Technical and Bibliographic Notes / Notes techniques et bibliographiques

cop may of t sign	Institute has y available for he bibliographe images in the ificantly chancked below.	r filming. phically u he reprod	Featur nique, i luction,	res of which , or wi	this co may a hich m	py which Iter any ay	h			lui a exen bibli repro dans	été po nplaire ograpi oduite	a microstible qui s nique, ou q thode	de se ont p qui p ui pe	proc eut-êt euver euvent	ekige it moi it moi	Les diques difier trune	létails du po une ir modit	de ce int de nage firatio	t : vue on
	Coloured co		ır									ured p
	Covers dam Couverture	•	agée									dama endo		gées
	Covers resto											resto resta
	Cover title r Le titre de c		e manq	ue								disco décol
	Coloured m Cartes géogr	-	en cou	leur								detac détac
	Coloured in Encre de co											throug Parent
	Coloured planches et/											ty of p Lé inég				on
\square	Bound with Relie avec 1			ts								nuous Ition o			/
17	Tight bìndin along interio La reliure se	r margin/	•									les ind rend u			iex
	distorsion le Blank leaves	long de la	marge	intér	ieure		,					n hea e de l
Ш	within the te been omitted If se peut qu	ext. When	over po ming/	ossible	these	have	•		[age o			ison
	lors d'une re- mais, lorsque pas été filmé	stauration : cela étai:	appara	aisseni	t dans l	e texte	•		[n of i le dép			raisoi	n
									[Masth Géněr	ead/	pěrìoc	liques) de l	a livta	iison
	Additional co			es:
Ce do	item is filmed ecumant est fi	lmě au ta:	duction ux de ri	ratio éducti	on ind	ıqué ci⊣	v/ dessous
10X		14X		्रा	1.	8X		····	22X			1	26X				30×
	12X		Щ	16x			20x
							2UX				24 X				28X				32X

Vol. IV.]

TORONTO, SEPTEMBER 11, 1886.

[No. 19.

William Cowper.

WILLIAM COWPER the Christien poet, was born at Great Berkhampstead, Hertfordshirs England on the 15th of November, 1731 His father was a November, 1731 His father was a minister of the Church of England, and one of George II 's chaplains. When only six years of age he lost his mother whom he deeply loved, and continued ued to be a source of pain to him as long as he lived. At school he was tyrannised over by his cruel and unfeeling school-mates, who probably did not know the severity of the torlure their thoughtless barbarity in flicted on the delicate and sensitive child. All they knew was that young Cowper did not de-fend himself, and these boys, being cowards, made him the victum of their oruelty.

When he was eighteen years of age he began to study law. But he was not a diligent student. He disliked the profession and was inattentive to its duties. It is not surprising that he was a failure as a lawyer. He did not, however, altogether waste his time, for he read much during these years, and gave evidence that he possessed poetic

Through the efforts of influential relatives, William Cow-per was appointed to a clerkship in the House of Lords; but so great was his shyness that he was frightened at the prospect and declined the appointment. Another clerkship, one more suited to his disposition, was obtained for him, but he became so alarmed at the thought of having to pass an examination to test his fitness to the office that his reason was impaired, and he attempted to take his own life.

For a time Cowper was an inmate of an asylum at St Albans. Afterwards he removed to Huntingdon, where he became acquainted with a family of the name of Unwin, who showed a kindly interest in him and took h m under their care. A life-long friendship arose between them. After the death of Mr. Unwin, his widow, Cowper accompanying her, went to live at Olnev, where that remarkable man the Rev. John Newton lived. Here Cowper took up his abode, and spent the best and most useful years of his

His first volume of poems was prepared at Olney, and published when he was fifty years of age. Most of our readers have been delighted and amused with "the diverting story of John Gilpin." Lady Austen, a warm friend as long as he lived to cherish her memory with a deep affection. The boy's disposition was very time, and this he read to his friends the poem that the very best of terms. He had also to his mother. I once saw in the shrinking sensitiveness continof the poet, told the story to him when was devout and reverential, and he was firm believer in the truths of God's Word. His works are well worth reading still for the great pleasure they give, the beauty and life-likeness of his natural descriptions, and for the precious truths they so powerfully enforce. His published letters show that he was also a delightful correspondent

Norfolkshire, on April 15, 1800. After the rude buffetings of his troubled and stormy life, he found in the Saviour he loved and trusted that eternal shelter where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest.

The Kind of Boy Wanted.

papers an advertisement printed in this way: "Wanted for a shop, a boy that obeys his mother." The man who kept that shop knew that if a boy did not mind his mother at home he would not obey his master in a shop, or be so likely to obey the laws of the country against stealing and all other wrongs, and the laws of God. The world does not want in business or anywhere else boys who do not mind their mothers. Home is a little school of obedi-It we do not learn to ence. obey the laws of home, we shall be very likely to break the laws of the country and get into prison at last.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE AMERICAN CONSTITUTION.

SENATOR BLAIR, from the Committee on Education and Labour, submitted a favourable report from the majority of the committee on a joint resolution proposing that an amendment to the constitution in relation to alcoholic liquors and other poisonous beverages be submitted to the Legislature of the States for ratification. amendment provides that after the year 1900 the manufacture and sale and importation of distilled alcoholic intoxicating liquors, except for medicinal, mechanical, chemical, and scientific purposes, and for use in the arts, shall cease. The report which accompanies the proposed amendment says the committee does not deem it necessary to discuss the evils of the use of alcohol, but believe the people have a right to decide what measures shall be taken for the regulation or extirp tion of this traffic

"SEEST thou a man diligent in his business? he shall stand before kings; he shall not stand before mean men." -Prov. xxii, 29,

WILLIAM COWPER.

first brought him into general public, a great liking for flowers, and spent notice.

There

The success attending his literary efforts induced him to persevere in the exercise of his poetic gifts. At Lady Austen's suggestion he began his greatest poem "The Task," which he was able auccessfully to finish. Several of was one of the most beautiful of all flowers he was fond of cultivating-Charity. He was a great friend to the poor, and was diligent in his efforts to promote their bodily and spiritual welfare. After the death of his friends he the hymns now sung in cur churches felt very lonely, and did not long sur-were from Cowper's pen. His spirit vive them. He died at East Dereham,

"Allons Done."

"Alions done,' she than mid, and passing out attended by the serie, and leaning on the arm of an efficer of the grant, she descended the great staircase to the hall."—Procise on Mary years of some

"Go on!"—To that imperial throne
She made a glory and a shame!
No. Mary Stuart stood alone.
Her queenly crown an empty name.

"Go on!" She waved her royal hand.
"Go where!—to that dear distant land,
The loved, the lost, the joyous land,
Where once she led the veng and dance!

On to that home where first her child, Born in her grief the heir of tears, Looked in his mother's face and smiled, Unconscious of her foce and fears!

Ah, no! Her youth, her hope were dead: An, no: Her young, mer maps with Her boy a stranger far away. The glamor of a crown had fled: This was her last, her dying day.

She stood so calm, so still so proud, So firm amid a hundred foce, So careless of that eager crowd, So crowned anew with fatal woes,

So scornful of the ornal death That waited, crouched beyond the door;
The ruthless jailers held their breath,
The vengeful warriors spoke no more.

"Go on !" And on the grim earls went; There was the scaffeld and the block; The murderous are against it leant, They moved her not, her heart was re-

The spirit of a kinlgy race
Inspired her soul and fired her eye.
A smile lit up her tranquil face:
"You thought a queen would fear to

She clasped the cross against her breas "Oh Lerd! thine arms upon the tre Spread for the world, now give me res Forgive! redeem! I some to Thes."

Her maidens lected the widow's veil, And laid the sable robe saide; Their cheeks were wet, their lips were pale But here were red with scorn and pride.

Pair in her blood-red gown she stood So stands against the stormy skies A rose, that in some sollinds Uplifts its stately head,—and dies.

"Weep not, my ladies! we Farewell, farewell I we meet again Lord I amid my troubles sere, I trust in Thee, nor trust in vain." oot again.

She laid her head upon the block, And murmured low, "In Thee I trust." Down fell the axe with thundering shock; Mary the Queen was common dust.

The beauteous face, the smiling lips, Wrinkled and set in aged gleen; Se from some tree a tempest strips, In one brief gust, its leaf and bloom Leave her the peace that life denied; Her sine and fellies all are o'er. A queen she lived, a queen she died; Peace to her ashes! Ask no more. -Ress Terry Cooks.

BARBARA HECK.

A STORY OF THE FOUNDING OF UPPER CANADA.

BY THE EDITOR.

