Minister of Agriculture Delivers Instructive Address to Toronto Club.

Special to The Advertiser.
By a Staff Correspondent.
Parliament Buildings, Toronto, Feb. 16.—Agricultural Ontario can benefit by a study of farming conditions as they exist in Denmark. Hon. J. S. Martin, minister of agriculture, told the Canadian club at luncheon this afternoon. Denmark today is the most carefree and prosperous country in Europe, because of her agricultural supremacy, the minister declared. It is a rural state which would sink into ruin if its basic industry, agriculture, failed to be prosperous. Mr. Martin touched upon the co-operative system of farming in practice in Denmark, expressing the view that it had apparently solved the problem of keeping the young men on the farm. Economic conditions had forced the country into a co-operative system, with special attention devoted to the marketing of butter, bacon and eggs. Mr. Martin said that Denmark is the Danish educational system, which he declared made for a highly intelligent and enthusiastic farming class. He also touched on the land tenure system as a factor in the nation's agricultural prosperity.

German Socialist Party Severs
Ties With Former Imperial Chancellor.

Associated Press Despatch.
Berlin, Feb. 16.—Gustav Adolf Bauer, former imperial chancellor, has been expelled from the Socialist party. His expulsion was due to his alleged connection with the Barmat financial scandal.

A despatch from Berlin on Feb. 6 said that Heinrich Bauer had resigned his seat as Socialist member of the Reichstag on the demand of the Socialist parliamentary party. His resignation was requested by allegations that Bauer had received money from the Barmat concern in Holland, the directors of which recently were arrested on suspicion of illegal transactions with the Prussian state bank.

HUNDREDS HONOR DR. D. L. MCRAE

London Pays Last Tribute to Noted Citizen, Scholar and Pastor.

A silent crowd of hundreds paid a last tribute to Rev. David L. McCrae, Ph.D., this afternoon as his body lay in state for more than two hours at the First Presbyterian church. From noon until the funeral services were held at 2:30 o'clock, scores of persons, ranging in positions from prominence to humbleness, passed in and out of the First church to honor a noted pastor, a gentleman, a benefactor.

Scottish Rite Masons formed a guard of honor about the coffin, as friends, contemporaries and relatives filed by during the noon hour to look again upon the man who for years has held a high position in London and the dominion. Prior to the body being taken to First church, a private service for members of the McCrae family was held at the home of G. A. Wheable, 11 Oxford street west. Rev. Dr. William Beattie officiated.

Many stood massed at the corner of First church as the public services were being held this afternoon. The presbytery of London conducted the service with Rev. T. A. Symington, the moderator, presiding. Rev. William Beattie, D.D., C.M.G., assisted by Rev. W. R. McIntosh, D.D., of King street Presbyterian church, and Rev. J. H. MacDonald, D.D., of Kingston, took a leading part in conducting the last rite.

Men in the vest through bare heads as the cortege left the church and twisted through the city streets on its way to Pond Mills cemetery. It was an impressive tribute, a deserving honor for one of outstanding popularity and worth.

EAST PRUSSIA SUFFERS FROM TRAFFIC PROBLEMS

Associated Press Despatch.
Koenigsberg, Germany, Feb. 16.—Chancellor Luther, in a speech opening the German eastern fair here, complained of the extraordinary economic and traffic difficulties under which East Prussia was suffering, owing to its secession from the mother country. Railway transportation, passing entirely through the Polish corridor, he said, could only be carried on with friction, and water transportation was prostrate. He declared the settlement of the question of access to the Vistula river entirely unsatisfactory both to Germany and East Prussia, and asserted that moreover it was contrary to the treaty of Versailles. The government would avail itself to the utmost of any opportunity of remedying the unsatisfactory conditions.

J. J. Seitz Declares Businessman Will Build Up the Dominion of Future.

GETTING LATE START

Believes Too Much Education
Favored For Entry Into Work.

Greater application to business, longer hours of work, less jazz, amusement, and wasted effort, more of the fighting self-sacrifice of the war days. These were given today by J. J. Seitz, president of the Underwood Typewriter Company of Canada, as the only salvation of Canada as a unit in the British empire.

Mr. Seitz, who was speaking to the London Rotary club at noon, on the "Boy in Business," declared that the difficulty in getting young men of about twenty to twenty-three to enter business and stay in business was one of the most serious problems today facing the Dominion. He was sympathetic to the claims of the professions, but maintained stoutly that the future of Canada lay with the businessman and his efforts.

"The young man of today," he said, "is not getting into business early enough. The business courses offered in the universities are well enough, but they are too long. By the time that the boy has finished them he is too old to come into a business at the money that that business can afford to pay him. I know of no man so completely helpless as the young man, who for some reason or another, may be a financial reason, gives up his university work at about 22 years of age. Business finds it impossible to fit him in anywhere, and it cannot pay him what a man of his age should be getting.

Small Population.
"I don't think the average man realizes the seriousness of the situation in Canada today. We have only nine million people in all this great country, and it's not by play and Please See Page 6, Column 1.

DIPLOMATIC UNITY MUST BE OBJECTIVE

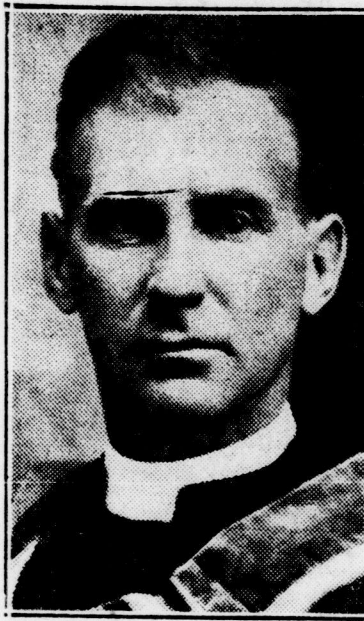

London Morning Post Declares
Dominions Are Entitled to Greater Consideration.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Feb. 16.—Referring to the Geneva protocol on world peace and disarmament, and the question of imperial defense, the Morning Post today says that a diplomat who has the might of the British Empire behind him, whether he comes from London or Ottawa, will always have a respectful hearing; but he who speaks only for a part of the whole will never have the authority of the man who stands for the whole.

"We trust," the Post says, "therefore, that diplomatic unity of the Empire will be the aim of our imperial statesmen, particularly as the dominions have won their rights by magnificent service, and their rights have been cordially acknowledged by the home government. We trust, also, that the dominions will realize the necessity of giving some special assurance to France and Belgium, not so much in the interests of our two allies as for safeguarding our imperial heritage. War taught us all a lesson. Dare we reject it in peace?"

HEROIC ENGINEER SAVES REAR TRAIN

Veteran Railroader Crawls
From Wreck and Flags
Oncoming Special.

Associated Press Despatch.
Oklahoma City, Okla., Feb. 16.—Lewis Previtt, veteran engineer, "rode his engine down," when it plunged from the tracks near Kellyville, Okla., early yesterday. Then he crawled from the wreckage and, though half blinded by a scalding wound and scalded by steam, he staggered three-quarters of a mile along the dark track and flagged a St. Louis-San Francisco passenger train to prevent it from crashing into the wreckage of his freight train. Then, after the passenger came to a stop, Previtt attempted to return to the wrecked train to aid A. W. Corley, fireman, and R. A. Kohl, head-end brakeman. The two trainmen were found dead. Previtt was rushed to a hospital in Sapulpa.

SOVIET PRISON CONDITIONS SHOW GREAT IMPROVEMENT

Visit to Moscow Institution
Reveals Such Comforts
as Steam Heat.

FORMERLY HOTEL

Associated Press Despatch.
Moscow, Feb. 16.—Russian prison conditions appear to have improved greatly since the terrible days following the bolshevik revolution, a much less drastic and more humane regime evidently having been adopted in both the criminal and political prisoners.

The foreign correspondents, at the invitation of the soviet government, yesterday inspected the famous Cheka prison in Loublanski square, Moscow, which, as the headquarters of the entire G. P. U. system (state political police) has been the most feared institution in all Russia. The newspapermen found to their surprise that instead of long rows of dark, cold, iron-barred cells there were nearly 100 large, well lighted, well ventilated rooms with such comforts as steam heat, electric light, parquet floors and papered walls, all scrupulously clean.

Associated Press Despatch.
Cave City, Ky., Feb. 16.—Homer Collins, brother of Floyd Collins, trapped in Sand Cave near here, at 10:30 this morning broke through the military guard on duty at the cave and almost succeeded in reaching and going down the shaft when rumor reached him that Floyd was being brought up the shaft.

OVERCOME OBSTACLES.

Cave City, Feb. 16.—Surmounting serious obstacles and overcoming large falls, it now remains a question of cubic yards and time until Floyd Collins' rescue party expects to reach the void which will lead directly to him, said an official bulletin issued at 8 o'clock this morning. However, as it requires one hour to remove one cubic yard of material, immediate results in reaching Collins must not be expected, the bulletin said.

MONKEY IS USED TO SCORE POINT

Associated Press Despatch.
Norfolk, Va., Feb. 16.—A monkey, tethered a few feet from the pulpit as an exhibit against the evolution theory, east quizzical glances over an overflowing congregation in the Park Avenue Baptist church here last night, while Rev. Dr. Floyd T. Holland preached a sermon on "Man or Monkey."

The climax for the congregation—and the monkey—came when he was held aloft in the pulpit, a stern finger thrust toward him and the pastor challenged anybody in the church to stand up and concede ancestry with the Simian. Nobody stood up.

Rev. Floyd Holland was formerly pastor of Adelaide Street Baptist church, London.

One-Time City Dog Catcher Charged In Chicken Theft

Benjamin Blackstock Will Appear in St. Thomas Court
This Afternoon.

TRADED FOR CIDER

Indians Remanded in London
Court and Then Taken to St. Thomas.

Benjamin Blackstock, former professional London dog catcher, is in St. Thomas jail on a charge of receiving stolen chickens. He will appear for trial this afternoon.

Morris Fisher, Albert Deleary and William Deleary, three young Indians from the Muncy reserve, were arrested by Constable Nelson of the R. C. M. P., yesterday, on a charge of stealing the chickens from Dan Deleary of the Muncy reserve. They told the police they had traded the chickens to Blackstock for two gallons of cider. The Indians appeared before County Magistrate Hawkshaw at the court house this morning, and were remanded till Wednesday.

The prisoners were then rushed to St. Thomas by Constable Nelson and High Constable Wharton, where Blackstock was arrested. Nelson afterwards left for the Blackstock farm to bring Mrs. Blackstock to court as a witness.

Six Indians are ready to appear against Blackstock, police state. License Inspector Walter Bolton is also in St. Thomas in connection with the case, and should a precedence warrant, Blackstock will likely be placed under arrest for a breach of the O. T. A.

There is a severe penalty for selling "hard stuff" to Indians.

This leaves a gross surplus of $92,879.17. From this there has been deducted for depreciation $49,890, leaving a net surplus for the year of $42,389.87.

