KENT IS HONORED BY MR. R. L. BORDEN

WORKED A SHREWD DEAL

Chatham young Man Cleans up $593.75 on Detroit Brokers

Used Their Wires In Doing So, And Now They Are After Him

Detective Lombard, of Detroit, arrived in the city this morning, in quest of a local young man, who is wanted in Detroit on a charge laid by the Commercial Stock and Telegraph Company of that city. The charge reads "theft," but to the ordinary person appears to be what the Americans themselves would call a pretty shrewd business deal. As far as can be made out the young man in question, who is well-known and highly respected in this city, was a temporary employee of the Detroit brokers. He was relieving while the regular telegrapher was confined to his home through illness. While engaged in this capacity, the young man made use of the company's wires and put through a deal by which he cleaned up $593.75. His coupe was not discovered until after he had left Detroit. The company claim that he was an employee of theirs, and had no business putting through a deal of this kind for himself, at least that appears to be the case as far as The Planet can ascertain.

The accused is fighting extradition, and has engaged City Solicitor O. L. Lewis and Barrister Ward Stanworth to act for him. A preliminary hearing was given him in Judge Dowling's court in Harrison Hall this morning. County Crown Attorney Smith acting for the prosecution. Bail, consisting of two securities of $800 each, was accepted, and the hearing was adjourned for fifteen days.

A NARROW ESCAPE

While Geo W. Cowan was in Vancouver he had a very narrow escape from death, the peculiar part of which was that he did not even know of his danger until it was all over. He and E. R. Smith, with Mr. Smith's brother, crossed a lake near Vancouver, and when they were ready to come back a heavy sea had arisen. It was with difficulty that they were able to launch their boat, and after they got started the sea became heavier. They were being gradually drawn towards what is called the "rip," an opening at the mouth of the lake, where the sea comes in. They learned afterwards that at this "rip" there is a strong undercurrent which, if the boat had got in it would have sucked the little boat and men and all under the waves with no chance to escape.

Mr. Smith's brother was the only one of the party who knew the danger. By this time the waves were fully four to six feet high, and the boat was being tossed around like a chip on the water. After some very hard rowing, they finally managed to reach the shore in safety. They were told afterwards that every little while some boat is drawn under the water during a storm at this point, and the information did not by any means tend to soothe their nerves.

The ride was exciting enough with the information they did have, and Mr. Cowan says it has cured him of any desire he might have had to be a sailor.

A BIG FEATURE

Quite an interest is being taken in the Floral Parade of autos and vehicles, which will form one of the big attractions at the Fall Fair. The competition will be for a silver cup put up by the directors.

The intention is to have all the owners of autos and carriages compete, and separate prizes will be offered for each. A. D. Westman has charge of the sale of privileges for the Fair, and all persons looking for privileges will do well to apply to him.

SAW BOAT RACE

Officer Peter Dezella, who recently returned from a trip to Saginaw and Bay City, where he was accompanied by his son Frank, is quite enthusiastic over a motor boat race he witnessed in Bay City.

"The race was between the Secret and Arrow," said Officer Dezella, "and if ever you saw anything cut loose and glide over the water, it was those two boats. The Secret won out."

"I was in Saginaw during the Old Home week there, and I enjoyed the festivities very much."

A ROUSING RECEPTION TO CANADA'S FIRST STATESMAN

Enthusiasm Was Unbounded When Mr. Borden Stepped Into The Maple City—Two Bumper Mass Meetings Are Being Held Today

Mr. R. L. Borden, the man who above all others is occupying the attention of the public of Canada at the present time, arrived in the city to-day on the I. I. C. P. R. The train was an hour late, but when Mr. Borden stepped on to the platform he found a large deputation waiting for him, with the heartiest reception ever tendered to a public man in this city.

Among those at the station were innumerable people from the city and the surrounding district. All day long the people poured into the city. The trains from Wallaceburg and Sarnia, Windsor and St. Thomas were packed with people, all bound for the big meeting in the Maple City. It was really wonderful the numbers which came in from Blenheim, Ridgeway, Tilbury, Wallaceburg, Dresden, Thamesville and other towns in the immediate vicinity. It was one of the biggest days that Chatham has seen for years.

At ten minutes after two the Regiment Band, marched from the Garner House to the C. E. R. Depot. At the depot was a very large and as Leader of His Majesty's loyal opposition in the Federal Parliament of this country, and we gladly avail ourselves of this opportunity of assuring you personally of our hearty appreciation of your distinguished services to the country at large and of your leadership of the Conservative party.

