The Earl's Son;

TWO HEARTS UNITED

CHAPTER XXV.

The earl smiled, a grim smile.

"And this man you suspect of murder?" he said, contemptuously.

"Yes, my lord, the evidence is so strong. If your lordship will please give me the warrant—"

The earl sighed and drew the paper towards him and was filling it in when Whetstone, who had been leaning against the table as if he were half exhausted by the strain, started and, stretching out his hand across the desk, actually almost touched the earl's hand, as if to arrest it.

"No, no!" he said, hoarsely. "Don't do it, my lord, don't do it! Let Grey—let him go to Lord Saintsbury—one of the other magistrates! I—I beg, I implore your lordship not to make out the warrant!"

The earl lowered the pen and, his face flushed and working, stared at the trembling man.

"What ails you, Whetstone?" he demanded, sternly, and yet with a strange quaver in his voice. "Why should I not? What reason—what is this young man to me that I should not issue a warrant for his apprehension?"

Talbot, who had drawn near, looking from one to the other, wiped his lips covertly and lowered his lids, and as Whetstone, apparently crushed and daunted by the earl's sternness, cowered and sank into a chair, Talbot murmured:

"My advice, too, sir! Let the matter go into someone else's hands."

The earl glared at him angrily, then with a firm hand made out the warrant.

"There it is, Grey," he said. "Do your duty, as I have done mine!"

Grey took the warrant and went out. Talbot followed him into the dining-room.

A parrot can say: "just as good." But a parrot don't know what it is talking about still lying in the track. But Grey and the detectives who would soon be on the spot would search every inch of the ground. He must be there first; on pretence of assisting them he must search and find the certificates which would disclose the fact that the accused was the earl's son and heir.

He set his teeth hard and looked about him with a wolfish glare.

"The game's not up yet!" he said, in a defiant whisper. "They'll hang him—the evidence is too strong—they'll hang him, they must!"

"You are Ralph Farrington?" said the commonplace-looking man who had entered the room in which the happy little group were seated. "I arrest you on a warrant."

There was a moment of silent amazement and horror, then Veronica sprang in front of Ralph as if to protect him, one arm across his breast, the other extended towards the detective. Mr. Saintsbury rose, white with consternation. Ralph was the first to speak.

"On what charge?" he asked, calmly, but in a voice that shook, naturally enough.

"Wilful murder! You are charged with the murder of James Oatway, at Lynne Court, on the night of—"

A cry broke from Veronica's lips, and she flung both her arms round his neck, then she drew back her head and looked him full in the face with a smile.

"You—you are not afraid, Ralph?" she cried, hoarsely.

He smiled down at her as he slowly put her arms from him.

"Afraid, dearest? No! Why should I be? I am innocent!"

The arrest had been made quietly, and as quietly Ralph was conveyed by the night mail to Halsey. It need not be said that Veronica, George Saintsbury, and Ada travelled by the same train. Veronica's calmness and self-possession under the terrible blow amazed even Saintsbury, who had learned to know her.

"Why should I be afraid or cast down?" she said. "I know that he is innocent, and I am sure that his innocence will be proved. Besides, they will let me," she said, very quietly. "I would distress him and make him ashamed of me, by showing him that I doubt the justice and goodness of God?"

They let her see him, as she had hoped, for a few minutes. But little was said as they clung to each other, and Veronica did not even cry.

"I will come to you whenever they will let me," she said, very quietly. "But the truth will be discovered before many days have passed—perhaps before many hours. Ah, dearest, if they would only let me go with you!"

Grey brought the news of the arrest to the Court the next morning, while the earl and Talbot were at breakfast; the old man had come down to breakfast for the first time for many years.

"He is in Halsey gaol, my lord," said Grey, after he had given an account of the arrest. "Mr. Slocombe, from London, who took him, says that he was astonishingly calm, and, of course, declared his innocence."

"Of course," said Talbot, who still looked white and haggard.

The earl glanced at him sharply.

"I'm inclined to think he's right. Is that all, Grey?" for the inspector seemed to hesitate.

"Er—I thought I ought to say, my lord, that Miss Veronica is at the Doebeck Hotel at Halsey—she and the father and the little girl Farrington rescued from the fire."

Talbot started, but the earl did not move a muscle, though his eyes grew dark.

"Is that all?"

"The examination is at two o'clock, my lord."

"I will be there, on the bench," said the earl, grimly.

"Surely you will not go, sir," put in Talbot, anxiously. "You are not fit—"

"I will be there," repeated the earl, as he dismissed Grey with a gesture of his hand.

Talbot went upstairs and rang for Gibbon, who came and stood with downcast eyes and hands hanging respectfully at his sides.

"Look out some dark clothes," said Talbot, in the coldly insolent voice with which he always addressed the Women's Ailments Caused by Neglect.

Proper Treatment Will Quickly Bring Back Robust Health and Good Spirits.

Women are on the whole more sickly than men. One reason is that their system is more complicated; another and more important reason is they put off measures of relief too long. At the beginning, constipation is the cause of nine-tenths of women's ailments. The blood becomes weak and polluted—the nerves suffer and a run-down condition takes root.

Because of their mildness of action as a system regulator, no medicine for women can compare with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. The kidneys quickly respond to the remedial action of Dr. Hamilton's Pills and the result is as you would expect—pain in the back and side, shortness of breath and head color disappear—the functions of the body then operate naturally, congestion and pain are prevented and perfect health returns.

Thousands of happy women say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the greatest and best blood-purifier, the finest complexion renewer, the most certain regulating medicine known. man. "I am going to the Court to this examination."

"Yes, sir," said Gibbon. He turned to go, then hesitated, and came back. "I was thinking of asking you to let me leave your service, Mr. Denby," he said.

Talbot looked over his shoulder at him.

"Oh, you were?" he said, with a sneer. "Then abandon the thought. I do not intend to let you go. Strange as it may seem, you are of some use to me."

"I was thinking of buying a little public house that's in the market," Gibbon went on, as if he had not heard the refusal. "It is a promising investment, and I've saved a little money. Not enough, of course, but I was thinking you'd be so kind as to give me the remainder. It would be a matter of about a thousand pounds, sir."

Talbot turned on him slowly and with an angry frown.

"Are you out of your mind?" he said, contemptuously, "or have you been drinking? Get out of my sight you—you jail-bird! Ah!" as Gibbon winced and an unhealthy red stole into his pallid face. "You'd forgotten that little fact, I suppose? Well, I have not. Let me hear any further of this nonsense, and I'll kick you out and brand you for the felon you are!"

Gibbon wetted his lips with his tongue.

"Don't—don't threaten me, Mr. Denby," he said, almost pleadingly. "I—I don't want to do you any harm—I don't want to say a word—I'll keep my mouth shut as long as I'm alive, if you'll act on the square by me—"

At another time Talbot might have detected the significance of the words, and recognized the threat contained in them; but his mind was off its balance, muddled and obscured by the dull terror sat upon him. With an oath he strode to the man and struck him across the lips.

"You hound, you are drunk!" he said. "Get out of my sight and don't come into my presence till you are sober again—"

Gibbon looked as if he were about to spring upon him, then he recoiled, and with his hand to his bruised lips, left the room.

