The Heir of Bayneham

—AND—
Lady Hutton's Ward.

CHAPTER XXVI.

"I could not suffer shame again. If our secret should become known, were I to say you were my child, or if you were to call me father, my story must be known; men must know that I am Stephen Hurst, the ex-convict; and if this should come to pass (with, I hate heroics, I say it calmly), if this ever gets known, I will kill myself. I shall not wait for scorn and contempt to destroy me. You see I leave my life in your hands."

"I have no wish to make it known," she replied sorrowfully; "my happiness is destroyed. I cannot endure to look in my husband's face, and know that he has deceived him. I have no business here; my place is among the poor and shame-stricken. If Lord Bayneham knew my story, I believe he would send me from him. If I conceal it, it will kill me. Where am I to look for help? Who can aid me?"

"Those are false, sentimental notions," said Paul Fulton, more touching than he cared to own by her sorrowful face and despairing words. "You have done no wrong; you are a gentleman's daughter. Lady Hutton made you a lady in every sense of the word. Keep your secret, and you will be happy enough."

"I did not expect you to understand me," she said; "it is the concealment I hate. But we must not linger. What more have you to say?"

"Nothing," he replied. "You know I leave here early in the morning. I shall never return. Hilda. We must remain as strangers, and do not forget that you hold my life in your hands. I shall avoid you—it will be less painful than seeing you, and not daring to claim you as my child. Are you willing?"

"Yes," she replied, in the same hopeless tone, "it will be best so; only promise me one thing—if I die first, you will tell the whole truth to my husband; he will never betray you."

He promised without the least intention of ever keeping his word, and they turned toward the house.

"Hilda," said Paul Fulton, "you are my own child. Let me hear my name once. Say 'God bless you, father,' before we part."

She turned her fair, sad face to him, and he never forgot it as he saw it then. The breath of the summer wind was not more sweet and faint than the voice that said, "God bless you, father! Good-by!"

"If I had kept her with me," said Paul Fulton, as through the mist of warm tears he watched Lady Hilda enter the house, "I should have been a different man."

That night, while darkness and silence fell upon the old castle, there was one beneath its roof who seemed to die a living death. That night a fair young face lost its radiance and youth; a pure, loving heart rebelled wildly against dark, stern fate; a golden head tossed wearily to and fro; and in the darkness there came to her again those solemn, terrible words, "I visit the sins of the fathers upon the children."

The young, beautiful, and beloved lady of Bayneham prayed for death; life had grown too painful to bear.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Lady Bayneham had been thinking—a mental exercise she did not too often indulge in. This world for her was but a path of roses, in which she had found few thorns, and she had nothing much that required thought; but this night, when a young heart near her was breaking with sorrow, Lady Bayneham could not sleep, for she was thinking.

She knew the world well; its strange ways were old legends to her. She had heard many stories where a handsome, accomplished man of the world prided himself upon winning the liking of a beautiful young wife. The whole artillery of flirtation was a well-known business to Lady Bayneham. Her son's wife was very lovely, and no fairer face had ever shone in those old halls; she was also very young and child-like; often enough had the countess smiled at her native remarks, for the world was a sealed book to her. She was an innocent, guileless, and unsuspecting as a child.

Paul Fulton was a man of the world; handsome and fascinating; old, it is true, but with a charm and grace of manner more winning even than the freshness of youth. She suspected nothing serious. He dared not attempt to make love to her son's wife under her son's roof; but in all probability he had amused himself by trying to get up a sentimental friendship with her. How else account for those notes? And she was so young and so inexperienced, it was impossible to guess what she would do. If a note had been clandestinely slipped into Lady Bayneham's hand she would calmly and quietly have torn it in pieces before the writer's face without the trouble of words. She had seen how Hilda blushed and trembled when she received the note; and the brilliant, experienced woman of the world felt something like pity for the young novice.

"I have no doubt," said Lady Bayneham to herself, "that she is dreadfully puzzled what to do over the matter. Poor child—she is so simple, and so sweet. I think I must tell Claude—he will know just what to do; and if I speak to her, she may consider it interference."

The countess believed she was performing a kindly, motherly action in seeking her son, and telling him what she had seen; accordingly she was the first in the breakfast-room. Mr. Fulton, in accordance with his arrangements on the previous evening, left while the morning was still dawning. Barbara Earle had taken breakfast and gone out into the grounds. Lady Hilda was in her room, hence the countess had a clear field; and when her son entered, she went into action at once. With her second cup of tea she commenced a preamble.

"I think you know me too well, Claude, ever to suspect that I could be capable of any impertinence or interference; is it not so?"

The earl assured his mother that she possessed all the cardinal virtues, and no faults.

"I am speaking seriously, my son," continued the lady. "I have a sincere liking and affection for your beautiful wife; but she is very young and knows nothing of the world. She is so innocent and simple that I mention to you a circumstance I have observed, which in another way would have not excited my attention."

"What has Hilda been doing," asked Lord Bayneham with a smile; "has she broken some terribly severe law of etiquette?"

"No," replied the countess; "Lady Hilda's manner is perfect. It is not that, but our late visitor, Mr. Fulton, was a very handsome man, and one who could fascinate where he chose."

"Well, what can that possibly have to do with Hilda's shortcomings?" demanded Lord Bayneham quickly.

"If you will allow me time, Claude, I can explain," said the countess with dignity. "On the first evening of his arrival we all remarked how much he seemed struck with Hilda. Mind, I insinuate nothing against him; he is only a man of the world; but I believe he has been trying to get up a sentimental kind of friendship with her."

"What makes you think so?" asked the young earl indifferently, for he saw him on two occasions slip a note into her hand.

"You must have been mistaken, mother," said her son quickly, his face flushing hotly. "My wife would never receive a letter from any one."

"It is true," continued the countess; "I do not say there was anything in them; for knowing Hilda to be one of the purest as she is one of the loveliest of women, I am sure there could be nothing wrong about it. I would speak to her myself, but it is a delicate matter to interfere with; but with a few well-chosen words you can put her on her guard; and she is so very young and inexperienced."

"You are very kind, mother," said Lord Bayneham, rising hastily; "but I cannot understand how a note could have nothing in it. I must see Hilda and ask her about it."

"Do not be rash or foolish, Claude," said his mother; "there is no necessity for any scene or any emotion. Speak to your wife quietly, for perhaps there is nothing in it. Hilda never even sees any one but you. Do not force me to regret that I have treated you like a sensible man."

"I must have it explained," said Lord Bayneham quietly, but firmly; "I must see those notes, or know what they were about. None shall either insult or act impudently to my wife."

"I do not think any one will ever try it," said Lady Bayneham; "be prudent and sensible, Claude. Suppose, after all, there was nothing on the paper but the name of a book or a song?"

"Tell me how they were given," he said, "and I can judge for myself."

Lady Bayneham, who began to repent of her undertaking, then told him of the two little scenes she had witnessed, and his face grew dark.

"If that man dared to write nonsense to my wife, I would follow him to London and thrash him!" he cried. "I can see how it is Hilda did not tell me; she was afraid I should quarrel with him."

"Nothing of the kind," said Lady Bayneham, trying to ally the tempest she had aroused. "She very likely never thought of naming it at all; she cannot run to you every time any one either speaks or writes to her."

Arctic Explorer

PREDICTS MILD WINTER.

Captain J. E. Bernier, the well-known Arctic explorer, predicts a mild winter, and in giving his reasons pointed to the gradual departure of the northern glaciers. The speaker further ventured to say that the climatic conditions were changing with the prospects of warmer winters in future. He bases his prognostications on the movement of the ice in the Hudson Bay Straits and the Straits of Belle Isle, and said that when he went north on his last trip during the summer the steamer Arctic had less difficulties to contend with from ice than on previous voyages.

