It appears from the cautious statement given out by Taotai Sheng in Shanghai that the reason the heavy guns, bearing on the legations at Pekin, were not used, is that Prince Ching, who is served by 10,000 troops, seized all the artillery ammunition. Sheng likewise intimates that Yung Lu, commander-in-chief of the northern army, is associated with Prince from thinking him friendly to the for-UNREST IN THE PROVINCES. The feeling of unrest in the southern and central provinces continues. The members of the official class in those provinces strive to remain neutral, with a leaning toward the foreigners, until they shall see whether the moderate or extreme factions will win in Pekin. Prince Ching seems to be standing for the dynasty and of the old order against Prince Tuan's inordinate ambition.

Two couriers arrived at Tien Tsin on July 1 from Pekin. One brought a letter from Sir Claude Macdonald, the British minister, to the same effect as that previously received from Sir Robert Hart. The couriers con-firm the reports of the death of Baron Von Ketteler. They say that Prince Ching is doing his utmost to protect the foreigners, but that the native feeling against the whites is strong. Two high officials, opposed to the Boxers, are reported by the couriers to have been assassinated. Sir Claude Macdonald's letter is dated four days earlier than that of Sir Robert Hart.

Chinese artillery opened at dawn. Their fire was more accurate and their ammunition better, the shells exploding with precision and setting fire to several buildings. H. M. S. Terrible's guns again quieted the Chinese, who, shifting their artillery, reopened the attack in the afternoon, but a thunderstorm breaking, the Chinese suddenly quit. The allies immediately attacked and drove the Chinese from their works, but lost 30 killed or wounded in so doing. The non-combatants of a majority favors the military leaving also. Another dispatch says: Reports from Tien Tsin show further fighting may be expected there, but no doubt is expressed that the allied forces will be able to maintain their position.

RAINY SEASON IS ON. The rainy season has set in, and this makes going into the interior most difficult. The country between Pekin and Tien Tsin in other years has frequently been flooded. River transport is almost impossible, and the railway is practically non-existent and must be entirely rebuilt. Military opinion is unanimous that as the legations did not need relief, it would be foolish to attempt to advance before September.

8,000 REBELS KILLED. Lu Hai Houan, the Chinese minister to Germany, told a representative of the Associated Press at Berlin that he had received yesterday a dispatch from Li Hung Chang, dated July 7, saying: No authentic confirmation has arrived of the Pekin slaughter, but I have reliable information that Prince Ching has organized a determined opposition to the Boxers, fighting them with regular troops, a majority of which remain loyal. Several severe encounters have been fought, in which the loyal troops were victorious. Three thousand rebels have been killed in the streets before the gates of Pekin.

Washington, July 9.—The following telegram was received last night by Minister Wu from Sheng, director-general of the imperial telegraphs Shanghai, dated Yako, July 3: Two legations in Pekin still pressed there? All ministers safe. Rebellious troops and rioters make attacks, but suffer many losses. Imperial troops are protecting, but meet with difficulty in doing so. It is feared that ammunition and food are exhausted.

DOUBTFUL.

The Times this morning says some Chinese officials are evidently desirous to have it believed in Europe that the legations in Pekin are still under the protection of one section of the Chinese army. But that only makes it more remarkable that they should not employ the only convincing argument by allowing direct communication between the ministers and the outer world. We do not wish to insist too strongly upon this aspect, but these circumstantial rumors lack the confirmation so easily supplied if they are true.

The Daily Mail's Shanghai correspondent, under date af July 9, says: It is certain that if the powers make any movement elsewhere north of the course of an interview, says the viceroys are only bound to neutrality so long as they are not interfered with. Boers Are Developing Unusual Activity

In the Orange Colony and West ern Transvaal,

But They Get the Worst of the Fighting-Some of Their Leaders Surrendering - Interesting Letters From Hon. Joseph Chamberlain and Lord Strathcona.

London, July 10.-Lord Roberts yesterday telegraphed to the war office from Pretoria as follows:

"The officer commanding at Heilbron reports that State Secretary A LETTER FROM HON. JOSEPH Blignaut, State Attorney Dickson and members of the council, Vantander and Kuppervergen, came in yesterday and surrendered.

"Hutton was attacked yesterday in a position he was holding by a large number of Boers. He cut them off without much difficulty. The five-inch guns with him were found most useful. Our only casualty was Lieut. Young, of the first Canadian mounted to support with their blood and treastroop, a slight scalp wound. The enemy left several wounded on the ground, and sent a flag of truce with a request that they might be received in our field hospital.

CAPT. CURRIE AND LIEUT. KIRK. "I regret to say that Captain Currie and Lieut. Kirk, of the Imperial Light rule is identified. I am, yours very faithfully, J. CHAMBERLAIN." Horse, who were reported wounded in my telegram of yesterday, were both killed. One squadron of this distinguished corps pressed a very superior force of the enemy in a gallant at-tempt to carry off the wounded comrade, to which they attributed the heavy loss sustained. In addition to the officers, a farrier sergeant, and three troopers were killed and the sergeant-major, three sergeants and seven troopers wounded."

The Situation.

GETTING DEMORALIZED.

London, Tuesday, July 10, 4 a.m.-As Lord Roberts' dispatches reveal, the Boers are unusually active, both in the Orange River Colony and the socalled pacified Western Transvaal, but without producing any serious impression upon the Bridsh arms. Passengers arriving at Lorenzo Marquez on July 9 from Middleburg say there has been severe fighting between the latter place and Machadodorp, in which the Boers were defeated and demoralized.

The bond leaders of the Cape are extending their boycott of British firms, and Dutch companies, with £200,000 capital, have been formed. The Lorenzo Marquez correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says under date of July 9: I understand that has been recalled. He is a wellknown pro-Boer.

