The Imprisoned Heiress

The Spectre of Egremont

CHAPTER XXVI

Throughout the day succeeding his second meeting in the picture-gallery with the Lady Almee, Lord Ashcroft sought in vain an opportunity for a private conversation with his host. Lord Egremont seemed to be in unusual demand. After the ride in the forest, during which the arrest of Kepp was effected, the earl was closeted for hours with his steward and bailiff, and when he rejoined his guests it was to entertain the clergyman of the parish, who had come to Egremont to pay one of his parochial visits, and to congratulate the young betrothed pair on their speedily approaching marriage. The clergyman remained to dinner and through the evening, tempted by the warm fire-side and plentiful amusements, but he went away at last.

It was then, however, too late to ask the earl for a private interview, and Lord Ashcroft was obliged to hear the arrangements for his marriage discussed, the wants of the Lady Alexina expressed, and to hear Lyio Ingor join in the conversation with a friendly interest that would have been appropriate to a younger brother.

But the opportunity for speaking with his host was afforded at last. Lord Ashcroft escorted his sister to her room as usual, and was then about to return to the drawing-room when he encountered the earl on the stairs.

With an eagerness that did not escape the gaze of his host, he required an immediate interview.

"Quite a coincidence," said Lord Egremont; "I was on my way to your room. I want to talk with you about the marriage settlements."

In truth, the earl desired also to elicit from Lord Ashcroft a renewal of his promise to provide for his future, and, if possible, to secure this provision at the time when the marriage settlements should be drawn.

He put his arm through that of his guest, and they passed into Lord Ashcroft's room together.

The little parlor was lighted by the bright fire, but the lamp-light had not been turned on, and the room lay half in shadow.

Lord Egremont drew a chair up to the fire, and meditated upon the best manner of broaching his request, while Lord Ashcroft examined the embrasures of his windows, etc., according to the habit into which he had fallen.

"You won't find anybody concealed there to-night," said the earl, looking up, with a smile. "Your enemy is locked up in the strong-room, and I defy him to escape from it. I shall have him attended to to-morrow. His

"Now Feeling Fine and Able to do my own work"

Mrs. Walter Grieves, Coe Hill, Ont., writes: "I was in such a weakened, run-down condition that I could not take care of my household duties. I was unable to sleep at night, and the doctor told me I was anemic. I commenced a treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and to-day I am feeling fine and able to do all my own work."

"My little girl had eczema, and different remedies took no effect whatever. We got a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment and that one box relieved her."

The Heir to Beecham Park FOR JOY OF GOOD HEALTH

CHAPTER I

"Stand back there! Move aside! Good heavens! Can't you see the woman will die if you press about her in this way?"

The speaker bent over the lifeless form as he uttered these words, and tried once more to pour a little stimulant between the pallid lips. The scene was one of indescribable confusion. A collision had occurred between the Chesterham express and a goods train, just a short distance from Chesterham Junction. Five of the carriages were wrecked. Fortunately, three were empty; and the other two contained only three passengers—a man, who, with his arm bound up, was already starting to walk to the town; a boy, badly cut about the head, leaning, pale and faint, on a portion of the broken woodwork; and, lastly, a woman, who lay motionless on the bank, a thick shawl spread between her and the cold, damp earth. On discovery, she had been removed from the debris, laid on the bank, and forgotten in the excitement and terror. The rest of the passengers had sustained only a severe shaking and bruises; and loud were their grumblings and expressions of self-sympathy as they clustered together on the bank, shivering in the gray autumn mist. A doctor, who had been summoned from Chesterham, ran his eye over the assembled people, strapped up the boy's head, and skillfully set the broken arm of the man. It was while doing this that his glance fell on the prostrate form lying on the grass; and the sight of the pale, bloodless face immediately brought a frown to his brow.

"What is the matter here?" he asked a passing porter.

"Lady in a faint, sir."

The doctor fastened the last bandage, and, with hurried steps, approached the woman. A crowd followed him, and gathered round so closely as to cause him to request them to "stand back." His words produced the desired effect, and the bystanders moved away and watched with breathless interest, his fruitless efforts to restore animation.

The frown darkened on the doctor's brow; there was something more than an ordinary faint here. He raised the woman's head for another trial, and the mass of red-gold hair, already loosened, fell in glorious waves round the beautiful, pale face, bringing a murmur of admiration from the beholders. The sudden action caused one limp, cold hand to fall against the doctor's warm one, and at the contact he shuddered. He raised the heavily-fringed eyelids, gave one look then gently laid the woman's head down again, and reverently covered her face with his handkerchief.

"I can do nothing," he said, tersely, as if speaking to himself; "she is dead!"

The crowd drew back involuntarily, some hid their faces, while others gazed at the slight form in its dark-brown dress as if they doubted the truth of his statement. Suddenly, while the doctor stood thoughtfully drawing on his gloves, one of the porters appeared in the crowd. He held a child in his arms—such a pretty child—with hair that matched the red-gold masses of the lifeless form on the bank, eyes that shone like sapphire stars from beneath her curling lashes, and a skin of cream white with no warmth of color in the face, save that of the small, red lips. She was dressed in a little gray coat, all covered now with dust; in her tiny hands she clasped a piece of broken woodwork, holding it as though it were a treasure, and she glanced round as the bystanders with an air of childish piquancy and assurance.

"Whose child is this?" inquired the porter, looking from one to another.

There was a pause; no one spoke no one owned her. The porter's honest face grew troubled.

"Where does she come from?" asked the doctor, quickly.

As Strange as Fiction

IS DETAILS OF WOMAN'S TERRIFYING 15-MILE RIDE ON PILOT OF ENGINE.

The despatches have already told of how Mrs. Mary Clark, of Indianapolis, aged 19 years, had a Christmas night ride of 15 miles on the locomotive pilot of the Knickerbocker Special, a fast New York Central train where Mrs. Clark was caught when the train demolished an automobile at a crossing, and she was swept off into a ditch, where she was found by a farmer, who heard her last desperate scream.

Mrs. Clark has since given a description of the occurrence. She said, as the automobile started across the tracks she heard a terrific crash, and then remembered nothing until she found herself on the locomotive pilot.

"I was still dazed," she said, "but I realized where I was and I apparently had enough presence of mind to cling to some kind of iron bar on the head of the locomotive."

"I screamed, shrieked and shouted until my throat became so raw I was unable to make further noise. The train was going so fast. I thought the engineer or fireman surely had realized the train had struck something and would slow down in a minute or two. The minutes seemed like hours and the wind was so strong I was afraid to turn around and look ahead. It was the coldest wind I ever felt and it went through my coat and shirt-waist and skirt as if I had on no clothing at all. I thought of a thousand and one things I guess, and the longer I remained there the more horrifying it seemed."

Mrs. Clark was wearing a pair of cloth gloves and, she said, she soon felt her hands growing numb.

"I felt then that it would be only a question of a few seconds until I probably would be dashed to the tracks below and ground to pieces. It was terrible. I prayed to God to give me strength to hang on just a little farther. I also asked that if He intended to take me, please to spare Kenneth (her husband) and the rest of the family."

"I thought of Kenneth and his father and mother and little Billy (her nephew) many times as the train sped on, and I wondered if they had been killed. I prayed and prayed that they be saved. Realizing that the train was not going to stop, I hoped that in some of them could get word to a dispatcher somewhere along the line, so the train could be flagged. I thought

Ends Stubborn Coughs in a Hurry

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy has no equal. Easily and cheaply prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It takes but a moment to prepare and really there is nothing better for coughs.

Into a 16-oz. bottle, put 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, this mixture saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, and more pleasant. It keeps perfectly, and tastes pleasant.

Children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out, and the coughing also goes away. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness, and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "Pinex," unless of Pinex with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction, or money refunded.

A. Rockefeller Elopement

Grand-Nephew of Millionaire—Wedding Secret for a Year.

New York—The fact that Mr. Avery Rockefeller, the 30-year-old grand nephew of Mr. John D. Rockefeller, is now living in England with his young wife is disclosed by a statement issued by the family.

It appears that the young couple eloped and were secretly married in September, 1923, intending to keep the marriage secret until they had finished their education. Their infant son was born last August. The bride was Miss Anna Mark, daughter of a wealthy Chicago manufacturer.

It would take fifty years and 20,000,000 pounds to sink a great twelve miles down into the earth, according to Sir Charles Parsons, the famous engineer.

