Arter the Ball,

The Mystery Solved at Last.

CHAPTER XXI
A Subtle Strain.

"If he recovers, he may be angry with me, may hurt me!" and, oh, marvelous mystery of love, a thrill of delight ran through her at the thought of being in his hands, even though they clasped her in anger. "He may kill me. What shall I do? Oh, Maud, Maud, courage! Water! Where is the stream?"

Quick as lightning, she sprang to her feet and caught up the rough cap lying beside him, then ran to the stream; in a minute more she was bending over him, moistening his dry, hot lips and cooling his forehead, her fingers lingering each moment with a caress.

While she did this, in the pale light of the stars, the bushes behind her parted suddenly, and a man's head was thrust forward.

As its dark, flashing eyes rested upon the two silent forms, they lit up with a blaze of savage glee, and a tawny, unburned hand was dashed against the full-lipped mouth to prevent the cry which the watcher in his joy almost uttered.

For two minutes he stood thus, drinking in the scene; then, with a furtive smile upon his sallow face, he stole like an Indian from the spot.

At a hundred yards' distance he paused, and, throwing up his hand, muttered:

"Am I dreaming? Am I mad, or have I found him again? Oh, ye saints, or friends, how ye do befriend Spazzola. Found him again when all hope was gone, found him, and how? Who is the beautiful girl, his light-o'-love? No—he has no light-o'-loves. Ah, I have it. Spazzola, your fortune is made—thank the girl for it. Oh, ye friends, smile on, keep the luck with Spazzola still, and he is made," and muttering huskily, with a savage joy in his leopard eyes, he crept on.

At the fringe of the wood he stopped and imitated the cry of the cuckoo.

It was echoed once, twice; then three men came forward stealthily and soft-footed, like panthers.

"Well!" said the first, the thickest ruffian we have seen in the public house at Hatton Garden; "well!"

"No avail, mio amice! The house is bare and naked. Everything gone but a dog!"

He shuddered.

An Amazing Cure For Neuralgia
Magical Relief For Headache

The Most Effective Remedy Known is "Nerviline."

The reason Nerviline is infallibly a remedy for neuralgia resides in two very remarkable properties Nerviline possesses.

The first is its wonderful power of penetrating deeply into the tissue which enables it to reach the very source of congestion.

Nerviline possesses another and not less important action—it equalizes the circulation in the painful parts, and "What! a bloodhound?" asked the Englishman, in a tone of disgust.

"Ay, a bloodhound. Bah! I think I feel his fangs at my throat now."

With a thrill of horror, the three men shook their heads.

"Confound it!" growled the man called Bill. "I 'ate a bloodhound, and I ain't a-goin' in for one. Look here, this crib's no go—"

Spazzola shook his head decisively.

"We're agreed on that. Well, let's go in for the other."

"Soh! it is done!" said the Italian.

"No, it ain't, not nearly," returned Bill, in a tone of contempt, not understanding the Italian's peculiar mode of expressing himself.

"You talk as if cracking a crib were as easy as fly-faking. You don't know anything about the business. Leave this job to me; wait about the crib, so as to bear a hand if anything goes wrong, and I'll share like and like, s'welp me never!"

Nodding their dark heads assentingly, the three Italians dropped on their hands and knees to follow the English burglar, Spazzola looking back over his shoulder, with a gleaming eye, at the dark outlines of the desolate rectory.

Maud, watching the still, white face, with its heavy lines drawn by the hands of sorrow and privation, saw, after she had bathed the cold forehead, which was as white as her own, the lips move with an expression of consciousness. Shrinking back, with a feeling of thankfulness not unmingled with alarm, she waited for some other sign of returning life.

It came. Raising his hand to his head, Maurice Durant felt the water upon his brow, opened his eyes, and, seeing a figure kneeling beside him, sprang to his feet, with a fierce scowl.

Maud shrank back tremblingly, expecting he would clutch her by the throat, as she had heard he had grasped the poacher, and when Maurice bent his head down and seized her arm, she uttered a piteous little cry and fell against his knees.

His hand dropped as from a snake, and, recollecting with a startled look, he said:

"Who is it? Not—"

"Yes, I—Maud," she sobbed, in an agony of emotion. "You will not hurt me? I—I found you lying on the ground—dying, I thought. I knew you would be angry, if I stayed, but—but, I couldn't leave you there, lying all alone, so ill—"

His head dropped upon his bosom, and he passed his hand across his brow, with a groan.

"You should not have touched me," he said, in a low, ringing voice. "I have been ill—I am seized thus sometimes. Have you been here long, senora?"

Maud started, and, looking saw that his eyes were still dim and half unconscious.

"Not long," she murmured, tremblingly. "You are still weak; will you not lean against the tree?"

"Weak!" he said, starting and looking down at the violin, which lay near the spot on which he had fallen. Ah! I remember. Where is Tigris? I bid him guard the house—and you—how came you here?"

"I—" said Maud, then stopped.

How could she tell him that his music had drawn her thither?

With a quick look that told her he had read her thoughts, he said: "It is late. You should not be here. The brambles have torn your dress; your hands are scratched, too. Come."

He turned to go.

Not one word of thanks had he uttered. She noticed it even as she turned to follow him, but thought

Indigestion Resulted From an Inactive Liver

The Bowels Became Constipated and the Whole Digestive System Upset. With many people constipation becomes a habit. And it is a dangerous habit which is certain sooner or later to cause serious disease.

"Daily movement of the bowels" is the first and most important rule of health. When the liver becomes torpid the flow of bile into the intestines is stopped and the bowels become constipated. But you can readily overcome this condition by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. There is no treatment obtainable which so promptly awakens the activity of the liver and bowels and thereby corrects derangements of the digestive system.