How They Locted and Destroyed Property in Natal-Their Filthy

Writing from Newcastle, Natal, Mr. Dunn, of the Central News, says:

"When I left Dundee, after the British retreat in October, Dundee was a clean, flourishing town. Today every store, with one exception, is completely gutted; every house left unoccupied has been ransacked, the furniture being either emashed to pieces or carted away. Some of the once prime English dwelling houses which I entered were in an indescribably filthy condition. Square holes had been cut in the flooring of the rooms, and these were used as latrines. In one house lay the putrifying remains of helf of an unskinned Other houses had been used as stables. The convent was in a state of chaos. The Catholic Church was en-tirely stripped of all its draperies and furnishings, the bare, wooden altar alone remaining. Ottawa, July 9.-The entire morning session of the house and a large part of the afternoon session were occupied Atlantic steamship service, which Sir Richard Cartwright admitted was not satisfactory, owing to the withdrawal of the best ships for the transport service of the British army; but it was the best he could do under the circumstances. Later in the evening the estimates for immigration were dis-cussed at some length. Mr. Wilson moved to strike $1,000 out of the item

In answer to Mr. Powell, Mr. Blair said that the total amounts charged by the Intercolonial in connection with the transportation of the Canadian contingents, the Strathcona Horse and the halifax militia garrison, including equipment and supplies, were $25,778, $8,537 and $1,252 35 respectively.

Mr. Fielding, in answer to Mr. Richardson's question, said that recent information from Manitoba, encouragedd the belief that the shortage of hay would not be as serious as expected. At any rate, no alteration would be made in the tariff this session.

The senate amendments to the Chinese immigration and civil service bills were concurred in. On motion to go into supply, Mr. Lariviere made a lengthy speech in re-ference to the homestead case in Manitoba, in which he said some injustice had been done. He placed a mass of correspondence on Hansard. He had a thick batch of correspondence still un-read at 1 o'clock. Sir Richard Cartwright suggested that he should read

Mr. Sifton, in reply, said he would not enter at length into a discussion of the matter which Mr. Lariviere had introduced, and which was not a fair subject for discussion in the house, being a purely departmental matter which would be dealt with as such. Mr. Lariviere had apparently been more anxious to attack a gentleman named Christie than to attack the department of the interior, but it was no part of his duty as minister of the interior to defend Mr. Christie. The whole question he had to decide in connection with this case was whether the officers of his department had acted correctly in giving a certain person homestead entry for a certain location, and whether the circumstances were such as to justify him in interfering with their action and setting aside their decision. Mr. Sifton said that he found the officials had acted in accordance with the regulations in putting the land in question up to auction. There being no bidders, the land was subsequently granted to two German set-tlers upon homestead entry.

The house went into committee on the votes for steamship services, when the opposition, in deference to Sir Richard Cartwright, who is a master hand at getting estimates through the house, shortened their criticisms very considerably. Mr. Kaulbach, of Lunenburg, drew attention to the injury which the new Porto Rican causing the fishermen of the Maritime Provinces. Sir Richard replied that the government and the imperial authorities were doing all they could to induce the United States Government to take a liberal view of this matter, in view of the attitude of friendly neutrality which Britain maintained during the Spanish-American war.

The minister of finance made a statement tonight regarding the terms upon which the Bank of Commerce had been doing the government's business for the last two years, and the arrangement which it was hoped to make for the present year. During the first season of 1898-99 the bank was paid 4 per cent for handling the gold collected in the way of royalty; that included 1½ per cent for insurance charges, 11/2 per cent for conveying gold to the coast, and other expenses. mission on free miners' drafts and 11/2 per cent for whatever business they did for the government. Mr. Foster found little cause for criticism, and approved of the minister's determination not to continue free miners' drafts, and to invite tenders for handling the gold.

P.M. Bowser Successfully Breasts Them in His "Fool Killer."

Patent Boat Was Once Keel Upper most, But Righted Herself.

Niagara Falls, July 10.—Thousands lined the banks of Niagara River yesterday afternoon when Captain Nissen alias P. M. Bowser, made his attempt to navigate the river below the falls. After various vicissitudes, including a threat of arrest by the Canadian authorities he got his patent boat, "The Fool Killer," started about 4 o'clock. At the first attempt it drifted into a current that carried it back toward the Falls, and had to be towed out. On the second attempt he succeeded in keeping the boat in the main stream. On striking the waves opposite the incline railway bridge, the boat was tossed about unmercifully, but carefully righted itself after each attack.

When it struck the tossing mountain of water opposite the foot of the whirlpool rapids promenade, as it neared the death hole of Capt. Webb, the seething rapid sucked the "Fool Killer" into its jaws like a chip, broadside, keel upwards, the iron bar weighing 1,250 pounds fastened with rods at the bottom was on top. Crash it went high in the air, Browser clinging for dear life to the sides of the cockpit as he was smashed with hundreds of tons of water, which, in its greatest fury, completely submerged the boat and its occupant for some seconds. Everyone yelled "There is his end," but a moment later the boat was through right side up, and Bowser waving his hand to tell the people he was still all right in his boat. Down he went riding on the crest, and under each successive rapid, when the cheering broke out that re-echoed up the gorge, announcing that the boat had entered the whirlpool all right near the Canadian side, where Bowser was finally brought

Ladies' Costumes From England.

