Over was rifled of a quantity of goods. Over $130 worth of stamps and $130 in money were taken. The safe-crackers—three in number—were from Detroit. They arrived in Windsor at five o'clock on Sunday morning in a livery sleigh, and made inquiries for the first boat. One of them drove the team to the ferry, and the other two walked about on Main street. Shortly before 7 o'clock policemen Condron, Lyster, Cody, and Willis, of Windsor, determined to detain the strangers in accordance with the general instructions from Chief Baines to hold all suspicious characters for investigation. The policemen approached the two and made them prisoners, but not before one of them reached for his revolver. Before he could draw it, however, Condron got the drop on him. They were secured, and officer Willis started to secure the rig and the third man aboard. He took possession of the horse and sleigh, but through some mistake let the boat go with the burglar to this side. The bulk of the property found in the sleigh was packed in a United States mail sack, and considerable was also found upon the persons of the prisoners. The capture also included two kits of burglar's tools, a bag of powder, a roll of wax explosive, a dark lantern, etc. The captured burglars gave the names of James Murphy and James Moran. From papers found on the former it was clear to the police of Detroit, who were well represented in Windsor on Sunday, that he is no other than the notorious crook M. THE BRITISH CANADIAN LUMBER-ING AND TIMBER CO.

with the affairs of the British Canadian Lumber and Timber company, the offices of which are at 34 Scott street. It was stated yesterday that a receiver had been appointed, or rather that the company had signed to the banks interested.

The company had a capital of a million. nostly Scottish money, was formed some years ago, and bought extensive limits and mills from the Cook Bros., Geo. J. and H.H.

It is understood that the Messrs. Cook made a good thing out of the sale. George J. Cook is president of the company, and J. S. Lockie, formerly manager of the bank of Commerce, is its financial manager. The banks mainly interested are the Toronto, Quebec and Commerce, the liabilities to which foot up close on to a million dollars, perhaps half of which is secured. The Commerce is the largest creditor.

It is now alleged that the rosy statements made as to the value of the limits have not been realized, and that not only will the shareholders loose all the money that they put in it, but the ordinary creditors will not be paid, and the banks will be out a large amount.

A short time ago it was hoped that the company would pull through by each of the banks advancing $50,000 and the Scotchmen the same amount, but this appears to have been abandoned.

The Lottery Swindles. The government at Ottawa are introduc ing a bill to more effectually suppress lotof the crown, the police commissioners and all of them desiring and obtaining a numthe police would not move against them. Even the newspapers of London "stood in" with the masonic lottery at that place. And speaking of this London lottery, we should like to know what has been done in the suit brought by Mr. Fenton's society to recover the amount of one of the cash prizes? Is there any truth in the statement that a compromise has been made? We know this, that some time ago the "managers" were very anxious to settle the matter with money.

It is to be hoped that whoever has charge of the new bill will see that adequate machinery is provided for enforcing the law. We will then be spared the sight of county crown attorneys and police officials afraid to move in the matter.

Charles A. Watts, who lectured here not so long ago is the editor of a new freethinkers papers published in London, who took a novel way of booming the first number. He addressed a letter to several prominent men, propounding three questions: First, whether, in their opinion, agnosticism is in accord with modern agnosticism is in accord with modern science; secondly, what is the special relation of agnosticism to popular theology; and thirdly, whether, in the belief of the person interrogated, agnosticism is destined to supplant religious supernaturalism. This letter was sent to Prof. Huxley, and he answered it. He now declares that his answer was a private communication to Mr. Watts, and a sharp controversy has arisen in England, and the carrying about of such weapons has become as fashionable as the wearing of high "stand-up" collars. A special repository for revolvers, so as to hide their volume, has been invented by enterprising tailors, and the well known facility with which firearms are to be obtained by any person, however incompetent he may be to have the care of such things, and a sharp controversy has arisen in regard to the propriety of publishing it. seems to promise their extended use. is questionable, an English paper thinks, we are satisfied that Prof. Huxley ought to have perceived that Mr. Watts intended to make public his response, and if he desired to have it kept private, he should have signified his wish to that effect. At all events, it is reprinted in the second edition of the Agnostic Annual now before us, and Prof. Huxley's views on the real attitude of modern science toward religion have been made far more widely known by his belated protest against their publication than they would have been if he had found no fault with Mr. Watts.

