Prescription "A" Cures Indigestion and Dyspepsia in all its Forms. It is quite a daily occurrence to hear persons say: Oh, what a feeling of distress I have after meals, fullness of the stomach, heaviness and headache, I feel too tired to do anything. I have no heart to exert myself, and at times I care for nothing. I often have a pain in the pit of the stomach, no appetite, my heart beats rapidly on the slightest exertion. I feel just as tired when rising in the morning as when retiring to bed. My sleep is often disturbed, and I often awake with a sense of suffocation and a difficulty of again going to sleep. I have to be careful of what I eat, and my life seems a veritable burden. Now, it seems a shame and a pity for persons to be suffering like that when it is in their power to get cured by taking a bottle of Dr. Stafford's Prescription A. A sure cure for persons afflicted with stomach troubles. It can be obtained at DR. F. STAFFORD & SONS, Duckworth St. and Theatre Hill. Small size, 25 cents; postage 5c. extra; large size, 50 cents; postage, 10c. extra. Mail orders must be accompanied by remittance.—dec 7

Experiments on Human Beings

Independent Investigation on food power of BOVRIL!

A Report made at the Annual Meeting of the British Medical Association in Birmingham (July, 1911) revealed some remarkable results of physiological experiments showing the body-building power of Bovril on human beings.

10 to 20 times the amount taken.

But these exhaustive experiments have further conclusively demonstrated that "in the human experiments the increase was even more marked."

The conclusions which particularly interest the public, and which are now incontrovertibly established by these latest tests, are as follows:-

- 1. The Remarkable Food Value of Bovril Itself.
2. The peculiar power of Bovril in enabling the system to extract greater nutriment from ordinary foods.
3. That these two properties together give Bovril a body-building power of from 10 to 20 times the amount taken.

That is to say, Bovril is not only a great body-builder in itself, but it also enables other foods to feed the body more powerfully, and in protecting the system against the dangers of disease.

Used in over 2,000 Hospitals and Institutions.

BOVRIL

Look for the NAME BOVRIL when you buy, because it means so much.

A MYSTERIOUS QUEST.

CHAPTER XXIV.

A Fortune and a Death-Bed.

The lawyer sprang to the door with alacrity. As he did so, he heard a bustling sound without, but when he had reached the hall, he found no one and had to call again and again before the horrid old woman, who seemed to be the sole owner and inhabitant of this establishment, appeared.

"A hundred dollars!" he repeated, "for a room without a carpet, a bed without sheets, a plate without food? If you get ten, you will do well. I am a lawyer, woman, and I have seen you like you before. Where are these gentlemen's clothes; and the watch that used to hang in that case, and the books that used to lie on that shelf?"

man showed such distress, that I paused astonished. "Tell your friend to stay," he pleaded in the lawyer's ear, but so low I could not hear him. "He makes me think of the brother I lost years ago—a brother I loved. I cannot bear to see him go away. He makes me remember the days of my youth."

Until Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

DeWittville, N.Y.—"Before I started to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I suffered nearly all the time with headaches, backaches, and bearing down pains, and had a continuous pain in my left side. It made me sick if I tried to walk much, and my back was so weak that I was obliged to wear corsets all the time. But now I do not have any of these troubles. I have a fine strong baby daughter now, which I did not have before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

CHAPTER XXV.

The Surprises of An Hour.

"At this verdict of the doctor," resumed Mr. Degraw, of Cleveland, "an exclamation of sympathy left our lips. Only two hours in which to enjoy the possession of a fortune, after years of wearing penny and want. Only two hours in which to gauge his new responsibilities, and determine upon whom or what he would lay this burden of wealth otherwise useless to him. It seemed like mockery, and it awoke in me a feeling almost akin to fear. Though I laughed at the surmises of the lawyer, I knew that the mind of the man, thus driven into action at its weakest ebb and under the pressure of death, would be and must be necessarily influenced by the minds of those about him, and I refused such responsibility, and longed to escape from the scene and its possible consequences."

"But when I turned to look at the dying man, I felt that it would be cruelty for me to leave one who manifestly clung to me with such desperate and unreasoning persistence. He would not, in all probability, refuse my request if I entreated permission to go; would not, perhaps, lift his hand to stop me, if he saw me turn again toward the door, but I should never forget his look for all that, or feel comfortable at its remembrance. Whatever the result might be, I must linger till he himself said good-bye; for since we could not give him the peaceful and comfortable surroundings which he craved, we must at least grant him the sympathy and interest which might serve to make him forget his surroundings."

"I had bought a great bunch of white roses while I was out, and these I now brought forward and placed on his breast, with the remark that I thought he would like something beautiful to look at. "Instantly the tears welled in his eyes, and he moved his hands feebly and buried them among the blossoms. "My mother's garden used to be famous for its roses," said he. "Frank and I used to pick each other with them. You could not have brought me anything that would make me happier than these. "His pleasure was gratifying, and yet I felt guilty, as if I had done something in the way of influencing his mind in my favor. "Mr. Cutting evidently agreed with my feeling in this matter, for he gave me a queer look as he again approached the bed. To be continued.

