THE FIASCO QUESTION.

Barrister Geo. G. Martin says he would like to come in for a cigar—or something better—in this literary rumpus. He says: "Now, while Fiasco means failure, it is properly used only as to ridiculous failures; more to the collapse of some scheme, circus or musical entertainment than to a financial matter. As to this the word may not be improper strictly speaking, but it is not well chosen. Lord Macaulay would never have used it in this sense. Fiasco is a pare used it in this sense. Fiasco is a pure Italian word. In an Italian opera if a singer breaks down, the audience cry out,—Ola, Ola, Fiasco! Fiasco means literally a bottle or flask, and the allusion may be to the bursting of the bottle. The phrase is used also in French and German. It is properly used regarding some per-formance, and is entirely out of its element when applied to finances.'

BRICKS AT FAULT

Mr. Stockton Thinks That the Laying of a Few New Bricks is all the King St. Pavement Needs.

Considerable comment is being made about the King St. pavement. A number of citizens say that the pave ment should be repaired, and others think that it should be re-slushed. Others, again, think that the pavement is all right as it is, and needs no repairing.

Mr. Stockton, who was in charge of the work when the pavement was being laid, when interviewed by The Planet, said:-"I see nothing wrong with the pave-ment. It is as good as when it was put down except in some places, where there is heavy teaming, the bricks are chipped and broken.

"I am not bound, however, to repair the broken bricks. That is no fault of the contractor. The bricks were not bought by the contractors — they were bought by the city, and I might add, I myself advised the city at the time against purchasing the bricks as they did. As far as the re-slushing goes, the bricks are as solidly packed together, as they are ware.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jewel Were Incredible Wave of Crime Said to be Sweeping the City of New York.

> Times' Currespondent-Interview With Carnegia.

London, Oci. 25 .- On the authority of peen sent broadcast over Europe, a reign of terror exists in New York city. "It is no exaggeration to say," he declares, "that New York city is and Mrs. Jewel were thrown out and now as unsafe as a mining town was the wagon badly wrecked, but the a generation ago. On of the results horses escaped injury. Mrs. Jewel of the political importation of tramps was thrown into the ditch but for-tunately escaped with a few bruises. in the city many of the most dangerin the city many of the most dangerous men in America. Criminals of every class, from the petty thief to the highwayman, are pressed into the service. Part of the price paid them is the promise of immunity from pun-ishment, and resulting therefrom an incredible wave of crime is sweeping over the city. The shop-keepers are in a state bordering on panic. Citizens walk the secluded streets at night literally at the risk of their lives. The more prosperous shop-keepers are em-ploying private watchmen, so great is the distrust of the police."

Andrew Carnegie announced to night Andrew Carnegie anaounced to night that he will preserve an absolutely impartial attitude in regard to the municipal campaign in New York. Any other course, he believes, would be highly improper, in view of his present and future relations with the municipal officials of New York in connection with his gift to that city.

Mr. Carnegie religerated his disinglin-Mr. Carnagie reiterated his disinelin-ation to speak for publication on any phase of the elections, and evinced a ceen desire that no cus should tempt to quote or misquote him re-garding that fight. However, he frankly deprecated such absurd misfrankly deprecated such absurd mis-representations of the conditions of New York city as occurred in the London Times this morning. ## CHAMBERLAIN'S ANNOUNCEMEN'

Irish Obstruction will be Limited by Means of New Rules for British House.

Present Representation of Ireland "An Abuse and a Scandal"-Govern ment Investigating.

Edinburgh, Oct. 25 .- Mr. Chamberlain, the Colonial Secretary, address-Waverly Market, Edinburgh, to-n announced that the Government House of Commons, so as Irish obstruction

"We propose," said he, "to bring forward rules which shall give to the majority of the Commons greater control over its own business and greater control over the men who insult and outrage it; and we shall endeavor to protect the mother, of parliaments usefulness and reputation."

But this was not the only thing Mr. Chamberlain declared the Govern-land is," said he, "an abuse and a scandal. No alteration can be made except in immediate anticipation of general dissolution, and we are not contemplating that. But when we get nearer to the time, we shall ask you whether you think Irish representation is so precious to you, is so valuable to the national interests, that it is descrable to continue it on a scale which gives the Irish a representation enormously exceeding the proportionate representation of Scotland and England."

The Colonial Secretary went on to point out that on the basis of population Ireland had 30 members too many in the House of Commons, and on the basis of her contributions for Imperial purposes, as considered at the time of the union, she had from 40 to 50 members too many.

"I say that this constitutes an abuse," he continued, "and there is no reason why it should be perpetuno reason why it should be perpetuated."

In another portion of the speech, which was largely devoted to the Irish question, he observed: "If these gentlemen who now openly shout for the Mahdi and pray for the Boers, if they had a Parliament of their own, if tall the strings of Irish government had been in their hands, if they had had the power, is it not certain that they would have refused to pay their contribution to he war, and that they would have placed us a position of embarrassment?"

The relations of the parliamentary opposition with the Irish party, Mr. Chamberlain said he considered "dangerous to the Empire'."

GREATER SEVERITY. Edinburgh, Oct. 25.-In his speech

here to-day Mr. Chamberlain in reviewing the war in Scuth Africa, which he declared again had been forced upon Great Britain by the Boers, he said the Government acknowledged that it had made a mistake as to the time of ending the war, and that he admired the tenacity of the Boers, but he insisted that it was the duty of Great Britain to meet this tenacity with equal resolution. Then followed what is regarded as most important declaration: "I think the time has come, or is coming," said the colonial secretary, "when measures of greater severity may be necessary, and if that time comes we can find precedents for any-thing we do in the actions of those nations who now criticise our 'bar-barity' and 'cruelty,' but whose example in Poland, in the Caucasus, in Algeria, in Tonquin, in Bosnia and the Franco-German war, we have never approached."

ONE OF DAVIN'S BEST.