Here is what the president of the Royal society of London—the most distinguished versity dinner committee's proceedings body of scientific men in Great Britain, if | that the question of disallowing the post-

"Some twenty years ago, or thereabouts, I invented the word agnostic to denote people who, like myself, confess themselves to be hopelessly ignorant concerning a variety of matters, about which metaphysicians and theologians, both orthodox and heterodox, dogmatize with the utmost confidence; and it has been a source of some anusement to me to watch the gradual acceptance of the term and its correlate, agnosticism (I think the Spectator first adopted and popularized both), until now agnostics are assuming the position of a recognized sect, and agnosticism is honered by especial obloquy on the part of the orthodox. Thus it will be seen that I have a patent right in agnostic (it is my trade mark); and I am entitled to say that I can state authentically what was originally meant by agnosticism. What other people may understand by it by this time I do not know. If a general council of the church agnostic were held, very likely I should be condemhed as a heretic, But I speak only for myself in endeavoring to answer these questions.

Six women are said to have been undoubtedly made away by him in this fashion, and some letters which have been found on him point to the fact that other crimes committed by him may vet be discovered. An old soldier, late of the Carabiniers, but now pensioned, told me to-day, almost with tears in his eyes, that he had recently seen a gunner (not a trumpeter, be it remembered) of the Royal Artillery playing marbles in the street with some boys of his own age. He said the lad was on furlough, and dressed in tunic, forage cap and regimental trousers. He added: "What would my old commanding officer, Col. Jackson, have said had he seen such a sight as that?" I enclose my name as a voucher of authenticity.

The handling of cannon balls is very different to playing marbles, and, with all due respect to Lord Wolseley, we should say that an individual who indulged in the one was scarcely qualified for the other.

There is a large demand for pocket pistols—not whisky flasks but deadly fire-arms—in England, and the carrying about seems to promise their extended use. body of scientific men in Great Britain, if not in the world—has to say concerning the effect of scientific criticism upon existing systems of religion:

"Some twenty years ago, or thereabouts, I invented the word agnostic to denote people who, like myself, confess themselves to be hopelessly ignorant concerning a variety of matters, about which metaphysicians and theologians, both orthodox and heterodox, dogmatize with the utmost confidence; and it has been brought up. As one member of the committee put the matter, it is clearly an issue between the ladies and the cigars, and when this is made plain surely there can be no hesitation in settling the question. The dinner is not an ordinary one, and it is exceedingly desirable that ladies should be free to grace the proceedings with their presence. That they will do so in considerable numbers if permitted is quite probable; that those who attend will be made very uncomfortable in the gallery by tobaccos moke ascending in clouds from the pit is too obvious to need emphasizing.

The Berlin orrespondent of the London Times writes that many of Dr. Lasker's friends say that he died of a broken heart—from grief at seeing the genius of liberty finally forsake the imperial edifice, at the building of which she presided—broken by shame and disgust at the recent outbreak of fury, which he always believed was countenanced in high quarters, against his race. Co., Vice-Presidents. The special features of this Company are its Tontine Investment and Semi-Tontine Investment Policies, and its Commercial Endowment Policy.

ITS TONTINE AND SEMI-TONTINE INVESTMENT POLICY

Combine in one form the greatest number of advantages attainable in a Life Assurance policy. They appeal at once to the intelligence of all who understand the principles and practice of Life Assurance. All policies, whether on Life or Endowment rates, are subject to no higher charge in Premium Rates in taking the "Tontine or Semi-Tontine Investment" form. The extra benefits of this class are conditioned only on the continuance of the policy for a certain specified term or Tontine period of 10, 15 or 20 years, selected by the insurer himself. Two things most desirable in Life Assurance are the CERTAINTY OF PROTECTION in case of early death, and PROFITS IN LONG LIFE. These are combined in the Tontine and Semi-Tontine Investment policies of the North American Life Assurance Company.