The Protection of the Lobster Fishery.

AS VIEWED BY FRANCIS H. HERRICK, P.H.D., PROFESSOR OF BIOLOGY, ADELBERT COLLEGE, CLEVELAND, OHIO.

(Paper read at National Fishery Congress, Tampa, Florida, and Published in Bulletin of U. S. Fish Commission.)

In the lobster fisheries we have an example of an industry which has increased rapidly in value in a very few years. In 1869 the Canadian fishery was valued at $15,275; in 1891, at $2,550,000. In 22 years its value increased nearly 150 fold. The value of the products of this industry in the United States was nearly half a million dollars in 1880 ($488,432), and in 1892 over a million dollars ($1,062,392). In 1896 there were 14,285,157 cans of lobsters packed in Canada, having a value of $2,400,000. The average price per pound in 1883 was 9 1/2c.; in 1893 it had risen to 14.10c., and at the present time it is 18.72c.

The decline of the lobster fishery is a well-known theme. The facts pointing to its gradual but certain decay are too evident to be mistaken, such as the interminable legislation on the subject of protection, the increase in the number of traps, the decrease in the size of the lobsters themselves, and their increase in market value. Twenty-five years ago the lobster was common; now it is generally a luxury.

The cause of the depletion of the fishery is plain. The supply has been unequal to the demand. More lobsters have been annually destroyed than have been annually raised. No number of animals, however large, can stand such a drain. For 25 years the law of Canada has been called to the aid of the fishery. It has taken a vacillating course in both the Provinces and the United States, revoking one year what was enacted the year before, adopting this and that suggestion and jumping from one expedient to another. Regard to personal interests, imperfect knowledge of the habits and needs of the animal itself and perverted logic have characterized much of the legislation which governments have enacted for the preservation of animal life. There are, indeed, praiseworthy exceptions, and legislation, though it has often failed, may have been animated by the right spirit.

The problem of perpetuating an animal like the lobster, or rather of maintaining the supply, for it is not in the power of man to exterminate this species, is certainly a difficult one. In order to discuss this or any similar question profitably and intelligently, it is necessary to set aside pride and prejudice of every kind, whether personal, sectional or national, and consider in a judicial spirit the conditions in which this problem is involved. We must know the state of the fishery and the principal facts pertaining to the life and habits of the animal.

Until within a few years the life history of the lobster was very imperfectly known, and this ignorance has nowhere been more clearly reflected than in the attempts to cure existing evils by legislation. Knowing the general facts of the case, we must interpret them in accordance with the principles of science and common sense. The principal facts are these:

(1) The fishery is declining, and this decline is due to the persistence with which it has been conducted during the last 25 years. There is no evidence that the animal is being driven to the wall by any new or unusual disturbance of the forces of nature.

(2) The lobster is migratory only to the extent of moving to and from the shore, and is, therefore, practically a sedentary animal. Its movements are governed chiefly by the abundance of food and the temperature of the water.

(3) The female may be impregnated or provided with a supply of spawn for future use by the male at any time, and the sperm, which is deposited in an external pouch or spermatheca, has remarkable vitality. Copulations occur commonly in the spring, and the eggs are fertilized outside the body.

(4) Female lobsters become sexually mature when from 8 to 12 inches long. The majority of all lobsters 10 1/2 inches long are mature. It is rare to find a female less than 8 inches long which has spawned, or one over 12 inches in length which has never borne eggs.

(5) The spawning interval is a biennial one, two years elapsing between each period of egg-laying.

(6) The spawning period for the majority of lobsters is July and August. A few lay eggs at other seasons of the year—in the fall, winter, and probably in the spring.

(7) The period of spawning lasts about six weeks, and fluctuates slightly from year to year. The individual variation in the time of extrusion of ova is explained by the long period during which the eggs attain the limits of growth. Anything which affects the vital condition of the female during this period of two years may affect the time of spawning.

A Win for Feildians.

The Feildians defeated the Casuals in last night's football match by a score of two goals to one.

The game was not marked by any particularly brilliant play on either side, though both teams gave a fair exhibition of combination. In the first half the Casuals defended the western goal, and after about ten minutes of exciting play Smith beat Lush and landed No. 1 for his team.

When the leather was again put in to play it was sent flying from goal to goal, and many good chances were lost by wide shooting. When the half time whistle sounded the score stood 1 to 0 in favor of the Casuals.

SECOND PERIOD.

The second half opened rather lively and Noseworthy, of the Casuals, was called upon to save several times. After about ten minutes of good play C. Rendell, of the Feildians, drew first blood for his team with the score equal, excitement ran a little higher, and after a clever bit of combination on both sides C. Rendell found the net again, landing No. 2 goal for the Feildians.

The remainder of the game was not very exciting, and when the final whistle blew sounded the score stood 2 to 1 in favour of the Feildians.

Mr. F. Brien acted as referee and the line-up was as follows:—

FEILDIAHS—Lush, goal; Strang, F. Rendell, backs; Ryall, Tat, Strone, halves; C. Rendell, Pinsent, Winter, L. Rendell, Chafe, forwards.

CASUALS—Noseworthy, goal; Bradbury, Sullivan, backs; Stevenson, Chancey, Kendrick, halves; Smith, Goudie, Sinclair, Squires, Chancey, forwards.

Fifth Steamer Off for North.

The Government steamer Minto, which sailed yesterday afternoon from Halifax, carrying aids to navigation which are to mark the channels through the Hudson Straits and that approaching Port Nelson, was the fifth departure from this port for the Hudson Bay this season, the others being, in order of their sailings, the steamers Bonaventure and Acadia, the schooner Burleigh and steamer Bellaventure.

Besides her usual crew the Minto carries north a small construction gang for the purpose of erecting a lighthouse at the entrance of the Nelson River. The ship has aboard much of the material for that building. She will proceed direct to Port Nelson and locate her aids in the river, taking up for that purpose about thirty steel buoys. When finished there she will proceed back to Port Berley on Hudson Straits, where she will meet the steamer Annmore, which will have left Halifax on the first of August with coal for the Minto. After bunkering, the Minto will take up the work of putting in aids through the straits, which work will occupy her for the rest of the season, returning to Halifax about the first of October.

Mount Cashel Garden Party.

The annual Garden Party in aid of Mount Cashel, takes place at the grounds of the Institution this afternoon. An attractive programme of athletic sports, and other novel features will contribute to the enjoyment of those who attend, while the ladies in charge of the stalls will attend to the catering in their usual style. An interesting feature of the athletic programme will be the road race from Torbay to the Garden party grounds, finishing with three laps of the field. The competitors are pretty evenly matched and an exciting contest is expected. An exhibition of dancing by the Mount Cashel boys and the music of the G.C.C. and T.A. bands will be two important features of the programme. The baseball game and football games will also be attractive features for the younger sports, and for the more sedate young man a quiet game of billiards should meet the necessary requirements. With ice creams served in all the conceivable flavors, and the many other enjoyable treats offered together with a consideration for the object for which this particular event is being held, we bespeak for the affair a liberal patronage.

The Crooks.