Furthermore, he discovered an island southeast of Ellesmere Island, which had never heretofore been discovered, and is by Peary, which he named 'Stewart Island.'

This discovery, said Capt. Bernier, was due to the disappearance of ice in comparison to the past. He described the diminution in the size of icebergs, and the fact that the ice in the mountain tops in the north, was disappearing, in proof of a change in the climatic conditions to bring warmer weather during the winter months to Canada, and further remarked that he had brought back part of a tree that had been uncovered, to strengthen the belief that trees grow on these mountains and that there was vegetation before the glacier period perhaps thousands of years ago.

Captain Bernier next spoke of Greenland, where the bergs all gathered and flocked to the Straits of Belle Isle and surrounded the Banks of Newfoundland. He said the conditions were undergoing a transformation, and that he was fully convinced that people lived and thrived in Greenland over a thousand years ago, and that they had churches or places of worship, as he himself had seen the ruins of a church in Greenland.

$75,000 Bell Tower As War Memorial.

LOUGHBOROUGH, Eng.—A tower more than 140 feet high, with 50 bells which, it is said, will form the finest carillon in Europe, is being erected here as a war memorial. It will cost about $75,000, and the bells have been donated by the various trades in Loughborough. The largest bell will weigh four tons.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR NEURALGIA.

The Time For The New Patriotism.

In fulfilment of the Irish Treaty, the Imperial Parliament has delivered the legislative "goods" and the Statute Law enters upon its new heritage. Henceforth Ireland is one of the community of nations which make up the British Commonwealth, forming in many respects the most remarkable association of States the world has ever seen. Mingled with the first feelings of relief that greeted the Anglo-Irish Treaty a year ago are others that exercise a deeply sobering influence. In the interval it has been possible to take stock of the task which awaits the new Irish Government. It is one as formidable as was ever assumed by statesmanship. A modern State rests upon the acquiescence of the majority in the rule of its governors as expressed through the judiciary, police, and Civil Service, and, in the last resort, the bayonets of its soldiers. The Free State unfortunately has to begin its career, so to speak, with bayonets fixed. It is thus challenged by a small but fanatical minority. Thus in the midst of rufous guerrilla war it has to restore the authority of the courts, create a police force, and found a Civil Service on whose character will largely depend the reputation of the State. It has a huge unemployment problem to cope with and a Treasury which has to surmount the obstacles which tax-paying human nature raises all the world over, and a host of others made for it by the Republicans. Looking at the dark and toilsome ascent which confronts Irish statesmanship, the sympathetic observer may well regard the future with anxiety. No longer, however, can those uneasy feelings be attributed to causes outside the scope of Ireland's own resources. Her fate is in her own hands. The masters of her destiny are the millions of men and women whose homes stretch from the Cove of Cork to the shores of Donegal. If they are resolved to make the name of Erin a synonym of honour to foreign nations and of domestic happiness to themselves and to their children there is no power on earth to thwart their choice. British statesmen signed the Treaty as what has been called a "daring act of faith." The Government has changed, but there has been no change of spirit. Mr. Lloyd George made the pact. Mr. Bonar Law in the same courageous temper, has appointed Mr. Tim Healey Governor-General. This is a son of the Irish people who devoted his lifetime to the advocacy of their claims, in the British House of Commons, now, by a stroke of the pen, becomes the representative of the Crown in Ireland. Mr. Healey's appointment is an innovation which will be noted with interest throughout the Empire as a crowning proof of the whole-hearted determination of Britain to make the Treaty a success if goodwill can do it. Every British minister who has relations with the Dublin Government has borne witness to the sincerity with which it has grappled with its obligations. Equally Dublin as testified to the good faith of London. The new era starts, therefore, with mutual respect and confidence. These are solid foundations upon which to build up a new Anglo-Irish addition. To-day Ireland enjoys an opportunity, the value of which has obtained universal recognition. What was wanted now is the new patriotism which, by commonplace pursuit of commonplace duty, will bring to the mass of the people peace, happiness, and prosperity.—News of the World.

Men's Suits in England May Be Cheaper

LEEDS.—The textile trade is considerably disturbed by the announcement that three million yards of woolen tweeds and serges, sufficient to make 200,000 men's suits, are about seven million yards of other trimmings, shirtings and linen can have been thrown on the market. These materials form part of the surplus that passed through the Disarmament Commission. An Italian syndicate made an offer some time ago which was accepted, but the contract was not completed and the goods have been forfeited.

France Moving Troops Into Rhineland.

Essen Will be Occupied --- Belgian Reinforcements Held in Readiness --- Britain Not Asking Any War Debt Favors--- Germany Will Resist French Aggression.

FRENCH PREPARATIONS UNDER WAY.

BERLIN, Jan. 8. French preparations for advance are already actively under way at Dusseldorf, Duisburg and Mulheim, according to advices from those cities to official quarters. Twenty military trains are reported on the way to Ruhr from France and troops have already arrived at Dusseldorf, which apparently will become the headquarters of the Supreme Ruhr Command. Three hundred garages have been appropriated for French automobiles and school buildings for administrative purposes. At Mulheim arrangements have been made for the accommodation of four regiments and at Duisburg numerous large warehouses have been taken over.

WILL OCCUPY ESSEN.

PARIS, Jan. 8. Soldiers of France will soon be marching into Essen. The town, talked of occupation is now accepted as an almost accomplished fact and the Government officials, business men, even bankers worried by the exchange problem, regard it calmly. Essen, the first objective in the Ruhr plan, may be the last if the Germans make the operation seriously and show a desire to offer France such guarantees as M. Poincare can take to parliament to say "there is sufficient collateral for the present."

BELGIUM PROVIDING REINFORCEMENTS.

BRUSSELS, Jan. 8. Arrangements have been made with the French Government for Belgian reinforcements to be held in readiness to proceed to the Ruhr when they are required. A number of engineers also will have to co-operate with the French and Italian engineers in the application of the economic measures decided on by the French Government.

GREAT BRITAIN ONLY WANTS SQUARE DEAL.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8. Great Britain wants a fair business settlement of her five billion dollar war debt to the United States on such terms as will produce the least possible disturbances in the trade relations of the two countries, Stanley Baldwin, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, declared today in an address before a joint meeting of the British and United States Debt Funding Commissions. "We are not here to ask for favors or to impose on generosity, we want a fair business settlement, a square deal, a settlement that will secure for the United States repayment to the last cent of those credits which the United States Government established in the United States for us their associates in the war." United States Secretary of the Treasury, Mellon declared the prompt payment by Great Britain of one hundred million dollars interest during the past three months, pending final arrangement, was to his mind conclusive proof of the right spirit of financial integrity which he was proud to say had always animated both of the two great English speaking nations.

A LAST EFFORT REJECTED.

PARIS, Jan. 8. A last effort to save the Ruhr Valley from French seizure was the attempt made last Friday to arrange an interview in Paris between Premier Poincare and Hugo Stinnes, at which the head of the French government and chief of German Capitalists might

NO LONGER AN EXPLORER.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8. Vilhjalmur Stefansson, Arctic explorer has announced the abandonment of his career as an Arctic explorer to devote his efforts to proving to the sceptical world that within a decade or two the North Polar Ocean will be crossed by a network of commercial navigation routes and that the Arctic region will be a source of developed resources unlimited in magnitude. Stefansson said his decision to give up Polar explorations was prompted by the conviction that the age of explorations of the North was now to yield to the age of commercial development. Oil, coal, and other resources are there, the climate conditions are conquerable, people are living and flourishing in places where there are colder winters than at the North Pole. For instance the lowest temperature at the pole is about sixty degrees below zero, while seventy below had been registered at North Dakota, where the winters are just as severe as in the Arctic. The course of Empire of civilization must inevitably move toward the North, he said.