WILLIAM McCabe, Esq.,

Managing Director,

North American Life Assurance Co., Toronto.

Dear Sir.—As requested by you, I have examined your "Book of Estimates" in relation to Tontine Savings' Fund Policies, as issued by your company.

The assumed rates of mortality, interest and expenses upon which the estimates of probable results have been based, are less favorable than the experience among Canadian Companies would have justified, while the estimates of surplus are far within the results actually realized by other Companies issuing Tontine Policies, and hence may be anticipated with confidence. In brief, these estimates are, in my opinion, both safe and conservative.

Very Respectfully Yours, SHEPPARD HOMANS,

Dear Sir.—I have carefully examined your new Commercial Endowment Policy and the leaflet explaining the same. You combine the economical features of insurance by natural premiums, by which the insured pays as he goes and gets what he pays for, with a small charge to secure an endowment payable at the end of the term selected.

In this way you avoid the necessity of accumulating large reserves, which of course must render Life Insurance more expensive and yet make the Company secure by the Endowment feature. The plan ought to attract business, as it is both economical and safe

Dr. Robillard's Maiden Speech-Meredith Mowat and Morris on the Floor—The Bebate to be Continued.

The debate on the address in reply to yesterday by the leader of the opposition who occupied an hour in commenting of the different paragraphs of the speech. Mr. McIntyre, the mover of the address, as presumptuous and cautioned in the parliamentary neophyte to speak more respectfully of men in high positions. Mr. Meredith thought the government should show their appreciation of the farming community by having one from that body in the cabinet. The board of health he tended should be under the control of and paid by the dominion government, and steps should be taken to bring this result ut. In regard to settlers on free grant lands the government are sacrificing the tend to diminish corrupt pratices, his side of the house would give their hearty suphad been contested subsequent to the last general election than at any other time, tions showed on the whole they had been conducted with comparatively little bribing on either side; and again he cautioned the member for South Victoria to talk respectfully of the conservative party the speaker held, as he had always held, that the provincial legislatures, in the abence of dominion legislation at all events, had the power as a police regulation to deal with the question of regulating the traffic in intoxicating liquors. He held ner in which the Crooks act had been admer in which the Crooks act had been administered that the federal government saw fit to interfere. In all questions of dispute between the provincial and federal governments he urged the use of calm, temperate language, and depreciated such epithets as that of "arch enemy" and the like. The speaker upheld the action of the federal parliament in placing under federal control all provincial chartered lines as soon as they became part of the railway system of the dominion. He thought no one could object to such lines as branch could object to such lines as branch one could object to such lines as branch lines of the Grand Trunk becoming part of the dominion railway system. In adverting to the disallowance of the theorems bill the speaker remarked that it streams bill the speaker remarked that it was very necessary for the federal government to have the right of exercising a veto on the measures of the local houses. Suppose a local legislature should pass a measure repudiating its debts, in that event would it be anything but proper for the federal government to interfere? Were no veto to be allowed it would be possible for a religious minority in any of the provinces to be deprived of the right to hold property or to exercise the offices of their religion. Such arguments went to prove the erty or to exercise the offices of their religion. Such arguments went to prove the federal government must have a vetoing power. The next topic touched upon was the agreement between Manitoba and Ontario respecting the boundary of the provinces. It was on account of the government's action on this important question that there were so many empty saddles among the horsemen on the opposite side of the house. The government occupied an unenviable position in its action on the boundary question. They have at this an unenviable position in its action on the boundary question. They have at this late hour been compelled to accept far less favorable terms than those offered by Sir John Macdonald in 1882. Not only would better terms have been obtained by that offer, but by this time they would have been acquired and realized. He objected that the most important considers. jected that the most important considera-tion had been overlooked. It was not so much the right of government that people were interested in as in the settle-ment of the ownership of the disputed ter-ritory. Mr. Meredith was well applauded