The people who beat you, hornswoggle and cheat you, don't profit for long from the trade; for folks who are tricky and who are a bit of a scoundrel, they abandon their stickiness—it never abandons their trail. I've often been cheated; the trick's been repeated so often I cannot keep tab; but ne'er has the dufer who thus made me suffer been much better off for his grab. It pays not to swindle; dishonest rolls dwindle like snow when exposed to the sun; like feathers in Tophet is burned up the profit of cheating, the crooked man's mon. The people who sting me unknowingly bring me philosophy fresh, by the crate; I don't get excited—my wrongs will be righted, by Nemesis, Fortune or Fate. I know that the stingers—they think they are dingers, and gloat o'er the coin they don't earn—I know they'll be busted and sick and disgusted, while I still have roubles to burn. I'd rather be hollow with hunger than follow the course that the tricksters pursue; I'd rather be "eggy" than do as the breezy and conscienceless gentlemen do. Far better the shilling you've earned by the tilling of soil that is harder than bricks, than any old dollar you manage to collar by crooked and devious tricks.

Children of the Stage

Marian's night at the Vellquette with the ingenue bore fruit in the form of a manuscript entitled "Children of the Stage." The story was simple in plot, but loaded with details of real life. It flowed spontaneously from her pen. She let it rest overnight, and the next morning attacked the manuscript ruthlessly for revisions. By noon she had rewritten it from start to finish, and started hopefully for the office of Gilly, editor of The Cheering Hour Magazine. Gilly read her latest effort with apparent interest, and Marian waited breathlessly for his comments. "I think you've done it this time," said Gilly after a while. "You've got some real stuff in here." "Then you'll take it?" demanded Marian with the eagerness of a repeatedly repulsed contributor. Gilly squirmed. Sweeping repudiation orders had been issued by the owner of the struggling magazine. Times were bad, and advertising support meagre. But Gilly gazed into the blue pools of Marian's wistful eyes and was conquered by the quiet spell of her personality. "Wait a minute," he replied, pulling himself together, and manuscript in hand, started for the inner office of Shurtleff, his chief. To Marian's anxious ears came unintelligible bits of sentences as the two men conferred. "He wants to see you," said Gilly, reappearing, and conducting Marian into the presence of a dapper looking, clean-cut fellow of thirty-five, who had made a handsome little fortune in the mail order business in the West, with which he had invaded New York for a fling at the hazardous game of magazine publishing. Gilly introduced the two and retired.

War News.

The Last Plank.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, July 28. The Austro-Hungarian Government declared war against Serbia today by a manifesto which is one of the briefest of the momentous documents in history. Germany paved the way for this declaration by announcing her rejection of the British scheme to bring the four Powers together in a conference for mediation. Germany explained to the public that her ally could not be expected to submit her acts to a European Council, as though she were one of the Balkan States. This announcement preceded the declaration of war by only two hours and gave an exhibition of the perfectly harmonious working of the partnership between two nations which stood firmly together through the Bosnia crisis of 1909. The centre of interest has shifted sharply to St. Petersburg which holds the decision whether the European war which probably would shift the balance of power if not re-arrange the entire map in Europe to break out. Negotiations are on foot there between the Russian Foreign Minister, Sergius Sazonov, and the Austrian Ambassador which are designed to localize the conflict. The nature and progress of these conversations are wrapped in thickest mystery, but they are to supply the neutral powers to cling to in a storm which may wash all under. There is no doubt in British minds that Austria had fully resolved to utilize the provocation afforded by the Sarajevo murders to wipe the slate clean of all accounts against Serbia and served an ultimatum on her which was designed to have no result save war. There is absolutely no enthusiasm in England for war, no desire for this particular war which confronts Britain, yet there is a general belief that her obligations to her partners in the Triple Entente as well as her interests as a great European power will force her to support Russia and France in any steps they may take. Dark developments to-day are received without excitement but with the deepest gloom. The immediate effect of the war cloud is likely to be a compromise on Home Rule, since all parties feel domestic dissensions must be settled at all costs. In face of peril from without, the fierce demands of the Conservative papers for a general election have been wholly hushed, and the Foreign Office has become the most important branch of the Government. No one wants to risk the possibility of losing Sir Edward Grey with his exceptional influence in the councils of Europe. The Government is confronting the situation with perfect calmness.

There is no sign of unusual events at the Foreign Office, except Premier Asquith, who seldom visits that office, called there this evening and conferred with Sir Arthur Nicholson, Permanent Under-Secretary. The Austrian Ambassador came to make the formal announcement of the declaration of war. Warships of the British fleet everywhere are taking on supplies. Soon after it became definitely known that Austria and Serbia were at war, all officers and sailors ashore at Portland and Weymouth were summoned back to their ships.

Germany Would Strike Hard.

Special to Evening Telegram.

BERLIN, July 28. No confirmation had been received up to a late hour this evening either by the German Foreign Office or Russian Embassy of the mobilization of various army corps in Russia, reported in yesterday's despatches to London. German officials declared flatly that any Russian mobilization against Austria, partial or otherwise, meant war. German mobilization orders would then, he said, immediately be issued. When these orders had been launched there would be no possibility of recalling them or of Germany resting on her arms while negotiations continued, as the strategic necessities of war of her two frontiers would force Germany to strike immediately hard. The opinion is expressed in well informed Russian circles to-day, however, that a partial mobilization of Russian troops along the Austrian frontier is quite probable as an answer to the Austrian declaration of war on Serbia. Russia Peaceful.

Special to Evening Telegram.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 28. The Russian Government to-night issued the following official communication: "Numerous patriotic demonstrations the last few days in St. Petersburg and other cities prove the firm pacific policy of Russia and finds a sympathetic echo among all classes of the population." The Government hopes nevertheless, the expression of feeling of the people will not be tinged with enmity against a power with whom Russia is at peace and with whom she wishes to remain at peace. While the Government gathers strength from this wave of popular feeling, it expects its subjects to retain their reticence and tranquility.

Belgrade Occupied.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, To-Day. Reports were received in Paris, Berlin and London to indicate that Austrian troops have crossed the Danube into Serbian territory. Two army corps occupied Belgrade without resistance, according to word reaching Austrian Embassy in Paris. Unofficial reports in Berlin and London declare a detachment of Austrians invaded Serbia at Mitrovic, fifty miles northwest of Belgrade. The Serbians, it is stated, withdrew from the advance of the Austrians. Unconfirmed reports declared it was announced in Vienna that hostilities would be started at daybreak to-day.

A tin of "Water Glass" or Egg Preservative will cost you but 15 cents, and it will if used according to directions preserve six dozen eggs for an indefinite period. Many people manage by this means greatly to reduce their egg bill yearly, and the method of using it is so simple that the wonder is that it is not more largely in use. One fifteen cent tin will make a gallon of egg preserving fluid. For those who intend to sow Cabbage Seed at this season to grow winter cabbage plants, we would put in a reminder that we have a good stock of the popular American seeds, admitted to be the best kind for this purpose. Mr. Thomas Cantley, General Manager of the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Co., and Mr. R. Chambers, manager of the Company's ore mines and quarries, together with Directors J. Walter Allison, of Halifax, a Director of the Bank of Nova Scotia, and Lorne C. Webster, a well known Canadian financier, have spent the past four days at Wabana inspecting the Company's properties at that town. Hon. E. H. Armstrong, Commissioner of Public Works and Mines in the Nova Scotia Government; Hon. Robert Drummond, M.L.C., of Stellarton, Editor of the Mining Record; W. R. McCarty, News Editor of the Halifax Herald; and Don. F. Fraser, of the Eastern Chronicle, New Glasgow, are guests of the Directors on this tour of inspection. The visitors were convinced that there is enough ore on the Nova Scotia areas to keep the Company profitably engaged for hundreds of years.