CHAPTER X .- A LIFE DRAMA

Tuz mutual helpfulness that provailed among the early settlers of Upper Canada threw into intimate ot, and placed under mutual obligation, the new comers, both Quaker and Cavalier, and the Heak family. the narrow stage of this backwoods see was played by these humble On the marro actors the grand drama of human life; nor were there wanting any of the elements which give it dignity and sublimity. There were the deep immortal yearnings of the soul for a fairer and lottier ideal than this world offers, the hungry eravings of the heart for affection and sympath y, the assiration of the spirit for a high or and holier life. seath the promis surface of Canadian rural toil there were for the young seems only a little while since she was hearts awakening to self-or sciosens amid their forest surroundings a rich mine of poetry and romance. Nature in her varied moods and with her myriad voices spoke her secrets to their acuts. The gladsome coming of the spring kindled joyous pulses in their frances. The rich luxuriance of the summercide was a constant pealm of praise. The sad suggestions of the autume, with its waiting winds and weeping akies and falling leaves, lent a pene iveness 'o their spirits. And wh en the deep snows of winter clothed the world " with ermine too dear for an their hearty out of door life and earl, cheerful home jays bade defiance to the icy reign of the Front King. To gentler natures the deep shadows of the lonely forest aisles, the quiet beauty of the forest flowers, the solemn sunsets on the shining river, and the mysterious whisperings of the night is among the needles of the pine, so like the murmuring of the distant sea, were a perpetual and deep delight. Such a nature was that of the fair Katharine Heck, the youngest child of Paul and Barbara, now a blooming maiden in her later teens, who inherited her mother's early beauty and mental souteness and her father's piacid and contemplative disposition. The leveliness of character and person of the young girl made a profound impres susceptible southern temperameat of Reginsld Pemberton, a younger son of the gallant colonel. The alert mind of Barbara Heck observed with a mother's solicitude the unconscious attachment springing up between these young hearts, and read their secret re the principals were aware of it themselves. While Reginald was a youth of noble spirit and manly, generous character, still he was ignorant of the great regenerating change which the pions Methodist mother regarded as the prime essential—the "one thing needful"—to secure his -to secure his own and her danghter's happiness. Moreover, he aged to a proud and aristocratic family, who were in their social standng and their ideas emphatically people of the world;" and how could who falt themselves the "heirs of gdom," smile on such a worldly alliance! Moreover, she was so proud in her way as any Pemberton living, and would not brook that union with a child of hers should be considered a misallisace by the bluest blood in the Much troubled with these thoughts, the devout Barbara thus communed one day with goodman Paul :

" Have you not observed, Paul, that young Pemberton is vastly more attentive to Katharine than is good for either of them !"

"No, I can't say that I have," replied Paul with a lock of surprised inquiry. "Have you!"

To be sure I have," rejoined the axious matron; "he is mooning around here half the time."

"Is he! How do you know he does not come to see the boys!"

"Come to see the boys, indeed! And is it to the boys he brings the bouquets of wild flowers and baskets of senuis! And was it for the boys he tamed the raccoon that he gave to

"Well, where's the harm! Kate is only a child yet." "Only a child! she is near nine

*Is she! Dear me, so she is. It a bahy."

"The boy is so shy, that he scarcely ever speaks to her; but he is as content to sit dumb in her presence as a cat is to bask in the sun"

"Humph! I know somebody who used to be quite content to sit dumb in yours. We i, mother, what do you want me to do about it!"

"Do about it! That's what I don't know. Can't you tell him not to come so often, or something !"

"Fie, Barbara! Do you think I would be guilty of such a breach of hospitality! L-ave the young folks alone. You will only be putting nonsense into their heads it you do anything at all. Katie is a good girl, You can trust her innocent heart. She loves her old father yet letter than any other man, I'se warrant,'

Bo the matter dropped for the time, although Barbara mentally resolved to warn Katherine not to let her affections become tangled.

That evening, in the golden glow of sunset, Katharine Heck was spinning in the ample 'living room" large and rambling house. The ambercoloured light flashed back from the well-scoured tips and burnished brass kettles and candlesticks on the dresser, and tinged with bronze her glossy hair. And a very piet y picture she made, ciad in her simple calico gown, as she walked gracefully back and forth from her wheel, now giving it a swift which and then stepping back as she dex erously drew out the yarn from the fleecy rolls of wool. Evidently young Pemberton was of the same opinion, as he stood for a moment at the open door holding in his hand a string of beautiful speckled trout-fresh from a sparkling stream near by.

"Good evening, Mistress Kate," he said after a pause. "I've brought a few fish for your mother, that I have just caught in Braceide Burn,"

"O, thanks; how pretty they are! mother will be so much obliged," said the maiden, taking the string of fish.

"I'm not so sure of that," said the young man. "I'm sometimes afraid I've offended your mother. I don't know how, unless she thinks I am idle, I'm so fond of my rod and gun. learned that in old Virginia, and can't easily unlearn it."

"She won't object to your sport today, at any rate," said Kate with a laugh, "for mother can fry trout better than any one in the world. You must stay and have some;" and she took the fish into the summer kitchen.

"And now," she said as she came back, "if you have been idle, you must make amends by being useful. I have been wanting some one to hold my yarn while I wind it."

"I am so awkward, I am afraid I'll tangle it; but I'll do my best," said the blushing boy as he stretched out his hands to receive the skein.

True to his fears, he soon did tangle it, letting several threads off at once; and as Kate deftly disentangled the akein, he thought her the loveliest being that poet's funcy ever conceived.

At this juncture the matronly Barbara entered the room to thank their visitor for his present. The selfconscious youth fancied—or was it fancy!—that he observed a severer expression than usual in her eye, though her words of thanks were exceedingly polite.

"I am playing the part of Hercules with Omphale," said the stalwart youth, who had acquired a tineture of classic loro at the grammar school at An apolis, in Virginia, "but I can successed be tap at my own work of holding the plough or wielding my fishing red

"The former of those employating is the more profitable in a new country like this," said Barbara, with emphasis; "although the trout are not to be des pi-ed," she continued, relaxing into a smile, "and you must stay and have

About the homely farm and house. hold duties of the youth and nord, Love wove its sweet romanc', and the o'der hearts, remembering the fend emotions of their youth, could not chill with censorious words their lad. ding and innroent effection.

A favourite amusement of the vound people in the long suramer twilights when the afterglow of sunset was reflicted from the shining re ches of the river, like a con of glass mingled with fire, and when the great white harvest-moon clomb like a wan spec re up the castern sky, was to suil ir riv upon the bosom of the broad S. Lasrence; and often they would beguile the delicious hours with such song and mu ic as their somewhat primitive tastes had acquired. On such cosasions young Hanouh and Rouben Wnitesite often joined the party. finding in its innocent mirth a relief from the somewhat pallid quietism of their house life. One lovely August evening, Paul and Barbara Heck were making a friendly call on the hospitable White side family at the Qa ker So tlement As they set in the suit and silver moonight on the broad "stoop of the low-walled, broad-eaved log-hou-e, the sound of sweet strains of muse, waited over the water, stole upon their ears. In the hush of twilight, when ev n to whip poor will's plaintive cry was at intervals distinctly heard, floated san and clear, in the rich ten r voi e of Reginald Pemberton, the notes of he sweet Scottish song :

"Maxwellton's brace are bonnie, Where early fa's the dew, For 'twas there that Annie Laurie Gave me her promise true; Gave me her promise true; Gave me her promise true; And ne'er forget will I, But for bonnie Annie Laurie I'll lay me down and die."

More charmed than she likel to confess, Barbara Heck, in whose so was a rich though soldom-touched vein of poetry, listened to the simple stra a.

"It's a worldly song," she said at length, "but the music is very sweet. Pity that such gifts were not employed in singing the preise of their Giver.

After a pause the awest and pure contracto voice of Katharine Heck thrilled forth the words of her favorre hymn-omitted in later editions of the hymn-book, which was the cult vo ume of poetry she had ever seen

"All hail the power of Jesus' name ! Let angels prograte fall.

Bring forth the royal diadem,
And crown Him Lord ef all."

Then every voice joined in the triumphant chorus, which came swe ing in a passa of praise over the waves

"Bring forth the royal diader And crown Rim Lord of all.

The tears stood in Haunch Whiteside's soft brown eyes as she said with a sigh, in which the long repression of her emotional nature found vent:

"Why should we not have holy hymns in our worship, Jones! "Nay, dear heart, it needs not answered the patriarch. "When we "When we

7

h

heten to the Spirit's inner voice, it is meet that we commune with our own hearta and be still."

polis,

ough |

intro

4413:

deu

to s

ጋ፤፤ዛሶonid, I the

fend |

not

lina

wa.

0'

₹'+d

uite |

c re s re

be-

gac

ive

ns

its

444 hts.

nd.

· But still the deepest feelings of our hon's, their adoration and their love, cave for expression in sacred song. And God's servants of old time praised Hun in His holy temple with psaltery and harp."

"But that was in the carnal dispensation of form and ceremony. We who live in the later dispensation of the Spi it must serve God in spirit and in truth, making melody in our hearts unto the Lord."

But you don't think the singing of hymns wrong, do you!" asked Paul

"We judge no man," replied the Golfering Quaker. "To his own master he rtandeth or falleth. We must follow the guidance of the Inner Light.

Perhaps we deem as orringly," said Barbara, as she walked home through the moonlight with her husba d, "in condemning as worldly such sengs as so deeply touch our deeper and nobler nature, as Friend White-ade does in condemning our pealms and hymns."

OHAPTER XI,-THE PIONEER PREACHER.

The little forest community was soon to be stirred by a deep religious impulse, the results of which only the great day shall declare. At the close of a sultry day in the midsummer of 1790 there rode into the Heck Settlement a man of somewhat notable appearance. He was about sight-and twenty years of ago, of tall and well-knit figure, save that one arm seemed quite shrive led or paralyzed. Nevertheless, he was a fearless horseman, theless, he was a tearrow more riding at a gallop through the rootentangled forest paths, and boldly leaping his horse across the pools made by the recent rains. He wore a operse felt hat, home spun snuff-coloured coat, to which a somewhat electical air was given by a straight collar and out-away skirts, and leathern leggings. Behind him were the inevitable saddle-bags and his coarse friese coat. Riding up to the house of Paul Heck, without dismounting, he knocked with his riding whip on one of the posts of the ",qoola '

"I am a Methodist preacher," he said; "can I preach here to-morrow!"

for it was Saturday evening.

"Fain and glad will we be to have you," said Paul Hock, as he came forward.

"Can I have ledging and provender for myself and herse!" continued the preacher.

"Ar, and welcome. Get you down," said Paul, extending his hand in friendly greeting.