The trade in ladies' and children's costumes, mantles, dress fabrics, corsets, underclothing and all kinds of drapery goods, which the well known firm of John Noble, Limited, of Manchester, England, has done for some years past in the Dominion, bids fair to make a record for itself during the last year of the century. People residing far off from towns and shopping centers are fast recognizing that they can save much money and trouble, as well as time, by sending to Brook Street Mills, Manchester, for John Noble's profusely illustrated cat-alogues and fashion sheets, and ordering straight away, by the aid of the patterns and explicit measurement forms sent with them. The firm guarantees satisfaction to its customers, and is at as much pains with the order of its $250 client as with that of the customer for a $256 serge costume. It speaks well for the fair dealing of this old established firm, that half of its customers live in the cities and larger towns of the empire, where it might be supposed that circumstances would favor local business

Whilst much of the increased patronage referred to, is doubtless due to the firm's improved export arrangements, and the recent tariff reductions, it is still more than likely the bulk of it is traceable to the exceptionally high value for money with which its name is associated.

which was discussed in parliament yesterday, is intended to prevent strikes, lock-outs and other labor troubles by enabling the parties to a dispute to get together and talk things over with a view to arriving at a settlement on terms fair to both sides. The machinery proposed by Mr. Mul-ock may not always work up to specifications, but the intention is certainly good. A strike or lock-out hurts em-ployer and employes, though not always equally, for there is a saying that capital can wait while labor starves. The best preventive of labor troubles is for employers to recognize that their workmen have a right to a share in prosperity. When times are hard, the workmen have to share in the effects of the depression. Their wages are reduced, or they fail to obtain continuous employment, and it is often hard for them to keep the pot bolling. Many employers have, during the current season of prosperity, recognized the employes' interest and partnership in the business by voluntarily increasing wages or reducing the hours of labor. The late Mr. Tuckett, of this city, kept the good-will of his employes at all times by recognizing that they were his fellow men, with a right to comfort and happiness as well as to the means of keeping body and soul together. The employer is of course influenced in a general way by the motto, "Buy in the cheapest market and sell in the dearest," but he may make a sad mistake in buying the cheapest labor that can be got. A condition of ill-will or hard feeling in a manufacturing establishment is productive of loss, and when men know that they can get no concessions unless they corner the boss when he is in a tight place, he cannot carry on business to the best advant-Over-haste to become a millionaire has kept many a man from acquiring a competence. manufacturing supremacy has been endangered by the effects of labor troubles at home far more than by foreign competition. The idea of conciliation has been taken up in Britain, and Mr. Mulock follows the British lead. By avoiding strikes much individual misery will be prevented, and the national wealth will be greatly increased, for idleness of capital or labor is equivalent in its results to de-struction of wealth. The education of masters and men to a recognition of the principle of give and take will be of benefit to every interest in the country.

The Spirit of Panic.

A great crisis tests the life of nations. The intelligence and the moral character of men come out in the way they face great trials. We can understand the Emperor William of Germany feeling strongly about the murder of his ambassador, but we feel that all his military cannot at present prevent outrages, and that the way to prevent them thoroughly in the future is not by military prowess, but by something higher. The spirit of revenge, if uncontrolled, will work harm enywhere. The Chinamen in Berlin have had to be warned to keep in doors! Why should that be necessary in enlightened Germany? It is simply this, that we all feel so indignant and helpless in the face of this great horfor that we are inclined to lay hands on the first Chinaman we meet. That may be natural, but it is a brute instinct which needs to be controlled. How can the Chinaman who is thousands of miles away help what is going on in his native land? And how with the wild revolutionists who are causing such devastation?

These are sensible questions, but people who give way to passion and panic do not stop to ask questions, sensible or otherwise, and they do not consider that in their haste and fury they are giving way to the same passions as they condemn so severely in others. If we are intelligent Christian men, we shall learn to look even the most awful facts calmly in the face, and acknowledge that the lesson of the hour is this, that frantic fury and wild revenge never made matters better, but always worse. The one thing to be avoided is the spirit of ignorant prejudice which gives way to unreasoning feeling and produces the panicstricken spirit which kicks out senselessly in all directions.

The Cause of the Chinese Difficulty.

For a long time our attention has been put to school. The subject has learn many things about the country and people, and to strain our minds to grasp questions of international right and constitutional law. Now China holds the field, and is likely to do so for some time. Europe has been in spite of the troubled conditions of playing with its far eastern question, and now the mass of people who seemed so slow and stupid have risen in fierce passion and prejudice, and made the question one of immense size and pressing importance. This leads to al kind as well as sensuous and sensadiscussion as to the cause of this great | tional pleasures. One of these is the trouble. We hear voices that cry, The first international congress for the his-Chinese have a perfect right to their tory of religions. own country; they wanted to be let alone, and it would have been well to let them alone. This sounds very well, and creeds exchanged views. Professor as abstract theory, especially when one Jastrow says: "While the practical rehas the vision of four hundred million Chinamen let loose upon the world; but again we have to remember that the world is not governed by abstract theories, but by living forces.

Sitting in a comfortable corner, men can denounce the meddlesomeness of missionaries and the greed of traders, but we too easily forget that missionary and trader represent not simply their own personal feeling, but also two of the greatest forces of civilization. Trade has tried to force itself into China for many years, and although some of its agents are greedy and tyrannical, its influence on the whole is beneficial. Missionaries as individuals may sometimes be indiscreet and meddlesome, but they are seeking the good of the Chinese. They go to his land under the sense of duty, feeling that they have something good to offer, and we know that in innumerable cases they have done great good. The missionary, going in obedience to his Master's command, is prepared to face dangers, and believes that God will bring good out of evil. Whatever others may suppose, he does not becivilization and the progress of the Opposition Criticism.