During the time of that leadership matters and issues of great moment and far-reaching consequences have come before Parliament, to the discussion of which you have unreservedly given your time and great abilities. Perhaps at no time in the history of our country has there been greater occasion for high purposes and unselfish devotion to the common weal on the part of our statesman than at the present, and you have shown yourself to be a noble example on such occasions to follow.

We value your services rendered to the Conservative party, but we still more highly appreciate your earnest endeavors to raise the whole tone of public life in Canada.

You and your followers have persistently and ably fought against crowd of people waiting to catch a sight of the next Premier of the Dominion. Automobiles were in waiting to take him and his party to the Opera House, where already a large crowd was waiting for the meeting to commence. Those who kindly loaned autos for the occasion were Messrs. Manson Campbell, J. T. O'Keefe, Dr. Holmes, Mr. Draw, Mr. Chaplin and others. The band gave several selections while the crowd was waiting for the train to arrive.

Among those who were waiting to receive Mr. Borden were, J. M. Pike, President of the Liberal-Conservative Association of West Kent, S. B. Arnold, Secretary, H. S. Clements, M. P., Geo. W. Sulman, P. H. Bowyer, M. P. P., and many other prominent Conservative supporters and workers.

When the train arrived the air was rent with cheers, which lasted for several minutes. A procession was formed, which, headed by the band proceeded straight to the Opera House, where the afternoon meeting was immediately commenced. At the opening of the meeting Mr. Borden was presented with an address, which read as follows:

To Robert L. Borden, Esq., K. C., M. P.:

"We have great pleasure in welcoming you on this your second visit to our flourishing city of Chatham, and trust that your brief stay will be pleasant for yourself and your associates."

"We have watched with great interest your career as a Statesman and the National Treasury by, or through the assistance of, those high up in Governmental office; and you have struggled to bring about a higher moral life on the part of those governing this Christian land. In these efforts you will undoubtedly be supported by the independent electors of the Dominion regardless of party affiliations."

We are in entire accord with the platform of the Conservative Party in the Dominion as enunciated by you in your speech at Halifax; and we admire the straightforward manner in which you stand with the great question of Civil Service Reform, as we regard the system at present applied at Ottawa a powerful means of corrupting the electorate through depriving the many voters seeking office of their independence, and preventing such voters from expressing by their ballots, their true opinion of the Government of the day.

We assure you that, when at the next general election the people of Canada will entrust the Government of the country to your hands, you will find a representative of Kent in Parliament to support you in your proposed reforms."

We hope you may be long spared to fight the battles for a pure Government, and that you will visit us again, if not previously, when at the next opportunity given to the electorate you shall have been placed in the exalted position for which you are so well-fitted."

S. B. ARNOLD, Secretary.

POLICE COURT

Frank Hawkins, a travelling veterinary surgeon, who says that he hails from a place near Toronto, dropped in at Police Court this morning, and in loud and excited tones announced that he had been robbed last night while sleeping in a Wellington street west restaurant.

Hawkins says that he had between five and six dollars in his trousers pockets last night before he went to sleep. He says that he was afraid to sleep in the bed for fear of vermin, so he slept on the floor all night. This morning when he got up, he says, his money was all gone. He could not give sufficient evidence for the swearing out of a warrant, and the police are, as a result, unable to act.

"You'll have me up in the Police Court soon, then," was his parting announcement. "I have a pretty good idea as to who the man is who stole my money, and he will have to try conclusions with me."

A summons from Col. Denison's court in Toronto was served on J. W. White, of this city, this morning. The summons charges assault, but gives no further particulars.

A GOOD INVESTMENT

Mr. Albert E. Jacks, a special representative of Northwest lands, is in the city to-day interesting the people of Chatham in residential property in Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan.

It is well-known fact that Moose Jaw is making more progress and real advancement than any other four cities combined in Saskatchewan. Mr. Jacks himself was successful in selling $35,000 worth of lands in Moose Jaw last month. The people generally look upon it as being one of the very best investments in the West.

Mr. Jacks will be here for a week and the special property which he is offering for sale is in Rotherham Park, a fine residential district, situated one-half mile from the centre of the city. There is no doubt that he will find many Chathamites willing and anxious to take advantage of this excellent investment.

Full particulars concerning this proposition may be found by referring to page five of to-day's issue.

 EXPOSURE OF EATABLES.