"The mind is its own place, and in itself Can make a Heaven of Hell, a Hell of Heaven."

Doubleless, you have heard many times, both from other folks' pens and mine, the essential philosophy of the above. It's the point of view that we take of our circumstances, and not the circumstances themselves, that does most to make us happy or unhappy—dissatisfied or contented. You have probably been told that again and again, and having common sense and reason of your own, knew it anyway.

But let me—or rather, one of my letter friends—present this same philosophy in a more original, newer and more concrete form. I think it will interest and amuse you, as it did me. "My sister and I," writes this friend, "are rather imaginative, and when we have nothing else to do, we build the most wonderful air castles. Sometimes we merely draw exaggerated word pictures of little happenings. One afternoon after work we walked home, stopped on our way out for a chat with our married sister, and when we got home found that the rest of the family had finished supper. We ate ours and repaired to the porch. I plumped down in the hammock and Jane on the porch settee, piled high with pillows. She drew a pathetic picture of the walk up, describing the two poor stenographers toiling weary miles after a hard day's work—the tall, thin, angular, gray-haired one (my hair is gray, but prematurely so) with a half-soiled white skirt that had been seen better days, and a white waist that she had spent many weary hours embroidering—the short, dragged-out, looking younger sister in a similar costume. She told how they dragged their weary footsteps to their married sister's flat, where they could smell the supper cooking for her husband when he returned from his day's labor, and after talking for awhile proceeded on their journey home. # The Evening Chit-Chat

By MARY CARROLL

"The mind is its own place, and in itself
Can make a Heaven of Hell, a Hell of Heaven."

—Milton.
Doubtless, you have heard many times, both from other folks' pens and mine, the essential philosophy of the above. It's the point of view that we take of our circumstances, and not the circumstances themselves, that does most to make us happy or unhappy—dissatisfied or contented. You have probably been told that again and again, and having common sense and reason, of your own, knew it anyway.

But let me—rather, one of my letter friends—present this same philosophy in a more original, newer and more concrete form. I think it will interest and amuse you, as it did me.

"My sister and I," writes this friend, "are rather imaginative, and when we have nothing else to do, we build the most wonderful air castles. Sometimes we merely draw exaggerated word pictures of little happenings. One afternoon after work we walked home, stopped on our way out for a chat with our married sister, and when we got home found that the rest of the family had finished supper. We ate ours and repaired to the porch. I plumped down in the hammock and Jane on the porch settee, piled high with pillows. She drew a pathetic picture of the walk up, describing the two poor stenographers toiling weary miles after a hard day's work—the tall, thin, angular, gray-haired one (my hair is gray, but prematurely so) with a half-soiled white skirt that had seen better days, and a white waist that she had spent many weary hours embroidering—the short, dragged-out-looking younger sister in a similar costume. She told how they dragged their weary footsteps to their married sister's flat, where they could smell the supper cooking for her husband when he returned from his day's labor, and after talking for awhile presided on their journey home. They sat down to the table and partook of a frugal supper of bread and preserves, a bit of lettuce and some lukewarm tea, and then dragging their weary feet to the porch, threw themselves down in utter exhaustion. You must admit this tale of woe sounds heart-rending.

"Then, I said: 'Now listen while I draw the other side of the picture. The two sisters, after leaving their offices, one in a bank, the other in a mercantile office, strolled up town, in the late afternoon, stopping on route for a frappe at the ice cream parlor. The older sister, tall and slender, with a mass of fluffy gray hair, was dressed in a dainty, well-fitting linen skirt and hand-embroidered lingerie waist. The younger one, a short, attractive blonde, was similarly dressed. As the two sisters walked they discussed intelligently Elbert Hubbard, Charles Lamb, and Robert Louis Stevenson. En route they stopped for a moment's chat with their married sister, who sang them an air from one of the operas, while she awaited her husband's homecoming, in anticipation of which she had prepared a dainty supper. Upon their arrival at their own home, they sat down to a tempting supper of lettuce with mayonnaise, preserved peaches and fragrant tea (it wasn't lukewarm at all). The polished table was bare with a drawnwork luncheon square, and bowl of roses and the china was of a dainty gold and white design.

"After supper they repaired to the wide veranda with the rose vines awnings, and rustic sofa and chairs piled with sofa pillows, and while one settled herself down comfortably in the hammock, with a couple of feather pillows under her head, the other plumped the settee high with pillows and curled herself up for a happy evening.