DEFEAT OF THE SPANISH ARMADA 1588. The naval expedition fitted out by Philip II. of Spain was composed of 129 ships manned by 8,000 sailors and carried 19,000 soldiers. Elizabeth's force consisted of only 80 ships manned by 9,000 sailors under Lord Howard, but excellent maneuvering and a gale combined so effectively to cripple the Spanish ships that at length the Armada was scattered in helpless confusion.

Household Notes.

The little brass rings that can be bought for a few cents make excellent hangers for boys' clothing. Sew the rings in armbands or waistbands. A tea-basket acts as a sort of wavy, the tea being brewed in another pot, then strained and put into the tea-basket, where it will keep hot for an hour.

If Orinetal rugs are soiled, they can be cleaned with a suds made of a good naphtha soap. Rub with the nap; not against it. Rinse several times with clear water.

Blackberries can be prepared for winter in half a dozen different ways. They can be canned, preserved, pickled, made into paste, catsup, cordial, vinegar, jam and jelly.

When making tucks in children's dresses, stitch in the tuck on the wrong side of the hem, using a chain-stitch machine. Nothing is easier than to rip it out when the time comes.

To cover jelly glasses, cut letter paper in circular pieces that will just fit inside the glass, and dip the paper in brandy, cover with tin covers or large pieces of paper pasted down.

Watercress stands at the head of all vegetables as a blood purifier, and it is not always necessary to make it into salad to be palatable, for it is appetizing eaten plain, with bread and butter.

Never cover spinach while boiling; and remember that a pinch of soda will preserve the green color. A handful of sorrel may be tossed in while boiling if you would have the flavor slightly acid.

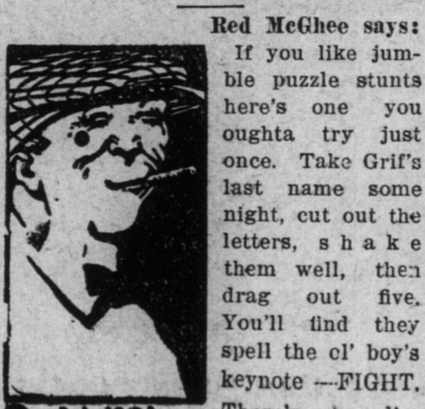

To reacquaint a brass bed, rub the brass vigorously with a flannel dipped in whiting, then dissolve 10 cents' worth of salicilic in enough alcohol to make it thin. Apply with a small brush.

When stewing fruit of any kind in a steam cooker, always place it in a basin or some earthenware dish inside the cooker. Fruit should never be cooked in a metal saucepan, as both flavor and color will be spoiled.

Rose geranium jelly can be made with apples prepared as for ordinary apple jelly. Just when the jelly is in the syrup stage pass a bunch of rose geranium leaves (which have been carefully washed) through it several times.

Garlic, like cayenne, is a good servant, a very bad master. Cut a clove in half and make a cross at bottom of salad bowl, or write a magic number as do some of the French chefs, and you will have plenty of the garlic flavor.

Clarke Griffith.

Red McGhee says: If you like jumble puzzle stunts here's one you ought to try just once. Take Griffith's last name some night, cut out the letters, s h a k e them well, then drag out five. You'll find they spell the c' boy's keynote—FIGHT.

There's no disputation when it's said that Griff's a fighter, born and bred, who never says "enough." When he first hit the big league show as pitcher he was never slow to call the next man's bluff.

An' while we're talkin', don't forget that Griff was one swell pitchin' bet before he quit the box. He saved his arm and used his head. That brassy stuff back there's what led the folks to call him Fox. He bessed the Highlanders, then turned his crafty, fightin' smile on sleepy Washington. The gang down there was grogged an' slow. They didn't have no pep nor go. Griff fired a startin' gun.

He woke that town up from its trance an' made the team get out an' dance. He poured in bran' new blood. The rest you know as well as me. He's got 'em runnin' one-two-three—they've come up like a flood. The last few years the other teams have seen the O' Fox in their dreams he's sure some bugaboo. He keeps his team up 'round the top an' some they'll step out an' cop.—B'gosh, I hope they do.

Where Responsibility Lies.

No matter how large, or how small, a business may be, nobody can deny that its office is the nerve centre of the firm. Every transaction, important or trivial, must be recorded at the office. An order is received at the office, and finally payment is received at the office. If the office makes an error the firm stands the loss. That's why you must be sure that your office is modernly and dependably equipped for the care of all important papers. To do this effectively you need the up-to-date equipment of the "GLOBE-WERNICKER CO." When sixty offices in St. John's have found this necessary, this equipment can surely be of use to you. Mr. Percie Johnson represents this world known firm in Newfoundland.—417-15

Two Men Killed

Burlington, N. J., July 23.—Thos. Rogan, a policeman, was shot and killed on the street here yesterday by Winfield Templeton, a friend, who told the authorities that he had mistaken Rogan for a burglar.

Despite Templeton's explanation, the county authorities are making a searching investigation of the circumstances of the shooting. Rogan, who was 40 years old, leaves a widow and five children.

Akron, Ohio, July 23.—Thomas Wolf, 45, a well-to-do business man, was shot and instantly killed yesterday at the home of his son-in-law, Fred Brown, when he was mistaken for a burglar by Anthony Olischefski, Brown's neighbor.

Olischefski knew the Brown family was away from home, and when he saw Wolf leaving the house he opened fire. The first shot pierced Wolf's heart. The slayer surrendered.

FLOUR GOES UP.—On account of the war scare, where flour is quoted at all, it is quoted at fifty cents to a dollar higher.

A COLLISION.—Yesterday afternoon a cabman was incapacitated and his outfit, which was going along recklessly, collided with Miss Southcott's horse and buggy, which was turning the corner of Job and Water Streets. The occupants were thrown out, though not seriously hurt, whilst the cabman was arrested later.

Earthquake May Destroy Island.

Sydney, N. S. W., July 23.—The Island of Aoba, of the New Hebrides group, is in imminent danger of collapsing from the incessant earthquake shocks, according to late advices received here. Already there have been several fatalities and if the whole population, numbering five thousand is doomed.

In December last the Island of Ambryn, in the New Hebrides was visited by violent disturbances, great masses of molten lava being thrown to a great height from the volcano and burying several villages in its molten mass. At that time about five hundred natives lost their lives.

Ne'son's Autograph Letters Are Sold.