Dr. Charteris brought up a very important matter at the Health Board meeting on Tuesday, when he drew attention to the improper and disgusting unsanitary practice of some fruit dealers and grocers, in exposing their wares on the public streets.

Time after time comment has been made upon this revolting menace to public health, and it is indeed time that something were done. The thought that food offered for sale in the city streets is being daily exposed on public thoroughfares, where it has an excellent opportunity to gather the dust, dirt and disease germs, which it is impossible to keep from such places, is certainly not a very pleasant or comforting one, and yet such conditions are unquestionably evident to the observant pedestrian in the Maple City.

There is no doubt that the authorities have heretofore been almost criminally negligent in this respect, and it is a source of satisfaction to every ratepayer that the Health Board has taken the matter up in earnest. It is the sincere hope that they will continue their efforts until reform is instituted which will overcome this nuisance.

As a result of Dr. Charteris' strongly expressed opinions in this regard, the City Clerk will write to Toronto to ascertain what regulations are in force there. Other cities will be communicated with, if necessary, in order to procure complete information which will enable the Board to draw up an effective and workable by-law. Every clause in it should be made as strong as possible. This by-law will be then submitted to the Council for their approval and assistance, and there is no doubt that that body will not only see that it is passed, but also that it is rigidly enforced.

A LEADERLESS PARTY.

While the Grit papers have been uttering felicitations over the entrance of Mr. Graham into the Dominion Cabinet they have quite carefully ignored the circumstance that the course of that gentleman has left the Liberal party in Ontario without a leader.

Mr. Graham has been described as a splendid find for that position and people were told that he had the qualities which would speedily restore the fortunes of the party in Ontario. If so it was somewhat of a selfish move for Sir Wilfrid Laurier to reach out after him, and somewhat of an abandonment of his associates for Mr. Graham to accept.

Meanwhile the fact remains, as the Brantford Courier points out, that Ontario Liberals are floundering along without any leader and that there is not enough time now left before the general contest to enable Mr. Graham's successor to take hold with the slightest prospect of getting more than a corporal's guard.

Hail to the next Premier!

The grafters are not cheering today!

Chatham is fortunate in receiving a visit from the most applauded man in the Dominion to-day.

Mr. Borden has been received with enthusiasm in Quebec. Now he speaks in Ontario, and it goes without saying that he will be warmly greeted. By Mr. Whitney the machine has been vanquished and clean government has been given in this province. Mr. Borden will do at Ottawa what Mr. Whitney has done in provincial politics—Mail and Empire.

Mr. Borden sounds, in his program, the death-knell of graft, says the Mail and Empire. If the money of the country be honestly expended and the audit be made perfect, the day of the "rake-off" will have passed. Nor will there be much use for corruption when the opportunity to rob the Treasury has been lost. Men will not subscribe to reptile funds when they know that they cannot get their money back by way of steals from the public chest.

All parts of the country are eager to see Mr. Borden. The Sudbury Mining News puts the situation well when it says that the people want to hear the leader, not because thrilling eloquence is in demand, but because there is a desire to have at the head of affairs a sound and honest business man. "Mr. Borden," says the News, "is a big man intellectually; he is thorough-going business man in a twofold suit; he is always gentlemanly; he is open and above board, and his character and honesty are above suspicion."

The Sarnia Canadian says that Mr. Borden has struck a popular note, and remarks: "In the history of this Dominion, as of this Province, it has always been the party of real progress. The Reformers have talked of doing things; it is the Conservatives who have done them. So it was during the years of Conservative rule in the Dominion; so it has been in these recent years of Conservative rule in Ontario. Mr. Whitney and his colleagues have put through more measures of real reform in their few years of office than stand to the credit of the Liberals during the whole third of a century during which they ruled Ontario."

DON'T USE GREASY LINIMENTS.
 A century ago they were popular. To-day people want something easy to apply, certain in results, and, above all, a clean liniment. When Nerviline is applied aches and pains disappear as the pores absorb its soothing, healing properties. Nerviline penetrates to the core of the pain, eases instantly, and leaves no oily, bad-smelling memory behind. Good to take in, capital to rub on, and five times more powerful in destroying pain than any oily liniment. Don't fail to get a large 25c. bottle.

SLEEP AND DEATH.

Neither Pain Nor Consciousness at the Instant of Either.

The phenomenon called sleep may be summed up in the following proposition, says a writer in the Cosmopolitan:

First—Sleep is temporary death of the functions of the sensitive system, due to exhaustion by fatigue.