"Tell me first, will you ware the neighbours of the preaching! If not, I will do so myself before I dismount, although I have had a long ride to-day."

although I have had a long ride to-day,"
"Ay, will we; mear and far. Here, Barbara, is a Methodist preacher," Paul called to his goodwife within the house.
"We wish you good had in the name of the Lord," said that hospitable matron, taing" the language of the Prayer Book, with which she had long been familiars. "Thank God, I live to see the day," she went on. "We are Mothed and, too, and went on, "We are Mothed an, too, and we have pined and hungered durche prescring of the Word as the hungry leng sersood."

"Bless the Lord," said the preacher, the lines have failen to me in pleasant places. I knew not that there was a Methodist in Canada, and here, the very day I enter the country, I find

"Ay, and you'll find a many more scattered up and dowr, and fain and glad they'll be to see yo: "said Paul, using his customary formula of wel-

While the new preacher, whose name they learned was William Losee, the pioneer of the goodly band of Methodist itinerants who now range the country, was doing ample justice to the generous meal set before him-for he had ridden forty miles that day-Jabez Heck, Paul's son, proceeded to "warn" the neighburs of the preaching at his father's house next day.

The great "living room" and adjoining kitchen were both filled, and on Sunday morning the preacher stood in the doorway between the two, with a chair before him to support his Bible and hymn-book. Having announced his text, "Repent ye, therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord," he closed his book, and delivered, not an exposition, but a fervent exhortation, mingled on the part of both speaker and heavers with strong crying and tears. The class-meeting, in which the Hecks, Lawrences, Samuel Embury, and others who now for the first time met, was held, and was a Bethel of delight. The afternoon and evening congregations were so large that the preaching had to be held in the large barn. By night the fame of the prescher had apread far and wide. and, moved by devotion, by curiosity, or, perhaps on the part of some, by a desire to sooff and soom, the whole neighbourhood was present. Of the latter class was a wild and reckless young man, Joe Brouse by name, who, standing near the door, was attempting to turn into mockery and derision the solemnities of Divine worship. Aroused to holy indignation by this sacrilege, Losee lifted his eyes and hands to heaven, and cried out like one of the Hebrew prophets, "Smite him, my God! My God, smite him!" "He fell like a bullock under the stroke of the butcher's axe," writes the historian of the scene, " and writhed on the floor in agony, until the Lord in mercy set his soul at liberty." The emotion of that rustic congregation became uncontrol-la le. Signs and groans and tears were heard on every side. Preaching was impossible, and Losee and the members of the little Methodist class gave themselves to prayer, to counselling the seekers after salvation, and to the singing of hymns, which had a strangely tranquillizing effect upon the congregation.

Early the next morning Losse was on his way to the Bay of Quinté and Niagara Settlements, leaving an ap-pointment for that day four weeks. Such was the aggressive mode of Gospal warfare of the pioneer itinerant.

There was much difference of senti-ment in the little community as to the services of the day. The Methodists were greatly refreshed in spirit, and Barbara Heck declared that it was "a day of the Son of man and of power." Jense Whiteside refrained from criticitin, further than to say that "God was not in the earthquake, nor in the Gathered in one atrong band, Could conquer the world for Jeans, Sefe-voiced Hannah Whitehide shreak. thurstell, but in the soil must voice."
Sele-voices Hannah Whisthide shreak

within herself as from something which jarred painfully upon her sensitive spirit. Colonel Pemberton quite lost his poli eness in his anger that his son Reginald, his hope and pride, through the ranting of a Methodist fanatic, should degrade himself by weeping for his sins and crying for pardon alonguide of that reprobate, Joe Brouse. Mrs. Pemberton, a sincere and pious soul, trembled with joy at her son's conversion and fear at her husband's wrath. Mammy Dinah was in ecstasics of joy. Her "Hallelujahs" and "Bress de Lo'ds" were frequent and loud. "Dis is de ole kind o' ligion," she said to Aunt Chlor, "like we had in Ole Virginny." But Uncle Pompey shook his head doubtfully because it was a Methodist and not a Baptist preacher through whose ministrations the awakening took place. But Joe Brouse, out of the depths of his conscious experience, exclaimed, "Whether he be a ranting fanatic, I know not; but one thing I know, whereas I was blind now I see. And his strangely altered life and godly conversation were a demonstration of the new light that had fallen on his soul. For drunkenness and curre ing he put on the garments of sobriety and praise; and none were more diligent in attending the Methodist olses and prayer meeting, or more zealous in good work.

The Children's Grusade.

HAVE you read the wonderful story Of what happened so long ago, Away in the Rhenish country, In sight of the Alpine seow,—

How thousands of little children, With scallop and staff in hand, Lake Peter the Hermit's pligrims, Set forth for the Holy Land?

From hamlet and town and castle, For many and many a day, These children had seen their fathers March to the Hast away.

"Why do they go?" they questioned Of the mother who watched and wept: "They go to wrest from the pagan
The tomb where the dear Lord slept."

And the thought in their young hearts

And the thought in their young is kindled.
"Let us do se war fathers do,....
Let us wear the cross on our shoulder, And help in the conquest too.

"The strength of a child is nothing; But we'll gather in one strong band he strength of ten thousand children, For Christ and the Holy Land."

And so, as they tell, these children
On their strange, wild mission went;
But the Saviour, who would not lead to
In the way He had not sent,

Lifted them up in His pity (Misguided and yet His own),
And, instead of the tomb they sought for,
Sent them to find His throne.

Now, what is the tender lesson Writipped up in the story to? And what can we learn from the children Who perished so long ago?

For a temple that is eternal, Where the living stones are piled,— Each stone of the costly building The zoul of a heathen child.—

Are there was thousand children, Over this land so bread, Willing to work,—this shoulder Wearing the badge of God?

there ten thousand shildren Filled with seal intense, Ready for Christ to offer Their labours, their prayers, their public Hardships of Student Life.

THE privations which human beings will endure for the purpose of pursuing some beloved occupation are often extraordinary. Some discussion has re-cently taken place in regard to the hardships voluntarily encountered by German students, in order that they may carry on their intellectual labours. A Scotch writer, however, gives a list of instances which tend to prove that his countrymen are willing to suffer great extremity for learning.

He mentions one young man who, though of fine manners and aristocratic appearance, dined but three times a week, and then upon a hot two-penny pie. On off days he sated his hunger with dry bread.

Another had a curious method of studying. He spread out his books where the hearth rug would naturally have been, and lay there prone, learning his task by the light of a fire made from roots of decayed trees, which he had dag in a wood near Edinburgh, and carried to his lodgings.

It was quite common for students to go without fire; in winter time they studied in bed while the daylight lasted, and then, when it became too dark for reading, thought over and thus memo-rized their lessons.

Three prominent and Scotchmen of the present day have behind them a hard experience, which, no doubt, they recall with pleasure. They lived together for at least a year at Aberdeen University, in a room which contained but one bed. It was not a very large bed, and could not be persuaded to hold three persons at once; so two worked while the other slept, and when they went to bed, he

At Edinburgh were two interesting students, whose ways were for a time a riddle. The one glided along the corridors to his seat, holding his class-books streight out before him. After a time it was learned that he had being a hotel-waiter; this vocation he pursued during the summer months, and returned to his studies in winter. He was never quite white to torget his unli-ing, and when he was suddenly reased ing, and when he was suddenly roused from reverie, would ory, "Coming, sir! coming!"

The other mysterious condent was never seen outside the class-room except at full gallop. He ran to his such for recitation, and after it was over, dashed wway like a rancheren.

It finally transpired that he kept a small stationery shop at some distance from the University, and being two poor to hire an assistant, he was obliged to close his place of business in order to recite his less one.

Professor Blackie mentions the case of a young men who lived during an enthe college semion on red herrings and one barrel of potatoes, which he had brought from home. He finally succumbed to the weakness brought on by insufficient food.

The most pathetic story, however, is that of a student who had been near starration for so long that he died from partaking of a good meal, given him in mistaken kindness.

An Irishman, on bulge called to testify in a court sa a witness, was sold AN APPENDEN, ON DUMN CARLOT TO SELECT THE APPENDENCE OF THE PARTY OF T

Going to School.

There's an army that musters its legions,
And marches to roll-call each day;
And happy and blest are the regions
Waich lie in that army's bright way.
They troop over hillock and hollow,
I hey spring over brookiet and pool,
And gayly and cheerily follow
The summons which bids them to school.

By thousands the army is numbered, Its soldiers are fresh as the morn; Not one is by sorrow encumbered, Not one is by care overborne. At decimals sometimes they stumble, And sometimes by verbs are perplexed; and the proudest grows saddened and humbled

When a question is passed to the next.

There are people forever a sighing
And saying the world is all wrong;
But somehow their doubts take to flying
At sight of this wonderful throng.
The world may be clouded and weary,
Of trouble and toil may be full,
But at least there is hope where the cheery
Dear children are going to school.

-Mrs M. B. Bangster.

OUR SUNDAY-SCHOOL PAPERS.

PER TRAR-POSTAGE FREE

est, the cheapest, the most entertaining, the most popular. Christian Guardian, weekly Methodist Magazine, 20pp, monthly, illustrated
Methodist Magazine, 20pp, monthly, illustrated
Methodist Magazine and Guardian together.
The Wesleyan, Halifax, weekly
Sunday-School Banner, 32 pp., 850, monthly
Berean Leaf Quarterly, 10 pp., 850
Quarterly, 20 pp., 850
Quar copies
Less than 20 copies
Over 20 copies
Pleasant Hours, 8 pp., 4to, fortnightly, single copies copies
Less than 20 copies
Over 20 copies

Less than 20 copies

Over 20 copies
Sunboam, fortnightly, less than 20 copies
2) copies and upwards

Happy Days, fortnightly, less than 20 copies
20 copies and upwards

Derean Leaf, monthly, 100 copies per month Address : WILLIAM BRIGGS, Method * Book & Publishing House, 78 & 80 King St. East, Toronto.

