CARVELL'S DESIRE TO MISREPRESENT MATTERS EXPOSED BY COUNSEL

Yesterday's Session at Fredericton Marked By Lively Tilts Between Opposing Lawyers in Which Carleton County Member Comes Out Second Best.

HIS INSINUATION AGAINST PREMIER FLEMMING PROVEN FALSE

Hon. Mr. Fleming Not Interested in Securing Contract For Mr. Burt of Hartland—Commission Adjourns to Meet Again in This City on July 15th.

Special Staff Correspondence of The Standard.

Fredericton, July 3.—The enquiry into the charges connected with the St. John Valley Railway stands adjourned until July 15th. This was decided at the close of a strenuous session here today. The session was chiefly remarkable for the manner in which counsel opposed to Mr. Carvell succeeded in exposing that gentleman's desire to misrepresent conditions, and in the remarks of at least one of them it was openly stated that Mr. Carvell was simply making use of the commission as an opportunity for the manufacture of political capital.

Another of the gentlemen of the legal profession did not hesitate to say that Mr. Carvell was trying to beamchirp or "stick a knife" into some one. One witness also showed that Mr. Carvell's insinuation that Hon. J. K. Fleming was at all interested in securing a contract for Mr. Burt of Hartland, was entirely without foundation. Altogether it was not a pleasant day for the Carleton county lawyer.

The sessions of today furnished more interest than the preceding day. There was less time lost by prosey examinations of process estimates, and occasionally a lively tilt between counsel would make matters particularly lively. Mr. Carvell usually got the worst end of it in these encounters as the equity proceeds each day affords evidence that the whole process is merely a fishing excursion of the Liberals opposed to the provincial government. Mr. Carvell gives the same away by the vindictiveness in which he endeavors to bring out evidence not properly admissible in order to get the opportunity to make cheap insinuations or noisy declamations upon his favorite "breadth" theme of the rights of the common "peep-ul". Today he started one of these long harangues, but the effect was lost when Mr. Titus Carter interjected, "the poor, poor people, how they must suffer." Instantly there was a laugh at Mr. Carvell's expense but the ally had the effect of bringing him back to earth for a time at least.

So far there has been no show of evidence to convict either Mr. Fleming or Mr. McLeod with the serious charges made, but the commissioners are patiently waiting and permitting Carvell to wander around most at will. They are willing to put up with hours of needless questioning and speechmaking rather than permit the possibility of their own fact being omitted from the records. A searching investigation was demanded. The demand is being met. Whatever the result may be there can be no two opinions that up to the present at least Mr. Carvell and his associates have not made good.

Witnesses today were W. J. Scott, a sub-contractor, George N. Bobbit, deputy provincial treasurer, and Ross Thompson, chief engineer of the railway. George N. Bobbit on Stand at Afternoon Session. George N. Bobbit, deputy provincial treasurer, was called to the stand when the enquiry resumed in the afternoon at 2.30. Before proceeding with him Mr. Fowler asked what arrangement had been reached as to adjournment. Judge McKeown said they would announce their decision before rising. Witness said he had occupied his position since 1868. None of the St. John Valley Railway funds had gone through his department. Money paid by the Prudential Trust Company was interest on the receipts from the bonds did not come to the province. The province had received $30,179 in repayment of the costs of the survey. Money for the survey had been advanced by the province and repaid by the railway company. The repayment was in October, 1912. W. J. Scott was then recalled and asked regarding payments of $1,600 to George Burt of Hartland. In addition witness paid Mr. Burt $200. Mr. Carvell—"How did you come to take Mr. Burt in as partner?" Mr. Teed—"Now this is objected to." Mr. Carvell—"Didn't Hon. Mr. Fleming ask you to take Mr. Burt in partnership with you?" Mr. Carter objected to the question. He said: "I must protest against the manner in which Mr. Carvell is using this commission against their wish or ruling as a political machine. The whole Burt matter has been shamefully exploited in his personal organ, the Carleton Sentinel, in much the same way that the St. John Telegraph has been publishing garbled and distorted accounts of the evidence and the proceedings. I make a direct charge against him here and now and I make it with the idea of having the commission make such a ruling that these actions on Mr. Carvell's part cannot continue."

Mr. Carvell—"I am not bothering my head about the newspapers." Mr. Teed—"Don't say that." Mr. Carter—"If the evidence in these charges is admissible then admit it but if the commission rules that it is not admissible then Mr. Carvell should not be permitted to use it. I think this court has already allowed Mr. Carvell more than his privileges." Judge McKeown—"Certain serious charges have been made and the court must hear the evidence. Of course we must rely upon the candour and fairness of the counsel."

The witness was permitted to answer the question and said that when the contract for the railway was let he wanted part of it. Mr. Burt also wanted part of it. Witness had the lower portion of the contract and Burt the upper. Witness found it necessary to take some of Mr. Burt's land. He saw Mr. Fleming about it and explained the situation. Mr. Fleming then suggested that Burt and witness should go in on the contract together. This they did but after they got to work they found there was no money in it and each wanted to sell to the other. Finally witness bought Mr. Burt out and proceeded alone. He had had no talk with Mr. Fleming except the one he referred to.

Mr. Guthrie—"Another Carvell bubble picked up." Mr. Fowler—"Yes another one." Mr. Carvell—"Well, at any rate we did not have to sell this fellow away to prevent him from testifying." Mr. Scott was then sent to get his progress estimates and Ross Thompson was called.

Mr. Thompson said he was not with the St. John and Quebec Railway Company nor a stockholder of that company. From December 1911 until April 1914 he was chief engineer of that company. He was not a director after December 31st. While a director of the road he was also a stockholder for about six months. Witness then named the present officers of the St. John and Quebec Railway. A. R. Gould of Presque Isle was president, S. B. Ware of Fredericton, secretary, W. B. Goodman of New York, assistant treasurer and W. J. O'Brien of Fredericton assistant secretary. The additional directors are C. K. Howland of Fredericton and H. M. Crandall of Ottawa. The amount of stock outstanding at the present time was $2,000,000 divided into 20,000 shares of $100 each. These were held as follows: By A. R. Gould, fifty shares; J. W. Gould, one share; C. P. Chestnut, fifty shares; F. B. Edgcombe, fifty shares; C. K. Howland, fifty shares; H. M. Crandall, fifty shares and the Prudential Trust Company of Montreal 19,749 shares making in all 20,000 shares. Witness formerly held fifty shares but now had none.

Mr. Carvell—"How much did these stockholders pay for their stock?" Mr. Teed—"That is none of your business. I object to this as beyond the scope of the enquiry." Mr. Carvell—"Do you know if they ever paid one dollar?" Mr. Teed—"I must urge my objection. The internal affairs of this company are not matters of enquiry. The learned counsel is nosing in where he has no right to go." Mr. Carvell—"I am going to bring out the evidence concerning the finances of this company." Mr. Teed—"And I claim you have no rights in that direction. We may as well settle this question now. I claim the first thing for you to prove is that money has been diverted. The financing of the company has nothing to do with the charge." Mr. Carvell—"I believe it has to do with the diversion of the money. We can find that $100,000 was diverted, if the company had no money of their own, then the money diverted was the property of the people of this province." Mr. Teed—"Mr. Carvell has said he intended to conduct this enquiry as he himself pleased. Hitherto we have not taken strenuous objections, but now let me lay down a suggestion for the commission and I do it with all respect. Let me suggest that Mr. Car-

SORROW OVER THE DEATH OF CHAMBERLAIN

Public Men and Press Pay Tribute to Memory of Great Statesman—Funeral on Monday a Simple One.

London, July 3.—Hon. Joseph Chamberlain died last night. The death of Joseph Chamberlain, which removed one of the most striking figures from the British political scene in the past generation, came as an entire surprise, as the condition of his health was not publicly known to be any worse than at any time in the past two or three years.

Mrs. Chamberlain, who never left her husband's bedside since he was stricken with paralysis seven years ago, and his son, Austen Chamberlain, were with Mr. Chamberlain when death occurred at 10.30 o'clock Thursday at his London residence. The event cast a gloom today over the London season, which was at its height.

All the prominent public men eloquent tributes to the dead statesman. John Redmond being particularly generous. He said: "Ireland has long forgotten all bitter memories in the feeling of sympathy at the pathetic spectacle of Chamberlain's long illness. He was a great man."

The Pall Mall Gazette states that although burial in Westminster Abbey will be offered, it is certain that the funeral will be with Imperialism, was the chief policy for which Joseph Chamberlain was spokesman, when enforced retirement through paralysis occurred. His blow fell almost complete eclipse, his son, Austen, being the only British statesman who advocates it on all occasions.

The Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain was the pioneer in Great Britain of tariff reform, and the great advocate of the free trade policy. For thirty-eight years, with a brief interregnum, he represented Birmingham in Parliament. In 1908 his career of stormy activities was ended by a stroke of paralysis. This blow fell when he was in the midst of a strenuous campaign for the establishment of a protective tariff in preference for the British Colonies, and just after his constituents had celebrated the thirtieth anniversary of his first election.

SLAPS FACE OF NURSE WHO KISSED HUSBAND

Physician's Wife Denies She Entered Office While Body of Murdered Woman was Lying on Floor—Saw Nurse Kiss Husband.

Freeport, N. Y., July 3.—For more than three hours last evening Mrs. Edgar Carman, wife of the Freeport physician in whose office Mrs. Louise Bailey, the pretty wife of a wealthy New York manufacturer, was mysteriously murdered Tuesday, sat on the witness stand at the coroner's inquest and submitted to a rigid cross-examination concerning her actions just prior to the killing, just after it, and at the moment it occurred.

Mrs. Carman emphatically denied she was on the porch of her home just before the murder, that she had walked around on the ground floor when Mrs. Bailey was in her husband's office, or that she entered the office while the victim's body was still lying on the floor. George Golder, a patient who had been waiting to see Dr. Carman on the night of the murder, swore on the witness stand that he had seen the physician's wife do all these things.

When it was suggested that perhaps Golder had mistaken Mrs. Carman for her sister, the witness was confronted with both women, and he immediately picked Mrs. Carman out as the one he had seen. Mrs. Carman told substantially the same story that she related the morning after the murder to the district attorney and detectives. This was that she had gone to her room immediately after dinner the night of the murder and except for a space of a minute had not returned there, even after she heard the breaking of the window glass and the report of the revolver, as it sent a bullet through Mrs. Bailey's heart.

She told how she had contracted for the installing of the telephone instrument in her husband's office so she could hear what he had to say to his women patients, and how she had ripped it out the morning after the murder.

Mrs. Carman also told of spying on her husband through the same window the assassin used, of seeing him hand a nurse a $20 bill, and of watching the nurse kiss her husband on the cheek. The kiss, she said, caused her to rap on the same pane of glass which was later broken by the person who killed Mrs. Bailey. And then she went inside, where she slapped the face of the nurse, demanded and received the $20 bill, and in turn was kissed by her husband. She never repeated the performance, or ever spied upon him again "all would be over between them."

The inquest will be resumed Monday. Ottawa, July 3.—The retirement of Major Leonard from the commission of the National Transcontinental Railway marks the completion of the line, have for some extra ballasting and filling and the construction of a few stations to be completed by October 1. It is then that the Grand Trunk Pacific will be called upon to exercise its option of acquiring the line by lease.