Putting the Bricklayer to Shame

A builder's foreman of Sheffield, Chris Hunter, accepted a bet of £10 to 100, from his employer, Charles Boot, director of a well-known firm now rebuilding in devastated France, that he would not lay 750 bricks in an hour. He won easily, for in the time allotted he set 809 bricks, which is believed to be a world's record.

Hunter makes a hobby of laying bricks, and on one occasion when a lad of sixteen laid 1,750 in three and a half hours. Two hundred and fifty is a good hour's work for the average bricklayer.

Britain Looking to Canada for Fish Supplies

Daring Bandits Make Life and Property Unsafe in Montreal--Besco Miners Refuse to Appoint Representative to Conciliation Board.

CRIME WAVE IN MONTREAL.
MONTREAL, Jan. 9. With fourteen holdups during the past seven days of 1925 and eight others yesterday and last night, local authorities fear that Montreal is about to undergo another crime wave. The outrages are daily becoming bolder, as in the case of a lady walker with her husband yesterday afternoon being forced by automobile bandits to take off her seal coat and hand it over to them, after which they drove away and escaped. More timid citizens are afraid to walk out at night even on the most brilliantly lighted streets.

LOOKING TO CANADA FOR FISH.
NEW YORK, Jan. 9. Major General Garnet Hughes, who arrived here to-day on the Empress of France, is on his way to Nova Scotia to furnish a movement to increase Canadian fisheries with a view to dispatching a larger food supply to the Old Country. The British fish-boat fleet has taken a slump during the past few years, he said, and the British market turns to Canada for supplies.

MINERS REFUSE TO APPOINT REPRESENTATIVE.

SYDNEY, N.S., Jan. 9. The rage discussion between the British Empire Steel Corporation and the United Mine Workers became more involved to-day when the Executive Board of the miners sent a telegram to Hon. James Murdock, Minister of Labor, declining to appoint a representative on the proposed Conciliation Board. The Executive Board declared that the miners view with distrust the insincerity of the company, and that as the corporation had informed them positively that there would be no contract without a reduction of wages, there could be no advantage in a Board of Conciliation. It was intimated by a union official that if the Government chose to act in favor of the miners on the Conciliation Board the miners would hold themselves aloof from the proceedings.

TOKIO HAS EARTHQUAKE SHOCKS.
TOKIO, Jan. 9. Tokio was disturbed to-day by a series of earthquakes of high severity, the first of which rocked the city at 10 a.m. and the last at three this afternoon. Many people abandoned their homes in terror. Mount Aso, a volcano 100 miles from here, has been in eruption since Tuesday, throwing out ashes and damaging lands around its base.

WHITE MAN'S LAW SATISFIED.
QUEBEC, Jan. 9. Nookulak, the Eskimo, who was brought here a year ago by the Royal Mounted police and sentenced to ten years in Stony Mountain penitentiary, has satisfied the white man's law and will be returned to his northern home with the next Arctic expedition.

Fiji, a Land of Feasting

In Fiji, which has just celebrated its 75th anniversary of British rule, amid public rejoicings, the art of feasting has, according to Sir Maynard Hedstrom, commissioner from Fiji, been brought to a more robust pitch than in any other country in the world. On the anniversary day nearly every village in the 250 islands of the Fiji group had its ceremonial feast, at which enormous quantities of food were divided among participants who were making the event the chief of conversation for many months.

Hospitality and good-fellowship are the characteristics of every Fiji. They are characteristics that have been handed down to them from long lines of savage ancestors, who, when not engaged in fighting their enemies, delighted to entertain their friends to lavish repasts. In his everyday eating the Fiji is as hearty as he is, but upon ceremonial occasions all his inherited traits come to play, and he organizes feasts upon a gargantuan scale. In the centre of the feast ground, upon a structure of bamboo, often 20 feet high and as many yards long, the food is thickly piled. The delicacies are numerous and romantic: pig roasted whole, wild birds stuffed with rice, baked snakes, taro, yams, pineapples, and all the luscious fruits of the tropics. About this edifice the guests group themselves. They sit on their haunches, gay in ruffles of dyed feathers and kilt of colored cloth. They maintain a rigid and respectful silence, but every brown face is turned upon the stack of food with an expression of the keenest interest and pleasure. To and fro about the stack move the masters of ceremony. They scan the food and the guests with anxious eyes, for theirs is the difficult task of making a fair division. A tactless distribution of the food may very easily cause serious offence or even lead to blows among the guests. At a recent feast a huge shark, wrapped up like a mummy in palm leaves and baked whole, formed the supreme culinary achievement. The method of catching the monster was spectacular in the extreme. From his canoe a valiant native lassoed the shark by the tail and then played it like a salmon, until, exhausted, it fell an easy victim to the spears of his friends.

LATEST CHURCH UNION VOTE.
TORONTO, Jan. 9. The completion of Church Union votes up to noon to-day indicate that 456 Presbyterian Churches in Canada have voted to enter the Union and 60 have decided to stay out.

HARDLY A CHANCE FOR NUTTING SAYS BERNIE.
QUEBEC, Jan. 9. There is hardly a chance for William Washburn Nutting, the hardy New York yachtsman and his companions, who set out some months ago from Denmark, for Labrador, in a small craft, being alive, according to Captain J. P. Bernier, well known Canadian Arctic explorer, who gave an interview on the subject to-day. He said he had feared all along that the intrepid sailors would never reach their destination. He had been in the Labrador waters about the time Nutting had been expected there and shortly after there had been terrific storms in which no ship could live unless built especially for that purpose. He believed the Lief Erickson had foundered somewhere in the icy waters of the far North. In the event, however, of their having reached a point where only traders could find them, they could not get out or communicate with the world until May, he said.

FOUR U.S. CITIZENS INVOLVED.
QUEBEC, Jan. 9. Four United States citizens, known under the names of Stewart, Campbell, Neil and James Clark, who are not at present in Canada, are involved in the $500,000 liquor seizure case, out of which has also arisen allegations against the harbour master of Montreal, Captain Symonds, Captain Pennington, his assistant, and M. A. Binallion, chief of the Customs Preventive Service.

THE VOICE OF THE WEST.
BRANDON, Man., Jan. 9. If Canadian confederation cannot be maintained on a basis of equity and justice to all its divisions, why should it be maintained at all? R. A. Hoey, Progressive member of Parliament, for Springfield, asked this question last night, after he had outlined to the convention of the United Farmers of Manitoba, a situation which he thought made it imperative that something be done speedily in the interests of national unity. Why, he asked, maintain confederation on a basis of injustice and discrimination? He had come to the conclusion, he said, that Western Canada should organize for its own interests and those of the Maritime Provinces, and demand of Ontario and Quebec equitable treatment.

St. John's Nurse Just Rubs Away Throat Troubles

Miss England Endorses New Vaporizing Ointment for all Colds.

Miss Laura England, a nurse who lives at 20 Field St., after trying Vicks, writes: "Vicks is better than anything that I have ever used for rubbing. I was subject to a quinsy throat and a few applications cured me. I also used it for a heavy cold with good results, and would not be without it for general use."

For sore throat, chest colds, bronchitis or incipient pneumonia Vicks is rubbed over the throat and chest and covered with warm flannel. When so applied it's time tested ingredients—Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Thyme, etc.—are vaporized by the heat of the body and inhaled directly into the affected air passages and lungs. At the same time Vicks is absorbed through the skin like a liniment or poultice and thus helps the vapors inhaled to break up the congestion. It is a stubborn cold that can withstand this double direct action.

Clothes for Cold Weather
All the beauty culture or exercise in the world is of little use if clothing and surroundings are not healthy. There is always a tendency to don tight-fitting heavy clothes to "keep out the cold" at this season, but lightweight good quality woolly garments, loose-fitting, are just as effective. Fresh air in a bedroom is equally essential during the cold months as during the summer period; therefore, keep the window open.

The British climate has been too much for an Eskimo visitor from Barfin's Land. He caught cold on practically the first day of his visit to London.

In Unknown Arabia

SECRETS OF THE DESERT—ENGLISHMAN'S ADVENTUROUS JOURNEY.

Major R. E. Cheesman delivered a lecture before the Royal Geographical Society last evening on the Deserts of Jafura and Jabrin, Arabia. There are few places in the world to-day that have not been seen by European eyes. The North and South Poles have given up their secrets. The deserts of Africa have been crossed and recrossed. The Great Southern Desert of Arabia has not only never been crossed, but, of the few European travellers who have been allowed to enter the country, but four can claim even to have a distant glimpse of the outskirts. The first European to set foot in and bring back news of this virgin desert is an Englishman.