Secondly—This death is temporary because the vital system continues to perform its functions during sleep and restores the sensitive organs to their normal condition.

For our purpose death may be considered under the three heads—natural death, sudden death and death from disease. Natural death is death from old age. It differs from natural sleep only in degree.

The gradual loss of sensibility by the sensitive organs which precedes sleep, now takes place in the vital system, and all the organs pass into permanent sleep together. There can be no pain preceding or at the moment of such a death, any more than there is pain preceding or at the moment of passing into temporary sleep.

Sudden death may be defined as death due to a sudden injury from without or within the body sufficient to destroy at once all irritability of both the sensitive and vital systems. It requires no argument to prove that a person who is suddenly stricken dead can suffer no pain. The element of time must be present in order to suffer physical pain, and in the sudden death of a person the element of time is absent.

We come now to consider the third and by far the most frequent form of death—namely, death from disease.

As soon as disease is established, dying begins, which is but a more rapid than natural ceasing of all sensibility, accompanied with more or less suffering, according to the cause which produces it. This dying and suffering, called disease, most terminate either in so-called death, which is insensibility, or in recovery, which is recovery of the state of life. But in many cases the suffering has been so great, up to the moment of the final termination in death or recovery, that the patient is conscious of or can recall the moment he passes from waking to natural or temporary sleep. Now shall we, by a "supreme agony" or in any other way, be conscious of passing into permanent sleep?

Being born and dying are the two most important physiological events in the life history of our bodies, and we shall know no more about the latter event at the time it occurs than we did about the former.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

Anybody has a good job who might get a worse.

Life may be a tough conundrum, but nobody wants to give it up.

The lightness of a man's conversation is no indication of the brilliancy of his intellect.

A man considers any woman charming who lauds his good qualities and ignores his bad ones.

If women were as willing as men to let things slide the man would soon be noticing that things are mighty slippery.

Figures may not lie; but, carefully padded, they are calculated to deceive.

It isn't recorded that the oil on troubled waters was Standard.

A skillful flatterer never wants for material or lacks results.

We all admire a ready liar and love a cheerful one.

When common sense takes vacation, anything is likely to happen.

A woman is ever equally ready to make peace or to raise a disturbance.

The Secret Out.

You wonder what is happiness And where it may be found. Is it in learning, wealth or love That makes the world go round? I'll tell you if you want to know, Since you have asked the question, True happiness, the standard brand, Comes with a good digestion.

There are no hidden, mystic springs To touch and set it free. No lamp to rub and bring it down Like apples from a tree. Just do not eat the things that raise A roughness with your liver; You'll be as happy as a clam That thinks it owns the river.

Some schools will tell you thinking so Will chase away the blues And bring you happiness just like A paper brings the news. But you will find that will not work In every kind of weather. Unless, perchance, you can digest A breakfast made of leathers.

If you would find true happiness, Just drive away every inch, Just drive away every speck, And it will be a cinch. Get your digestion so it works All day long without a hitch. And you will be as full of joy As lakes are full of water.

Before and After.

He called her sweetheart, love and pet. When he was out to get her. But later on he let them drop. For then he knew her better.

Where They Grew.

"Too bad," said the first summer boarder. "We can't have any fresh country vegetables for dining today."

"What's the matter?" asked the second summer boarder. "Didn't the farmer have time to pick them?"

"No, it isn't that. The express train bringing out the canned goods from the city is four hours late."

Nothing to Improve.

"So Biffins has been disappointed in love."

"Yes, the girl turned him down."

"But he is a model young man—doesn't smoke or drink or associate with doubtful company."

"That was just the matter. There wasn't a thing that he could give up for her sake."

Found It Useful.

"He discovered his only daughter out walking with a runner for a hotel."

"I suppose there was something doing."

"Well, the runner lived up to his calling."

Resurrection.

Thistle-down, thistle-down, Floating into country town From the hillside far away. Can you find no place to stay?

Buttercup, buttercup, From the brookside looking up. All the gold of summer skies In your shining chalice lies.

Clover bloom, clover bloom, Wake my heart with your perfume, Whisper love of to-morrow days And of green and shady ways.

(Lower, thistle, buttercup, Stir the drowsy memory up; Backward slip the years, and then Youth and childhood live again.)

A Substitute.

"The old man couldn't find his umbrella, and he had to go away without it."

"Did it rain?"

"No, but he had a brain storm."

"PALACE GIRL" SHOT.

Mysterious Death of London Favorite in South America.