MAYOR WILL RETAIN HIS 1924 GRANT

Breaks Silence on Question of Keeping $1,200 Check
From City.

WOULD PAY ALL

Believes Money Due All Councilors
For Time Lost
From Work.

Aroused by the demands of city aldermen to establish strictly legal procedure in handling council matters, the mayor today dropped his cloak of silence on the matter of his $1,200 expense check and flayed his opponents vehemently for their criticism of his expenditures. And in doing so, he made plain that he does not intend to return the money.

"The people should pay," he heatedly broke out his worship, in the presence of Ald. John Ashton and newspaper men. "The mayor and newspaper men should be paid for expenses of office. When they lose time from work, that time should be made up in expense accounts."

First Statement.
The mayor's brief statement today is the first he has offered on the salary question in some weeks. He has evaded the question while maintaining a belligerent attitude towards his council on the matter.

"It is ridiculous to say that the job of mayor isn't worth more," his words ejaculated and brought forth figures showing the remuneration of chief magistrates in other cities.

Mr. Wenige will not return the $1,200 bonus he collected shortly after his re-election in December. He has been criticized, he admits, but feels he can keep the extra $1,200 which he says he is justly entitled, and accepts the criticism as merely criticism. Widespread interest has been attracted by the efforts of the city aldermen to secure handling of the city's accounts according to the municipal act and the statutes. An interested gallery is looked for at tonight's council meeting when an almost unanimous motion of the finance committee will be brought in to move for the return of the $1,200 check by Mayor Wenige.

CHRIST IS BROUGHT NEARER BY CHURCH

Rev. J. Richardson States That Churches Are Instruments of God's Work.

Christ was the founder of Christianity. His life gave the world all the privileges and opportunities it enjoys. This was one of the chief points brought out by the Rev. J. Richardson, who preached at the anniversary services at Chalmers Presbyterian church yesterday morning. The subject was, "What Is Our Personal Relationship to Jesus Christ?"

The text was from Matthew, chapter 27, verses 21-22. The theme was Christ before Pilate.

"The minister showed that although Christianity was sweeping the world, each person should make a Christ-like life an individual matter. The personal relation to the Saviour should be sought out.

Although Christianity was so widespread that it entered into politics and business, as well as the church and home, the governments and business interests were not measuring up in every instance to the ideal life. There were corrupt governments, and greed and graft was not unknown in business.

It was the business of the individual as well as the church to overcome these things. Luther, Calvin, Knox and many other men tried their best to bring about a greater understanding of Christianity. They did not accomplish their full purpose. They left the men of today a measure of work to do. No effort was to be spared to carry it on.

"The church and the school were instruments of God's work," said the minister. "They did much to bring about a closer relationship with Christ."

Describing a famous painting of Christ before Pilate, the minister spoke of the gentleness of manner of Jesus; of his repose in time of trouble. He had no fear or misgiving, for he was sinless, blameless and pure in character. He was on trial, yet his accusers could find nothing in him or in his teachings that would crucify him.

The minister concluded with a plea that people ask themselves how they were related to Christ; how their spirits were related to His spirit.

BIBLE CLASSIFIES ALL BY CHARACTER

Rev. J. A. Agnew Declares Wealth, Learning, Rank Are Not Recognized.

The Bible takes no account of wealth, learning or rank. These things have their place in the world, but the Bible classifies only by character. Such was one of the chief points brought out by Rev. J. A. Agnew, pastor of Ridout street Methodist church yesterday morning. The minister told of the classifications of the Bible where people were placed in two categories. They were the godly and the ungodly. Passages from the Bible were cited to substantiate the claim.

The text was from Matthew 7, 13-14, revised version by Moffat. "Enter by the narrow gate for the 'Gate' is broad and the road is wide that leads to destruction and many enter that way."

"But the road that leads to life is both narrow and close and there are few who find it."

Human judgment must often be totally reversed, said the minister. This was shown in that the last should be first and the first last. Asserting that every man must take his own stand, the Bible had divided men into two classes, the righteous and the unrighteous, the good and the bad.

Quoting a passage from Revelations the minister showed that there was no place for the lukewarm member of the church or citizen of the world. The Bible permitted of no indifference. There was no middle course. A man was right or he was wrong. Christ wanted no neutrals. For he said that, "He who is not with me is against me."

The evening service was devoted to father and son. The pastor was assisted by four Sunday school superintendents. Among the speakers were Frank Bainerd and C. M. Trace, B.A.

REPORT 'BIG BILL' HAYWOOD AGAIN IN UNITED STATES

Associated Press Despatch.
New York, Feb. 14.—William (Big Bill) Haywood, supposed to be in Russia, is reported to have returned to the United States. UNION AT WATFORD SCORES FERGUSON

Prohibition Body Prepares Resolution Urging Against Stronger Beer Move.

Special to The Advertiser.
Watford, Feb. 15.—At a mass meeting held under the auspices of the prohibition union of Watford in the Congregational church this evening, the following resolution, moved by John McCormick and seconded by T. E. Taylor, was unanimously adopted by a standing vote, and copies ordered to be sent to Premier Ferguson and L. W. Oke, M. L. A. for East Lambton:

"Whereas, the Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, premier of Ontario, repeatedly pledged his word that the O.T.A. would be strengthened and strictly enforced, should it be sustained at the polls, and since the act was sustained, has declared that he will adhere to his promise, and whereas the speech from the throne announces that the O. T. A. will be amended to permit the sale of stronger beer than is permitted at present, be it resolved, that this mass meeting of electors of the village of Watford and the township of Watford, which gave overwhelming majorities for the O.T.A., expresses its amazement that the premier of Ontario should deliberately break his pledged word, and strongly protests against such amendment to the act as would allow the sale of stronger beer. We insist that the will of the majority as expressed in the vote of October 23, must prevail and respectfully call upon Premier Ferguson to reconsider the matter and to stand by his pledged word to strengthen rather than weaken the Ontario temperance act."

S. Stanfield presided, and Revs. T. D. Rayner, H. V. Workman and S. J. Thompson addressed the meeting. The mover and seconder of the resolution were prominent supporters of the Ferguson government.

THISTLES LOSE WEIRD GAME TO Y. W. H. A. 9-6

Toronto Girls Hand Locals
Third Defeat of L. O. B.
A. Season.

PLAY IS RAGGED

Toronto Y. W. H. A.	0	1	19	20
Bellefairs	0	1	18	41
London Thistles	0	3	33	50

In one of the most weird exhibitions of ladies' basketball seen here this season, London Thistles dropped their third game in the "Big Four" series to Y. W. H. A. 9 to 6 at the Y. C. A. Saturday night. Because of this type is very rarely seen, and the small number of fans, who were there, were treated to a novelty of close-checking and rough-and-tumble play. Either side could have won the game on free shots alone, for the fouls were numerous, with the Queen City aggregation drawing the bulk of the penalties.

The game was ragged, but still interesting, and was one of those affairs where the referee is forced to slow up the play. It was just one toss-up after another, with neither team being able to break fast enough to beat the guards. The locals excelled in this style of play, but in the final period the visitors found their feet and got away to set the pace. In the first quarter the teams battled to break down the defences, but were unable to get through for field goals, and Annie Miller finally broke through with the first Y. W. H. A. goal. Lucy Milne checked her from behind. Ann Kaplan scored it two when she pivoted to force a foul on Frances Talbot. Combinations were made, and the teams played close-checking tactics, and the opposing forwards laid back for breaks. Audrey Walker and Lucy Milne got in short passes, but Bobby Rosenfeld charged out, and Lucy's shot, and was called, giving the Thistles their first point. Ann Hazelgrove was the only player to be relieved in this game. Audrey Walker going back to the bench, there was no more scoring, although both teams tried everything to break the strong defences, and the period ended, 2-1, with Toronto on the long end.

Minor Casualties.

The next contest opened with the teams displaying the same style of play that had the whistle all worn out, and Referee Dinsmore developing a sore throat. The game was a drink (of water). Frances Talbot, called for two personal fouls in succession, was yanked. Billie Graves taking her place. Both teams missed foul shots, and the play roughened, and minor casualties were numerous. Both London and Toronto calling two minutes. Ann Kaplan sprang into the limelight, using her weight to break the local defences. Rena Curmeo garnered the lone basket of the period, accepting a pass from Bessie Graves from out of bounds. This score put the locals to rest, and the period ended 3 to 2 for the Thistles.

In the next quarter the play roughened up, with the visitors picking the bulk of the fruit. Bobby Rosenfeld scored the local basket, and a throw-in, and that stratagem it. Ann Kaplan scored on a beautiful long shot from outside defence, and added another point when Frances Talbot fouled. Rena Curmeo and four fouls. Gertrude Brenner blocking, and Ann Kaplan got a point when Bessie Graves guarded from behind. Here Rena Curmeo and Ann Hazelgrove staged the prettiest play of the game. Ann grabbed the ball from a throw-in, and smoked the ball at Rena, who was going at full speed toward the Toronto basket. Rena caught it with one hand high in the air, and stepped under the hoop to score with a perfect dog-shot. This play ended the quarter with the Y. W. H. A. leading 8 to 6.

Misses Free Throws.

The forwards had been given their chances to score, the defence tightening up again to put up a marvellous exhibition of "They Shall Not Pass." Shirley Muldrew, the red-headed Toronto forward, broke loose and went on her way for a score, but was fouled and garnered a point. Right after, Bessie Graves had a splendid chance to tie it up, when she was given three free shots, two for a personal and one for a technical, but missed, and the game went down in the books.

The line-ups:
Toronto Y. W. H. A.—Forwards, Shirley Muldrew (1), Ann Kaplan (6) centre, Bobby Rosenfeld (2), guards, Gertrude Brenner, Annie Miller (4), subs, Irene Korn, Sadie Perlman, Sadie Stein.

London Thistles—Forwards, Rena Curmeo (5), Lucy Milne, centre (1), Ann Hazelgrove, guards, Bessie Graves, Frances Talbot, subs, Audrey Walker, Billie Graves, Doris Thorne. Referee—H. B. Dinsmore.

TORONTO LADIES WIN.
Special To The Advertiser.
Toronto, Feb. 15.—Toronto ladies maintained their undefeated record in the L. O. B. A. when they defeated Bellefairs, the church league representatives, by 41 to 18 in the losers initial game here Saturday. Bellefairs' showing was somewhat of a disappointment they will do much better in their first game, as they were weakened by the absence of their regulars, including Captain Tadmam, and the remainder of the team showed the effects of Tuesday's hard game against West Presbyterians.

Bellefairs started out strong and for the first ten minutes held their own fairly well with their more experienced opponents, but gradually the winners pulled away, and at half time were leading by 18 to 9. In the second half the losers wilted, and the experience and free tactics of the winners enabled them to outscore church girls by 23 to 4 in the final two periods. Creighton was the best for the losers, while all of the winners played good basketball.

The teams:
Toronto L. A. C.—Left guard, C. Hannebery (9); right guard, A. Gibb (2); center, G. Conacher (12); left forward, P. Pithkeby (6); right forward, A.