Major R. E. Cheesman, in describing his journey across the waterless Jafura to the oasis of Jabrin, said that while staying as the guest of Ibn Saud, the Wahabi Sultan of Nejd, he was sent with men and camels to stay with the Al Mdra, an Ikhwan tribe that roams in these inhospitable wastes. Photographs of these nomads were shown, and the lecturer remarked on the similarity between their features and those seen on ancient Sumerian sculptures, suggesting that they might be the descendants of the earliest known civilization. He had learned, he said, of a place called Maganina, in the sands, about 120 miles south of Jabrin, and drew attention to the resemblance between the name Maganina and that of Magan, or Maganina, a lost country frequently mentioned on Sumerian inscriptions, and supposed by some authorities to have been situated somewhere in the region of the Persian Gulf.

SPIRIT-HAUNTED CASTLES.
Jabrin itself was found to be a depression with date palms and ruined castles, reputed by the Bedawin to be haunted by spirits. The desert is encroaching on all sides, and the wells are drying up. Ancient geographers had filled in the blank space in this part of the map of Arabia by introducing a lake and two rivers, Wadi Aftan and Wadi Jabrin, flowing across the desert, important features in forming an opinion on the hydrography of an unexplored country. Lately doubts had been cast on the possibility of their existence. Major Cheesman crossed the mile-wide channel of the Wadi Sahba, and was thus able to confirm its position and importance as a drainage channel that once carried the waters of the Nejd highlands across the great Arabian peninsula to flow into the Persian Gulf, at the same time indicating the land-slope of some 300 miles of unknown country. The channel is now choked in places by drift sand, and it is probable that at a remote period of the world's history it was a flowing river. Certain stones from the gravel plains in this area are believed by the Bedawin to be bewitched, and are said to be seen rolling along the ground. One was brought home and was exhibited at the meeting.

SINGING SANDS.
Photographs were shown of the ruined town found by Major Cheesman on the coast at Oqair, which is supposed to be the site of the ancient Phenicia port of Gerra. Near by the phenomenon of the singing sands was encountered on the beach, where each footstep brings forth a mysterious piping whistle. Some remarkably pale desert coloured animals and birds were obtained, which show to a wonderful degree how a fauna is capable of developing colours to harmonize with its environment. Some of these were exhibited side by side with their darker neighbours. The collections made during

A Faithless and Unrepentant Nation

To-day was the date fixed by the Allies for the evacuation of the Cologne bridgehead, which was occupied by British troops on December 6th, 1918. This historic event which has been referred to as "winding up the watch on the Rhine," will never be forgotten by the victorious troops that took part in it, and it is something to be proud of that included in this army of occupation was the Royal Newfoundland Regiment.

To-day, however, does not witness that provisional withdrawal, much to the chagrin of the German people, who have just been informed by the Allies that inasmuch as they have again proved themselves untrustworthy and incapable of keeping faith, the army must remain in occupation for an indefinite period. As their part of the bargain, the Germans agreed to carry out the disarmament terms of the Treaty of Versailles, and the manner in which she has kept her word is best seen in the report made by the Inter-Allied Control Commission.

In spite of the obstacles placed in their way by Berlin, the Commission discovered that instead of the army of 100,000 men allowed her under the Treaty, Germany had an army of 400,000 trained soldiers available for service. Secret stores of war munitions including vast supplies of poison gas were unearthed, and it was found that munition factories had been working at high pressure for two years adding to these stores. In addition to the army of 400,000 men, secret enlistment bureaus existed, and through them a volunteer army of 700,000 had been organized. In a single sealed room in Berlin the Commission found twenty times the number of vital parts of machine guns that Germany was authorized to possess under the Treaty.

It was estimated that with the appliances at Germany's disposal she could within a year produce the heavy artillery, aeroplanes, and poison gases necessary for aggressive warfare.

Such is the sorry spectacle presented by this nation which, with professions of peaceful intentions, and with heartrending stories of idle factories, empty coffers, and starving millions, has sought to enlist the sympathy of the world.

What an amount of encouragement Germany must have been given by the movement to reduce armaments among those who stood between her and the ambitions which she fondly cherished! What an endless source of amusement to this sanguinary race have been the conscientious efforts made by the rest of the world to turn their swords into ploughshares, and surely she had occasion to be jubilant when her former enemies filled the coffers of Germany in order to enable her to meet their reparations payments which had been evaded for six years by every form of trickery!

The terms laid down in the Treaty of Versailles imposed obligations on the defeated enemy which, compared with the harsh demands by which France was humiliated in the Treaty of Frankfurt in 1871, erred considerably on the side of leniency. Then was there no mercy shown by Germany victorious, nor, let it not be forgotten, was mercy asked by France in her hour of desolation. She suffered in silence when the provinces of Alsace and Lorraine were torn from her, and by making every sacrifice she paid in full the indemnity of 43,000,000,000 francs within a year.

While it is not contended that Germany had any intentions of renewing hostilities at an early date, there is everything to indicate that the mental attitude of the nation has undergone no change since the days when she committed a criminal assault on unoffending and helpless Belgium, and treated the solemn covenants which she had made with other powers as mere scraps of paper. That there is no contrition or any desire to admit wrongdoing is shown by her brazen effrontery recently when she attempted to obtain from the Allies an admission that she was not responsible for the war.

Humane considerations and possibly political differences were factors which brought about the cessation of hostilities, with the result that Germany, at the limit of her resources, and with disorganization behind her fighting line, escaped her just punishment. She mistook the sentiment shown by the Allies for weakness, and attempted by every means to use it to her own advantage. Devoid of any feeling of humanity herself, Germany will never be brought to see the evil of her ways by any other than practical methods effectively applied.

The Old Collegians' Campaign

FOR ONE THOUSAND MEMBERS.

The campaign organization is being built up day by day. Specially selected workers are taking their places, either as division leaders, captains, or team workers. The whole group when completed will make a wonderful working force, which will cover the city and gather in the one thousand members required, in the three days—January 20-22nd.

The Clinic Department of the Collegians, conducted by the Association, appeals to all. Every Old Collegian wants to be in it and to lend a hand, realizing that this is a very progressive movement in connection with the rising generation.

The Motto of the Clinic Department is, "A Healthy Body and a Healthy Mind."

Nurse Loder is a great favorite with the children, and parents are realizing that she is their best friend.

Mr. Mitchell, when addressing the Rotarians recently, emphasized the splendid work now being done by the Collegians. You can help this work by attending the operations, "The China Show," on Tuesday and Wednesday next, in the College Hall.

The Operetta drew capacity audiences during the Christmas season and is being repeated by request of the Old Collegian Association.

PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES.

Jan. 9th.—A fair, milde day, albeit the walking mighty heavy, and do seem that my yeares are weighing heavy on me since I may not frudge through street snow with the same energy that I had of olde. Meeting Crose, we to discourse of the state of the country, which is, thank God, better than it has been these 4 yeares past. He do have it on good authority that the Gander Project is like to open up in the spring, since he has a letter from a friend in England who states that the capital will be forthcoming, which, if it be true, will be a great boom to the country's trade.

But Lord methinks that with conditions improving so I should have an increase in my salary, yet seems as if I must seek it for myself since it is not offered to me. My wife this day tells me how Mrs. Povey will go to Montreal in the spring and would have me take her there also, but this being minded to spend so much money I do tell the wretch how that city is a dangerous place to visit and do show her a despatch in this evening's sheet which do tell of many hold-ups on the main streets. This I might have been somewhat so that she drops the subject for the moment, which I am thankful for. By despatches out of Australia news of the 2nd Cricket Test Match and Australia obtains 600 runs for the 1st innings, which establishes a record. Indeed, it do seem how the English will have to give of their best if they will win this match.

BODY ARRIVES.—The remains of Caleb Barrett, who was accidentally killed at Deer Lake on Tuesday last, arrived in town by yesterday's express. The body was removed to the home of his parents on Dunford Street, from where the funeral takes place today.

Interview With Capt. Bartlett

On Monday, the Telegram will publish the result of an interview with Capt. Bartlett, obtained by Mr. Richard Joy, at present in Washington, regarding his proposed expedition into the Far North with a party which will engage in scientific work. The article will we feel certain, be of great interest to our readers.