Mrs. Herbert Doherty of Beaver Brook, Albert Co., N.B., writes: "I can truthfully say that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are a great medicine for constipation. I have suffered from constipation ever since I can remember, but got to using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and was so benefited that I began to study this malady. I found that the indigestion resulted from a bad case of inactive liver, and as soon as I got the liver working right I didn't have any stomach trouble or indigestion. I can not praise this medicine too highly, and would advise anyone suffering from indigestion or constipation to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. My husband also claims that these pills have done him more good than any medicine he ever used. You are at liberty to use this letter."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills positively relieve and cure torpid liver, constipation, biliousness, indigestion, backache and kidney disease. Put it to the test. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edman-son, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

nothing strange in the omission. All he did or left undone seemed best.

They went on a dozen yards, he brushing away and breaking down the tangled wood at each step, then he turned his head.

"You are tired," with a sweet, grave smile that lit up his features till they became transformed. "I will carry you."

She shrank back, but his outstretched arms clasped her around as if she was a new-born babe, and, giving herself up to the maddening delight that filled her soul, she, with a sigh and the quiver of an autumn leaf, nestled against his breast, her head dropping onto his shoulder.

Silently he strode on, crushing the undergrowth beneath his heel, his hair blown now and again across her cheek, his breath fanning her bare arm; then, when the terrace glimmered in front, he knelt down, and with ineffable grace and tenderness, set her on the ground.

Her hand lingered around his neck with a caress which, struggle as she might, she could not repress. Opening her lips, she breathed as one breathes when waking from a long sleep of delicious dreams.

With his keen, dark eyes fixed upon her face, and reading it as clearly as one reads an open book, he shook for one instant as he saw the look; then, gathering himself together with the shake of a lion or his dog, said, almost sternly:

"You are safe, child. I will watch you until you enter the house. Go, and visit not the wood at night again."

Fixing her eyes eagerly on his face, as if anxious not to lose a single word he spoke, she quailed at his harsh tone, then lowering her head upon her bosom, turned, and without a word glided across the lawn.

He stood watching her girlish figure until it had disappeared into the house.

Then with his lips closed tightly, as if to stifle the passion at his heart, he strode back into the wood.

CHAPTER XXII
An Encounter With a Burglar.
Courage mounted with occasion.
—Shakespeare.

THAT night, or rather morning, was an eventful one to more than the strange rector and gentle Maud.

Carlotta, white-faced and heavy-eyed, had retired to her room after seeing Lady Mildred comfortably ensconced in bed, and, receiving a kiss from her ladyship's kindly lips, felt as little inclined for sleep as the sweet girl in the chamber in the hall, but, unlike her, could not sit serenely before her mirror.

Clasping her white hands in front of her, and throwing her majestic head back till the veins stood out in little blue threads in her splendid throat, she seemed gasping for air—for very life—while her rigid lips murmured, in broken accents, that fell like icicles snapped from excess of cold:

"Too late, too late! Sold! Oh, Heaven, give me strength to bear it! How he looked! I shall see his eyes all the hours of the night, feel his hands, clinched and stony, beating against my heart. Yet I have kept my vow. I have done right. Right? Have I? Suppose—suppose, after all, the money, the dress, should turn to bitter apples and Dead Sea fruit? Suppose I have wrecked his and my own life for naught? No, no; I will not think of it. I know that poverty must mean misery. I know that

A GOOD STYLE FOR MANY OCCASIONS.

Waist—1961, Skirt—1962. This portrays a white broadcloth frock, touched up with a trimming of soutache braid. The waist is finished in overblouse style, with wide belt portions, holding the fulness at the waistline. The skirt has a tunic cut on smart lines. The sleeve is new and finished with a deep shaped cuff. The dress is composed of Ladies' Waist Pattern 1961 and Ladies' Skirt Pattern 1962. The waist is cut in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. The skirt in 7 sizes: 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32 and 34 inches waist measure. It requires 8 1/4 yards of 44-inch material for the entire dress in a medium size. The skirt measures about 2 1/2 yards at the foot. This illustration calls for TWO separate patterns, which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents FOR EACH pattern, in silver or stamps.

For half an hour she remained thus motionless, drowsy with the stupor of despair and an aching heart, when suddenly her acute ears detected a grating noise in the adjoining room, which served the purpose of a boudoir and safe-room. In it Lady Mildred's and her own few jewels were kept.

For the moment she thought nothing of the noise, and dropped her weary head into its old position, but after a slight pause it came again, this time in the form of a rattling, and now thoroughly aroused and suspicious, she arose, and, gliding to the door, listened intently.

"Some one has broken into the house," she murmured. "Some one is trying the window!"

For a moment her heart beat with a wild terror, but the next a feeling of almost savage delight ran through her, and with tightly compressed lips and glittering eyes, she plucked off her slippers, gather her dress around her, and softly opened the door.

Pausing to let the slight sound of the creaking door die away, until she heard the unmistakable click of an opened window, the brave girl, strung up to unnatural clamor by excitement, stole along the slight strip of passage that intervened between the two rooms and reached the door of the room whence the noise came.

It was ajar. Deliberately pushing it open far enough to admit her, she entered, and the figure of a man, dressed in a fustian suit, with heavy boots swathed with folds of list, a ragged fur cap upon his head and a piece of black crape covering the upper part of his face, met her gaze.

He was bending down before a pretty toy cabinet, trying one of the doors with a small bar of iron by the light of a dark lantern.

By his side lay a pistol—not the first Carlotta Lawley had seen, by very many. It was cocked, and, as she felt assured, was loaded.

On the ledge of the open window were two grappling hooks attached to a ladder of slight rope by which the burglar had ascended.

1972—Blue serge, with facings of black satin, is here shown. The blouse is finished with deep box plait in back and front, and the usual small pocket trimming. The sleeve may be in wrist or elbow length. The skirt is a three-piece model.