C. W. COATSS, 8 Bleury treet, dontreal.

S. F. HURSTIS, Wesleyan Book Room, Halifax, N. S.

Home & Sqhool.

Rev. W. H. WITHROW, D D., Editor.

TORONTO. SEPTEMBER 11, 1886.

DON'T FORGET THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

AID AND EXTENSION FUND COLLECTION

REVIEW SUNDAY, SEPT. 26.

THIS collection, it will be rec ered, is ordered by the General Conference to be taken up in each and every Sunday-school in the Methodist Church; and the Review Sunday in September is recommended as the best time for taking it up. This fund is increasing in usefulness, and does a very large amount of good. Almost all the schools comply with the Discipline in taking it up. In a few cases, however, it is neglected. It is very desirable that every school should fall into line. Even schools as your as to into line. Even schools so poor as to need belp themselves are required to comply with the Discipline in this respect to be entitled to receive aid from this fund. Superintendents of the Superintendent of the circuit, to be forwarded to the District Financial S cretaries, who shall transmit the same to the Unference Sunday school Secretary, who shall in turn remit to Warring Kennedy, Eq. Toronto, the lay-treasurer of the fund. (See Discipline, §§ 354-856)

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS

We give extracts from a few out of several hundreds of letters received by the Secretary of the S. S. Board, showing the nature of the work which the Sunday-school Aid and Extension Fund is doing, and the appreciation which it receives.

A missionary in Newfoundland writes: "Enclosed is an order for $8 00 to pay for papers sent last year. Your papers are doing much good here, and making our Sunday-schools more attrac ive. I am starting a new school on the circuit; shall be glad if you can give us a free grant of twelve first readers and twelve second readers. Our people all go to the Labrador for fish. They are without religious services, and to a very large extent without any reading matter. If you can give us a supply to distribute among our fleet of 15 mil, you will help me in my work and do the fishermen a favour."

A missionary on an island off the coast of Nova Scotia writes: "Allow me in the name of our school to thank you for your generous contribution to our needs. Believe me, our S. S. superintendent has not made $5,00 for nearly a year, fishing has been so poor, and many more are like him. I have not received from the whole circuit up to date much over $100, and still am better off than the majority of our people here. I never want to labour among a more loyal, devoted, and liberal people, and have refused a call elsewhere for four times the salary I receive here. I am more than delighted by the style, spirit, and matter of all our excellent papers, and am persuaded their mission is as successful as it is laudable."

Another superintendent "Please accept our very sincere thanks for your extremely kind consideration. Our school is progressing very favourably. We are getting additions, and hope when nice weather comes to have a full attendance of nearly all Protestant children within our reach. The papers are very much appreciated by young and old. We hear frequent commendations from the readers. hope with God's blessing to do much good here. I am only a beginner in the prominent part of the work, but I feel strengthened more and more each Sabbath, and with my good teachers' assistance it is a very pleasing and satisfactory duty to perform."

A minister in Prince Edward Island writes: "We are just starting a Sab-bath-school in this place. Our members are few and comparatively poor, but we feel the need of a school of our own, in which our children may be taught the doctrines of Methodism. Without aid it will be almost impossible to run our school at present, but with it hope to build up a good school in time. We will give a collection and the amount promised towards the many other ways its influence is telling got along without thece grants; and I for good We hoped to be able to pay do wish we could have raised something for good We hoped to be able to pay full price for papers from April 1st, but in this we failed. Hence the request was made that I should apply to you."

ARCTIC SCENERY.

Another missionary in Newfoundland writes: "I have three Sabbathschools. I have been thinking that the first thing to be done is to get the papers introduced. Now, I am doing this on my own account, and I have told the people I shall appeal to them for the cash. I am working by faith. I got these papers into the schools on my last circuit, and I know the benefit not only in the schools but in the homes of the people. Our people in this colony do not get newspapers, so yours have a fine scope for doing good."

A minister in New Brunswick writes: "This place is very poor, and has been exceedingly wicked, but now has been exceedingly wicked, but now is the happiest, in religious work, on the circuit. The school last summer did good work, and was greatly aided by the S. S. papers. Many young people having been converted, it gives the state of better things this way. promise of better things this year. I think the school can raise two or three dollars, and if they can raise more I shall rejoice to send it to you. I would not ask aid if we could do without."

nearer the value of them. Perhaps the schools will be able to do something better next year.

A minister in Newfoundland writes: "I am very anxious to introduce into our schools our Sunday-school papers, but see no way of doing so unless the Sunday-school Aid and Extension Fund give a grant for that purpose. If you can get a grant for one-half of these papers I will be responsible and pay you for the other half."

A minister in Nova Scotia writes: "I am organising a new school on this Circuit in a place where we have had preaching for years, but no Sabbath-school nor social service. Hence our young people and many of our adults have not identified themselves with the Methodist Church, but have gone to other churches. I may add I have just been called to go to this place to-morrow and bury a lad of 13 years, who was drowned on Sunday, 13th inst, while playing with a little pleasure boat—and that lad lived rather too far away from any of the existing Sunday-schools, but would have been within the reach and influence of ours, if we had organized. We hope to organize next Sunday. Thanking you for the past help, and with the feeling from this fund. Superintendents of circuits and superintendents of schools writes: "Our school has kept open all collection is taken up. It should, sions have taken place mainly through the means used in this school, and in an ha

Un the

tha

pa lil

lar

a l

two par and gras ext stir Cras and dree and time time chatt Walr COOM Vant irreg you l

has. make iceber low h steepl

CONGOTRIVER CATARACT.

a month, and at my service distribute these papers, and if you saw the looks of gladness, the hunger for the papers, on the part of children and youth and manhood and age, you would feel that in editing our Sunday-school papers your labour was not in vain in the Lord."

A minister in Newfoundland writes: "Enclosed you will find Post Office Order for $10.00. We have a large Sabbath-school here, but on the other part of the Circuit very few of our valuable papers are taken. I should like very much to get them introduced, and for this purpose I have decided to have regular meetings for the study of the lemons during the winter months.

Another missionary in Newfoundland writes: "Last year you gave us a little help which Cld us good service. Several of our scholars decided for Christ."

ing

ape

ing

nto

the

nd

ou

ay

i

d

Arctic Scenery,

LIEUTENANT GARLINGTON, of the United States Army, who had charge of the Government relief-steamer Protess, that was sent to the Arctic regions two years ago in search of the Greeley party, says of the frozen North :

"When you get up among the gladers and rocks, the seenery is one of terrific grandeur and picturesque beauty, but extreme of dreariness. No sound or stir except now and then the terrific crash of a huge transparent bowlder, as it grates on the bottom of the ocean and crushes to pieces. There is a dreary silence that courts loneliness; and one feels such a dull dread all the time that it approaches misery.

"In the summer time you can sometimes hear the piping of sea-gulls, the chatter of ducks, and the growl of walruses, but you only meet them cocasionally. If you can describe a vant sea of ice and snow which is as irregular as any thing you can imagine, you know what appearance that country has. The mearest comparison I can make to the appearance of one of those icebergs is looking down on a city from the top of a mountain. The high and low houses, with an occasional church steeple, resemble very much one of these floating icebergs. The wind has no offect on them whatever.

"It is not an uncommuna thing to see the 'flue,' or soft ice, going in one direction, driven by the wind, and an iceberg moving in an opposite direction, carried by the current.

"There is always seven times the bulk of ice under the water that is seen above, and one acquainted with the polar region can always tell by the colour, rigidity, and appearance of an iceberg whether it comes from the North Sea or not. You will some-times see a bowlder three or four times as high out of the water as a house, and probably ten times as large, carried along by the current; and when two of them come together, the force is sufficient to crush the less rigid one.

"You can judge what a steamer would be like when caught between two such icebergs. No boat can ever be built that could withstand the pressure. Although they seem to be moving slowly, they have a terrific force, and are often crushed by their own weight.

"One of the most interesting sights in the whole northern region is the falling into the ocean of huge fields of You will see thousands of acres of ice and snow that extend high in the air. The water wears this away on the under side; and when the point projecting over the water becomes so heavy as to force itself off, it breaks, with a loud report, and falls into the ocean."—Golden Days.

WE beg to call attention to the annoucement accompaning the September number of the Banner of the Chantauqua Course of Reading for 1886-7. To Canadians it is of special attractiveness on account of the prominence given to English History and English Literature. The Natural Science of the Course is also of much interest. We hope that hundreds of our young people will take up this course of reading. Now is the time of year to arrange for it. Write to Mr. L. C. Peake, Drawer 2559, PO. Toronto, for full information.

IT was a beautiful reply of a child, when asked, "What is faith!" and she answered, "Doing God's will and asking no questions.

Tommy Todd.

"IT's oh to fight the Indiana Upon the prairies wide!"

Said little Tommy Todd one night,
As on his bed, without a light,
His bosom swelled with pride.

"I'll fill say lunch-box to the top; With my bean-shooter true
I'll rescue some fair captive maid!
Hursh! I'm not a bit afraid
Of all the red-skin crew!"

He rose and donned his boots and cap, He rose and donned his boots an Peered cautiously about;
Then to his money-box he went, Extracting from it every cent;
Said he: "I'll be a-scout!"

He climbed down from the window-sill All in the moonlight shear.

He tramped along in day, in dark;
He heard the lone coyote's bark,
That boy of warlike mien.