Phantom Finn Plans New Triumphs In 1928 Olympics

Paavo Narmi Does Not Believe He Has Attained Athletic Best, Although Still Running at Age of Twenty-Eight.

As Told by Him to Charles E. Parker, CHAPTER XV.

He Plans a Monopoly of Records. Paavo Narmi's accomplishments inspire awe, his ambitions increase wonderment.

Paavo now is in his twenty-eighth year—he was born June 13, 1887, in the town of Vihti, Finland. He has continued in active competition at his age, very few have been able at that time to surpass the marks they made in their earlier years.

Paavo, however, is bettering by many seconds the marks he set in his "athletic prime," and—here is the point—Paavo does not believe he has attained his best.

"My development, surprising as you may think it, has been very gradual," Paavo says. "And according to the plans I have mapped out and have been following, I am not yet at top form."

"I think in another four or five years, possibly in the Olympic games of 1928, I will show performances which will prove much superior to those of the past two or three years."

Paavo's hope during his current visit here to set new records for all distances from three-quarters of a mile to 10,000 metres, some of which I now hold. But my outdoor efforts will extend beyond those events in both directions. If my plans for the next five years materialize I will have established world's marks for all distances from 800 metres to the marathon distance.

For years Paavo has been telling folks that on such and such a date he would break this or that record. And Paavo has done as he said. For weeks he has been telling Americans that this or that indoor record would be his, and they have seen the fulfilment of those predictions. So when Paavo asserts he will hold every world's mark from 800 metres to the marathon distance of 26 miles 385 yards, it seems like a promise.

Paavo now holds the outdoor records for 1,500 metres, 2,000 metres, 3,000 metres, 5,000 metres, and 10,000 metres, and those for the one mile, two miles, three miles, four miles, five miles and six miles, and the distance-for-time records for fifteen minutes and 30 minutes, not to mention many records at odd distances. His indoor campaign, not yet completed, has brought him nearly a score of marks ranging from three-quarters of a mile to 10,000 metres.

Has Shown Marathon Ability. Paavo has disclosed exceptional range in speed and endurance, as well as an exceptional combination of those two factors. In practice workouts he has closely pressed the 800-metre and the 850-yard marks, now held by Ted Meredith, and in his training in Finland he has covered distances up to twenty miles in much faster time than a marathon specialist ever was clocked. And by concentrating first on the shorter courses and gradually moving up to the longer ones, Paavo sees no reason why all the running records between and including those distances should not stand against his.

He has made a study of all the former and present record holders at the distances involved, knows their names, and knows their marks, how they trained for the special distance and the weather and track conditions for running each distance. These records will fall, sure as fate.

That study of champions has brought out an interesting ranking of runners past and present. Paavo rates W. G. George, the British champion of 40 years ago as the greatest of the old-time stars.

"His record for the mile, 4 minutes 12.8 seconds, made at Little Bridge, London, in 1886, was the real world record until my race with Wide in 1923," Paavo declares, "and he was consistently good in all his races—not a one-day man like your Norman Tabors, whose 4 minutes 12.3 seconds, made in a paced race, was an unprecedented number of American youngsters are applying for registration cards and seeking to learn all the hows, wheres and whens of foot racing."

And although this may result in making more difficult Finland's ambition to win the 1928 Olympic games, Paavo takes a broader view of the situation.

"It is good to have such interest in so healthy a sport," he declares. "Everybody should encourage it. Perhaps it will make your country stronger than ever for the next Olympic games, and thus make Finland's home for victory more remote."

Paavo, however, like you in the United States, gains more satisfaction in a few victories over worth-while opponents than in a greater number of victories over mediocre rivals. And it is the duty of America and Finland—for I believe our two nations are being studied and patterned after by all other nations—to encourage rather than discourage the athletes of the world. Certainly America gained more satisfaction from its Olympic triumph four years ago than it gained from earlier Olympic victories, when no other country boasted a real Olympic team."

Urges More Co-Operation. Paavo comes strongly to the support of Murray Hulbert, president of the A. A. U. in the latter's efforts to develop municipal and industrial sports.

"From my brief observation," he states, "you in America have thousands of potential athletic champions who never have put on a running shoe or learned the 'feel' of a field event implement. That is so because they have had no encouragement in their sports, or because your gross business organizations have overlooked the value of competitive athletics. Some, it is true, have encouraged baseball and soccer football, but all are not profiting in these sports and cannot gain the benefits to be derived. Track and field athletics offer a wide field, and while all cannot become champions, a few who cannot make themselves proficient in one of the many track and field events. I think the good effect of organized encouragement of these sports and municipal athletics would quickly assert itself."

The brief competitive careers of many of your greatest athletes are a puzzle to European nations who do not know your industrial conditions. They see a man race to victory in one Olympic meet, and find he is not mentioned for your Olympic team four years later, and it puzzles them. They turn to Finland and other European countries, and see great athletes continuing in the forefront for long periods—Kolehmainen, Saaristo, Peltonen, Niklander, Stenroos and others.

London, July 15.—An incident unparalleled in league football, took place yesterday when the field was ordered off the field by the referee, who was at Liverpool, played at Liverpool. The victims of the adjudicator's severity were the visiting club and McNabb and Wadsworth of Liverpool. The teams were evenly matched, and the result, which was a one-goal draw, represented fairly well the trend of play.

Western Must Win All Remaining Games To Tie Toronto Team.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Feb. 15.—University of Toronto handed the champion Queens a second defeat in successive nights on Saturday evening at Hart House, when they strengthened their position at the top of the senior inter-collegiate basketball standing by means of a 40-21 victory over the Kingstonians.

Toronto has played five of its six games, and has lost but one, and has only to defeat University of Western Ontario on the local floor to capture the title. Western has but one defeat in three games, but has three games to play away from home.

Queens has two defeats, and Western University must defeat Toronto to make a tie for the title possible.

UNEMPLOYMENT SOLUTION GIVEN

Nationalize Natural Resources and Beat Problem, Says John Colbert.

SPEAKS TO LABOR

At a well-attended meeting yesterday of the London Individual Labor party, John Colbert, speaking on unemployment, offered complete nationalization of all natural resources as the only permanent relief for this social evil. He gave underconsumption, in the place of overproduction, as the real cause of all unemployment, and stated that only when business was controlled in the interests of everyone, would there be such a balanced production, distribution, and employment.

"The seriousness of the situation in Canada today is hardly realized by the average man," he said. "We have in this country a population of about nine millions, and we have also 100,000 men out of work, and 500,000 existing on what we consider is less than a living wage. I think that these Anglo-Saxon ancestors of ours who left the old land because of social and industrial conditions were so bad, and yet that their sons and grandsons are in almost as bad a plight as they were themselves only a few short years ago. I can think of no more scathing criticism of the capitalist system than the fact that these wealthy, rich, glorious Canada of ours should be in this present state within such a few years of its settling by good British stock."

"There is only one remedy for unemployment which will be permanent, and that, as you know, is complete nationalization. At the present time we have a general feeling among the working class that it is not the fault of the government, but that it is the fault of the system. We are simply making profits for someone else. That may be wrong, perhaps, but it is a feeling that is very general in the country. It is a feeling that if we had nationalization, and if every man knew that he was working to some extent for himself, and entirely for the general good, he would have a different psychology on the part of the wage earner."

"You will remember the scriptural quotation: 'The meek shall inherit the earth,' but I would venture to say that that time when they own it. Each year brings with it a greater and more serious problem in unemployment. It is not only the mere ups and downs of business do not have much control in the matter. Some of it undoubtedly is seasonal, but much of it is due to the nature of the manufacturers and the general system of control by the financial interests. At the present time the dominion is controlled by an oligarchy of bankers, just as in the United States. The opposite of this is national ownership of all natural resources and until that is accomplished we shall always have unemployment with us."

MORE WORK, LESS PLAY IS URGED FOR CANADA

amusement that we can hold and develop this country. We are in exactly the same position as the allies were in 1918. Our backs are against the wall. If we—and I appeal particularly to the young men in business—are willing to fight in business with the same spirit that our men fought with in France, then we can say with that fine old man, 'A British subject I was born a British subject I will die.' There is no other course. We have our choice, amusement or work. In the States they come down to these offices by half past eight, and the older men worked long hours and concentrated on their business. We, if we would live, must follow their example."

Education Costs.

Mr. Seitz stated that while in Ontario fifty years ago there were 1,700,000 people, in the United States a population of 2,932,000, the educational cost was $41,000,000. This was, he said, the cost of the problem, one that would have to be solved in the immediate future.

"I would ask you businessmen here today," he pleaded, "to consider the question of the cost of education and the proper training for the boy entering business, and try to reach some definite conclusion. I am bringing forward to the department of education. The young man today has his ideas extracted by the universities, and he doesn't realize what business offers him. I have no quarrel with the professions or with higher education. We need both. But the future of Canada lies in the hands of the businessman, and I want to see the boy going into business at an early age and willing to stay in business with the same enthusiasm as many men enter and stay with the professions."

USE SULPHUR TO HEAL YOUR SKIN

For unsightly skin eruptions, rash or blotches on face, neck, arms or body, you do not have to wait for relief from torture or embarrassment. Apply a little Mentho-Sulphur and in a few days a noted skin specialist, Dr. A. J. Fox, will be able to show you the improvement.

Because of the germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation. The moment you apply it healing begins. Only those who have had unsightly skin troubles can know the delight this Mentho-Sulphur brings. Even fiery, itching eczema is dried right up. Get a small jar of Rowies Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.—Advt.

Sale Urged Poet To Write 'Deadly Female,' Men Avow

Three Lowly Males Fall Before Sisters' Rush to Bargain Counter.

KIPLING WAS RIGHT

It has been decided by a little coterie of men in London that Kipling's sale has returned from a special value sale when he wrote that rhyme about, "The female of the species being more deadly than the male." The men in question were standing in the cold, bleak and unfriendly fogs of dawn in the doorway or as near as they could get of a London store featuring a Saturday sale.

They shivered in the first breezes of a new day and thought of their wives, whose wills and personalities had forced them to this unusual amusement. There were several women in the crowd, small and large, fat and thin, but all equally determined to be first at the tape when the doors opened. They were women of no public experience, and they were not in the habit of waiting in the queue. Their motto was "all is fair in love and war," and place in a line was not included in their creed. They were dressed in the shoes, and elbow pads, and overcoats, and naturally were the winners in the latest endurance test.

Eventually the doors opened, and the men were lost in the ensuing melee. There were three men who were sent on this special mission by their wives for certain very specific purposes. They had been told exactly what these things looked like and where they were to be found the night before, and all through breakfast.

In every case, but one, and this is in accordance with the statements taken from the poems, they failed to reach their objective.

The reporter watching them asked if Kipling was right, and got the same universal reply from all, "You bet he was right," they chorused. "Sure he was right, and what is more he attended a sale of his own work, and he had thought of it unless he had."