Miss Lily Parker, who created some sensation in London a few years ago as a member of the dancing troupe known as the "Palace Girls," has been found shot in Buenos Ayres under mysterious circumstances.

The troupe was offered a tour in South America, and set out for Buenos Ayres in the early part of 1906. The troupe returned, leaving Miss Parker behind. They informed her mother that in October last the MISS LILY PARKER, young dancer married a South American millionaire.

Miss Parker had not been in South America long before she wrote to her married sister in London, saying that she had "met a boy who was awfully good" to her. She said he had bought her a motor-car. She wrote regularly to her parents up to February 18 last. A week later Miss Parker received a cutting from a Buenos Ayres paper stating that her daughter had shot herself through the chest in her room, and expired before medical assistance could reach her.

In her letters to her parents the deceased never made allusions to her marriage. "She told us in her letters," said her mother, "that she had lovely jewels and dresses, and one of the girls who was out there with her said you couldn't see her for diamonds. Lily was not the sort of girl to kill herself. She was a come back shortly to fulfil a four years' contract in Drury Lane pantomime."

Miss Parker's brother is in communication with the Argentine Minister in London, and efforts are to be made to solve the mystery of the girl's death.

MOOSE JAW

If an opportunity presents itself to you to invest in property of the most REAL type---in a most REAL city, in the great Canadian West---a city as REAL as the GROUND upon which you stand or the AIR you breathe---what would you do with such an opportunity? Would you be impractical enough to refuse to purchase real estate in a city the prosperity of which is based on good old MOTHER EARTH? Would you not buy the EARTH that grows the GOLDEN WHEAT that not alone FEEDS mankind, but cries out, that all the world might know, "I PRODUCE YOUR DAILY BREAD. MY TOWNS MUST GROW---MANUFACTURING INDUSTRIES MUST COME TO ME." Would you not consider Real Estate in THAT coming city as solid as the Rock of Gibraltar---would you not invest there in some REAL PROPERTY? If you are a person of good, hard, common sense, YOU WOULD!

MOOSE JAW IS EXACTLY SUCH A CITY, MOOSE JAW IS THE FAVORITE CHILD OF THIS VERY MOTHER EARTH---THE EARTH THAT GROWS THE WHEAT THAT BRINGS THE INDUSTRIES.

Reasons--Hard Facts--Why You Should Invest In Moose Jaw Real Estate:

- I. Moose Jaw is 400 miles from Winnipeg, just half-way between Winnipeg and the Rocky Mountains.
- II. Moose Jaw is the main C. P. R. passenger and freight division point between Winnipeg and the Rockies.
- III. Moose Jaw is the "pet child" of the C.P.R., and is constantly being assisted and backed up to the utmost by that gigantic corporation. (Or do you, as a sensible person, think that the C. P. R. would help a helpless city, with no resources of its own to sustain either life or growth?)
- IV. Moose Jaw's roundhouse, next to that of Winnipeg in size, has continually been added to for the past few years, until to-day the pay roll of Moose Jaw's machine shops alone has reached a total of $100,000 per month.
- V. Moose Jaw is the western terminus of the "Soo" line of the C.P.R., running direct from St. Paul, Minn., and is the eastern terminus of the Moose Jaw-Edmonton branch now under construction. (As to projected and rumored railroads soon to come, with Moose Jaw as the centre, they are without number, and we won't mention them.)
- VI. Moose Jaw is by the very nature of things a coming manufacturing city. Contributing to Moose Jaw is a rich agricultural district comprising a million and a half acres of the richest land in Western Canada; but some eight million acres of virgin land immediately south of the land area now contributing to Moose Jaw has never yet been surveyed---land highly suitable for grazing and ranching purposes. Moose Jaw offers, therefore, the best locations in Western Canada for meat packing (and industries practically associated therewith---soap factories and tanneries), because the cry in Canada to-day is, "Down with the 'Jungle'! Give us packing industries---Canadian meat---products clean, pure and wholesome. And do you think that as Canada grows this natural demand of our young nation will not be answered and fulfilled? Already it is taking form, for the Great Northern (J. J. Hill) and other roads have indicated their intention to build into Moose Jaw---can't you see their purpose? Thus, Moose Jaw, with its excellent railroad facilities even now, must naturally become to Eastern and Western Canada what Kansas City is to the United States---the great packing house town of the west.