A Correction in the Guest Appeal

Dear Sir.—I beg to correct a statement which appeared in the Guest appeal published by you yesterday, viz., that there was no insurance. Guest himself was under the impression that a small policy formerly carried by him had lapsed as he desired it should. This was incorrect. After hearing from the company interested I informed the man who was much surprised at his good fortune. The amount due is less than one third of Guest's entire loss, so that any assistance is deeply appreciated, although the extreme urgency which we thought existed, has been relieved. We regret the error—quite due to misunderstanding on the part of the father as to his own business. Thanking you for insertion of this explanation.

Yours faithfully, A. B. S. STIRLING.

P.S.—The appeal in the "News" has been corrected.

Magistrates Court

A 21-year-old labourer of the Higher Levels arrested under warrant appeared before court this morning and was charged with attempting to steal money and goods to the value of about $20.00 from the store of Jackman and Green on the 8th of January. The accused confessed his guilt and was sentenced to six months imprisonment. The detectives who were engaged on the above case did a smart piece of work in rounding up the burglar.

A domestic taken in for safe keeping was ordered to pay costs.

A man charged with being drunk while in charge of a horse was convicted and fined $1.

A shopkeeper on New Gower Street had his servant girl before court, charged with using threatening language towards complainant's wife. The evidence as submitted by plaintiff could not be fully substantiated, whereupon the charge against the domestic was dismissed.

A case for assault was dismissed. The cases against three drunken boys for sliding on the public street were dealt with by Judge Morris in the Juvenile Court. The Judge in his remarks gave the lads some good advice and allowed them to go by paying costs.

Trouble Over Domestic

Last midnight a domestic from a New Gower Street boarding house bound hand and foot was brought to the lockup and given in charge of the police. It appears that the girl was charged with using threatening language to her mistress, but the case was dismissed. According to the girl's story she had been three weeks in her present place and recently she became so ill that she was obliged to remain in bed. Last night she alleged that the husband of her mistress with the assistance of a boarder, came to her room and tied her hand and foot and brought her to the lockup. It appears that the master has been endeavouring to get the police to interfere in his domestic affairs and succeeded in getting two officers to go to the building house, but they refused to remove the girl. The master then took more drastic action with the result that he will probably have to answer for a charge of assault.

Electric Light Charges

At a recent meeting of the Municipal Council, the matter of domestic electric lighting costs came up for discussion, and it was decided that information regarding this service in some of the cities of Canada and America should be obtained for the purpose of comparison with the rates charged here. The City Clerk at once communicated with a number of Continental power companies and by last mail received the desired information. The figures quoted are significant. In one instance, only, namely in Sydney, N.S., where power is furnished by steam, coal being used exclusively for fuel, is the rate anywhere as high as here.

MONTREAL RATE.

In Montreal domestic and small industrial services are granted a rate of 5 cents per kw. hour, subject to a rebate of 1.0c. per K.W. hour for special prompt payments under five year contracts. For short term or one year contracts the rate is 5 cents per K.W. hour net.

SYDNEY, N.S.

Domestic and commercial lighting is supplied at 12 cents per K.W. hour, and a cash discount, if paid within ten days, of 5 to 25% according to the size of the monthly account is allowed. The meter rental charge is 25 cents per month. Power is generated in a steam plant, coal being used as fuel.

NEW YORK.

The Edison Company supplying current to the city of New York have four rates A, B, C, and D, on the sliding scale principle. All the rates are subject to a surcharge known as a "coal adjustment charge" which was established in 1920 to offset the heavily increased cost of coal following the war. This surcharge is determined monthly and is based on the cost of coal used in the generating plant during the preceding month. It has decreased steadily from 9 mills to the present charge of 3.6 mills per kilowatt hour. Rate "A" or general rate is available for all consumers for both light and power purposes. Small accounts are charged at 7 cents per kilowatt hour. In the lowest step in the scale where the daily consumption is relatively large, the charge is 4 1/2 cents per K.W. TheD, or wholesale rate is scaled from 5 cents to 2 cents, according to consumption.

ST. JOHN, N.B.

The citizens of St. John, N.B., have a hydro-developed electric current owned by the Municipality. The service charge is computed according floor area of the premises. Bills are discounted 10% if paid within ten days. The domestic rate monthly is: Floor area charge, 3 cents per 100 sq. feet; K.W.H. charge, 4 cents per first 3 K.W. hours, per 100 square feet of floor area; 2 cents per K.W.H. for all additional over 30 K.W.; minimum floor area 1,000; maximum floor area, 3,000. On the above basis a monthly consumption of 30 kilowatts works out at $1.35. In St. John's the same amount of current costs $3.94.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES

CHURCHILL INTENT ON REDUCING AMERICA'S WAR CLAIMS. PARIS, Jan. 9. Great Britain and the United States are getting together slowly but normally on the United States reparation claims, which are to finally come before the conference of Allied Finance Ministers in session here. At the end of to-day's informal discussions and conferences it was apparent that the representatives of both English-speaking countries were trying to drive a hard bargain. Winston Churchill, the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, wishes to economize, and the United States estimate of war damage claims, tentatively fixed at $350,000,000, is likely to be whittled down before the Anglo-Saxons finally reach the expected accord.

The Storm

(Kew, Arkengardale, Yorkshire.)
Down in the meadows not a blade is moving.
As though of moving glass the stream struggles by.
No breeze stirs the air, the cattle stand quivering.
It seems as if nature is heaving a sigh.

There in the distance the storm clouds are gathering.
And day seems to suddenly change into night.
All is so still, you can hear your heart beating.
Heark to the farm-dogs whining with fright.

See o'er the mountains that faint flash of lightning
How the trees rustle, now the rain falls.
Down in the valley the church bells are ringing.
A warning to shepherds before the storm falls.

Now comes the thunder with flashes appalling.
Echo on echo, resounds through the hills.
The air seems to ring with a constant vibrating
The noise of the fury, which all the world fills.

As quickly it came, so quickly the ending.
The thunder is gradually passing away.
And birds fill the air with their joyous unending
The clouds have departed and brought back the day.

NEMO DIXIT.

An 'Ounce of Prevention is Worth a Pound of Cure.

CLOTHES—On October 4th, 1924, we wrote on the principles of Baby Clothes, taking as the headings.

1. Warmth.
2. Looseness.
3. Lightness.
4. Washing.
5. Cut.

Now we want to go into rather more detail, so as to help you actually make them.

BABY'S FIRST CLOTHES—

A FLANNEL—

Materials Flannel 1 1/2 yards.
Ribbon or Tape, 1/4 yards.
Embroidery Silk, 2 skeins.

METHOD—Fold flannel selvage to selvage, fold again so that there are four thicknesses of flannel 27 inches long, place paper pattern on material and cut out. This allows for a box-pleat of 2 1/2 inches to be made at the centre back of neck, which ensures a double fold-over in front. Sew up seams with Herring-Bone stitch, work round edge with embroidery silk (if preferred, edges can be bound). Sew on tapes for fastening.

Next week a Nightdress will be explained.—C.W.A.

Our Dumb Animals.

Report of Chief Agent For Week Ending Jan. 9th.

I humanely put to death a horse belonging to Mr. E. Kelly, Cabman, Theatre Hill, at the request of the owner; also another horse at the head of Mundy Pond, which was suffering from internal trouble, which the owner, Mr. P. O'Neill, could not cure. I also humanely destroyed an old dog for a lady of Golf Avenue. She subscribed to the Society. I was asked to humanely put to death a dog, belonging to a resident of Summer St., which has bitten one of the neighbor's children. The owner was not satisfied to have the dog destroyed and I did not destroy it, having received no authority from the court to do so. I attended to the landing of 30 head of cattle and 9 calves, from the 'Sable 1'. In taking into consideration the rough and stormy weather the ship had encountered, the cattle were in good condition and were landed carefully. I hereby call the attention of the Municipal Council and the St. John's Light and Power Company to the present condition of the streets which are almost impassable for draught horses with loads, and if not immediately remedied will be the cause of many sore shoulders among the horses. I understand that there are six horses employed in each end of the town to clean up the snow, by the Municipal Council. Why not double the amount of horses and men and do the work in less time and lighten the burden of our dumb beasts? Complaint has been received on a shipment of choice breeding poultry shipped to White Bay. One had arrived dead and others in a terrible condition from thirst and want of food. I investigated and found that owing to intensely rough weather, necessitating the whole crew's attention to the safety of the steamer, that it was impossible to care for live stock on board in the usual manner. The captain of all steamers are liable to a severe penalty for having live stock in their possession without being properly fed and watered. Railway men are also warned that all live poultry and animals on trains must be fed and watered regularly or I will have to issue writs in future against coastal steamer captains and railway employees, for cruelty, under the Act provided. A shipment of live poultry from St. John's to Crabbies and Corner Brook, were also shamefully neglected by railway express officials, recently, which must not occur again. Please all consulars to

JONAS BARTER,
Chief Agent.