"When finished we both laughed—the pictures were so completely different, yet both were correct in the essentials. I told Jane it only shows what a point of view can do, and she admitted that she was feeling quite sorry for herself when she finished her narrative and that mine cheered her up so that she felt quite happy." Now, all of us in our thoughts are all the time unconsciously making word pictures of everything that happens to us.

I wonder which kind of word picture you have the mental habit of making—the kind that makes you feel sorry for yourself, or the other kind.

Twenty Hard Fought Rounds

McVey Given Decision Over Langford—Both Too Tired to Fight in Last Round.
Sydney, N.S.W., Dec. 25.—In the fight here to-day between Sam McVey and Sam Langford, both American pugilists, McVey won on points. The bout went the scheduled twenty rounds. In the first and second round honors were fairly even, both men showing caution but landing hard. In the third round Langford scored a heavy right to the jaw. McVey came back with a hook which sent Langford to the floor, but he got to his feet immediately.

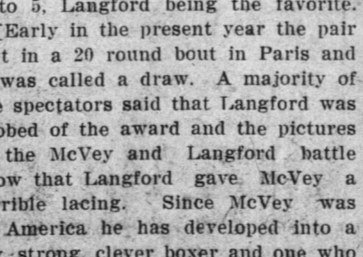

The fifth round was McVey's. He continued to send the left to the jaw and Langford's mouth and tongue were bleeding and he seemed dazed. By the ninth round McVey had piled up many points and Langford had been cautioned for using his forearm.

Both showed signs of punishment and Langford had a marked discoloration and swelling over his right eye. McVey's mouth and nose were bleeding. It was give and take in the tenth, but the eleventh and twelfth rounds were Langford's. McVey's left, which had done considerable execution up to this time, began to lack steam. For the next five rounds the men sparred and a few heavy blows were exchanged. Langford was aggressive but McVey outboxed him. Langford's eye was closed tight, his opponent frequently landing on this shinning mark.

Both were tired and more than cautious in the 19th, and when the bell rang for the 20th they came wearily into the ring almost too exhausted to fight. They clinched throughout this round. All through the fight both men showed gameness and fought with extreme fairness, the crowd showing its appreciation by frequent applause, but the verdict giving the fight to McVey on points was vigorously hoisted.

18,000 people witnessed the contest, which took place in the open air under a broiling sun. The betting was 4 to 5, Langford being the favorite. [Early in the present year the pair met in a 20 round bout in Paris and it was called a draw. A majority of the spectators said that Langford was robbed of the award and the pictures of the McVey and Langford battle show that Langford gave McVey a terrible lacing. Since McVey was in America he has developed into a big, strong, clever boxer and one who can assimilate a lot of punishment. He has taken part in quite a few fights in Paris and Australia. Jack Johnson got the decision from him twice in 20 round bouts at Los Angeles in 1902.]

Fortune Telling

Does not take into consideration the one essential to woman's happiness—womanly health. The woman who neglects her health is neglecting the very foundation of all good fortune. For without health love loses its lustre and gold is but dross. Womanly health when lost or impaired may generally be regained by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

This Prescription has, for over 40 years, been curing delicate, weak, pale, nervous women, by the hundreds of thousands and this too in the privacy of their homes without their having to submit to indelicate questionings and offensively repugnant examinations.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter free. All correspondence held as sacredly confidential. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. PIERCE'S GREAT FAMILY DOCTOR BOOK, The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, newly revised up-to-date edition—1000 pages, answers in Plain English hosts of delicate questions which every woman, single or married, ought to know about. Sent free, in plain wrapper to any address on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to cover mailing only, or in cloth binding for 50c stamps.

Fads and Fashions.

Earrings are very stylish. Eyelet-work has a great vogue. The Musseteer handbags are very smart.

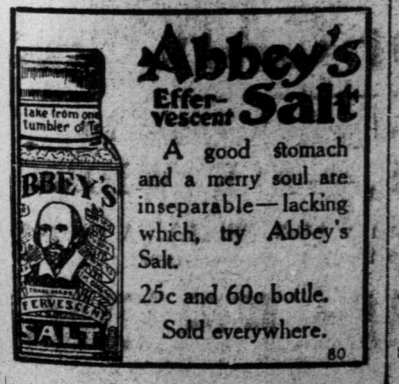

Bow knots appear as earrings and as corsage knots. The large gold hats topped with gold-colored or taupe plumes are bewitching.

The new material known as "bausch" abroad is now in great demand for long coats. One of the newest for hats is the revived tricorn, which now appears as the "Continental."

All designs of needlework are of an open character. Floral effects are not massed closely together. Every ornament for evening wear is characterized by the pendant craze.

THE BONEHEAD.