Perhaps one of the finest oratorical gems that ever fell from the lips of the brilliant Davin was his aaddress to the Strathcona Horse at Ottawa in March, 1900, saying:

"No knight ever wore on his sleeve the badge of truer or nobler lady than she for the completeness of whose diadem each one of you has entered the lists. For Canada you can say to the Empire, 'This is our gift, these are the men we send, steady where bullets hail or shrapnels rend, patient under privation, in rain or storm, ready to drudge, to watch, in silence, to bear repressed ardour, but when the word to close is given, whether by bugle, or passed silently by touch, springing eagerly to the charge. My western comrades, I pray God to be your shield and strength to fill your hearts with that valor which strikes home, but is full of pity and kindness for the beaten foe. I pray you may all return. If you return, I know you will return to a grateful country, with a consciousness in your hearts of a duty cone -duty done, the master note of all our achievements-and if you fall, what nobler fate could await any man than to die in battle for buch a cause, fighting as our fathers fought, dying as our fathers died, but to-day with the seats and thrones and galleries of the Empire looking down on him, and sanctifying the battle-

REFERENCE TO THE DEAD.

Ottawa Union. "Of the dead say nothing but wha is good.'

This excellent proverb, which has come down to us through many ages, like most excellent things, admits of considerable qualification. It has been said with truth that it is a pity that the demonstrations of esteen made after death did not more frequently take place during the lifetime of the honored one. In very many cases, abuse during life is com pensated for by indiscriminating en logy after death. One cannot help thinking that a happy mean of frank and kindly criticism, both before and after death, would be an improve ment on this. It is true that death in removing a man from this scene and thus preventing him from defending his motives and actions calls for additional care and charity in criticism, but there is no reason why it should blind us altogether to his

If eating sparingly would cure dyspepsia, few would suffer from it long. The only way to cure dyspepsia,

SERIES OF SIDELIGHTS

EDITED BY HELEN HALL.

***************** MME. PATTI'S FIRST APPEAR-

The following story would seem to be entirely characteristic of the great diva. The late Benjamin Wilkins, of St. Louis, was fond of telling it. As he was a life-long friend of Madam Bernardine Patti, mother of Adelina, is probably the true version of the 'first appearance." After an unusually severe winter in St. Louis, the accumulated snow and ice, owing to a sudden thaw, caused a great flood, which entirely inundated the poorer portion of the town. Mr. Wilkins inerested himself in arranging an entertainment for the benefit of the people made homeless by it. Madam Patti readily agreed to appear, but insisted that, to ensure success, there should be some noveliy, as her singing was an old story. Adelina was at this time a little girl, giving promise of future greatness by singing like a bird. She happened to be sitting on Mr. Wilkins' knee, busily engaged in Mr. Wilkins' knee, busily changed in going through his pockets, as was her invariable custom. "Very well," said Mr. Wilkins, "we will have a novelty, Listen, Adelina. If you will sing at my concert, I will give you a whole box of candy." Adelina consented. In those days things in St. Louis were less formal than they are now, and on less formal than they are now, and on the night of the concert the artists who were to appear sat in the front row of the hall, and stepped upon the platform to do their turn. Among them sat Adelina, in a white frock, her hair braided in a long braid tied with scarlet ribbons. Her eyes fairly snapped with excitement. She was a little paler than usual, but not with fear. When a third of the program had been given, Mr. Wilkins stepped upon the stage. "Ladies and gentle-men, I take great pleasure in announcing that the next number on the program will be a song by oungest prima donna in the world .-Miss Adelina Patti." There was a round of applause, then a pause. "Come, Adelina," said Mr. Wilkins. Adelina's mother gave her an encouraging push, but Adelina did not "Where's my candy ?' she said, clearly and distinctly. There was a laugh, in which Mr. Wilkins joined. "Oh, that, will be all right, Adelina," he said: "You shall have your candy all right." "I want it now," said the youngest prima donna in the world. Mr. Wilkins explained that he had forgotten to supply the required box, but assred Adelina she should have it the first thing in the morning. Persuasicn, en reaty, command, were unavailing. In Adelina's mind the proper arrangement of a womaniy organs, puts them in a womaniy organs, puts the womaniy organs, put program was "candy first, song dition of normal health, the lack of second." In the end, the audience which is often the sole obstruction to

"SO HERE, THEN, ARE DREAMS." The Roycrofters have gotten out new book. It comes under the fitle, "So Here, Then, Are Dreams," by Olive Schreiner. "The So Here, Then," is an invention of the "pastor," I imagine, because when the work was published some ten years ago, a single published some ten years ago, a single word did duty for the title, and that the most intangible, seductive and sug-gestive of all words in the language "Dreams." I do not find the addition an improvement. The work consists of eleven pieces, sketches, allegories, etc., fantastically and poetically conceived by the author of "An African Farm," and through the medium of her strong and verile prose given to the world. "The Lost Joy," an allegory of the Meeting of Life and Love, and o the birth of Joy. Of joy lost in the wilderness of the world, and of the advent of a stranger, wide-open-eyed soft-voiced child, whom the two no-tice not at first in their grief over the loss of their radiant first-born, but who, "grave, sweet, tender thing, warm in the coldest snows, brave in the dreariest deserts," they learn to love more than the radient-eyed darling whom they have wept, and the name of the latter is "Sympathy" the Perfect Love-is a tender little sketch full of suggestion and felicitous in expression. Other pieces are "A Dream of the Wild Roses," "In a Far-off World," "Three Dreams in a desert," and that sadly perfect vision of "The Garden of Pleasure," where Duty walks with desolating feet. The book as the Roycrofters give it

These words, inscribed over the entrance to the St. Joseph's Hospital, take the unfortunate man where he express the spirit of the noble work done by both of Chatham's splendid Hospitals, in the alleviation of the pain of the suffering, the caring for the sick, and the administration of words of hope and encouragement to the dying. .

No one can fully appreciate the ed together at this meeting to disgrand work which is being done, un-less, indeed, they have at some time son, K. C., and Judge Houston gave less, indeed, they have at some time been under the care of the nurses in meeting, and everyone was unanimous charge of the Hospitals. Then it is they see the importance which is attached to the work and the noble manner in which it is carried out.

Many of Chatham's citizens are entirely ignorant of the enormity of the service that is being given. The work of the Hospitals goes quietly on, with no pomp or heraldry, but gradually working its way into the high estimation of every true-minded citizen.

Sherwood died, and by his will bequeathed $1,000 as a nucleus for the erection of a Public Hospital here, and at once steps vere taken to secure a site, secure additional information, and collect additional funds for the erection of a switchle building Citic. The nurses are certainly to be con gratulated upon the way in which they manage the affairs of the Hospitals. As numbers of the physicians of the city have said, the results of a case very largely rests upon the shoulders of the nurse.

