Reduction in Weight.

Until the opening of navigation parcel delivery on many of the present routes must be partially, and in some places, entirely suspended, and the difficulty of securing dog teams and weather conditions making it extremely difficult to convey heavy mails over tracks impassable for horses. The maximum weight of parcels for winter courier routes, until the end of April, is decreased from 11 pounds to 5 pounds, and these can only be accepted in small numbers. CHAPTER XVI.
COUNTY SOCIETY.

"My dear child, I was only joking! One would think you had committed a murder, or had some deadly secret you were afraid would slip out. Why, what a strange child you are! First pale, then red, and now pale again! Tut, tut, if I were your mother"—and she sighed—"I should send you to bed at nine o'clock at night for a month or two."

There was something so motherly and affectionate in the trifling that Edna lowered her face and had to struggle with her tears. If she had had a mother! Why should they all treat her like an innocent schoolgirl? If they only knew!

Miss Bromley could not go on playing all the evening, and presently the music ceased. Lord Mersey leaned against the piano for fully five minutes after it was silent, and then raised his head and looked round as if he was surprised to find himself where he was.

Then without a word of thanks he turned away and strode over to Edna. But there was a storm in Edna's bosom that warned her she had best beat a safe retreat while there was time, and with a feeling of thankfulness she heard Lady Portfield murmur that her carriage was waiting.

Edna had to wait until it had gone, and while she stood looking on at the card table Lord Mersey came up beside her.

"I'm going," he said, in his straightforward way. "Now that I find that it was Miss Weston who found me trespassing on her preserves I had better make a further apology and get a formal permission to repeat the offense."

Edna laughed.

"The Rosedene preserves and park and anything else that interests you on the premises, are at your service," she said.

"Eh?" he said, with a quick uprising of his eyebrows. "Miss Weston, that's rather comprehensive."

Edna blushed, half with annoyance at her own want of skill in framing her sentence.

"Come as often as you please, my lord," she said; "that is what I mean."

He took her hand and bowed low over it.

"I shall avail myself of that gracious permission," he said, gravely, "for I love the Rosedene woods. Good-night!"

The Rosedene bays came dashing over the courtyard stones, footmen swung back curtains and stood ready to fling open doors and dash down steps, and Edna found herself in the carriage, half wondering whether she had spent the evening sitting at the feet of a duchess.

Aunt Martha was enthusiastic in her praise of the castle and its illustrious inmates.

"As for the duchess, my dear Edna, is impossible to feel anything but at one's ease with her. I have always heard that the higher one goes in society the more natural and simple-hearted one finds the people. And so it must be when you come to consider it. Have you enjoyed yourself, dear?"

"Very much, aunt."

"I am very glad of that. How beautiful that dress of yours looked! Black and silver always suited you. And that was Lord Mersey with the high forehead and the dark eyes? Very clever, is he not, my dear?"

"Very aunt," said Edna, dutifully, as she leaned back and closed her eyes, and then Aunt Martha, overtired by excitement, leaned back among the luxurious cushions and went to sleep, too. But Edna was not asleep; she was thinking—thinking and traveling back to that summer eve when he had taken her close to his breast and whispered those sweet, fervent words that seemed to burn into her heart; to that summer morn when she knelt by his side before the altar and heard him swear to love and cherish her for better and for worse; to that summer eve, again, when he stood before her, stern and passionate, and bade her go her way and leave him to go his, promising that never would he claim the honor and obedience that she had promised him that day.

Edna opened her eyes and leaned forward. Oh, to think of it all was to court madness! They had neared More Park, were close upon it. The moon was high in the heavens, and shining full down upon the house. A turn in the road brought them to the winding avenue, the gravel path shining like marble in the moonlight, every tree and every shrub standing out like a piece of carving against the soft blue light.

Suddenly Aunt Martha feels her arm grasped and hears a low cry of alarm.

"What is it, my dear Edna?" she exclaims, waking suddenly, and starting straight before her.

"Look, aunt! Quick! quick! Do you see?"

"See—where—what?" asks Aunt Martha.

"There, in the avenue—a man! Look!"

Aunt Martha looks and sees, quite plainly, a tall man standing in the avenue of More Park, looking up at More House.

"Yes, my dear. I see him! It's very strange. What can it be? Perhaps it's a gamekeeper."

"No, no!" breathes Edna, and she is trembling terribly, "it is not a gamekeeper. I know it! I am sure of it! He is there for no good; how can he be at such a time of night? He has no right there! No right there!"

"My dear Edna!" remonstrates Mrs. Weston. "You are overstrung, excited. The most natural thing in the world for a stranger to stroll up the avenue on such a night to see the house in the moonlight.

"He was no stranger!" retorted Edna, with a trembling air of conviction. "I—I—feel as if I had seen him before," and she looked out of the window fearfully, but the carriage had left the avenue far behind by that time, and they were entering the Rosedene drive.

Edna fell back with a low, terrified sob.

"Hush, my dear!" soothed Aunt Martha; "overtired and excited, very naturally, too. My dear child!"

"No right there? Surely if any man had a right to stand in the avenue of More Park, Cyril More, the owner, had that right, for it was he and no other. And why had he come there on that moonlight night? Possibly to say farewell to the home of his forefathers before he turned his back once more, and perhaps for the last time. For that—to say farewell, and also for some other object. What was it?"

CHAPTER XVII.

"IF I COULD FIND OUT!"

EDNA started well, and continued winning golden opinions from all, save one or two young ladies who were inclined to regard her in the light of an intruder, poaching on their happy hunting grounds, especially those young ladies who lived in the vicinity of the manor, and were in the habit of casting designing thoughts toward that eccentric nobleman, Lord Mersey, for his lordship, in his unconscious way, which was more effective and courageous than an actually daring one, cultivated Edna's society assiduously. He had been used to confine his rambles to the Rosedene preserves, but since the young heiress had come down and lit up the old place with her sweet, innocent kind of beauty, he enlarged his walks, and soon penetrated into the flower garden, then on to the terrace, and so, by degrees, got into the habit of dropping into Aunt Martha's drawing room, just about five.

Aunt Martha and he got on remarkably; she was always glad to see him, and he seemed particularly fond of talking to her, though Aunt Martha did not understand one-half he was saying; but she liked to listen and declared that "it did her good."

"Ah, my dear Lord Mersey, if my poor brother—Edna's father, you know—were alive and here, what great friends you would be! There was nothing he had not studied. He used to talk to Edna and me, in the summer evenings, as we were at our work, just as you do."

And Lord Mersey would stroke his beard dreamily, and say:

"Miss Weston's father—yes, I should like to have known him."

But he seemed very well contented to know Edna herself, and Edna appeared, and was really glad, to see him.

There was a particularly comfortable chair beside the window, which gradually got to be regarded as Lord Mersey's chair, and in it he would seat himself, stretching his long legs out, with an air of repose and serenity, and placidly watch Aunt Martha make her tea, which she did after the duchess's own manner and receipt.