The premier followed in a speech lasting something over an hour. He alluded to his hon. friend opposite coming back to the house with a hopeless minority in spite of all the personal influence of the federal government and the federal issues which had been thrown into the recent general election. The mover of the resolution had made a very able and creditable address, and he gave promise of becoming of conand he gave promise of becoming of considerable value in the deliberations of the siderable value in the deliberations of the house. The speaker congratulated the leader of the opposition on having said so much in favor of and so little disparaging to the speech from the throne. Everything in the speech had the hon, gentleman's approbation. As to having a farmer in the government, he could say that every member of the government represented a farming constituency, and it was by the confidence reposed in them by the farming community that they held their offices. The government objected to offices. The government objected to the federal authorities assuming the control of railways in every part of the country. Such wholesale appropriation was not the intention of the British North America act. In reply to Mr. Meredith on the veto question he said he knew of no act being passed tion he said he knew of no act being passed repudiating state contracts or debts. (A voice: How about Mississippi?) He believed there was no such example in the United States, or at all events in a British province. Experience had shown it was a mistake to give the veto power to the dominion government, and confederation instead of being weakened would be strengthened if that power were to be taken away.
On the boundary question the speaker held the recent agreement was a better agreement than they had ever before had an opportunity of making. He thought the privy council would come to the opinion that the award of 1878 was perfectly valid. It would be a monstrous thing to give up the right to argue that point before the privy council, as some had contended the government should do. By the agree nent they had reserved the right to have the opinion of the privy council on that point. A very important fact in the agreement was that they point. A very important fact in the agreement was that they had agreed on the case, and to a large extent in the evidence to go before the judicial committee, and the hearing is to take place in June or July. As soon as the agreement was ratified by the legislatures of Manitoba and Ontario the considerations contained in it would be outside of the influence of either party and the case consequently could not be long delayed. From the fact that a speedy settlement was a certainty provisional ar-

At twenty minutes to six it was assumed to be 6 o'clock, and the speaker left the chair.

After recess Mr. Morris had the floor and went into the boundary dispute. So did Mr. Waters. After Dr. Robillard came Mr. Murray and then Dr. Ermatinger. Their speeches contained nothing new though they were all fairly delivered and contained points.

But the house was suddenly enlivened by Dr. Robillard of Russell getting on his feet. He is a French Canadian and a bleu, about 50 years of are, and wears a heavy feet. He is a French Canadian and a bleu, about 50 years of age, and wears a heavy moustache. He kept the house in one continuous roar of laughter. He asked the indulgence of the house by reason of his want of practice in English, but he showed he could handle it well and went so far as to quote "Robbie Burns." Before he finished he burst into French, more to vindicate his right to speak in that language than for need of it. It was the first time French has been heard in the chamber since confederation. The speech was witty and in the course of it the speaker coined more than one phrase that will last in Canadian politics. The most striking of these was button-plate reform, which ought to head an article in the Mail this morning. The members were too delighted to offer

Mr. Robillard advised the mover of the address to take an emetic and get rid of the gall of uncharitable epithets within him; if he did not he would become dyspeptic, he would find it hard to digest. [Laughter.] He was surprised at the way in which the government were pressing on the federal government through Manitoba. He stepped into court the other day and he had another example of the kind of pressure the government used. He saw how Mr. Applejohn had pressed the electors of Algoma into voting. Why were the government going the longest way to effect their end; why not go straight to the federal authorities—they thought the longest way round was the shortest way home. In accepting this round-about story he was like the man who sent a teamster for five gallons of beer. The man brought back the keg, but said he had six gallons of beer in it. How was that, said his master. They have a hydraulic press at the brewery to do it. That seems strange said the master. The man asked what caused his