One of our doctors, in his enthusiasm, was heard to exclaim,-"I do not know what I would do with my critical cases if it were not for the nurses in the Hospitals! I can't really see used to get along without This is only one of the many expressions of gratitude which are being continually given to these noble

"I was told to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which I did, and after I had taken fourteen bottles I was permanently cured. It has been a year since I stopped taking your medicine and it has never appeared since. How different to-day; a patient operated on antiseptically in the Hospitals, with all the latest appliances and subsequent dressings and attendance given by trained and skilled hurses. Is it any wonder that his chances of recovery are immeasurably greater than they possibly could have greater than they possibly could have been before the advent of the Hospi-tals. So, in such diseases as typhoid fever, pneumonia, diphtheria, scarlet let, and in fact any serious affection whatever, hospital treatment administered by competent nurses under the instruction of a physician, will give much more satisfactory results than could be possibly expected were these diseases treated in a private house. Chatham is in the district of the London diocese. Somewhere in the neighborhood of 1889 the Sisters of the Roman Catholic Church realized the fact that a Hospital was greatly needed in Chatham. They at once en-tered enthusiastically into the scheme and it was not long before one was established on Centre street. Sisters were sent here from London to con-duct the institution. About the year 1891 it was found that the work too great to be carried on in the Centre St. building, and then it was deided to build on the site where the fine St. Joseph's Hospital now stands It is a very modern and up-to-date building and is supplied with all of the latest improvements and modern conveniences. Last May it was de-cided to build an extension on the west wing. The opening of this new addition was held on October 2nd last and was marked by services both afternoon and evening.

The new wing which has been added to the hospital has been gotten up on the latest and most modern style. Its dimensions are 44x22 feet and two stories high. It is provided with six private rooms and two wards for children and poor patients.

In thins wing has also been built one of the finest, if not the finest, operating rooms to be found in Canada. It measures 15x17 feet and is 14 feet high, and is fitted up with what is known as a mosaic floor, made out of square tiling, also white enameled walls and a wainscotting made of glazed tiling three feet high, extending all around the room. The skylight measures 8x8 feet, as also does both windows, so that the room is provided with plenty of light. Off this, are also the sterilizing rooms

The other rooms of the hospital are very comfortably furnished and conveniently situated. Five bath rooms are placed in different localities through the building and a large sunbath room is placed over the new addi-The contagious wards are situated at the rear of the main build-

The past results in opera-tions, critical or otherwise, mortally, have been equal, if not better, than those of any other hospital in the Province. What will be the result Province. What will be the result with the new operating room as yet remains to be seen.

The hospital staff is in charge of Mother Superior and Miss Berhorst, the head nurse. To them is largely due the success to which the hospital has attained. The total number of nurses engaged there is ten.

very unique circumstances. The thought was first suggested after a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Chatham Loan & Savings Com-pany, in the room at the rear of the company's office on King street, in the year 1890. S. This decision was reached by th doctor's friends as a result of the resolution of the Conservatives not to enter the lists at the bye-election. ## NEGLECT

If the tooth aches the owner goes to a dentist; if the stomach, he goes to the doctor; if his corn hurts he goes to a chiropodist, but if his eye aches he blames it to overwork or perhaps to a cold in the head.

A man in New York who once had good eyesight but turned blind offerad $1,000,000 to have his sight restored. We do not know what the diag-onsis of the case is, but as the offer has been pending for a long time, and the man is still sightless, we presume he is permanently blind. Perhaps his eyesight could not have been saved, but it is an undeniable fact that many are blind and many others are practically so whose sight could have been preserved by the early attention of a reliable optician. He was like hundreds of other people of the present day and who are troubled with a dull headache, which they blame to overwork, study, or perhaps to being up late the night before. There are others who complain of objects being dull, and again there are people who see specks floating in the air like dust, which is not dust, but eye trouble. These troubles can all be relieved by consulting E. J. MacIntyre, Chatham's reliable Op-tician, who uses all the latest methods for treating these troubles.

The Church of England

County of Kent

ing the Text of an interesting Address Delivered by Judge Woods to the Young People's bociety of Christ Church.

At the request of our highly esteemed Rector, I have prepared an address for the happy commemorative occasion of the erection of Christ Church, on its 0th anniversary.

To review the annals of a parish. overing one half a century and more, s not an unmixed pleasure, for the retrospect in some aspects must necespain, while in others it affords ground for much congratulation and encouragement to future effort and service, knowing that our labor shall not be in the string of May, 1792, the memorable year in which our government of Upper Canada was organized, Kent enjoyed the great privilege and blessing of having a branch of the Moravina Church established within her limits. The government granted in the limits. sarily be suggestive of sorrow and vain in the Lord.

While in this instance we shall have o extend our parochial horizon beyond the present county of Kent and even beyond our national boundary, we shall, while finding a very primitive state of things, be brought to see quite an advanced civilization in this western world at that early day. By Wolfe's glorious victory at Quebec on the 13th, of September, 1759, the capitulation of Montreal on the 3rd of September, 1760, and the surrender of Detroit, on the 8th of the same month, Canada came to us, extending to Hudson Bay on the north , the Ohio River on the south, and the Mississippi m the west.