The Pattern is cut in 3 sizes: 12, 14 and 16 years. It requires 4 1/4 yards of 44-inch material for a 14-year size. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

COUNT REVENTLOW DISCONTINUES AMERICA.
AMSTERDAM, Feb. 21.—Count von Reventlow, writing the Tages Zeitung, discusses the possibility that President Wilson might be induced by new American workmen to declare war on Germany, believing that all transportation difficulties would be cleared thoroughly. The question is what will remain of the wave has ebbed and subsided, weeks and months show that this time are quite different from Spanish war. The more effective of man submarine war will proceed the meanwhile and the United States will have to recognize that neutral declaration of war not emergency. COUNT REVENTLOW DISCUSSES AMERICA.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 21. Count von Reventlow, writing in the Tages Zeitung, discusses what he considers a possibility that President Wilson might be induced by pressure of American workmen to declare war on Germany, believing that all transportation difficulties would be removed thoroughly. Count von Reventlow says if President Wilson believes he has to declare war, this will, without doubt, be done with such a great and clever use of the tom tom that at first a so-called wave of enthusiasm will go through the whole population, but the question is what will remain when the wave has ebbed and subsequent weeks and months show that things this time are quite different to the Spanish war. The more effective German submarine war will proceed in the meanwhile and the United States will have to recognize that neither a declaration of war nor energetic measures have removed the difficulties at home or abroad. Count von Reventlow criticizes Bernstorff's farewell message to America. We cannot say, he writes, that this effusive talk of a heart overflowing with friendship is opportune at the present moment; it looks as if the Ambassador has lost his sense of perspective.

THE FOOD QUESTION IN NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21. The women of New York tenements have taken the food situation in their own hands, and planned a series of public demonstrations to convince the Mayor and city officials that something must be done to reduce prices. One of the wildest protest meetings the city has ever known, broke up early to-day, after making arrangements for a great parade of women and children to march all day through Wall Street and at night through Fifth Avenue. An appeal was sent to President Wilson and a committee appointed to demand that the city appropriate $1,000,000 to be used immediately for buying and distributing food among the poor at cost. Impassioned speakers called upon the poor of the East Side to organize and pledge financial support of Trade Unions. Capitalists were blamed for the high cost of food on the ground that they were amassing wealth by sending it to Europe.

AMERICAN NOTE CONSIDERED VAGUE.

VIENNA, Feb. 21. The inquiry of the United States regarding the Austria-Hungarian attitude in connection with Germany's submarine warfare is considered vague in official circles. It is stated that the reason for this is that the notes mentioned in the American communication were not intended to tie the hands of the Austro-Hungarian Government in the future, but dealt entirely with cases that had actually occurred.

OBEDIENT GREECE.

CORFU, Feb. 21. Complying with the demands of England, France, Italy and Russia the last Greek soldier of the Greek regular garrison on the Island of Corfu has left for Peloponessus, and force only sufficient to police the Island remains. The disarming of Thessaly also is complete, not an army rifle remains north of the Othrys mountains. The demands of the Allied Powers contained in their ultimatum of Dec. 14th have been satisfied in full so far as any other danger of attack on General Sarrail's rear is concerned. The 30,000 men and nine batteries of artillery of the Greek army that were considered a menace to the safety of the Allied Orient forces put a second range of mountains between themselves and Macedonia and will shortly add the Gulf of Corinth a third insurmountable obstacle to any attack on the Allied armies. Even rifles not in active use for which every Greek paid out of his savings at the behest of King Constantine have been turned over to the military authorities and transported southward to the Peloponessus.

ONTARIO WOMEN WILL BE GIVEN SUFFRAGE.

TORONTO, Feb. 21. Women will be given the suffrage by the Ontario Legislature this session. That the Government had its mind pretty well made up was indicated in the House by Sir William Hearst in the opening round of the debate of the speech from the throne.

LEAVING GERMANY.
LONDON, Feb. 21. Reuter's Zurich correspondent says American Consuls from Germany began to arrive in Switzerland on Tuesday.

THE USUAL SINKINGS.
LONDON, Feb. 21. The British ship Centurion, 1,828 tons, has been sunk. She was built in Glasgow in 1891.

RULING BY PRIZE COURT.
LONDON, Feb. 21. The Prize Court to-day disallowed the application of the crew of the British submarine E-14 for prize bounty for sinking the Turkish steamer Gulgamal, which was carrying six thousand troops. The court ruled that the bounty is payable only for sinking an armed ship, which might be regarded as an actual fighting unit. The and what doubts remained were discussed by a caucus of Conservative members yesterday, when the Government laid before the members their decision to give women the vote. While there was considerable discussion of details, there was little opposition.

STILL UNDECIDED.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 21. The sinking by gun fire from a German submarine of the Norwegian steamer Dalbeite, with two Americans aboard, was added to-day to the State Department's list of Germany's illegal acts, which are slowly accumulating and testing the patience of the Government. After the Cabinet meeting late yesterday, there was no indication that the President had made known what his next step would be or when it would be taken. At the State Department, it was said, the situation remained as serious as it could be.

SAGNOA ASHORE NEAR LOUISBURG.
HALIFAX, Feb. 21. The Nfld. coastal steamer Sagnona is ashore on a mud bank near Louisburg. She was bound to Louisburg evidence failed to show that the transport in question was such a ship. Special provision was made, however, to cover the case if at any time further evidence was forthcoming that the transport was a fighting ship. The amount claimed by the crew of the E-14 was £31,000. When the case was brought before the court last month, it was stated the sinking of the transport caused the loss of 6,200 lives, the greatest number of any single naval casualty during the war. Counsel for the crew of the submarine claimed a prize bounty of £5 per head for each man lost, and contended that as the Turkish transport had field artillery aboard she was an armed ship within the meaning of the prize bounty act.

THE MARCH CONFERENCE.

OTTAWA, Feb. 21. The reference in the London cable to the New York Tribune to the postponement of the Imperial Conference, is puzzling officials here, who have had no intimation of any such action. It is pointed out that no date has even been set for the conference, for the reason that it would depend upon the length of time it would require for the overseas delegates to reach England. It is assumed here that what is meant by the postponement is the possible delay due to the Australian situation delaying that delegation's departure. Mid-March would be the earliest possible date now that the Conference could meet, as it requires three weeks to make the Australian trip.

SUCCESSFUL ENTERPRISES CARRIED OUT.