CALL FOR TENDERS ISSUED A FURTHER EVIDENCE OF HON. MR. HAZEN'S WORK

Minister of Marine and Fisheries Uses Influence With Government and Secures Another Large Expenditure for St. John—Importance of Step Fully Recognized, Especially by Shipping Men.

ACTION SHOWS INTERESTS OF THIS CITY ARE IN ENERGETIC AND SAFE HANDS AT OTTAWA

Extension Will Mean Vast Improvement and Added Safety to Harbor—Protection for New Wharves in Course of Construction South of Sand Point—Plan Advocated for Many Years and Accomplishment Signal Victory for St. John's Representative in Dominion Cabinet.

At the instance of Hon. J. D. Hazen the Dominion government has issued a call for tenders for the extension of the Negro Town Point Breakwater to Partridge Island, and the work is to be carried on as speedily as possible. It is expected that the cost of the work will exceed three quarters of a million dollars.

For many years past the plan of closing up the western entrance by extending the Negro Town Point breakwater to the island has been advocated by those interested in the development of the harbor, and it has been urged upon the government very strongly from time to time by the Board of Trade.

When Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of Public Works, and Hon. J. D. Hazen were here last fall the citizens urged the extension of the breakwater to Partridge Island; among other projects for the improvement of the harbor, and Mr. Rogers promised that his department would take the matter up and arrange for the extension of the breakwater as soon as money for the purpose could be secured from parliament.

Mr. Hazen has from time to time expressed his recognition of the need of having this work done, as the other harbor developments proceeded, and he has exercised his influence with the government to induce it to undertake another large expenditure in the interests of St. John.

Some time ago there was some opposition to the idea of closing the harbor between the island, and the Negro Town Point, especially from schooner captains who thought it would interfere with vessels beating into the harbor, but now that most of the schooners trading to St. John are equipped with motors this opposition has died away, and since the government undertook to build new wharves south of Sand Point the importance of having the gap closed has been generally recognized. This work has been recommended by the engineers of the department of public works and by Mr. Swan, the harbor expert, who was sent here by the government to make a special report on the needs of the harbor.

The removal of the beacon has also emphasized the need of the extension of the breakwater to Partridge Island, since in strong south west winds a rather heavy swell rolls up into the harbor, causing trouble for the ferry boat and for ships lying on the eastern side of the harbor. The principal advantage of having the breakwater extended will be that it will afford protection to the new wharves being built south of Sand Point, as under present conditions the swell that comes in through the western entrance would make it impossible for ships to berth on the southern side of the most southern wharf.

Announcement was made this week by Mr. Valiquette, inspecting engineer of the department of public works, that the government would shortly call for tenders for steel sheds on the wharves being built by the Maritime Dredging and Construction Company, and the announcement that the breakwater is to be extended will be hailed with satisfaction by those interested in the development of the harbor. When contracts are let for the extension of the breakwater and the building of the sheds the government will have undertaken to carry out all the important urgent features of the program of harbor development which the way of harbor improvement here, its decision to spend another three-quarters of a million for a breakwater shows that the interests of St. John are in safe hands, and that the government intends to carry out as far as feasible the important work of harbor improvement to which it has set its hand. The building of this breakwater will give work to a large number of men.

ENTERTAIN CIVIL WAR VETERANS

American Residents in London Giving Sailors and Soldiers an Outing—One Veteran of 105 First to Accept Invitation.

London, July 3.—The American residents of London are entertaining the civil war veterans who live in this country with an outing tomorrow. It is not likely that all of the 150 old sailors and soldiers who draw their pensions through the American consulate general in London will be able to attend for many of them are very feeble, but already over a score have accepted the invitation, some with the rather pathetic aspect that "there will have to be tickets for two, as I must have somebody to look after me."

One of the first to accept was Geo. Monroe, a naval veteran, who is 102 years old, but is still as active as many of the youngsters of 70 or more and takes part in all of their monthly gatherings.

The London veterans are very well looked after. Most of them are with friends or relatives or in comfortable homes around London. In Bournemouth, in the southeast of London, they have a club where those able to travel gather once a month under the presidency of John Davis, himself an American naval pensioner, who for 36 years has been connected with the London City Mission. At these meetings Davis generally entertains about forty of his comrades. His only rule is that no liquor of any kind shall be in the room, and he has also been successful in getting this rule observed outside the club by all the members.

Davis, who, despite his years, frequently takes trips to Canada with Salvation Army emigrants and has, in fact, just returned from one such voyage, is organizing the Fourth of July celebration, to which the more prosperous American residents are subscribed. First, the veterans will be entertained at luncheon and will then be invited to witness an afternoon of sports, including baseball matches, and other American games.

THE SOLDIERS ARE LEAVING CAMP SUSSEX

Sussex, N. B., July 3.—The citizen soldiers who have been in training here for the last two weeks, broke camp today and left for their homes in various parts of the province. Thursday afternoon and this morning were taken up with a sham battle. The attacking force bivouacked all night and in the early morning advanced to the attack. Many prisoners were captured on both sides. The battle was hotly waged. The attacking force although greatly outnumbered was able to make the defenders show their strength and this was considered the chief object of the fight.

TEN THOUSAND DEAD IN FLOODS IN CHINA

Canton, July 3.—Reports received here say that 10,000 persons have been drowned in the West River floods which this year are worse than usual, and that deaths from starvation in the affected districts have been numerous.

Stamford, Conn., July 3.—Because expert testimony showed that a trail of human blood ran from the lower hall of the building up two flights of stairs and into her apartments, and because she would make no statement, Mrs. Helen M. Ballou on the night of June 22, Mrs. Angle had been at liberty under a $5,000 bond.

Ballou was found dying on the sidewalk in front of the building where Mrs. Angle lived. A few hours before he had visited her in her apartments. He had apparently been dragged from the building into the street.

Mrs. Angle early told the police that Ballou had fallen down a flight of stairs while under the influence of liquor. In view of this and her nervous collapse later, the coroner departed from custom and permitted her to be at liberty in custody of her father.

Mrs. Angle was taken into custody

THIRTEEN MILLION BUSHELS AM. GRAIN

Montreal, July 3.—It is estimated that thirteen million bushels of American grain have been received in the Montreal elevators since the opening of navigation this year.

This is much in excess of previous consignments received from the States for any corresponding period, and is considered to be a factor in the present grain congestion at the Montreal elevators.

EVIDENCE COMPLETE IN STREET RAILWAY CASE: THE DECISION TODAY

Ex-conductor Ramsay denies entering saloon—Detective contradicts story—Other witnesses.

The board of enquiry into the dispute between the street railway and its employees' union finished taking evidence yesterday. Sidney Mosher of Halifax, representing the International Brotherhood of Street Railway Employees, being the only witness examined. F. R. Taylor reviewed the evidence for the company, and J. A. Barre summed up the case for the employees. The commissioners will give their decision this morning.

Victor Fichbourne, a Theat detective who said he was sent here from Toronto to find out who were in the union and what the union proposed to do, swore he saw Conductor Ramsay leave his car, enter the barroom of James Quinn, Mill street, on the morning of May 21st, and also May 23rd. He smelt liquor on Ramsay in the morning of the 21st, but could not swear as to the 23rd.

James Quinn, proprietor of the barroom, swore Ramsay had not been in his bar on those mornings. He never remembered seeing Ramsay in the bar in uniform.

Ex-conductor Ramsay also swore he had not been in the bar on those two mornings. The company's rule permitted employees on duty to enter a bar in case of necessity, as there were no public lavatories.

Hazen McLean, inspector of the company, testified he discharged Ramsay on the 23rd when he got the information he had been in a barroom. He said Ramsay was a fair conductor, but careless. He had previously reprimanded him for showing up late to take his car. He took no account of the fact that Ramsay was president of the union.

Some witnesses called testified that they had been warned that if they joined the union they would be liable to lose their jobs. The men's union has passed a resolution agreeing to abide by the decision of the board of enquiry.

BASEBALL MAGNATE LOOKING FOR FISH

It will be of interest, especially to the baseball enthusiasts in this city to know that St. John is to be paid a visit within a couple of weeks by no other than Charles A. Comiskey, the president of the Chicago American Club, and one of the most prominent persons in the baseball world. Joe Page, who is the Canadian representative of the Chicago club, has been in the city for the past few days making arrangements for President Comiskey, who with a party of friends intend to spend some days in the New Brunswick wilds looking for good fishing. A guide has been employed and all arrangements have been made for the trip with the exception of sending word to the fish to await his coming.

CARVELL'S DESIRE TO MISREPRESENT MATTERS EXPOSED BY COUNSEL

Continued from page 1. don, England. Lisman had been a director of the company during a part of 1912 until the annual meeting in that year. Of the Quebec and St. John Construction Company's stockholders witness named C. A. Barnard of Montreal, with 3 shares; L. E. Gould with 2,500; F. J. Lisman with 2,500; James K. Law, Montreal, with 746; H. E. MacDonnell, Montreal, with 2,000; Mrs. A. D. Carroll of Quebec with 250 and W. K. McKeown with one share. The company was organized in May, 1912, and had had no other contracts except for this railway.

Mr. Carvell—"Did you hold stock in trust for any person?" Mr. Carvell—"No, I did not."

Mr. Carvell—"Let us hear about the Transcontinental line while you are on your feet."

Mr. Thompson then started to give evidence as to the transactions regarding rights of way.

He went into two or three cases showing the amounts paid on right of way account to land owners, when Mr. Carvell remarked that there would be $80 cases. This caused the commissioners to gasp at the prospect of having many hours of dreary figuring and finally Chairman McKeown suggested that the accounts should be listed and submitted to the counsel in the case.

Then if there were specific cases which required special scrutiny these could be taken up. This met the approval of the counsel and it was decided to proceed along that line.

Mr. Carvell stated that if it was decided to take the timber charges up after adjournment he would only have enough witnesses without Berry to proceed for a day and a half. He would, however, be ready to go on with the railway charges after the timber limit witnesses had been examined upon that understanding the commission adjourned to meet in St. John on Wednesday, July 15.

Morning Session. The examination of Mr. Polley was continued this morning. He named the following as the contractors on the Hibbard Company work: J. W. Steeves, Thompson & Hibbard, Smith and Merrithew, George Pray, (later taken over by Collins & Lebell), James T. Truhart, James Forbes, Paris Company, Gray & Young, William McDonald & Sons, J. A. Wheaton, McNutt & Young, Frank Anderson, Joe Angelo, Popper & Dexter, O'Connor Bros., Scott & Kelly; the last named and Smith & Merrithew having the biggest sections of the work. The Hibbard Company did most of the concrete work themselves. Smith & Merrithew did the concrete work on their section. George Tucker, James Cunningham and W. H. Hamilton also did some concrete and masonry work on the line. T. R. Campbell had the contract for all the fencing and telegraph line.

The progress estimates for the work came from the Hibbard Company and copies of the details were given the sub-contractors. It was suggested that the witness bring these estimates in to court but it was finally decided that the counsel for Mr. Dugal could examine these records during the recess.

The work to be done after March included the cleaning out of slumps that had occurred during the winter. This would cost about $25,000 or $30,000. There were also 22 miles of track to be laid at a cost of $400 per mile. He also gave an estimate of the cost of other work to be completed. On cross-examination witness said that the company's claim against the railway company amounted to about $250,000. Of this amount $100,000 was ten per cent. holdback, $25,000 to $30,000 unpaid on the section to Kennedy & McDonald and about $40,000 on the matter of classification.