Kent has a remarkable and exceptional history. It formed a part of the District of Hesse, which Lord Dorchester, the governor-general by proclamation, issued from the castle of St. Louis, in the City of Quebec, on the 24th of July, 1788, set apart as the fifth of five districts into which he divided Canada. Governor Simcoe in his proclamation from Kingston, on the 15th of October, 1792, divided Upper Can-ada into nineteen counties and renamed the District of Hesse the Western district. Kent, as one of these, and the last one named, included all the country from Hudson Bay to the Ohio, and Mississippi, and Detroit and Mackinac were the seats of our courts. Detroit was the county town of Kent. and at Detroit the members of Kent to Parliament were elected. Here we had our forts and courts and as this was nearly one hunired years afterthe settlement of Detroit by Cadillac, commemorated on so grand a scale in Detroit last July, there, were there a good portion of the army, merchants, doctors and clergy, but for a time no lawyers, strange to say. How the com munity got along without these ornaments to society, I will leave you to judge, as I am too partial to the graternity to express an unbiased opin-Here were the clergy of the l man Catholic Church, and they had their church, and my good mother, Point above who was born at Grosse the city, was baptized there—as her mother before her had been, and all her sisters were, for they were Catholics, while her father and brother were Procestants. There were many Proestant families there, and the Proestant merchants were numerous and wealthy. As there was always a strong military force, no doubt an rmy chaplain was among them. The first ordained clergyman the Church of England in this part of the province and west of what is now Niagara, was the Rev. Richard Pollard who was made deacon in 1801 and ordained priest in 1802, by the Bishop of Quebec. We see him in many capacities in our county. He was sheriff of Essex and Kent in 1793, and Registrar of the Surrogate Court in 1794, and then judge of surrogate in 1801. In July, 1796, when the exodus of the British from Detroit took place under Jay's treaty, of those who preferred the meteor flag of England to the Stars and Stripes, he came over with them, and as we see, was made deacon the year he was appointed judge of surrogate for Essex and Kent. On his ordination he was appointed missionary to Sandwich and Amherstburg and no doubt discharged his missionary work throughout both counties, and extended it to his former nome, (Detroit), where we read of him as officiating in the Protestant Episcopal church there and where his memory is cherished by a memorial window in St. Paul's church of that city. He continued Rector of Sandwich till his death, and his tablet in the Sandwich church, says he died in 1824. I had the bonor to be baptized by him. I have no doubt that looking back t his active and varied official and inisterial life, that he did the work of the lay reader, and officiated at baptisms, burials, marriages and other offices of thechurch, during his stay in Detroit, Sandwich and Amherstburg, and the regions thereabout; and his patriotism and goodness are testified to by his having been made a prisoned of war in 1812, and of the kindly way in which he is mentioned by the Americans for his treatment of the Am

"That down to the close of the war of 1812-15 there were but four resident clergymen or missionaries of the Church of England in all Upper Canada, and that till 1818 there was but one clergyman, of the Church of Scotland in Upper Canada, and that in 1827 there were but two."

THE MORAVIAN CHURCH.

It is interesting to note here that on the 8th day of May, 1792, the memtion of the township of Orford to them As is well known this is the oldest Protestant church in the world, being three-quarters of a century older than Luther's. It is an Episcopal church, and has a beautiful liturgy similar to our own. It did good work in the early days of Keni's history, both be-fore and after the departure from Detroit. The late Mr. Abraham Holmes, the father of our worthy friend Dr. Holmes, of this congregation, was baptized at the Moravian Mission, and the church, throughout the world maintains its character as the greatest Missionary Church for its numbers in the world. It, had its centennial-the first in Kent-in May, 1892, at which I was present, and of which I made a pamphlet report.

GOVERNOR SIMCOE'S PROCLAMA TION.

Another adjunct to the church in Kent was the celebrated proclamation of that noble Christian and chruchman, Governor Simcoe, for the suppression of vice, profaneness and immorality, addressed to the people of the Province, and which, no doubt, did so much towards making our people religious, intelligent, loyal, law-abiding and Sabbath-observing people that they have always been and, please God, will concinue to be. This proclamaion was first read in our courts in Detroit and Mackinac and continued to be so through many years. "Whereas, it is the indispensable duty of all people, and more especially of all Christian nations, to preserve and advance the honor and service of Almighty God, and to discourage and suppress all vice, profaneness and im-morality, which if not timely prevented may justly draw down the Divine vengeance upon us and our country. And His Majesty, having for the pro-motion of virtue and in tenderness to the interests of his subjects, given command for causing all laws made against blasphnemy, profaneness, adulsion of and the church built before tery, fornication, polygamy, incest, the patent issued by 10 or 12 years. profanation of the Lord's Day, swearing and drunkenness, to be strictly put in execution in every part of the Province, I do, therefore, direct, require and command the peace officers. and constables of the several towns and townships, to make presentment upon oath, of any of the vices before mentioned, to the justices of the peace in their section, or to any of the other temporal courts. And for the more effectual proceeding herein, all judges, against crimes and offences into execujustices and magistrates, and all other officers concerned for putting the laws tion are directed and commanded to exert themselves for the due prosecution and punishment of all persons who shall presume to offend in any of the kinds aforesaid; and also of all per-sons that contrary to their duty, shall be remiss or negligent in putting the said laws into execution. And I do further charge and command, that the proclamation be publickly read in all courts of justice on the first day of every session to be held in the courts of the present year, and more especially in such of His Majesty's courts as have he cognizance of crimes and offences; recommending the same to all Chrisian ministers of every denomination, to cause the same proclamation to be read four times in the said year, immediately after divine services in all places of public worship and that they do their utmost endeavor to incite their respective auditors to the practice of piety and virtue, and the avoiding of every course, contrary to the pure morality of the religion of the who continued in charge till 1849, holy gospel of Jesus Christ.

Given under my hani and seal at arms, at the Government House, Navy Hall, the eleventh day of April, in the war a refined and cultured gentleman, possessing a fine library, of the plains between this and Sand-tured gentleman, possessing a fine library, of which on its being offeryear of Our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ninety-three, and in the chirty-third year of His Majesty's

When the change took place from Detroit, Kent lost her county town which she never recovered till 1850, when by proclamation Chatham was gazeited as such and still remains so. Sandwich became the county town of the Western District and both it and Amherstburg as a garrison town bad a fair measure of church service. had a fair measure of church service through the Rev. Mr. Pollard and those who followed him. In 1821 the Rev. Dr. Stewart, afterwards Bishop of Quebec, visited Amherst-burg and Sandwich, as did Bishop Monotan in 1833, by whom I was confirmed, his jurisdiction extending to the Pacific Coast. Chatham was laid out by Governor Simcos in 1795, but apart from building a blockhouse, gun boats and other military appurtenances, nothing was done. It began to be settled in the thirties, but besides a store or two and of course, the inn, there was little or no village up to 1835 or so when I first saw it. The steamers run by Mr. Duncan McGregor made the chief business, and the first church built in Chatham was St. Paul's, built on Mc-Gregor's street, called after him and running by his property and was put there no doubt, because with his family and their connections they made the chief part of the congrega-tion apart from the surrounding farmers. Besides McGregor's mill was there, and his house, a most hos-pitable one,—the burial ground was there too.