LONDON, Feb. 21. Successful enterprises were carried out by our troops last night at points along our front, says to-night's official from British headquarters in France. On the Somme front we seized a section of the enemy's trenches, north of Guaiscourt and took twenty-one prisoners. The enemy's trenches, south of Armentieres were also entered by us on a front of some 650 yards. Our troops penetrated deeply into the enemy's position, inflicted many casualties and captured 44 prisoners. We also raided the enemy's lines to the southeast of Ypres on a front of 600 yards and reached his support line. Many Germans were killed, several dug-outs and mine-shafts destroyed, much damage done the enemy's defences and 114 prisoners captured, including one officer and four machine guns were brought back. In all these enterprises our casualties were slight.

The total number of prisoners taken in the last 24 hours was 184. Our artillery was active during the day north of the Somme at a number of points between Armentieres and Ypres.

IN ENGLAND.
OTTAWA, Feb. 21. Sir Robert Borden and party have arrived safely in England.

THREATENED RUPTURE.
AMSTERDAM, Feb. 21. The Frankfurter Zeitung learns from Berlin that the American memorandum presented by Ambassador Penfield to the Austro-Hungarian foreign minister at Vienna leaves no doubt that a rupture of relations will follow.

GERMAN SUB. WARFARE.
LONDON, Feb. 21. Vice-Admiral Von Capelle, the German Navy Minister, told the Reichstag yesterday, according to Berlin de-

THE GERMAN MORALE.

LONDON, Feb. 21. Reuter's correspondent with the British headquarters in France says, a copy of an order issued by Field Marshal Von Hindenburg has come into possession of the British forces. In part the order says, The operations at Verdun from October to December resulted in serious and regrettable reverses, and incapable officers must be ruthlessly removed. The number of prisoners which was unusually large for German troops, some of whom evidently surrendered without serious resistance or without suffering heavy losses, shows that the morale of some of the troops engaged was low. The reason for this requires most careful investigation, and that steps must be taken to revive the old spirit of the German army."

ARMENIA'S FLIGHT.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21. One-third of the Armenian race has been massacred or died from starvation and disease since the European war began, and one-half of these remaining are homeless or dying in exile, according to a message from John Massard, famous English writer, made public here tonight by the American committee for Armenian and Syrian relief. The message said in part: Far away as she is from the main conflict, Armenia has suffered more in this war than any devastated land of Europe. She is like a victim met by troops on the march, beaten, stabbed and left to die. There is nothing in her misery to make a headline or battle cry; it is just dumb suffering, lying by the road.

FOOD RIOT.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 21. A food riot took place by the wives of striking employees of the Franklin Sugar Refining Co. and resulted in the killing of one man and the serious injury of nine others when the police and strikers clashed near the refinery.

atches, that the submarine warfare not only realized but surpassed the navy's expectations. There was no reason to suppose, he said, that a single U-boat had been lost since the beginning of the unrestricted campaign. British defensive measures, added the Vice-Admiral, remained normal. There was actually no shipping in the North Sea and neutral shipping was virtually stopped. The provisioning of Britain had approached danger point, and complete fulfillment of expectations based on the submarine war could be relied upon.

Boy's Last Prayer.

On the battlefield I lie,
 My breath I draw more painfully,
 I shall breathe my last,
 My Lord, I know it well,
 I do not fear to die,
 I start my Father, Lord and Friend,
 Now I see no reason why
 I fear to go to Thee.

Answered at my country's call,
 I took the sword and lance,
 I left my home and quitted away
 To fight for her in France;
 Now I did as a Briton should,
 I fight for land and kir,
 For my parents, home and friends,
 For my love, my everything,
 Because my place was here.

Peacefully my soul can take
 Flight to heaven's high,
 I have stood and faced the foe,
 I am prepared to die;
 My feeding form shall rest alone
 In the field where I fought and fell,
 I fear not death or a lonely tomb,
 My Lord, I've tried to serve Thee well
 Now Thou'll take care of me.

WAR SUMMARY.

LONDON, To-day.
 Again the British forces fighting in France have attacked positions at several points and have been rewarded for their efforts by an aggregate gain of more than 1150 yards, according to the latest British official report. South of Arras the German line was penetrated deeply on a front of about 650 yards and South-east of Ypres on a front of about 900 yards. Numerous casualties were inflicted on the Germans at both places and prisoners and guns also were taken. The British casualties are said to have been slight. Near Gauecourt, in the Somme sector, the British also seized a section of the German trenches and took prisoners. There is still considerable artillery activity by both Germans and French in the region of Verdun, but elsewhere along the line held by the French there have been no new developments. Berlin reports that an attempt by the French to capture Hill 185, south of Ripont, failed with heavy casualties. On the Austro-Italian front bombardments and small enterprises carried out by raids and reconnoitering parties continue. A like situation prevails on the Eastern Front, from the Baltic down into Romania. An attack by British detachments between the Vardar River and Lake Doiran on the north Macedonian front served to vary recent operations on this front. Berlin reports the attack repulsed.

do something to bring about a reduction of the prices of food stuffs, were planned by representatives of one of the Central Powers and put into execution by means of money disbursed through a New York Bank, according to a circumstantial report which reached city officials last night. The motive of those who concocted the scheme of hiring men and women of the tenements to help to organize food riots, is said to have been to impress upon the minds of the law-makers of the country the necessity of placing an embargo upon the food stuffs of the country in order that food exports to the Allies would cease.

ROUNDING UP SPIES IN U. S. A.

NEW YORK, To-day.
 Evidence pointing to wide ramifications of an alleged German spy plot in this country will be laid before the Federal Grand Jury called to meet here to-morrow. It is understood that the Department of Justice is particularly desirous of investigating the methods used to get American passports by aliens not entitled to them. The first cases to come before the Jury will be those of Albert Sandor and Karl W. Wunnenberg, accused of violating the neutrality laws in sending men abroad to obtain British war secrets for Germany. Federal officials, it was learned to-day, are searching for other persons involved in this alleged conspiracy. Three men now under arrest, one in England and two in Holland, will be brought here as witnesses in this investigation.

AMERICAN SHIP ON FIRE.