There was one belated shopper who claimed he was more chivalrous than the rest.

"If women play the game a bit rough, who's to blame them. Take any businessman. He goes about with a woman, and in the very same way, but he calls it business, and thinks that excuses him for every means he uses to get that order. But a woman refuses to take her place in the queue, or does a bit of finesse in the course of her shopping. He calls it an indecent lack of morality and a want of order in the queue, or something trivial like that. "These women are just human beings like you and I, and they have the same faults as we have. As for Kipling, that's all. As for Kipling, he is one of those poetical chaps who writes all about 'He Men,' and super heroes and all that stuff."

PETITION PROTESTS BEER AMENDMENT

Delegates to Latter Day Saints' Rally Here Take Action.

The outstanding feature of the rally and winter institute of the Latter Day Saints' church, held on Saturday and Sunday, was the signing of a petition to the premier of Ontario against amendment of the Ontario temperance act at the present time.

Rev. F. Henry Edwards of Independence, Mo., was the main speaker, and he emphasized co-operation and co-ordination in both church and field work. George F. Tomlinson of St. Mary's, the district president, occupied the chair. Rev. H. A. Koehler of this city also presided during part of the sessions. Sunday's program was most interesting. In the morning, social service and discussions on organization were held, followed by the work of the Sunday school and the women's work in the church in the afternoon. The value of the women's department in the church was taken up, and the training of teachers was also discussed. In the evening Mr. Edwards spoke on "The Church and the Individual Duty in Regard to It." Delegates were present from St. Thomas, Windsor, Toronto and other districts.

Preparations are now under way for summer institute work in London, where it is expected that delegates from a number of cities in the United States will be present. On Saturday the recreation department was in charge of the program and games of hockey and basketball were enjoyed by the young people. In the evening there was also a social evening, when speeches were given by Rev. F. Henry Edwards, John Vass, and an interesting discussion on the topics took place. Games also featured the evening and supper was served to the guests.

M'MAHEN FIELD SITE UNDECIDED

Commission Refuses To Pay High Price For New North Playground.

Refusing to be held up for prospects for the site of the McMahon playground, which it is proposed to locate in the north end of the city, the public utilities commission seems to have reached an impasse as to the securing of a site that can be made use of this coming summer.

Negotiations were under way for weeks between the commission and owners of property at the corner of Adelaide and Oxford streets, but those negotiations fell through because of what the commission held was too high a price. The selling price asked by the owners of the property was $11,500, which the commission considered much too high for 4.2 acres of land for a playground.

The commission has received a communication from persons in control of Becher's Island regarding the sale of that land for the site of a playground. It is said the commission would be interested in the site provided it could be secured cheaply enough. The land, which is in the north end of the city, lies along the north branch of the river.

There has also been some talk of securing land at Carling's heights for a swimming pool on land not controlled by the commission over a long period of years would be an impracticable solution, even should the land be handed over to the commission as a gift.

Commissioner Philip Pocock, chairman of the playgrounds commission, has spoken of Becher's Island as being an excellent site for bathing purposes. This would be for grownups more largely, and such is not the prime purpose of playgrounds in the opinion of some who are interested in the question.

Meanwhile the bequest of $20,000 left to the commission by the late Archie McMahon, is continuing to draw interest, amounting as it does now to between $22,000 and $23,000, invested under the direction of James Bell, city treasurer.

FINANCIAL BILLS WILL BE REPEALED

Premier Herriot Decides To Take Action After Conference With Cabinet.

Associated Press Despatch. Paris, Feb. 15.—Upon resumption of the budget debate in the chamber of deputies here, Premier Herriot, it is understood, will announce abandonment of the requirement that holders of coupons of French bonds list the coupons as paid and hand this list to the authorities for taxation purposes. The premier is also expected to announce that the bill of April, 1918, prohibiting the export of capital, will not be prolonged after its expiration on Feb. 23. These decisions were reached after a series of conferences Saturday night and yesterday with Finance Minister Clementel, M. Bonneau, governor of the Bank of France, and other financial authorities.

While the first measure is generally welcomed in financial circles, suppression of control over the export of capital is regarded by many as a dangerous proceeding at the present moment, as they contend it will permit open speculation in France for the fall of the franc.

Birds Lose Pep In London Fog

Associated Press Despatch. London, Feb. 15.—Fog affects the birds and beasts at the London zoo to such an extent that it has been decided to install electric lights to temper the dampness and darkness caused by the moisture and haze and coal smoke which creeps into all cages when fogs are at their height. Birds particularly suffer from the impurities in the atmosphere and generally lose all their "pep" as well as their appetites.

The monkeys detest the fogs, and often crawl into their corners, where they remain for hours at a time. Only the snakes do not seem to mind the fog. In fact, some people say they like it because the moisture feels good to their dry skins.

Nine Thousand City Motorists Use Old Markers, Though 15th Was Last Day.

But one-quarter of the motorists of this district have purchased the license plates for 1925, H. J. Ching, in charge of the license department, stated this afternoon. In other words 3,000 of the 12,000 automobile owners have obeyed the Ontario government and bought license plates by the 15th of February.

In cities such as Guelph, the police are busy today stopping all motorists still using last year's plates and asking them why they haven't called on the office of the proper authority. Chief R. Guelph states that he will issue summonses to neglectful auto owners.

"Does the department need to know that badly?" asked Chief R. Guelph of London when queried if he would take any action locally against motorists.

"I'm told that you have your officers stopping the motorists today, chief. How about it?" asked the reporter.

"You know more about it than I do," retorted the chief, who had been called away from his lunch. "I do not do anything but let it be."

At the license department it was stated that action could be expected shortly if owners using cars did not equip them with new markers. Motorists who have their machines put up for the winter months will be required to purchase plates before driving them this spring.

Political Juggling Will Not Help.

An amendment to the speech from the throne in the Ontario legislature stands in the name of the leader of the Liberal party, wherein Mr. Sinclair expresses his view that the premier has been guilty of a breach of confidence in having departed directly from the promises he made to the electors following the taking of the plebiscite vote on October 23.

Reports state that this may never come to a vote because the Conservatives by using their majority in the legislature can so amend the amendment as to make it meaningless, or they can even so change it as to mean exactly the opposite to that intended by Mr. Sinclair.

The government of G. Howard Ferguson can go ahead and follow that plan if it so desires, but it will accomplish nothing. It will not take away the sting that is in the minds of the people, that the premier said one thing very solemnly and a little later on sold out so that he could have the support of the wet followers in his own party.

It will be interesting to follow the actions of some of the Conservative members who are known to have strong temperance views. What will such a man as John Joynt, Conservative, of North Huron, do when it comes to supporting the government? Mr. Joynt came to London shortly after the so-called "enabling legislation" was introduced at the last session of the legislature, and when speaking here sought to justify the move in supporting that legislation on the ground that he had every confidence in the word of the attorney-general. Mr. Joynt has doubtless found out since that he is not dealing with the attorney-general, but with the premier. He has only one course open, and that is to vote against the government.

If the government follows the idea of trying to take the teeth out of the amendment submitted by Mr. Sinclair it will accomplish nothing at all. It will simply demonstrate that it can and will use its very large majority for the purpose of gagging criticism. Mr. Ferguson has worked himself and his supporters into a corner where they have forfeited the confidence of the public, and any amount of squirming now will only make that position more evident.

Why All This Modesty?

When Jack Dempsey got married he wanted no publicity. Even the church where he was wed was locked, and he dashed off to Mexico with his wife as soon as it was over.

This sudden bashfulness on Dempsey's part is queer. Publicity made him, and he never dodged it before. He was very ready to have reporters at all his training camps when he was preparing to punch some opponent's head off for the paltry sum of a couple of hundred thousand dollars.

And Mr. Dempsey was always ready to pose for the photographers, and give out the size and length of his arm; he would crouch for them, demonstrate his right and left, give out interviews and have his press agents tell what he had for breakfast.

Why, he fed on publicity, was made by it, grew rich on it. So he'll have to excuse the readers when they say "bunk" to this plea of his about wanting no publicity about his wedding.

Spending Money To Advantage.

A correspondent of The Advertiser claims that the prices asked for certain lines of goods are so high that trade is clogged. That may be so, but there is a very important factor entering right there that he should not overlook—the high prices clogging trade are at the same time working out their own cure.

The plain truth is that we are half in and half out of the era of high prices that came during the later years of the war and in the period of forced prosperity that followed, especially in 1920 and part of 1921. That period we now recognize as a colossal blunder on the part of those who made it possible to have almost unlimited use of funds for almost any purpose. In those years the public learned to spend money foolishly. Articles at a price they were accustomed to pay prior to the war were not good enough; they demanded something better, and the merchants were quick to see that they got it. The price seemed to be a second consideration. Any merchant who was in business during that period can tell almost the same story. The man selling boots found it easier to dispose of them at $12 or $14 a pair than he did before at $5 or $6; the haberdasher found the ordinary shirt lying on his shelf while the silk affair went out quickly; the home furnisher noticed that there was a demand for something better, something that cost more money.

It is not an easy matter for a community to come to the realization that such a period has ended; it is not possible to draw a big line and say that it shall end right here, and we will at once revert to the old standards. The whole system of manufacture and distribution had responded to the impetus of easy money, and it was geared up to that standard.

The trouble with many of us today is that the taste for good things remains, but the ability to pay for them is not present. The re-birth of a humbler taste, and the consequent resistance on the part of the public to prices that seem too high constitutes one of the safeguards that come into operation many times, and if allowed to operate by a sensible public does perhaps more than anything else to head off many movements toward higher prices.

Another factor in living costs is the art of spending the family income to advantage. Fortunately, there are many homes where this has been reduced to a science, but there are others who have never learned the lesson. There are homes where, for instance, the daily announcements of the merchants are watched keenly; when there are special values—and no one knows real value better than the competent housewife—advantage is taken of them. She goes out with the intention of making her dollar do all the work it can; she buys wholesome food and sensible articles of wearing apparel, and when she finds an article getting out of reach she leaves it alone. This business of wisely spending the money set apart for household expenses has much to do with the so-called cost of living.

Mr. Massey on World Conditions.

There was nothing of pessimism in the address of Vincent Massey, president of the Massey-Harris Co., at the annual meeting a few days ago. Mr. Massey did not speak in terms of dollars as the price of agricultural implements, but rather in terms of bushels of wheat. Taking the present price of wheat as his basis, he pointed out that a western farmer could buy a binder now for 154 bushels of wheat, whereas in 1922 it took 336 bushels. That is a point that many of our economists fail to take into consideration. A farmer does not grow dollars in his field; he produces bushels of wheat, oats, etc., tons of hay and hundredweights of beef. His crop in dollars depends on what he can get for these articles when he comes to exchange them for goods in the markets of the world.