The bonehead is an individual with a puncture-proof hide and a mind full of holes. There are several kinds of boneheads, but they all have the same quality of brain fibre which is of the species usually conferred upon the Shropshire ewe. The baseball bonehead always throws to first base to catch the runner at home. The legal bone challenges everybody on the jury but the brother of the accused. The medical bonehead operates for appendicitis and leaves a small rip saw and a deep sea sponge in the cavity as tokens of esteem. The dental bonehead builds a bridge where a culvert would do. The business bonehead says it doesn't pay to advertise. The political bonehead distributes personal checks instead of postage stamps. The bonehead never changes his mind, for the reason that everybody wants something to boot. The mental processes of the bonehead are set back some distance from the judge's stand, with the result that he wants to vote on the candidate's application while they are giving the third degree. The social bonehead is getting quite common in our large cities. He generally distinguishes himself by asking some hostess in widow's weeds when her husband got back from the south. This species also has the neat habit of curling one foot behind the other and falling in a genteel crimp in front of the frappe boys. Scientists tell us that the brain of the bonehead is composed of three parts fresh air and one part cold saw. There are no boneheads in the newspaper profession except the class which play up "the angel of death" on the front page. Boneheads are useful in showing why there is so much room at the top, as that is about all they are topped with.

Going South.

When the s.s. Stephano returns to New York she will at once be made ready for her trip down South. She will visit the West India Islands and points in the Gulf of Mexico. A large number of tourists will go south in the ship and all her staterooms will be occupied. She should leave about the 20th inst., and after returning to New York will come here to outfit for the sealfishery.

Fierce Street Fight.

Last evening two men who were well known to the police and who often appear before the bar, met on George's Street and fought fiercely for some time. When the police appeared one of them vanished but later returned and tried to get his opponent away from the police, who were arresting him. He too was taken in charge, but resisted so violently that he had to be handcuffed before being conveyed to the station.

Take Notice.

We publish simple straight testimonials, not press agents' interviews, from well-known people. From all over America they testify to the merits of MINARD'S LINIMENT, the best of Household Remedies. MINARD'S LINIMENT CO., LIMITED. It is believed that a new telephone service will be organized here the coming spring. Mr. McLea, who was here from Montreal the past few weeks, had interviews with the Board of Trade, the Anglo-American Co. and the Government on the subject. Mr. McLea, who left for Montreal by the Florizel, will return when the House opens to look for the charter. No doubt there is great room for improvement in the city telephone service. The Anglo Co. do the best possible under existing conditions. Minard's Liniment Cures Colds, Etc.

The Gathering of the Taylors.

Claims to a Fortune of £5,000,000—Will of 1785—Money Released After 100 Years.

Glasgow, Dec. 9.—In the quiet little districts around Falkirk there is much suppressed excitement and anxiety among the families of the name of Taylor, thanks to the statement that one or more of them may come into a fortune of millions of pounds. I have just returned from a visit to the district, and have gleaned many interesting facts.

Some time ago inquiries were set afoot in Falkirk and the district on matters bearing on the will, made in 1785, of a wealthy couple in Holland named Peter and Elizabeth Vanderhorst. This couple are said to have left a big fortune to their nephew Peter Taylor, of Haarlem. Instructions were given as to the disposal of the money, and the chief point was that in the event of the nephew dying and leaving no direct heir the money was to be divided among the next of kin after a lapse of 100 years. The time has now expired, and inquiries fixed the next scene of the drama in Falkirk.

The result has been to use the words of one of those interested—"that you'd fancy this was the land of Taylors." All those named Taylor who considered that they had a claim at once made application, and a meeting of them has been held in a Glasgow lawyer's office. Over 100 Taylors were at the meeting, and their claims were all noted and reported to Holland. Since then there has been no further official action.

To-day, however, I proceeded to Falkirk and from there to Mavisbank Farm, about a mile out of the town where an interview was secured with a farmer named William Taylor. On showing him the announcement by a Munich paper that "William Taylor, of Coxhill Farm, Falkirk, was the most likely claimant to £125,000,000 accumulated fortune," he smiled, read and re-read the statement.

Then he paused for a moment and calmly said: "I see this refers to William, who was my father's full cousin. Yes, we are deeply interested in this matter; but you can take it from me the fortune is not as stated in the Munich paper, as I understand that with compound interest it has reached a total sum of £5,000,000. But, really, I don't know if anything will come of it, though there's no doubt we are the next of kin of the deceased Peter Taylor. That's a fact, whether we get the money or not. The prospect has not affected us in any way, and it won't until we have the 'siller' in our hands. You know it's such a long time since, and goodness knows what will happen. The only thing I'm sorry about is that I cannot confirm the statement in the German paper, as we have got no official reply from the lawyers."

About five miles from Mavisbank is Coxhill Farm. It is owned by the man stated to be the heir to the fortune. He is also named William Taylor. His farm contains 150 acres, and has a very prosperous appearance. Seventy-nine years of age, he is hale and active for his years, and his mental faculties are of the sharpest. He was born at Craigs, near Falkirk, and his father was the first cousin of the Fortunate Peter Taylor who left Falkirk for Amsterdam in 1821, and never returned to the land of his birth, dying in Amsterdam.