Edna's place was on a small couch drawn up beside a little table, which was generally littered with some fancy—very fancy—work, or book opened face downward. She, too, would watch Aunt Martha, or sit with her face half-shielded by her hand and gaze at the fire, and Lord Mersey's eyes would wander from Mrs. Weston's kindly, commonplace countenance to the sweet, delicate face a little further on, and he would wonder what had given to that face the strange, wistful, sad expression which would settle upon it so often, so very often.

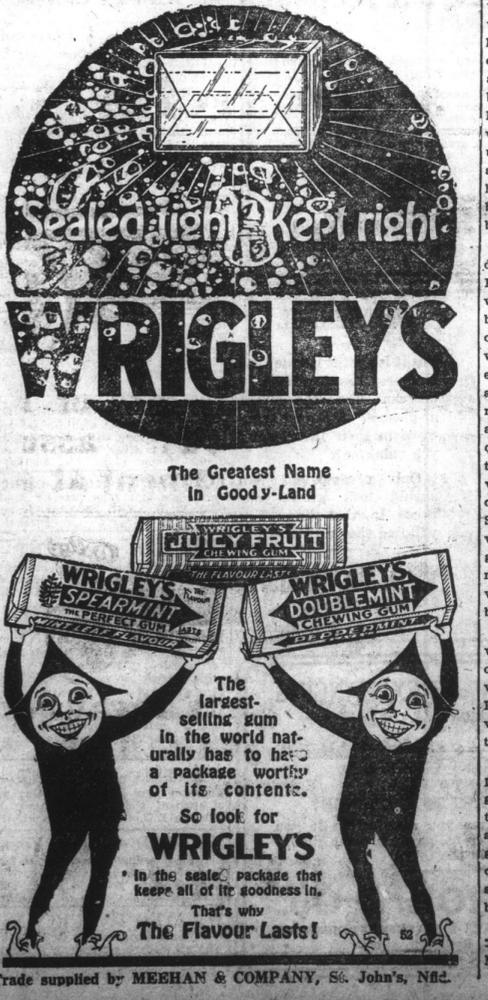

He knew, as one does know, that while he was talking sometimes she was not listening, that she could not have told a word if she had been asked, but that her thoughts were far away, recalling something—or somebody. At this latter suggestion Lord Mersey would look graver even than was his wont, and stroke his beard until it glistened and shone again, and he would murmur and mutter to himself, and rouse the dreaming beauty with some question that would be answered.

Sometimes other visitors would drop in—Lord Mersey's mother, Lady Portfield, or the vicar and his wife, very often the great duchess herself, but Lord Mersey would keep his chair—if he could do so without too violently infringing the rules of society, which says one visitor shall beat a retreat when another enters—and naturally people began to talk. Then again, Edna was too great an acquisition, too great an heiress, also, to be left in seclusion, and there were dinner parties and dances, all of which she was expected to attend. She would go, charming everybody with her simple, girlish beauty and gentle grace, and the men would go mad about her, not only because she was so beautiful and bewitching, but because she was so invulnerable.

Young Bromley stated the case—he was a barrister and heir to the baronetcy, and a lady-killer to boot—very plainly in the smoking room of Bromley Hall after a dinner party, at which Edna had been the beauty and the belle.

"I tell you what it is," said he, puffing impressively at a huge regalia, and looking pensively round at the listeners as they sat or lounged about the smoking room; "this is the gem of the county, and when she comes out in town there will be a sensation." She is irresistible. It is not because she is beautiful.

Too Much Talking at Peace Congress---Survivors of Shipwrecked Crew at New York.

WOUNDED ASSASSINATION.

PARIS, Feb. 19. (A.P.)—Premier Clemenceau was fired upon five times this morning while entering his automobile in the back and rear of the Hotel de Ville, but it is believed his injuries are not serious. The shooting occurred at 8:55 o'clock this morning. The assassin was an Italian named Raoul Giffard, who was arrested after the shooting. The assassin was an Italian named Raoul Giffard, who was arrested after the shooting. The assassin was an Italian named Raoul Giffard, who was arrested after the shooting.

May Become Acting Premier.
If the Premier's disability becomes permanent, Louis Nail, the Minister of Justice, will become Acting Premier. It is understood, however, that Andre Tardieu, French High Commissioner to the United States, will undertake the discharge of the Premier's duties with respect to the Peace Conference, should M. Clemenceau himself be unable to perform them. M. Tardieu having been associated with the Premier in every stage of the work of the Conference in which he is one of the French representatives.

Lived George Anxious.
Premier Lloyd George, of Great Britain, made constant inquiries by telephone from London throughout the morning and early afternoon, concerning the condition of Premier Clemenceau. The news of his shooting was telephoned to the British Premier shortly after it occurred and since then he has kept continually in touch with Paris.

KING'S SYMPATHY.
LONDON, Feb. 19. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—The King has telegraphed to Premier Clemenceau of France as follows: "I am shocked to hear of the cowardly attack on you this morning and earnestly trust that the injury is not serious, and thanks to your splendid energy and courage you will soon be restored to health to continue your great and valiant effort for France and the Allies."

NO SERIOUS RESULTS.
LONDON, Feb. 18. An official despatch received in London says that the doctor, after an examination of Premier Clemenceau, said that owing to his great physical powers, the Premier had been able to ward off serious results.

PERMANENT ARMISTICE TERMS.
PARIS, Feb. 18. The special commission of the Supreme Council charged with drafting the terms of a definite armistice which will hold good until the peace preliminaries are signed has almost completed its task and it is possible, says a Havas report, that Marshal Foch will be able to notify the Germans on Thursday or Friday of the military and naval terms which will be essentially those of the preliminary peace treaty. It is understood that the terms will include clauses by which Germany will be allowed to maintain only 25,000 men under arms. War material beyond what is necessary to equip these troops would according to these reports be placed under control of the Allies who will also head Germany's munition manufactures.

TIRED OF TALKING.
PARIS, Feb. 18. (By the A.P.)—The Supreme Council of the great powers to-day heard the portrayal of Serbia's claims. Some of the representatives of the Council, however, remained away, feeling that the time for talk was past, and the present need was action for getting back to a peace basis. This movement is taking form in the most responsible British, American, Italian and French quarters and promises to yield definite results within the next few days. The first stage will be in the permanent armistice plan which Marshal Foch will present within a fortnight, taking the place of the short term armistice announced yesterday. These permanent terms will be the preliminary steps toward peace and will be incorporated into the peace treaty to follow. This will bring a peace treaty measurably nearer.

TROOP LIFE ON MURMAN COAST.
LONDON, Feb. 18. (Via Reuter's.)—Reuter's learns from the latest arrivals from the Murman coast that the allied troops of the North Russian Expeditionary Force are in good health, and that military authorities are doing every thing to alleviate the discomforts of the extreme cold combined with the Arctic twenty-four hour night. The temperature was nearly forty degrees below zero Fahrenheit in January and only three to four hours of daylight during the month. At Fort Murman, which is 200 miles within the Arctic circle, the troops are mostly accommodated with wood lined log barracks or collapsible huts, fitted with sleeping bunks and Russian stoves. Various entertainments are frequently organized. Winter sports, especially skiing, also rough shooting are frequently indulged in. There are comparatively few cases of frost bite owing to the special fur clothing supplied. The North Russian Allied troops are garrisoning 350 miles of the Murman railway. Supplies for outposts are dispatched from the Rall-head sometimes 200 miles distant by reindeer sledges which are often driven by the women folk. Two of the latter have received the Military Medal for gallant conduct in repelling enemy raids on a food convoy. Murman is an ice free port, but the forces at Archangel are completely cut off from the outside world for six months of the year. Intercommunication between the forces commanded by Gen. Ironsides is only possible in winter time by aeroplane. Major Sir Ernest Shackleton is attached to General Maynard's headquarters as adviser on Arctic equipment, while a special force of Canadian officers and non-commissioned officers, all experienced in Klondike conditions, is attached to the force as instructors in Arctic life. Teams of "Husky" dogs have also been specially sent from Canada for transport work, though the local reindeer which roam in herds over the Lapp country are chiefly used for this purpose.