Witness said that at first it was estimated that there was about 1,200,000 yards of material to be moved whereas it turned out that there was more than 2,000,000 yards in the work.

J. Howe Dickson, clerk of the executive council, told of the orders in council for the payments of moneys from the proceeds of the guaranteed bonds. He could not bring the books with the original orders without an order from the government and at present Mr. Clarke was in Montreal.

He had prepared a statement, however. This showed orders up to June 4th, as follows: General purpose, $2,367,254.48; rails, $508,220.34; bridges, $118,480.64. Total $2,993,955.46. After 4th the amount of the order was $25,000.00.

There was some discrepancy between these figures and those given by B. Hal. Brown, president of the Prudential Trust Company, but the commission said this difference was doubtless purely technical and would be explained in due course. Mr. Carvell seemed inclined to believe that there was something suspicious in the differences.

When the probable causes for the differences were under discussion the commissioners referred to the contract between the company and the King for the construction of the railway. Mr. Carvell sought to make it appear that that was a document which was not made public and was not obtainable.

Chairman McKeown did not like that insinuation. "It got three of the commissioners," he said to Mr. Carvell, "it's all right."

Then Mr. Carvell called for William J. Scott, but he was not in court. A. R. Gould and his son, L. E. Gould, were called, but they were not in court.

Mr. Carvell made enquiries as to whether Messrs. Gould would be present or not, and Mr. Guthrie, who

Mr. Teed—"You have no right to say that. You know it not true."

Mr. Carter—"Oh, he knows all about stealing in connection with railway companies. He has had experience. Tell us something about the Kitchen contract."

Mr. Fowler—"Let us hear about the Transcontinental line while you are on your feet."

Mr. Thompson then started to give evidence as to the transactions regarding rights of way.

Then Mr. Carvell called for William J. Scott, but he was not in court. A. R. Gould and his son, L. E. Gould, were called, but they were not in court.

Mr. Carvell made enquiries as to whether Messrs. Gould would be present or not, and Mr. Guthrie, who appeared for the company, said he was not in a position to say, not having been advised.

Mr. Carvell said he had had the Messrs. Gould served with subpoenas at Presque Isle, which was the most he could do. He declared that as the president of this company, A. R. Gould should be present.

Chairman McKeown said that the irregularity with which the commission's sitting had been carried on might explain why Mr. Gould and his son, the latter the president of the construction company, had not appeared.

His Honor stated that surely Mr. Gould would be present as he should be, and the other commissioners expressed similar views.

Mr. Carvell was going on to make a statement to the effect that Mr. Gould had left the country, when Mr. T. J. Carter, K. C., said that he wished to call the attention of the commission as to what he declared to be an "absolute falsehood" appearing in the St. John Telegraph, when it appeared in headlines that "Mr. Gould had left the country."

"As a matter of fact, Mr. Carvell said that, instead of leaving the country, Mr. Corbett had not been here since August of last year. This was all a result, he continued, of the misleading statements made by counsel. There is a "constant conspiracy" going on to use this commission, notwithstanding the wish of the commissioners to keep politics out, as a political machine."

"Shall we adjourn?" asked Mr. Carvell.

As Mr. George N. Babbitt, another witness, was not in court, adjournment was made for next Tuesday. Secretary McDade found the cause of the difference between the statement of the clerk of the Executive Council and the Prudential Trust Company as to amounts paid out from the proceeds of the guaranteed bonds by the Trust company, and the commissioners had the information when the afternoon session opened.

The Prudential Trust Company's statement, given by Mr. B. Hal. Brown.

KNOCKED DOWN, BREAKS ANKLE

Last night about 11.30 o'clock a fight which did not last very long, but had bad results for a young man named John McLaughlin took place on Prince street near the corner of Canterbury. McLaughlin with a few other young men came from the vicinity of German street and when they reached the corner above mentioned there was some words exchanged and two of the men engaged in a fight. There was only a couple of blows exchanged when McLaughlin fell to the street and called out "my leg is broken."

Policemen Rankine and O'Neill were near at the time and when they rushed to the place McLaughlin's assistant with a couple of others ran away and the injured man was left lying on the street. The officers carried the man to the doorway of the Pugsley building and the ambulance was called. McLaughlin was taken to the General Public Hospital by Officer O'Neill where it was found that he had sustained a bad break near the ankle.

WINNIPEG DEFEATED YESTER

Henley-on-Thames, July 3.—The prediction of Robert C. M. Start of Trinity Hills, the American coach, has proved true, and the American will row up the course here in the final for the educational fish carmen.

Both American combined the distance of one mile 55 feet the first time of seven miles which had been beaten in previous occasions. Their times were 23 minutes, 45 seconds and 24 minutes, 15 seconds. After today's race Abeles, a train of the Boston crew, got all the lead we ever see the first fifty strokes. We set away from them

M'ADAM AND ST. JOHN THIS AFTERNOON

McAdam will be the professional team to meet the St. John team at the North End grounds this afternoon.

The McAdam team will be strengthened by the addition of the crack Col. by University battery, Messrs. James and Malcolm, and their star second baseman, Goebel. The team has been playing the fastest nine in Maine and has shown class, and the St. John boys will have to give some to live up to their reputation and get away with a victory. The game will start at 3 o'clock and the lineup of the home team will be as follows: Gibbons, short stop; Milan, 3rd base; Riley, centre field; Graves, 2nd base; John Dever, left field; Garnett, right field; Gorman, 1st base; Joseph Dever, catcher; Hansen or Donovan, pitcher. The interest in local talent is beginning to take hold of the fans and all that is required to make the game a grand success from a spectacular standpoint is fine weather.

WINNIPEG DEFEATED YESTERDAY

Henley-on-Thames, July 3.—All month, as to the destination of the Grand Challenge Cup this year was dispensed today when the Union Boat Club of Boston defeated Mayence Rowing Club, and Harvard second eight beat Winnipeg in the semi-final round.

The prediction of Robert F. Herrick, the American coach, has thus come true, and the two American crews will row up the course here tomorrow in the final for the edification of English oarsmen.

Both American combinations did the distance of one mile 550 yards in the last time of seven minutes flat, which had been beaten only on three previous occasions. Their performances therefore gave promise of a great race tomorrow, although the Englishmen prefer Harvard's style and condition to that of Boston.

After today's race Abeles, the coxswain of the Boston crew, said: "We got all the lead we ever attained in the first fifty strokes. We could not get away from them."

Harvard and Boston row off at a quarter past four tomorrow afternoon and then Lady Hamilton will present the prizes.

The Diamond Sculls.

Giuseppe Sinigaglia, of Como, beat Robert Dibbles, of Toronto, in the second semi-final of the diamond sculls. Sinigaglia won by five lengths in 3 minutes, 33 seconds. Dibbles' time was 4 minutes, 10 seconds, and fell out of the boat, but was promptly rescued by the umpire's launch.

C. M. Start of Trinity Hall, Cambridge, beat E. G. Williams of the Vikings Rowing Club by a length and a half in the first semi-final of the Diamond Sculls. His time was 3 minutes 45 seconds.

THE BRITISH FIELD AND TRACK CHAMPS.

London, July 3.—The preliminary heats in the British field and track championships were run off today at the Stamford Bridge ground, London. Among the entrants are ten American including hurdlers, sprinters, and middle and long distance runners. Homer Backer, of the New York Athletic Club, won his heat in the half mile amateur championship. Time 2 1/2 minutes, 2 3/4 seconds. The other two heats in the half mile amateur championship were won respectively by Henley of Brighton in 1 minute, 58 1/2 seconds, and Hill of the Polytechnic Harriers, whose time was 1 minute, 58 1/2 seconds. Homer Backer also won his heat in the quarter mile championship by four yards, in fifty and four-fifths seconds.

The other winners of heats in the quarter mile were Mitchell, London University in 51 3/4 seconds; S. E. D. House, London Athletic Club, 52 4/5 seconds.

The four miles flat championship was won again by the holder, G. W. Hutson of the Surrey Athletic Club, in 19 minutes, 41 1/2 seconds. A. H. Nicholls, of the Surrey Athletic Club, was second and C. F. Price of the Newport Harriers, third. There were 26 starters.

The putting the weight championship was won by A. R. Tadpole, of Finland, with a distance of 44 feet, 7 1/2 inches. H. Harrison, of the New York Athletic Club, was second with 43 feet, 6 1/2 inches.

Tadpole won the discus event with a throw of 144 feet, 6 1/2 inches; Quinn, of the Polytechnic Harriers, was second with 125 feet, 3 1/2 inches, and Tolby, Hungary, third with 123 feet, 4 inches.

Harry J. Smith, of New York, was among the competitors in several of the events, but was never prominent.

EXCHANGE OF DEVOES.

Boston, July 3.—Josh Devoe, formerly of the New York Giants, will join the Boston Nationals as a result of a trade by which the Philadelphia Nationals, of which he is now a member, will receive John Martin, a third baseman, in exchange, according to an announcement by Manager Stallings of the Boston team tonight. Martin played with Rochester International League club last season.

Of course the Boston Red Sox slumped horribly last season, but one player who didn't seem to be affected by it was Duffy Lewis, the left fielder, who increased his batting average twelve points over 1912 and at present indications will do better this year. He has the speed and general brilliance of his top player, to his left, Speaker, but there are mighty few chances that get away from him.

RESULTS OF CANADIAN GOLF CHAMPS.

Ottawa, July 3.—George Lyon of the Lambton and Bruce Evans of the Country Club, Waverly, Mass., were the winners today in the semi-finals at the championship tournament of the Royal Canadian Golf Association. Both the matches were thirty-six holes and were played in magnificent summer weather.

After being one down at the turn George Lyon came back to his game in the afternoon and beat Fritz Martin of Hamilton, by 4 and 3. Of the last fourteen holes Lyon won nine, lost three and halved two. He played cleverly in all departments and will probably capture the Canadian championship for the eighth time. Martin did splendid work in the morning but his last stages saw him go to pieces. In the morning he took the thirteenth with a thirty foot putt.

Bruce Evans of Boston defeated T. R. Reith, Beaconsfield, by one up after two extra holes had been played. Evans, whose wonderful driving has carried him through, was three up at the half, and he increased it to six. Then he grew careless and Reith, by a magnificent uphill game, managed to win the thirtieth and square the game for the first time. The thirty-seventh was halved in five, though Evans again outdrove his opponent, reaching the green in three while Reith took five. At the next Reith hooked his tee shot into the rough while Evans skied his iron drive and lay dead on the green in one. Reith recovered with his second and after missing a three left Evans almost straggled but Boston player showed remarkable nerve and reached the cup after a ten foot putt, his ball just grazing that of Reith.

G. H. Turpin, Montreal, and A. Adams, Hamilton, won the consolation.

THIS DATE IN RING ANNALS

1895—T. Van Buskirk knocked out Patsy Corrigan in 6th round at Stockton, Cal. In the early days of the ring pugniculous pugilists sometimes fought "for love," but in this modern battle Corrigan fought for both love and money. The Irishman was a great middleweight in his palmy days, but in 1895 he was a back number and stranded in the California city. Corrigan received a telegram saying that his wife, who was in a hospital in the East, was dying, but he had no money to go to her. Van Buskirk was in Stockton, and Corrigan, although in no condition to fight, challenged him to do immediate battle. The fight was pulled off before a big holiday crowd, and Corrigan, although in poor shape, fought gamely for several rounds. Van Buskirk was a heavyweight, but the old middleweight, with the thought of his dying wife in his mind, punished his big antagonist severely for a few rounds. Corrigan soon tired, however, and the referee was about to stop the bout and save him from further punishment when Van Buskirk knocked him out. The veteran was insensible for several hours, but the loser's end enabled him to make the journey to his wife. A couple of years later Van Buskirk was knocked out in the 2nd round of the bout with Jim Jeffries.