Resident of Grand Bank Dies

The news of the passing of John B. Foote, of Grand Bank, which occurred at 5 p.m. yesterday, was contained in a message received last night by Hon. J. J. Long, from Mr. Clyde Lake, M.H.A. Deceased, who had carried on a fishing and supply business for years, was a well known figure in the commercial life of the West Coast, and was generally esteemed. For several years he had been unwell and visited Montreal for medical treatment. He leaves one son, Ambrose, and several daughters. Mr. S. J. Foote, K.C., of this city, and Thomas Foote, of the Customs, Grand Bank, are brothers.

A Hint for Bodily Comfort

Care in the washing of under garments can add considerably to one's bodily comfort during the day. For washing such garments, Sunlight Soap offers many highly-important advantages.

"Sunlight" preserves the soft texture of woollens, preventing them from becoming hard and irritating to the skin. It is the most thorough of cleansers, and it imparts a delightful fresh and pleasing perfume to the clothes.

You will obtain the maximum degree of comfort and save your clothes at one and the same time by using Sunlight Soap.—Jan10,25

TRAGIC DEATH AT IONIA.

The little island of Ionia, in the Parish of Bar Haven, was the scene of an awful accident on January 4th, when William Pope, the only son of Robert Pope of Ionia Island, died as the result of his falling on the ice with a loaded gun in his hand. The impact dislodged the heavy charge of the gun which penetrated the lower region of his stomach, causing his death within twenty minutes. The poor fellow repeated the prayers of his father who stood by, while companions rendered first aid, and finally saying the act of contrition, his soul passed away to Eternity. Solem Mass was celebrated by Rev. Francis Cacciola in St. Joseph's Church, Monday morning for the repose of his soul, when his tender remains were laid to rest in the family plot in the Parish cemetery.

Solemn High Mass was celebrated in St. Jerome's Church, Long Harbor centre, on Wednesday morning for the repose of the soul of Francis Flynn, who died in Deer Lake Hospital. The celebrant was Rev. Francis Cacciola, of Bar Haven. Francis formerly resided in Come-By-Chance Station with his brother, Richard, to who all friends and relations tender their profound sympathy.—Com.

Try This Sauce

A good sauce, which can be made at home quite cheaply, is done in the following way:—
Put 1 pint of vinegar, 4 teaspoonsful of flour, 2 teaspoonsful of treacle, 3 teaspoonsful of mustard, a similar quantity of sugar, 1 small teaspoonful of salt, and 1-2 oz. of pickling spice into a pan together. Simmer about twenty minutes, and then remove from the heat. Leave it for a short time, and when cool strain the mixture. Bottle and use when required.

COLOR IT NEW WITH "DIAMOND DYES"

Beautiful home dyeing and tinting is guaranteed with Diamond Dyes. Just dip in cold water to tint soft, delicate shades, or boil to dye rich, permanent colors. Each 15-cent package contains directions so simple any woman can dye or tint lingerie, silks, ribbons, skirts, waists, dresses, coats, stockings, sweaters, draperies, coverings, hangings, everything new.

Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind—and tell your druggist whether the material you wish to color is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton, or mixed goods.

Using up Sour Milk

Great care should be exercised in regard to keeping milk in a suitable place. Milk will absorb the flavour of any strong smell in its immediate vicinity, whilst stale milk, mixed with fresh, will turn the whole sour.

Milk which is sour is very useful in many ways. It will clean ink stains, bleach linen, clean oil-cloth, and has considerable value used as a cosmetic. Sour milk also is preferable to fresh milk for some classes of cooking, notably soda scones.

AUSTRALIAN PLAYERS SCORE CRICKET RECORD.

MELBOURNE, Aus., Jan. 8.—(Canadian Press)—Hitting the tired English bowlers at all corners of the field and delighting a crowd of 47,000 people, Australia compiled a record score of 600 runs in the first innings of the second cricket test match with England yesterday. Splendid batting by Ponstford, Victor Richardson and Hartkopf, who scored 128, 138 and 80, respectively, featured the Antipodean's first innings, which lasted two days.

Australia's total surpasses the previous record of 589 made by England at Melbourne in 1912, and beats the best Australian total of 586, made at Sydney in 1894. The players were again favored with glorious weather and receipts from the huge crowd totalled 4,599 pounds.

With the exception of Tate and Gilligan, the English bowlers were easily mastered by the heavy-hitting Australians. On the other hand, the fielding of the touring cricketers was splendid, one indication of this being the fact that three men were run out. Chapman, Gilligan and Douglas, the three amateurs on the English team, were the best in the field. Studwick, the veteran stumper, whose inclusion in the side caused some little surprise, was in fine form, catching three out and allowing only 24 extras.

SECOND CRICKET TEST.

MELBOURNE, Aus., Jan. 5.—(Canadian Press)—Prospects of a huge score by England in the first innings of the second cricket test match against Australia were not fulfilled to-day when wickets fell comparatively cheaply after the splendid opening by Saturday on Hobbs and Sutcliffe, who made 154 and 128 respectively, the innings closing for 479 runs, or 121 less than were scored by the Antipodeans in their initial attempt. Batting a second time late in the afternoon the home players started badly, losing their wickets for 63 runs before stumps were drawn for the day.

Clear the Sidewalks

That there is need for some regulation governing the clearing of snow from the sidewalks of the principal streets of the city is a general desire. At present in most streets there is no such thing as a sidewalk and people are compelled to beat a track as best they can or else take to that part of the road where teamsters appear to exercise exclusive rights. Usually after a heavy fall of snow householders avoid clearing the walk in front of their premises but instead drive tunnels to the middle of the road with the result the street resembles a modern battle field.

Look After the Memorial
Buried beneath the snow and shrouded in gloom at night by the total eclipse of two lights, and the partial eclipse of several others, our beautiful war memorial to-day presents a picture of neglect and desolation. So far as we can learn no one is at present responsible for the attention that the memorial requires and deserves, but as it stands for a national accomplishment, it surely is a national duty to see that it is properly looked after. Previously we have called general attention to this lack of respect to our gallant dead. On this occasion we call the attention of the Government to the matter and trust that whatever steps are necessary will be taken without further loss of time.

Our Montreal Letter

(From Our Own Correspondent)

ADULTS ARE BOLD ON CHRISTMAS DAY.

While Arthur Gardner, 114 Mansfield street, was entertaining friends at a Christmas dinner, two gunmen entered the house, robbed one guest of his watch and together with silverware, escaped with their loot valued at $100. Mr. Gardner fooled the bandits by holding his money in his clenched fist. While one of them searched his pockets, the guests lost all their money in their possession. One of the men held a gun ready to shoot if the guests did not keep perfectly quiet, while his companion was emptying the "dough" from the pockets of their victims. The host was striking on a novel plan to fool the robbers, held his hands up, but the money was not perceived by either the bold burglars. They escaped, although the police were called immediately, but no trace of them could be seen in the neighborhood.

Another man was held up at Anderson Street, near Dorchester, by two men who backed him against the wall of a building and took $100 from his pockets.

A family on Manse Street had to do without their turkey at the Christmas feast, as a thief entered the house, stole a nice fat fowl, well cooked and ready for consumption. The turkey had been placed between the doors to cool.

PRaise FOR THE SALVATION ARMY.

The Salvation Army members are particularly active at Christmas time. This year they collected in the Army House, placed at all the different busy thoroughfares, the sum of $5,300, which went to feed and bring comfort to hundreds of families, besides feeding over one thousand homeless men, irrespective of creed or nationality. A Christmas Eve for hundreds of men was served to the down and out. It was a motley gathering. The "white collar man," many from overseas the day laborer, "the hanger-on"—all eager for the common aim—full stomach—and they got it. "I'll take my hat off to the army," said one man, as he strode forth into the cold and snow of Christmas eve. He went to Bordeaux for five days because I couldn't get work and I simply had to eat and sleep. When I came out the Army gave me a bed and meals for several days. But I found a job this morning, and believe me when I'll sure pay them back. They're 22 carat gold." And his sentiments were echoed by many about.