Reticent on the subject of the fortune, the owner of the Coxhill Farm said: "That Peter Taylor left Falkirk about ten years afore I was born, but I well remember my father telling me that he was a grain merchant, and that my father used to sell him corn. He was a great big man, and the people round about used to call him 'Big Peter.'"

Mr. Taylor has had three sons, two of whom are alive, while the third, Peter, named after the relative in Holland, was killed.

Thus it is claimed the Coxhill farmer and his family, with William Taylor, of Mavisbank, and Joseph Taylor, another farmer in Cumberland, are the next of kin, and will, it is practically certain, come into this immense fortune, the rich relative Peter never having been married.—London Daily News.

Blue Water Novelist.

Late W. Clark Russell Was an Invalid for Years—The Man Whose Tales of the Sea Have Been so Widely Read Was a Martyr to Gout and Rheumatism For Over Twenty Years—Was in the Merchant Service, Where He Started as a Middy at Fourteen.

Mr. W. Clark Russell, the inimitable writer of stories of the sea, died at Bath a short time ago at the age of sixty-seven. He had been a martyr to gout and rheumatism for over twenty years, and since April had not been able to leave his bed. He died in his sleep.

Mr. Russell was the son of Mr. Henry Russell, the composer of "The Ship on Fire," "Cheer, Boys Cheer," and other famous songs. He went to sea as a midshipman in the merchant service before he was fourteen, and made several voyages to India, Australia, and China. It is said that on a voyage home from Sydney he had a disagreement with the captain and was ordered below, where he was kept for several days.

"Having nothing else to do," says the novelist, "I took to reading Tom Moore, and that started me on the writing of poetry. I did not go to sea again. I wrote a drama in 1886, which was a gloomy failure. After a while I wrote 'John Holdsworth, Chief Mate,' and that was my first nautical novel."

Mr. Russell's first great success was "The Wreck of the Grosvenor." "Juryously enough," he looked upon it as his worst work—that may have been because it brought him little pecuniary reward.

Most of his books were based on things that actually happened to himself, and he had many interesting stories to tell of his early days.

"It was a dog's life, that of merchant seaman," he would say. He recalled that when he went below on his first appearance on the Duncan Dunbar, a great big midshipman greeted him with "Hullo, youngster, why don't you go down on all fours and wag your tail? Don't you know you're a dog? You must be a dog or you wouldn't go to sea. The sea's only a fit life for a dog."

"I had ruffians for shipmates very often," said the novelist, "and the stench of the harness cask was the animating influence of my own particular story of the sea so far as I was concerned."

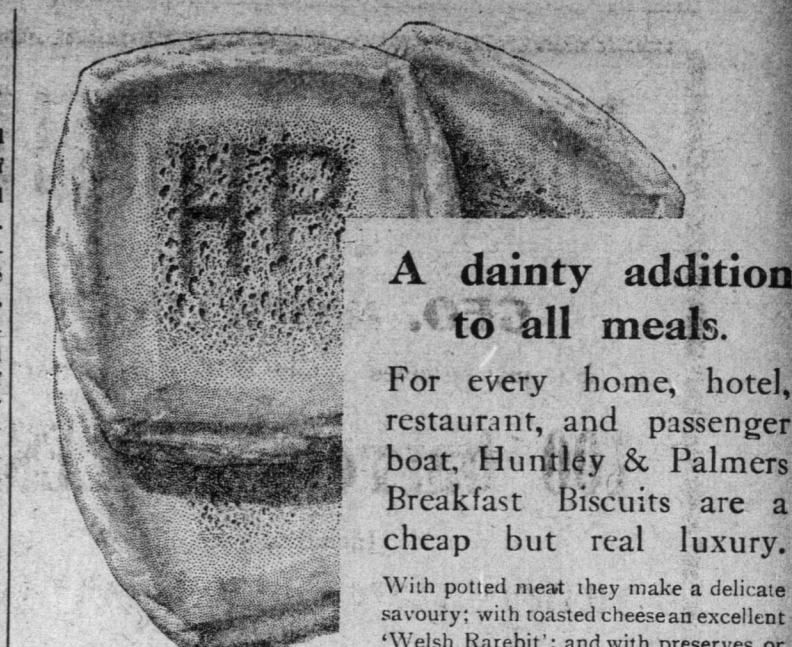

Apocryphal of the "Convict Ship," there is a story of some interest. It was fully planned, when Mr. Russell received a letter from one of his greatest admirers, the late Sir W. S. Gilbert, suggesting that he should write a story about a convict ship, and practically outlining the very plot which Mr. Russell had hit upon.

For twenty-two years Mr. Russell was crippled with gout and rheumatism. He could neither walk nor write, and had to dictate his stories to his son. He used to give his "recreation" to books of reference as "crippled by rheumatism."