1893—Eddie Campbell, bantamweight boxer, born in San Francisco, was one of those impromptu bouts which attracted attention to Dan as a possible pugilist, and "Gentleman" Richard Humphries took the young Hebrew under his wing and instructed him in the arts of pugilism. His first money fight was against a husky coal-heaver,

GOOD RACES AT SYDNEY YESTERDAY

Sydney, N. S., July 3.—Even better racing than that on Thursday was the verdict of those who attended the contests at the trotting park this afternoon. In the 219 class, Prince Wilkes, driven by Peter Carroll of Halifax took first money, winning three out of the four heats raced. Dominion D, owned by P. Smith, Grace Bay, took second money under professional training.

In the first heat this horse and also Gracie Mac were announced as distanced but when the horses came to the wire for the second heat both of them asked for positions and were given places. Mr. Carroll protested the race.

The best racing of the day was furnished by the horses in the three minute class, five heats being necessary to decide the race. The first two went to Lloyd Achille owned by Angus McNick, New Glasgow, and driven by Peter Carroll. The last three were won by Roletta, Spurgeon Gammon, New Glasgow, after some of the most exciting racing possible. A feature of the race was the last heat in which Alvirton Boy, made a great race for first place, being beaten by only a head and securing third money.

AGES OF HEAVY WEIGHTS

The fact that Jack Johnson had reached the age of thirty-eight years fifty-eight days when he risked his title against Frank Moran in Paris last Saturday has led to some interesting discussion regarding the ages at which previous heavyweight champions lost their ring laurels. John L. Sullivan was thirty-four years old when defeated by James J. Corbett at New Orleans in 1892. He held the title for ten years, but Corbett was less fortunate for he retained the championship but five years, being thirty-one years old when Bob Fitzsimmons won at Carson City in 1897.

Fitzsimmons' tenure of championship was even less, for at the age of thirty-seven he was knocked out by Jim Jeffries at Coney Island in 1899, after holding the title for two years and three months. Jeffries who met defeat at the hands of Johnson at Reno July 4, 1910, was thirty-five years old when the negro wrested the ring honors from him.

There's the plain, crooked kind that simply can't go straight, but must burn crookedly down one side until it finally fizzles out.

And the merely irresponsible—that start out with the best intentions, but are too weak to hold together. Their wrappers get loose, unwind, and pretty soon they're in the gutter, jagged and half-smoked.

Cranky cigars — good enough, usually, but with unexpected bitterness now and then—are tolerated sometimes, but never trusted and seldom really cared for.

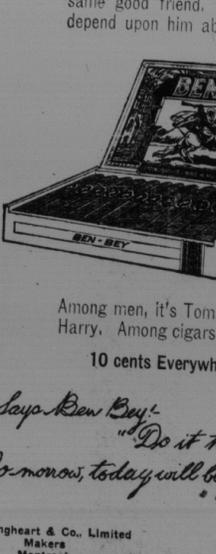

A true friend—man or cigar—is neither cranky nor tight, nor irresponsible, nor crooked. He has plenty of character, a friendly, pleasant heart, no hidden bitterness, and wherever you find him he's always the same good friend. You can depend upon him absolutely.

Among men, it's Tom, Dick or Harry. Among cigars Ben Bey

MR. HAZEN'S ACHIEVEMENT

The calling of tenders for the extension of the Negro Town Point Breakwater to Partridge Island, thereby closing up the channel, is another evidence that Honorable Mr. Hazen is working in the interests of St. John. The Board of Trade has urged for this work for many years, but while Mr. Pugsley was in office their requests met with no tangible success. Mr. Pugsley merely smiled, promised that it should be done at once, and then passed on to something else.

When the Borden Government took office, however, and Mr. Hazen entered the cabinet as St. John's representative, and Minister of Marine and Fisheries, conditions changed, and the people of this city speedily became aware that their interests would be properly looked after. A request from the city or the Board of Trade was regarded as deserving of more attention than dismissal with a pious cliché which was never the intention to implement and which was made only as the easiest way of getting over the matter.

With Mr. Hazen a promise carries with it the necessity of fulfillment, and the result is seen in the work already accomplished by him for this port. The Government built the grain conveyors at Mr. Hazen's request. The necessity for additional wharf accommodation at West St. John brought from the Minister a promise that action would be taken at once and it was taken. Now the extension of the Negro Town Point Breakwater will be another great factor in the improvement of our harbor facilities and the development of this port. It is only necessary to repeat that every day brings additional evidence that in the Minister of Marine St. John has a representative who is always to be depended upon when St. John's interests are concerned. He is known by his works rather than his promises.

THE COMMISSION

Each day's development in the enquiry into the Valley Railway charges seems to make it more necessary that the members of the Royal Commission should take some measures to curb the ebullient Mr. Carvell. Yesterday was no exception and there will be many lovers of fair play in New Brunswick who will be inclined to agree with Mr. Carter when he charges that Mr. Carvell is using the commission merely as an opportunity to make political capital against Mr. Fleming and his supporters.

On more than one occasion the blatant gentleman who is prosecuting the charges has announced that it is his chief idea to get the matter before the people through the medium of the Telegraph and Times. There can be no objection to this so long as these newspapers handle the case fairly and on its merits, but when to Mr. Carvell's grandstand performances in the court room, and his insinuations of charges and mysteries that never come to anything, is added the campaign of misrepresentation, distortion and deliberate lying followed by the press supporting Carvell and the others behind the Dugal charges it is certainly high time to call a halt. The Commissioners cannot cause the Telegraph and Times to be truthful or fair, but they certainly can see to it that Mr. Carvell is governed by the rules of evidence and is not permitted to avail himself of the protection of the court room to make statements and insinuations which if voiced under other circumstances would be speedily and forebodingly refuted.

PRICKING BUBBLES

In the earlier stages of the Valley Railway hearing, Mr. Carvell was at great pains to point out that the survey for the road had cost $150,000 and this cost was exorbitant. Yesterday Mr. Carvell caused Mr. Carvell to read from the accounts of the railway company a statement to the effect that the survey cost a little more than $30,000. When cornered, Carvell admitted he was in error but if the utter falsity of his contention had not been brought so completely home to him it is an open question whether he would not have persisted in his attempt to make the people believe it.

On another occasion earlier in the enquiry it developed that Mr. Burt, who, with Mr. Scott, held a contract for supplying ties, braces, etc., to the railway, was a supporter and friend of Mr. Fleming. Instantly there arose in the Carvell mind the idea that it was at Mr. Fleming's personal solicitation Mr. Burt secured a part of the contract, and at once the Telegraph published its usual dirty insinuation that Mr. Fleming was actually by ulterior motives in his advocacy of Mr. Burt's cause.

Yesterday, at Fredericton, Contract for Scott was on the stand, and from his evidence it developed that the only part Mr. Fleming had in the transaction was in the way of suggesting a method of settling a dispute between the two contractors. Mr. Scott's contract was so located that he found it convenient to get ties off Mr. Burt's land. When the matter was brought to the attention of Mr. Fleming that gentleman did what any sane business man would have done, suggested that the contractors join forces and thus come to a settlement of their difficulty. This was good advice, given in friendly spirit but surely nothing to cause Mr. Fleming to be the subject of insinuating nastiness on the part of Mr. Carvell and the disreputable newspapers which are daily violating all traditions of truth and decency in their insane partisan desire to make a little dirty political capital for the party they are hired to support. The longer this enquiry proceeds the more discreditable becomes the peculiar activity of Mr. Carvell and his man Friday.

THE MANITOBA ELECTIONS

The provincial elections in Manitoba will be held on Friday of next week and as far as it is possible to judge at this distance there is little or no serious thought that the Roblin Government will be turned out. In the last general election in that province on June 7th, 1910, the Roblin Government was returned with a standing of twenty-eight to thirteen and this was not materially changed in the four years which have since elapsed. Redistribution has given to Manitoba half a dozen additional seats but there is every reason to believe that the new seats will return supporters of the present administration.

Premier Roblin has had a successful term as Manitoba's chief administrator. That province is rapidly developing its resources and in all departments of its endeavor the Government has been working with the best interests of the people always before it as an ideal to be followed. There are no charges against the administration, no questions of paramount importance which might have the effect of stampeding the people to a new leader, and the Conservative party is more popular today in Manitoba than at any time in the history of that province. The administration has been clean and capable and the only question before the people will be asked to decide by their ballots is whether they will or will not endorse direct government and general prosperity.

The result in Ontario was frankly a surprise to all concerned. Manitoba may provide a similar experience but a reasonable view seems to be that Mr. Roblin will gain rather than lose seats.

THE PHILIPPINE SITUATION

We are apt to think of the Philippine Islands as a small group easily governed from the prosperous city of Manila, but they in fact constitute an archipelago of perhaps eight thousand islands, many of them quite remote from the capital. Hence the steady withdrawal of United States troops from the Philippines leaves a great part of the archipelago entirely to the protection of the native constabulary. American residents are frankly in dread of ambushes and massacres, and all the more so because the Democratic party now in power preached Philippine independence for many years when in opposition. The islands were annexed without much consideration and they are liable to create serious problems if rash experiments are attempted.

The Spanish-American war was practically concluded by an informal armistice arranged between President McKinley and the French ambassador in a conversation lasting an hour and a half. Two points, however, were left open for settlement by treaty: First, the amount of the war indemnity and, second, the fate of the Philippines. When the treaty came to be arranged, however, and the United States plenipotentiaries were vaguely demanding coaling stations and at most the cession of Manila, a peremptory cable from the president deprived them of all discretion and required Spain to absolutely surrender her sovereignty over the entire archipelago. Mr. McKinley sent the cable upon his return to Washington from a tour of the country, taken for the express purpose of staking up public sentiment. That his judgment was sound from the standpoint of party politics was abundantly proven by the result of the presidential election in 1900.

Unfortunately, says the Toronto World, it often happens that good party politics is not good business for the country. A heavy burden was assumed, and for years was discharged with marked ability, the credit being largely due to the personal talent and devotion of Mr. Taft, who, as governor-general, secretary of war and president, stood by his "little brown brothers" faithfully, but was no less concerned for the sturdy and well-being of the American soldiers, teachers and business men scattered over the archipelago. The Democratic party in opposition constantly demanded that the Philippines be granted their independence. In office they find it impracticable to carry out this ideal program, but they are unable to go ahead with the work of permanent organization without a complete change of front.

Having got the Philippines Uncle Sam will probably have to keep them. But with these expensive wards to be looked after he will probably hesitate before assuming responsibility for fifteen million more "little browners" south of the Rio Grande.