Christ church, as you see, was not the original church in the town. St. Paul's was built in the early twenties, 1820, 1822, on lots 1, 2, 3 and 4 of the Government survey by subscription among the inhabitants. I have seen a copy of the subscription which bears date 7th January, 1819, and these are the words of it—"We, the undersigned subscribers, promise to deliver flour, wheat or corn to the amount of the sum affixed to names at the current price on the River, on or before the 1st day of June next, to be delivered at Messrs. Arnolds' mill, John Dolsen, Esq., or Chatham mills, which sum of money and produce are to be applied towards erecting an Episcopal Church in Chat-The subscribers are as folham. ham. The subscribers are as fol-lows:—Wm. McCrae $60, Louis A. Macoe $5, Jacob :Dolsen 10 bushels wheat, Hezekiah Wilcox $5, Elizabeth McCrae $5, Ann Smith $10, Isaac L. Dolsen $5, John Peck $5, Francis Drake $10, Geo. Jacob, jr., $5, John Gooce $2, Andrew Hamilton $5, James Forsyth $5, John Laird $5, John Williams $5, Alexander McIntosh $5. Mrs. Margarite McDonnell $25, paid to John Dolsen." A parsonage was erected on the north east of the property on McGregor street. The fact that the patent granting these lots to the church did not issue till 1833 has given rise to a good deal of misunderstanding as to when the church was built, but it is now clear that the land was taken posseswas granted to the Rev. Thomas Morley, first resident missionary, John Dolsen, of Dover, and Duncan

McGregor on 29th April, 1833, by King William the 4th. We have good reason to know that Mr. Morley was in Chatham perhaps only as a missionary, as early as 1822, for 72 years ago he baptized a lady who was long a member of this congregation at the house of her re-lative, Mr. McGregor. Mr. Morley, according to Canon Richardson, came from England to the Grand River Indians in 1822 and remained with them until 1826, and came to Chatham in 1827, and remained till his death at Amherstburg, in 1837, from heart failre. I remember him well, as he occasionally came to Sandwich to preach. He was a man of huge size and I have a distinct recollection how freely he used to perspire under the temperature of the Sandwich church, and especially in the winter with its large stove which stood near the chancel. I rather think he was sent to the Grand River Indians by the New England Society which, up to the present day, maintains its mission there, and which was a mission as early as 1785 to the Mohawks or six nations and which I first saw in 1836. Mr. Morley was succeeded in 1837 by the Rev. Thomas Brock Fuller, who remained here and then went to Thorold and Toronto and ultimately became Bishop of Niagara. gentleman I knew intimately later years while rector of Thorold and of St. George's, Toronto. As his middle name indicates, he was called after the lamented general and was only a Brock but a rock upon ch to rely. While here he had which to rely. While here he had the church ground, which had been granted for the erection of the church on King street in 1833 on the pro-perty now Dr. Duncan's residence, exchanged for what is known as the Glebe between Adelaide and Prince and Murray and Gaol streets, some five and one-half acres, for which the patent was issued on the 6th day of September, 1837. He left in 1840, and was the means of getting Miss Ann Smith to endow the Dover ty by ninety feet, with eighty steps to reach it and no elevators or other in which he is mentioned by the Americans for his treatment of the American soldiers who were captured by the Indians and others.

It is interesting to learn how seant were the Church's influences of that day. At the first session of the Legislature of Upper Canada, 1792, the Hon. Richard Cartwright reports as follows:—"Although the two Lower Districts have had each of them a Protestant elergyman since 1786, it is but the few months since this (Nassau, or Home) District has been provided with one; and the Western District in which the settlement of Detroit is included, is to this day destitute of that useful and respectable order of men, yet the town of Detroit is, and has been since the conquest, inhabited for the most part by traders of the Protestant religion, who reside there with their families.

"In the Western District there are no other clergy than those of the Church of Rome."

The late Bishop Strachan says:—

"The late Bishop Strachan says: modern improvements, rents for $1, In 1840-41 the Rev. Oliver J. Wig-350 per annum. I mention these in stances to show what rents are here, and they will be higher unless some way is provided to relieve the situa-tion, as the city is growing rapidly. "Calcutta is a city of about 800, 000 population, the capital of British India. The residence of the vice roy, as well as of the officers of the secretariat and the officials con with the government, with their thousands of employes, but without one first-class hotel. During the cold season the native princes and other wealthy citizens of India visit Calcutta, besides tourists from every part of the world; hotels are so crowded that it is almost impossible to seture rooms at any price, and tents are put on the roofs for the accommodation of guests. I know of no place where first-class hotels are more needed or would bring better returns on the investments than in Calcutta." one first-class hotel. During the cold

He was a refined and cultured gentleman, possessing a fine brary, of which on its being offered for sale at auction by the administrator at Windsor, I bought several valuable works, which helped me much in my subsequent reading and influenced largely my line of study. He was followed by the Rev. Francis William Sandys, who came to this country from Ireland as a missionary and who for the previous four years had been travelling as such along the Lake Shore road between Dunwich, Middlesex, and Mersea, Essex. He came to Chatham in July 1819, which was most acceptable to him. He bore was most acceptable to him. He bore the prestige of a name distinguish-ed in English History, alike in Church and State, in Literature, Travel and Science. Edwin Sandys, Archbishop of York 1519-1588; Sir Edwin Sandys son of the Archbishop, 1561-1629, Politician and Author, and closely connected with our colonies in America George Sandys, brother of Sir Ed-win, traveller and translator and George Sandys, brother of Sir Ed-win, traveller and translator and contributor to Geography and Ethno-logy, and, in his own person, Mr. Sandys illustrated much of his here-ditary instincts. He was fond of gardening, of horses and of shooting, and here could indulge all his tastes with great satisfaction to himself and and pleasure to others—he acquired a good property in the neighborhood of the church, erected a comfortable house, soon had trees, fruits and flow-ers in abundance and with his gun ers in abundance and with his gun not only provided himself with game but with the taste and skill of the taxidermist and artist, filled his handsome cases with the finest of our native birds and animals. marriage soon followed and his life in Chatham seemed to be all that he could wish. In 1860, through his friend and patron Bishop Cronyn he was offered one of the three degree of D. D. at the disposal of the Ar bishop of Canterbury, which he accepted, but for which he had to pay fees amounting to nearly £100 and thus became entitled to be and was thus became entitled to be and was called, Doctor. It is a mistake to say as the Canadian Churchiman states that Dr. Sandys went in person to Canterbury for his degree, he neither went to England nor Ireland after coming to Canada. In 1866 he was appointed Archdeacon of Huron by the late Right Rev. Benjamin Cronyn, first Lord Rishop of Huron. Dr. first Lord Bishop of Huron. Dr. Sandys was of commanding presence, of popular manners, with a kind genial fund of humor and anecdote. a sound Evangelical preacher and a most instructive expositor of scrip-true—the Atonement—and kindred doctrines. He was an excellent readdoctrines. He was an excellent reader and a smooth agreeable speaker in the pulpit, always leaving the hearer interested and instructed on the subject of his exposition. He never varied from the same plain, clear, unadorned and logical line of address and without the least change from one year's end to the other, and without any emotion or gesture whatever under any circumstances—was es-sentially sound and never toyed with ritualism or High churchism, and used to tell the story of the Archbishop of