Some twelve years ago Sir W. H. Lucy paid Mr. Russell a visit at Bath. They had not met for ten years, and as "Toby" entered the room he exclaimed, "Why, you haven't changed a bit. How are you?" "Well enough in mind," answered Mr. Russell, "but as regards body, I haven't stood for ten years." "Humph," retorted "Toby," cleverly covering his natural pain at seeing his old friend in such a state, "what are you going to stand now?"

ANEMIA, CHLOROSIS, DEBILITY, Delightful Taste.
Redmond's Promise.

Mr. John Redmond, in an article contributed to "Home Rule Notes," has drawn a picture of what is likely to happen "when Home Rule is an accomplished fact." The article assumes that "an Irish Parliament," duly elected, have come into being, and that the Government of Ireland has secured for its purposes the historic building, consecrated in the eyes of Irishmen by so many glorious memories—the old Parliament House in College Green." Mr. Redmond looks forward to seeing the first session of a "reborn Irish Parliament" opened by the King in person. "No words of mine," he says, "could adequately suggest the demonstration of loyalty which such an occasion would call forth from the mass of the Irish people, who have too long been kept in an unwilling estrangement from the Throne and the people of Great Britain. . . . In a Parliament opened under such auspices, all tendencies to perpetuate division between one creed and another, one racial stock and another, would be, by common consent, stamped out as unworthy and unpatriotic. For my own part I should hope to use whatever influence lay in my control in the same spirit as General Botha has used his great authority in South Africa."

Uncle Walt
THE POET PHILOSOPHER.
I harnessed up my old bay plug, and said: "He beats a motor car; you do not hear him go 'chug-chug' or scatter noises near and far. I have no use for a machine that's louder than a thunderstorm, and SAFETY uss up raw gasoline, which is but death in fluid form. My horse will gently haul his load and bring me safely to my home; I have no fear that he'll explode and with his fragments strew the dome. He'll calmly bear his little yoke and spring a gentle horse's smile and not produce a lot of smoke that you can smell for half a mile. My good old Dobbin I can trust, he'll take the road till he'll expire, and not an engine will be bust, or come home with a ruined tire." I climbed into my ancient shay to take a drive to other scenes; old Dobbin bucked and whaled away and kicked the rig to switherens.

Jack Johnson Accepts $30,000

Win, Lose or Draw, to Fight McVey in Australia.
Chicago, Dec. 30.—Jack Johnson, the world's champion heavyweight, and Sam McVey will fight for the heavyweight championship of the world at Sydney, Australia, Easter Monday, if Hugh McIntosh, the Sydney promoter, approves of the agreement made here last night by Johnson, Tom Andrews, of Milwaukee, McIntosh's American representative, agreed to give Johnson $30,000, win, lose or draw, $5,000 training expenses and four round-trip tickets to Australia.

Johnson agreed to fight with the provisions: "McVey is the logical candidate," said Johnson, "he got his place by beating Sam Langford. I stopped him in six rounds, however, and another time cleaned him at the end of twenty rounds. He will be soft for me now. It won't take much training, but I am going to fit so as not to be surprised. I'll begin work at once."

Andrews said he expected a cable approval of the terms from McIntosh immediately.

COLLECTION FOR WORTHY MAN.

Mr. R. C. Hopkins is taking up a collection for Mr. Sol. Snow, the Govt. pensioner, whose house was robbed of $15 last Saturday night. He is meeting with a generous response.

More Larcenies Reported.

A couple of weeks ago it will be remembered that a man named McGrath stole a $7 pair of men's boots from the hook at F. Smallwood's shoe store door, but was captured by Const. Dempsey as he ran up McGrath's Hill. Friday the same pair of boots were hung on the same hook, but just before the store closed some thief whipped them, but who the marauder is is not known. Yesterday a quantity of underclothing, etc., was taken by some light fingered person from a Water Street dry goods store but the thief left no clue behind. The police are work on both cases.

May Visit Us.

It is possible that this season again we may have another visit from a Nova Scotia hockey team. Some interested parties here are negotiating already to get a team down, and as our teams have got down to practice hard, if the strangers come along an interesting series of games must result.

C. C. C. VACANCY.

It is believed that either Mr. C. O'N. Conroy or Dr. McLaughlin will be chosen as Lieut.-Col. of the C. C. C. to succeed the late Hon. D. J. Greene, K.C.

ALEXANDRA WORKERS.

A meeting of the Alexandra Workers was held in the British Hall this afternoon.

An Impudent Proceeding

Yesterday a near-do-well who not long ago was liberated from the Penitentiary, and who while in liquor went into a house on George's Street, had the impudence to order the woman of the house to get tea for him and also a feed. The woman, of course, refused, and the man became insolent and noisy. The woman had to go to Water Street and summon the police, and when Officer Nugent arrived the intruder in the house showed fight. Nugent stood very little of this, however, and though the prisoner "kicked out" he soon hustled him to the station.