LAURIER'S FUNERAL ARRANGEMENTS.
OTTAWA, Feb. 18. The arrangements for Sir Wilfrid Laurier's funeral, while not yet complete, are to be carried out with all the impressive pomp and ceremony of the Catholic Church. Archbishop Mathieu, of Regina, one of the most distinguished prelates of the church in Canada and a personal friend of the dead statesman, will likely pronounce the funeral oration in French, while it is expected that Archbishop McNeil of Toronto will deliver the oration in English. The High Mass of Requiem will be celebrated in the Church of the Sacred Heart, where for many years Sir Wilfrid worshipped. The parish priest, Rev. Father LeFlamme, will be the celebrant. Government leaders and opposition representatives, high state officials, and many church dignitaries will be present at the service, while thousands are expected to walk in the funeral procession. Hundreds of cables and messages of condolence from all parts of the globe. One was from His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, who in the course of his tenure in Ottawa became one of Sir Wilfrid's closest friends.

WRECKED CREW AT NEW YORK.
NEW YORK, Feb. 18. The British steamship Freshwater arrived here from Seville, Spain, today with Capt. Keeping and three members of the crew of the British schooner William Morton lost on January 5th, ten miles off the Spanish coast. Three members of the crew perished when the boat in which the men left the schooner capsized. The William Morton was bound from Santa Pola, Spain, for St. John's, Nfld, her home port, with salt, when she sprang a leak and began to sink. The crew took to the lifeboat in heavy sea and rowed fifty-three hours before reaching land. The schooner registered 169 tons gross.

SOUTH AFRICAN DEBATE.
CAPE TOWN, Feb. 18. (Via Reuter's.)—The Assembly today continued the debate on the Republican propaganda. Sir Thomas Watt, Minister of the Interior, declared that it would be impossible for any League of Nations to treat South Africa with more consideration or more sympathetically than Great Britain had done. Col. Mentz, Minister of Lands, speaking as a former Transvaal Republican, declared that as long as Great Britain kept faith he would keep his word given a Verwoerd, but they must show that they intended honorably to stand by the pledges given at the time of the Union. Wounded arm. The chauffeur although slightly wounded, stopped the machine and the premier stepped to the roadway. The police agents already were struggling with the premier's assailant. After getting out of the automobile in which he was riding, the premier without a glance in the direction of Cottin started to walk towards the front door of his home.

President Poincaré Arrives. He was quickly followed by various members of the Government and representatives of the Navy and Air Corps, as well as of the Diplomatic Corps.

Not Seriously Wounded. The Premier's wound is not regarded as dangerous in itself, but it is felt that there might be serious consequences from it considering the age and infirmity of the victim. At about 9 o'clock this morning, however, it was officially announced that M. Clemenceau was not seriously wounded.

The Premier's Assailant. It was learned at the City Hall that the assailant of Premier Clemenceau was a man named Emile Cottin, 25 years old, born at Creil, Montrouse in France. The police, however, do not believe the papers he was seen to belong to him, and are inclined to think him a Russian.

Barber's Assistant's Story. Emile Moulin, a barber's assistant, who was the Associated Press representative at the time he heard the first shot fired out of his shop, and when he saw what was happening cried out and closed with the Premier's assailant. The man threw away his hands and threw up his hands.

Who Held the Assailant Whom Moulin had some difficulty in getting from them, and before the police arrived the man he was beaten by. One of the men in the crowd seemed to want to help the Premier's assassin, and the crowd beat him badly. According to police reports, the would-be assassin emptied his weapon. All the windows of the Premier's automobile were smashed by the flying bullets.

The Assassin's Statement. Cottin, the Premier's assassin, stated his reason for attacking M. Clemenceau, that he planned to kill the Premier, because M. Clemenceau was the enemy of humanity and was preparing for another war.

Fired Seven Shots. Georges Clemenceau, the French Premier, was struck three times by bullets in the attempt to assassinate him. One bullet entered the right shoulder and lodged under the left scapula missing the spinal cord and lungs. The other two bullets passed scarcely more than abrasions on the skin on the right arm and the left hand. In all seven shots were fired at the premier point blank by the assassin, Emile Cottin, known in political circles as "Milton," who was arrested directly after the shooting. The bullets passed through the clothing of the Premier. As the first shot struck the automobile, Premier Clemenceau leaned forward and began to open the door. It was in this nearly visible position that Cottin fired the shots which took effect. The Premier continued this movement to open the door which he did with his

RIOTING AT HALIFAX.

HALIFAX, Feb. 19. Rioting in Halifax last night, and again to-night, is keeping the police busy. Last night a mob of returned soldiers, aided by some civilians, smashed up half a dozen Chinese restaurants. To-night they repeated it, but finally were charged by the police and dispersed. Seven were arrested.

EFFECTIVENESS DEPENDS UPON THE MILITARY.

LONDON, Feb. 19. The whole effectiveness of the League of Nations depends upon the Allies having a reasonably trustworthy military force in close proximity to Germany, Winston Spencer Churchill, Secretary of State for War, declared at a meeting here to-day. We are going to take measures, he added, to make it physically impossible for Germany to begin a war of revenge, at any rate in our lifetime. We are going to take a few trustworthy persons, well provided with what President Wilson would call "instrumentalities" to keep watch by the Rhine, and to make Germany pay reparation for the damage she has done. Colonel Churchill made an appeal for the maintenance of the army, and said that the Government intended to maintain an army of 500,000 men during 1919. The Government is now raising a volunteer army for garrisoning the Empire and recruits are coming in at the rate of a thousand daily. Until this army is raised, he added, it will be necessary to keep a compulsory army. The Secretary for War paid a high tribute to Premier Clemenceau, in a speech which he made to-day, at a luncheon at the Mansion House, on the subject of demobilization and the army of occupation.

CANADIAN PARLIAMENT MEETS TO-DAY.

OTTAWA, Feb. 19. Proceedings in Parliament to-morrow will be brief. As usual, members of the Commons will meet at the Bar of the Senate to hear the speech from the Throne delivered by the Governor General, but for the time being consideration of the legislative programme therein outlined will be deferred. In the House, a formal motion will be made that consideration of the speech be adjourned until such time as the House has paid full tribute to the life and work of its most famous member, the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier. There will be a number of the formal motions incidental to opening day, and the presentation of the Pro forma Bill respecting Orders of Office. The House will then adjourn.

