with Messrs. Weir, shipbuilders, in the days when the shipbuilding yard was on the north side of the harbor. Although a skilled workman, it was not by his trade he was known, but rather by his life's hobby of music, for Mr. M'Kissock was well and popularly known by several generations of Ayrtonians by reason of his connection with various organizations. The old Yeomanry and Artillery bands knew him as boy and youth and in course of time, by assiduous practice, he became an accomplished cornet player. He was one of the founders of the Ayr Burgs Band in days interior to the town taking it under its wings, and he was for several years bandmaster. Under Harry Syme, a popular conductor in the 80's, Mr. M'Kissock went as a member of the band to the Glasgow Exhibition, where, competing against many important bands, they halved the first and second prizes. Mr. M'Kissock at that time was solo cornetist. In the early 90's Mr. M'Kissock attended the World's Fair at Chicago, and had the honor on one occasion of leading the praise for Moodie and Sankey, the famous revivalists, at the opening gathering attended by 17,000 people.

During the War he was a member of the Newfoundland Regiment's Band, which included a great many local musicians, and they had the honor. It will be recalled, of playing before the King at Buckingham Palace, in 1917. In that year Mr. M'Kissock accompanied the Newfoundlanders to France, and spent eight weeks there, playing with the band at Le Havre, Rouen, Amiens; Meault on the Somme, and other places near the battlefields. Mr. M'Kissock was naturally very proud of his connection with the boys from the oldest Colony, and he was the proud possessor of the Service and Victory medals.

A kindly, likeable man, Mr. M'Kissock was esteemed by all who had the privilege of his acquaintance, and over a long period of years he must have rendered much gratuitous service, although none the less valuable on that account, to numerous good causes. His last public appearance was in the little orchestra that played on the occasion of St. James' sale of work in Nile Court.

Mr. M'Kissock was a widower, and is survived by three sons and two daughters—Ayrshire Post, Aug. 31.

Old Country Ignorance

OF DOMINION "APPALS" CANADIAN BISHOP.

OTTAWA—"I was appalled almost at the widespread ignorance of Canada which I found in England. They apparently know much more there about conditions in Australia, six weeks' journey away, than they do of Canadian affairs although Canada is only a week's journey distant." His Lordship, Bishop Bidwell, Bishop of Ontario, told a large gathering in St. George's Parish Hall Tuesday night. His Lordship was speaking on the question of "migration" and of the new interest which the Church of England in Canada was taking in this work of Empire building.

The gathering was presided over by the Primate of all Canada, His Grace, Archbishop Matheson, of Rupert's Land. An address was also given by Rev. Dr. Moore, of Halifax, in which he made an appeal for wider religious education so that ideals might be instilled into the coming generation and much of the present ignorance dispelled.

"I had trouble with pimples and blackheads for about three years. The pimples were scattered all over my face and were hard and red. They itched and burned a lot causing me to scratch and the scratching caused eruptions. My face looked so badly that I was ashamed to go out. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they helped me. I continued the treatment and in two months I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Helen Budnik, R. 1, Box 11, Wexford, Wis., Sept. 27, 1924. Rely on Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum to keep your skin clear. Sample Each Free by Mail. But even in London it is easy to pay ten guineas a pair for silk and lace stockings, while woolen sports stockings can cost as much as £24 a dozen pairs.

A New Way To Save Work, Clothes, Hands

Good wash-day news! Here's a soap that enables you to turn out pretty, snowy-white washes in less time.

And—it saves your clothes and saves your hands because it contains no injurious "filler." Nothing to harm fabrics, nothing to harm sensitive skin.

It is Mother Hubbard Pure Laundry Soap. A big, generous bar of pure, mild soap—nothing else.

Gets right after the most stubborn dirt and removes it thoroughly—but does this without harm even to fine fabrics. For the same reason it keeps your hands from unnecessary redness and roughness.

You'll find it saves soap-money for you, too. A cake of Mother Hubbard will far outlast most others—because it is all pure soap.

Use it for every household cleaning task—dishes, woodwork, windows, everything that needs cleaning.

Remember the name: Mother Hubbard Pure Laundry Soap. Ask your dealer for it.

MOTHER HUBBARD PURE LAUNDRY SOAP

THE PALMOLIVE COMPANY OF CANADA, Limited TORONTO

During the War he was a member of the Newfoundland Regiment's Band, which included a great many local musicians, and they had the honor. It will be recalled, of playing before the King at Buckingham Palace, in 1917. In that year Mr. M'Kissock accompanied the Newfoundlanders to France, and spent eight weeks there, playing with the band at Le Havre, Rouen, Amiens; Meault on the Somme, and other places near the battlefields. Mr. M'Kissock was naturally very proud of his connection with the boys from the oldest Colony, and he was the proud possessor of the Service and Victory medals.

A kindly, likeable man, Mr. M'Kissock was esteemed by all who had the privilege of his acquaintance, and over a long period of years he must have rendered much gratuitous service, although none the less valuable on that account, to numerous good causes. His last public appearance was in the little orchestra that played on the occasion of St. James' sale of work in Nile Court.

Mr. M'Kissock was a widower, and is survived by three sons and two daughters—Ayrshire Post, Aug. 31.

Sweetest steamed raisin pudding with molasses, and serve hot with hard sauce.

HARD PIMPLES ALL OVER FACE

For About Three Years. Healed by Cuticura.

"I had trouble with pimples and blackheads for about three years. The pimples were scattered all over my face and were hard and red. They itched and burned a lot causing me to scratch and the scratching caused eruptions. My face looked so badly that I was ashamed to go out. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they helped me. I continued the treatment and in two months I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Helen Budnik, R. 1, Box 11, Wexford, Wis., Sept. 27, 1924. Rely on Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum to keep your skin clear. Sample Each Free by Mail. Address: Canadian Dispensary, 125, Front Street East, Toronto. Cuticura Shampoos $1.25.