NEW YORK, To-day.
 The Ward Line steamer Monterey, which sailed last night for Havana, but was forced to turn back by fire in her hold, discovered when she was fourteen miles beyond the Scotland lightship, returned to her dock here to-day. Her captain reported that the fire was out. The extent of the damage, it was said by officers of the line, could not be estimated until the cargo was removed from the after hold, where the fire occurred.

TAFT SPEAKS OUT.

NEW YORK, To-day.
 War and the preservation of the honor of the nation, or craven peace are the alternatives which face the United States if Germany holds to her decree of ruthless submarine warfare and sinks American vessels, former President Taft declared in an address here last night. "There are worse things than war," said Taft. "The occasion has arisen when the issue is between the honour, dignity and self defence of a nation and a craven yielding to opportunism. Our people are on our vessels under our own flag on the high seas, where they have a right to be. If they are attacked, it is an attack on our honour and our territory and it must be met."

CANADIAN WOMEN FOR FRANCE.

PETERBORO, Ont., To-day.
 Captain J. H. Burnham, M. P., has called to the British War Office to raise a contingent of Canadian girl clerks for France to relieve men for the trenches. Capt. Burnham has opened lists at his office to receive the names of young women willing to meet the demand for female help.

YARROWDALE PRISONERS RELEASED.

AMSTERDAM, To-day.

"Sure thing," said the Cynic.

Why "Don't you get it yourself?" asked the Authorman's wife in the spoken, puncturing way wives use.

"Sure," said the Cynic, amiably accepting the ready support one man gives another when attacked by a female, especially a wife.

"Don't men funny that way? In my feeling about buying things, I'm sure."

SALT AS A BEAUTY AID

A solution of salt and water applied to the skin will act as a stimulant and remedy enlarged pores if one systematically follows the treatment. Of course, the skin must be thoroughly cleansed before bathing it with salt water, otherwise the salt water, which is an astringent, will contract pores clogged with their accumulation of dust and grease. If you conscientiously use salt water baths your skin will be generally improved before many weeks have passed.

If the skin is flabby try a "salt rub". This means that you take a handful of salt and rub it over the face, not too vigorously, or it will redden the skin. Then bathe the face in the usual manner. Salt water will also make the skin firm and accomplish the best results it should be used twice a day.

Always have a box of salt handy in the bathroom, and you should take several salt baths each week. They are an invaluable remedy for nervousness and weakness, and will invigorate the system so that you will not be troubled with that tired feeling. Sea salt is purchasable at every pharmacy, or you can use the ordinary kitchen salt, adding one or two handfuls to the bath, according to the amount of water in the tub.

There is nothing better for the eyes than a weak solution of salt and water. If the eyelids are bathed frequently with this lotion it will "tone up" the tissues and promote a healthy condition of the eyes.

When the eyes are inflamed or irritated they may be soothed by salt water applied by the eye cup. It will not only relieve the inflammation, but will increase the brilliancy of the eyes and keep them in a healthy condition.

There are so few home remedies that may be safely applied to the eyes that you should always remember salt.

Eloquent Sermon.

BY MISSION FATHER.

"This is an acceptable time" was the theme of the first Lenten sermon preached at the R. C. Cathedral last evening by Rev. Fr. Lynch, of the Vincentian Order. Fr. Lynch has a fluent and eloquent delivery and his logic is very lucid. After prefatory remarks on the beauty of the edifice and the devotion of the large congregation present, the orator reminded us of our nothingness in this life as implied in the imposition of the blessed ashes. As to man's future destiny he exhorted his listeners to follow the Church's teachings, giving as illustrations of the human soul, the bird of passage and the ship.

Rev. Fr. Conway recited the Rosary and also imparted Benediction.

Hockey Notes.

This evening at the Prince's Rink the Terra Novas and Victorias will contest for championship honours.

The Vics. have a new cover point to present with a view to strengthening their team. The Terra Novas have got a new right wing man and believe they have made an improvement.

The supporters of either team are equally confident of victory.

The President of the League will perform the duties of referee and the probable players will be: Terra Novas—Quick, goal; Herder, point; Tobin, cover; Watts, rover; Traynor, left; Clouston, centre; Sellers, right.

WINARD'S LIMENT FOR SALT STYXWIND.

A Visit to St. Clare's Home.

There are many institutions which, going on in their own quiet, helpful, and splendid way, we hear but little of. The "even tenor" begun—the system wants neither advertising nor bombastic bespeak, for like all good things it is found out of itself and proves worthy of the highest expectations. Since its inception, St. Clare's Home for young ladies, has been doing a good work. Many of our working girls find within its precincts not only a protection and assurance of protection from temptation's wiles, but a home of comfort, of commendable accommodation, and systematic betterment. Its environment goes for gentle and kindly training, not in a technical sense, but in that better precept of example and order. The Home under the control of the good Mother Bernard has a splendid system to which each young lady is requested to subscribe whilst an inmate of the place. Rules and regulations must be observed, and it is but fair to say that the lady boarders there heartily endorse the strict keeping of the whole. The writer had the pleasure of calling at the Home on LeMarchant Road, a few days ago, and the further pleasure of a chat with Mother Bernard who is a lady of keen perception and splendidly selected to govern the institution under her care. The good reverend Mother was enthusiastic over the future good work that the Home promises to do. The girls there were all happy and comfortable, and the Rev. Superioress felt that after a little time many more would seek and find admission to this institution which has all the influences of the ideal about it.

For pain in the back and weak kidneys one of the best external measures consists in the application of one of our Kidney Plasters to the seat of the pain or weakness. These plasters are extra large and are mounted on heavier material than most plasters, thus enabling them to give considerably more support to the parts than the ordinary thin plasters. The reports we get of their value for the purposes in question are very encouraging. Price 30c. each.

For certain forms of sore throat, tonsillitis, sore tongue and stomatitis Paraformic Lozenges are simply invaluable. They are strongly antiseptic and are softening and demulcent as well. Price 30c. a bottle.