RUSSIA MUST SAVE HERSELF.

LONDON, Feb. 19. (Via Reuters' Ottawa Agency.) Speaking here to-day, Right Hon. Winston Spencer Churchill said, we are recruiting a new army for two and three years service, at the rate of over a thousand daily. It was essential, in order to disarm Germany, and secure the reparation which we are determined to get, to maintain a strong and well disciplined army on the Rhine. There was no intention of sending a large British force to Russia, Mr. Churchill said. If Russia is to be saved it must be by her own exertion.

St. Andrew's Ladies' Society.

Welcome Soldiers' Wives from Scotland.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Hall was the scene of a most enjoyable social last evening. The Ladies' Missionary Society extended an invitation to the soldiers and their wives to meet them in the Hall, the object being to welcome the Scotch lassies who have come from the "Auld Country" to make their homes amongst us. A very enjoyable programme was rendered, the following taking part: Misses Wallace, Herder, Mitchell, Jones and Devine; Mesdames Riggs, Martin, Eadie and Messrs Ross, McIntosh, Gibb, Herchel and Lieut. Melville. The bag pipes also contributed in no small measure to the affair. Mr. Alex. Robertson acted as chairman, extending the address of welcome to our friends. Refreshments were then served which again showed the good ladies had not forgotten the hospitalities. After a vote of thanks to the chairman and others who helped to make the evening such a pleasant one, "Auld Lang Syne" followed by the National Anthem brought to a close another of the most successful and enjoyable events held in the Hall.

James Diamond, Sworn.

I remember October 10th, 1918. On that night I left home after 7 o'clock, went to Snow's residence, at Victoria Street, house at 8.30 or thereabouts, and got in the car with Mr. W. Snow. Two of us were in the car, and we came down Water Street, Pease's Lane, (blowing the horn all the time at intervals.) I put my head out on one side and saw the glimmer of an umbrella. (The snow was covered in Snow's side.) As I saw the umbrella, I heard the bump. I put my head out to see if it was Victoria Street as it was very dark. It was necessary to put my head out to see where we were. I saw only a shade of an umbrella. After the bump the car went ahead and stopped at Victoria Street. Mr. Snow stopped the car shortly after. We said nothing to each other before the car stopped. I did not know he was going to stop the car. When the car stopped I got out and ran towards where the collision occurred. I left him getting out of the car. I ran back to within 10 feet of the man, and then went back to the car because I was frightened. Snow was getting in the car when I got back. I don't know what he did in the interval. When the car bumped the headlights went out. When I got back, I said, "My God, we have killed a man." Snow answered, "We are we do." I replied, "get a doctor and drive him to the hospital," and then the two of us drove away. The case will be continued this afternoon.

The Price

By RUTH C.

Once more I have run up against the woman who says, "Nothing is worth anything but a bargain." Nothing is worth anything but a bargain. I hate that position like poison. It's so fearful, so pausable and specious. It's peace applied to a price applied to a price. And I don't believe in any price in the home any more than I believe in it in this war. It is a question that lately came to my attention. A very over-bearing, reasonable man got out of temper with a household servant and insisted on treating her in a most unjust manner. The wife who has put up with a great deal of injustice towards her husband, not put up with that, but at her point but at the expense of peace. Was that worth disturbing the peace of the family about or not? I know a man who disliked his wife's father and did not wish her to communicate with him in any way. He insisted. Was that right or wrong? Of course, you will tell me that the man might have preserved family peace by acquiescing on the surface, but doing what she wished behind his back. That, supposing it to be desirable, isn't always possible. And I think that peace bought at the expense of sneaking and underhanding is such a bargain, after all. Things That Aren't Worth Disturbing the Peace For.

Who never cheats nor lies for gain. A poor man, may, perhaps, remain. Yet when at night he goes to rest, No little voice within his breast, Disturbs his slumber; conscience clear.

The Kaiser's Private Spy.

By FREDERIC MARTYN.

(In Pearson's Weekly.)
The Kaiser's private spy—who, for all I know, may still be at work—is not endowed with an unusual degree of physical strength. She has more of the butterfly than the ant in her composition, and is certainly not the stamp of woman who usually does the things with which she is credited.

The Countess and the Colonel.
He put his private spy on the job and she succeeded where the most astute agents employed by the General Staff, the Naval Intelligence Service, and the Political Secret Service had failed.

She is herself by birth a Russian and the widow of a Polish Count, so she started her investigations at Petrograd and succeeded in discovering there that the information came from Vienna. Then she appeared at the Austrian capital as a wealthy Russian Countess travelling for pleasure, and was received as such at the Russian Embassy.

obtained proof that he had not only betrayed the secrets of the conference, but was actually on the point of handing over to Russia details of the celebrated Skoda gun, that created such a surprise in the early part of the war. The upshot was that, in order to prevent a terrible scandal, the Colonel was allowed to commit suicide.

That sort of investigation is, however, not typical of the activities of the Kaiser's private spy. When in Berlin she lived in great style in the Kuertierstendamm, a residential thoroughfare that may be compared to Park Lane in London, and she moved in the highest circles of Berlin society, apparently without her connection with the Kaiser being suspected.

The Kaiser's Secret Visits.
She spied upon everybody, including the Kaiser's sons, and when she was in Berlin the Kaiser was even kept informed of the talk at society tables.

As a consequence many German ladies of high degree were banished from Berlin during the war and kept under police surveillance, whilst scores of officials who had let their tongues wag too freely for the Kaiser's liking had unpleasant things happen to them.

She never went to the Kaiser. When he wished to consult her or to give her instructions, he either visited her secretly or wrote to her with his own hand without signing the communication. The Countess's servants and probably a few of the people of these visits, but they did not know the purpose of them and maybe they ascribed them to a commonplace reason.

It is probable that even now, while he is in exile, the Kaiser is in close touch with the Countess, who keeps him posted on events that are happening in his late Empire.

Sea and Air Spoils Cigars

The Troubles of a Tobacconist.

"Mildew—that is my worst enemy," said the tobacconist. "No, I have not had any losses of that kind lately, for during the past three years I have not been able to keep any stock in hand. Cigarettes and tobacco both have hardly arrived before they are gone."

"But in the old days, before the war, mildew was a real trouble, especially in damp, thundery weather. 'Cure it? Yes, if you take it in time. The tobacco must be laid out on a piece of muslin over a kettle of boiling water. The steam destroys the fungus. But you cannot, of course, treat cigarettes in this way, and therefore, if I have to store cigarettes, I prefer those in airtight tins."

"Cigars, too, suffer very easily in damp warmth. The best place to keep them is in the kitchen or in a warm linen cupboard. Conditions are always worse in a seaside town. Salt air does not agree with cigars, and a sea voyage seems to upset them altogether."

"One of my customers who crosses to America about twice a year invariably carries his cigars, each in a separate glass tube, carefully corked. He smokes an expensive brand at the rate of six a day, and takes with him just sufficient for the voyage."