Diary of Events

HISTORIC DAYS IN CANADA

"The Father of Protection in Canada" was the name given forty years ago to William Dewar, a rural merchant and country-store philosopher, by Hector Cameron. While others must share the title, Mr. Dewar was certainly one of the most influential pioneers in the movement which resulted in the national policy of protection, which was fought out and won at the age of seventy. Dewar, a Canadian in the Conservative battle cry. William Dewar was born at Dunmore, Ont., on July 4, 1836, and the date of his birth may have influenced him later in life when he left Canada and settled at Montreal. N. J. McDewar began his career as a school teacher at the age of seventeen. Educators in the Canada of that period were not highly valued, at least in a financial sense, but Dewar contrived to save enough money to buy a little country store at Fenelon Falls, Ont. Between visitors of customers he had much leisure, and he spent it in studying political problems, Canadian history and political economy. As the result of his thought he decided that the salvation of Canada was to be attained by the adoption of a protection policy. He wrote letters to all the newspapers of Canada, advocating this doctrine, and his communications were so strong and forceful that they attracted wide attention. The country was in the hour of Canada. Other writers and statesmen took up the cudgels in behalf of the protection policy. Among them Charles Carroll Colby, who wrote a pamphlet on the subject; John MacLean, who was one of the pioneers in urging this policy; Thomas White, C. H. Mackintosh, R. W. Phipps, Nicholas Davin, D. L. McPherson, Dr. Charles Tupper and others. Protection of 1878, and "The Father of Protection" saw his cause triumph under the leadership of Sir John Macdonald.

THE HUMAN PROCESS ON JACK BINNS TODAY.

He is only a newspaper reporter, and before that he was a wireless telegrapher, but his name is enrolled in the immortal list of the world's heroes—Jack Binns, the first to save a sinking ship by his heroic efforts. He was born in a little cottage near Briggs, Yorkshire, July 4, 1884. A few days later his father, an engineer, died and within a week his mother, a Yorkshire girl, followed him to the grave. The orphan, an only child, was adopted by his grandmother Binns. As a lad he was given to the practice of the law, but he was not content with that. He was thrown under a train, and two cars ran over his right foot and leg. At the hospital his life was despaired of, as his temperature reached 107, a new record, newly-discovered serum, which had never before been used on a human patient, was tried as a last resort, and it saved his life. Although nine pieces of bone were taken from Binns's leg, he recovered the full use of that member. The bones he preserved in alcohol, but they were lost in the Republic wreck.

After several years as a railway telegraph operator he entered the employ of the telegraph department of the British Post office. A little later he escaped from a burning building just a few seconds before the roof toppled in, and from that time he has been known as "Lucky Jack." In 1904 he entered the employ of the Marconi Company, and his first assignment was with the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse. His first trip was brief, as the captain objected to having a beginner, and Jack was put off at Southampton. In 1905 he made a few trips on the Grosse Kurfuert, and was then assigned to the Bluecher, which made ports from Siltzbergen, near the North Pole, to equatorial America. He met many distinguished men on these voyages. While on the President Grant the wireless man had many conversations with Mr. Taft, then President-elect.

In 1908 Binns joined the Republic, and in the disaster of a few months later he again deserved the title of "Lucky Jack." After the Republic disaster he received many offers to go on the transatlantic route, but he showed his sound sense by declining them all. On the Adriatic he was under Capt. Smith, who later lost his life in the Titanic disaster. Though he met Miss Mischief, and she lost its attraction

Brain Fag

This is one of the commonest results of Eye-Strain, and the most subtle, because the eyes are not suspected. It comes because the sufferer is constantly correcting a small defect in refraction, thereby causing a constant nerve waste. And Brain-Fag is only one of many serious troubles that Eye-Strain brings.

"There is no form of functional nerve disorder that may not be caused by, or aggravated by Eye-Strain," Dr. Ernest Clarke Surgeon to the Central London Ophthalmic Hospital, says. "And the smaller the error, the more likely is Eye-Strain to be present."

Eye-Strain is readily corrected by properly fitted glasses. An examination by one of our optometrists will reveal any errors of refraction. Make sure you are not suffering from Eye-Strain. Have your eyes examined here.

The commissioner of public works was authorized to expend a sum not exceeding $800 out of the street works contract fund for the purpose of making repairs to the Marsh Road; to rearrange the sewer pipe appropriations for street purposes in such a manner as he might think advisable; and to erect an electric light sign over his store in King street. A communication from W. H. McQuade was presented. The writer complained that he had been a pound for dogs and wild animals was to be erected in front of his home at the corner of Elliot Row and Crown street, and protested vigorously against this on account of the effect in depreciating the value of his property. Com. Potts explained that this was a private venture of the ladies of the S. P. C., who were erecting a pound and were to send out dog catchers of their own. Com. Russell moved that the matter be referred to the commissioner of public works and the record. Daniel J. Murphy's petition for compensation for injuries received by falling into a sewer trench was referred to the commissioner of water and sewerage and the recorder. Regarding the proposed park on Fort Howe, the mayor had received a communication regarding the transfer of a city lease of a portion of the land and promised to give it his attention. The tender of James Fleming and Sons for a new shaft for the Governor Carleton was accepted and the council adjourned.

Hon. Joseph Chamberlain Died on Thursday. (Continued from page 1) Since that day the strong fighter had been an invalid, a pathetic onlooker at the political game, pictured always with the loyal wife, a daughter of W. C. Endicott, of Massachusetts, who was President Cleveland's Secretary of War, beside him. His chief consolation was the growing political prominence of his son, Austen Chamberlain, and the loyalty of his constituent leader, although he was no longer able to represent her upon the floor of the House of Commons. In each election he was elected to his old seat but once, where, amidst respectful silence he made his way to the Speaker's desk on the day of his son and took the oath of office. January 5, 1913, Mr. Chamberlain wrote to his constituents resigning his seat, and saying: "I cannot hope again to do my work in Parliament, and I feel that our city and the constituency need the services of a younger man." Whilst his greatest claim to fame was his determined and brilliant advocacy for years of a protective policy for Great Britain, the citadel of free trade, he will also be remembered as the bitterest and most forceful opponent of Gladstone in that statesman's office under Lord Salisbury as colonial secretary. In this position his remarkable powers were severely tested by South Africa, but he stood the test. The war and the elections of 1900-1901 over he set himself the task of fostering the relations between the Mother Country and the colonies. The constitution for the Australian colonies was one of his productions. Just before his death Mr. Chamberlain launched his scheme of fiscal reform, which partly succeeded in splitting the Unionist party. The cause of Mr. Chamberlain's death was officially announced today to have been heart failure. Although he had been gradually sinking since Tuesday, the members of the family had preferred that his desperate condition should not become publicly known. HOTEL ARRIVALS. Victoria. A. J. Interment was in the new Catholic cemetery.

CITY COUNCIL DIDN'T ADOPT THE REPORT. Mayor Frink found against Commissioner McLellan—Hot argument when decision was submitted. Mayor Frink, who was appointed by the Common Council to investigate the complaint made that Commissioner McLellan had attempted to interfere with a policeman in the discharge of his duty, reported to the council yesterday that he found the charge confirmed, after taking evidence. The evidence was contradictory on many points but the mayor found that the chief of police had given the orders and from the evidence the attempt to disaffect could not be obscured. When the report was submitted at the meeting of the council, Commissioner McLellan asked that the evidence be submitted and the portion of it not already published was read by His Worship. The resolution to adopt the report was seconded by Commissioner Russell but there was a rather lively discussion before the vote was taken. Mayor Frink pointed out that when the matter was referred to him he had asked for some other arrangement, but Commissioner McLellan and others had left the matter to him. He had made the report according to the evidence. Commissioner McLellan said that he would give the mayor a chance to go on the stand during the government enquiry into the police situation and let His Worship tell all he knew. There was some more discussion and when the vote was put Mayor Frink and Commissioner Potts voted in favor while the others opposed and the motion to adopt the report was lost.

NAT'L BREWERIES YEARLY STATEMENT

Gross earnings for year to Oct. 31, were over two millions - Report is considered satisfactory.

Montreal, July 3.-The first published statement of the National Breweries Ltd. just issued shows that the company is in a very satisfactory financial condition. The statement shows that for the year ending October 31st last gross earnings amounted to $2,233,437 and that after providing for operating expenses, doubtful accounts and writing off of $142,848 for depreciation the net trading profits amounted to $546,355 which is equal to the company's bond interest.

The amount available for preferred dividends in 1913 was $426,355 equal to 15.4 per cent. earned on $2,775,000 of stock and the balance carried forward to profit and loss account was $232,100 equal to 10.3 on the $2,254,200 on common stock. With the previous balance there was a total of credit of profit and loss of $426,667 equal to about 15 per cent. back of the common.

The credit balance of $188,562 carried forward from 1912 is based on a net of over $450,000 as reported for 1911. After bond interest and preferred dividends that would leave a surplus for the year of $135,000. And no dividends have yet been paid on the common. Presumably the writing off for depreciation year by year has been much on the scale of that reported for 1913, when $142,848 was appropriated for that purpose before bringing forward net profits.

C.N.R. LOAN NOT YET UNDERWRITTEN

New York, July 3.-It was stated in Wall Street today that C. N. R. loan of $45,000,000 had not yet been placed because the terms offered were not satisfactory. It is said that the C. N. R. must offer much better terms than they have before they will underwrite the loan.

The National City Bank today admitted that they had been approached with the view of floating a loan of two or three millions for C. N. R., but nothing has been agreed to as yet. It is possible that C. N. R. is trying to parcel out the loan in small lots as the National City Bank has not heard anything about the big loan of $45,000,000.

ONLY TWO CHANGES IN DIRECTORATE

Annual meeting of Brazilian Traction yesterday - Chairman speaks hopefully of future.

Toronto, July 3.-The annual meeting of Brazilian Traction shareholders was held here this morning, only some twenty shareholders being present.

After the report was adopted, Sir William called attention to the decrease in expenses now being shown, the completion of certain plants allowing of this reduction, six by-laws drafted without being read were merely technical and deal with the issuing of preferred share warrants in London.

Two changes were made in the directorate, Alfred Marx and C. D. Mearns being replaced by Judge Chippen and H. H. Marshall, the latter formerly chairman of the Underground Railways of London and at present president of the Yorkshire Power Company, the largest in Great Britain.

Sir Wm. MacKenzie in a brief speech said the shareholders could congratulate themselves on the result of operations so far and stated that the future indicated even greater prosperity than had been obtained in the past.

CLOSING STOCK LETTER FROM RANDOLPH

New York, July 3.-The opening was quiet but stocks were generally strong, and before long began to advance fractionally all through the list.

In a general way it may be said of today's market that stocks have been scarce, and shorts have been nervous. The two factors combined have been sufficient to maintain a strong market all day.

Galena as a rule have been confined to fractions, but the advance was very general all along the line, and the tone was well maintained until the close, when a slight reaction was noted.

The market was almost entirely professional, and there were no indications that strong interests were doing anything in the market. On the whole market was favorably influenced by Sir Wilson's conversation with prominent business men although nowhere is any prediction made that they will have any effect on his policy.

Changing any policies is concerned. Fractional net advances were the rule at the close as a result of the day's dealings.

A bad bank statement is expected as the preliminary estimates show loss by the banks of about $3,000,000.

THE SLEEPING SICKNESS NOT IN EAST ALONE

German physician says Europe not secure against disease - Fighting drink habit in army.

Berlin, July 2—An important step in combating the excessive use of alcohol by soldiers has been taken by commanders of four army corps, the fourteenth, fifteenth, sixteenth and twenty-first, who have issued orders...