As we have said, it is the duty of an opposition to criticise, but such criticism should be fair, showing a real sense of responsibility. Very much of the opposition criticism of late seems to have gone upon the principle that if you throw a great deal of mud some of it will be sure to stick. Wild, reckless statements in the heat and turmoil of a general election may perhaps be more excusable, though they are better avoided even then. But when in cool blood there seems to be a settled policy of flinging strong statements abroad concerning men and things, such political action will not be commended by fair-minded people. Such a policy is not really politic, as it will over-do itself by its very excess. Tons of printed matter are being sent through the mails with the express purpose of blackening the character of the present Administration, and a large proportion of this finds its way very soon to the waste basket and the fire, for the simple reason that it is administered in such large doses and contains such violent statements. Extravagance tends to defeat itself. We do not claim that all the opposition criticism has been false and futile. To do that would be to fall into the extreme we are condemning. There is no adminstration that is faultless or infallible. Weak spots can be found in the work of any and every government. In England, where the administration is in the whole perhaps superior to can we be sure that he is in sympathy almost any other country, the fiercest criticism has been provoked when the government has been suddenly confronted with new duties and unexpected tasks. Without considering the fairness or unfairness of this in particular cases, we admit that it is good for any body of public men to know that they are in the public eye and must give an account of all they have done. But our present point is that criticism can only do its proper work when it is moderate and fair. Men resent unfair criticism. They feel that it is a thing that cannot be reckoned with. It may break out anywhere, and their best work may be condemned; so, instead of increasing responsibility, it lessens it all round. Those who on the slightest provocation cry out "traitor," "scroundrels," "rogues," etc., are in danger of losing their sense of the meaning and value of words. They use up their vocabulary, on small fictitious occasions, and when a great occasion really arises they have no strong words left to do been fixed on South Africa. We have justice to it. As a matter of fact, criticism is an art in politics as well as been presented with overmastering in other regions, and our Conservative power, and we have been compelled to friends would do well to learn the art

Vastly Improved Military Defenses-Transportation Facilities Greatly Advanced-Important Reforms in Canada's Mail Service-The Canadian Security Boom - Splendid Showing of the Banks.

[From our Ottawa correspondent.] Ottawa, July 9.—The consideration of the estimates this session has been marked by the action of the various ministers in presenting to the house and the country detailed statements of the work of their departments with the object of placing before the electorate concise and authentic information regarding the condition of public affairs. Thus the minister of militia pointed out the vastly improved condition of the country's defenses, the modernized methods which were now in operation for developing the national home guard, and the greatly augmented results which were being obtained for the money expended. Following him, the minister of railways presented an account of his stewardship, and demonstrated how greatly transportation facilities had been advanced during the last four years. He pointed out the remarkable improve-ment both in the financial position of the road and in its usefulness to the country, an improvement which had made the system not only a most important factor in the railway world, but also a valuable asset to the Do-minion instead of a drain upon the country as it had been under previous management.

MR. MULOCK ALSO. Then followed the postmaster-general with his report of the important service under his control. The develop-ment of Canada's mail service is so thoroughly recognized in the country at large, and the individual elector throughout the Dominion has so close a personal experience of the improvements effected, that it is unnecessary to dwell upon it here, but it is worth pointing out that these improvements have not been made at any augmented cost to the country. On the contrary, the deficit left by the late government is being steadily wiped out, and in spite of the great reduction in both domestic and imperial, postal rates, the equilibrium of revenue and expenditure is being rapidly recovered, and instead of a deficit of a million and a quarter which the Conservatives prophesied would result from these reductions, the deficit last year is a mere bagatelle. It is worth noticing too the phenomenal increase in correspondence which the reduced imperial postage has brought about, the returns showing that the amount of postage at the reduced rates of two cents equals, if it does not exceed, the amount collected under the old five cent rate, which, of course, means that dume of correspondence has increased 150 per cent.

One or two figures will further illustrate the development of the postal service. Then number of postoffices in operation in 1896 was 9,103; in 1899, 9,-The number of savings banks has grown from 755 to 838, and the number of new accounts opened from 126,442 to The number of money order offices has grown from 1,310 to 1,779, and the amount of money trans-mitted by them from $13,081,860 to $14,467,997. The number of articles carried through the mails has grown from 177,178,130 in 1896 to 228,024,900 last year, while during 1899 the department carried the mails 1,438,095 miles farther than they were ever carried in any previous year. "I hope," added Mr. previous year. "I hope," added Mr. Mulock, "it will be gratifying to the honorable gentlemen opposite, at any rate it will be gratifying to the taxpayers of Canada, to know that this increased service, representing probably an increase of 25 per cent in additional postoffice facilities to the pubhas been obtained, not with a used by the late government in performing the postoffice service in 1896. THE MASSES REAP THE BENEFIT.

It will be remembered that when the reduced postal rates were announced, it was objected by the Conservatives that the wealthy business interests alone would be benefited, and that the masses of the electorate would pay the Upon this point Mr. Mulock observed: "In spite of what may be said to the contrary, these cheapened rates have brought the postoffices nearer to the people of Canada, and not merely to the bankers and the commercial men and the men who write to China, Hong Kong and Japan-the masses of the people have availed themselves of cheap rates, as can be found by the returns in the postmaster-general's report. You will find the same steady growth in the rural postoffices as in the city offices. If it were only the wealthy that were taking advantage of the extra facilities now offered by the postoffice department, we would find an enormous increase in the cities, and we would find an enormous decrease in the country. That is not the case.