"Those little holes? They are made by what we call the cigarette beetle. They say the insect came from South America, but I am not sure about that. What I am certain about is that the little pests are very much on the increase, and that they are doing a great deal of damage. One of the travellers of a prominent firm recently advised me to use bisulphide of carbon. I was to fumigate with it. "In their own large store, he says that they find the best protection to be steaming the stock, and of course, the most scrupulous cleanliness."

Milady's Boudoir.

THE MOUTH THAT SMILES.

You can keep father time at bay a long time with a smiling mouth and you can add necessary years with a drooping mouth.

If you don't believe this stand in front of your mirror with the muscles of the corners of your mouth turned down.

The expression of the whole face is old, unhappy and ugly. Then smile without showing the teeth. Don't you look years younger and far more attractive.

Few women realize what a wonderful effect mind and temperament have upon their personal appearance, or that one of the greatest factors in remaining young is the habit of always looking on the bright side of things and cultivating a capacity for enjoying everything in life, small pleasures as well as great.

Some people possess this capacity naturally, but anyone can make an attempt to cultivate it.

The aging lines about your mouth are purely habit. You allow the muscles around your mouth to sag through indulging in discontent and ill temper.

Everyone can feel without consulting the mirror, when the mouth is drooping, and then is the time to correct the downward curve of the muscles. To remove the aging lines about your mouth use adhesive plaster. Curve the lips upward in a smile. Then damp and fix a piece of plaster, cut the shape of a half moon, on either side of the mouth.

Leave them in this position for several hours, if worn during the day; or they can be applied at night and left on till morning, whichever is most convenient.

It is the time of auction sales, when farmers sell their junk; regardless of the rains or gales, the auctioneer rings a lot of mallets to blow the hard earned plunk. I never knew an auction yet upon a sunny day, it's always either cold or wet; when I go home I need a vet to drive my-ills away. I much admire the auctioneer, who braves the rain and snow; his smile extends from ear to ear, he springs the gags I used to hear some forty years ago. We stand around, a dismal group, upon the frozen lawn, and buy in churn and chicken coop, and hear the long drawn plaintive whoop of "Going! Going! Gone!" We buy up loads of moldy hay and scythes and grinding stones, and whiffletrees and whips and whey, and many hens to old to lay, and hoes, mostly bones. We buy old pumps and rusty plows, and sick, mottled sheep, and superannated sows; and bony, prehistoric cows, because we think they're cheap. To get things cheap, I dare maintain, is mankind's chief desire; and so we stand out in the rain, and bid on useless things and vain, bid like a house afire.

THURSDAY, Feb. 20th, 1919.

The Real Thing.

The suggestion of Mr. Harold Mitchell that a ten day campaign be started immediately for the purpose of raising within that period the sum of ten thousand dollars with which to purchase an annuity for Sergeant Ricketts, V.C., is one that will instantly meet with popular favor and support. The press discussions on the subject of a public subscription have been more or less tentative, having for their object the direction of public opinion in this channel. Concerted action was what was needed to put real life into the movement, and we think that Mr. Mitchell has given the impetus, and that the result will see the attainment of the objective.

With such an opportunity offered, the public will not be slow in responding, because, now that something concrete has been done, they will know that a Central Fund has been established, and consequently their donations will come in more rapidly, in order that the sum named is to be realized in the time set. If one thousand dollars could be collected for a memorial, with the maximum subscription placed at one dollar, in the few weeks that have elapsed since its inauguration, ten days should be amply sufficient to bring in ten thousand dollars, with no limitations on individual donations.

The appeal, has been made; the list has been formally opened and the campaign begins to-day. A quick response and the desired ends obtained. Whirlwind methods are often the best means of producing results, and it is now given to us to show that we have the will to do something tangible for Newfoundland's only war hero of the little bronze decoration For Valour. By subscribing to this fund, we are aiding Ricketts, V.C., in carrying out his own wishes, these being the completion of his education. We have hurried ourselves hoarse over his exploit; we have shaken his hand and congratulated him; we have feted and entertained him, but now let our enthusiasm be transmuted into dollars and cents in order that our hero may, in the halls of learning, acquit himself as creditably and honorably as he did on the stricken field of Ledgehem, when he won for himself Britain's premier decoration for conspicuous gallantry in action, and the undying fame which surrounds his deed of valour.

The Telegram will be only too happy to acknowledge, and transfer to the proper authorities any sums, sent in its care, toward the proposed fund, as well as donations made to the custodians of the same.

The campaign opened to-day and closes on March 1st. TEN DAYS in which to collect TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS, and Newfoundland expects every man to help in reaching the objective.

"Peg O' My Heart."

No larger audience ever gladdened the heart of a management than that which witnessed the rising of the curtain on the three act comedy "Peg O' My Heart," in the Casino Theatre, on Tuesday night, and the interest in the play itself never waned from start to finish, the vast assemblage being attentive to every word and gesture of the performers. The cast of Characters was:

Jerry (Sir Gerald Adair, Executor of the late Nathaniel Kingsworth), (Com. MacDermott, R.N.)
Hawks—(Legal adviser and co-executor of the same estate) Mr. L. E. Emerson.
Alaric—(Mrs. Chichesters Son), Mr. W. Angus Reid.

Christian Brent—(a friend of the Chichester family) Capt. Campbell, A. D. C.
Jarvis—(Butler with Mrs. Chichester) Mr. T. H. O'Neill.
Mrs. Chichester—Mrs. L. R. Cooper.
Ethel (her daughter) Miss Mary Ryan, and MARGARET O'CONNELL—(Peg)—Miss Mary Doyle.

The acting and spoken parts throughout were superb, Miss Mary Doyle, the heroine, showing to greater advantage than ever in the chief character "Peg o' my Heart." Her rendition was perfect, humour and pathos receiving equally fine demonstrations. Mrs. Cooper, as the stern and unrelenting autocratic aunt of Peg was the very acme of perfection, even when she stood at the door, and in her role was ably sustained by Miss Mary Ryan, who as the English cousin of the plebeian heiress, was the last word in insular frigidity, until her latent humanity was brought out by the genuine affection of Peg and the latter's willingness to shield the cousin from the consequences of a mad act. Mr. W. Angus Reid as Alaric was as much at home in the personation of Mrs. Chichester's son, as though he had been born to it, and his free and easy manner delighted the audience. Commander MacDermott, as Jerry, who eventually married his ward, Peg, was very natural, though his love making lacked warmth, even on the stage. Mr. L. E. Emerson, as Hawks the legal adviser and co-executor was the imperturbable lawyer all through, his proposal of marriage to Peg being made on strictly legal principles. Captain Campbell, as Brent, the friend of the family and incidentally the tempter of Ethel, whom Peg saves from eloping with him, at the end of Scene II, Act 2, played his part naturally and gracefully, as the male butterfly, and last but by no means least Mr. T. H. O'Neill, the veteran of the St. John's stage, made an ideal butler in Jarvis. The singing of Capt. Campbell and Mr. Arthur Williams, between the acts was much enjoyed and appreciated. Capt. Campbell's selection of Irish and Scotch airs being vociferously applauded.