'Whoop, whoop !" a fierce, blood curdling

New chilled him to the core!

He saw the Indians downward sweep;
And Tommy Todd began to weep

And sigh for home once more.

"Whoop, whoop!" "Oh, please let me go home,"

Tommy pleaded, with a scream;
And, wakened by the milkman's shout,
From his warm bed he tumbled out,
And found it all a dream!

Now lurid stories he eschews, And warlid stories he eschews,
And warlike doesn't feel;
Taat peaceful sleep may close his eyes,
He eats at supper no more pice
Which proved his Indian meal.

-New York Independent.

Congo River Cataract.

THE first cataract of the Livingston Falls, as seen in the picture, is on the Congo River, Africa. This river is said to be the second largest in the world. Its principal source is Lake Bangweola, and it also receives water from Lake Tanganyika. From Lake Bangweola, it runs nearly due north for eight hundred miles, and then turns west, and finally empties into the Atlantic Ocear, four thousand miles from its source. The English Baptist Missionary Society has several mission stations on the river, and though it has lost several missionaries by death, it seems determined to sustain and push forward the work. There is also a mission on the river, under the direction of Rev. H. Grattan Guinness, of London, called the "Livingstone Inland Stanley's information respecting the fertility, the populousness, the productiveness of Africa, and the commercual apirit of its people, will certainly attract Western enterprise into its interior, and railroads will be built to pass the cataracts Christian missions ought to rush in where commerce is sure to pierce For, side by side with the pleasing pictures given above, traces appear of the idolatry, the ignorance and superstition of the natives; of their cruel sports; of their proneness to warfare; of the cheapness of human life among them. When a chief died, fourteen slaves were slaughtered to accompany his spirit into the other world. Stanley's allusion to missionaries are uniformly respectful; and he celebrates the comfort, neatness and elegance introduced by a missionary's wife, in contrast with the indolence, d sarray and negligence manifested at some stations, established by his own men. His own spirit is manly, sober and reverent. Veneration and love for Livingstone seem to have filled his mind, and perhaps have effected his character; for he pressed upon Mtesa the duty and excellence of forgiveness, and his own conduct toward the natives showed a Christian spirit.

Coming generations will recall these achievements and honor the name and memory of the man, who, in constant toil and peril put so much of his energy and his life into this grand and difficult enterprise of opening interior Africa to the commerce, civilization and missions of Christendom.

The C. L. S. C.

THE Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle is a school at home, a school after school, a college for one's own house, by which he may become acquainted in a general way with the college world into which so many of our young people go, about which their parents know so little, and the benefits of which college people themselves recall in their later years.

It is for busy people who left school years ago, and who desire to pursue some systematic course of instruction.

It is for high-school and college graduates, for people who never entered either high-school or college, for merchants, mechanics, apprentices, mothers, busy housekeepers farmer, boys, shop-girls, and for the people of leisure and wealth who do not know what to do with their time. College graduates, ministers, lawyers, physicians, accomplished ladies are taking the course. They find the required books entertaining and useful, giving them a pleasant review of studies long ago laid aside. Several of our members are over eighty years of age. Very few are under eighteen. The C. L. S. C. Course requires about forty minutes' time a day for the term of four years. It need not be done every day, although this is a desirable way to carry on the work. The readings are comprehensive, clear, simple, and outertaining. They vary, of course, in interest according to the taste of the reader.

More than sixty thou are enrolled in this so-called "People's University." Although not a univer-University." Although not a university at all, it has put educational influence, atmosphere, and ambition into the homes of the people which will lead many thousands of youth to seek the education which colleges and universities supply. The month of October is the best time to join.

For Love's Saka.

MAR. MAR-ARRY J. PREFTOR.

Yor have read of the Moslem palace. The marvellons fane that stands. On the banks of the distant Jumna, The wonder of all the lands.

You have read of its marble splendors, Its carvings of rare device,
Its domes and its to were that girsten
Like visions of Paradice.

You have listened as one has told you Of its pinnacles mony fair.— So pure that they seemed suspended Like clouds in the crystal air:—

Of the flow of its fountains falling As softly as mourners' tears;
Of the Hiy and the rose kept blooming
For over two hundred years,—

Of the friezes of frost-like beauty, The jewels that crust the wall, rvings that crown the arch-way, innermost shrine of all,—

Where lies in her sculptured coff:n, Whose chiselings, mortal man Hath never excelled, the dearest Of the loves of the Shak Jenan.

They read you the shining legends Whom letters are and in Whose letters are set in gens, On the walls of the secred chamber That sparkle like diadems.

and they tall you these letters gleaming Wherever the eye may look, are words of the Maslam prophet, Are texts from his hosy book.

And still as you heard, you questie.

Right wonderingly, as you must,
"Why rear such a polace only
To shelter a woman's dust?

Why rear it!—The Shah had promised His beautiful Neurmehal, To do it, because he loved her, He loved her,—and that was all!

So, minaret, wall and column, And tower and dome above, All tell of a sacred promise

You know of another temple,
A greader than Hindee strin The spiender of whose perfection is mystical, strange, sublime.

You have heard of its dusp foundati Which mitteer the frest nor fleed Nor forces of earth can weaken, Comented in tears and blood.

4, chasse with skill tr By the windom that file the three Was quarried, and howe and notice as quarried, and howe and polithed Its wonderful corner stone.

So vast is its scale propertioned, So letty its turrets rise, That the pile in its finished glory Will reach to the very skies.

The lapse of the silent Kedron. es of Sharon fair, sthemane's secret clives And coders, are sound in R. are mound in there

And graved on its walls and pillars, And cut in its crystal stone, Are the words of our propiet, swee Then Islam's both over known;

Texts called from the Holy Gospel, That comfort, refrust, sustain, and shine with a surer leater.
Then the gume of the Hindeo for

The plus of the temple only lib scolistest understands And yet He accepts—oh wender The helping of human hands !

And so, for the work's progression, He is willing that great and small Should bring Mim their bits of carving, So needed, to fill the wall.

Met one does the Master-builder Districtify east away: Why, even He takes the chippings We women have brought to-day!

(ir. not to the dead-to the living, We rear on the earth He troi, into fame to His lasting glory— Inis church to the Christ of God

Why labour and strive: We have promised And dare we the vow rec do it, because we love Him, We love Him, -and that is all :

f or over the Church's portal, Each pillar and arch above, The Master has set one signet. And graven one watchword, -Love.

For His Sake.

NINE o'clock on Saturday morning, and Hettie still standing by the stove baking pancakes.

For whom was she baking cakes at such a late hour! For the family? Most assuredly not The family breakiast had been eaten and cleared away a full hour and a half ago.

Hettie was baking cakes for broth Rob, who at that time was sitting in the dining-room leisurely eating his breakfast-cakes and maple syrup, regardless of what the clock said, or of the Saturday work that was waiting Rob was nineteen, four years older than Hettie, and considered it his privilege to tease his meter, and lord it over her generally. Often would be come down stairs late, and demand his breakfast of Hettie in a tene of anthority, as if, of course, it was the business of her life to wait upon him. As often, too, the motor would reply with sharp, ugly words, multiplied by many more on his part—words that left a sting all day long.

On this particular morning Rob had been men He said the cakes were burned, then that they were mw, and he school Hottie if she had to wait to have some flour ground before she brought any Benides alf this it was a water morning, and mother was sick, and life seemed all awry to poor Hettie. Do you wonder that her face was drawn into a scowl, and that the frowns grew deeper with each onlic turned? I don't think she tried very hard—to tell the truth—to have those eakes right, for certainly they were not done as nicely as Hettie Brysch could bake cakes—she was rather noted for her skill in that line.

"Rob says he wants a glass water.

The small messenger who said this was the baby and yet of the house Now, if it had been any one clee but Baby Lillie, Hettis would have mid, "Tell him to get it, then;" but she could not quite bring nerself to send such a message by this gentle little sister, so she sismmed her piate on to the table, and went to get the water. Lillie watched her sister a mement as she jerhed the pump handle sp and down, and then with a puzzles look

"Hottie, are you getting it for Hie indea!"

"For His sake! What do you mee Whose sake !

"Why, for Jesus' sake, I guess. It is in my Sanday-school leases for tomessow about getting a cup of cold water for His sales, and I don't see how we can when He isn't here. Will it do to give it to saybody !"

"For a discription of the grandest Mission in the worlds—the Thy—erected of the Sunday-school lesson; two, She its of Ages, India, in 1625, by the Shah Jahan, to the memory of his best beloved his less night for an opposition, Nourmahel, see Dr. E. D. G. Prime's His make, to prove that she was trying "Land of the Veda:"

of the coming morning with its round of homely duties, and had sighed and said there was nothing she could do. Was it pre ible that here was a chance right in her own home! Could she give this glass of water in His name!

These though's rushed swirty through her brain, and quick as the thoughts followed this answer-" Yes !"

Yes, it should be done for Jesus. She looked at the glass. It was not clear, and she knew the water she had filled it with must be warm and taste of the i-on pipe because she had not pumped out enough.

Hastily she reached after a clean glass and pumped until the water was cold and clear as crystal. Instead of the hard thump she had intended, she set the giars down gently and in sile by Rob's plate, and went swiftly back to those cakes. The dried-up things were thrown away, the damper opened, the fire made to roar, the griddle to emoke, and soon another set of oakes, golden-brown beauties, had taken their piace on the plata

"I say, how many yests are you going to beep me waiting for these cakes!" was her greeting as she opened the dining-room door. cakes!"

"The fire waen't burning micely, it is all right now," she said meekly.