FIVE DESERTERS EXECUTED.

DUBLIN, Jan. 8. Five soldiers, convicted of desertion from the National Army, were executed in Dublin today by order of the Free State Government. It was announced the men were found fighting on the side of the Irregulars.

PLANE vs. MACHINE.

MANCHESTER.—The North bound Air express from London to this city challenged the speed of an express train travelling in the same direction recently. The plane was flying at a height of 2,600 feet, and at this level the wind was blowing at gale force. The air express caught up with the train and then apparently ran into an extra strong wind current, for though the pilot "opened out" to 105 miles an hour for ten minutes he was unable to gain an inch on the train. Finally he manoeuvred the plane into a more favorable wind current and slowly drew ahead.

ANNUAL FUNCTION AT BURIN.

The Loyal Orange Association of Burin held their annual parade, tea and concert on Tuesday, Dec. 26th. Quite a number of the brethren met at the hall at 9 o'clock in the morning, and after the usual routine business, they left the hall, headed by the band and paraded around Burin. Divine worship was attended at the Anglican Church, where the Rev. Mr. Meaden preached an eloquent and very appropriate sermon. After the service the Brethren returned to the Hall, and all enjoyed a splendid tea served by the ladies. CLINTON AND McNAMARA.

IN VAUDEVILLE TIT BITS—EXCELLENT BILL OF COMEDY AND DRAMA AT NICKEL. Even better than their first bill was the act given by Clinton and McNamara at the Nickel Theatre last night. Miss Nellie McNamara rendered her songs with much distinction, her clear soprano voice being heard to unusual advantage, whilst her comedy is equally as good. Mr. Clinton is a "live wire" comedian and is always on the move with his funny gestures, snappy jokes and his comic songs keep the audience in good humour and earn for him rounds of applause. Clinton and McNamara easily stand in a class all to themselves as entertainers. To see them once means that you've certainly got to see them again. It's an irresistible attraction, and that's saying something. Last night's skit is entitled "Fun in a Hotel." It's a continuous roar from start to finish. The photoplay also deserves its share of praise, and without exaggeration, the reviewer must admit that it is one of the outstanding pictures of the season, in that it contains all the thrills—all the heart-throbs and all the punch that an enthusiastic audience would wish to see. If you missed this film, you had better not miss it to-night when it will be repeated.

WILL NOT RESPECT ULTIMATUM.

COLOGNE, Jan. 8. "Strong as German Oaks shall be our determination that the Republic and the Rhineland remain for ever undivided," reads a resolution adopted at a meeting of the Rhenish Centrist Party, protest against the "latest violence against us contemplated in Paris." Before the adoption of the resolution the party heard an address by Dr. Wirth, the first public utterance since his retirement from the Imperial Chancellorship. Dr. Wirth declared the German people will not respect the ultimatum but they must assume their burden of Reparations as a vanquished power in the World War.

SWEET CHARITY.

PARCELS FOR THE POOR. Messrs. Lipton, Limited, the well-known Provision Merchants, have offered 100,000 parcels of provisions to the most necessitous cases among the unemployed throughout the country, and suggested that each centre might get a proportion equal to one-twelfth of the total number of idle workers. Thus Glasgow's share is roughly 7000 parcels. Lord Provost Paxton, Glasgow, has completed the arrangements for distributing the donations of food parcels to deserving poor, which Messrs. Lipton, Limited have so generously presented.—Glasgow Weekly Herald.

CUB CIGARETTES ARE APPRECIATED.

not only by the smoker but by those in his company. I like to talk about my plans, of things I mean to do; I'll overhaul my twin sedans, which now refuse to choo; I plan to paint my picket fence, which is quite a shabby now, and build, regardless of expense, a stable for the cow. I plan a hundred useful things, before the season goes, and so I walk around in rings and tell what I propose. My neighbors paint their fences pink, and haven't much to say, and when their cars are on the blink, they fix them in a day. At useful tasks they ply their tools, they put up wood to burn, they grease their pigs and wash their mules, manipulate the churn. And when I call to show blue prints of schemes I'll soon make while they are not backward with their hints that I'm unfinished. I never seem to get in touch with big results, alas; I sometimes fear I talk too much to make things come to pass. It might be better if I tolled and put hot air in cans, for big achievement oft is spoiled by having many plans. My neighbors build their central chais, with neat, well-fitting bungs, while I am talking of my tanks, for I've the gift of tongues.

LAUSANNE.

This town, which is the focal centre of Europe to-day, during the conference between Christian and Turk, is the capital of the Swiss canton of Vaud on the southern slopes of the Jura mountains, and close to the north shore of the Lake of Geneva, the village of Ouchy forming its harbor. Lausanne is famous for its educational institutions. Its cathedral is a beautiful Gothic building of the 10th and 11th centuries. Since 1875 the town has been the seat of the Federal Tribune of Switzerland. The chief language spoken is French. In ancient times Lausanne was a series of vineyards, along the foothills overlooking Lake Lemán, but to-day these vineyards have been occupied by immense hotel resorts and boarding schools. There are no straight street lines in Lausanne and even the bridges are seldom straight. It is the helter-skelter manner of layout, which gives the town its great charm, though an Associated Press-correspondent has said it requires the mountain climbing ability of a chamois to enable one to get around, if one wishes to visit the scattered delegation and conference centers. Lausanne's chief business center is located about halfway up the mountain side, and adjoins the Casino, where the opening session of the Conference was held. The Turkish and French delegates live at one hotel, while the British, American and Italian representatives live on the lake shore, their meetings being held at the Hotel du Chateau. The Greek, Russian, Bulgarian and other minor delegations are scattered about in residences between the heart of the city and the shore line. New delegations, continues the correspondent, are being discovered almost daily in secluded hotels tucked into mountain groves at resorts miles from Lausanne. All sorts of would-be delegations are putting up at various points, and those from Egypt, Arabia, Mesopotamia and other far-distant lands are holding rump conventions, and forwarding protests to the General Secretariat, which protests, by the way, never get publicity in any shape or form. The Lausanne is in great dread of all these rival meetings, and there is a constant fear that some other point on the Lake may manage to capture a treaty-signing convention, and thus rob Lausanne of the right to have its name attached to whatever documents may be agreed upon in the Conference. The capture by Rapallo of the treaty between the Germans and Russians is ever fresh in the minds of the loyal citizens of Lausanne. Judging by the tenour of yesterday's reports from the Conference, it will be some time yet ere any documents are signed. A new agreement draft is to be handed the Turks within a fortnight, and they can either accept it or tear it up. The issue will then be in their own hands. The patience of the Westerns has been exhausted and they have delivered themselves straightly to the Ottoman in terms of which there can be no misunderstanding of mistaking.

Gubernatorial Party.

VISIT PRINCE'S RINK. Lady Allardice, wife of his Excellency the Governor, Capt. Goodfellow, and Capt. Wilberforce-Bell visited the Prince of Wales Rink yesterday afternoon and enjoyed an hour's skating. The Gubernatorial party were met by W. Angus Reid, Chairman 2287 E. Outerbridge, Secretary-Treasurer of the Rink Company. Before leaving Lady Allardice shook hands with Mr. F. Wilcox, the veteran ice man, who has been with the rink since its opening, some twenty-five years ago, and congratulated him on the excellent sheet of ice he had prepared.

"The Deacon."

The Holy Cross Dramatic Troupe will present the delightful comedy-drama "The Deacon" on the first general holiday, January 24th, and the two succeeding nights. The play abounds in humorous incidents and ludicrous situations. All the characters are life-like and striking, and there are five first-rate comedy parts. Pete is immense and "The Deacon" keeps the audience convulsed every moment he is on the stage. It will be staged in the Hall at Holy Cross Schools under Mr. Percie Jardine's direction, who plays the title role. Jan 9, 11.