Hant's Harbour Notes

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—Observing that nothing has been on the road for publication to grace the columns of your much esteemed paper, from our neighborhood, we kindly ask your permission for a little space to say something of "Passing Events," especially in celebration of the first anniversary of prohibition. On Saturday evening, Feb. 3rd under the auspices of the W.C.T.U., a very important public meeting was held to celebrate the glorious victory that has been won in this dear old Newfoundland of ours. Little over one year has elapsed since the seal has been affixed forbidding the sale of the dreadful demon called strong drink, so long a curse to our land. The meeting was presided over by the President, Mrs. A. Targett, and Miss M. Pelley, presided at the organ. Readings, recitations, singing and speeches followed in due course. Among the speakers were Capt. Roberts, S. A., also Colonel Oatway and Adj. Tilley who reached Hant's Harbour just a few hours previous to the meeting. They spoke in glowing terms of the great work accomplished by the W. C. T. U. through their great world-wide organization and especially of the noble part played by them in the recent fight for prohibition in Newfoundland. We regretted sincerely the absence of our esteemed Pastor, Rev. R. Maddock, who, through illness in the home, could not be with us. The White Ribbon Rally Song and others from the leaflet were sung heartily by the audience. The singing of the National Anthem brought a very pleasant evening to a close, and all went home wishing for another such meeting in the near future.
In passing we must not forget to make mention of the joyous event extending a right royal welcome to one of the defenders of our native land who after two years and three months of trying experience on H. M. S. Albatross and Marlborough in the North Sea, arrived home in excellent spirits and in the best of health. During the summer of 1914 Mr. Arthur Pelley heard the first call from King and country. Being a R. N. R. he proceeded to St. John's where he joined H. M. S. Calypso. After a month's service he was sent with the first draft for Overseas Service. On arrival in England was registered for H. M. S. Albatross of the second line cruiser squadron. In the spring of 1915 being transferred to H. M. S. Marlborough of the first line battle cruiser squadron which ship under command of Admiral Beattie played a prominent part in the world renowned battle of the coast of Jutland. He came through without mishap and was granted leave of absence on Christmas 1916 and arrived home by way of Halifax, Jan. 9th. Prior to his arrival at Hant's Harbour a meeting was called and arrangements made to give him a right royal welcome. At 10 o'clock the next day almost the whole neighbourhood gathered at the Post Office, long ropes were attached to the carriage and the word given to advance, and like a military parade headed by infantrymen started off to meet our hero who was travelling with Mr. Roe, mailman; when about one mile outside the harbour a salute of 21 guns was fired which greeted the appearance of our homeward bound hero. After being transferred to the carriage the National Anthem was sung followed by a salute of musketry until the whole hills reverberated with the sound. Seated by his Harbour and back to his home where addresses were given by Rev. R. Maddock and J. W. James, S.M. A spread was provided by the good ladies at the L. O. A. Hall. The building was crowded to its utmost capacity. A concert was given consisting of songs, recitations and speeches followed by a detailed account of what war time was like in the North Sea by R. N. R. Pelley. The reception was all that could be desired and if our other representatives at the front are spared to come back we shall give them the same hearty welcome.

THE WELSH RAREBIT

The Welsh rarebit represents an earnest effort to find out how much the human stomach will stand without rising up in open and uncontrolled rebellion.

The stomach is given to mankind for the purpose of converting food into grain and muscle. Sometimes it leans too much in the direction of muscle and seems to forget that a few brains will not injure the tout ensemble, but this is because people insist upon eating something which was intended solely for the adult ostrich. If the stomach is treated right and not called upon to digest food which would appall a cement mixer it will perform its work with the smoothness and rhythm of a street accordion, and will accompany the owner down to old age without having to be overhauled and rehabbed every few months.

The Welsh rarebit is composed mainly of cheese and luck, and if either ingredient is lacking it is a total failure. Some people can make a dozen rarebits in succession and feed them to trustful friends without causing a single death, while others do not secure the right combination more than three times out of five. When a Welsh rarebit goes wrong it draws down with it a whole roomful of expectant guests who would be glad to revert to the status quo.

Owing to the popular contempt for law which prevails in this country, young brides are permitted to make Welsh rarebit four nights a week in a chafing dish which was given as a wedding present and thus undermine the constitutions of their husbands who are too weak to say no. If the time spent in weaving the rich, self-lubricating Welsh rarebit were put to some practical use, like learning how to make rye bread or replacing a much-needed pants button, it would not be necessary for so many married men to take their appetites to some $30-a-day sanitarium and have them re-charged with mineral water.

"Cascarets" for a Cold, Bad Breath or Sick Headache

Best for liver and bowels, for biliousness, sour stomach and constipation.

Get a 10-cent box now.
Furred Tongue, Bad Colds, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Movable Head-aches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret-to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then to keep their stomach, liver and bowels regulated, and never know a miserable moment. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

VITAL TRUTHS.

The vital truths are old and gray; they're old because they're true; the vital truth we spring to-day, old Father Noah knew. If any man comes up, forsooth, and says that he can show a truly modern vital truth, oh, lay the fakelaw, A m a n might rustle up a lie that bears the signs of youth, but never, friend, will you desecrate a strictly recent truth. The vital truth is that which leads the sons of men aright, to useful lives and goodly deeds, and records clean and white. We know that industry will pay, that honesty is great; and truths like these however gray, are never out of date. Old Adam knew them as he wrought among the first green trees, and he rehearsed them as he sought his missing swarm of bees. Oh, every blessed rule of life, that's likely to exalt, was old when Lot's devoted wife became a chunk of salt. The vital truths are but a few, and easy to adopt; the truths which seem grotesquely new don't count, and may be dropped.

Winter Fishery

PROSPECTS GOOD ON WESTERN GROUNDS.

Advices from Rose Blanche to the Board of Trade just now say:—"Codfishery prospects are good between Rose Blanche and Hr. LeCou. Cod is very plentiful on the Banks, but only frozen herring and squid is obtainable for bait. Four boats with one dory each secured 25 qts. each for part of two days' fishing, but those operating on the outside grounds did not do so well. The schooner Dorothy Melita, Capt. Thornhill, for part of 2 days got 190 qts.