AN EASY INVESTMENT

To sum up: It will pay YOU handsomely to invest in Moose Jaw, because in spite of its present, and immeasurably greater future, Moose Jaw is, considering its population, the smallest and most compact town site in the great Canadian west. Why? Because Moose Jaw has never had a "boom," and prices of Real Estate in Moose Jaw are lower than those of any other city of Moose Jaw's population (10,000) on the continent. Moose Jaw's future has not been discounted---Can you, then, think of a better time to buy than NOW?

Rothesay Park

If you invest in such a city as Moose Jaw---the real city in Western Canada---then invest in ROTHESAY PARK.

If you will ask any impartial person who understands Moose Jaw what sort of property Rothesay Park is, you will hear that Rothesay Park is the best residential property in Moose Jaw at the present time---and the cheapest---it is within one-half mile from the heart of the city. You will hear that this city is growing in the direction of Rothesay Park faster than Moose Jaw is growing in any other direction. You will learn that more money can be made by the working man who would buy a few of these lots, or by the capitalist who would buy many, than can be made in any other way short of stealing---a doubtful expedient in any case.

The Canada Flour Mills have raised the price of wheat from 82 cents to 87 cents standard. The raise was made yesterday and was done in order to bring the wheat in in large quantities. The mills are finding it hard to get sufficient grain to keep them going and thus the price was raised to cause a greater quantity of the grain to be brought in. All over the province the mills are running steady and if they do not get sufficient grain the price will be raised again. If it comes in in large quantities the probability is that the price will be lowered.

WEAK, SICKLY PEOPLE

Will Find New Strength Through the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

A great many young men and women are suddenly seized with weakness. Their appetite fails them; they tire on the least exertion, and become pale and thin. They do not feel any specific pain—just weakness. But this weakness is dangerous. It is a sign that the blood is thin and watery; that it needs building up. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will restore lost strength because they actually make new rich blood—they help you. Concerning them Mr. Alfred LePage, of St. Jerome, Que., says: "For several years I have been employed in a grocery and up to the age of seventeen I had always enjoyed the best of health. But suddenly my strength began to leave me; I grew pale, thin and extremely weak. Our family doctor ordered a complete rest and advised me to remain out of doors as much as possible so I went to spend several weeks with an uncle who lived in the Laurentides. I was in hope that the bracing mountain air would help me, but it didn't, and I returned home in a deplorable state. I was subject to dizziness, indigestion, and general weakness. One day I read of a case very similar to my own cured through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to give them a trial. After taking four boxes of the pills I felt greatly improved so continued their use for some time longer and they fully cured me. I am now able to go about my work as well as ever I did and have nothing but the greatest praise for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

The blood—good blood—is the secret of health. If the blood is not pure, the body becomes diseased, or the nerves shattered. Keep the blood pure and disease cannot exist. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make rich, red blood—that is why they cure anemia, rheumatism, indigestion, headache, backache, kidney trouble and the secret ailments of girlhood and womanhood. Sold at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, by all medicine dealers or by mail from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Reduced rates to western points, commencing Sept. 1st. Enquire at the old reliable, 115 King street, W. E. Rispin, agent G. T. R. and Wabash Railway.

MISS RISPIN'S FUNERAL

The funeral of the late Miss Edith Nixon Rispin was held yesterday, and was very largely attended, both at the house and the church, by the many friends of the deceased lady.

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. R. H. McCoig, rector of the church of which Miss Rispin was a devout and valued member. After the service at the house the remains were taken to Christ Church, where the beautiful Church of England service for the burial of the dead was conducted by Mr. McCoig, assisted by Rev. H. W. G. Colles. The choir was present, and added to the effect of the service with excellent and appropriate music. One especially fitting incident of the service was the singing of "God Be With You Till We Meet Again," the hymn which Miss Rispin requested should be sung at her dying bedside, and in which she joined in singing just before she passed away.

The casket was literally covered with flowers, the gifts of friends and relatives, whose grief at Miss Rispin's sudden taking is deep and unbounded.

The pall bearers were—W. J. Taylor, James Innes, J. F. Naffel, C. H. Gunn, J. C. Pritchard, and W. E. Malcolmson.

In the service at the house Rev. Dr. Battishay, pastor of St. Andrew's Church, where the late Miss Rispin had many personal friends, assisted. Among the many beautiful floral tributes were—

FIRE FIGHTING AT SEA

Methods of Extinguishing Flames on Board Ships.

RIGID DISCIPLINE THE RULE.

When the Alarm is Sounded Every Member of the Crew Has His Station and Carries Out the Particular Duty Entrusted to Him.