Amerement showed in every line of Rob's face as he saw the tempting cakes and heard the gentle reply. But Hettie did not see his face, for she was standing over the stove again, sent time she went in, he said in a meant tone.

"That will do, Hettie; they are mention, though, and I wish I had time to eat some more of them."

Hettie was almost tempted to tall him that he would have had more time if he had come down stairs second. But she did not; she held her lips firmly, and so no sharp sting got out that time

After Rob had gone Hettie ant down to the back doorstep to cool herealf of and think a minute. Rob was not a Caristian; she had been praying for him, and here, perhaps, it was her own eross words and ways that were keeping him back.

The next evening as she was start ing for church, she lingered in the hall a moment when Rob was putting on his overcoat preparatory to going, she did not know where, as it was not his habit to attend the meeting.

"Rob," she said, half timidly, "I wish you would go to young people's meeting with me to night!"

"How do you know but I will!"
"Oh! will you!"

"I shouldn't wonder. You see, Hettie, somebody told me you took part in the meeting last week, and I have been watching you to see if it was all talk. Yesterday morning I made up my mind that you had some-thing that you didn't have once. thing that Something that helped you. I'm sure if there is anything, I'd like to find it, too. I said to myself if she can stop mapping and marling, why can't I'l At any rate, I mean to go to this mosting every Sunday night after 曲直,

And Heftie, full of smiles and tears, could only murmur below her breath, "O Rob, I'm so glad!"—Grace Livingston, in Pansy.

His make, to prove that she was saying which you do not used, however much to be a disciple, had thought wearnly your eye may cover it.

A Drop of Oil,

Tax sewing machine went hard Brother Will same and looked over Amy's shoulder and kuis his brow as was his custom when in a puzzle, A lest, turning back the machine, he glanced over the works, and said: 110 you oil it hers, Amy 1

Why, no; I never thought of that."

A drop of all was supplied, and in another minute the stender needle was flying through the work like a fatty.

flying through the work like a favy. It was easy now by inth the wheel.

There are many other places where a drop of all works just an grow winders. For cold mornings, when import are apt to get fruited, as well as too and inger tipe, there is no easys like a few awars, cheery words. So when persons are easyy, just give them a "too't arway," and you mit beighted the way for yourself.

The Metherites Shile.

Sur was only four your old when we mother died.

Poor fittle Jane, how lonely and bleak to her the world seemed, with no mother's hand to guide her, and no mother's love to soothe her sorrows!

Bat to be motherless was z of the only trial. Before her meiher died, her father used to spend most of his evenings at the tavera; nor was he disposed to give this up now. But how sould he get away as of old! A shild of four years was too young to be left alone, and there no no one in the house suitable to trust her to. What, then, was he to 401

Determined not to give up the public-house, he hit upon the plan of taking little Jame out with him. She very much disliked to go; but she had to yield. One evening, as he carried her along the street towards the alloon, he felt a soft little hand pressing his cheek, and heard her whisper: "Father, don't."

"Don't what!

"Don't go," she mid.

"Hold your tongue," said he, giving her a shake

"Oh, dear father, don't, don't," she repeated.

"Hold your tongue," ordered he, in ill

bυ

fif

m

H

pr

ьd

do

joi

un

pa

be gre

hi

mo

670

lev

he

in and of

of

for

Then clutching his neck still tighter, she cowered down in his arms without saying a word. Presently he felt some warm tears wetting his fees, and fo ther heart beating fast and hard against his arm. This was too much to resist. A strange choking came into his throat, and tears gathered in his eyes, and he gened out:

"I won't go-you are right—kiss me, darling—there, there—don't cry, pretty one—I won't go, that I won't."

"Never no more, father !" pan'ed the child, raising her head, and smiling through her tears.

" No, never!" said he.

The child led him from drunkenness to sobriety, from the tavern to the house of God, where he heard the Gospel and received it, and became a changed man, and a true Obristiate,

The above is a striking illustration of the text: "A little child mall lead Many *

The encouragement of drankenness for the mire of profit on the sale of drink, in certainty one of the most erining methods of assaultation for any age or country. John Rushin.

A True Story,

hard

1 0/1

OW AR

A. A.

thar "

at bas

le w 48

fatty.

here a nders

H Amp

and # few

rsons

ft ar.

way

₩hen

bl∙ak

on d d no s !

only

gs at rears and

table he to king

very l to her

, he

eek,

ring

, in ter.

out

me

oat.

riss

ry.

ing

ess

186

nd

MD,

ad

of

at or

n't.

el.

"Where is the baby, grandma?"
The sweet young mother calls
From her work in the cosy kitchen
With its dhinty whitewashed walls.
And grandma leaves her knitting,
And looks for her all around;
But not a trace of a baby dear
Can anywhere be found.

No sound of its merry prattle, No gleam of its merry practice,
No gleam of its sunny hair,
No patter of tiny footstops,
No sign of it anywhere.
All through the house and garden,
Far out into the field, They search each nook and corner, But nothing is revealed.

and the mother's face grew pallid, Grandmamma's eyes were dim;
The father's gone to the village;
No use to look for him.
And the baby lost! "Where's Rover?" The mother chanced to think
Of the old well in the orchard
Where the cattle used to drink,

"Where's Rover? I know he'd find her!"
"Rover?" In vain they call,
Then hurry away to the orchard;
And there by the mose-grown wall,
Close to the well lies Rover,
Holding to baby's dress,
Who was leaning over the well's edge
In perfect fearlessness.

She stretched her tiny arms down,
But Rover held her fast,
And never seemed to mind the kicks
The tiny bare feet cast
So spitefully upon him,
But wagged his tail instead,
To greet the frightened searchers,
While naughty baby said:

"Dere's a little dirl in the later : "Dero's a 'ittle dirl in the 'ater;
She's dust as big as me;
Mamma, I want to help her out,
And take her home to tea.
But Rover he won't let me,
And I don't love him. Go Away, you naughty Rover!
Oh! why are you crying so?"

The mother kissed her saying:
"My darling understand,
Good Rover saved your life, my dear—
And see! he licks your hand!
Kiss Rover." Baby struck him, But grandma understood;
She said: "Its hard to thank the friend
Who thwarts us for our good."

A Model Superintendent.

MANY have read a little book entitled "A Model Superintendent." It is a sketch of the life of Mr. Henry P Haven, of New London, Conn., by H. Clay Trumbull. This life was one of the best examples on record, as illustrating the relation of a Christian business man to the Sunday-school work. A poor boy, apprenticed at fifteen years of age by his widowed mother to a ship-cwner and merchant. He was so faithful to his master that he was promoted in his work from time to time, and two years before his apprenticeship was coded, he unexpectedly found his salary was more than doubled. When he attained his majority he was made confidential clerk, and two years later was admitted a partner in the house. In time he became sole proprietor and his business grew to enormous proportions, until his ships, sailing from New London, as his narrator says, "sooured the utter-most parts of the earth, and penetrated every navigable sea inhabited by the leviathan of the deep." At one time he was president of a railroad, director in a savings bank and a trust company, and, at the time of his death, precident of a national bank. A man ready for any emergency, always holding office of trust.

All this time he was doing business growled an old city clerk; "if you for the Lord. At the age of sixteen attempt to pass off those Brummagem years he was a teacher in the home buttons as sovereigns you may have school of the Scath Congregational the constables after you."

Church of New London. At twentyone years of age he felt he was not doing enough in this direction, and came to his Sabbath school superintendent and asked if he knew of any place where neighbourhood mission work was needed. The reply was: "Certainly, I do," and then told him of a call that had just come for some one to take the charge of a mission one to take the charge of a mission school in an adjoining town, and "You are just the man." Young Haven hesitated, it came so suddenly upon him. "There is no time like the present," said the superintendent; "the Lord wants you; go at once." The young business man went. He remained faithful at his post, built up a large school from a beginning of nine a large school from a beginning of nine a large school from a beginning of nine scholars. The work was never abandoned by him until the end of his earthly life. Says his narrator: "He was preparing for the fortieth anniversary of that Sabbath-school when he finally entered into rest. Twenty years after commencing at the mission school, he was elected superintendent of the home church school; the home of the home church school; the home or the nome entren sonool; the nome school meeting in the morning before church and the country school in the afternoon. The results of the work couried on in these two schools were wonderful,"

A prominent fellow-citizen, on the day of Mr. Haven's funeral, said: "I never saw a man who could do so many things, and do them all so well as Henry P. Haven." And his narrator adds: "Could more than this have been said of him, if he had not been a devoted and untiring Sabbath-school superintendent? On the contrary, it may rather be affirmed that it was because Mr. Haven was so faithful in his Sabbath-school work that he was so successful in the other departments of his life work."—Pilgrim Teacher.

The Pedlar on London Bridge.

Ir was a bright May morning early in the present century. London Bridge was densely crowded and almost impassable, as it was wont to be in those times, for it was not the stately structure of Reanie with which we have to deal, but the old, narrow, many-arched bridge which for centuries had formed the only link between the city and the adjoining borough of Southwark.

In one of the abutments, near the city side, on the day referred to, a man was very busy advertising sovereigns for sale. "Here you are, gentlemen," he vociferated; "real golden sovereigns, one penny spices. Only a p nny apeice—real sovereigns, fresh from his Majesty's mint! Here's an opportunity that will never happen again— only a penny for a real golden sover-eign, twenty shillings' value, two hun-dred and forty pence—all for one penny! Don't let the chance slip. gentlemen; it will never come again? Buy a hundred sovereigns for a hundred pence!"