The value attached by German students to scars left on their faces by sabre duels forms the basis of a lawsuit which is just now amusing university circles throughout Germany.

That Europe is not secure against an invasion of the sleeping sickness is the conclusion of Dr. Diebling, who is a staff physician in the German service.

THE ADVENTURES OF KATHLYN

By HAROLD MAC GRATH.

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS CHAPTERS.

Kathlyn Hare, believing her father, Col. Hare, in peril, has summoned her, leaves her home in California to go to him in Allahah, India. Umballah pretender to the throne of principlia, has imprisoned the colonel, named by the late king as his heir, because he fears the American may insist on his royal rights. Upon her arrival in Allahah, Kathlyn is informed by Umballah that her father being dead she is to be queen, and must marry him forthwith. Because of her refusal she is sentenced to undergo two ordeals with wild beasts.

John Bruce, an American and fellow passenger on the boat which brought Kathlyn to Allahah, saves her life. The elephant which carries her from the scene of her trials becomes frightened and runs away, separating her from Bruce and the rest of the party.

After a ride filled with peril she takes refuge in a ruined temple. Thirsty men and villagers, believing her to be an ancient priestess, ritans from the tomb, allow her to remain as the guardian of the sacred fire. But Kathlyn's naven is also the abode of a lion, and she is forced to flee from him with the savage beast in pursuit. She escapes and finds a retreat in the jungle, only to fall into the hands of a band of slave traders, who bring her to Allahah to the public market. She is sold to Umballah, who, finding her still unsubmitive, throws her into the dungeon with her father.

Bruce and his friends effect the release of Kathlyn and the colonel. Umballah's attempt to recapture them is unsuccessful, and the fugitives are given shelter in the palace of Bala Khan. Suppliants with camels and servants by that hospitable prince, the party endeavors to reach the coast, but, are overpowered by a band of brigands, and the encounter results in the colonel being delivered to Umballah. Kathlyn and Bruce, escape from their captors and return to Allahah, where Kathlyn learns that her father, while nominally king, is in reality a prisoner. It is arranged to find a bride for him. Candidates come from near and far, and Kathlyn gains access to the palace by appearing disguised as one of them.

During the ceremony of betrothal the leopards which guard the treasury become free and enter the throne room, throwing the entire court into a wild panic. This makes it possible for Bruce and Ramabai to rescue Kathlyn and her father, and the party starts away from Allahah.

When the seaport town, from which they intend to sail for home, is reached, the colonel receives by cable the news that Winnie, his younger daughter, had started for India some time before, and is about due to arrive in Allahah. Her father's suspicion that Umballah had played on Winnie's fears, still in his mind. He wishes to order to get her into his power, proves to be well founded.

Kathlyn, her father, and Bruce journey once more to Allahah, and arrive before they reach there and walk into the trap which Umballah has set. Another coronation ceremony is arranged, with Winnie as the queen. Kathlyn and the colonel, however, are making their presence known to the terrified chief.

CHAPTER XVII.

UMBALLAH began to go about cheerfully. He no longer doubted his star. Gutter born, was he? A rat from the streets? Very well; there were rats and rats, and some bit so deep that people died of it. He sometimes doubted the advisability of permitting Colonel Hare's headman, Ahmed to roam about; the rascal might in the end prove too sharp. Still it was a bad idea to let Ahmed believe that he walked in security. All Umballah wanted was the colonel, Kathlyn, and the young hunter, Bruce. It would be Ahmed, grown careless, who would eventually lead him or his spies to the hiding place.

That the trio were in the city Umballah did not doubt in the least, nor that they were already scheming to liberate the younger sister. All his enemies were in his hand on them!

Cheerful was the word. The crust of civilization was thin; the true savage was cracking out through it. In the days of the destiny, Umballah would have been the Nana Sahib's right hand. He would have given the tragedy at Cawnpore an extra touch.

Ten thousand rupees did not go far among soldiers whose arrears called for cutting that sum. So he placed it where it would do the most good. It was a capital idea, this of letting Ramabai's throne with his own money. The lawless element among the troops was his, Umballah's; at least his long enough for the purpose he had in mind.

When the multitude round the platform dissolved and Winnie was led to her chamber in the zennana, Umballah treated himself to a beverage known as the king's peg—a trifle composed of brandy and champagne. That he drank to stupefaction was God's method of protecting that night, an innocent child—for Winnie was not much more than that.

Alone, dazed and terrified, she dropped down upon the cushions and cried herself to sleep—exactly as Kathlyn had done. In the morning she awoke to find tea and food. She had heard no one enter or leave. Glancing curiously round her prison of marble and jasper, and porphyry, she discovered a slip of white paper protruding through a square in the latticed window, which opened out toward the garden of brides.

Hope roused her into activity. She ran to the window and snatched the paper eagerly. It was from Kathlyn, darling Kit. The risk with which it had been placed in the latticed window never occurred to Winnie.

The note informed her that the woman doctor of the zennana had been sufficiently bribed to permit Kathlyn to make up like her and gain admittance to the zennana. Winnie must complain of illness and ask for the doctor, but not before the morning of the following day. So far as she, Kathlyn, could learn, Winnie would be left in peace till the festival of the car of Juggernaut, ill, she would not be forced to attend the ceremonies, the palace would be practically deserted, and then Kathlyn would appear.

This news plucked up Winnie's spirits considerably. Surely her father and Kit were brave and cunning enough to circumvent Umballah. What a frightful country! What a dreadful people! She was miserable over the tortures her father had suffered, but nevertheless she felt she discovered a slip of white paper protruding through a square in the latticed window, which opened out toward the garden of brides.

Ahmed had told her of the two ordeals, the black dungeon, the whipling; he had done so to convince her that she must be eternally on her guard, search carefully into any proposition laid before her, and play for time, time for every minute she won meant nearer her ultimate freedom. She must promise to marry Umballah, but to set her own date.

"Poor little fool! Back into the cage like a homing pigeon."

Unlike Kathlyn, who had Pundita to untangle the intricacies of the bastard Persian, Winnie had to depend wholly upon sign language, and the inmates of the zennana did not give her the respect and attention they had given to Kathlyn. Kathlyn was a novelty; Winnie was not. Besides, one of them watched Winnie constantly, because the hearsed scoundrel had attracted her fancy and because she hoped to enchain him.

So the not from Kathlyn did not pass unnoticed, though Winnie believed that she was without espionage.

Kathlyn, her father, Bruce, Ramabai and Pundita met at the colonel's bungalow, and with Ahmed's help they thrashed out the plan to rescue Winnie. Alone, the little sister would not be able to find her way out of the garden of brides. It was Kathlyn's idea to have Winnie pretend she needed air and sunshine and a walk in the garden after the doctor's visit. The rescue would be attempted from the walls.

Juggernaut, or Jagannath in Hindustani (meaning Lord of the World), was an idol so hideously done in wood that the Prince of Hell would have taken it to be the personification of a damned soul could he have glimpsed it in the temple at Allahah. His temporal reign in Allahah was somewhere near four hundred years, and no doubt his emerald eyes had seen a crimson trail behind his car as many hundred times.

He was married frequently. Some poor, benighted, fanatical woman would pledge herself and would be considered with awe till she died. But in these times no one flung himself under the car; nothing but the incense of crushed flowers now followed his way. His grin, however, was the same as of old. Wood, pain, gilt, and emeralds! Well, we enlighten our Europeans sometimes worship these very things, though we indignantly deny it.

Outside the temple stood the car, fantastically carved, dull with rubbed gold leaf. You could see the sockets where horrid knives had once glittered in the sunlight, whereas no doubt four or five chariots upon this idea. The wheels, six in number, two in front and two on each side, were solid, broad, and heavy, capable of smooching out a corrugated winter road. The superstructure was an ornate shrine, which contained the idol on its peregrinations to the river.

About the car were the devotees, some holding the ropes, others watching the entrance to the temple. Presently from the temple came the gurus, or priests, bearing the idol. With much reverence they placed the idol within the shrine, the pilgrims took hold firmly of the ropes, and the car rattled and thundered on its way to the river.

Of Juggernaut and his car more anon.

The street outside the garden of brides was in reality no thoroughfare, though natives occasionally made use of it as a short cut into town. Therefore no one observed the entrance of an elephant, which stopped close to the wall, seemingly to melt into the drab of it. On his back, however, the howdah was conspicuous. Behind the curtains Kathlyn patiently waited. She was about to turn away in despair when through the wicker gate she saw Winnie, attended by one of the zennana girls, enter the garden. It seemed as if her will reached out to bring Winnie to the wall and to hold the other young woman where she was.

By and by the native girl pretended to feel drowsy in the heat of the sun, and her head fell forward a trifle. It was then that Winnie heard a low whistle, an old familiar whistle such as she and Kit had used once upon a time in playing "a spy." She sat up rigidly. It was hard work not to cry out. Over the wall the drab trunk of an elephant protruded, and something white fluttered into the garden.

Winnie rose. The head of the native girl came up instinctively, but as Winnie leisurely strolled toward the palace, the head sank again. Winnie turned and wandered along the walls apparently examining the flowers and vines, but all the while moving nearer and nearer to the bit of white paper which the idle breeze stirred back and forth tentatively. When she reached the spot she stooped and plucked some flowers, gathering up the paper as she did so. And, still in the stooping posture, she read the note, crumpled it, and stuffed it into a hole in the wall.

Poor child! Every move had been watched as a cobra watches its prey.

She was to pretend illness at once. Plans had been changed. She stood up, swayed slightly, and staggered back to the seat. In truth, she was pale enough, and her heart beat so fast that she was horridly dizzy.

"A doctor!" she cried, forgetting that she would not be understood. The native girl stared at her. She did not understand the words, but the signs were enough. The young white woman looked ill; and Umballah would deal harshly with those who failed to stem the tide of any illness which might befall his capital of the palace. Three other girls came out, and Winnie was conducted back to the zennana.

All this Kathlyn observed. She bade the mahout go to the house of the zennana's doctor, where she had donned the habiliments familiar to the guards and inmates of the zennana.

Everything went forward without a hitch; so smoothly that had the object of her visit been other than Winnie, Kathlyn must have sensed something of them, unfamiliar with the customs and the language of the people! How she had succeeded in getting here without mishap was in itself remarkable.

She took Winnie's wrist in her hand and pressed it reassuringly, then pattered about in her medical bag. Very softly she whispered:

"I shall remain with you till dusk. Give no sign whatever that you know me, for you will be watched. Tonight I will smuggle you out of the palace. Take these, and soon pretend to be quieted."

Winnie swallowed the bits of sugar and lay back, her patient. Once alone with Winnie, she cast aside her veil.

"Hush, baby! We are going to get you safely away."

"I am afraid."

"So are we all; but we must not let any one see that we are. Father and Ahmed are near by. But O, why did you attempt to find us?"

"But you called me to come, weeks ago!"

"Never! And the mystery was no longer a mystery to Kathlyn. The hand of Umballah lay bare. Could they eventually win out against a man who seemed to miss no point in the game? "You were deceived, Winnie. To think of it! We had escaped, were ready to sail for home, when we learned that you had left for India. It nearly broke our hearts!"

"What ever shall we do, Kit?" Winnie flung her arms round her sister and drew her down. "My Kit!"

"We must brave whatever happens."

"And am I not your sister?" quietly. "Do you believe in me so little? Why shouldn't I be brave? But you've always treated me like a baby; you never tried to prove me."