The C. C. C. Band rendered excellent music, and altogether the evening was one of the most charming and delightful ever spent by St. John's theatre goers. Local amateur talent outshines the imported foreign professional article every time, and the "Peg o' my Heart" performers have carried off the palm in city histrionics. The promoters of the play, which was under the distinguished patronage of His Excellency the Governor and His Grace the Archbishop of St. John's, and in aid of Mount Cashel Orphanage, have every reason to be both pleased and proud because of the success which attended the production.

Last night's performance was again greeted with a full house, extra seats having to be provided and even then hundreds were turned away from the ticket box. Among those present were His Excellency the Governor attended by Hon. R. Watson and Capt. R. H. Tall, A.D.C.'s, Right Rev. Mons. MacDermott, Rev. Dr. Greene and many of the clergy. The play went better perhaps, if that were possible, than on the opening night, the performers having the advantage of the previous night's experience to aid them, and another delighted audience was the result.

In order to give those who were deprived of the pleasure of witnessing the comedy an opportunity of paying their tribute there will be a repetition to night at the usual time. New songs by Capt. Campbell and Mr. A. Williams will be a special feature, and we predict another capacity house for this play of the season.

Obituary.

HON. CHAS. HENRY EMERSON.

We regret to publish the passing of Hon. Charles Henry Emerson, K.C., Registrar of the Supreme Court, which occurred at Boston on Tuesday morning during a brief visit to that city. Accompanied by Mrs. Emerson, he left here about a fortnight ago to undergo a slight operation. This had been successfully performed, and he was out and about again when stricken with a severe attack of pneumonia, to which he succumbed. Charles Henry Emerson was born on the 29th August, 1863, son of the late John Archibald Emerson. He was educated at Bishop Field College, and after finishing his college course spent about a little over a year in North Dakota. Returning here, he commenced the study of law with his uncle, the late Prescott Emerson, and on his decease entered the office of McNelly & McNelly. In 1881 he was admitted to the Bar and took Silk in 1906. In 1917 he was appointed Registrar of the Supreme Court, succeeding the late Donald Browning, and was also the Secretary of the Law Society. As Registrar he proved himself admirably efficient, maintaining a responsible office, maintaining it at a high standard of efficiency. Mr. Emerson had a long and successful political life. His first contest was back to 1894 when he unsuccessfully contested the District of Burgeo and LaFolle at a bye-election. At the General Election of 1900 he was returned, but four years later was defeated by a narrow majority. In the fall of 1908 he was elected for the adjoining district of Fortune Bay in the interests of the Morris Party. This was the deadlock election. When the Spring decision was made, the honor was again accorded to Emerson, and he was appointed a member of the Executive Council without portfolio. At the last election, in 1913, Fortune Bay re-elected him with an increased majority. In both the House of Commons and Executive Council he gave freely of his talents, and as a district representative he held a splendid record for efficiency and thoroughness. His resignation followed his appointment as Registrar in November, 1917; and the title of Honorable was conferred upon him in 1918. He was a very public spirited man. Mr. Emerson found time to take a deep interest in the welfare of St. Thomas's Church, of which he was an ordained member. For many years he was Lay Delegate to the Diocesan Synod, and at the time of his death was one of the members of the Selection Committee, also a member of the Masonic Fraternity, and immediate Past Master of St. Andrew's Lodge; having filled the chair for a number of years. He was also a member of the Law Society and many friends, being held in highest esteem by all. He leaves to mourn him a wife and two children, Mr. Fred Emerson, Solicitor, and Miss Clara, to whom we proffer sincere sympathy. The body is being brought home for interment.

H. H. CARTER, K.C.

Mr. Hugh Hoyles Carter, K.C., oldest surviving son of the late Sir F. E. T. Carter, Chief Justice and Premier of Newfoundland, died yesterday at his residence Duckworth Street, after a short illness. Deceased was the senior practicing Barrister and Solicitor in the Dominion, having been admitted to the Bar, May 18th, 1876, with the late W. J. Hogan and I. R. McNelly. For many years he had been a member of the Law Society and for forty-four years Clerk of the Legislative Council. In the latter capacity Mr. Carter rendered valuable service, and his presence from the Chamber will be greatly missed. For almost half a century deceased acted as Private Secretary to the Ministers of the Government. Mr. Carter was well informed, especially on matters of local interest, and his opinion was often sought and accepted. Mr. Carter was a devoted brother, Mr. H. D. Carter, Bank of Montreal, and two sisters, Mrs. John Henderson and Miss L. Carter. Interment takes place to-morrow evening.

Hospital Project.

Presided over by Mr. I. C. Morris a meeting to consider matters in connection with the erection of a Maternity Hospital and Rescue Home was held in the Board of Trade Rooms, Tuesday last. Staff-Captain W. A. Burrows, S. A., presented a report made at a meeting of the representatives of the medical men of the city, held on Feb. 3rd, the following resolution was passed:—

"That the establishment of a Maternity Hospital in the city of St. John's is desirable and necessary and meets with the approval and support of the medical profession. That in the opinion of the medical practitioners of St. John's the scheme of the Salvation Army for a Maternity Hospital is feasible, desirable and commendable."

The institution would be run by local staffs of doctors and nurses with an advisory board of citizens. It was elected. The amount of $50,000 was considered the best to appeal for. The Salvation Army would be responsible for anything over that amount. Plans of the building were submitted and approved.

Mr. W. J. Higgins suggested that the money be collected as soon as possible, and favoured the calling of a public meeting to appoint a fairly representative committee and collectors.

Mr. J. R. Bennett was in accord with the project. Dr. Roberts approved also. Messrs. R. Gordon Winter, H. E. Cowan and A. Satter spoke briefly and in favour of the project. It was decided to call a public meeting at an early date. A committee consisting of Messrs. W. J. Higgins, A. News, A. H. Satter, J. R. Bennett, H. E. Cowan, Dr. Roberts and R. Gordon Winter, was appointed to assist Mr. Burrows to make arrangements as to the meeting. Lt.-Col. Adley promised the movement his support, as provincial commander of the Salvation Army after which the meeting closed.

Reports of the Norwegian fishery give the 1919 catch to date as:—
Lofoden 200,000 qts.
All other sources 800,000 qts.
Total 1,000,000 qts.
Last year for a corresponding period the catch was:—
Lofoden 95,000 qts.
All Other Sources 425,000 qts.
Total 520,000 qts.
In the year 1914 the catch for the same period was:—
Lofoden 70,000 qts.
All Other Sources 3,303,000 qts.
Total 3,100,000 qts.
This is evidence that already the Norwegians are getting down to the fishery pursuits and mean to get back their old markets again if possible. The increases will also effect the price of fish in Newfoundland.

Evangelists in Newfoundland.

A Review of Their Work.

L. C. MORRIS.

ARTICLE IV.

Our next date is that of 1899, when our popular friends, the Revs. Crossley and Hunter came to our city. Many of our readers have a fair knowledge of those good men, and of their ability as preachers, and of their acceptance with the people. For some five weeks they labored in our city, and in all their ministry they proved themselves "workmen that needeth not to be ashamed."

These Evangelists had been invited here at the unanimous request of the four city Methodist Churches, and they also had the co-operation of the Presbyterian and Congregational pastors of that date, viz., the Rev. Dr. Robertson and the Rev. Joseph Thackeray. As Evangelists they had made a very deep impression throughout the Dominion of Canada, and far and wide their fame had spread. They were both regularly ordained ministers of the Methodist Church, and they always reported their work to their own Conference. Their home was in St. Thomas's, Ontario; but they afterwards removed into Toronto.