The agricultural implement business in Canada reached its high-water mark because of the amount of machinery turned out here for export purposes. Mr. Massey pointed out that their sales in Europe in 1924 were only 78 per cent of those of 1923. The unemployment in that country since the war precluded the development of the agricultural machinery market. Russia is practically eliminated now as a market on account of lack of credit, but the orders that country has been placing with Canadian mills for over a million barrels of flour show that recovery is in motion.

Mr. Massey expected that their would be better business done in Germany, and now that Britain's pound sterling was almost touching par it was to be expected that that country would again become a better purchaser. France was now the company's best customer. The president also looked for larger orders from Argentina on account of the good crops there in 1924.

The statement of Mr. Massey throughout was a reasonable one, taking a broad view of world conditions, with no attempt to show that business should be booming here when the markets of the world have not yet recovered from the harrowing experiences they have felt since the close of the war.

Note and Comment.

St. Catharines is all upset because the city council purchased 12 snow shovels in Hamilton that should have been bought at home. This looks like carrying the buy-at-home idea to the last ditch.

Hon. Howard Ferguson assures the general public that the legislature should be able to clear up the business before it in two months. On what ground, then, will he base his claim to greater sessional indemnities?

Petitions were largely signed on Sunday in London telling Premier Ferguson that the people were disgusted with his change of face on the O. T. A. The petitioners must know that the group of twenty is in control at Toronto, and that their views are of far greater importance to the premier than petitioners scattered all over the province.

Stayin' Home

A chap I know complained to me, a-sayin' as he meant it so, that he was weary of this town he couldn't find no place to go. He liked the white lights of the night, the giddy song, the colored ring, where things was bubblin' all the time, where he could go and have his fling.

He was a-sayin' how this town was deadlier than snowballs in June, at nights they was naught else to do but gaze upon the half-round moon.

Likewise his wife, he tells to me, was wantin' just the same as he, desirin' to be on the move a-seein' all they was to see.

There be a lot of folks like them, unhappy critters through and through, they well nigh out themselves in two a-lookin' for new things to do. This jay he's got a phonograph, likewise a radio as well, to humble folks like me and you his hut looks fixed up pretty swell.

But he don't linger long in there, for when he's poked his supper down, he's scootin' fast as he can pike to see what's happenin' down town. Likewise his woman's hours to home is on a scale that's awful few, she's always zaddin' out at nights a-lookin' for new things to do.

When I get home these winter nights I shed the boots from off my hoof, allowin' it be mighty good arrivin' safe inside my roof. And when I've quaffed my bowl of soup and warmed my achin' shins a bit, the folks they bring their woolen yarn and for a spell they sit and knit.

While I be chokin' round the place, and splittin' up the kindlin' wood, a-thinkin' of some other folks who ain't a-gettin' on so good.

Then neighbors they drop in a spell, a-sittin' down like what they should, a-waitin' till I finish off a-shoppin' up my kindlin' wood. My neighbor lights his corncob pipe, his feet stuck on the kitchen range, a-showin' thus that when he comes he's feelin' that he isn't strange.

And then we talk on politics, and how the taxes come again, a-mountin' up most every year like sufferin' from a-growin' pain, we speak of days what's went and gone, of days what won't come back no more, when we was livin' side by side on lot sixteen, concession four.

The women they sit talkin' too about the styles a-comin' new, and like as not they gossip there, a-talkin' of their neighbors too.

It is a pleasant thing, it be, for folks to drop in after tea, not formal way, but natural, like what the neighbors ought to be. Much better far to spend the time with neighbors what is friends to you, than rearin' round the town at night, a-wonderin' what the deuce to do.—ARK.

Roll-Call In Lobo In the Year 1878

IN THE last article dealing with the Lobo of 1878 the Nairn gravel road was used as the dividing line. Today the list of 1878 residents is taken from that section of the township from the Nairn road west to the boundary of Caradoc, and north and south from Delaware to Williams.

In taking the names a start was made in the corner below Komoka, and working up and down the various concessions from the first to the thirteenth. Komoka was then, and is still, the leading center in the township.

The names in this list include many of those who were the first settlers, and the mention of some of the more familiar ones brings to mind the contribution made to the settlement of the township and its subsequent development. The mention of Lobo at once recalls the extent to which the community idea has been advanced, its union picnics and summer church services, all indicating a state of rural life that is highly desirable.

The 1878 residents were:

Aged Queen Mother Still Visits Kennels

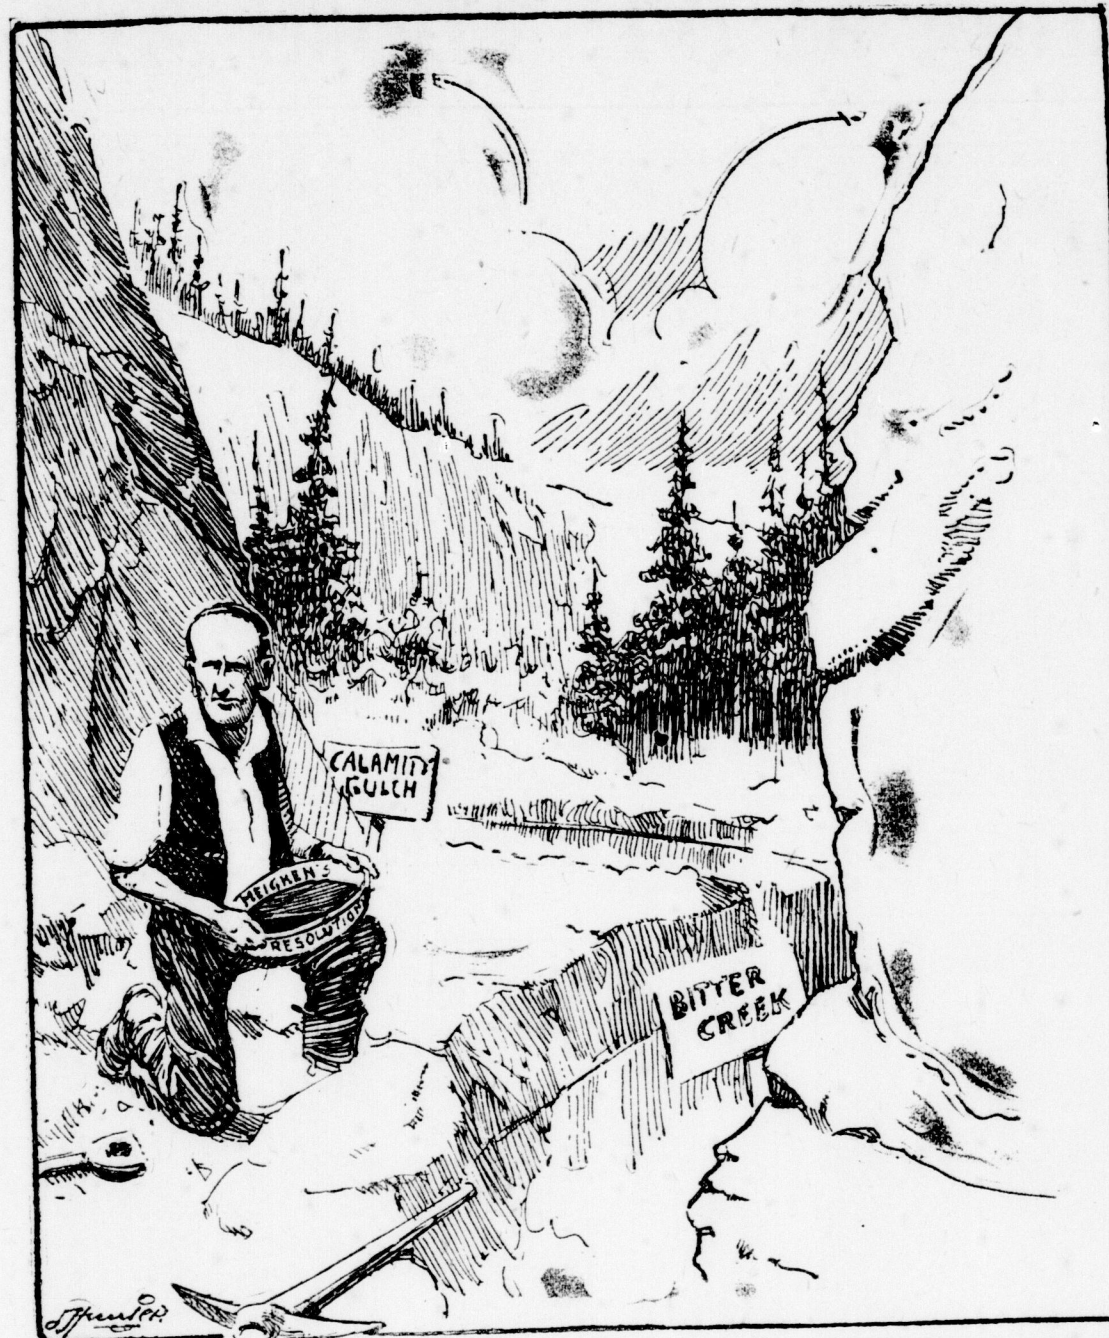

Even at her country home in Yorkshire to which she retired a year ago, Queen Alexandra has not lost her touch with the affairs of London with which she has been associated for more than half a century. The hundreds of hostesses who entertain during the season, like the royal family, always remember the queen mother and she receives invitations to all affairs just as she did when she lived at Marlborough House, across the park from her son's home.

Whenever a dinner or party is given by anyone whose position allows, an invitation is sent to the queen mother, and this is usually followed by a note of regret and an expressed wish that a little account of the affair, with the names of the guests, the dresses and other details be sent to her. When the queen first retired to Sandringham most of her friends made regular trips to visit her, but during the last few months her physician has demanded that she give up the fatigue of these visits and it is now only through the post that she can hear of the neighborhood gossip.

When Queen Alexandra moved into Marlborough House, she continued to keep open house for the many members of the royal family who enjoyed the right of entry to the palace under the genial Edward. The custom is still continued at Sandringham and there is hardly a day when some member of the family is not the guest of the queen mother.

Queen Alexandra, who is eighty years old, still takes a daily walk through her gardens to visit her kennels, for she is an ardent lover of dogs and has no less than fifteen pets. Reading the newspapers is also another daily task of the aged queen and she usually supplements it by writing a few letters, generally on public matters, for she has never ceased to take an interest in the welfare of the hospitals and children's homes, which she has fostered since she came to England 61 years ago.