Will Make Hair Grow

Every up-to-date woman should have radiant hair. There are thousands of women with harsh, faded, characterless hair, who do not try to improve it. In England and Paris women take pride in having beautiful hair. Every Canadian woman can have lustrous and luxuriant hair by using SALVIA, the Great American Sage Hair Tonic. McMurdo & Co. sells a large bottle for 50 cents, and guarantees it to banish Dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in ten days, or money back.

Hockey Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Hockey League was held at the office of Mr. W. J. Higgins last night. The reports of the last year were read and adopted. Mr. W. J. Higgins was elected President and J. M. Tobin, Secretary-Treasurer. There were representatives from the four leagues present. The Collegian team, which made application, would not be admitted. The reason alleged was that it would be impossible to get practice for a fifth team. The first match of the fixtures, Feildians vs. Victorias, will be played Monday, 15th, provided the ice will remain in good condition for practice. Mr. Higgins resigned the office of referee. The drawing of the fixtures for 1912 resulted thus:—
Feildians vs. Victorias.
St. Bon's vs. Crescents.
Feildians vs. St. Bon's.
Victorias vs. Crescents.
St. Bon's vs. Victorias.
Crescents vs. Feildians.
The second round will be a relay of this.

Cascarets Work While You Sleep.

Salts, Calomel and Cathartic Pills are violent—they act on bowels as pepper acts in nostrils. Take a Cascaret tonight and thoroughly cleanse your Liver, Stomach and Bowels, and you will surely feel great by morning. You men and women who have headache, coated tongue, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out. Are you keeping clean inside with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passage away every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important. Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gasses; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the decomposed waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. Remember, a Cascaret at night will straighten you out by morning. A 10-cent box from your druggist means a clear head and cheerfulness for months. Don't forget the children.

Marconi Station.

Capt. Wm. Bartlett and a staff of men left for Fogo this morning by the s.s. Fogota to erect a Marconi station there. The work will occupy about four weeks. They took down three large spars which, when seized end to end and erected, will run up 200 feet. Fogo is well situated for a Marconi station and it is expected that this one will be the most useful in the Newfoundland service during the seal-fishing time. Ships that have the wireless apparatus on board should be able to communicate with the Fogo station at least 200 miles off. The station will be open for business by sealing time.

Big Sea and Undertow.

All yesterday a big sea ran in the Narrows breaking right across there, and occasionally it went over the high land at the North Head. The undertow in the harbour rendered it dangerous to leave ships at the piers and several were hauled into the stream yesterday afternoon. The Fogota, Galveston, Solway and Stephano were hauled out in the centre of the harbor. The latter did some damage to Harvey & Co.'s pier. The pilots could not proceed beyond Chain Rock owing to the high sea which ran.

Cable News.

Special to Evening Telegram.
TANGIER, Jan. 5. A large force of revolting Moroccan tribesmen, according to a wireless from Fez, attacked a town four days' journey to the south of the capital. The garrison of the town, under the command of French officers, offered a gallant defence, and finally succeeded in repulsing the enemy and making them retreat to the desert, leaving fifty dead. The garrison lost five killed and fifteen wounded.

Special to Evening Telegram.
ARMAGH, Ireland, Jan. 5. A meeting to protest against Home Rule was held to-day, at which thousands attended. Sir Edward Carson was the principal speaker, and referring to his position in resisting the Home Rule Bill, said if he was a rebel it could be tested in the law courts. "If," said Carson, "my determination that Ireland should remain a part of the United Kingdom means that I am a rebel, I plead guilty, and let the government do its worst."

Special to Evening Telegram.
CALCUTTA, Jan. 5. King George and Queen Mary witnessed a great pageant in their honor to-day. Two processions, in which were fifty elephants and hundreds of camels and horses and state cars, passed the King and Queen. More than 100,000 natives took part, and gave their Majesties an ovation.

Special to Evening Telegram.
LONDON, Jan. 5. There is reason to believe that the general conditions of a peace settlement between Italy and Turkey have already been arranged, says the Salonika correspondent of the Times, and that the near future will see a termination of hostilities.

Special to Evening Telegram.
LONDON, Jan. 5. The detachment of British troops sent to protect the railway at Canton, and who returned to Tien Tsin because the line of march was interrupted, has started again along with the German detachment.

Special Evening Telegram.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 5. Carnegie has consented to appear before the Steel Trust investigation committee as a witness, at their request.

Penholders and Diphtheria.

Dr. Thresh, medical officer of health for Essex, has traced the origin of seventeen cases of diphtheria at Writtle, near Chelmsford, to the indiscriminate use of penholders by school children, and suggests that penholders and pencils should be placed in a better disinfectant to discourage children from putting them into their mouths.