Body Found at Cartwright.

SUPPOSED TO BE MISS LINDSAY. A message to J. J. Collins, Superintendent of the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Co. received on Sunday contained the following information from the operator at Battle Harbour: — "Reported body of Miss Lindsay who disappeared Cartwright found in woods near Cartwright. Body disfigured unable to say if information true. Will advise definitely later." The report of the missing of Miss Lindsay has already appeared in the press, but there are no particulars surrounding her disappearance since August last. Should further messages disclose the fact that the remains are of the woman referred to, they will be read with deep interest. No further particulars of the finding of the body have been received since Sunday.

Hockey Notes.

The matter of making the necessary arrangements for the proposed visit of the Crescent Hockey Club from Halifax will be taken up with the executive of the Newfoundland Hockey League to-day. The team referred to is a very formidable aggregation and should they visit our shores an interesting series of hockey matches will no doubt follow.

The Terra Novas and Feldians had excellent work-outs at the rink last night. All the players are being rapidly licked into shape, and when the two teams meet in the second clash of the series a lively game can be looked forward to.

The Guards are holding a practice at 8.30 tonight followed by the St. Bon's at 10 o'clock.

It will be repeated again tonight with the final performance tomorrow night. The entertainment is well worth the money. The cause, the Permanent Marine Disaster's Fund is a worthy one. PEPY'S BEHIND THE SCENES.

Jan 8th.—I learn from the morning sheet how the body of a woman was found in the woods near Cartwright, and many believe it to be that of Miss Lindsay, that did disappear in the summer. Reading this, it comes to my mind how many wicked people there are on the news sheets of the American Republic, that they have no regard for the sufferings of parents, but augment them by publishing untrue tales which they read. And in the case of Miss Lindsay, more so than in any other, is this true, being that a syndicate in America did issue a tale of how she was captured by ferocious Esquimaux, and might now be alive as the wife of one of these savages. The picture "Foolish Wives" is shown to-night and strange to see how all the women almost, flock to see it, and indeed, it must be that they believe it is to be seen by foolish wives and not that there are some to be seen, that attracts them there. But Popy, who was there, tells me how he did see the picture in New York, and that there is a great deal which must give offense to the censor here, being that it is omitted.

Supreme Court.

(Before Full Bench.)
The Grand Jury, addressed yesterday forenoon by His Lordship the Chief Justice on a bill of indictment for manslaughter against Nelson Duley, arising out of a motor car accident on the night of Oct. 5th last, was out for three hours considering the matter. The Jury returned a True Bill. This morning the defendant was arraigned and pleaded not guilty. Mr. L. E. Emerson, who is appearing for the Crown, suggested to Court that owing to the trial being likely to last two days, the hearing be set for Thursday, Jan. 25th, before a special jury. He also asked for an extra half panel. Higgins, K.C., who appears for the accused, consented and asked that bail be renewed. Bail in the sum of $10,000 for self and $5,000 for each of two sureties was taken in open court, the bondsman being W. A. Ellis and Hon. S. Milley. It was ordered that the hearing be set for Thursday, Jan. 25th, and that the jury be summoned to attend at 10 o'clock.

Martin W. Sampson vs. The Reid Mfg. Co., Ltd.

Higgins, K.C., informs the Court that Howley, K.C., counsel for defendant, is home ill and moves that the matter be adjourned until Jan. 11th. W. J. Browne, B.A., for plaintiff, consents. It is ordered that the matter be set for Jan. 11th, at 11 a.m. Ayre & Sons, Ltd., vs. A. E. Snelgrove. This is an application by the defendant that the order made be set aside and that defendant be allowed to defend. F. A. Mews for defendant is heard in support of the motion. The further hearing is adjourned until Saturday, Jan. 13th, to enable Mr. Mews to file certain affidavits. Court adjourned until to-morrow.

Disabled Ore Ship in Port.

S.S. Sharaas, 19 days from Narvik, Norway, and bound to Philadelphia with a cargo iron ore arrived in port this morning for repairs. The ship encountered very stormy weather and had her steering gear put out of order. One member of the crew received slight injuries and another is ill. Hon. McMurdo's Store News.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 9, '23. A really certain vermin destroyer is welcome at all seasons of the year, but it is perhaps during the winter months that rats and mice are most busy at their depredations, partly because of the cold weather and the scarcity of food in fields and roads, partly because cellars are full of stored vegetables during winter. But at any season of the year, Common Sense Rat Exterminator will do its work surely and thoroughly and utterly destroy all rats and mice with which it comes in contact. One 35c tin is sufficient to kill 50 rats.

DUBLIN AND VATICAN.

Negotiations are in progress for diplomatic relations between the Vatican and Irish Free State, it is reliably assured. It is understood here that the Papal Secretary is in favor of definite relations, especially as Ireland is a country largely Catholic, only indirectly represented through the British Ambassador. It is believed that a Papal Nuncio will be sent to Ireland when arrangements are completed.

Town Site at Labrador.

GOLD CAMP ACTIVITY.
Labrador Gold Fields Limited has obtained its charter from the Canadian Government, this being the first step towards developing its alluvial prospects and establishing a town site in Labrador. The Company is nominally capitalized at $50,000, to be increased later and no stock is to be offered to the public, having been all placed. The company owns some eighty mining claims on Big Brook, which empties into Stag Bay on the coast, and the Reid-Newfoundland Co. runs a regular line of passenger steamers to within 20 miles of the location upon which the sensational discoveries, reported last fall, were made. The company's plan is to lease mining rights in small holdings, making it a point of the primitive methods of working by cradles and rockers. Predictions have been made that the biggest rush since the days of the Klondyke will take place to this district as soon as navigation opens. A meeting of shareholders of Labrador Goldfields Ltd., took place last Thursday, at which the following were elected directors: H. C. Bellow, J. H. Rainville, K.C., Alexander Burnett, Oswald Stuart, John Brown, Montreal, and J. Lambert Payne and J. A. Seybold, of Ottawa. At a subsequent meeting of directors, the following officers were elected: H. C. Bellow, president; J. Lambert Payne, Vice-President; Alexander Burnett, Secretary; Oswald Stuart, Treasurer. —Montreal Daily Star.

Others present were Rev. Dr. Fahey, Rev. A. Pittman, and Councilor Dowden who also paid their best respects in addressing the pupils.

Japanese Defence Budget Large.

TOKIO.—The Japanese Budget is still drawn up largely along military lines. Of the total expenditure provided for in the estimates amounting to approximately $675,000,000, the war office estimates appropriations will exceed $100,000,000, according to the plan endorsed by the cabinet council, and the navy department will be allocated $145,000,000. This expenditure on the two national defence branches constitute a little over 35 per cent. of the total. The navy department states that it has effected a decrease of about $23,000,000, but these figures are inclusive of withdrawal of the appropriation from Tsing-Tao, and $4,500,000, which is caused by temporary postponement of various schemes. The $12,000,000 which represents the saving from so-called readjustment of armaments will be largely counterbalanced by what the war department proposes to demand in the form of a supplementary budget in respect of discharge money.