Mr. Hunter was the principal speaker of the two, and his wit was as remarkable as his companion's singing. In physique he was tall and lithe; with clean shaven face, and a quite prominent nose. As a preacher he was interesting, though not profound. His addresses were not what would be called sermons in an orthodox sense. His longest discourse was thirty-five minutes, but he seldom over-stepped the half hour; and sometimes finished within the comparatively short space of twenty-five minutes. He had the ability of putting much in little; he would tell a story, and apply its moral, in the brief space of a minute or two. His preaching was quite rapid enough, but he made excellent points all along, and his perorations were clear and convincing. In all this he had the rare gift of combining apt wit, with common sense gravity; and it was in this particular feature, that much of his success to draw the people, and hold them, lay.

Besides being witty he was also very pathetic, and in almost the twinkling of an eye he could change smiles into tears, and vice versa. But he had still a rarer gift, though he apparently looked upon it as being secondary to his preaching. It was in his Bible readings that this gift lay. When his co-worker, Mr. Crossley, preached, Mr. Hunter would lead—and both those good men were leaders. All good men are not leaders. As leader of the meeting, Mr. Hunter would, of course, read the scripture lesson. The lesson was usually a well-chosen one, and one directly bearing upon the subject of his companion's address. As he read he commented upon the lesson; and usually put in ten or twelve minutes at it. His comments were all clear; and if there had not been any further address, there was sufficient in what he said, to reward the people for the big price which they paid by being on hand at seven o'clock, so as to secure a seat; although the meetings did not begin till eight.

Mr. Hunter's Bible readings added a new light to Bible study; and it showed how much of depth and beauty there is in the Old Book, when it is read as it ought to be. If I were asked which of the two I preferred, the address or the Bible reading, I think that when all the evidence was adduced, the latter would have my support. Much of his preaching was along the lines of anecdotes; and while these all bore upon "the text, few minutes he lost in sleep. Perhaps that was quite possible; but somehow, I have not yet been able to literally accept it. Of course it is an easy matter for a speaker to sometimes give utterance to things in an abstract manner; and in the warmth of his zeal to make mistakes; but in the remark above quoted, there did not seem any latitude for any misunderstanding, nor for the least misinterpretation; hence the mystery of the statement through all those years. But what difference when the good man went to sleep; and if he had the good fortune of going to sleep right off, why all the better for himself; for certain it is, that the lack of sleep is one of the causes of many of the nervous break-downs of the day.

So much then for Mr. Hunter. Our readers, many of them, still bear him in mind; and the good work which he did, has told upon many a life, and has helped many a one to "Look up and Lift up."

EULOGIZED LAURIER.

LONDON, Feb. 18.

(Via Reuters)—All papers publish long obituaries and tributes to Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The Times says Canada loses in Laurier one of the most famous of her sons, a man who left his mark on her life more for his own conspicuous qualities than for any political structure of his building or for any legislative achievement. He was a great Canadian, and not less great because his personality, his convictions and his methods were all constantly provocative of controversy. The Daily Chronicle says Laurier's name will be permanently associated with some of the most important phases in the development of the British commonwealth. Not only will Canada always rank high among the great builders of her nationhood but he will hold his niche in the temple of world history.

The Daily Graphic says Laurier was without question one of the most distinguished Premiers any British dominion has yet produced. Throughout his career he upheld clearly two ideals, the nationhood of Canada and the unity of the Empire.

The Daily News says no man had a more delicate political path to traverse or walked that difficult path with more circumspect statesmanship and wisdom. Dual loyalty made him open sometimes to misunderstanding, but it was always sincere and inspired by his interested passion for his country.

CONDITIONS IN GERMANY.

PARIS, Feb. 18.

Capt. Walter B. Gherardi, of the United States Navy who has been in Germany for two weeks studying economic and general conditions, has returned to Paris and reports that he found much unemployment throughout the country and a restless fluid condition that contains a threat against the peace of the immediate future. He says that Germany's food supplies are limited to nearly exhausted reserve which cannot last longer than next month, leaving a great gap to be filled before harvest. The German army, Capt. Gherardi has sunk to insignificant figures and is no longer formidable.

"The Walrus Head."

Some Tales of Adventurous Cruises Told by a Captain of Coastguardmen on Behring Sea Duty.

(By CLAIR PRICE, in "Answers.") No arm of the United States Government leads a more varied life than its coastguard; and one of the varied duties of the coastguard is in itself more variegated than Behring Sea duty.

The badge is an inconspicuous one, and you may miss it unless you look sharply at the coat-lapels about you. It is a small walrus head with two tusks, which speaks plainly enough to anyone who has ears to hear of Unalaska.

"Just two years ago to-day," said one captain of a cutter, "off the Alaskan coast, we hailed a whaler as usual to ask her if she was in need of medical assistance, and she sent us an old sail-maker who had been knifed by a Kanaka six months before. There being no doctor aboard the whaler, of course, the skipper had to fill the place himself. The man had a cut eighteen inches long across his back, and the skipper had washed it out, sewed it up with a sail-needle just as you'd darn an old sock, wrapped it around with raven duck—the lightest canvas there is—and then whitewashed it outside to sterilise it. It was the finest piece of extemporaneous surgery I ever saw. When our doctor got into it he found that it had completely healed, except for the stitches, of course, which were still in it. All he had to do was to take the stitches out and put some court-plaster over where they had been."

Protecting the Seals.

From grub-staking lost miners who are on the verge of starvation along the coast to protecting the seal rookeries along the Pribilof Islands, the cutter to which the Behring assignment falls each year has a variegated time of it. Occasionally it has to use its one-pounders off the seal rookeries, for sealing has been prohibited for a period of some ten years. Seals are easy animals to kill, however. A ten-gauge shotgun and a club are sufficient to fill a sealing schooner's holds with highly valuable skins. This has been attempted occasionally by Japanese schooners, manned by Japanese, with an American sailing master; but in the lonely seas off the Pribiloffs a number of illegal sealers have been surprised and captured by the cutters.

"We got the fright of our lives off the Pribiloffs one morning about three years ago," continued the captain. "We were hoove to in a gale of wind for eleven days, in which time we sighted a derelict. We kept her in sight until the seas went down, and then boarded her. The boarding officer came back with his face as white as that table-cloth. He said he had found a tub of ambergris in her cabin, a whole tub of it."

The Fortune that Failed.

"Now, ambergris, as any reader of sea fiction will tell you, is worth its weight in radium. About forty-seven pounds an ounce is what it usually commands."

"I couldn't believe it; but we went over and brought the stuff aboard, and then because the seas were still pretty high and the derelict looked about ready to go under, we put a couple of shots into her at the water-line, and came back to Unalaska. The stuff was in a tub all right, and it certainly looked like ambergris. It was thick, greasy stuff of a yellowish color. We had it examined at Unalaska, and we hardly ate or slept while it was ashore. If it was ambergris, we knew we were set up in independent idleness for the rest of our lives. Well, we found out when the stuff was examined that it was—rancid butter!"