"Between Burnt Islands and Hiscock's Point, prospects are also good when the weather permits operations, according to a report from Mr. A. Keeping. Some of the skiffs that have trawls find cod very plentiful, but setting is possible only occasionally because of the ice. The bait used is frozen squid and herring."

What a Gas Range Means for You, Mrs. Housekeeper.

The gas range is a muscle saver and a step saver. Think of the many tons of coal you used in that coal range, and how you have had to handle it all twice; first, carrying it up out of the cellar; then, from the kitchen to the ash barrel.
No more soot to wipe away; no more ashes to cart away; no more wood to fetch; no more coal dust; no more smoke and no more reason why the kitchen cannot be kept as clean and as orderly as the parlor. The gas range means just this.

Saves 50 Per Cent. of Kitchen Care.
Half of the labor in the house is caused by dust from the coal range. Every time it smokes, no matter how good the draught may be clouds of ashes rise and settle on the furniture.

It Eliminates Hard Work.
Use a gas range and you will live better, you will play better, and you will work better because the use of the gas range eliminates the drudgery of carrying coal, ashes and the chopping of kindling, as well as the drudgery of cleaning up a lot of dirt, and, best of all, for the cook it makes it unnecessary for her to stand over a hot stove from two to three hours a day.

Wedding Bells

A very interesting event took place Tuesday night at Wesley Parsonage, when Rev. H. Royle united in marriage Miss Leah Brown, of Patrick Street, daughter of Mr. Eli Brown, to Mr. A. Smith, also of St. John's. The bride was attended by Miss Jannie Laing and the groom by Mr. William Hackett. After the ceremony the wedding party drove round the town returning at length to the home of the bride where a very pleasant evening was spent. We cordially congratulate the happy couple and wish them much joy.

SIR EDWARD CARSON ON THE SUBMARINE MENACE.

LONDON, Feb. 21.

In a speech in the House of Commons Sir Edward Carson, First Lord of the Admiralty, said the submarine menace recently had grown until its extent had become a grave and serious menace. It had not yet been solved, but the measures which had been adopted, he said, would mitigate it by degrees. Sir Edward informed the House that an anti-submarine department had been established at the Admiralty, composed of the most experienced and capable men in the navy. The number of armed merchant-ships had been increased 47 per cent. during the last two months. There were those, said Sir Edward, who would expect him to deal mainly with the growth of the submarine menace. He would do so by surveying the work of the navy. He emphasized the importance of what the Grand Fleet was doing by pointing out that it was assisting the expeditions to Mesopotamia, Salonika and Egypt. It had to keep the seas clear, and upon the whole, he continued, the country had suffered less from privations than any of the belligerents. The total number of the personnel carried across the seas up to the end of last October was 8,000,000. In the first eighteen days of February, the First Lord of the Admiralty announced, 89 allied and neutral ships of more than 1,000 tons were lost, with a total tonnage of 252,000. This was compared with the losses of 69 vessels of 261,000 tons during the first eighteen days of December, and 65 vessels of 182,000 tons during the first eighteen days of January. Up to the end of October, also, added Sir Edward, the naval forces had moved more than 3,000,000 tons of explosives and other material, 1,000,000 sick and wounded, more than one million horses and mules and more than 4,000,000 gallons of petrol. They had examined on the high seas or in harbors 15,150 ships. In January last alone in British ports they had examined 1,754 ships. The total for February would not be less than that. For January, he said, the navy's figures, Sir Edward stated, showed 75 per cent. of armed vessels escaped after submarine attack, while only 24 per cent. of unarmed vessels escaped. While not giving the number of submarines destroyed, Sir Edward said, he had a record of forty encounters with them during the last eighteen days. Including the smaller vessels, said Sir Edward, the total number of ships lost, both allied and neutral, during the first eighteen days of December, January and February with their tonnage follow: The month of December, 118 ships, tonnage 225,000; January, 91 ships, tonnage 198,000; February, 124 ships, tonnage 204,000. The total vessels plying to and from the United Kingdom ports during the first eighteen days of February was 12,949, the number of arrivals being 6,976 and departures 6,873. It is estimated that the number of ships in the so-called danger zone at any one time was 2,000. In the face of all these sinkings and Accompanying Sacrifices and Trials.

the First Lord of the Admiralty said he had not heard of a single sailor who had refused to sail. That was what was going to win the war, he declared. Neutrals might be nervous and frightened, but they would follow the British example, he believed, and would shortly resume sailings. Sir Edward said he proposed in the future

ture, daily if possible, to publish together the number of losses by mines and torpedoes, and the number of merchant ships entering and leaving ports in the United Kingdom. He would also publish a list of vessels which had been attacked by and escaped from submarines. In introducing the naval estimates in the Commons, to-day, Carson said, the vote for four hundred thousand men which the Government was asking was demonstrating the strength of the navy. He expressed the opinion that the country was extremely fortunate in having Admiral Jellicoe at the head of the Admiralty. In his record of service and experience Admiral Jellicoe occupied a unique position as an officer at the Admiralty. For two and a half years he had held the destinies of the country in his hands. Admiral Beatty, continued Carson, was now commanding the greatest fleet which ever sailed the sea, and he had complete confidence in his officers and men. A fifth sea lord had been appointed to deal with the air service, he announced, while the transport department of the navy, except in so far as it was concerned with the transport of troops, had been transferred to the shipping controller. In announcing that he had received reports of forty encounters with submarines during the first eighteen days of February, Sir Edward said, the fact that we got to grips with them more than forty times in 18 days was an enormous achievement. Sir Edward quoted from some of these reports dealing with various encounters to show the varying degrees of certainty or uncertainty as to the fate of the submarines. As an instance in which the result positively was known, he quoted the ramming by a destroyer of the submarine; while two other cases from which he quoted disclosed some methods adopted for fighting the submarines. In one of these he referred to reports from an airship which had dropped bombs where the submarine had submerged. A similar report came from a seaplane which had used the same method against other submarines. Referring to shipbuilding, Sir Edward said, not a single ship would be left unoccupied during the coming month and that steps had been taken to meet the demands in this respect both of the Admiralty and the mercantile marine. He appealed to workers to labor with unremitting energy, and to the nation to consent to restriction of imports in order to make easier the task of the Admiralty. The arming of a merchant ship, said Sir Edward, involved an enormous amount of work, but was Progressing More Rapid Each Week.