Stronger Position of British Empire Steel With Completion of Its Financing Program

Now in an Excellent Position to Take Advantage of Its Exceptionally Favorable Manufacturing and Mining Opportunities.
The British Empire Steel Corporation enters upon the new year under the most favorable auspices both from a manufacturing and a financial point of view. Considerable improvement took place in the demand for its products during the latter part of 1922 but the early part was under the adverse influences of the final stages of the deflation process which proved such a detriment to the earning power of a very large percentage of Canadian enterprises in common with those of most every country in the world. In fact Canadian business men have a great deal to be thankful for in coming through more expeditiously and with fewer ill effects than the majority of countries. In a financial sense also the Corporation finds itself in a much stronger position to take advantage of the increasing opportunities which present themselves and which are expected to so continue in increasing volume throughout the new year. In view of this combination of favorable circumstances, it is confidently believed that the greatest of Canada's iron, steel and coal undertakings will make 1923 one of the best years in its history and go a long way towards establishing that confidence in the Corporation which was its due and would have been arrived at had it not been for a variety of war-born interruptions over which its creators had no control and were unable to combat. American bankers who recently made a close study of the position of the Corporation in connection with the underwriting of $4,645,000 Dominion Iron and Steel Company, Limited, 5 per cent. consolidated mortgage bonds, which incidentally met with a cordial reception on the part of American investors, expressed satisfaction in the outlook for the company and not hesitate to recommend the same. Application will be made in due course to the New York Stock Exchange to list the bonds on that market, the shares of the Company having already been accepted by the committee. The recent financing, together with its improved business outlook, the Corporation in a position whereby it will be enabled to secure the full measure of success yet attained through the merger with Nova Steel and Coal and other companies. Unification and co-ordination of various properties under a single culture are working out satisfactorily and throughout 1922 the results begin to accrue in appreciable amount. Steps along these lines have been in progress for some time and the success which has attended the efforts of the management in that direction will now unquestionably be reflected in a striking manner in results which will be made when the showing of the coming year are prepared for presentation to the shareholders. It is pretty generally understood that well informed financial circles in these events are reflected from time to time in the security markets as progress is made and forecasts are ready being made of the extent of appreciation which is likely to result in the market values of the securities as a result of these favorable developments.

STAR "AT HOME."

LARGE ATTENDANCE PRESENT.
Upwards of 700 people attended "At Home" in the Star of the club rooms last night. The party which opened the entertainment was very interesting and also a close contest. Mr. E. Bailey won a handsome "gold" watch presented by Mr. Joe Murphy. Mr. L. Norm lost out in the play-off. Supper then served by the Ladies' Auxiliary and was thoroughly enjoyed by the dance which followed was a success, the affair not terminating until an early hour this morning. During the evening selections of harmonics were rendered by a visit to the delight of all. The "At Home" was the most successful in the history of the society and the capable management in which matters were looked after reflects great credit on the committee in charge.

Week of Prayer.

A HELPFUL ADDRESS. A GOOD SERVICE. (I.G.M.)

The Week of Prayer has so long been established in our midst, that it has become a part of our annual Church life; hence it is pleasing to notice that those in charge of it make preparations and deemed the work worthy of printed hand bills, containing the list of services, and names of the various speakers for the week. The first service was held last night at Gower St. Church, and was fairly well attended; and the choir consisted of a goodly representation of singers. The pastor of the Church, Rev. Hammond Johnson, as in customary, led the service, and was accompanied by the Rev. B. T. Holden, the respected pastor of the Congregational Church, upon whom devolved the duty of preparing, and delivering the message of the evening.

The topic was that of Self, and as a basis for his address the speaker took the Golden Rule of loving God first, and our fellows as ourselves, as it is recorded in St. Matthew's Gospel. The topic is such as at once sets one thinking as to its meaning and application. For self and selfishness seem to have gained a big place in the conditions of modern life; and this is the light in which the speaker treated it. He referred to the necessity of self-preservation, and of one's duty to one's self, and showed that it was owing to Christianity that such value and worth, were placed upon human life. The heathen religions did not value human life, hence the individual did not mean so much to the State, nor to the heathen religion as does the individual life of people living under the influence of Christianity.

Christianity has not only dignified human life but it has, as it were, discovered it, and revealed its worth in the truest sense of the term. The question of self, and of the individual life was really the question of the day, because if individual life be right, and one's self be in right relations with his neighbours, he is then measuring up to the standard of the Golden Rule, of loving his neighbour as himself. Selfishness is not the highest type of life, but rather is the type found in service for others. There were various aspects in which the question was treated, and the Rev. speaker showed good judgement, and made the most of the time at his disposal, and left an impression upon the people, which should certainly tell in favour of the service of the week.

The spirit of the service was very devotional, and several clergymen and representative laymen from the city Churches took part. The singing was entirely congregational, and in all it can be truly said that a good beginning for the week has been made. To-morrow St. John's Church is the place. Let it be filled.

Sale of Work.

IN AID OF KILBRIDE CHURCH. The annual sale of work in aid of Kilbride Church Fund was held in the Kilbride club rooms last night, the affair taking the form of a Christmas feast. The hall was specially decorated for the occasion, while a large stock of goods was on hand. The sale was largely patronized by the people of the Parish, as well as friends from the city. The various stalls and tables which were presided over by the Ladies' Committee did well, and the results of the opening night were very encouraging. The sale will conclude to-night when any goods remaining over will be disposed of by auction. An even larger attendance is expected to be present this evening.

Obituary.

Clark, who did all possible to alleviate her suffering, which she bore with true Christian fortitude. The funeral, which took place on Wednesday, Jan. 3rd, was largely attended by friends of the deceased. She was laid to rest in the C. of E. Cemetery beside her husband, who passed away just seven months ago. She will be greatly missed by a large circle of friends and relatives.—COM.

Just a little bit of Heaven! Slipped away from earth! Never in this world of care Had it ever birth.

Just a rose among the thorns, Budding bright and free, Withered but to bloom more fair Next the Deity.

Silver 'troubled warbler! Round thee our thoughts will cling 'Mother of Christ'—Ah, never more Will its echo so sweetly ring!

And the voice of your youth is silent; And the talent Heaven gave, 'Neath a simple mound in Mount Calvary! Sleeps in a silent grave.

And a place at the fireside's vacant And a merry laugh is still! But it's Xmas day in Heaven! And an Angel's throne is filled!

Direct Lift Air Coach.

LONDON.—It has become known in air circles that a new and strange form of helicopter or "direct-lift" machine is being prepared in this country for an attempt to win the £50,000 Air Ministry prize for a flying-machine of this type which fulfills certain conditions as to the height it attains and the load it carries. Curved surfaces, like sections of aeroplane wings, mounted on metal arms revolving horizontally round a central platform, are, it is known, to be driven at a great speed in this mystery machine by a 450 horse-power Napier "Lion" engine, while in the later and larger model a great Napier "Cub" motor, developing 1,000 horse-power, will be employed. The whirling, cambered planes, or vanes, acting in a sense like the ordinary wing of an aeroplane when forced rapidly through the air is expected to develop a lifting power never before attained in any such experimental machine.

Advertisement for Grape-Nuts, featuring an image of a box and the text: 'What does food economy mean to you?'

DOESN'T it mean good living at low cost? Foods that are "short" in nourishing value and "long" in waste are never economical.

The food, Grape-Nuts, is economical to the last serving in the package, because every golden-crisp granule really contributes to body-building.

Every bit of Grape-Nuts is real food, uniquely free from the bulky waste found in many other food products.

Made from wheat and malted barley, Grape-Nuts has the benefit of 20 hours' baking which so changes the starch of these grains that easy digestibility naturally results.

Eaten with good milk or cream, Grape-Nuts is a complete food, which creates energy without taking away energy. And the gradual, daily accumulation of power is the greatest of all food economies, since reserve energy is what counts most, either in the sudden emergency or the long grind.

A food for economy—a food for health! And a food with a charm of flavor all its own.