The Secret of a Good Complexion

This is the season for evening parties, social events, etc. Why not look your best? Why let your complexion suffer by contrast with other ladies? Why not ensure a good complexion? You can do this on sound, natural lines by using Zam-Buk, nature's herbal balm. Zam-Buk is a skin food; and complexion is purely a matter of skin health. Zam-Buk smeared lightly over the face each night acts as a skin tonic. It stimulates the cells beneath the cuticle to healthy action makes the capillaries and blood vessels work, and the vigorous circulation thus started carries away secreted impurities. Waxy, sallow deposits are thus removed. Hard, pimply growths are softened and disappear. That yellow tinge gives place to the pink of health and the white, velvety "look" and "feel" which healthy skin alone has. Isn't this wiser than relying upon talcum powder and cosmetics? Those only put on a "complexion" from the outside. It doesn't last. Zam-Buk helps nature to build up a complexion from blood and tissue. It lasts. Zam-Buk also cures skin diseases pimples, ulcers, abscesses, blood-poison, eruptions, cuts, burns, scalds, chapped places, scalp sores, piles, etc. 50c. box all druggists and stores, or Zam-Buk Co., St. John's, Nfld., but beware of harmful substitutes and imitations.

HEALTH REPORT.—A resident of Signal Hill developed diphtheria yesterday. There are four cases of scarlet fever in one family on Dunford Street and one case at 92 Barnes Road. Two patients with scarlet fever were removed from their residence, foot of Pleasant St., to the Hospital yesterday.

HEAVY SNOW FALL.—Not for 20 years have the people of the North Shore witnessed such a snow fall as that of the past three days. The roads are blocked in all directions and traffic suspended. The mailman could not connect with the Carbonair train, an incident which has not been noted for years.

Lieutenant-General Sir Robert Baden-Powell distributing the prizes at "arpenters" Hall recently in connection with the Trades Training Schools, said that having travelled a good deal he knew how good foreigners were in their own particular line, but they had not the imagination, self-reliance, and adaptiveness natural to the British-born man. At Matfield they had to make a gun out of nothing and ammunition out of less—(laughter)—but there were British handicraftsmen to do it, and they were not at a loss. They first pulled a steam-pipe out of an engine to make the bore, and then took down iron railings, heated them up, and welded them round the pipe to strengthen it.

Mrs. Gould Returns Thanks

The following letter was received from Mrs. Gould, of Flower's Cove, by the last mail:—
Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—I beg to acknowledge receipt of thirty-four dollars and fifty cents which you so kindly collected through the subscription list you opened in your columns. Words fail me to express my thanks to you and the kind donors who so generously subscribed their money for me, a stranger. I am sure that God, who has promised a reward for every cup of cold water given in His name, will abundantly shower His choicest blessings on my kind benefactors. It was indeed a welcome gift to me in my distress. I have also to thank you from the bottom of my heart for your kind gift of a pair of boots. Asking you to thank my kind benefactors through the columns of your paper, and praying that God may bless both you and them. Believe me, Your humble servant, (MRS.) MARY JANE GOULD, Flower's Cove, Straits, November 28, 1911.

Civilization Nearly Killed Aborigine.

Aborigine Made Dangerously Ill By Steam Heat and Modern Comforts.
San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 26.—Steam heated sleeping apartments, modern menus, and "new fangled" wearing apparel came near bringing about the undoing of Ishi, the Aborigine, from Tehama county, who has been in captivity several months. Ishi recently contracted pneumonia and for a time it looked as though the "untamed child of nature" would die. While he had roamed, half clad through the forests of Northern Carolina in all kinds of weather, subsisting on berries, roots and rudely prepared meals, Ishi was a stranger to illness. But two months of illness undermined the savage's health and but for the efforts of physicians Ishi probably would have journeyed to the happy hunting ground. He is still confined to his room, but is reported to be out of danger.

C. M. B. C.—To-morrow afternoon after the usual session of the Cathedral Men's Bible Class, the annual meeting will take place, when various reports will be read and a new committee elected. The Chairman, Rev. J. Bell, will give a brief address on the motto for the year. All members are earnestly requested to be present at 3 o'clock.

The Ingredients of Cakes.

These are—flour, butter, sugar and eggs, with perhaps milk, flavouring and fruit, and to make good cakes you must have sound and wholesome ingredients.

Those who bake at home can make sure of these, and also of cleanliness throughout. After that, to bake at home with success you must have a good raising powder. The best raising powder is "PAISLEY FLOUR". It is mixed 1 part to 3 parts of ordinary flour, as a rule. It does the work of raising with certainty, and gives well and evenly raised light and digestible bakings.

The 22c tin contains 14 ozs. and will raise half a stone of flour; the 14c tin contains 7 ozs. and will raise 3 1/2 lbs. of flour; the 5c tin contains 2 ozs. and will raise 1 lb. of flour.