Kathlyn's arms wound themselves tightly about the slender form. . . . And thus Umballah found them.

"Very touching!" he said, standing with his back to the door "But nicely trapped!" He laughed as Kathlyn sprang to her feet, as her hand sought the dagger at her side. "Don't draw it," he said. "I might hurt your arm in wrenching it away from you. Poor little fool! Back into the cage, like a homing pigeon! Had I not known you all would turn, think you I would have given up the chase so easily? You would not bend, so then you must break. The god Juggernaut yearns for a sacrifice to prove that we still love and worship him. You spurned my love; now you shall know my hate. You shall die, unpleasantly."

Quickly as a cat springs he caught her hands and wrenched them toward him, dragging her toward the door. Winnie sprang up from the cushion, her eyes ablaze with the fighting spirit. Too soon the door closed in her face and she heard the bolt outside go clattering home.

Said Umballah from the corridor: "To you, pretty kitten, I shall come later. I need you for my wife. When I return you will be all alone in the world, truly an orphan. And do not make your eyes red needlessly."

Winnie screamed, and Kathlyn fought with the fury of a netted tigress. For a few minutes Umballah had his hands full, but in the end he conquered. Outside the garden of brides three men waited in vain for the coming of Kathlyn and her sister.

The god Juggernaut did not repose in his accustomed niche in the temple that night. The car had to be pulled up and down a steep hill, and on the return, owing to the darkness, it was left at the top of the hill, safely propped to prevent its rolling down of its own accord. When the moon rose Juggernaut's eyes gleamed like the striped cat's. Long since he had seen a human sacrifice. Perhaps the old days would return once more. He was weary and heart, riding over sickly flowers; he wanted flesh and bones and the music of the death rattle. His cousins, War and Pestilence, still took their tithes. Why should he be denied?

The whispering became a murmuring, and the murmuring grew into excited chattering; and by 10 o'clock that night all the bazaars knew that the ancient rites of Juggernaut were to be revived that night. The bazaars had never heard of Nero, called Abenobarus, and, being without comparisons, they missed the greatness of their august but hampered regent Umballah.

Always the bazaars heard news before any other part of the city. The white memshahib was not dead; but had been recaptured while posing as the zennana physician in an attempt to rescue her sister, the new queen. O, the chief city of Allahah was in the matter of choice and unexpected amusements unrivaled in Asia.

Yes, Umballah was not unlike Nero—to keep the populace amused so they would temporarily forget their burdens.

But why the sudden appearance of soldiers, who stood guard at every exit, compelling the inmates of the bazaars not to leave their houses? At all! Why this secrecy, since they knew what was going to take place? But the soldiers, ordinarily voluble, maintained grim silence, and even went so far as to extend the bayonet to all those who tried to leave the narrow streets.

"An affair of state!" was all the natives could get in answer to their inquiries. Men came flocking to the roofs. But the moonshine made all things ghostly. The car of the god Juggernaut was visible, but what lay in its path could not be seen.

Umballah was not popular that night. But this was a private affair. Well he knew the ingenuity and he sources of his enemies at large. There would be no rescue this night. Kathlyn Memshahib should die; this time he determined to put fear into the hearts of the others.

Having drunk his king's peg, he was well fortified against any personal danger. The passion he had had for Kathlyn was dead, dead as he wanted her to be.

Whom the gods destroy they first make mad; and Umballah was mad.

The palanquin waited in vain outside the wall of the garden of brides—waited till a ripple of the news eddied about the conveyance in the shape of a greatly agitated Lal Singh.

"He is really going to kill her!" he panted. "He lured her to her sister's side, then captured her. She is to be placed beneath the car of Juggernaut within an hour. It is to be done secretly. The people are guarded and held in the bazaars. Ahmed, with an elephant and armed keepers, will be here shortly. I have warned him. Umballah runs amuck!"

Suddenly they heard voices in the garden, first Kathlyn's then Kathlyn's. Sinister portents to the ears of the listeners, father and lover and loyal friends. The former were for breaking into the garden then and there; but a glance through the wicket gate disclosed the fact that Umballah and Kathlyn were surrounded by fifty or sixty soldiers. And they dared not fire at Umballah for fear of hitting Kathlyn.

The palanquin was hastily carried out of sight.

At the end of the passageway nearest the town was a gate which was seldom closed. Through this one had to pass to and from the city. Going through the gate, one could make the hill (where the car of Juggernaut stood) within fifteen minutes, while a detour around the walls of the ancient town would consume three-quarters of an hour. Umballah ordered the gate to be closed and stationed a guard there. The gates changed behind him in a twinkling. This time he was guarding every entrance. If his enemies were within they would naturally be weak in numbers; outside, they would find it extremely difficult to make an entrance. More than this, he had sent a troop toward the colonel's camp.

The gates had scarcely been closed when Ahmed, his elephant, and his armed keepers came into view. The men sent Pundita back to camp, and the actual warfare began. They approached the gate, demanding to be allowed to pass. The soldiers refused. Instantly the keepers flung themselves furiously upon the soldiers. The trooper who held the key threw it over the wall just before he was overpowered. But Ahmed had come prepared. From out the howdah he took a heavy leather pad, which he adjusted over the fore skull of the elephant and gave a command.

The skull of the elephant is thick. Hunters will tell you that bullets glance off it as water from the back of a duck. Thus, protected by the leather pad, the elephant becomes a formidable battering ram, backed by tons of weight. Only the solidity of stones may stay him.

Ahmed's elephant shouldered through the gates grandly. For all the resistance they offered that skull they might have been constructed of paper mache.

Through the dust they hurried. Whenever a curious native got in the way the butt of a rifle bestirred him out of it.

Umballah had lashed Kathlyn to a sapling which was laid across the path of the car. The man was mad, stark mad, this night. Even the soldiers and the devotees surrounding the car were terrified. One did not force sacrifices to Juggernaut. One soldier had protested, and he lay at the bottom of the hill, his skull crushed. The others pulled one way by greed or money and love of life, stirred no hand.

But Kathlyn Memshahib did not die under the broad wheels of the car of Juggernaut. So interested in Umballah were his men that they forgot the vigilance required to conduct such a ceremony free of interruption. A crackling of shots, a warning cry to drop their arms, the plunging of an elephant in the path of the car, which was already thundering down the hill, spotted Umballah's classic.

UP-TO-DATE NEWS OF THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE GEM ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Waterloo Street Theatre has fine array of film plays billed.

Several entertaining and attractive features are billed for presentation at the Gem Theatre next week with leading stories booked for each change of programme. On Monday and Tuesday a start will be made with the presentation of the two part Edison historical pageant "Frederick the Great." This is a splendid two part feature of the life of this character famous in history, tracing his career from boyhood days to his death, and having an interesting vein of love mingling through his kingly ventures which serves to make the presentation even more fascinating.

The Kalem Players will be seen to advantage in a two part story of life in the Philippines in war time, entitled "The Quicksands," being the drama of a military post and an adventure with romantic touches on some treacherous grounds. An attack by the savage inhabitants is repulsed by the gallantry of the favorite characters in the story, and there is a nuptial culmination to the troublous scenes.

At this show also will be presented the Selig-Heast News Pictorial containing several features of distinctive and popular interest, with news events chronicled in picture form.

For the week-end programme another story in the ever popular Marx McDermott series of "The Man Who Disappeared" will be shown, entitled "With His Hands." The Edison Co. has gained widespread attention with this series of which this story is the fifth to be shown here and the patrons of the Gem have been well pleased with each picture in the series, which is presented in collaboration with the Popular Magazine.

Mlle. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, the prima donna, has just secured a divorce from William Rapp, Jr., whose ardent love notes to Mrs. Catherine Dean, of New York, were the sensation of the suit which was heard in Chicago. The noted contralto showed her joy at the verdict and declared that she would speedily journey to the Bayreuth Wagnerian festival, in which she is to take a leading part.

Their chagrin at finding a dummy was amusing, for the visitors read a tag on the dummy. "When found return to the Keystone Company. Thanks."

Marguerite Snow and Florence La Badie, expert motor cyclists.

Florence La Badie and Marguerite Snow, leading women of the Thanhouser Company, recently proved their athletic prowess and general daredevilry and incidentally showed they can take care of any thrill situation in "The Million Dollar Mystery." Miss La Badie is the heroine in the forthcoming big production and Miss Snow plays a titled Russian adventuress who is mounted on a horseback from the studio at New Rochelle to Mount Vernon. Arrived there, they mounted motorcycles and disappeared in a whirl of dust and gasoline toward New York city.

Through the heavy traffic of the metropolis the motorcycles were guided by fair hands to the hotel. Awaiting them there was an automobile and Miss La Badie unhesitatingly slid in behind the wheel, and away they went to a point overlooking the Hudson river, near the residence of C. K. G. Billings.

A Leo Stevens, an aviator, was there with his big passenger carrying aeroplane, Miss La Badie and Miss Snow, both experienced aviators, climbed into the air craft. Stevens started the motor, and in another instant the machine was whirling through space toward Poughkeepsie. A crowd greeted them when they landed at that place. Miss Snow immediately to search for her motorboat, which had been housed in Poughkeepsie for the winter. She found it and climbed in, with Miss La Badie a close second. Before the assembled crowd could get much more than a glimpse of them the boat started away, heading upstream.

Miss Snow likes to race, so it was in record time that they moored the boat at Albany. Ray Johnston, secretary to Charles J. Hite, president of the Thanhouser Company, was waiting for them with peremptory instructions to return to the studio.

"I don't doubt your prowess, but we need you in the picture. Come home. That was the message they received. And then two adventurous actresses returned by conventional train to their studio.

WIVIAN RICHE A MOVIE STAR

A short sketch of her early life makes interesting reading.

Miss Vivian Rich, leading woman of the American releases, has had a career of adventure since her babyhood. She was born at sea and has had something of the nature of the rest, less ocean all her life. In her childhood she lived in Philadelphia, New York and Boston, receiving most of her education in the latter city. Her teachers remember her as a charming little girl who was always at the head of her class.

Miss Rich began her stage career when she was a child, appearing in boys' parts. Her straight, well-proportioned figure made her particularly effective in these roles. As a movie actress she has had some unusual adventures, one of the most thrilling being a ride on the brake beams of a moving freight train.

The Keystone Company is bringing out a comedy, featuring Marie Dressler, which will probably surpass all previous efforts of this organization. Several buildings have been constructed on the company's grounds at Los Angeles, which will be equipped with large windows, a tile floor, and have a bank with revolving doors, for the purpose of giving Miss Dressler's fun-making talents full play.

Andrew Mack in MOTION PICTURES

Andrew Mack, the leading interpreter of Irish roles on the speaking stage, will soon be seen in motion pictures through the medium of his famous success, "The Ragged Earl," which is now being produced as a feature by Plays and Players.

Mr. Mack's talents have insured him great popularity wherever the English language is spoken. He has appeared successfully in "The Ivy Leaf," "The Fairies Well," "My Aunt Bridget," "A Jolly Surprise," "Kilmerne," "Irish Loyalty," "Tom Brown," "Arrah-Nogue," "At Day," and many others.

It is believed that Lucille Love has been found. Final efforts to locate her will be made this week, and from information already furnished, the belief is that her friends in St. John will locate her in a few days. If this news is correct, there will be much rejoicing amongst those interested in the young woman who was last heard from in Montreal.