The Late Professor Waddell.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—What was my surprise and regret when I picked up the Telegram Saturday evening to read of the passing of Prof. John Waddell, assistant Prof. of Chemistry at Kingston University, whose death had just occurred at Montreal. What seemed to me a rather striking coincidence was the fact that I had just laid aside my pen from writing a paper on "Pioneer days on the West Coast," wherein I had told several stories of Prof. John Waddell's brother-in-law, who was the first manager of the lumber mills there before my father bought it from Burns & Murray who then owned it. Mr. Tupper was a cousin of Sir Chas. Tupper, and Mrs. Tupper a sister of Prof. John Waddell, one of the first pioneer work at Bonne Bay, Bay of Islands—a woman whose beautiful life and refined, cultured manner exercised a beneficial effect in pioneer days. Their father, Rev. J. Waddell, was one of Nova Scotia's finest clergymen who died comparatively young and left a widow who survived him many years, also four daughters, of whom only one remains—widow of the late Rev. Dr. McCurdy, and two sons, Sherburne who did business in Halifax many years. Now the youngest and most clever of all has passed away. Prof. John was a brilliant scholar, and won honors both in Germany and Scotland. He is also survived by his equally brilliant nephew, Prof. James Waddell Tupper, former lecturer in English and Mathematics at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore and more recently at Illinois. Only last year Prof. Tupper wrote expressing a great desire to once more visit the scenes of his boyhood days and have a trip up the dear old Humber. I knew both families intimately and it was the writer's good fortune when a child to, live with the Tupper family and go to school to Miss Tupper, our first lady teacher and to have as playmate and school friend "Jim," as we familiarly called him, and he helped him to escape many a scolding for boyish pranks. Our sympathy goes out to both Mrs. Mrs. McCurdy and Prof. J. W. Tupper as well as many Canadian friends intimately and it was the writer's good fortune when a child to, live with the Tupper family and go to school to Miss Tupper, our first lady teacher and to have as playmate and school friend "Jim," as we familiarly called him, and he helped him to escape many a scolding for boyish pranks. The Expulsion of The Greeks.

The expulsion of the Greeks from the lands over which the Turks have now reasserted their authority promises to be one of the tragedies of history. As our Constantinople correspondent telegraphs, the question of the protection of minorities in Turkey is rapidly solving itself, because soon there will be no minorities left to protect. In all the broad lands of Eastern Thrace already no Greeks are left, and the chief remaining inhabitants—apart from a few wretched Turkish villagers—are the cats, who subsist by devouring the remains of the less enduring dogs. So also in Asia Minor, where the Greek fugitives have many of them lived in peace with their Turkish neighbors for hundreds of years, and are indeed often divided from them not by race but only by religion, there will soon be no Greeks left, except the men who have been seized by the Turks for road-mending and other forced labor. In Constantinople several hundred thousand Greeks and Armenians still remain, but they are leaving as fast as they can, and if the process is carried much farther there will be a complete paralysis of the trade of the city. Pretty much the same thing will have happened as when 500 years ago the Turks took possession of the Constantinople, then as now the chief commercial city of the Near East, and destroyed its trade along with its Government. The Turks are not traders or shopkeepers nor are they artisans or sailors. These despised but necessary functions of the State have hitherto been carried on almost exclusively by the people, Greeks or Armenians, now in process of disappearance. Were they all to disappear, who would there be to carry on their work? Just because they are so necessary a certain number will probably be allowed and even invited to remain, and together with the Jews, against whom the Turks have not the same objection, will do something to fill the void. If the Turks knew their own interest the persecution would cease at once. In any case, owing to the general ruin of the country, trade is bound to suffer heavily, and the Turkish revenue will suffer correspondingly. When the peace at last is signed the Turks may begin to realize the extent of the evils involved in these wholesale expulsions, and may be eager to recall a good many of those whom with equal eagerness they are now engaged in expelling.—Manchester Guardian.

In The Valley of The Kings.

A sensational discovery was made in the valley of the Nile the other day and it came as the climax and reward of more than a third of a century of indomitable effort. Lord Carnarvon for sixteen years has been giving time, attention and money to patient research amidst the ruins that cover the civilization of ancient Egypt. Howard Carter, an American, for thirty-three years has devoted his extraordinary gifts for excavation to the minute examination of the mummy cases of the pharaohs. The sensitive gaze of the modern scientist such great finds as several times in the past have dazzled the imagination of the world. And now not only the correspondents of the newspapers, but such men as Sir Ernest Wallis Budge of the British Museum and Prof. James H. Breasted of Chicago University are applying all the superlatives of the language to this latest discovery in a region over which archaeologists have been digging for more than a century.

Having wrought for thirty-one years in Egypt, Howard Carter went back to England in 1920. But he felt the "urge" to return, that curious "pull" blended of instinct and knowledge that sometimes helps investigators to their great achievements, and he went back to the Nile and burrowed to within six feet of the great clue he sought. Illness compelled him to desist, but last October he began again, and had dug but a single week when he came upon the topmost step of a descending stairway in that valley which the kings of the Eighteenth Dynasty had selected in which to hew their tombs. Soon he had uncovered the chambers to which the steps led. Then he telegraphed for Lord Carnarvon, who immediately started for Luxor, across the river from this royal acropolis of the Theban empire. In the presence of a small party of invited persons the sealed outer doors of these chambers were opened. A way was cleared down

When Nfld. Shopkeepers Sell Sugar in Packages—

They avoid the loss of weight which occurs whilst barrels are in transit from the Refinery.

They get what they pay for and pay only for what they get. They avoid the loss which occurs when 8 pounds are sold for the price of seven.

They have only to compare the price they pay at, with the price they sell for, to figure their profit.

They have the satisfaction of knowing that the probability of leaks is eliminated.

They are following the example of Canadian and American shopkeepers who prefer to handle sugar in packages.

They are operating with less work instead of guess work. They know what they're doing.

They can utilize their clerks' spare time in safeguarding perishable goods and in moving empties out of the way. Last, but not least, they make more profit than when retailing sugar out of a barrel. Jan 2, 1923, 30 some sixteen steps and along a passage of about 25 feet. Through another doorway they squeezed and into a chamber whose contents overwhelmed them with awe as well as delight.

Here were gilt couches inlaid with ivory and jewels, numbersless boxes elaborately ornamented, splendid vases, chairs encrusted with precious stones, a wonderful throne, chariots with charioters' aprons of leopards' skins hanging over the seats, bituminized statues. Here, too, were great quantities of provisions for the refreshment of the King on his journey to the underworld, trussed ducks, haunches of venison, all the dainties of that early civilization. Here have been found intact the first and only specimens of ancient papers that yet have come to light, "tapers of bronze surrounded with gold and ivory with wicks of twisted linen which were soaked in oil and attached to rods with pergold circles."

There remains still a chamber to open. The two uncovered are packed with these precious objects, the treasure of a monarch of the Nile.

Tossil Tusko Appearing on Ivory Market.

LONDON.—The latest addition to the Natural History Department of the British Museum is the skull and tusks of a Siberian mammoth, the first ever brought into western Europe. The skull was dug out of the ice on one of the Siberian tundra. Preserved as it was in cold storage through countless ages, it is remarkably fresh, even to the fragments of skin still attached to the great jaws. By examining the teeth, which are in excellent condition and about six inches in diameter, experts have established that they belonged to a full grown female mammoth. The bones of the head are snow white in contrast to the usual fossil bones, which are stained brown or black. The tusks are 12 feet long, and the ivory is in perfect condition. Their value as ivory is placed at $1500. Large quantities of fossilized ivory, dug up in various parts of Siberia, are now coming to England for sale. A shipload of these remains arrived recently and was sold for prices higher than paid for Indian ivory tusks. The supply of such ivory, however, is limited and it will not have any material effect on the market.

For Three Minutes Only.