The growd surged by, taking little notice of him, or when any one did was to express surprise at his folly in believing that the public could be so taken in. "You've brightened up those farthings of yours pretty smartly, said one; "if you'd sell 'em for a penny you might do some business."
"Best mind what you are at, my lad," growled an old city clerk; "if you attempt to peas off those Brummagem The pedlar listened to these remarks with the utmost composure. He did not appear to be in any way disturbed, though he had stood for nearly threequarters of an hour without receiving a single bid for his wares; nor did his eye turn aside from the tray which was slung by a band round his neck, except to glance at a man occupying the same niche in the bridge as himself, who was leaning carelessly against the parapet, referring every now and then to the watch which he drew from his

Presently it seemed as if a customer had come at last. "O papa," said a little boy, "those are the things mother is always wanting. Look here; I've got fourpence which she gave me for bringing a good character home from school. I'll buy four of the sovereigns and take them home to her if I may."

"Von've a good how Dicky" said

"You're a good boy, Dicky," said the father, "but I am afraid you're mother wouldn't get much good out of mother wouldn't get much good out of them. They're only pretense, my lad. In this world no one ever parts with anything under its value. You may give good money and get what's worth very little for it; but you'll never give what is worth very little and get good money for it. Come along and buy your bulls' eyes."

The pair passed on and presently another man stopped and looked wistfully at the tray.

"If they were only real," he muttered, "twenty of them would keep me out of jail and I might come all There's many a man now to whom twenty real sovereigns are of no more consequence than that chap's medals would be. Ah, but though he doesn't want them himself, he won't give them to me."

He too resumed his way.
"What is the time now?" asked the pedlar of the lounger beside him.

"Just a quarter to twelve," was the answer. "You have exactly fifteen minutes to stay, and that is all. Halloa," he added under his breath, "here is a oustomer at last, I do balieve."

As he replaced his watch a man having the appearance of a decent mechanic, carrying a small bundle, stopped for a moment or two, eyeing with ouriosity the contents of the pedlar's tray. Then he took up one of the coins and turned it over.

"Well, it's a clever sham," he said, "and it will please my little boy. I've just got a penny left after paying for the tea and sugar, and I'll take one of these home to him."

He laid down his penny accordingly, received one of the coins, and went on his way. He could not put it inside his bundle very well, and he had a hole in his pocket, so he was obliged to keep it in his hand. As he pass on into Grace church Street, under the window of the large jeweller's shop a crowd, which had gathered around a fallen horse, forced him into the door-way, and he took the opportunity of examining his purchase again.

examining his purchase again.

"Well, it is uncommon like, that I must say," he exclaimed. "I haven't fiagered too many of these, to be sure; but all I have seen are as like this as one pea is to another. There can't be any chance of its being a real one, I suppose, that would be too good a joke; and yet there is no harm in asking, and this chap will tell me what it is in a minute."

coin on it, inquired of the man "what that might be."

"That?" said the jeweller, taking it carelessly up and weighing it on his finger, "why, what should it be, my finger, "why, what should it be, my good man, but a sovereign?"

"A sovereign, a real sovereign!"

exclaimed the other, "you don't mean it to be sure! Just look again, sir, if you please, and make certain?"

"There's no need to look again," said the shopman rather sharply; "I should know gold by this time when I see it. It's as good a sovereign as ever came from the mint, and is quite new into the bargain. I'll give you twenty shillings for itif you want to change it."

The journeyman stared once more

The journeyman stared once more in the jeweller's face, and then turning short round he made for the door, elbowing his way without ceremony through the crowd gathered in Grace-church Street, and then turning down one of the narrow alleys which in those days intervened between the broad thoroughfare and the river he hurried on with all the speed he could com-mand. Presently he emerged near the entrance to the bridge, and still fight-ing his way vigorously reached the embrasure where he had left the dealer in sovereigns. Alas, he was gone, and his place was occupied by a vender of gingerbread nuts, who was commend-ing his articles with an earnestness which far exceeded that of his predecessor.

"Where is the man who was selling the sovereigns?" exclaimed the journeyman, breathlessly.

"Man with the sovereigns!" repeated the person addressed. "I don't know of any such. There was a chap here with a tray about five minutes are just as I come up, but he shut up ago, just as I come up, but he shut up business and walked off with his friend just as twelve o'clock struck."

Not improbably the reader has heard the explanation of this strange occur-rence already—how two fashionable loungers at the West End had made a wager as to what would be the comerquence if one hundred sovereigns were affered for sale, at one penny apicos, for an hour on London Bridge during the most busy portion of the day. The one party had contended that they would all be bought up the moment they were exposed to view, the other that the public would totally disregard them. The experiment was tried and with the result which has been related; of the hundred governigns only one was quence if one hundred sovereigns were of the hundred sovereigns only one was sold, and that to a man who had no belief in the value of his purchase.

It may seem strange to us that men should have shown so little discern-ment. Yet what is it but the very same thing that is guing on every day on the bridge which leads from this world to the next? The servant of his Lord stands by the wayside and offers to all the pure gold of everlasting life in his Master's name, and bids them buy it without money and without price. But they pass by it and heed it not, thinking that that which is so freely offered must needs be worthless. Few or none make purchase of it; and they only find out its true value when it comes to be tested by use. Here also the precious prize is offered only during the brief hour of human life. The angel witnesses stand suppose, that would be too good a joke; and yet there is no harm in asking, and this chap will tell me what it is in a minute."

He stepped up to the jeweller's counter accordingly, and laying his luman life. The angel witnesses stand by and mark the throng as it heedlessly passes by, and when the hour is ended the offer is withdrawn. Vain will it be then to strive and haste to redeem the past. There is no repentance in the grave.—Sunday at Home.

The Loom of Life.

ALL day, all night, I can hear the jar Of the loom of life, and near and far It thrills with its deep and muffed sound, As the tireless wheels go always routed.

Busily, ceaselessly goes the loom In the light of day and the midnight a gloom, The wheels are turning early and late, And the woof is wound in the warp of fate.

Click . 'ack ' there's a thread of love unive in Click, clack! another of wrong and sin.
What a checkered thing will the life to
When we see it unrolled in eternity!

Time, with a face like mystery And hands as busy as nands can be, Sits at the loom with its arm outspread, To catch in its meshes each glancing thread,

When shall this wonderful web be done? In a thousand years, perhaps, or one; Or to-morrow! Who knoweth? Net you or I, But the wneels turn and the shuttles fly.

Are we spinners of wool for this life-web-

Do we furnish the weaver a thread each day? It were better then, O my friend, to spin A beautiful thread, t an a thread of sin.

Ah. and eved weaver the years are slow But each one is nearer the end, I know, And some day the last thread shall be woven

God rant it be love instead of sin

LESSON NOTES. THIRD QUARTER.

STUDIES IN THE WRITINGS OF JOHN.

A.D. 30 1 LESSON XII.

JESUS INTERCEDING.

Commit vs. 20-24. John 17. 1-3, 11-21,

GOLDEN TEXT.

He ever liveth to make intercession for them .- Heb. 7. 25,

CENTRAL TRUTH.

Jesus' prayer on earth a type of the prayer he is ever making for us in heaven.

DAILY READINGS.

M. John 17. 1-26. Tu. John 5. 19-40. W. John 6. 26-44. Th. 1 Cor 12. 1-14. F. 1 Cor. 12. 15-31. Sa. Eph. 4. 1-16. Su. 1 John 5. 4-21.

Nors.—This lesson, as selected by the International Committee, was so long (26 verses) that the leading publishing houses agreed on the above shorter selection. (See es. 4.)

Time.—Thursday evening, very late, April 6, A.D. 30, immediately following the last PLACE. - An upper room in Jerusalem.

CIBCUMSTANCES .- The farewell discourse of Christ ended with a remarkable prayer which may truly be called the Lord's prayer.

which may truly be called the Lord's prayer.

Helfs over Hard Places.—1. The hour is come—The hour of crucitizion, the central point of his redeeming work. Glorify thy Son—Manifest his glory by making his mission a success, by raising him from the dead, and placing him at thy right hand in heaven. Thy Son y'orify thee—The atomement and redemption in Christ manifested God's love and wisdom which are his glory.

2. Elernal life—True spiritual life, begun here, but which endures forever.

3. This is life elernal, that they might know thee—By experience by partsking of God's nature.

11. That they may be one—Not uniformity, but unity; not onesses of organization, but of life and love. The unity of a vine with one life, one root, but many branches. The unity of an army with many departments and regiments. Coristians have the same spiritual life, the same leader, the same law, the same purpose, mutual love.

12. That the Scripture might be fulfilled—Ps. 41. 9 (John 13. 18). He did not fall because it was in the Scripture, but when he fell it was seen that he had voluntarily fulfilled the prediction.

14. They are not of the world—But are under a different Master, living a different lite.

15. Not take them out of the world—But are under a different Master, living a different lite.

15. Not take them out of the world—Because they were needed in it to do Christ's work, preach his truth, save the men he came to save. Keep them from the evil i. e.,—From sia, the greatest of evils.

How?—By the Word of truth, by working for Christ, by the higher joys of goodness, by the discipline of life, by the indwelling of the Holy Spirit.

17. Sanctify—Set apart for religious work, hence, to make holy. HELPS OVER HARD PLACES .- 1. The hour

SURING THE FOR STREAM REPORTS. - Charac teristics of this prayer.—The glor, of the Son.—Life eternal.—The unity of the tourch—Christians not of the world—Kept from the evil.—Sanctified by the truth

QUESTIONS.

INTRODUCTORY -What is usually called the Lord's prayer? May this chapter be called also the Lord's prayer? Where was this prayer uttered? Under what circumstances? What are the characteristics of this prayer?

SUBJECT. WHAT JESUS MOST DESIRES FOR HIS PROPLE.