ON THE DEATH TRAIL OF THE GREAT TECUMSEH

Thad S. Arnold, Toronto, Son of Frederick Arnold, Kent Bridge, Adds to Canadian History. He Tells About the Last Hours and Death of Tecumseh and Exposes Fallacies.

Tecumseh, I am aware that I undertake no ordinary task, for there are as many contradictory accounts of the manner and circumstances of his death as there have been writers upon the subject, and although his death occurred in a neighborhood which was fairly well settled at the time, the actual occurrences of that day are, to many students of Canadian history, still shrouded in mystery. My facilities for gathering together the facts in connection with the death, of Tecumseh and the battle of the Thames have been exceptional, in that my grandfather, Captain Christopher Arnold, born in 1774, had lived since boyhood on his farm about six miles from the scane of the battle, and from the scene of the battle, besides having been intimately quainted with Tecumseh in the rious campaign in the vicinity of Maumee, had been in consultation with him at his house the afternoon and night before the battle, and was on the battle ground shortly after his death, I remember well a number of times, when out hunting with my father, that he would, whole ting down to rest, repeat to many oft told incidents that he had gathered in reference to that memor able man, Tecumseh, and the manner of his death. All these things are as fresh in my memory as if told me but yesterday

EARLY DAYS. Tecumseb was born near where Springfield, Ohio, now stands, and was the fourth son of a family of seven, his parents being of the Shaware: Tribe, having a tribal dis-tinction of the totum of the turtle He was an athletic Indian, abno mally strong in both body and mind and is thought to have been born or about the year 1768. Tecumsel spent most of his life at war. His first battle was fought when he was only 17 years of age with some Ken-tuckians on Mud River, Ohio. From this date to the beginning of the war of 1812 he was continually at war in some part of the country until his fame became as wide as the continent on which he lived. He always dis-played great skill and bravery in the pattle and suffered stoically and with out a murmur. When the war of 1812 broke out, Tecumseh, who had by this time gathered about him about 1,000 Indians, threw in his lot with the British and succeeded in rendering great assistance in several battles. He was with General Brock at the surrender of Hull and was presented by the General with a sash as an evidence of his bravery. far what I have written is a matter well known in history as are the accounts of the movements of eral Proctor and Tecumseh. After the repulse of the forces under Gen-After eral Proctor at Fort Stephenson, the British sailed across while Tecumseh with his followers marched around the lake joining forces at Malden. From this time to the death of Tecument, Proctor seems to have lost heart, refusing to face the Americans even when urged by the brave Te-cumsel to do so. One position after another was abandoned, much to the isgust of the Indian Chief, until a stand was known in a spot known as "Tecumseh Park," Chatham; but when the Americans approached, Proctor retreated, leaving a rear guard of Indians to check the Kentuckians. As a dash was made for the bridge which spanned McGregor's Creek the Indians fired, killing three Americans, and it is said several Indians were killed, one of whom, a high in Tecumseh's favor, was finally buried near where the dwelling of D. R. Van Allen now stands. The rear guard of Indians were forced to retire up the river and in pass-ing burnel McGregor's grist mill.

FROM FRENCH HIVER

A Story Told by Mr. Samuel clark which Will interest Many People.

Mr. Samuel Clark, of French River Ont., has for two years lived anything but a happy life. Every thing was pleasant with him, but his health was bad. Dyspepsia pains worried him until he was sick. He tried many remedies but could get no relief.

At last, encouraged by the advice of friend he commenced the use of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets and after a short time was delighted to find that his condition was improved. The re-lief was almost instantaneous. He was almost instantantous. continued the treatment until he had used altogether six boxes, and since then, although he had exercised little or no care in his diet, he has never had the slightest symptom of the return of Dyspepsia.

Mr. Clark's experience will, indeed be grateful news to many people, who, like him, have been tortured almost to desperation by stomach trouble, His letter reads as follows:-

"I had been troubled with dyspepsia for over two years and had tried various remedies without relief, I used six boxes of Dodda's Dyspepsia Tablets according to directions and they have effected in me a permanent cure.

*************** In writing a history of the death of | Tecumseh rode swiftly to the farm of his old acquaintance, Captain Christopher Arnold, on the river front in Howard, twelve miles from Chat-ham. It was at the residence of Mr. Arnold that the plan of the morrow's battle was arranged. DEATH OF THE CHIEF.

> Several years ago a writer in the Chatham Banner, over the nom de plume of H. L. H., says: "Tweaty. years later, at a point where Mc-Gregor's Creek slips quietly into the Thames, there existed a small cluster of rude log houses, surrounded by the usual stockade. This was Chatham of a century ago. It was here, on the spot where now stands Tecumseh Park, that one of the most remarkable men that America ever produced the noble Tecumseh, received the wound which led to his death."