(From the New York Herald.) Speech is perhaps the gift that man has most abused. Hundreds of years ago the best minds recognized the fact and inveighed against the evil. In the New Testament, in the works of Aquinas and in other classics there is reproof for the unnecessary talker. But all in vain; nothing has restrained the man who likes to shoot off his basso.

The latest reformer in this important field is the Quebec Board of Trade, which has informed its members that hereafter no speech at any general meeting is to exceed three minutes unless the subject is so important that the prospective orator can convince the board in advance that he must have ten minutes to make himself plain.

Under the Quebec rule a man could go to a public dinner with a smile, even under the trestle circumstances. His soul would rejoice to hear the toastmaster say: "We have with us to-night, but for three minutes only, the Hon. James Jazz," etc. The hardened diner's habit of sneaking out on the principal speaker would be cured; anybody can stand anybody's oratory for three minutes.

The Quebec plan is one of the hopes of civilization. But it must be enforced by chairman of iron wills, assisted by accurate timepieces (those sand glasses used for boiling eggs would do), and strong, heartless sergeants-at-arms.

The New Calendar.

Days three hundred and sixty-four. Like fair, uncut pages are in the volume, yet unread. Of my new year's calendar— One continued chapter they. Starting in fresh to-day!

Though this selfsame calendar Serves us all throughout the years, Hours which make your joy, for me May be fraught with grief and tears; Those my happiness which bring, Will find others sorrowing.

Days that stretch on far ahead, I must live them one by one, Bearing what may be in store. Till the year's long tale is spun. What is written there? I turn! One page at a time—and learn!

Falls my lot in pleasant ways? Will death interrupt my task? All is hid from mortal eye. But, Life, just one boon I ask: Let me meet courageously! Whatsoever fate may bring.

Orient Developing Aviation.

TOKIO.—Aviation is making rapid strides in Japan and regular air mail services between this country and China and Korea are being planned. The progress made is largely attributed to an anonymous gift of more than $100,000 by an American capitalist some years ago, according to Lieut-General Gaiishi Nagaoka, president of the Imperial Aviation Society. General Nagaoka said the American benefactor was aware that aviation had been much neglected in the Orient and that this condition was operating as an impediment to world progress. Through Baron Shidabara, then secretary of the Japanese embassy at Washington, the gift was communicated to the Japanese government, which, however, decided that it could not possibly accept it and turned it over to the Imperial Aviation Society, a private organization. General Nagaoka, who saw service with the Japanese army in the Sino-Japanese wars, is now giving all his time to aviation affairs. He dreams of fleets of aeroplanes which will be built not to bomb unprotected cities, but to drop mail bags at every post office over the land. Already the society has established a fast air service between Tokio and Osaka. "Japanese are naturally among the best aeroplane pilots in the world," stated General Nagaoka. "They are quick, fearless, and what is more important, extremely sensitive, ready to detect by sound and touch every motor defect or change in the plane's position. Their chief disadvantage is an inherent inadaptability to mechanical work necessary to keep their motors in proper trim."

Remains of Prehistoric Man FOUND IN MALTA.

VALETTA, Malta.—Scientists digging for prehistoric records in a cave on the island of Malta have found teeth which they believe belonged to a man who lived contemporaneously with the "Neanderthal man." The Neanderthal skull was found in Germany in 1856, and it is said to be the oldest record of the human race in Europe. The teeth were found in a remote section of the much frequented cave called Ghar Dalam. The visits of many souvenir hunters have made more difficult the labors of the investigators, but nevertheless they are preparing to excavate further in the hope of finding more evidences of prehistoric life.

Diminutive Golf Course.

LONDON.—The smallest golf course in England has recently been opened in the centre of a London suburb. It has an area of one and one-half acres. The course has been laid out on the side of a hill, so that there are many steep slopes and, despite the limited space, golfers may indulge in every stroke of the game.

Famous Baby Doctor Dead.

CHILDREN PRAY IN STREETS FOR LIFE OF NEWARK'S FAMOUS "BABY DOCTOR."

Newark, N.J.—Newark has suffered an irreparable loss in the death of Dr. Miller Royal Whittenack. For days before his death, as the news of his critical illness spread like wildfire over his home city, thousands of little children—black, white, Catholic, Protestant, Jew—kneel in the streets, in the school-yard, in churches, and prayed for his recovery. He was known as the "Baby Doctor." It is estimated that 7,000 Newark children have been brought into the world and reared into sturdy young citizens through Dr. Whittenack's ministrations. Hundreds owe their lives to him, whose parents have never been able to pay him a cent for his services. It was not uncommon for a poor family, after his visit, to find a $5 or $10 bill slipped under the pillow, or left carelessly on a table.

Quebec's Great Loss.

WHEN BASILICA BURNED.

Another great church, Notre Dame, of Quebec, popularly known to thousands both in and outside the Ancient Capital, has fallen a prey to the fire fiend. This disaster is more than provincial in its scope, for the Basilica dated back to the early days of the Dominion, of which Quebec is the cradle. The Basilica was first built in 1647, and the first mass was said there on Christmas Day, 1650. In 1666 the church was consecrated by Mar. De Laval, the first Bishop of Quebec. Later, in 1745, it was restored and in 1759 it suffered in the bombardment of Quebec by Wolfe. Changes and additions have been made frequently since then, but the Basilica has always remained a source of pride to the Quebecers and of deep interest to the thousands of visitors who go annually to the Ancient Capital. It is sad to think that this great historic edifice has shared the fate of the noble church at Ste. Anne de Beaupre. The adornments were old and magnificent and included presents from the Kings of France, at the time that New France was in the making. Nine hundred persons have been buried in the crypt, the remains including four governors of New France, Church dignitaries, including Bishop De Laval, and a host of military officers, judges and others.

Faked Antiques Crowd London Shops.

LONDON—The methods by which thousands of persons are cheated annually through the sale by dealers of antique furniture, bronzes and porcelain which are "faked," were shown recently when an antique dealer was brought to court charged with fraud. During the trial it was declared that dealers sell thousands of pounds worth of antiques every year. American tourists visiting England, and that probably less than five per cent. of the purchases are real. The methods of the antique dealers in faking their wares are carried out so skillfully that the experts differed widely in their opinion of many of the pieces brought into court. The favorite system of the crooked dealer is to obtain a genuine antique of a certain period; for instance a chair. This he will take apart, and reconstruct a number of chairs of the same design, each one containing a section of the original chair. It was shown during the hearing that an antique bedstead had been taken to pieces, and that the twelve duplicates fashioned in accordance with this system had sold for $5,000 each. In faking China the work is far more difficult. Here the dealers must make copies conforming minutely to the original and bearing the makers signature. This requires a skill that few persons possess nowadays, and which easily baffles the experts. It is estimated that sixty per cent. of the antiques now being shown in London are not what they are represented to be.

Ross Buys Volcano Full of Animals.

An untouched Eden in the mouth of a burned-out volcano in the heart of Africa, providing a refuge for thousands of animals, many of them extinct in every other part of the world, has been purchased outright by Sir Charles Ross of Belgaogow, the inventor of the scientific, says a London letter to the Montreal Star. It is the giant crater of Ngoro Ngoro, the largest volcano that ever existed on this planet—10 miles across and a paradise for wild things. The Germans knew of it before the war, but kept its very existence a secret.

Nobody knows what discoveries a thorough exploration of the crater may bring. Prehistoric animals, believed to have perished from the earth thousands of years ago, may inhabit its caves. Scientists hope to find other strange creatures, of which only the skeletons have been found in other parts of the world.

Sir Charles Ross went to Tanganyika in January, 1921, on a shooting expedition, accompanied by the explorer-photographer, T. A. Barnes, and Mrs. Frederick Dalsiel of New York. They had good sport and they discovered the crater. Sir Charles Ross was "walked up" by five lions within the basin, and the wonders he saw there made him resolve that no more shooting parties should be allowed.