Jumper Is In Danger of Losing His Life When Seen By Old Man Coyote

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

These were hard times for everybody. Perhaps this isn't quite true. There were a few who, like Prickly Porky and Paddy the Beaver and Jerry Muskrat, had little or nothing to worry about. Living on bark, Prickly Porky could always get a good meal when he needed it. Being protected by the thousands of little spears in his coat, he was afraid of no one. Paddy the Beaver and Jerry Muskrat, living in their snug houses and getting their food beneath the ice, didn't even know it was bad weather. They didn't have a single worry. But with the others it was very different. Jumper the Hare could find enough to eat, but he didn't know a moment of restful peace. Hunger kept his enemies constantly searching for him. He never moved without the feeling that the next second he might have to take to his long heels for his life. Reddy Fox

Old Man Coyote, Yowler the Bob Cat, Terror the Goshawk and Hooty the Great Horned Owl spent a great deal of their time hunting for Jumper. He slept with one eye open, as we say in English. He would jump at the sound of a bit of ice falling from the trees. Late one afternoon Old Man Coyote caught the scent of hare as he was trotting along in the Green Forest. Instantly he stopped. That scent was so strong that he knew that Jumper was close by. Very patiently and stealthily and carefully he began to hunt for Jumper. Jumper kept as still as he dared to. Because his coat was as white as the snow on which he sat he could not be easily seen unless he moved. Twice Old Man Coyote went right past within a few feet of Jumper and did not see him. But the third time he came that way he smelled Jumper and headed straight for Jumper's hiding place. Jumper waited as long as he dared to and then with a great jump away he went.

Old Man Coyote was after him instantly. If the snow had been soft Jumper could have escaped without any trouble. But it was covered with an icy crust, and on this Old Man

COOLIDGE URGED TO ANSWER BECK

Pamphlet Issued by Smithsonian Institute Attacked by U. S. Association.

Associated Press Despatch.
Washington, Feb. 15.—The charge made by Sir Adam Beck that a pamphlet issued by the Smithsonian institute circulated mis-statements and misrepresentations derogatory to the hydro-electric power commission of Ontario, is mentioned in a statement issued today by the National popular government league, an organization which includes a number of prominent public men and represents the views of many progressives.

The league, in its statement, calls on the Coolidge administration to answer the charge of Sir Adam Beck, and declares that the pamphlet, which was written by Samuel S. Wyer of Columbus, Ohio, was used by the power interests for propaganda in the Muscle Shoals fight. It further asks the Coolidge administration to answer Premier Ferguson's emphatic denial of Wyer's alleged statement to Dr. Charles D. Walcott, secretary of the Smithsonian Institute, anent suppression of a report of a royal investigating commission.

The league assails the Wyer pamphlet generally, and declares it astonishing that such imputations should be set forth in a publication issued by an institution of the federal government.

HAPPY IN THE RAIN.

Special to The Advertiser.
London, Feb. 14.—When it rains in London, they let it rain, and why not? Shops here are full of well-tailored and attractive topcoats in water-proofed materials. The latter include cashmeres, wool gabardines, West of England covert cloths, and Scotch chevils. The majority of these garments are even lined with rainproof satin.

Coyote could run as easily as Jumper. Now Jumper is one of those foolish people who, when they are frightened, lose their heads, as the saying is. If he had run easily he could have tired Old Man Coyote out. But he didn't run easily. He ran with all his might until he was out of breath and had to stop. Then when Old Man Coyote would come in sight Jumper would race away again in a great panic.

The result was that after awhile he ran a much shorter distance each time. He was growing tired. Old Man Coyote didn't seem to be tired at all. Jumper saw this and it frightened him more than ever. He tried all the tricks he knew to fool Old Man Coyote, but Old Man Coyote wasn't to be fooled. He understood every trick that Jumper tried, and as trick after trick failed Jumper began to be in despair. He couldn't fool Old Man Coyote and he couldn't tire him out. What could he do? He must find some place that he could get into but that Old Man Coyote couldn't get into. That was the only way he could save himself. But he was so frightened that he couldn't think. It began to look very much as if Jumper the Hare was running his last race.

The "Power Foods" Which Supply Your Strength and Energy

You must get them in a form your body can use

ALL the strength and energy you have must come to you from your food—and chiefly from one class of foods called "carbohydrates". They are the power foods. From one-third to one-half of all you eat should be made up of them. But—and don't overlook this fact—they must come to you in a form that your body can take up with ease, otherwise you may not only fail to derive the nourishment from them, but they may actually form as poisons in your system and become a serious source of ills.

Grape-Nuts is particularly rich in the power-producing carbohydrates. But what is most important, it has them for you in the form that is most acceptable of all to your body. A special slow baking process has converted the great quantity of carbohydrates in the whole wheat and malted barley, from which it is made, into dextrine, the food substance which the body most easily uses for power.

Let Grape-Nuts give you strength and energy. Enjoy the crisp, crunchy Grape-Nuts granules often with milk or cream and in the many delicious dishes which the Grape-Nuts free Recipe Book tells you how to make. Grape-Nuts is a perfect food. A great aid to digestion and the development of teeth. Ask your grocer for the wax-wrapped package. Grape-Nuts is ready to serve just as it comes from the package. Four teaspoonfuls, sufficient for each serving, costs less than one cent.

ST. ANDREW'S DINES LONDON GIRLS' CABINET

Many Interesting Plans Discussed at Meeting Held Saturday Night.

St. Andrew's Pathfinders arranged the supper for Saturday night's meeting of the girls' cabinet of the city. The supper took the form of a valentine party, and attractive valentine decorations were used.

Thirty-nine representatives from the different churches were present and carried on separate discussions at four different tables. Later a general meeting of the cabinet was held, over which the president, Miss Charlotte Douglas presided.

Among the many interesting matters which came before the cabinet was a consideration of the code and its practical application, discussion of which was reported by Miss Marion McMurtry of the Askin street Methodist church.

Mother and daughter banquet schemes were brought before the meeting by Miss Olive Sutton of the Talbot street Baptist church; the keeping of the treasurer's books, by Miss Verna Brazier of Chelsea Green. Miss Ruth was president over the president's table, and reported discussion on the program for coming meetings.

A merry sing-song was led by Miss Doris Werner, while an interesting little talk was given by Miss Ruth Watts of St. James church. This was followed by brief talks by Mrs. W. L. Armitage, who represented the girls' work board; Miss Doris Rider, who welcomed the girls' cabinet to St. Andrew's; and Miss Katharine Stein. Reports were heard from representatives of Westminster Presbyterian, Byron, and The Grove Methodist churches.

MISS ETHEL COTTON, daughter of F. E. Cotton, who will take a leading role in the Girls' Cabinet.

What Can Be Done With a Slovenly Husband—Shall She Give Up Her Friendship With a Married Man?

Dear Miss Dix—What would you do with a naturally slovenly man? One who never combs his hair on the plea that it doesn't look combed anyhow, and who never buttons his shirt collar; one who throws his burnt matches all around on the floor when he smokes, and whom you can always trace by the ashes he leaves behind him? That is my husband, and he says that his home is for his own comfort, and that he will dress and do as he pleases in it, and he never thinks of all the extra work he makes for me. Believe me, I think that an ash tray FULL of burnt matches at a man's elbow is one of the most beautiful sights in the world. CRANK.

Answer: There are millions of other wives who will agree with you, sister, for you are not the only woman who has a husband who believes that home is the place where man can indulge his natural instincts to be pigish.

And there are millions of other women who want to know, just as you do, why a man will drop ashes all over the place and strew his cigarette stubs around, when it would be more convenient to drop them in an ash tray, and why he always parks his towels on the floor and hangs his coat up on a chair. But no one can answer these questions because no man ever tells and no woman can even imagine why he does it. It is one of the secrets of the masculine psychology that is an inscrutable mystery. DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a widow 36 years old, and lonely. I recently met a married man with whom I have spent considerable of my leisure

BEARS FORCE FALL IN STOCK PRICES

Throw In Large Blocks of Stock, Creating Unexpected Recessions.

Associated Press Dispatch.
New York, Feb. 16.—The bear traders, taking advantage of the lack of effective buying support, threw large blocks of stock into the market during the first hour, forcing recessions of 1 to 3 1/2 points in scores of issues. Pools temporarily suspended activities on their accounts, which heretofore had been bid up regardless of the general trend. Nash and Phillips Petroleum, Universal Pipe Company and preferred Kelsey Wheel, Soss, shorted off the market. The latter, a reliable and Northern preferred sold 2 1/2 to 3 points below last week's closing price. The market had shown a general upturn in Jordan Motors, which was bid up 2 points to above 40, and Texas and Pacific, which touched a record 39 1/2. The steady general list around 100, which started falling at 10:30, and American and Mack Trucks, which closed at 100 and 101 1/2, respectively.

Market Sidelights

LAKE SHORE.
The strength in Lake Shore was a feature of the standard exchange all week. The January yield was over 125,000 tons, and the market showed a further increase in this tonnage. A further increase in this tonnage is generally looked for, but it is doubtful if this increase will materialize until the arrival of new holding equipment. The present plant is operating at capacity, and at the time of the last annual report it was clearly demonstrated that the company's finances had never been in better shape. When it is remembered that even at the top of the week's advance Steel & Canada still had a 10 per cent. dividend on the common has been more than earned.

When it is remembered that even at the top of the week's advance Steel & Canada still had a 10 per cent. dividend on the common has been more than earned.

It is well known that the steel industry in Canada improves following substantial betterment in American industry. That the latter has at last begun to recuperate is evident in the fact that the steel industry in Canada is now producing more than it is consuming. The steel industry in Canada is now producing more than it is consuming.

OVER 100 FIND WORK IN CITY DURING WEEK

Over 100 men received work last week through the efforts of the government employment bureau, according to figures issued today. The majority of these men secured jobs with the city of London.

Fifteen men were placed on farms by Superintendent J. C. Spence at wages from $25 to $35 per month with board and washing. Two machinists, one tool worker and one silk worker, were placed in jobs in other cities.

GET NEW RINK.

Residents of Lucan are quite enthusiastic regarding a municipal skating rink to be built during the summer at a cost of $5,000.

Lucan youths are becoming famous as hockey players, but the village is not represented in the O. H. A. owing to lack of rink accommodation. Hockey enthusiasts in the village point out that a team could be formed that could "lick the spots off Glenora" and it is expected that the project will be carried out with the aid of the village council and representative citizens.

Misery

Stopped Instantly
The Head is cleared

When the nose is clogged with cold or catarrh it means a local germ attack. The treatment should be local. Combat those germs, clear the nostrils, stop the cold.

The way is Ely's Cream Balm. Put a little in the nostrils and breathe it. Note how quickly fumes clear the head.

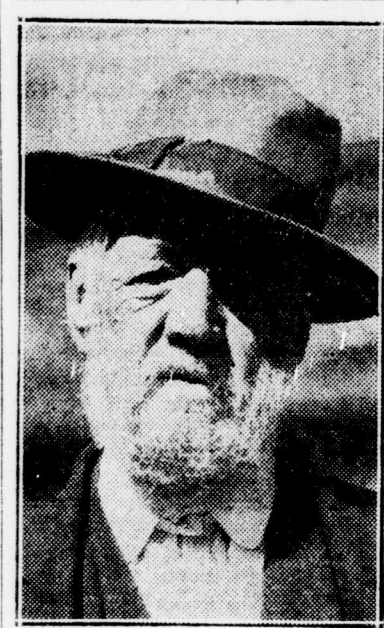

Then remember that. Next time use the Balm at the first sign of a cold. Don't let it get a start.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. Quell the cold at once, and misery. Then keep it on hand to stop future colds at the start.