THE INCREASE IS GENERAL. "The total revenues from the city offices is about one-third of the total revenues of the postoffice department, and the increase keeps pace fairly between the one and the other, so that from the increase in the city postoffices we can make an estimate of what would be the increase in the rural dis-It is an entire error for any honorable gentleman to assume that the reduced rates have not been fully taken advantage of by the humblest people as well as by that class for which my honorable friend (Mr. Foster) thinks we should not be so solicitous. The postoffice is an institution for the masses, and we are bringing it nearer and nearer to them every day by cheapening the rates, increasing the postoffices, extending the facilities. In no better way can you bring it within their reach than to make it cheap and accessible to the poorest in the land. The postoffice is intended for the poor as well as for the rich, and the masses of the people have recog-nized our policy of giving cheaper postage, and have profited by it to their own advantage, and at no loss to the service itself." A LIFT FOR CANADIAN SECURI-

The minister of finance has been officially notified that the imperial lord chancellor has taken the necessary steps to amend the law so that English trustees can invest in Canadian securities. The admission of the securities of Canada into the English trustee list called for legislative action by both the imperial and the Canadian parlia-The Dominion parliament has already passed an act, at the instance of Mr. Fielding, making specific provision for the inscription and transfer of Canadian stock in the register kept in the United Kingdom. which the lord chancellor has just laid before the House of Lords makes certain changes in the colonial stock act so as to give effect to the Canadian law. Of its passage through both there can be no manner of doubt, since the bill is introduced as a government measure. The Conservatives tried to secure this boon for many years, but without success; and it was not until public confidence was established under Liberal rule that the imperial authorities consented to take a step which means so much to the Dominion.

THE BANKS SHOW UP WELL. The monthly official statement of the chartered banks of the Dominion for May is worth perusing. The note circulation for that month is $42,856,000, as against $37,000,000 last year. The largest amount of notes in circulation at any time in the month was $45,800,-000, or $8,400,000 more than the greatest a year ago, and $200,000 more than the highest reached in April. This is a remarkable showing for May. The public lous lines to allow of fair living profdeposits have again begun to show a its being made. Business has picked marked expansion. The figures show-ing the paid-up capital and the rest or reserve funds are larger, and the statement for June will show a still further increase, as it will include additions made at recent annual meet-ings, which are not included in the current statement. The headings un-der specie and Dominion notes show a strengthening for last month. Balances due from foreign countries are larger than in April, but are still below what they were a year ago. Trade loans show quite a substantial increase. "Other liabilities" show a considerable Increase compared with April, but is somewhat less than it was a year ago.

A CURIOUS INCIDENT AT A FUNERAL.

New York, July 10 .- A strange incident happened in the First Presbyterian Church here, on Sunday, says a Bangor (Me.,) special: The church was filled with persons who were present, as they supposed, to attend the funeral services for Miss Ad. Buckley. A moment before the services were to begin, the woman who was supposed to be dead walked into the church and took a seat with the mourners. excitement was intense. Investigation was made, and it was found that the coffin contained the body of her brother Ed. A mistake had been made in the transmission of the names of the brother and sister over the telegraph wire. The funeral continued after half an hour's delay.

THE MARKETS

Local Market

London, Tuesday, July 10. Raspberries were offered in profusion on the market today. The fruit was of excellent quality, the berries being large and luscious. It was bought up quite freely, but there was a noticeable hesitancy on the part of purchasers in procuring their supply so early. The price that was asked, 9c and 10c per box, prohibited large sales. For the black raspberries 8c was asked. Currants were slow, at 4c per box, while cherries sold quite rapidly at 8c per box, or 75c by the Instructors of the Western Ontario Dairymen's Association Submit Their Report.

Stratford, July 10 .- A meeting of the directors of the Dairymen's Association of Western Ontario was held on Friday at the Illustration and Experimental Station at Milverton, when reports were submitted by the instructors, Messrs. James Morrison, John Brodie, George McDonald and Arch. Smith. from which it appears that great improvements have been made this year in the buildings and fittings of many of the factories. This is most marked in the general appearance of the buildings which have been much improved. and the curing rooms put in better condition for withstanding the variations of weather, but as regards the whey tanks at the factories there has been scarcely any change, those having elevated tanks being nearly all kept well cleaned, as usual, while those under ground are also, as usual, never, or hardly ever, attended to. So far there has been no prosecutions of the patrons for adulteration of milk. There were cases that would have warranted legal proceedings, but the factorymen have so far been satisfied with warning the offenders. The report submitted by the special committee in charge of the Illustration and Experimental Station was very gratifying, showing how the old frame factory, in poor condition and badly constructed, had been converted into an up-to-date modern building, with an effect both pleasing to the eye and well adapted for both making and curing the finest quality of cheese. The system for disposal of factory workings, put in under the supervision of Professor Bryce, of the Ontario provincial board of health, though very simple, is very effective, all liquid and refuse matter being disposed of in a natural and purely scientific way. The most important point settled so far is that of making cheese with washed and unwashed curds. is found that it is better to wash all curds, but makers are cautioned against washing except with good, pure water. Tests were also made with impure waters, the impurity being of various sorts. The experimental cheese were carefully examined by the experts on the board and by the instructors. with the result as regards washed curds, as previously stated. The cheese

The Crazy, Fugitive, Poisoned, Dead and Buried Dowager Empress Resumes the Rains of Power-Prince Tuan Blamed for All the Trouble.

London, July 10. - Chinese official sources furnish another surprise this morning in announcing that the dowager empress, who had been reported within two weeks to be dead, to have fled, to have been poisoned, and to have been considered as being mad, has resumed the reins of power. The date given is June 30, the same on which the wholesale massacre of foreigners is alleged to have occurred. The telegram of Sheng, the administrator of telegraphs and railroads, to the Chinese minister at Washington, Wu Ting Fang, saying the imperial government was protecting the legation, appears to fit in with the dispatch from Shanghal of this morning, partic-ularly with reference to the alleged directions given by the dowager empress relative to the protection of foreigners.

A QUERY. At the same time people continue to ask, if the legations are protected, why the ministers are not permitted to communicate with the outer world. Sheng's expressed fears that the food and ammunition of the legations have been exhausted are counteracted by the news that Prince Shing, the commander of the Manchu field force, is revictual-ling them. Besides this, it is now known that in the last resort there is food in the shape of several hundred ponies, usually kept within the walls of the British legation.