There will be no need for "no shooting" signs. The crater is 100 miles from a railway in the midst of wild country. Lions and tigers are the watchdogs of the forests that surround it. The number of animals in the crater is estimated at 75,000.

The crater is, in fact, a city of animals, who have lived there for centuries safe from attack. Its steep sides made it a citadel of the forest, and while in all other parts of the world the work of extermination went on, no hunter dared to penetrate this fastness. Thus it is highly probable that animals which have perished elsewhere have survived at Ngoro Ngoro.

Other volcanoes are grouped about the central crater of Ngoro Ngoro. More than one of them is larger than Mt. Etna. The whole region, ages ago, was the scene of a terrific volcanic upheaval.

THE TWO SISTERS.

Once upon a time there were two sisters.

Of course there ought to have been three to match up with that "once upon a time," for somehow in fairy tales there always seemed to be three--three bears, three pigs, and always three princes.

But this isn't a fairy tale. It's true, as a matter of fact there were two sisters.

Moreover, the two "sisters" are living and I don't know why I should "once upon a time" at all that it seemed like a good thing of course there's nothing reliable about two sisters. Lots of people have them. But the noteworthy thing about these two sisters was their total difference in character.

She Went After It.

One of the sisters was very selfish. She knew what she wanted and she always went for it hard. Her face looked it. It was stamped all over with selfishness and ruthlessness.

The other sister should, of course, have been unselfish to make the picture you are expecting. But she wasn't. She was selfish in another way. Selfish but not ruthless. She wanted things, she wanted people to do things for her, and wanted pleasures but she wasn't so ruthless about getting them. She wouldn't fight for what she wanted. She would watch other people get it and then she would feel bitter. She would tell herself that she was unselfish and that the rest of the world, especially her sister, was very selfish, and she would begin to work in her. Out of this self-pity and self-aversion a bitterness has finally grown a kind of malignancy that marks her face and makes it even less attractive than her sister's selfishness has made hers.

Many people who know them both prefer the one who is openly and ruthlessly selfish.

And the other one cannot understand it.

Not Because They Are Unselfish.

People like her never can understand why they are not loved. They know they are not getting what they want out of life, and they think that failure is because they are unselfish when, as a matter of fact, it may be simply because they are not forceful.

Besides, even if one is really unselfish, one cannot win love by it if one is at the same time self-pitying and morose. Nor can one be popular. People are drawn to a person, who is a good smiler even if he is selfish in his private relations. What difference does that make to people if they are not involved in his selfishness. It's nothing in their life, whereas a smile is.

Smilingly Unselfish.

And even for a close friend I am not sure that the average person does not prefer the person who is smilingly selfish to the person who is unsmilingly unselfish.

Of course there is nothing to prevent one from being smilingly unselfish. Nothing--except weakness of human nature that wants to either grab what it wants or sulk when it can't get it. But one can at least have it as an ideal.

Household Notes.

Baked bluefish is good, with celery stuffing.

Scalloped oysters are nice baked in scallop shells.

Slices of hard-boiled eggs are nice served in lentil soup.

The flavor of coffee is improved if you use it freshly ground.

Save old silk shirts for making bags for white hats.

Beat soft fudge icing thoroughly until it is thick and cold.

Cream cheese is nice served with cherry pie.

Saratoga chips are easily prepared if one has a vegetable shaver.

Fruit icing is good on split gingerbread or apple sauce cake.

Bread will be more tender and will keep longer if milk is used in it.

Chopped cabbage and canned sweet peppers mixed with mayonnaise makes an excellent salad.

It is decidedly better to have the water used in making pie crust ice cold.

Steamed figs served with dry cereal and cream make an excellent breakfast dish.

A delicious breakfast dish for Sunday morning is chicken livers sauted with apples.

Vegetables should be flavored with salt only after they are virtually cooked.

Eight of Britain's Bulwarks Scrapped.

In explanation of the statement regarding the scrapping of warships made in the British House of Commons by a representative of the British Admiralty, the British Embassy has made public a list of eight capital ships "already sold and removed by shipbreaking firms for breaking up."

It was also declared that eight other vessels were in the first stages of scrapping as defined in the Washington naval treaty.

The Embassy statement declared that "none of these vessels were obsolete in the sense of the Washington treaty," and R. Leslie Colgate, secretary of the Embassy, said that "had it not been for the Washington conference, none of these ships would have been scrapped."

The Embassy statement followed circulation of a report from Washington that so far the actual scrapping of warships in the United States, Great Britain and Japan alike had affected only vessels which are formally classified by each power as wholly obsolete for naval purposes.

Six ships are enumerated by the Embassy statement as "rendered incapable of further warlike service," which is the language used in Part 2 of the treaty to define "the first stage of scrapping." They are the battleships Orion, Monarch, Conqueror and Agincourt, and the battle cruisers New Zealand and Princess Royal. The battleships Erin and Collingwood, the statement adds, are to be similarly dealt with during the present month.

There is no disposition in Washington official circles to challenge the good faith of the British Government in any way, nor to deny that the British have made greater progress toward scrapping ships actually older than any other power. The story which elicited the Embassy statement was not based on information from United States governmental sources.

Mrs. Alex. Marshall, Sprucedale, Ont., writes:—"When my little son was three months old he broke out in sores on his chest and arms. We did all we could to heal those terrible sores, but nothing did him much good. Finally I ventured on a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment and kept on using it. At last we were rewarded by the steady healing of the sores, and finally he was completely relieved of them. He is now three years old, and has had no return of the trouble since."

England Wins Fight Against Flies.

LONDON—The reduction of the number of house flies from myriads to a comparatively few has been accomplished in England through sanitation and health propaganda, according to a statement by Dr. E. Halford Ross, medical assessor at the Ministry of Pensions. Dr. Ross toured the British Isles last summer, and in those places, where previously there had been thousands of flies, they were conspicuous by their absence, he declares. Some out of the way villages and farm houses still sheltered the grubs and insects, but those locations were not numerous. There has been a very great decrease in infantile mortality, as compared to 1911, and the improvement is credited by Dr. Ross to the relative absence of flies.

Women of Paris Fear "Piqueur" Epidemic.

Complaints continue to flow into Parisian police headquarters from people who have been pricked with a needle while walking Paris streets or while in crowded stores and subways.

Ten cases of pricking have been reported in one day to the police, and in some cases the mystery as to how it is done has been intensified by statements of sufferers that at the time they were pricked there was no one nearer than five or ten paces. One woman standing near her door suddenly felt a sharp pain in her neck, and raising her hand found half a needle stuck deep below the skin. There was no one near her at the time, and the only possible explanation of the case which the police can find is that the needle was blown with a small blowpipe from a considerable distance.

Among the cases which occurred the victims were mostly travellers in the subway and on buses, while a few occurred in shops. In almost all cases part of a needle was discovered in the flesh.

Two Previous Epidemics.

There seems to be small doubt now that the perpetrators are lunatics suffering from a peculiar form of morbid disease. Medical experts recall that this kind of thing crops up periodically in various forms and is closely allied with the mania to cut off women's hair and to slash dresses with scissors or razors. On two occasions in the past a regular epidemic of needle-pricking was recorded, namely, under Louis XV, and the Directorate. No ill-effects need be feared by the victims, provided ordinary precautions are taken.

PARIS—Experiments are to be carried out by French scientists to test the hypothetical "scrapability" which, judging from the effortless gliding of birds, is believed to exist in the air above deserts. At Blérac, in Algeria, an experimental air station is being established for motorless air-sailing flights. It is thought that the ceaseless air currents which rise from the hot desert should make engineless flying possible on a scale unattainable elsewhere.