London, July 22.—A collection of Lord Nelson's autograph letters addressed to Lady Nelson, and commencing with one written to her when she was yet Mrs. Nisbet, realized $11,000 in the sale room here. There are 232 letters in the collection, of which 29 were written prior to his marriage, and the last dated 1800, brings his marital story down to the date of his separation.

The effect of the letters is to show that the Nelson-Nisbet marriage was a love match. Letters written by Lady Nelson in a vain effort to retain her husband's affection when Lady Hamilton had cast her spell upon him, appear with several of the hero's own accounts of his battles and biographies of his wills. Forty of the letters were written with the left hand.

Miner Killed In Dominion 1 Pit.

A sad accident occurred at Dominion No. 1 colliery between ten and eleven o'clock this morning, resulting in the death of Philip Bond. The accident was due to a fall of coal and death was instantaneous.

The deceased leaves a wife and eight children.—Sydney Post.

As they crossed the outer room, Gilly's eyes followed them.

"Sit down, Miss Winthrop," said the founder of The Cheering Hour. "Gilly tells me that you've turned out a corking piece of work here. You've struck us at a bad time, but Gilly says we'll make a big mistake if we don't buy it. My policy has always been to encourage young writers whenever possible. If you can see your way clear to letting us have this story for fifteen dollars we'll be glad to do business with you."

Fifteen dollars looked as big to Marian as fifteen hundred in her particular financial plight, and she accepted the other's offer with alacrity. In two minutes time Shurtleff had written her a check for the amount, and she took it with the feeling of genuine authorship.

"I haven't read your story," continued the magazine man, "but what Gilly says goes. That old horse knows a bumble on his judgment most any time. Let him see some more of your work." He glanced at his watch. "Two o'clock! Great Scott! Time was going out for a bite to eat. Will you join me?"

"I've had my luncheon, thank you." "Well, come along and have a sip of tea. I want to talk things over with you. Maybe I can help you frame up some ideas 'for stories'."

Marian remembered having read somewhere that famous authors did much of their business with publishers at luncheon in busy New York, and so with the esoteric feeling of a true inner-circle she accepted Shurtleff's invitation, and they left the office together. As they crossed the outer room, passing Gilly's desk, the latter's eyes followed them with a glint of concern. Gilly knew Shurtleff well enough to resent the younger man's swiftly materializing attentions to the new contributor. He knew facts about his superior's life that made him feel anything but easy on seeing Miss Winthrop go out with him.

"It's a crime," he muttered when the two had disappeared, "for a sweet, fine young woman like that to be thrown in with him."

WEDNESDAY, July 29th, 1914.

The Commission Begins Work.

Yesterday afternoon the Royal Commission appointed to investigate the Natural Resources Trade and Legislation of certain portions of His Majesty's Dominion opened their inquiry as to Newfoundland. The Commission is sitting in the Legislative Council Chamber. Sir Alfred Bate-man was in the chair, and to his right sat Sir George Foster, the Minister of Trade and Commerce of Canada. At the right of the latter was Mr. Donald Campbell, a native of Adelaide, an engineer, journalist and lawyer, a supporter of the Labor Party in Australia, and at one time a member of the parliament of South Australia. Next to him sat the Hon. Robert Sinclair, a member of the Legislative Council of New Zealand, then Sir Ian Langerman, for twenty years manager of the Robinson group of gold mines in the Rand and now a large farmer in South Africa. Then came Hon. Edgar Bowring.

To the left of the Chairman was Sir Henry Rider Haggard, the famous novelist and a well known authority on Agriculture. Mr. Tom Garnett, a cotton spinner of Lancashire, Mr. Joseph Tatlow, managing director of railways in Ireland, and Mr. William Lorimer of Glasgow, head of a large engineering firm. Mr. Harding as Secretary, and Mr. Bridgeman as Assistant Secretary. Both of these gentlemen are from the Colonial Office.

In opening the Chairman Sir Alfred Bridgeman, who is a retired official of the Board of Trade and who has had much experience on Commissions read the text of the Commission, and expressed regret that ill-health prevented the regular Chairman Sir Edgar Vincent from visiting Newfoundland. He said, however, that there were more members of the Commission present than had visited any other Dominion.

The Prime Minister, Sir Edward Morris, extended greetings to the Commission and hoped that the information they would glean would be of benefit to Newfoundland and the Empire.

Then the Commission settled down to business. The Chairman remarked that the statements prepared for them by the various witnesses had been well prepared. These statements were taken as read to save time, and the members of the Commission who have previously perused them ask the witness questions on them.

The first witness was the Minister of Finance Hon. M. P. Cashin. His main evidence on "The Trade and Commerce of Newfoundland" had been put in. The Chairman, Mr. Sinclair, Sir George Foster, Mr. Lorimer and Mr. Bowring and others asked him many pertinent questions about it. These questions had reference to the relative trade between Newfoundland and the United Kingdom, Canada and the States, the effect of shipping rates, the efforts made by the traders of these countries to do business with Newfoundland. He pointed out that America and Canada sent drummers here and instanced the capture of the trade in motor engines by manufacturers on this side as an example of the effect of this enterprise.

The Assistant Collector, Mr. LeMessurier, was the next witness. He was also questioned by the members of the Commission on his written testimony. Mr. LeMessurier gave as an instance of the loss of trade, the loss of the axe trade by Sheffield, owing to British Manufacturers not catering to the wants of the people. He was questioned closely as to the earning power of the people.

The Deputy Colonial Secretary, Mr. Mews was questioned on his written testimony on Immigration and Census Statistics.

Mr. Reuben Horwood put in a most interesting paper on timber and pulp resources and gave cogent and illuminating replies to the queries put to him on the matter. He was questioned closely as to the effect of freight rates across the Atlantic in the competition with Swedish pulp with its shorter transit. He considered that Newfoundland pulp would always be considerably handicapped in this respect. Newfoundland was also handicapped from backwardness in skilled labour in pulp making, but that was being cured by experience and training.

Last night the Commissioners were the guests of Sir Joseph Outerbridge. To-day, the sitting will commence at 10 and continue till 1 p.m., when they will drive to Topsail and lunch with Hon. Edgar Bowring. After lunch they will motor around the country, attend Mt. Cashel at 5 p.m. and to-night dine at Government House.

Wars and Rumors of Wars.

MONEY MARKETS PANICKY.
 The effect of war and the rumors of war on the market was shown in a marked manner yesterday on the declaration of war by Austria against Serbia. The Bourse at Vienna had been closed since Saturday, and when war was declared a sort of panic prevailed on the Stock exchange, at London, Paris and Berlin. Much the same conditions prevailed on this side of the water, the Stock exchanges at Montreal and Toronto closing early. Gilt edge stock went down with a run and the effect was particularly seen on C.P.R. stock which fell to 157. September wheat went up 9 points and the price of eight drafts went up considerably. These panicky conditions show what a sensitive barometer the money market is in regard to war and rumors of war. For these conditions are largely due to the fear that other first class powers, besides Austria may be drawn into the struggle. Blood is thicker than water. Russia is looked upon as the big brother of the Slav population of the Balkans.