JAPS IN EARNEST. In the meantime, according to the legation of Japan here, the Japanese by no means share the general opinion that the advance on Pekin must be indefinitely delayed. The officials assert that the Japanese show no intention of halting at Taku or Tien Tsin, but proposed to advance on Pekin during the present week. Their military authorities express the opinion that the 20,000 of their troops, in addition to the international forces already available, will suffice to force an entry into the Chinese capital.

WILLIAM'S WARSHIPS ON THE WAY. Emperor William dispatched the

It has been learned by the Associated Press that the Chinese legation who carries passports from his government are apparently unable to communicate showing that he is credited as a regular directly with Pekin are getting news from there indirectly. The officials of the legation declare the present trouble is entirely the work of Prince Tuan ing of the Boxer trouble, said: and that the government, the Dowager Empress and the Chinese generally are

AGAINST THE BOXERS. The officials also say they have reason to hope that the situation at Pekin is improving, and that Prince Ching will succeed in protecting the foreigners. They scout the stories of the massacre of the people in the legations, and the poisoning of the Emperor and Dowager Empress, and express opinion that Prince Ching and loyal viceroys could best be assisted by the prompt dispatch of international reinforcements, and the promise of help in the formation of a strong govern-

HARD TO BELIEVE. Washington, July 10.—The secretary of state has received a dispatch from Mr. Goodnow, United States consulgeneral at Shanghai, stating that it is given out by the governor of Shan Tung that the legations were standing on July 5, and that the outlaws were dispersing. Mr. Goodnow adds that this statement does not obtain general credence.

Growing List of Those Who Testify to Dodd's Kidney Pills in Montreal.

Montreal, July 9.—The list of those who have received benefit from the great medicine, Dodd's Kidney Pills, is steadily growing in this city. Since Mr. Robert Thomson's name was published, Mr. M. Mullin, of 4 Elgin street, has stepped forward and submitted his testimony. His case was Rheumatism, which though now generally recognized as a kidney disease is not always treated as such.

People waste a lot of money trying to drive Rheumatism from the system. If they would all follow Mr. Mullin's example they would be saved much pain and expense.

Says he, "I have had Rheumatism for some time and could get nothing to cure me until I used Dodd's Kidney Pills. I have now taken three boxes and am cured."

AT BISLEY

Some Good Scores Made by Canadians in the Opening Competitions.

Bisley Camp, July 9. — The annual meet of the National Rifle Association opened here today with a fairly large attendance. Most of the members of the Canadian team took part in the competitions commencing today, which are generally looked upon as affording good practice for the more important events. Several Canadians took part in the Premier, an unlimited entry match, seven shots at 600 yards, and which closes on Monday next. The first prize in this match is a bicycle, and the N. R. A. gives £60 in cash in other prizes. Lieut, A. A. Smith made the best Canadian score in this match, namely, the possible of 35 points. It does not, of course, follow, that this score will win the prize. Last year no less than sixteen possible scores were made in this match, the tie shoot being finally won by Lieut. Gilchrist of Canada. There were also no less than 44 scores of 34 last year.

Sergt. Corrigan made a good 34 in the Premier. The Canadians have only had one week's practice over the ranges, compared with the two weeks of for-mer years. They will, however, enter in several of the 1,000 yards range events in order to familiarize themselves with that distance in anticipabers of the team are well. The Toronto Evening Telegram had a special dispatch saying that in the As sociation cup match Pte. G. Milligan made the possible score of 35 at the 600 yards range. In this match, which closes on the 20th, the competitors shoot at the 200 and 600 yards range, 7 shots at each. The match is open only to life or annual members of the N. R.

KOMOKA.

Under this heading there appeared in Friday's issue two items which were not furnished by The Advertiser's regular correspondent (who is a thoroughly reliable man), and which prove to be incorrect. One purports to tell of the marriage of Miss Mabel Pender, while the other alleges that Miss Flos-sie Pender had been to Detroit for treatment. Both these stories appear to be fabrications, and steps are being taken to bring the author to ac-

He was just giving up, and had to be towed ashore, where he lay helpless up til restoratives were applied.

Busy Scenes at the Fair Grounds

Many Improvements Being Made-A New Building-Important Changes in Horse Stables.

During the time of the Western Fair this year the visitors at Queen's Park will notice many extensive alterations that will undoubtedly be considered a decided improvement. Since Mr. James H Brown assumed the chairmanship of the grounds and buildings committee, the park has undergone a wonderful change. This has been due largely to -H. P. Sharpe, of the Dominion Ex- the indefatigable interest that he has for the accommodation and comfort of the pairrons of the fair and the exhibitors. During the exhibition last year he noted several ways in which he considered the plan of the park could be bet-tered. These he embodied in a report that was presented to the board last year, and, together with suggestions received from other quarters, this formed the basis of the changes that have been under way since last April. It was decided advisable for several rea-sons to clear the center of the park of accomplished, as far as is possible, by the removal of the main offices from their former situation to the corner of the Midway and Society Row, that is, almost immediately facing the King street entrance. By this change an uninterrupted view of the whole park is allowed, and its centralized location will prove more satisfactory. The interior of the general offices have also been materially altered. Five other smaller buildings have been removed from the center of the grounds to more convenient places. Many improvements have been made in the old buildings. The interior of the palace has been renovated; it has been painted and kalsomined throughout. In order that more general entrance. It has been manifest ever since the new buildings were erected a few years ago that sufficient accommodation had not been provided for the sheep and swine. As this was one of the features of the fair that is of great interest, more especially to rural visitors, it was decided this year to build another large sheep and swine shed. Since they were erected there has been some little dissatisfaction among them, because only certain classes have been allowed box stalls. The change of all the open stalls to box stalls has been in contemplation for some time, and has now been accomplished, so that all may be satisfied.