Claude Puer, in speaking of the death of Teoumseh, says: "Now resistance was no longer thought of, and the dreadful cries of fugitive and pursuer, every man for himself, quarter to none, mingled in the heavy autumn woods. Urging to greater speed the panic-stricken remnants of Proctor's once victoriou army, all about the flying chieftain and his pale-faced friend, and through the dark seared forest aisles, old war-riors and youths flew blindly forward; none escaped the dreadful spell of panic. Of a sudden the spiteful ping of a rifle bullet rattled through the bare, leafless trees, and Tecumseh, clasping his hand to his already-scarred breast, fell heavily forward, and exclaimed: 'I am dying; leave me and save yourself.' This somewhat eloquent statement lacks the import-ant element of truth. It is no nearer truth than the assertion of Eugene Samlley, who says that Tecumseh met his death at the battle of Tippecanoe, some time before the war of 1812, and permit me to add here that the wounding of the chief at Chatham is purely imaginary, and written, I imagine, at a time when the writer desired to see the monument built in Tecumbeh Park, the spot where the wounding is said to have occurred. W. K. Merrifield gives a lengthy account of the death of Tecumseh as told by Joseph Johnston, a man who lived from childhood with the Indians. His story was as follows: "He, with with other British white traders, had been with the Shawanees and Tecumseh for a long time, and when war with the United States commenced they joined with the Indians on the retreat of the British from Michi-gan to Canada. The Indians were afraid their beloved chief might be killed by treachery, as they knew the inveterate hatred of the Yankees for Texumsel would hesitate at nothing to accomplish his destruction. To to accomplish his destruction. To protect him Joe Johnston, two other chiefs formed themselves into a body guard, and fought around Tecumseh Some time after the rout of Proctor Terumseh was shot through the thigh, and disabled from standing. The bodyguard bound up the wound and et him against a tree some distance in the rear of the fighting line where he could still cheer his warriors and direct the battle. In a flerce charge made by the Yankees the Indians were pressed back to where Tecumseh was seated. A mounted officer, seeing him apparently helpless, dashed to-wards him, yistol in hand, but before he had time to fire Tecumseh threw his tomahawk, hitting him on the side of the face, splitting his head and tumbling him from his horse. The Yankes charge was repulsed, but from fear of another such danger to Tecameen, his bodyguard carried him further to the rear and seated him to de an elm tree, while his war shouts rang through the forest, encouraging his warriors in their des-perate defence against the tremend-ous odds in Harrison's army. All at once these cries ceased. Joe John-ston and the rest of his bodyguard ran to where they had left him, knowing something serious had hap-pened. They found Tecumseh stret-ched in death." Mr. Merrifield then tells of the carrying away of the body, it's burial and the solemn oath taken rever to reveal the spot.

HIS BURIAL PLACE. My father always stated that Joe Johnston was not a trader, neither was he a warrior, and was not with the Indians at Chatham; nor was he with Tecumseh the night before the battle; in short, was not at the battle of the Thames; nor was he ever as-sociated with Tecumseh in any of his undertakings; that he possessed none of the characteristics of a warrior, in fact was unflitted in every way for any martial achievement. quite certain the version of the chief's death given by Mr. Merrifield, if told by Johnston, was simply a creation of his untutored imagination. My father, who knew Johnston well, asked him if he knew where Tecumseh was buried; he answered: "Mr. Arnold, I was too long with the Indians not to know where the chief is buried." Why do you not let us is buried." Why do you not let us know, so we can erect a monument? Johnston replied: "If I told you where he lies, the Yankes would come over and steal his bones, and work his shin bones up into button moulds. Some years later Johnston and my father went to the scene of the battle. Johnston pointed out the spot between two beech trees on when there were markings which Johnston tween two beech trees on which there were markings, which Johnston claimed signified that the Shawanee chief was buried there. Some years after my father tried to find the spot, but failed entirely to locate it, as the land had been cleared and the landmarks all moved. I lately came into possession of a deed made by Joseph Johnston, bearing date 1810. He had purchased the land from Abner Bole some years previously. This proves positively that Johnston lived in Kent County several years before the PLAIN TALK.

To Catarrh Sufferers

breaking out of the war of 1812, and from first to last possibly rever came into contact nor ever had anything to do with Tecumseh or his

so-called bodyguard.

The confidence I place in the story told by my father, I think, is fully warranted by the circumstances surrounding it. Tecumsch and several of his chiefs passed the night of Oct. 3, 1813, at the house of Capt. Arnold. They had two objects in view, first, to prevent the Indians from burning Arnold's mill, as they had done McGregor's mill at Chatham; second, to consult with Captain Arnold as to the plan and place of the battle that Tecumseh was determined to fight before reaching the Indian setlement in Moraviantown.

A COWARDLY BRITON. It was arranged that Tecumseh should watch for the Yankees under a large tree on the road about a half but the chief was on his horse, and the animal was running at full speed. his pursuers. Tecumseh kept to the road until he reached the Hubble farm. He threw a bag-which conrode to the river bank some distance farther up the stream to a spot where a squaw awaited his coming. where a squaw awaited his coming. He at once got into the cance, his white pony swimming by the side, and was quickly passed to the opposite bank, thus throwing his pursuers for a time off the trail. Finally the Kentuckians followed him to the scene of the battle two miles east of of the battle, two miles east of Thamesville. The ground was admir-ably adapted for defence. The British occupied the left wing, protected by the River Thames, while the Indians extended to the right at an angle of 45 degrees behind a bog swamp ex-tending nearly to the bank of the river. There were about 900 Indians and 600 British. Harrison made no delay, but immediately rushed to the attack. Proctor's lines were soon broke a Proctor ordered a retreat to the everlasting disgust of many of his followers. It is said many of the militia, in their rage and disgust at Proctor's want of courage, broke their guns, refusing to obey the order to retreat. When the attack was made the British commander lost his self-possession, as he had already lost his courage. He precipitately left the field in a headlong fight for the camp at Burlington, arriving there with about 240 of his followers. THE BRAVE TECUMSEH. Tecumseh, with his braves, fought desperately, and maintained their ground until the chief fell mortally wounded. At once the cry resounded through the woods, and the Indians wounded. At once the cry resounded through the woods, and the Indians wanished, taking the wounded, possibly then dead, chief with them. The manner of his death was as follows: An American had penetrated to near the tree behind which Tecumseh stood, the chief wounded him and he fell. Tecumseh, with uplifted tomahawk, sprang to finish his fallen officer, but had not reached the spot before a bullet from the pistol of his intended victim pierced a vital spot in his body, and he fell to rise no imore.