Health and Body Building.

A column of comment on sporting and athletic men and events, physical culture, exercise, health measures, and body-building.

By Mac Levy of Babylon, (Eighteen Years a Physical Trainer.)

In the recent Empress of Ireland disaster a little girl who had been taught to swim was able to support herself on the water until help arrived, while scores of strong men, who had neglected to master the art of swimming, went down to death.

There is a lesson in this incident which should result in a world-wide revival of interest in swimming.

The difficulties in the way of learning to swim are mainly psychological. To master the art, at least to the point where one may remain in the water a considerable length of time without danger of drowning, is about the easiest thing in the world for the person of ordinary physical strength. It is the fear of the water that makes it difficult.

Evolutionists hold that our ancestors were once fish. Whether or not this is true, there are millions of people who take to the water as naturally as air and as much at home in it, as if it were their natural element.

Among the Hawaiians and the South Sea Islanders the children learn to swim almost as soon as they are able to walk. They need no instruction, but go into the water, paddle around a few minutes, and then they are off in these countries, where so many people spend a large proportion of their time in the water, death by drowning is practically unknown.

American and European youngsters are apparently somewhat further removed from their fish-like ancestors, but with a little instruction most of them can be taught to swim in a few lessons.

You remember the advice given by the mother to her daughter, who had asked for permission to go out to swim—"Yes, my darling darter; hang your clothes on a hickory limb, but don't go near the water."

One branch of swimming that is often neglected, even by those proficient in the art, is swimming on the back. It is not only highly desirable as helping to bring unused muscles into activity, but its utility is often greater than the mere usual swimming methods.

Those who have an ambition to shine as long distance swimmers, or who go into the water alone, should by all means learn to swim on the back. When exhausted, or attacked by cramps, the ability to turn over and rest comfortably on the back may often be the means of saving life.

As a matter of fact, it is easier for most people to learn to swim on the back than with the face downward, if they have the assistance of an instructor or of a friend who knows how to swim. The reason for this is that in back swimming the mouth and nose are always above the surface of the water. Learning to breathe properly is the most difficult part of mastering the breast stroke, as the novice usually finds his nose and mouth under the surface very early in the attempt, and this often causes in him a frenzy of fear.

One may begin to learn the back stroke while stretched safely on a bed or couch, or on the floor. Lie flat on the back, with the arms, parallel to each other, stretched back above the head, and the hands touching each other, fingers closed and palm upward, while the legs, close together, are also extended fully, with toes slanting downward. Having assumed this position, you are ready to start the stroke. First turn the palms of the hands outward, so that the backs of the hands touch each other. Bring them downward, even with the body, in a wide curve to the legs. Keep the arms straight and do not crook the elbow. As the hands touch the thigh, the legs, which have been left straight, get into action. With heels together, bend the knees outward and upward, and then kick out smartly, with the feet wide apart. As the concluding leg movement, bring the legs quickly together. Simultaneously with the leg stroke the hands, backs up, are brought back in a wide sweep of the arms to the starting point. Hands and legs should reach the original position at exactly the same time.

When you go into the water the best plan is to begin learning to float on the back. Have the teacher or companion hold you at first. Let this assistance be gradually withdrawn, and you will soon discover, much to your surprise, that water is much heavier than you thought, and quite capable of supporting you if you will give it a chance.

As lack of confidence is the principal obstacle in learning to swim, it is best to choose a place where the water is not much above the waist. Draw a deep breath as you bend backward slowly. Hold your breath as you let go your foothold and bring your legs outward on a level with your body. When you are balanced on your companion's hand, breathe naturally. Be calm and collected, and you will quickly learn to float. Then you may bend the back stroke, slowly and carefully at first.

When you have gained confidence in your ability to stay above the water you may begin to make some progress in the direction of real swimming.

Brightening Summer Business

LAWNS and gardens can be kept green and vigorous in the hottest weather by watering them faithfully. By the exercise of intelligence and utilities at hand, man can offset natural tendencies.

So in the matter of business: When there arises a condition which is a menace to the health and vigor of a business—hot weather months, for example—the corrective is intelligent energy and the use of agencies which are known refreshers.

Every merchant in this community may keep his business vigorous this summer by making preparations in advance, and by employing the advertising columns of this newspaper. Preparation is the secret of success. Get ready now your programme for July and August, make plans for every week. AGRICULTURE

The Sampling and Testing of Milk

(By J. A. Ruddick and C. F. Whiteley.)
The dairy farmers of Canada are beginning to realize the importance of the question of the improvement of dairy herds, and the possibilities there are in this line of work for increasing the profits of milk production. According to the results which have followed intelligent breeding and selection, combined with good care and feeding, in other lands, as well as the experiences of progressive farmers in this country, it would seem to be possible to increase the average production of Canadian herds by at least 2,000 pounds of milk per year, by applying the same rational dairying to the farmers of Canada of at least $30,000,000 a year, without increasing the number of cows kept.

The plans for the improvement of a dairy herd need not be elaborate or expensive, and should take cognizance of the fact that there are good cows and poor cows, judged by their milk production, in all breeds, and that it does not follow because a cow milk has a lengthy pedigree that her performance at the milk pail is up to the mark; that there are "scrub" herds as well as common "scrub" herds.

It will require some moral courage to discard the expensive pure bred scrub after she has been shown up in her true colors, but that is what should be done. There is only one true standard, and the test must be production. This is not an argument against the pure bred animals as such, but rather an attempt to place performance ahead of pedigree. Ancestry is a most important feature, and the man looking for superior animals gets no information from it that is of real value to him. He may have personal knowledge of the strain in question, but that is another matter.

Any scheme which has for its object the improvement of our dairy stock must provide for a sturdy, and record, of the performance of the individual cow, as well as a scheme for the management of the herd, including its care and feeding, and the breeding of animals to replace those which are discarded in the "weeding" process. Individuality can only be determined by the weighing and testing of each cow's milk.

It is quite practically for individual farmers to test their herds, and many are doing so, but some form of co-operation makes the work easier and cheaper and at the same time more useful, inasmuch as each member of an association has the information relating to other herds as well as his own.

Cow testing is distinctly and immediately of value to every factory owner, for several good reasons. If farmers supply more milk or cream from a given number of cows or a certain number of acres, it means that by receiving more raw material from the same territory there is a lessening in the cost of hauling and a lowering in proportion of the expense of making while a larger factory season is extended. Further, directly a patron begins testing each cow individually he commences to take far more interest in the herd and is likely to supply not only more, but a far better quality of milk or cream, cared for better.

With the strong probability of having the milk in the vats in far better condition every day, thereby facilitating his work at every step, it is clearly of great importance to every cheese and butter maker to follow this matter up and make it a point to interest every patron in cow testing.

Persistent Work is Required

It is useless to begin this work unless one is prepared to follow it up faithfully and persistently, year after year, and make use of the information respecting the individual merits of his cows. Testing should begin as soon as the cows come in milk, and be continued until the milking period is over. With one full season's record to guide him, the owner of a herd is in a position to begin his process of intelligent "weeding" and lay plans for future breeding. As many as practicable of the poorest cows should be discarded. Theoretically, all cows which do not come up to a certain standard should be got rid of, but in practice it is useless to turn off any animals unless there is some certainty of being able to replace them with better ones. The author does not think it wise to set up any arbitrary standard. Much depends on the character of the herd to begin with, and the improvement of the average of the herd is improved, the standard should be raised. It may be pointed out in this connection that the Danish associations are continuing their work as energetically as ever, though the average of many herds has reached such a high plane as 10,000 to 12,000 pounds of milk per year.

It is desired again to call particular attention to the need of keeping records for the whole period of lactation, and not simply for a few months. If any close estimate of profit is to be arrived at, it is useless to make only a guess at the production of milk and fat for four or five months, while but a very little extra time, when the records are already recorded for seven or eight months, will give definitely the whole year's result. The completed totals will be of infinitely more value to the owner himself, besides rendering valuable service to dairymen all over Canada through making it possible to compare results of his program. The date set is June 27 to 29.

The original challenge for a meet at this time came from the German Athletic Federation, but the German has lately advised the Swedish authorities that they will not be in form for international competition before next year. There has been some discussion here over this news, as the athletic progress of Germany has been watched with great interest, and it is almost a foregone conclusion that it would have proved an exciting affair. Sweden looked about for another opponent, so that all of the preliminary work might not be wasted, and Hungary has now consented to take Germany's place.

Importance of a Good Seed.
The greatest curse that dairy farming in this country has known is the "scrub" bull, he be managed or pure bred. It is absolutely useless to attempt any great improvement of the herd unless careful attention is given to the selection of this all-important member. He is truly the "head of the herd," and cannot be too carefully selected from a strain which has a record for large milk production. The services of such an animal are valuable beyond comparison with one of indifferent breeding. It is the part of wisdom to see that such a bull serves none but those cows which come up to a good standard. Many farmers feel that they cannot afford to purchase such expensive animals, but why should not several farmers co-operate in the purchase and use of a bull for large milk production. The Cow Testing Associations take up the question of securing bulls for their exclusive use and mate them only with the best cows.

"We Build Better Tires Than Goodyears"

That—in effect—is what makers say when they charge you higher prices. And 18 makers do that. They are asking for tires up to one-half more than present Goodyear prices. The inference is wrong. Those extra prices are all unjust. The verdict of users—as shown by sales—is that No-Rim-Cut tires are the best in the world. And in four ways they certainly are.

That Is Impossible

It is utterly impossible, so far as men know, to build a better tire than Goodyears, measured by cost per mile.

For years and years we've employed scores of experts to find out ways to better them. Their efforts have cost us a fortune each year. No-Rim-Cut tires mark the present-day limit, to the best of their belief.

How They Excel

No-Rim-Cut tires, in at least four ways, excel every other tire.

Our No-Rim-Cut feature—which we control—is found in these tires alone.

Our "On-Air" cure is employed by no other maker. This extra process adds tremendously to our own cost, but it saves many times the amount in blow-outs.

Our rubber rivets—formed to combat tread separation—are a patent feature found in no other tire.

Our All-Weather tread

—the greatest anti-skid—is an exclusive Goodyear feature. It is tough, double-thick and enduring. It is flat and smooth, yet it grips wet roads in a restless way with countless deep, sharp-edged grips.

What We Save

The increased output and modern equipment of our great Bowmanville factory have immensely cut cost of production. They have greatly reduced our overhead and our labor cost.

No-Rim-Cut tire prices dropped 23 per cent last year. They are half what they used to be. But never before was the quality so high as it is today.

Smaller makers can't compete on any high-grade tire. That's another reason for getting Goodyear tires.

Almost any dealer will supply them.

Are the Women

Mrs. I. C. Prescott, in a read before the members of the Women's Institute, points out that though the women of today have time and advantages that the women of fifty or one hundred years ago had, they still have to strive to utilize their time in the good old-fashioned way.

The Old Housekeeping and the New
In the days of our Grandmothers the women had to do most of the housework, and it was a part of it that lightened by the women of fifty or one hundred years ago lived easier and better than do the women of today.

If the busy housewife of today has her kitchen planned and arranged by Mrs. Andrew Hoyt, a member of the St. John Women's Institute, she would not only save unnecessary steps, but she would be in its place and save the kitchen would also be a tidy appearance because of Mrs. Hoyt recently read the paper at a meeting of her Institute.

The Convenient Arrangement of a Kitchen.