THE SENTINEL ON THE MOUNTAIN TOP.

The Iron Cross erected on the mountain top by St. Jean Baptiste Society was illuminated for the first time on Christmas eve. It is visible for miles down the St. Lawrence River, far out to the south shore. It will be illuminated every evening at five o'clock and stands as a sentinel on the mountain top, proclaiming the survival of the Canadian people and the growth of Christianity.

PRaise FOR THE CANADIAN PRESS.

The writer of "A Montrealer's Diary," in the Herald, says:— Sir Henry Thornton in a recent speech paid a high tribute to the moral elevation of the Canadian newspapers, which he said satisfied the requirements of a higher standard of patriotism, public service and honesty than exists in any other country he has been in. "There is no paper in the whole of the Dominion of Canada," added Sir Henry, "whose columns can be subsidized." I am inclined to agree with the Brandon Expositor that this is a strong statement, but there is every reason to believe in its entire truth. I have seen papers charged with being editorially subsidized, but I never knew one that was—that is, not a recognized, real paper. Of course in Canada as in other countries there will occasionally be found some attempts usually outside the profession, of which the old saying is practically true—the first number is easy, the second difficult, the third impossible.

THE CITY AND DISTRICT BANK HELPS CHARITY.

The City and District Savings Bank has distributed $10,200 among 74 institutions, including hospitals, Jewish, Protestant and Catholic institutions. The amount distributed was the interest on the Poor Fund. The highest amount given was $500, the lowest, $25.

GOOD HINTS ABOUT BUSINESS.

Dear Readers—Here are a few hints which mean a lot to many people:— Business is business. Everybody's business is nobody's business. Let every body mind his own business. Everybody attends to everybody's business but their own. Call on a business man at business hours only, and only on business; transact your business and go about your business in order to give him time to finish his business. Let every man employ himself in the business with which he is best acquainted. Attention, application, accuracy, method and punctuality are the principal qualities required for the efficient conduct of business of any sort.

CUTICURA HEALS SKIN TROUBLE

Eruptions On Shoulders, Neck and Face, Itched and Burned. "My trouble began with red spots breaking out on my shoulders, neck and face. They itched and burned, causing me to scratch and irritate the affected parts. The eruptions scaled over and my clothing aggravated them. My face was disfigured, and the trouble kept getting worse. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and after using three boxes of Cuticura Soap and one and a half boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." Signed: Miss Pauline Mills, R. F. D. 4, Quaker City, Ohio, June 15, 1923. Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Tablets are all you need for every-day itching and every purpose.

H.P. sauce. There is less waste when H.P. is used—that means economy.

friends who paid them a visit and brought them gifts passed their Christmas. And yet, many of those sufferers could see the lonely sentinel on the mountain top, with the hundreds of trees with the grandeur of their foliage missing, lined all around that stood like silent listeners and admirers of that Cross, whose history formed an important event in the foundation of the city by Malsouneuve in 1642. O! what great and important changes have happened since that period. History recounts them all. The future historians will have an easier task to write about the great Metropolis of Canada than did the early ones. Malsouneuve and his gallant band of followers recall to mind the words of the poet:—"Where the going is smooth and pleasant You will always find the throng; For the many, more's the pity, Seem to like to drift along. But the steps that call for courage, And the task that's hard to do; In the end result in glory, For the never-wavering few."

And the glory of such noble deeds shines forth now through the Cross on the Mountain top, and tells the admiring multitudes, the lessons of faith, love, bravery, courage, sacrifice and perseverance that the world must honor and admire.

ALL ATHLETIC CLUBS TO BE TAXED.

Different athletic associations and other clubs in the city of Montreal have enjoyed a certain amount of freedom from taxation for several years, but this relief will be a thing of the past if certain amendments to the charter, which are now being considered by the legislation committee of the city hall, are approved.

Heretofore these associations and clubs have not been paying a really assessment on their property, but according to the clause which will be embodied in the Montreal Bill they will have to pay up the same as business organizations and other institutions. The amendment specifically names the National A.A.A., M.A.A.A., and Shamrock A.A.A., Y.M.H.A., Knights of Columbus and Y.M.C.A., as the institutions that will be affected. Starting the first of May, 1925, these clubs will be called upon to pay all municipal, school, special, water, licence and permits, and realty taxes imposed by the city.

WHERE IS HE!

Where is the sleuth, the super-sleuth, who comes with eagle gaze, and finds at once the ghostly truth, amid the tangled maze? We read of him in magazines, we read of him in books, pursuing those who spill the beans, the murderers and crooks. And never, never does he fail; the right clew he selects; he sends the criminal to jail, the righteous he protects. Alas, he only lives in books and lowbrow magazines; the murderers and other crooks in safety spill the beans. A score of people, rudely slain, have figured in late news; and human sleuths have strove in vain to trace down divers clews. At first the sleuths find out a tale that things are going sene; "We'll have the murderer in jail before the clocks strike nine. We know just where to lay our hands upon that sinful skate; he'll answer to the law's demands on time, as sure as fate." The days go by and we are told that clews have fizzled out, and all the trails are growing cold, and everything's in doubt. And then another murder case is shelved and put away, and grass grows o'er the victim's face, and useless clews decay. A dozen murders in one town await solution yet; the grisly facts are written down, and then we all forget. "I am inclined to agree with the Brandon Expositor that this is a strong statement, but there is every reason to believe in its entire truth. I have seen papers charged with being editorially subsidized, but I never knew one that was—that is, not a recognized, real paper. Of course in Canada as in other countries there will occasionally be found some attempts usually outside the profession, of which the old saying is practically true—the first number is easy, the second difficult, the third impossible."

Famous Recipes for Home Cooking

FRIED APPLES DELMONICO. (Monsieur Filippini, one-time chef of Delmonico's) wrote a cook book for average home use. In his cook book he gives the following recipe for fried apples. Peel the core three large, good sound apples. Slice them into slices half an inch thick. Dip them in cold milk, then roll them in flour. Melt one-half ounce Crisco in a frying pan. Place the apples in the pan and fry on a brisk fire until a nice golden color on both sides, or two minutes for each side. Remove them with a skimmer and dress on a hot dish with a folded napkin. Sprinkle with a little powdered sugar and serve. (This recipe printed by courtesy of the International Cook Book.)

Household Notes

Canned pears are good scalloped with breadcrumbs, seasoned with nutmeg and cinnamon, and served with a hot sauce. Remember that plum pudding is better the longer it is kept and that it is excellent sliced cold and served with hot sauce.

YOUR LIVEN CAN BE EASILY AND QUICKLY

Your liven can be easily and quickly chopped, roasted peanuts are good marked with indelible ink if the portion of newspaper and heated, the discarded stone of a fireless cooker makes a fine warming pad.

Cargoes in Cotton Wool

News comes that the first cargo of live grouse to travel from England to New Zealand has arrived safely at Wellington. The special arrangements made to protect the birds from the great heat while passing through the Tropics worked to perfection.

The difficulty of taking grouse to the Antipodes was, however, a small matter compared with that of conveying trout. The first effort in this direction was made about sixty years ago, the eggs being packed in moss and ice. But the heat at the Equator melted the ice and the ova rotted. Three attempts were made before success was reached, but to-day New Zealand has the finest stock of brown trout in the world. Trout have also been safely carried from England to Tasmania and South Africa.

A very interesting experiment was made in 1922, when a cargo of European herrings' eggs, turbot, crabs, and lobsters was taken out to New Zealand. A special refrigerating apparatus was designed for the purpose of retarding the development of the eggs, but unfortunately this broke down, and they perished. The crabs and lobsters, however, survived, and reached the Marine Biological Station at Portobello, in New Zealand, in safety. A further shipment of herrings is to be made shortly. If successful, it will be very interesting to see whether these fish will flourish in the Southern Seas.

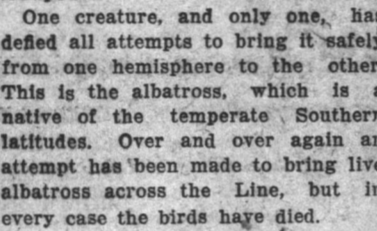

Animals are easier to carry than fish. Red deer have been already taken to New Zealand and acclimatized there, and many other creatures such as foxes, ferrets, and, of course, rabbits, have been supplied to the Antipodes. One creature, and only one, has defied all attempts to bring it safely from one hemisphere to the other. This is the albatross, which is a native of the temperate Southern latitudes. Over and over again an attempt has been made to bring live albatross across the Line, but in every case the birds have died.