I. THAT THEY MAY HAVE ETRENAL LIFE (vs. 1, 3).—In what form did Jesus pray? What hour had come? How was the Son to be glorified? What power had been given him? What is eternal life? What must we do to have eternal life?

II. THAT THEY MAY BE ONE (vs. 11-21).

—What is the unity Christ desires for his people! To what does he liken it? (See also v. 23.) What will be the effect of this unity? (v. 21.) Why? Is the Church gaining in unity? ing in unity?

III. THAT THEY MAY BE KEPT FROM THE EVIL (vs. 12-15).—How had the disciples been kept? Which one had been lost? Why? (v. 12; I John 2. 19.) Why would Christ have the disciples remain in the wor.d? Does he want to live in this busy and svil world? From what would he have up kept? How?

IV THAT THEY MAY BE SANCTIFIED (VI. 16, 17. 19).—What is it to be sanctified? How may we be sauctified? How does the truth do this? What is the truth?

V. THAT THEY MAY PULFIL THEIR MISSION (v. 17).—For what had Jesus been sent int the world? In what respects are we sent like him into the world?

VI. THAT ALL CHBISTIANS MAY HAVE THE SAME BLESSINGS AS THE DISTIES (v. 20).—
For whom did Jesus pray? What is one work he is ever doing for us? (Heb. 7. 26.)

VII. THAT THEY MAY PARTAKE OF HIS GLORY.—What was Jesus' glory? (v. 24.) What will be ours if we faithfully serve him? What blessings does this include?

a. Those things which Jesus prayed for in our behalf are the ones we should most earnestly seek.

2. We are Christ's representatives on earth, and should carry on his work in his way.

3 The true Christian's place is in the world, but kept from its evil.
4. Being sauctified by the truth we should study much the Word by which we are sanctified.
5. We should in every true way seek to realize Christ's prayer for the unity of all Christians.

Those who work with Christ, suffer with him, and are sanctified with him, will also partake of his ineffable glory.

REVIEW EXERCISE.

12. For what seven most important things did Christ pray for his people? Ans. (Repeat the headings of this lesson.)

> LESSON XIII. [Sep. 26. REVIEW AND TEMPERANCE. REVIEW.

(Scripture Lesson.—The Golden Texts of the Quarter.)

GOLDEN TEXT.

Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even for ever.— Izaiah 9. 7.

DAILY READINGS.

M. John chaps. 9, 10. Tu. John chap. 11. W John chaps. 12, 13. Th. John chap. 14. F. John chap. 15. Su. John chap. 16. Su. John chap. 17.

-The lessons of this quarter belong to the last six months of Jesus' ministry, from October, A.D. 29 to April 6, A.D. 30.

PLACE.—Chiefly in Jerusslem and vicinity. PARALLEL EVENTS.—Matt. 19. 1 to 26; 30; Mark 10. 1 to 14. 26; Luke 13. 10 to 23; 39.

QUESTIONS.

INTRODUCTORY.—What portion of Jesus' life have we been studying? In what places did the chief events occur? Where were most of the discourses spoken? Were there many other events and discourses during this time not recorded by John?

SUBJECT, THE REDERMER'S KINGDOM UNFOLDING,

I THE REDEEMER'S NATURE FURTHER REVEALED (Lessons 1, 2, 4, 5, 6 7, 10).—To what is Jesus likened in Lesson 2? 10 what respect is to like a good shepherd? What miracle is recorded in Lerson 1? What miracle is recorded in Lerson 1? What like this is he still doing for the world? What did he do for his Bethany friends? (Lesson 4) How is Jesus still the life of the world? How did one friend show her affection for him? (Lesson 5.) How did the children and the people honour him? What characteristics does Jesus show in Lesson 7? How was Jesus glorified? (Lesson 6.) To what does Jesus compare himself in 6.) To what does Jesus compare himself in Lesson 10? What is it to abide in him?

Lesson 10? What is it to abide in him?

II. THE PRINCIPLES OF HIS KINGDOM (Lessons 2, 7, 9, 10, 11).—What is the door to this kingdom? (Lesson 2.) What does the good shepherd do for his sheep? How is Christ the way? (Lesson 9.) What else is he? (Lesson 9, v. 6) How may we know whether we are in the kingdom? Lesson 10, v. 14) How did Jesus teach humility? (Lesson 7.) How to love one another? What commandment lies at the basis of his kingdom? (Lesson 8.) How may we remain in his kingdom? (Lesson 10, v. 4.) What is the fruit we should bear? What becomes of fruitless branches? How does fruit-bearing glorify God? In what respects are all Christians one? Does this unity exist now? exist now?

III. ITS ORDINANCES (Lessons 7. What are the two great ordinances of Jesus' kingdom? What does baptism signify? Who partook of the Lord's supper? What is this apparaish to the control of the control of the Lord's supper? is this supper intended to teach?

IV Its PROMISES AND HOPES (Lessons 4, 9, 10, 11, 12).—What did Jesus promise believers? (Lesson 4.) Where had he gone to prepare a place for them? (Lesson 9.) What works did he promise they should do? (Lesson 9, v. 12) What did he promise as present? What great helpes did he What works did he promise they should do? (Lesson 9, v. 12) What did he promise as to prayer? What great helper did he promise to send? What would he do for the disciples? (Lessons 9, 11.) What to lead the world to be disciples? What joy does he give them? (Lesson 20.) From what should they be kept? (Lesson 12.) How should they be made holy? What glory and blessedness shall be theirs?

TEMPERANCE LESSON.

SUBJECT .- THOU ART WEIGHED IN THE BALANCES AND YOUND WANTING (Dan. 5, 27) READ the story in this chapter of Daniel. WRIGH the question of the uses of intoxicating liquors in the Balances of REASON.

OUESTIONS.

INTRODUCTORY.—In what story is the subject of this lesson found? Who was weighed in the balance? What does this mean? In what balance a should we weigh the question of temperance?

I IN ONE SCALE PLACE THE REASONS IN FAVOUR OF USING STRONG DRINK.—How many reasons can you think of in favour of using intoxicating liquors? Name them. Are they good and strong reasons? Do they belong to the lower or the higher nature? Are they such as any one would be willing to acknowledge openly? What makes them induce so many to begin to drink? How are the young deceived by them?

II. IN THE OTHER SCALE PLACE THE REASONS AGAINST USING STRONG DRINK How many reasons can you think of against beginning to use intoxicating liquors? Name them. How is it a murderer? How does it deceive men? How does it them. How is it a murderer? How does it deceive men? How does it make criminals? Of what does it rob men? How does it make slaves of them? To what good things is it opposed? With what evil things is it in aympathy? How does it injure family and friends? What does it bring upon the soul? Are the reasons stronger for, or against drinking? Which course will you choose? What will you do to help others choose the better way? Have you signed the pledge? the pledge?

"I cannor do what is wrong; I am a Caristian," said young Maximilianus, when asked to do a questionable thing. To do the right, that was the badge of Onristianity.

CHAUTAUQUA

TEXT BOOKS

į	Blacksmith." By Charles North
	34. Asiatle History: China, Corea, Japan. By Rev. Wm. Eliot	*0
I	Griffia xxxx xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx	0
I	35. Outlines of General History. By J. H. Vincent, D.D	0 1
	36. Assembly Bible Outlines. By J. H. Vincent, D.D.	0 (
	37. Assembly Normal Outlines. By J. H. Vincent, D.D.	0 1
	38. The Life of Christ. By Rev. J. L. Hurlbut, M.A.
	39 The Sunday-school Normal Class. By J. H. Vincent, D.D	0 10
	40. Normal Outlines for Primary Teachers. By Mrs. W. F. Crafts	0 10
	41. The Teacher Before His Class.
	42. Outlines of Methodism. By Jas.	0 10
	43. Good Manners. By J. P.	0 10 0 10
•	44. Jerusalem, the Holy City. By S. J. M. Raton, D.D	0 10
4	45. Alcohol. By C. H. Buck, A.M.	0 10
4	46. Parliamentary Practice. By T. B. Neely, A.M	v 10
4	47. Readings from Herbert Spencer on Education. Selected by Rev.
4	Jesse B. Young, A.M (48. Our Superintendent. By J. H.	10
	Vincent, D.D) 10
4	 Palestine, the Holy Land. By J. M. Eaton, D.D	10
	When Mailed, Unc Cont Extra.
		_

TEMPERANCE BOOKS

FOR THE TIMES.

	TO MINA AL AMERICAN
	Little Teachers. By Nellie Par-
	ker15c. &	$0 25
-	Liquor Traffic	0 05
	Manchester House. A Tale of Two
	Apprentices	0 50
1	Mind whom you Marry; or, The
	Gardener's Daughter	0 85
	More Excellent Way. By M. E.
	Winslow	0.75
٠ ا	More About our Coffee Room. By	1 00
	Lady Hope of Carriden	0 15
١	Motherless Alice	0 10
	Murray Ballantyne, the Heir of Till- ingford	0 15
	My Little Cornsr	0 45
l	My Nelly's Story	0 15
I	My Parish. By Miss M. A Paul	0.70
ı	Never Give Up. A Christmas Story.	0 39
۱	Night Side of New York Lie. By	• 0.
l	Rev T. DeWitt Talmage, D.D.	U 35
I	No Gains Without Pains	U 35
I	Nothing Like Example. By Nelsie
I	Brook	0 30
I	Old Sail or's Yaru, Au	0 50
I	Orations by J. B. Gough	0 90
I	Our Coffee Room. By Lady Hope of
l	Carriden	1 00
ł	* x

WILLIAM BRIGGS, 78 & 80 King Strant East, Tohonto. O. W. COATES, Montreal, Que. S. F. HUMSTIS, Hallfax, N.S.