Of all disasters that can befall a ship none is more dreaded by the mariner than a fire at sea. Indeed, the annals of Lloyd's record few greater ocean tragedies and, be it said, no more conspicuous instances of gallantry and heroic effort than those connected with ships afloat.

No wonder, then, in view of the dreadful possibilities of an outbreak of fire on board, that a thorough knowledge of the proper steps to be taken in extinguishing the flames at the outset or at least holding them in check is expected of every officer from the captain downward.

Most vessels are nowadays fitted with hydrants, several on each deck, and in the case of large liners hose is kept in handy places, ready to be attached to the hydrants at a moment's notice. Moreover, every large passenger boat carries a number of portable extinguishers which can be strapped on a man's back. The spray from these is, of course, thin, but very effective in subduing small outbreaks where the fire has not secured too firm a hold.

Fire drill forms a weekly feature in the routine on every ocean liner. Every member of the crew literally, from captain to cabin boy, has his "fire station" allotted to him, at which, when the signal is given, he takes his position and carries out the particular duty entrusted to him.

When an actual outbreak occurs the fire alarm is as possible avoided, so as to prevent panic among the passengers. Word is passed quietly around, the passengers being kept in ignorance as long as possible. In fact, more than one fire at sea has been extinguished without any suspicion on the part of the passengers that the outbreak was other than an imaginary one engineered by the officers to give the passengers a chance of seeing what could be done in the event of the real thing occurring. In many cases, of course, the passengers have to be informed, but the news is always broken as lightly as possible, and some special entertainment—a concert, a dance, theatricals, and so on—is got up to allay any natural feeling of nervous anxiety. Of course if the fire shows signs of becoming unmanageable the boats are got ready and swung out in case it appears necessary to abandon the ship.

Every boat on large liners is kept fully provisioned, food sufficient for several days being contained in air and water tight tanks.

The worst fires at sea are those which cannot easily be got at. These usually occur amid the cargo in the lower holds and are often spontaneous in their origin. In such cases it is highly dangerous to open the hatches. The fire, which may have been smoldering for days, will naturally burst into a blaze as soon as the air is admitted.

The proper course is to exclude the air in every possible way; consequently even the ventilators are stopped up. If the holds are fitted with steam pipes, the steam is at once turned on; otherwise holes are cut in the deck, just large enough to admit the nozzles of the fire hose, and water is vigorously pumped into the hold.

In one form of extinguishing apparatus, instead of steam or water, sulphurous fumes are injected into the hold, the fumes being generated in a machine specially fitted for that purpose. This injection method is highly effective and rarely fails; it the pipes are properly placed in each hold. The steam or fumes are turned on from the upper deck.

If a fire breaks out in the hold and assumes such dimensions that steam injection is powerless to check it, the vessel is, when possible, got into shallow water and, if necessary, beached.

In any case the sea cocks of the particular hold are opened and the hold allowed to fill with water. This can usually be done with very little fear of the vessel foundering, as modern built ships are divided into many compartments separated by strong water tight bulkheads of steel or iron. Such is the buoyancy of a vessel so constructed that instances have been known of a craft remaining afloat with only one or two of these compartments dry.

If the burning hold is a very large one and by flooding it with water there is danger of the vessel foundering, the cargo in another hold is thrown overboard or "jettisoned," as it is called at sea, to counteract the weight of water admitted into the first hold. As a last resource, the vessel, if in dock or shallow water, is scuttled by opening the sea cocks. This has been done more than once in Tilbury docks.

We seldom hear nowadays of fire breaking out in the passengers' quarters on large liners. The introduction of electric lighting on board ship has no doubt conducted greatly to this improved state of matters. When a fire does break out in the cabin, it is usually soon detected, for a constant watch is kept by the officers and night stewards, who make periodical tours of inspection during the nocturnal hours.

Look on the poor with gentle eyes, for in such habits often angels dwell.—Manning.

RICH HERMITS.

Men Who Have Accumulated Millions While Living in Seclusion.

A millionaire hermit, who a very few years ago died in Moscow, was C. S. Solovnikov, who had made a fortune variously estimated at from twenty to fifty millions by colossal speculation on the Bourse. So many and varied were his investments that it was said the handling of coupons alone gave employment to ten girls. And yet this lord of millions, who might have rivalled kings in the splendor of his palaces, lived for years in a tumble-down two-story cottage, surrounded by sordid and rotting furniture. For weeks together he never put his head outside his front door, and he spent half his time in his dressing gown. When his will was opened it was found that he had left the whole of his stupendous fortune for philanthropic purposes, from building schools for girls to providing lodgings for the working classes.