However wicked may be those in court and official circles in Serbia, and whatever their complicity in the murder of the Archduke and his wife may have been, Austria has been provocative to Serbia for a long time and most aggressive, and Russia may regard Austria as seizing on the royal assassination as an opportunity for further aggression. This is the peril. That it is which causes money markets to be panicky. Russian sympathies are with Serbia, German with Austria. Sir Edward Grey failed in his efforts of conciliation between Austria and Serbia, largely on account of Germany it would appear. He may, however, succeed as he did in the Balkans in limiting the struggle to Austria and Serbia; and again he may not, as Russia is jealous of Austrian influence in the Balkans and Germany is watching Russia on behalf of Austria.

Football Champions.

The football match between the Stars and Collegians on Friday evening next will practically decide the championship for this season. Both teams are now equal, and each has to play one other match, the Stars with the C. E. I. and the Collegians with the Saints.

Friday's game promises to be one of the most closely contested yet seen in the city, and much interest is being centred on the issue. Should the Stars win the championship this year, the cup becomes their sole property, as they have won it for the past two seasons in succession.

At the City Hall.

The Municipal Board held a special session last evening for the purpose of adopting the new rules in relation to the connecting of houses in the main streets with the sewerage pipes, thereby eliminating the sanitary car system to a great extent. The following resolution was passed:—
 "That the houses in the streets hereinafter named be connected with the water and sewerage mains, and in each house a proper and sufficient water closet constructed, and further that the City Engineer be instructed to have served upon the occupier of such house, a notice in writing requesting the making of connections with the said water and sewerage system, and the construction of sufficient closet or closets, within three months from the serving of said notice."

Appended is the list of streets and number of houses not connected:—
 Duckworth Street, 52; King's Road, 27; Cochrane Street, 6; Bond Street, 34; Charlton Street, 1; Gower Street, 32; Colonial Street, 29; Queen's Road, 8; Water St. North from Cochrane St. West, 11; Knight Street, 7; Pleasant St., above Atlantic Avenue; Maxse Street, 1; Gilbert Street, 1; New Gower Street North, 46; New Gower Street South, 52; York Street, 25; Long's Hill, 5; Theatre Hill, 2; Adelaide Street, 4; Hamilton St., —.

It was decided to make an offer to the Reid Co. re the continuation of the sprinkling car for the remainder of the season; also that the opening up and back filling of streets to be done by contract, and that specification be prepared by Engineer.

The meeting then closed.

Narrow Escape of Two Local Fishermen.

While Samuel Stanley and John Doyle were returning from the local fishing grounds yesterday afternoon, their boat missteered and was dashed upon the rocks near Fort Amherst. A heavy sea was running and both men narrowly escaped with their lives. They had fished all day with considerable success, and had nearly four cwt. on board their little craft. They were making for port and in beating down the shore ran too close to the land, with the result that a baffling flaw from the shore caused their boat to mistay. A heavy swell was heaving in at the time and before they had time to bring their boat around with an oar she was dashed on the rocks, and they had to jump for their lives. They succeeded in scaling the cliff near the lighthouse, and as their boat settled in the position in which she struck, they made an effort to re-board her but without success. They then decided to walk home as they knew their friends would naturally be anxious concerning their whereabouts. Upon the news being spread that a small boat was on the rocks, with no person on board it was feared that another tragedy had occurred and the motor boat Bolinder was despatched to the scene. She brought the disabled boat to port in a sinking condition, and upon arrival at Ayre's Cove a crowd of persons had assembled to learn of the fate of the occupants. In the meantime Stanley and Doyle reached home and reported themselves safe and sound, much to the relief of their families. The boat was stove in amidships, the stern post broken and the timbers are also shattered, and it will be some time before she will be seaworthy again. Though the fishermen are grateful to have escaped with their lives, the loss to them is a serious one, happening as it does, at the busiest time of the fishing season.

Big Holiday Bill at Rossley's.

Last night there was a very large house at the old reliable show shop. Scully gets funnier every time; he could not be classed as an operatic star, but he can certainly hold his own as a real funny comedian and a dramatic man of no mean ability. His rendering of Longfellow's beautiful poem after the Henpecked Husband, was delightful. There are great pictures now at Rossley's; finer we have never seen, all new. To-day's feature "Getting up Practice," with Maurice Costello and other stars of the silent drama. "Vell of Sleep" by the Lubin Co.; "Jenkins Becomes Desperate," by the Biograph players; "Love the Winner," by the Selig Co., and an up to date Pathe Weekly shown on the silver screen. Monday a burlesque on Romeo and Juliet, past and present.

MARSHALL BROTHERS.

Are You Growing?

By RUTH CAMERON.

"Self-satisfied are most of us, and with how little satisfied!"

The above couplet is the conclusion of a clever little satire aimed at the foolish self-satisfaction which underlies most of our pretensions of humility and unworthiness.

Since I read it, it has popped into my mind every time I have been pleased with myself over some childish little accomplishment, and I pass it along in the hope that it may do the same bubble-pricking service for others.

"Self-satisfied are most of us, and with how little satisfied!"

Isn't it half appalling and half amusing when you stop to think how easily we are pleased with ourselves? The tiny effort toward self-improvement, the slight measure of business success, the trifling act of self-sacrifice, the small social triumph which we have achieved fill us with a warm glow of triumph simply because it was we ourselves and not another who achieved them. If we were only half, nay one-tenth, so pleased, one-tenth so impressed with our neighbors' achievements we should, indeed, be pleasant to live with.

I verily believe that as many men remained mediocre because their progress is arrested by the stultifying intoxicant of self-satisfaction as are ruined by the more commonly recognized variety of intoxication.

But should one never feel self-satisfied even if one has really accomplished something worth while, you ask?

No, never. Approve of yourself at the same standards by which you judge your neighbor; but don't be self-satisfied, because then you will stop trying to improve, and that is one of the greatest tragedies that can come to any man or woman.

If a child stops growing physically before he is fifteen or sixteen years old, we feel that a very sad thing has happened. When a man or woman stops growing spiritually and mentally this side of the grave, a far sadder thing has happened.

Do you ever stop and ask yourself if you are still growing?

Are you broadening out mentally in any direction? Do you do whatever work is your portion in life,—be it teaching, bookkeeping, selling, managing men, or homemaking,—a little better to-day than you did five years ago?

Are you growing spiritually? Are you building up your character? Have you any better control of your temper than you had five years ago? Have you succeeded in doing something toward crushing out that tendency toward jealousy or that habit of procrastination?

While there's life, there should be growth.

It is nature when a thing stops growing it begins to decay. So self-satisfaction with its arrest of growth, is apt to lead to mental and spiritual gangrene. Are you still growing? If not, look out.

The Queer Little List.

"There," said the little lady who is always doing original things, as she rolled up the darned stocking with the whole one in the immemorial fashion of all housewives, and tossed it into the mended pile. "There, now, I can cross that off my list."

"What list?" I inquired.

"O, didn't you ever see my list?" she laughed. "Well, almost every morning I make out a little list of the things I have to do and then as I get them done I check them off, and you don't know how it helps."

"Here," she brought out a folded paper from under the cloth. "Here's my list for to-day. Of course I don't put down the routine things like dishes and beds."