WHITE ROSE SAYS TODAY IS BIRTHDAY OF J. B. COX

Noted Grain Buyer Active as Ever in Spite of His 83 Years.

POPULAR FIGURE

Today J. B. Cox, veteran grain buyer, is celebrating his 83rd birthday. Incidentally Mr. Cox is wearing a white rose on this occasion and is also purchasing hay and grain on the local market as he has done for the last 60 years.

Just twice a year do "J. B.'s" poetic instincts demand floral expression of this kind, his birthday, and St. George's Day when he wears a red rose.

With nothing to show that he has passed the three score years and ten stage in the highway of life except the entry in the family Bible, Mr. Cox is abroad on the local square today with his cane and his ever-present cigar.

Mr. Cox was born in 1842 at Thorny Plots, Nottinghamshire, England, and he still has well-defined recollections of his boyhood home. In 1861, at the age of nine years, "J. B." together with his parents, took passage on an American vessel of 200 cabin and 600 steerage capacity bound for New York.

For 54 long days the little craft was tossed about on the stormy Atlantic, but at last arrived at New York. The couple from the port to Buffalo and Port Stanley was accomplished by train.

Port Was Larger.

"Port Stanley was much larger than the ship I am now, and to stand on the hill and watch the many sailing vessels plowing across the lake, laden with grain, was a pretty sight," said Mr. Cox as he dropped his newspaper and lit his cigar for the third time.

After arriving in London, which was then a mere settlement, all the business being transacted in the west end of the city, the Cox family bought a farm in South Dorchester, 18 miles from London.

Mr. Cox as he developed the hardy constitution which has been his best friend throughout the years. Mr. Cox spent six years on that little farm.

The year 1857 found him working in the grain business of Roe brothers in St. Thomas. Two years later he came to London to manage a warehouse for the same firm. He remained in Roe brothers' employment for six years.

This was not by any means Mr. Cox's first visit to London. For in 1851, accompanied by his parents, he came from Mapleton to buy furniture at an establishment opposite the present site of the courthouse.

Upon the failure of Roe brothers in 1865, Mr. Cox acquired a desire to again visit New York city. So in company with an intimate friend, John Beard, he left London behind him on the 17th of March.

But four months of living in the metropolis convinced "J. B." that he really did like London. So he returned here, and Mr. Cox adds with undiminished pride that this was the only time he was out of the city for any length of time in 64 years.

Lauds Chestnuts.

Attributing his good health to his always carrying a handful of chestnuts in his pocket, Mr. Cox has never experienced rheumatism. This preventative measure was told him by his father, who also was unbothered by the joint ailment.

Mr. Cox is fond of walking and his Sunday rambles to Springbank and the surrounding country would quickly tire one much younger than himself.

Mr. Cox is a life member of the St. George's society, and its present measure due to his secretaryship of more than 25 years. Mr. Cox organized the society in 1867. He is also a life member of the Kilwinning lodge, No. 64, A. F. & A. M.

For a short period, quite a number of years ago, "J. B." had the distinction of acting as the first American consul in this city. He issued the declarations and manifests necessary to conduct international trade.

From early morn until late at night "J. B." is watching the loads as they enter the square and appraising the residents of the city and 64 years of active service has made him beloved by the farmers for miles around.

As far as "J. B.'s" health is concerned, he never could walk from Mapleton to London on a cold winter's morning as he did many years ago.

JEDDAH REPORT UNTRUE.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, Feb. 16.—It is learned that Dr. Naji El Assil, representative in London of the kingdom of the Hedjaz, has received a telegram from King Ali, dated at Jeddah last Saturday, dealing with matters of routine and making no mention of the political or military situation.

Dr. Assil therefore concludes that the earlier report that Jeddah had fallen to the forces of Ibn Saud was untrue.

WARNER PRAISES EDUCATION PLAN

New Scheme Would Have Second Year University Work Taught in Collegiate.

YOUTH A BARRIER

Rev. G. Q. Warner, rector of Cronyn Memorial church, and formerly member of the board of education, is strongly in favor of Premier G. H. Ferguson's proposal to have second-year university work taught in a number of the larger collegiate institutes of the province.

Mr. Warner holds that any move which will tend to improve the junior matriculation standard is all to the good. He believes that "immature and immature" students are "scraping" through their matriculation examination for entrance to the university, and that therefore the teaching of second-year university work in the collegiate institutes would better prepare the students for their college course.

"As it is at present," observed Mr. Warner, "very few at 18 years of age (the age at which the majority of collegiate students matriculate) are prepared to fully appreciate the value of a university course, and it is only at the end of their college work in the collegiate institutes that they really begin to appreciate what a university course means."

"University people should have formed the habit of thinking and working for themselves. They are not there as just pupils; they are there as students under the guidance of professors, but doing their own independent thinking. And then a bachelor of arts degree is only the beginning of real work, it is only just stepping stone."

"When here at the opening of the university of Western Ontario," continued Mr. Warner, "Dean Gordon Laing of Chicago university expressed the opinion that secondary school courses should be greatly strengthened. He was scathing in his criticism of the high school courses and declared that they should be made so that the individual could finish his or her university course in two years."

Mr. Warner also ventured the opinion that young men and women would be better not to go away from home to the city to university at 18 years of age, than to have been in the city under the present system from Sunday to Sunday service.

It was pointed out that there are 400 attendants at the Ontario hospital in addition to the patients, and that satisfactory work could not be done by the ministers of the city under the present system from Sunday to Sunday service.

Arrangements were made for the taking of a Sunday afternoon service at Victoria hospital by members of the alliance as follows: First Sunday of each month, Methodists; second Sunday, Presbyterians; third Sunday, Anglicans; fourth Sunday, Baptists; fifth Sunday, Congregationalists and other denominations.

On account of the small attendance at the address which was to have been given by A. E. Barbour, president of the children's aid society, on "The Boy and the Girl" was postponed until a later date.

In the absence of the president, Rev. John Richardson, the honorary president, Rev. A. E. M. Thomson, presided at the meeting.

ST. JAMES' TEA.

A successful tea and sale was held in St. James' Anglican church, South London, on Saturday afternoon under the auspices of the ladies' guild of the church. The hall was attractively decorated in valentine suggestions and in the tearoom red streamers fell from the lights to the tables. At the tea table, where Mrs. F. W. Wickett presided, red hearts, pussywillows and silver holders made it very attractive. Mrs. John Dillon and Mrs. G. Forsythe were in charge of the tea room, while Mrs. F. Hardy and Mrs. C. Hodgins presided at the home-cooked table. The fancy work was in charge of Mrs. C. Morris and Miss Pope. Mrs. Richards and Mrs. York looked after the candy table, and the white elephant table was looked after by Mrs. (Dr.) Cowan and Mrs. Jeffrey. The afternoon was greatly enjoyed by many, and the guests were received by the executive committee, Mrs. H. Hunt, Mrs. John Dawson and Mrs. A. Nash.

ST. ANDREW'S FEDERATION.

The young people's federation of St. Andrew's church held its regular meeting last night after the evening service. Rev. F. W. Wickett presided, and the devotion exercises were in charge of the B. S. ONTARIO'S FRENCH PLAN RIGIDIFIED

Belanger Charges Aim of Training Is To Destroy Bilingual School.

FERGUSON HIT

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, Feb. 15.—"Money spent for the bad training of those destined by the government as teachers" was how E. Belanger, M. L. A., characterized the statement attributed to E. Howard Ferguson, premier of Ontario, in a speech at Quebec during the bonne entente proceedings, that Ontario spent $90,000 annually for instruction in the French language.

Mr. Belanger's pronouncement was given before the Reform club here Saturday.

Asking the question if the Ontario government were sincere and honest in its words, Mr. Belanger said that Premier Ferguson had astounded his hearers when during his speech he had declared that Ontario spent that amount of money yearly. "That money is merely spent on the bad training of those whom the government wanted as teachers to give instruction in the manner that the government thought best."

The aim of that training is to destroy once and for all bilingualism and the bilingual school, the speaker said.

Mr. Belanger said that the government of Ontario had opened normal schools at Sturgeon Falls and Sandwich which it receives girls of 16 for training as teachers. Charges incurred in the transfer of the girls and the expenses of the candidates were all paid "with the public's money," he said.

The government Anglicizes them to its taste and then after three years of that sends them out to take charge of other children.

French-Canadians in the province of Ontario wanted their children to speak English; they recognized the need for knowing the language and none of them denied that they were part of an empire controlled by English-speaking people.

"But," Mr. Belanger went on, "we also want our children to learn French, despite rule 17. We do not wish them to be deprived of such a valuable asset as knowledge of the two languages and above all, we do not want them to lose knowledge of their mother tongue."

Arrangements were made for the taking of a Sunday afternoon service at Victoria hospital by members of the alliance as follows: First Sunday of each month, Methodists; second Sunday, Presbyterians; third Sunday, Anglicans; fourth Sunday, Baptists; fifth Sunday, Congregationalists and other denominations.

On account of the small attendance at the address which was to have been given by A. E. Barbour, president of the children's aid society, on "The Boy and the Girl" was postponed until a later date.

In the absence of the president, Rev. John Richardson, the honorary president, Rev. A. E. M. Thomson, presided at the meeting.

ST. JAMES' TEA.

A successful tea and sale was held in St. James' Anglican church, South London, on Saturday afternoon under the auspices of the ladies' guild of the church. The hall was attractively decorated in valentine suggestions and in the tearoom red streamers fell from the lights to the tables. At the tea table, where Mrs. F. W. Wickett presided, red hearts, pussywillows and silver holders made it very attractive. Mrs. John Dillon and Mrs. G. Forsythe were in charge of the tea room, while Mrs. F. Hardy and Mrs. C. Hodgins presided at the home-cooked table. The fancy work was in charge of Mrs. C. Morris and Miss Pope. Mrs. Richards and Mrs. York looked after the candy table, and the white elephant table was looked after by Mrs. (Dr.) Cowan and Mrs. Jeffrey. The afternoon was greatly enjoyed by many, and the guests were received by the executive committee, Mrs. H. Hunt, Mrs. John Dawson and Mrs. A. Nash.

ONTARIO HOSPITAL CHAPLAIN URGED

Resolution From Methodist Ministers Referred to Alliance for Consideration.

An effort is to be made by the London ministerial alliance to secure the appointment by the provincial government of a chaplain at the Ontario hospital here.

The subject, introduced by a resolution from the Methodist ministers' association, was referred to the executive committee for consideration at this morning's monthly meeting of the alliance.

It was pointed out that there are 400 attendants at the Ontario hospital in addition to the patients, and that satisfactory work could not be done by the ministers of the city under the present system from Sunday to Sunday service.

Arrangements were made for the taking of a Sunday afternoon service at Victoria hospital by members of the alliance as follows: First Sunday of each month, Methodists; second Sunday, Presbyterians; third Sunday, Anglicans; fourth Sunday, Baptists; fifth Sunday, Congregationalists and other denominations.