A Song of Work

The world owes none a living. But a living's worth a man's life. And more—aye—fame and riches. For the fellow with the grin; For the man who takes his coat off, And with confidence sets to. Who squares his shoulders boldly. And who says: "I'm here to do!" There's a job—your job—before you. It is up to you to work. To do, and do your darndest. Nor vacillate nor shirk. Put trust not in excuses: Results show, they alone. If a man's a man—or nothing. If a worker or a drone. Life has no use for whiners. Who whimper for "A chance"; It has no use for slackers. When the watchword is "Advance." But it needs, oh, men are needed. So to your job! And do it! Do it honestly, or—go!

The Dancing Girl

Modern woman has been accused of lack of grace. Every girl knows that the frocks of the moment need constant rearrangement—that is why the dancing girl should be very careful about her choice of dress—one that is becoming and comfortable to herself and does not annoy her partner. Fairly long, slim-fitting frocks look most graceful, and for those of us with small purses let the beauty depend on the material and colour. An elaborate frock is never a success unless made by an expert dressmaker. If you have the time and the talent the bright-coloured headed chemise frocks, so beloved just now, are possible. But don't, if you are wise, go in for wispy tails, flowing shoulder-capes, and long pieces of tulle that get in everyone's way, and after a few times of wearing have to be renewed or discarded. See that your shoes and stockings "go" well with your frock. If you can't get stockings the same shade as your shoes, it is always best to get them in a lighter colour. If your dress is a really difficult shade, silver shoes and stockings always look charming; falling that, stick to black. Nothing looks damlier for dancing than georgettes or taffeta, and it is certainly within reach of everybody's pocket. Another thing, dancing girl, when you go to a dance with a man, remember you are his guest. Whilst you are at the dance don't see how many other conquests you can make.

After potatoes have been pared they should be dropped into cold water to prevent their discoloring.

CANDIDATES FOR THE HALL OF INFAMY.

Here are some of the candidates that have been sent in:

"People who make every excuse and allowance for themselves but none for anybody else."

"People who rejoice apparently in being disagreeable."

"The Unenthusiasts."

"The unenthusiasts who look at your new frock and say: 'Yes, it's very pretty' (without any life in their voice) and then add (with real feeling) 'I think it pulls a little across the back. Isn't there some place you could have it let out?' (which there isn't). Or who come to see the additions you have built in your house and say: 'I should think you would have had more windows on this side!'"

"The people who are always repeating such senseless, unimportant things as: 'I heard she didn't have Dr. Brown's' or 'The people who say: 'It's so selfish of her not to have children when her' would give the eyes out of her head pretty near if she could have them.'"

The Automatic Raver.

"The salesgirl who is an automatic raver so long as she thinks she is going to make a sale, who raves over each frock you put on, and then suddenly blows icy cold when you are foolishly enough to try and escape without taking any of them."

"The people who are just plain dumb. A certain modern book gives honorable mention to those who have the art of catching an illusion."

"The people who say: 'Well, if I were you I could never smile again. I don't see how you can be so cheerful,' when carrying on is all that there is left for you to do, and bearing it behind a smile takes every ounce of strength there is in you."

"The people who in order to get ahead in a crowd take hold of you and guide you out of their way. If I'm ever tried for murder the victim will be one of those people that lay hands on you in a crowd."

The Prayers.

"The people who ask you direct impertinent questions about personal matters: 'How does it happen you're not going to the dance with Billy? I thought you went everywhere with him.' 'Would you mind telling me what you paid for that davenport?' It is really true that your sister is going to get a divorce. I've heard it everywhere but I couldn't believe it."

People often say they envy me because I have such wonderful chances to slam my acquaintances by writing about the things they do that annoy me. It is a great relief sometimes. But I'm not going to be selfish about it. I am willing to share it with you. Here's your chance. Just send me some more candidates for the Hall of Infamy.

Next Week's Wonderful Attraction

"HEARTS AFLAME" WILL OPEN AT NICKEL MONDAY.

"Hearts Aflame," announced as one of the biggest spectacular photoplays of recent years, is to be presented at the Nickel Theatre on Monday. It is Reginald Barker's latest production, released by Metro, and it adds considerably to the fame of this director of big pictures.

One thing in particular has attracted widespread attention in connection with this picture, and that is a vivid and exciting forest fire, which is said to surpass anything of the kind ever before presented in motion pictures. In order to reproduce it for screen purposes, a tract of timber was ignited and twenty cameras photographed it from many angles. It is through this raging blaze that Anna Q. Nilsson runs a locomotive; and in staging this realistic episode the celebrated screen actress was painfully burned. Her injuries kept her confined in a hospital for several weeks.

In addition, there is a story of unusual interest. It concerns a young man who leaves his millionaire father's home and goes to the Michigan woods in order to "make good." There he meets an aggressive miss, who singlehandedly, has defeated the aims of the neighboring lumbermen, intent on depriving her of her valuable timber tract. A romance begins between them; and circumstances send them together through the flaming forest in the cab of an old locomotive.

In the cast are Frank Keenan, who returns to the screen after a period of retirement; Anna Q. Nilsson, the brave miss of the Michigan woods; Craig Ward, as the son of a wealthy father who leaves his home to redeem himself. Others are Richard Headrick, Russell Simpson, Richard Tucker, Stanton Heck, Martha Mattox, Ralph Clouinger, Lee Shumway and Irene Hunt.

Smuggling a Famous Diamond

A young United States airman, Joseph Stehlin, disguised as an Arab, brought off a daring feat in smuggling out of Morocco one of the world's largest diamonds, the "Sultana," which a United States syndicate had purchased from Muley Hand, ex-Sultan of Morocco.

When the syndicate had completed the deal with the ex-Sultan a month ago they selected Mr. Stehlin for the difficult task of fetching it from the ex-Sultan's agents in the desert village of El Kasar-el-Kebir. The ex-Sultan himself is barred from the country, and it was thought that if his agents tried to smuggle out this famous stone of 143 carats they would arouse suspicion.

Secrecy was also necessary on account of native superstitions connected with the stone, which, according to legend, would bring disaster upon the country if ever it were taken out of Morocco. There had already been trouble among the natives on account of rumors that it had been sold, and great precautions had therefore to be taken not to arouse suspicion.

On landing in Morocco Mr. Stehlin was met by a representative of the ex-Sultan, and disguised as an Arab, was taken to El Kasar-el-Kebir by night marches. At ten o'clock one night the stone was produced in a native house, and, having been examined by two representatives of the syndicate, was handed over to Mr. Stehlin, who simply put it in his pocket.

Accompanied by two Arab guides, and still in disguise, Mr. Stehlin then rode to Tangier Harbor, where a yacht was in waiting to convey him to Cadix. A racing car then took him on to Madrid, where another powerful car, belonging to one of the ex-Sultan's friends was waiting to take him to Paris. From Paris onward the transit risks of the stone are covered by an insurance company.

The Atom's Amazing Secret of Power Near Solution

C. B. SEYBOLD, in Popular Science Monthly.

In a laboratory in Sheffield, England, a scientist is working on what may be the most dangerous experiment in the world—in an effort to release the tremendous power locked in the atom. Apprehension is felt by the country about it; there is an attitude of tense watchfulness and hidden dread. The experimenter stands by an electrical apparatus, reaches out, and turns a switch.

For many months Dr. T. F. Wall, chief engineer of Sheffield University, has been doing this. He is attempting to disrupt the atom and release its energy by means of an extremely powerful magnetic field.

Some day, possibly at a terrible moment, the great current of electricity which he is looting through that simulating motion, may accomplish the end which he is working. The result no man can prophesy.

Will there be a gigantic shock, a blinding flash, swallowing everything? The destruction of the world? Will the atomic energy of a single atom be communicated to adjoining atoms until the whole world is reduced to electricity? One tremendous whiff of energy released in a terrifying detonation, and afterward—nothing?

Dr. Wall thinks that moment will be a quite one, and a man standing there motionless, and by the realization that he has captured the greatest secret of all—a method for releasing and controlling the gigantic forces believed to be imprisoned in the atom.

Most of those working with the atom offer reassurances. There will be no cataclysm, they say. As man learns how to release the atom's energy for his own use, he will learn, too, how to control it. But the more than in some degree the fears some people express.