The stalls have been enlarged and made more comfortable. The speed stalls have also been improved. Projecting roofs have been built on them for the convenience and comfort of the speeding classes. A great amount of work of a minor character has also been done. For instance, the closet accommodation has been largely in-creased: new avenues have been conand new sod put in in various places. The general offices and small buildings were all painted. The whole park has been improved and beautified in general appearance, and as an exhibinone in the Dominion.

She looked at Aunt Phebe with shin-ing tears in her luminous eyes. "Oh, how good you were to my lit-tel one in her sore distress! How can I ever thank you enough?" she cried, as she seized the old, rough black hand and pressed it warmly in her delicate white ones. "Oh, it is no wonder that Dawn has always loved and respected you so much, you good and noble

Dawn gave her a bright, loving glance and then exclaimed:
"See, dear mother, the sun has dried the rain from the grass, and we can begin our journey. Poor Auntie Phebe, I am sorry that you have to walk so far in your wounded condition. If you will wait here we will go on and send a carriage for you as soon as we can get to Cedarhurst."

Phebe declared with a shudder that he could not and would not remain clone with that dreadful corpse, and that she was able to walk. So the three set forth buoyantly, never dreaming of the maze of woodland that hemmed them around, and that they were already losing their way, having started at the very first in a contrary direction from the one that led to the

But they began to realize this startling fact, when, after several hours of doubtful wandering in pathless woods, they suddenly came out into a level space occupied by a log cabin so like the one they had left that Mrs. Douglas cried out in dismay:
"It is the same!"

"No, no!" exclaimed Dawn.
But Phebe peered within the open door, and there lay the corpse of Sambo, grim, horrible, motionless, with the handkerchief over its awful face.

They had been wandering in a circle and had returned to the point from whence they started. Wearied, dismayed and frightened, they sat down to

The long, wearisome walk and lack of food began to tell on all, and dispirited and footsore they set forth in another direction, but still no path was discovered. They found plenty of blackberries and raspberries, however, and par-tially satisfied thir hunger, although Phebe declared that she would give all she possessed for one cup of steaming hot coffee. Oh how desolate it was there in the trackless woods! They encountered no one. It was like a world of the dead, so silent, so uninhabited, save by the creatures of the woods, the shiny ser-pents that glided across their way, hiding themselves beneath the rustling dead leaves, the timorous squirrels and rabblits, and the birds that warbled in the treetops overhead. Nightfall found them huddled wildeyed and forlorn beneath a tree, where they passed the night in fear and terthe night that saw the consummation of Lettie's plan against the life of Carl Douglas. At day dawn they were up and on their way again. They sought water and berries first to quench their hunger and thirst. Phebe's head was dressed and bathed again and the search for the road began once more.

"I shall never agree with Byron that 'There is a pleasure in the pathless woods,'" said Dawn, trying to make light of their misfortunes, but her sweet lips quivered and her eves grew dim with tears she was too brave to shed. She was wondering silently whether Lettie had not sprung some horrible trap for her father, too. Last night he was to arrive at Cedarhurst, and if harm had not befallen him he would seek them everywhere.

The day wore on, but still no path, no road, still the thick, green woods, the impenetrable shrubberies. Once again, as though walking in an enchanted circle, they came back to the solitary cabin with its grim occupant, the dead murderer.

It was dark now, and they knew that another night must elapse before they resumed their apparent aimless jour-ney. With wild, dilated eyes, Dawn looked into her mother's pale, troubled Lettie Jarvis, the beautiful impostor, vas wild with secret rage at the sudden illness of Mrs. Tempest, coming so in-opportunely on the very night before that appointed for the bridal, when everyone was on the qui vive for the festivities of tomorrow evening, when decorators from Washington were already in the house by Lettie's orders, making everything beautiful for her bridal hour.

'She had the marriage postponed before by her illness, but I swear she shall not do it again. The ceremony shall take place tomorrow evening!" she vowed with a lurid flash in her bright black eyes. "I have put all the rest out of my way forever, and I will not be thwarted again in my heart's de-

No sleep visited her pillow on this the night before her wedding-eve. She stiffed the horror that would creep over her sometimes at the thought of the beings she had swept from her path by the red hand of murder. She dwelt with feverish passion on the man soon to be her husband—the man who loathed and hated her, and shrunk with the reluct-ance of a great despair from the sacrifice of tomorrow.
"I will make him love me, now that she is forever out of the way!" vowed with crimson cheeks and flashing eyes.

When morning came she sent anxiously to inquire after the health of Mrs. Tempest, and was overjoyed to learn that she was better. Her cheeks glowed, her eyes flashed with exultation.

"There is nothing to hinder the marriage now. He will be mine tonight, and then my triumph will be complete,' she cried.

She was disappointed at not seeing Tracey at breakfast: but someone told her that he had been up all night with his sick mother, and had now gone to his room to get some sleep.

"To keep from seeing me—that is it," she thought, spitefully. "Never mind; after tonight I will not permit him to avoid me. I will make him pay for all I have suffered through his neglect and

The great house was full of guests who had come from a distance to attend the wedding. Cards had been sent to all the best families in the county. It was most unfortunate that Mrs. Douglas was away and Mrs. Tempest sick on this busy day, but Mrs. Elmore assisted Lettie to do the honors in her most graceful fashion, and "all went merry as a marriage-bell."

There was some wonder expressed at the continued absence of Mrs. Douglas. It looked strange for her to be absent the eve of her daughter's bridal. But as soon as she heard any wondering about this, Lettie hastened to assure the person that she had a long etter from her dear mother this morning and that she and Miss Douglas would arrive on the evening train in time for the ceremony.

Tracy Tempest, who made his appearance late in the afternoon, looked wretchedly pale and ill, heard the smooth falsehood told to a guest, and walked up to her side.

SIR J. GORDON SPRIGG.

Sketch of Cape Colony's New Treasure and Prime Minister.