The list reads:—
 Darn the stockings.
 Make a batch of cookies.
 Mend Fred's trousers.
 Put Jeannette's coat in the chest.
 Clean the silver.
 Brush up the living room and dining room.
 Finish embroidering table cover.
 Four of the seven items were checked off.

The lady who is always doing original things, "Everyone laughs at me," defended

Wills.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good, Old Sivasht."

A will is the only means a man has of running things after he is dead.

When a man has no property, he departs from earth entirely when he dies and becomes as unimportant as an ex-president in Washington. But when he has accumulated a large mass of goods, he can enjoy himself for many years after death, bossing them by means of a triple-expansion, air-tight, non-dislocatable will.

Many a father who has tried in vain to run his sons during life, has succeeded perfectly after he has died by leaving the job to a will. You can get around a fond father in a dozen ways, but you can't put your arm around the shoulders of a will and argue it into being a good fellow.

Many a man has bossed his wife for twenty years and then after he has died and she is beginning to draw a few timid breaths without anyone's permission, she discovers in her husband's will that he is still hanging around the premises, dictating her a future conduct and booting possible successors off the front steps by means of a clause which provides that when she remarries, all her interest in his property shall cease and determine.

Old Stephen Girard of Philadelphia had a great hatred of ministers and grieved because some day he must die and stop fighting them. But he didn't die—that is not entirely. He left this earth seventy years ago, but his will is still running Girard College and slamming the front gate in the face of every minister who applies for entrance.

Mankind is divided into two classes—those who are earning their living and those who are waiting for a will to be opened amid appropriate ceremonies, including a large crocodile tear. The latter is the easier job, but the former is more certain of results, and is much more popular in this country than it is in England, where the upper classes and the undertakers spend their lives waiting, hand in hand, for results.

Many a man has waited forty years to get a chance to open a will and has then found the interior to be as empty as a hickory nut with a worm hole in it.

Still, opening wills is more fun than leaving them. Nobody likes to leave a will. One would imagine it was a brother from the way the maker clings to it.

DOCTORS ADVISE OPERATIONS

Saved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Swarthmore, Penn.—"For fifteen years I suffered untold agony, and for one period of nearly two years I had hemorrhages and the doctors told me I could not have an operation, but I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am in good health now. I am all over the Change of Life and cannot praise your Compound too highly. Every woman should take it at that time. I recommend it to both old and young for female troubles."—Mrs. EMILY SUMMERSGILL, Swarthmore, Pa.

Fort William, Ont.—"I feel as if I could not tell others enough about the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was weak and tired and I could not rest nights. A friend recommended your Compound and I soon gained health and strength and could not wish to sleep better. I know other women who have taken it for the same purpose and they join me in praising it."—Mrs. Wm. A. BERRY, 631 South Vicker Street, Fort Williams, Ontario.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, is it not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering in a like manner?

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (consultant) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be answered, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

The World's Longest Arch.

Hell Gate Bridge Will Have a Span of 1017 Feet.

The Hell Gate Bridge, now under construction, will be the largest span of its type in the world—1017 feet—and will be of imposing appearance and monumental character, designed with regard to architectural and artistic effect and efficiency of construction, says the Engineering Journal.

The span will have a total weight of over 60,000 tons, 19,000 tons of high carbon structural steel. The great weight is due to the heavy loading specified.

Both ends of the span will be erected simultaneously, and each of them will be assembled by a steel traveler moving on the roadway platform and another on the top chords. It is estimated that the erection will be completed in 1915.

The heaviest pieces to be handled in the field will weigh about 200 tons, and there will be about 1,000,000 1 1/2 inch field-driven rivets, some of them over 11 inches long, all driven by pneumatic hammers.

War Declared!

HOSTILITIES BETWEEN AUSTRIA AND SERBIA NOW TAKING PLACE!

Russia Masses 80,000 Troops on German Frontier --- British Navy Ordered Ready --- German Ships Occupy Strategic Point --- World Markets Demoralized.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, July 28. Reports received in Paris, Berlin and London indicate that Austrian troops have crossed the Danube into Serbian territory. Two army corps have occupied Belgrade without resistance, according to word reaching the Austrian embassy in Paris. Unofficial reports in Berlin and London declare that a detachment of Austrians invaded Serbia at Mitrovici, 50 miles northwest of Belgrade. The Serbians, it is stated, are withdrawing before the advance of the Austrians. Unconfirmed reports declared it was announced in Vienna that hostilities would be started at daybreak to-day.

PORTSMOUTH, July 28. On orders received from the Admiralty, guards have been placed around the magazines, and commanders of torpedo and submarine flotillas here have been instructed to be in readiness for immediate call. The first and second battle squadrons are ready to slip anchors.

VIENNA, July 28. Austria to-day declared war against Serbia. The official communication was sent to Belgrade for transmission to the Serbian Government. This action was adopted as soon as the Austro-Hungarian Government had been notified that Germany had refused to become a party to any conference having for its aim mediation of differences between Serbia and Austria. The Government gave formal notice through the British Ambassador here that it would refuse to halt hostilities pending the result of any such conference. Shortly afterwards the declaration of war was issued.

LONDON, July 28. The announcement of the declaration of war by Austria-Hungary on Serbia, came to-day almost immediately after Germany and Austria had notified Sir Edward Grey of their readiness to join any mediation conference. It is assumed here that the efforts of the European nations will now be divided towards localizing the area of hostilities.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 28. All Russian frontier posts are being strengthened, and 80,000 men have been distributed along the German border alone. The only trains running in Eastern Russia to-day are those carrying army supplies from the interior. Detachments of troops have been stationed at all bridges, and Sappers are held in readiness for quick service in case any structures are blown up.

BERLIN, July 28. German battleships, cruisers and torpedo boats were ordered to-day to concentrate at Wilhelmshaven, a strategic point for opposing any attack by a British fleet.

KIEL, July 28. There is a financial panic here and in other towns in this district runs have started on the Savings' Banks.

VIENNA, This a.m. The declaration of war was gazetted here late yesterday afternoon. The text is as follows: "The Royal Parliament of Serbia not having replied in a satisfactory manner to the note remitted to it by the Austro-Hungarian minister at Belgrade, July 23, the Imperial and Royal Government finds itself, to safeguard its rights and interests, to have recourse for this purpose to force of arms. Austria-Hungary considers itself, therefore, from this moment, in a state of war with Serbia." The document was signed by the Austrian Minister of Foreign Affairs.

BERLIN, This a.m. Reports from the Austrian border state that the transportation of the 8th and 9th Austrian Army Corps from Bohemia toward the Serbian frontier, began yesterday. There was no other traffic on the Bohemian railroads, except troop trains. Telegraphic communication with Carlsbad and Marienbad was still open yesterday, but only by one direct line from the Saxon frontier. Telegraphic service between Berlin and Vienna was demoralized, and some lines were completely interrupted.

VIENNA, This a.m. News of the formal declaration of hostilities was received with a patriotic outburst throughout the capital. Men embraced each other on the streets, and wept. Crowds paraded before the various ministries, singing national airs and cheering for the Government. A mob surrounded the Serbian legation shouting: "Kill the assassins of Archduke Ferdinand, and burn Belgrade and the assassins."