"That was the trip," the captain continued, "on which we were so heavily ice-d-up that every sea went over us, and the doctor was running around in circles attending to frozen noses and frozen feet. We tried to thaw and chop ourselves clear for a while, but it was sixty below, and you couldn't poke your nose out on deck without freezing it."

An Inconspicuous Gift.

On the ward-room table before him lay an embossed copy of "Omar Khayyam," autographed by the late Elbert Hubbard.

"That was given to me three years ago last January," he said. "We'd been lying at Unalaska, when we got word that forty-one placer miners and their families were starving at the mouth of a little river up the coast. There was bad weather on, but we went out and began searching the coast for them. We found their little village finally, and fired our one pounder to wake them up. So I called for volunteers to go ashore through the surf."

"We were all right, but pretty badly off. They had one sack of beans and a little coffee and flour left to keep about eighty of them alive. They had no boat, and no way of getting out to sea, and back of them there was a glacier which it was impossible to cross. As a matter of fact there was a hurricane of cold air blowing across it most of the time. One of them had attempted to cross it, and had got one hundred and eighty miles back, when he gave it up, and 'packed' all the way back to the coast half a goat that he had killed. They had a quarter of a million dollars in gold dust, but they were starving to death just the same. A boat came up once in three years for their gold dust, but outside that they rarely saw a stranger."

"I offered to take them all out, but they wouldn't come. Only one man who had an infected foot, his wife, and their two children came out. So I called a meeting in their store—I remember the storekeeper's name; it was N. B. Balderton—and they drew up a list of the provisions they wanted. It was January then, and their boat was due in June. I fixed up a scheme of rations, and left them provisions, for which they gave me the usual Treasury Department warrant. There was one woman among them who wanted to make me a present for helping them, so she gave me this 'Omar Khayyam.'"

The cutters punctuate their cruises with stays for a rest at Unalaska, and it is here that the Order of the Walrus, composed of all Government men on Behring Sea duty, flourishes.

WHAT MADAME GINGRAS SAYS OF DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Hundreds of Other Women in Canada Have Had the Same Experience With the Old Canadian Kidney Remedy, Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Morigau, Montmagny Co., Que., Feb. 19th. (Special).—"Dodd's Kidney Pills made me well, and I am still well."

It would be hard to put a eulogy of Dodd's Kidney Pills in fewer or stronger words. Yet these are the exact words of Madame Philippe Gingras, a resident of this place, who is both well known and highly respected.

These words speak volumes to women who suffer. For women all over Canada are fast learning that nine-tenths of the suffering to which their sex is heir come from sick kidneys.

Weak, worn women who carry a burden of pain to their daily duties now realize that the way to relief lies in finding the best kidney remedy. And the fact that Dodd's Kidney Pills have been in use in Canada for over a quarter of a century, and are more popular to-day than they ever were before, is proof that they are the best kidney remedy. Hundreds of women in Canada say with Madame Gingras: "Dodd's Kidney Pills made me well, and I am still well."

A good mutton and tomato casserole is made with the meat, 2 onions, 1 pound of potatoes, 1 can of tomatoes and seasoning to taste. Put the ingredients in layers, cover with water and simmer for 2 hours.

The Menace Of Mormonism

(By GEORGE GOODCHILD, Author of "Tiger's Cub," "Down Plug Street Way," etc.)

To most people Mormonism is summed up in the word polygamy, but Mormonism is really far deeper than that. Mormonism as taught by Mormon Elders in England, is very much akin to Christianity, but a knowledge of the appalling history of Mormonism conveys quite a different idea.

Nearly a century ago a young man—one Joseph Smith—founded the "Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints," which numbered at first five persons. This number comprised himself, his father, and his three brothers. It was all brought about by a "revelation" from God to the said Joseph, in which he was directed to a hill near Palmyra, New York, there to find buried the record of the "Book of Mormon." In the presence of an "Angel of the Lord" Smith unearthed this treasure—a number of gold plates, each engraved with hieroglyphics. With the aid of the Lord" Smith translated the writing, and the corner-stone of the Mormon Church was laid.

Smith's extraordinary allegations aroused tremendous interest, particularly as he produced witnesses to swear that they themselves had seen the golden plates; but it was a curious fact that nearly all the witnesses belonged to two families—Smith's and another.

High Heels Make Women Mad.

To be in the fashion, many munition workers who have been earning large salaries have adopted high-heeled boots and shoes, and have taken to wearing footwear which is in other ways fashionable, but uncomfortable.

Dr. Truby King, in a recent lecture to the members of the National Health Society, pointed out the remarkable fact that high-heeled shoes were often the cause of women going mad or suffering from hysteria. One of the first things, he said, that is done when a woman is admitted to a mental hospital is to cut down her high heels, if she is wearing them.

High heels make it impossible for a woman to walk properly or to take healthy exercise. She has got to balance herself all the time and this, though unconsciously, reacts on her nerves and makes her tired and irritable.

The majority of women who go in for outdoor life rarely wear high heels nor do girls in the country who are as healthy as possible. It is the woman of fashion in the big towns who wears these unnatural shoes, and she is always complaining of nerves, and "wonder."

Rubber heels are the best for walking, as they lessen the shock to the nerves and brain. All the War Offices of the world have long ago recognised that great care must be taken over the design of boots for soldiers, and though these boots may look clumsy, they are more comfortable after the first few days of wear than any fashionable boot.

Many a soldier who was accustomed to thin soled patent leather boots before the war will now wear nothing but thick-soled heavy boots "because of the extra ease of walking."

A "Lovely" Affair.

Truro, Feb. 10.—A shooting affray involving a returned soldier, his wife, and a clothes cleaner named Harry Blair, caused excitement here on Saturday night. The soldier's name is Lovely. He comes from Perth and is taking a course at the Agricultural College with technical school work also at Halifax.

Coming up from the city Saturday he learned that Blair and his wife were sometimes seen together. He sought for her and found her in Blair's company. He is said to have threatened to kill Blair. Saturday evening he went to Blair's shop and found his wife there. After an altercation Lovely fired three shots at Blair, one of which took effect in one leg, causing a severe wound.

Lovely made no effort to avoid arrest and was taken in charge along with his wife.

Pencils and Character.

It is often the little things that children do which gives the best indications of what their future characters will be. In work and play the sort of man and woman the child will become is daily unfolded.

In such a small matter even as the sharpening of a pencil, valuable hints may be obtained by anyone in the least observant. Here it may easily be discovered whether a boy or a girl is careful, destructive, wasteful, or economical.

The boy, for instance, who sharpens his pencil into astub is inclined to be economical, careful, and quick in after life. The boy or girl who takes an inordinately long time to make a slender point, cutting very precisely and regularly all the time will usually prove to be of an artistic and dreamy disposition. The child who, regardless of the look of the pencil, gouges out great pieces in order to get to the lead will show impulsiveness and generosity.

Mere destructiveness, however, comes apparent when a child indulges in sticking his knife or dagger in some other way.

Organdie and Devonshire pattern are a new combination. Navy blue and tan still hold center of fashion's stage.