Sir J. Gordon Sprigg, who is the new premier and treasurer of Cape Colony, was born at Ipswich, and is the son of a Baptist minister. Illhealth affected him, as it did Cecil Rhodes, and sent him to South Africa for new health and fortune. He was first at Cape of Good Hope in 1858, where he embarked in busi-Then the on-rush of affairs carried him into the colonial parliament. colony. From 1884 to 1886 he was treasurer, and the last-named year again became premier. When Cecil Rhodes resigned the premiership owing to the Jameson raid, Sir J. Gordon was made prime minister for a third time. In politics he is an imperialist, with not overmuch sympathy for the Dutch, but he is quite generally trusted by the mixed classes of Cape Colony, and it is believed will do much to pacify the Colony Boers at this time.

Tommy Atkins' Emergency Ration.

The emergency ration carried by the British soldiers consists of four ounces of cocoa paste and a similar quantity of concentrated beef, which are packed in a small flask suitable to carry in the pocket conveniently. The package is sealed and is not to be opened except in the case of the direst necessity, and even then only under orders from a superior officer. This small portion of food will keep a man alive for thirty-six hours and is either spread upon a biscuit or cooked up into a soup. A soldier found without his emergency ration is dealt with severely. At every inspection it is displayed in the soldiers's kit, and he is expected to carry it with him on ail kinds of duty.

The Boer Was Bluffed.

James Anderson of Chatham has received a letter from Gunner Robert Shore, dated at Orange River, May 10th. He gives a very humorous account of how he and a Guelph lad bluffed an old Boer farmer into selling his chickens. The Dutchman was very obdurate when he was asked to put a price on some of the fowl running about his barnyard, but Shore's companion turned to him and said: 'Captain, this man refuses to sell me any food; shall I shoot him?" and at the same moment made a movement to draw his revolver. The old Boer at once cried out: "Don't shoot; don't shoot, and I will have my boy catch as many as you want!" and so the hungry artillery boys fared well at dinner that day by working a game of bluff.

A FUTURE MENACE

Black Cloud That Confronts South Africa's Peace.

Great Britain Could Not, If She Would, Ignore the Native Races in the Transvael and Orange River Colonies -Their Numbers and Strength Make Them a Force To Be Reckoned

One of the most serious and urgent phases of the problem that will confront Great Britain after the war is the question of the future governments of the blacks. They cannot be ignored in considering the disposition and future of South Africa, for there are only about 750,000 whites, while the blacks are estimated at anywhere between 4,000,000 and 7,000,000.

To comprehend the situation it is necessary to rid the mind of the idea, so generally held here, that the blacks are weak and a negligible quantity in discussing matters. They are in no sense of the word weak, either individually or collectively. Personally they are tall, strong and hardy and have proved their ability to fight against either the Boers or the British on many a hard fought field Collectively they are not so strong for they are divided both by distance and racial hatred, though all the tribes are very much alike, being descended from a common stock However, their very numbers render them formidable. On the whole, it may be said that they are more fav-orable to the British than to the Boers, for the reports of Boer cruelty to the natives are true, though often exaggerated. The name Kaffir, so often heard, is a generic term and includes Zulus, Basutos, Bechuanas, Matabeles and others. Of these the most civilized and best organized race and the one to be taken into consideration most is the Basutos, who number about 250,000 and inhabit Basutoland, to the southeast of the Orange Free State (Orange River Colony). 'The Basutos, like all the other tribes, are extremely jealous of any interference with their internal affairs, although they are nominally under British control. For instance, recently, when the cattle disease was prevalent in South Africa, the government of Cape Colony established a quarantine on the border by means of colonial troops. The Basutos were alarmed, and their chief, Lerothodi, sent a strong body of men to the frontier, and the colonists were compelled to retire to avoid trouble.

The blacks in their present state are a great and growing menace to the civilization of South Africa, for, numerous as they are and strong as they would be if combined, they could wipe out every vestige of civilization if they were to rise against white rule. The only hope for future British rule is to keep them divided, in the meantime striving to Christianize them and educate them into a sense of responsibility. With education they are certain to discover their own strength, and then it will be impossible to avoid according them at least some share in their own government.

Under peaceful conditions the Kaffirs are certain to grow in numbers and in wealth. Formerly, when fierce tribal warfare prevailed, there was no question of white suptemacy for the wars kept the blacks from attaining to any real power in South Africa. Now that peace is imposed upon them by the sovereignty, real or nominal, of Great Britain, they are bound to assert themselves in the government, and how to prevent them by peaceable means from becoming the whole government is the problem that confronts British statesmanship.

A Dog for the Queen,

The first contingent of Australian Bushmen have with them a collie who has been christened Bushie. The dog's portrait has been taken and a framed enlargement sent to the Queen, who is to be asked to accept Bushie, should he survive the perils of the war, as a living memento of Australian novelty, The dog is under the special care of Trooper Battye, a member of a family illustrious in British military history, and probably he will be entrusted with the duty of taking Bushie to England.

The beauty of Muskoka lies as much in its rivers as in its lakes. The Magnetawan is situated sixty miles north of Gravenhurst, at Burk's Falls on the Grand Trunk Railway and a daughter of the late Leonard Jerome of New York City. She is a great many years the senior of her Burk's Falls on the Grand Trunk Railway, and opens up another and entirely new region to steamboat navigation, to the tourist, and par-ticularly the sportsman who can get with com-paratively little trouble to a district which has hitherto been accessible only to those with new husband, who is but 25, but is ample means and time. The very heart center for sport, for rod and gun. ## LADY CHURCHILL at the National Rifle Association tournament at Bisley.

Has Been Nick-Named "The Baby-Snatcher"—Is to Marry Young West July 20.

Lady Randolph was at the opera Friday night. She was dressed in black, her only cranment being a red rose in her raven hair. She appeared to be delighted with herself.