HALIFAX, July 28. Expectation of war between Austria and Serbia and its subsequent declaration to-day, has demoralized the markets of the world. War was not declared until the European market closed, but in London, Berlin and Paris, panicky conditions prevailed, and severe declines in securities were the result of the anticipated announcement. In all three capitals the bonds of the Governments of Europe, which have been steadily dropping, registered further losses. In Vienna the Bourse is closed since Saturday, but there was a heavy run on Austrian Savings' Banks. The Paris Commercial Exchanges suspended all dealings in grains, and sugar and other commodities, and exchange on London and private discounts for the first time in years were not quoted. At Berlin, runs on the Savings' Banks began, and grew heavy. In London after the close of the stock market stocks tumbled on the curb. News of the declaration of war was received in New York while the markets were in session and with it came an avalanche of foreign selling. On the New York stock exchange leading securities tumbled from five to twenty points, conditions being only paralleled in their intensity during the domestic panic of 1907. Montreal and Toronto exchanges suspended sessions. On the Chicago Board of Trade there was a tremendous rise in wheat Millions in gold were engaged at New York for shipment to London and Paris.

DORTMUND, Germany, This a.m. Fifteen coal miners were killed yesterday, by a fire which broke out at Hansmann pit. Six bodies have been recovered.

WIRE WOUNDS. My mare, a very valuable one, was badly bruised and cut by being caught in a wire fence. Some of the wounds would not heal, although I tried many different medicines. Dr. Bell advised me to use MINARD'S LINIMENT, diluted at first, then stronger as the sores began to look better, until after three weeks, the sores have healed, and best of all, the hair is growing well, and is NOT WHITE as is most always the case in horse wounds. Weymouth. F. M. DOUCET.

Fishery Reports. July 25th.—From S. E. Chafe, (South Head of Briggs to Bay Roberts Point).—The total catch is 250 quintals with 120 for last week. Eleven traps are in the water and 55 boats, dories and skiffs fishing. Prospects at present are not very encouraging. There is a sufficient supply of caplin for bait. Only one lobster factory is in operation at Port de Grave and has 8 cases to date. From Barneed to Bay Roberts Point there are ten traps in the water and 55 taken from 2 to 30 quintals to date. Nothing is being done with hook and line.

July 25th.—From W. Ward, (Mosquito Point to Bryan's Cove).—Cod fishery prospects are good for traps and there is sufficient caplin for bait. There is a good deal of cod on the grounds but it won't take the bait. The fish taken in traps is of large size. Hook and liners are doing nothing. The total catch is 1944 quintals and for last week 400. Twenty traps, 48 dories, skiffs and boats are fishing.

July 25.—From W. Cunningham (Cape John to Indian Burying Place).—There is no improvement in the codfishery prospects. Very little or nothing is being done; from a few fish to two barrels being taken by the best traps. Cod nets are doing the best on the whole. They get from 20 to 30 fish a haul but hook and liners nothing. Twenty-eight traps are in the water and 15 boats fishing. The total catch is 500 quintals and for last week 150.

July 24th.—From W. Chambers (Hr. Buffett to Brien's Island).—No bankers or schooners from the grounds have arrived. Codfishery prospects are good with nets and fair with traps but there is nothing for trawls. Caplin are plentiful. The total codfish catch is 1,500 quintals and for last week 500. Twenty-five dories and skiffs and 15 boats are fishing. The lobster fishery is practically a failure.

Big Social Drama.

AT THE NICKEL TO-DAY. The Nickel Theatre was crowded again last evening, and patrons were delighted with the programme. The manager has arranged a fascinating bill for to-day. It includes a great social drama by the Vitagraph Co., entitled "The Intruder." The writer is the celebrated dramatist George Cameron. Maurice Costello and Mary Charleson are in the leading roles and they play together well. The Selig Co. presents a meta-drama "A Husband won by Selection," which is a well staged piece. "Don't Lie to Hubby" is the comedy, and a very laughable one it is. "A Virginia Find" is also an attractive film. On Friday, "Martin Chuzzlewit" by Charles Dickens, will be presented.

Mel Painful Accident.

A few days ago a fisherman of the city named John Sullivan met with a painful accident which will incapacitate him for several weeks. He left here in Mr. Job Roberts' motor boat for Battle Harbor and when about ten miles off Cape St. Francis Sullivan, who was operating the engine, got his overalls caught in the net pin of the cylinder. His left arm was drawn in and badly lacerated, the flesh being torn from the wrist almost to the shoulder.

In for Water Supply.

Lake's schooner Rostan, of Fortune, came into port yesterday afternoon from the Grand Banks for a supply of water. So far the Rostan has not procured an average catch. She has four hundred quintals of fish on board now and has landed six hundred at the home port, or a total dred of 1,000 quintals. The crew of the tanker report that the weather on the Banks of late has been very stormy whilst cod have been none too plentiful.

Here and There.

RIFFLE SHOOT.—At the Rifle Club this afternoon the J. W. Morris prize will be competed for.

The fair ideal is the square eye deal. You get it at TRAPNELL'S.—July 23, 14

FISH CARGO.—The schr. Antiochette sailed for Oporto yesterday from Burgeo with 3,016 quintals of fish.

CLEARED FOR OPORTO.—The schr. Noah, laden with 2,500 qtls. of codfish, has cleared from Belleoram for Oporto.

SMALL ATTENDANCE.—The attendance at last night's football match was the smallest for the season, the receipts being only $6.00.

Frames, Mauntings, Broken Lenses and all connected with Spectacles and Eyeglasses replaced at an hour's notice at TRAPNELL'S.—July 23, 14

BOWING'S SHIPS. The Prospero, sailing for the northward to-day, took sixty round-trippers.

NOTICE!

We wish to inform our City and Outport customers and friends that we are continuing our business as usual until further notice next building west of our old premises, having both a shop in the front and rear.

We have already received a complete new stock, which will be placed in the shelves during this week, but can be supplied at once if necessary. Our sale of damaged goods will be continued at the rear store until sold out.

Since the fire we have been compelled to sell at guess prices, but we feel our customers have received good value; but in case any persons think otherwise and are not satisfied, we would consider it a special favor if they would report either personally or by letter, and we shall be pleased to straighten up satisfactorily.

We have been great losers by the cause of the fire, nevertheless we do not wish to make this any excuse for not carrying out our usual policy, which has always been our aim, to give our customers good value for their money.

Our Motto: SATISFACTION GUARANTEED.

"My Lady's Room."

NEVER was furniture of any kind, or at any period, more beautiful, comfortable, thoroughly attractive and well-made, or more eminently adapted to its own special use, than is the furniture of to-day. This is remarkably noticeable in some of the elegant articles that are made for the refined woman's use. We are showing examples in the handsome Writing Desks for Ladies we have on view this week.

These Desks are specially designed for daintiness and comfort, they are of Bird's-eye Maple, Mahogany, Circassian Walnut, Quartered, Fumed and Weathered Oak, also in early English finish; all have chairs en suite.

These Desks are suitable for drawing-room, boudoir, or sitting-room, in fact, used in any room they make writing a pleasure.