Heat

For pain - soreness
Rheumatic pains, soreness, aches, etc., call for heat. The best way to apply it is Red Pepper Rub.
This is the modern way. It so exceeds the old ways that there is no comparison. Nothing else creates such concentrated, such penetrating heat as red pepper. And heat that doesn't hurt you.
You feel that tingling heat in an instant. In three minutes it seems to penetrate the depths. Circulation starts, congestion is relieved. Pain and the soreness go, depart.
What folly it is to suffer from heat so easily and quickly stopped. What folly to let a cold in the chest go neglected. When trouble starts at night, what folly to wait until morning.
Keep Red Pepper Rub on hand. Homes which do that save a great deal of pain. Get it now—the very utmost in help of this kind.

SCOTT SENTENCED TO THE GALLOWS

Loses Fight For Life As Chicago Judge Overrules Appeal.

WILL RENEW BATTLE

Associated Press Despatch.
Chicago, Feb. 15.—Russell T. Scott, formerly a London and Toronto, Ontario, broker, who in his early twenties was the head of a $10,000,000 Canadian corporation organized to build a $30,000,000 international bridge between Detroit, Mich., and Windsor, Ont., was sentenced Saturday to be hanged April 17, for the murder of Joseph Maurer, a 17-year-old drug clerk, during a hold-up in April, 1924.

Judge Thomas J. Lynch, who sentenced the erstwhile financier, now reduced to penury, overruled a motion for a new trial. Scott's attorneys, however, said an appeal would be taken to the supreme court.

Scott Remains Calm.
Scott himself remained calm as sentence was pronounced, but his aged father, who had come from Canada to aid his son, collapsed. Just before the death sentence was passed, Scott dramatically faced the court and denied that he had killed Maurer, placing the blame on his brother, also accused of the crime and a fugitive from justice.

Scott said they had gone to the drug store to buy whiskey and that his brother, very drunk, had gone upstairs while he remained in the drug store basement. He said he heard sounds of a scuffle and then a shot was fired.

Running upstairs he saw his brother leaving the store, a pistol in his hand. He declared there had been no attempt at a hold-up, and the shooting was the result of a quarrel between the clerk and his brother.

Scott maintained that the drug store proprietor and others had testified falsely because he had related the whiskey deal.

Up to two years ago Scott had been concerned in large financial ventures. He has written several volumes on business problems and commercial ethics. In the last two years, since the failure in his business, Scott had been rapid in succession a salesman, actor, bootlegger and finally a hold-up man, according to his history as traced at the trial.

Flees From Canada.

After disagreement over his business methods among his associates in the bridge venture, he is said to have parted with a personal fortune of upwards of $2,000,000, and to have fled Canada when faced with a breach of promise verdict for $100,000, although he is married and the father of three children.

When first arraigned, Scott pleaded guilty to the murder charge, but

MEN ARE LOSING LIFE'S BEST GIFTS

Residents of City Tempted by Many Things, Declares Pastor.

Many things tempt the average man in the city to crowd out the best in life and fill it with lesser things, was brought out by the Rev. Charles S. Miller, M.A., B.D., of Wawanawa, Manitoba, who preached at First Congregational church yesterday morning.

Taking for his subject, "The Sufficiency of Christ," the minister based his theme on the words found in John 6, verses 6-8. "Lord To Whom Shall I Go?"

In that there was all the paths Christ felt in being alone, but there was no faltering in Peter's reply, "To Whom Shall We Go?"

The minister asked if people were giving the Christ spirit the place it should occupy in their hearts, their homes, lives and governments.

"I affirm that we are not," said Mr. Miller, with no uncertain emphasis. "I do not hold that mournful half-hearted spirit I honest. I am not preaching tradition today. I am alive to the social inclination of the heart of our people today, but you can not clean up the jungle of the heart of man by manhandling the claws of the tiger."

"We must go down into the heart of things," continued the speaker. "This implies that there are other persons and things, other gods, to whom we may go. Force is one god to whom nations have bowed the knee. There is a limit to material power."

"Education and knowledge must go with religion in these days. When so much power is vested in the war lords, it is our duty to see that they do not prove too zealous in their realm. People must be educated to prevent the lust for power by shaking the world and tottering it to its doom. We must bring our scientists and military leaders under the power and control of Christ."

In conclusion, Mr. Miller said that in giving themselves to God, Christians had the consciousness that they would find Christ, who is all sufficient, and with whose hold each one could live his life.

MRS. SNOWDEN PRAISES CANADIAN WHEAT POOL

Declares, On Return To England, Farmers Aided Without Hurting Public.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, Eng. Feb. 15.—Mrs. Philip Snowden said today on her arrival from Canada that she was going to devote herself to the work of the commission investigating the price of food in Britain and she intended to get her teeth into the food question.

She spoke with enthusiasm of her tour of Canada, and said that there was a small and noisy communist element in the Dominion, as there was in every country. The communists went to her meetings on two or three occasions and made a lot of noise. That was about the only impression they gave her. At any rate they did not get the best of it.

What impressed Mrs. Snowden most in Canada was the organization of the farmers and particularly the wheat pool. She thought this would have a good effect in stabilizing prices as the pool would give the farmers a fair return for their work without exploiting the public.

PREACHER SPEAKS ON FINGERPRINTS

Large Crowds Greet Will H. Houghton at Wortley Road Church.

Large crowds greeted Will H. Houghton, preacher, soloist and song leader, who spoke at three meetings in Wortley road Baptist church yesterday.

The subject of the morning service was "Finger Prints." The speaker said that finger prints often proved a man. In police courts the finger print had a distinct meaning. It showed whether a man was innocent or guilty.

The world demanded that a Christian show his marks of identity. There were several of these. Self-effacement was one. Gentleness was a mark of the Christian. There was no place in life for cutting remarks or unkind actions.

These things were marks or finger prints. They were not new. They came from the time of Christ, when in John xx, 25 it was written, "And except I shall see in his hand the print of the nails I will not believe." A novel title was given to the evening subject. It was "When the mule ran away."

Mr. Houghton took his theme from Absalom riding on the mule. He likened present-day people to the Biblical figure. One man who rode on a mule was he who belonged to the church, and though he did not attend, felt secure.

Other riders were those who thought that as long as they were sincere it was enough. Another was the man who thought because he led a moral life he did not need Christ. These people, the speaker said, were only going part way to finding the fullness of true Christianity.

COMPANIES DENY COMBINE CHARGE

Steamship Lines in Statement Declare Much Good Results From Joint Action.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Montreal, Feb. 15.—That the North Atlantic Steamship Conference is not in any sense a combine, and only exists to promote and protect the interests of the public as well as those of the steamship companies forming its membership, is claimed in a statement issued today by the following lines: Anchor-Donaldson, Canadian Pacific, Cunard, Inter-Continental Transports, Limited (associated with Canada Steamship Lines, Limited), Scandinavian-American, White Star-Dominion Line, Furness, Withy & Company, Limited, Thompson-McLean, Kennedy.

Charges made by W. T. R. Preston in his report to the minister of trade and commerce at Ottawa.

The statement cites various advantages which are said to result directly from taking of joint action by the companies in respect to freight rates. Among these are fixed dates of sailing at regular intervals, enabling shippers to work with smaller stocks than they could otherwise without the necessity to engage cargo space considerably in advance, thus enabling merchants to make forward contracts for delivery of goods at a definite date; a better distribution of sailings and greater security for capital invested in the steamship business, which enables shipowners to supply an adequate number of vessels of a higher class and great speed than the ordinary tramp, and also brings about the delivery of cargo in better order, with greater dispatch and regularity, as well as the reduction of insurance premiums owing to the better class of vessels employed.

The conference between the lines is also claimed to bring about stability of rates over long periods of time, which removes the inconvenience which would exist if merchants and shippers were obliged to quote difference prices on nearly every commitment; to reduce complaints from buyers abroad and to enable shippers and merchants to calculate laid-down costs and sell goods for future delivery. It is claimed that it secures uniform freight rates to all lines, thereby protecting the small against the large shippers and to reduce the cost of service to the public by eliminating wasteful competition among the lines.

CROSS WORD PUZZLE NO. 107

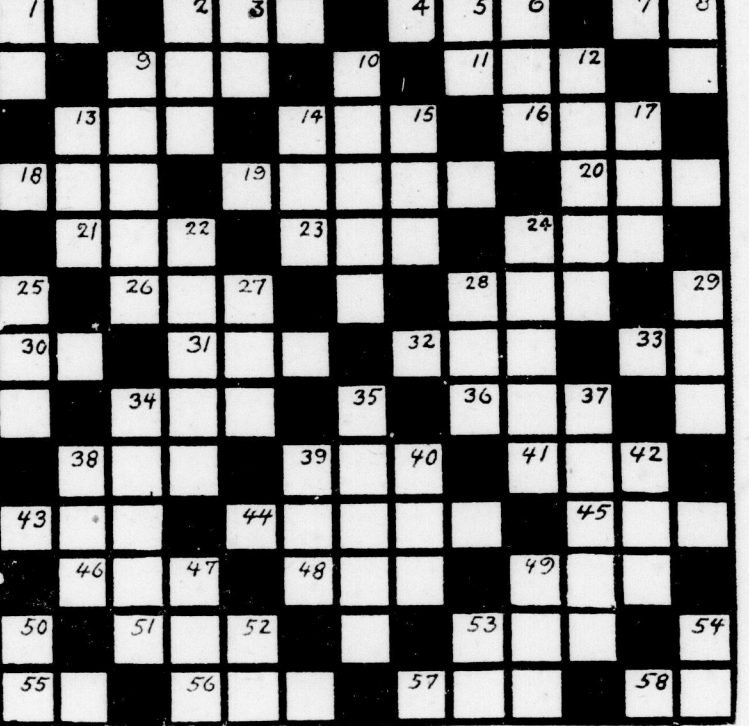

A neater example of cross-word construction one doesn't come across often in pursuit of the horizontal and vertical. There will be no need to worry about the unkeyed letters—the design and words more than make up for them. And there is not one difficult one in the set.

Each word reads from left to right (horizontal) or downward (vertical) according to position. Lettered in correctly, words that cross will interlock. Each number in the white squares also refers to a definition in the accompanying table.

Each definition suggests a word possessing the exact number of letters to fit the white spaces allotted to it.

Each white space is to receive one letter only. Words start only in numbered squares.

Increase in Traffic Makes Expansion Necessary, Declares Harvie.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, Feb. 15.—Because of Montreal harbor's strategic position astride the great waterway that taps the richest section of the North American continent, continued expansion is inevitable, and further development of the port will have to be carried out at an early date to keep pace with its needs, T. W. Harvie, general manager of the port of Montreal, declared in an address to the Westmont Women's club at the Webster Memorial hall.

Available statistics some years ago showed Montreal as ranking sixth or seventh among the great ports of the world, Mr. Harvie said, but there was no doubt whatever from recent statistics that the position had now been advanced several places in relative importance.