Consider a body so minute that it is like a speck of dust on the point of a needle. This is the atom—the atom that scientists are tearing to pieces in order to find alive with power behind human conception.

In a pint of water there is enough of this mysterious power to drive the whelan across the Atlantic and back.

A child could hold in the palm of his hand a metal brick containing enough explosive energy to blow up the city of Los Angeles! In an ordinary motor-car could be carried enough concentrated energy to level half a nation!

But this force, so tremendously destructive, could also be the greatest benefactor of mankind. Enough of it from the machinery of the world might be enough in a chunk of mud from an automobile for weeks! A bit of untapped force to make coal, oil, and all other existing sources of energy obsolete! Enough to do the work of the world, to change civilization on earth!

The modern view is that everything in our universe, including ourselves, is made up of atoms, each comprising a nucleus, with a number of electrons orbiting about it in fixed orbits, just as planets revolve about the sun, at a tremendous rate of speed, as great as 100 miles a second.

No one ever has seen an atom, and no one ever will, for we see only by means of light, and the atom is so small that it escapes detection by the radiation of light waves. No microscope, no matter how powerful, ever can help us. If a drop of water were magnified to the size of the earth, an atom in the liquid would appear the size of a baseball. Consider the Yale oval an atom, and an electron speeding in it would be the size of a grain of sand.

The nucleus is still smaller than an atom. Give the atom a diameter of a mile, and an electron in it would be as large as a dining-room table. The place in the centre of the atom, that represents the nucleus. The number of electrons in an atom and the structure of its nucleus determine whether the substance in solid, liquid, or some other element. In gold, for example, the electrons revolve around the nucleus in successive rings. Those orbiting in orbits nearest the nucleus move with the greatest speed.

When any of these electrons are freed out of their pathways, dragged away from the nucleus, a great amount of energy is released. Some of this energy of motion that the fast-moving electron had in its own orbit is lost when the electron jumps, and a great deal of energy is released in the form of waves. If the nucleus of an atom can be attacked and destroyed, the whole atom can be disrupted, causing the electrons to be shot out of their orbits.

This actually can be seen in the case of radium by a remarkable instrument that photographs what is happening in the interior of an atom. As particles flying from radium pass through a gas, they electrify atoms in their path, and small drops of moisture forming on these make a trail of light, which can be photographed. Thus, though the atom itself will forever remain invisible, its travels can be observed readily.

This photographic apparatus has revealed that a radium atom behaves just like any other atom for one or two thousand years—its electrons travelling in fixed orbits around a nucleus—then suddenly it explodes, throwing off a new atom, that of the gas, helium. And in this process, when the particles are being shot off at high speed, the radium is being changed into lead. Transmutation of matter is taking place.

The high speed electrons in the atom, explains Doctor Wall, are like electric currents, and produce in the atom intense magnetic fields of such immense strength that hitherto it has been impossible to produce anything as great by artificial means. But, if it were possible to produce a magnetic field as powerful as those in the atom, and this field were impressed on the atom, he argues, the orbits of the electrons would be so disturbed that the structure of the atom would be broken down, and some, or all, of its energy would be released.

Doctor Wall has obtained a magnetic field 20 times more intense than any ever known before, by winding several layers of thick insulated copper wire around a small tube of steel. This is immersed in a large glass tank filled with transformer oil, and high quantities of electricity are discharged through the oil-immersed copper.

The result is that an extremely powerful oscillating electric current flows in the coil for a small fraction of a second, producing a corresponding intense magnetic field, which passes through the steel tube. For a minute fraction of a second, the apparatus is capable of permitting an equivalent of 200,000 horsepower to be supplied to the coil. This intense magnetic field is impressed at regular intervals for days, weeks, and even months, on the material whose atomic structure it is desired to change.

Steel was used as the material for the first test, because it was discovered that any change in the positions of electrons in the atoms of steel, alters the magnetism of the metal, either weakening or strengthening it, thus forming a valuable guide to what is going on. As an incidental result of this experiment, a way may be found to improve definitely the inherent magnetic qualities of iron and steel, which, in itself, would be of tremendous importance industrially.

So far as Doctor Wall's work has progressed, a remarkable phenomenon has been observed. At some stages the discharge current in the coil around the piece of steel increases to an enormously greater value than would be expected from calculations. An instability of current is being reached, which means that the strength of the magnetic field is increasing beyond all expectations. With a further increase of power, the strength may go on increasing without limit, until the dramatic moment arrives when the atom is shattered.

Doctor Wall now is modifying his apparatus so that it is expected to give at least twice the strength of magnetic field obtained in any of the previous measurements.

It is conceivable that we may learn shortly how to get at the power that some day will enable us to hold the engine of a motor-car in one hand. Instead of the tons of coal we buy every winter, we may release the energy contained in a two-pound lump, knowing that there is enough there to heat a large house at a comfortable temperature all winter.

Great as is the interest in the efforts of Doctor Wall, the experiments of others are attracting equal attention. In fact, one hundred trained minds in several countries are working patiently, with different methods to harness this tremendous power. To one or the other of their laboratories may come success at any moment.

Scientists working in America agree with Doctor Wall that it will take some tremendous force, something much greater than anything we now have, to disrupt the atom. While the English scientist is trying to pull electrons out of their orbits by producing a great magnetic field, Dr. Gerald L. Wendt of the Physics and Chemistry Department of Pennsylvania State College is attempting to do the same thing with heat. In his experiments he is using a temperature of 60,000° F., which is six times as hot at the heat of the sun, and 200,000 degrees hotter than the hottest star. This is obtained by using 100,000 volts of electricity.

The American scientist places a tungsten wire in a vacuum tube through which he shoots energy, in the hope that more energy will come out than went in, and that the tungsten will be transformed into helium. Transmutation of metals is seen to be linked closely with the problem of how to release atomic energy. For when one element is changed into another, according to the theory of modern science, it means that one or more electrons have been added to or subtracted from each of its atoms. And when this happens, the electrons moving into their new orbits release energy.

Intense heat was responsible for the reported transmutation of mercury into gold recently by Professor Meitner, of Germany. By subjecting quicksilver to tremendous heat in an electric furnace, one of the 80 electrons in the quicksilver atom was dislodged, he explained, leaving a nucleus surrounded by 79 electrons, which is the structure of the gold atom. When this electron was forced from its orbit, energy was released.

Recent experiments of Dr. Nagaoaka of Tokio University, Japan, who is said to have succeeded also in obtaining gold from mercury, are being watched closely by those trying to learn how to release atomic energy.

Dr. Robert Andrews Millikan, the distinguished American explorer of the atom, is attempting to discover the secret by studying the tremendous changes taking place in the stars, where physical conditions often transcend those of earth.

Sir Ernest Rutherford, President of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, doubts that great stores of energy exist in every element, but believes that this is true only in the radioactive substances, radium and thorium.

But, if we could find some way to quicken the exploding process going on in radioactive substances, so that the whole cycle of their disintegration could be confined to a few days instead of being spread over thousands of millions of years, Sir Ernest thinks that these elements would be valuable sources of energy.

The horse knows it is a whip and not an insect, but the reflexive muscles of its tail are so highly developed that it instinctively switches before the horse has time to telegraph the true state of affairs to its brain.

London has one of the finest main drainage systems in the world. There are 370 miles of main sewers, which would stretch from London to Dunbar in Scotland, and 2,000 miles of local sewers, which would stretch as far as from London to Constantinople.

The gas companies of the United Kingdom make 270,000,000,000 cubic feet of gas a year from 16,000,000 tons of coal and 46,000,000 gallons of oil, and supply 8,407,000 consumers. There are in use 5,134,000 gas cookers and grills, and 4,499,000 slot meters.

Artificial sunlight provided by large clusters of powerful electric lights will be a feature in the new monkey house at the London Zoo.

How Camphor is Made

As a perfume, camphor has been known and valued by the people of China and Japan for centuries. Originally obtained from gum deposits occasionally found in old camphor trees, it is now extracted from the wood itself, which, after being sawn through lengthwise, is reduced to chips and heated in a still.

The vapour given off in this way passes through bamboo pipes into a cooling chamber, where it condenses in crystal form, known as "flowers." These crystals are collected and exported to Europe, where they are further purified by being mixed with lime and charcoal and refined in special retorts. The oil thus obtained should not be confused with camphorated oil, which consists of camphor dissolved in olive oil.