Watson, in his history of the United States, page 713, says: "As Harrison rapidly pursued, the British commander determined to meet him, and accordingly posted his army on the right bank of the River Thames, near Moraviantown. Here he was overtaken on Oct. 5 by Harrison. The enemy were thrown into confusion, and they could not be rallied. The Indians stood firm, and a desperate context ensued between them and the mounted Kentuckians, commanded by Col Johnston. Tecumseh cheered his warriors until he was shot dead by an unknown hand."

AN O'ER TRUE TALE. This is the true story of the death of the great Tecumseh. As soon as the Yankees returned after the battle, Captain Arnold, with a few friends, visited the field and buried the dead and assisted the wounded. Andrew Fleming, then a boy of 13, with his father visited the scene of the conflict. Some Kentuckians were skinning an Indian, saying they were going to take Tecumseh's skin to make razor strops. When told that the ekinned Indian was not Tecumseh, ing to take Tecanriseh's skin to make razor strops. When told that the skinned Indian was not Tecannseh, they remarked: "I guess when we get back to Kentucky they will not know his skin from Tecanseh's." When the Americans returned to Arnold's mill, many of them had strips of this skin, scraping it with their long hunting knives. One of them had a lower jaw he was scraping, saying it belonged to Tecanseh. My grandfather, Captain Arnold, afterwards discovered that it belonged to a squaw whom the Yankees afterwards discovered that it be-longed to a squaw whom the Yankees had wantonly shot across the river, four miles from the scene of the battle. A remarkable incident oc-curred at this time, which I think worthy of notice. Mr. Arnold, ap-prehending that the Yankees might burn his mill, took one of the burn his mill, took one of the mill stones out to the woods and hid ft; he then pointed out to them that the mill could not grind, hence it was uncless. In a way he no doubt saved his mill om destruction.

When it is remembered that Capt. Arnold knew Tecumseh well, having been with him at the struggles at the Maumee, that Tecumseh was at Captain Arnold's place and consulting with him during the whole night previous to the battle and ate his last meal at the table of his white bromeal at the table of his white bro-ther, and that as soon as the Americans had retired, visited the battle ground, and to the end of his days delighted to repeat the various incidents connected therewith to my father—when all this is taken into consideration it will not be wondered at that I place entire confidence in the story of the death of Tecumseh as repeated to me so often by my father in times that are gone.

This narrative possesses one merit that is not to be found in many of the accounts written of this event in history, inasmuch as it is firmly be-Leved to be true by the man who writes it.

Has but little to do with the cost of a carriage, but it has everything to do with its appearance. It costs as much to build a very ordinary appearing vehicle as a stylish one, if the same quality of material is used and the same care exercised in its construction. Some carriage builders know how to build stylish vehicles better than other builders; but they do not charge you anything for the "Know how" They charge you only for the material put into it and the labor expended upon it. Thus the quality being equal, two carriages cost the same, even if one of them presents a stylish appearance while the other one is lacking in that qualification.

Long experience, and a keen appreciation of the beautiful in carriages has enabled us to make the choicest of Buggies and Carriages and other vehicles that are in popular demand. We sell them at the same price we would if the stple wasn't there.

********* At the Grand Opera House many many different plays at many different times, but, of them all, no actor has won a warmer place in the hearts of the Maple City theatre-goers than has Walker .Whiteside. . He has been here a number of times and has always proved a warm favorite. His appearance last evening in the title ole of Heart and Sword won for him ncreased approval and success. The mpersonation of the original noneutity Prince Victor and his gradual development into the sturdy characteristics of a strong and vigorous personality were exemplified in an exceptionally successful manner. play is from the pen of J. H. Pen grew, and is entitled to rank with other and better known romantic plays that have scored big successes in recent years. It's title however, is faulty, in that it is unattractive and fails to give a line on the character of the play. The words smack too much of the melodrama with blood curdling climaxes and censational scenes. Mr. Pengrew should rack his clever brain for something better, and he would doubtless find the result financially beneficial.

Heart and Sword was splendidly staged last night, each of the three scenes being Eberally applauded. Mr. Whiteside, as Prince Victor, the easy-going head of the Heinhault principality was finished and artistics. going head of the Heinhaukt principality, was finished and artistic in all that he did, and showed a decided improvement over his work when portraying Shakespearian roles. His wooing scenes with Princess Sylvia (Miss. Wolstan), and his interview with the prime minister of the principality, were charming bits of work, and worthy the best efforts of the and worthy the best efforts of the acknowle leged romantic actors of the present day. Miss Wolstan made a delightful Princess Sylvia, and richly deserved the hearty applause which frequently fell to her lot.

The Shipman Bros. have surrounded Mr. Whiteside with a capable company of players, the only weak spots being found in the gentlemen who portray the prime ministers of Stein-nausen and Heinhault, respectively. Mr. Evart, as a traitor to Prince Victor, is a forceful and clever actor; Mr. Mack, as the private secretary, makes the most of his opportunities, and Mr. Bartram, as the town crier, contributes a very clever bit of character work. Miss Kate Benetau, character work. Miss Kate Benetau, as Ernestime, a court favorite, is a very pretty young woman, and an actress of considerable ability. The remaining characters, with the exception of the two already referred to, were assigned to competent hands. Manager Brisco should be complimented on the comfortable condition of the house, which was all that could be desired.

The attraction at the Grand on Monday evening, O.t. 28th, is Harris & Floyd's production of Hal Reid's latest and best pastoral comedy, "A Homespum Heart," which is by far Mr. Reid's best effort and considered by him to be his masterpiece, and, while might be called a companion play to "Human Hearts," it is said to far exceed it in interest and dramatic construction. There is not a single dull moment in "A Homespun Heart," and all the situations are natural and unusually effective. During the two weeks' engagement of "A Homespun Heart" in Chicago, the play was en-thusiastically received, the critics and public pronouncing it worthy to rank with such well known successes as "Peaceful Valley," "Old Homestead," "Shore Acres," "Way Down East," "Sag Harbor" and good substantial plays of that class. These sort of phys are what our sons and daughters may be allowed to see without pre-judice.

There are only seven notes in music, but out of these seven what enfiless combinations are made and will be True we have a good many appeals from the wardens but the whole amount asked for for the whole year is very little, estimated by the Synod to be $1.00 a year per family or 20 to be $1.00 a year per family or 20 cents per head.