Commenting on the figures showing the losses of shipping from submarine attacks during the first 18 days of February, Sir Edward said, our losses are bad enough, but they are not equal to the blatant, extravagant, bravado German account of them. In conclusion, Carson said, there was not a particle of truth in the allegation that the Government had forbidden the publication of losses of shipping, and that so far as he was concerned he would not be a party to the concealment of these losses. Turning to the desirability of giving details of its campaign of murder. All that is known by the German Admiralty is that she did not return, everything else is a mystery. Another objection to the publication of such losses was the difficulty of establishing with certainty the destruction of submarines from day to day. Reports ran from certainty through probability down to possibility and improbability. Sir Edward said he believed the problem of the submarine menace could be solved, but it could only be solved if the nation acted in conjunction with the navy. That it would be solved, however, he was certain. Winston Spencer-Churchill, formerly First Lord of the Admiralty, who followed Carson as next speaker, said the present submarine danger arose from the new efforts and new devices adopted by the Germans since August, 1914. Our sole anxiety arises from the ac-

THE HOPE OF THE COUNTRY IS IN SIR ROBERT BOND.

To the Electors of Newfoundland: Fellow-countrymen.—The time is approaching when you will once more be called upon to elect a Government. Consider then, in season, and ponder well the responsibility facing you. Through the exercise of your franchise only can a Government hold power, for it is an axiom of politics that all government is by the consent of the governed.

For eight years you have been ruled by a party which arrogated to itself the title of THE PEOPLE'S PARTY. No more false sentiment was ever incorporated into a name. The CONTRACTORS' COTERIE or REID'S RETAINERS would have fitted it with better truth. Nevertheless by the use of your franchise you elected these men to power in 1909 and again in 1913. Are you going to continue them in office after 1917? It is to be hoped not.

No need here to recapitulate their misdeeds. They show luridly in the public light. They have permitted all canons of decency in political life to be set at naught. Their motto has been PLACE AND PAY, and to secure these things have not been characterised by any love of country or desire for the country's advancement. They have collected your revenues and squandered them on their friends; they have filled the civil service to overflowing with their henchmen and needy hangers on; they have allowed a public contractor, who is also a common carrier, to advance his freight rates to an exorbitant and prohibitive figure without one word of protest, proving conclusively that the contractor is the Government; they have tinkered with the tariff, using it as a means to further their own ends; they have borrowed money right and left, increasing the public debt by millions, all of which mismanagement and extravagance has tended to bring Newfoundland to the verge of bankruptcy. They have used their majority in the House of Assembly to pass measures, not for the public weal, but for the good of individuals. But why itemize further? Their Belshazzar feast is nearing its end. The handwriting of doom is on their wall.

Turn you then to the other side of the picture. In sending these men into political oblivion, whom will you select as their successors? This is the question that is fraught with momentousness and requires an answer—NOW. There is growing up in our midst a new power, a corporate body bent on an initial endeavour to capture the whole trade of the Colony, and next to control its Government. In other words to make an attempt to seize upon the Public Treasury, and if successful to use our Legislative Assembly for the purpose of legalising their monopoly of trade and to dispose of the revenues of the country as they think will best advance their own interests.

More dangerous than ever was the Reid's attempt in 1900 to secure the Government will this new menace be. More fatal to the best interests of Newfoundland than ever Reid's control would be. No matter how you look at it, a monopoly, whether by a contractor or a commercial enterprise, is a monopoly just the same, with the worst features manifested in the latter.

How then are you going to be released from the incapacity and incompetence of the present Government on the one hand, and from the gripping monopoly which threatens you, on the other? There is, apparently, no third political party to combat the designs of the other two. Have you then to choose between Morris and Coaker, or will you have to accept a MORRIS-COAKER combination? If so, then in escaping Scylla you are liable to run upon Charybdis; or to use a more homely simile, you will be out of the frying pan into the fire.

The question naturally arises now, is there a way out of this impasse? To that you can answer, there is!

Of late the name of the Right Honorable Sir Robert Bond has been brought to the fore and suggested as THE one man who can rescue Newfoundland from her present troubles. But the introduction of the Right Honorable gentleman's name has not been backed by concerted sentiment. The calls have been sporadic, though none the less genuine for all that; but to make the appeal loud enough there must be a strong public opinion in every district shouting from the house-tops, and from the mountains, the name of the man who can yet save Newfoundland from the foe within the gates; from the imitation patriots who would strike at the very fundamentals of her life. This call must be made with no uncertain sound, and once made, the resolve must be behind the call to roll up to the support of Sir Robert Bond and a New Liberal Party. "Let all the ends thou aim'st at be thy country's." Let your voices be heard, my countrymen, in this. Let the sound of your invitation to the incorruptible commoner to once more accept the helm of state and guide our ship into safer waters be heard in thundering reverberation from Cape Bauld to Cape Race; from Cape Race to Cape Ray; and from Cape Ray to Cape Bauld again, and be assured that the man who saved you from the Reid's domination in 1900 will again save you from a fate worse by far in 1917.

"Who would be free themselves must strike the blow."

Hopefully yours,
TERRA NOVA.

Wanted-A New Liberal Party

THE HOPE OF THE COUNTRY IS IN SIR ROBERT BOND.

To the Electors of Newfoundland: Fellow-countrymen.—The time is approaching when you will once more be called upon to elect a Government. Consider then, in season, and ponder well the responsibility facing you. Through the exercise of your franchise only can a Government hold power, for it is an axiom of politics that all government is by the consent of the governed.

For eight years you have been ruled by a party which arrogated to itself the title of THE PEOPLE'S PARTY. No more false sentiment was ever incorporated into a name. The CONTRACTORS' COTERIE or REID'S RETAINERS would have fitted it with better truth. Nevertheless by the use of your franchise you elected these men to power in 1909 and again in 1913.