While he was waiting for his meat he attacked the bread and butter. The woman soon came back and asked why he was hacking at the print from three sides. He replied that he thought it did not make much difference to her, as he was going to eat it all [laughter]. And so with those who were supporting the speech that Mr. Mowat had put in the mouth of the governor; they were nibbling at it from every side, but they would swallow it all [laughter]. But speaking of butter reminded him that in these latter days they did not give you the good old fashioned roll of butter, but a little piece on a little plate, a button-plate. The reformers were giving the country button plate reform. [Great laughter.] Then going into French he asked why did he recognize the propriety and even the necessity of governing this country by party? He still reserved to himself the privilege of following the dictates of his conscience, and of whatever little brains God had endowed him, when the interest of his country as at stake. But he re-Though the white elephant is declare Though the white elephant is declared to be a fraud, and neither sacred nor white, immense crowds continue to flock to the Zoological gardens at London, Eng., to see it. His fellow-countrymen had been attacked by a paper in Toronto—it was only a cabbage leaf— and called servile and other insulting things had been said by the same paper of their attitude toward the new governor. From the Pall Mall Gazette. If all the blessings of life came to that ation which has a stationary or decreasing population, what a happy country their attitude toward the new governor-general. If that paper had referred to their civility instead of servility they would have been nearer the mark; and as France ought to be! According to the returns of vital statistics for 1882 recently published it would seem that France is for loyalty he and his people would always show the highest respect of the representative of the queen. [Cheers.] He closed by referring to what French Canadians had done for Canada: cut roads through rapidly reaching the condition in which the births are only just sufficient to supply the waste caused by death. In 1882, as compared with 1881, there were 10,000 Ontario, opened a way across the plains and over the mountains; saved the country nore deaths and 1500 fewer marriages years ago, under the restora-France would have doubled its to the union Jack in 1812-15; and as Sin George Cartier had said the last shot fired population in 112 years, at the present rate the doubling would occupy 267 years, but for the steady immigration of an enormous body of foreigners in North America for British rule would be by a French Canadian. [Cheers.] Dr. Widdifield moved the adjournment. into the country every year. This is a state of affairs which ought to bring comfort to our Malthusians who, no doubt, will be able to demonstrate to us that there is no such thing as discomfort or dis-tress in a country existing under such unday night on the top of a Welsh moun sound economical conditions. What is Catarrh?

From the Mail (Canada) Dec. 15.
Catarrh is a muco-purulent discharge caused by the presence and development of the vegetable parasite ameda in the internal lining membrane of the nose. This parasite is only developed under favorable circumstances, and these are: Morbid state of the blood, as the blighted corpuscle of tubercle, the germ poison of syphilis, mercury, toxomea, from the retention of the effeted matter of the skin, suppressed perspiration, badly ventilated sleeping apartments, and other poisons that are germinated in the blood. These poisons keep the internal lining membrane of the nose in a constant state of irritation, ever ready for the deposit of the seeds of these germs, which spread up the nostrils and down the fauces or back of the throat, causing ulceration of the throat, burrowing in the vocal cords, causing deafness burrowing in the vocal cords, causing hoarseness; usurping the proper structure of the propochial tubes.

up the custachian tubes, causing deamess, burrowing in the vocal cords, causing hoarseness; usurping the proper structure of the bronchial tubes, ending in pulmonary consumption and death.

Many attempts have been made to discover a cure for this distressing disease by the use of inhalants and other ingenious devices, but none of these treatments can do a particle of good until the parasites are either destroyed or removed from the mucous tissue.

Some time since a well known physician of forty years' standing, after much experimenting, succeeded in discovering the necessary combination of ingredients which never fails in absolutely and permanently eradicating this horrible disease, whether standing for one year or forty years. Those who may be suffering from the above disease should, without delay, communicate with the business managers, Messrs. A. H. Dixon & Son, 305 King street wost, Torento, and get full particulars and treatise free by enclessing states.