When Paul Colasson, the famous hermit of Paris, died recently, it was stated that for the last 27 years of his life he had lived exclusively on a diet of eggs and bread, supplied to him every third day by an old servant, the only human being he ever allowed to enter the magnificent mansion to which he had retired on the tragic death of a favorite nephew. During all these years, he had nursed his grief in solitude, never once, so far as is known, leaving the gorgeous palace, which he had converted into a prison.

St. Petersburg recently lost her most remarkable character in the person of a millionaire count who, in spite of his immense wealth, lived a life of the most sordid poverty and self-denial. His figure, clothed in rags, was a familiar spectacle in the streets of St. Petersburg, and many a sympathetic passer-by pressed alms into the hand of the man whose daily income was estimated at $5,000.

Nor must we forget the millionaire baronet who died a few years ago in the garret of a house in Waterloo road, London, at the advanced age of 91 years. For many a year no servant had entered his poor attic; his meals were served and placed outside his door at stated intervals. He was never known to cross his threshold, and he died alone in the one ill-furnished room in which, though he had an annual income of $130,000, he had spent so many years of sordid and self-imposed confinement.

HERE'S A BIG ONE.

Mouse Steps on Man and Renders Him Unconscious.

The Philadelphia Record relates the following yarn:

Following close upon the killing of a 90-pound rat at Glen Jean by an enterprising citizen of that town comes the news of a 200-pound mouse seen by Mallowell Dabney at Smithers during the night.

The mouse, as described by Mr. Dabney, was a pale-grey color with many trimmings, its eyes of a silvery blue with borders of vermilion, and its ears a sunburnt yellow, striped with fiddler's green.

Recently a wagon left the local wholesale house with a quantity of whiskey and beer for a saloon at Smithers, but broke down on the way, and Mr. Dabney was left to watch the load until a new wagon came the next morning. Mr. Dabney says he first saw the enormous mouse shortly after 8 o'clock coming down a muddy tree backward. The enormous size of the rodent frightened him, and he remained quiet while it consumed a quantity of the whiskey and beer. In the midst of its feast it became frightened at a passing M. & K. train and ran back toward the creek, stepping on Mr. Dabney and rendering him unconscious.

Mr. Dabney's remarkable story is borne out by the fact that a quantity of the intoxicants had disappeared and Mr. Dabney was unconscious when found the next morning.

Tobogganing in 1765.

It is interesting to note in Smollett's "Travels Through France and Italy" that when the novelist was making an excursion in March, 1765, from Nice across the Maritime Alps to Turin he descended the Piedmontese slope of the Col di Tenda to ward Sunco on a toboggan.

"Having reached the top of the mountain," he tells us in letter thirty-eight, "we prepared for descending on the other side by the less, which is an occasional slide made of two pieces of wood, carried up by the coullants (local guides) for the purpose. I did not much relish this kind of carriage, especially as the mountain was very steep and covered with such a thick fog that we could hardly see two or three yards before us. Nevertheless our guides were so confident and my companion, who had passed the same way on other occasions, so secure that I ventured to place myself on this machine, one of the coullants standing behind me and the other sitting before me as the conductor, with his feet paddling in the snow, in order to moderate the velocity of its descent. Thus accommodated, we descended the mountain with such rapidity that in an hour we reached the plain. Here we waited two full hours for the mules which traveled with the servants by the common road."

This is simply tobogganing used as a practical means of transit for travelers in the Alps.—Chambers Journal.

Future of Balmoral.

There is again a good deal of talk in Court circles as to the future of Balmoral. It is well known that the King has not the same regard for his Highland home as had Queen Victoria, and this has naturally led to expectations that he will sell the estate. At present the house is shut, with only a small number of servants. Some time ago the King was credited with the intention of turning the place into a sanatorium, but it is understood that the idea has been abandoned lately. However, not very long ago several vanloads of furniture and ornaments, property of the late Queen, were removed from Balmoral to Windsor.

A LESSON IN NERVE.

The Laundry Didn't Charge For the Ruined Shirt.

"When I came to open my bundle of stuff sent home from the laundry this morning," said the bachelor man, "I found in it, sent back washed, but not ironed, one shirt that had planned to it a ticket reading like this:

"We are returning this shirt on account of it not being in a condition to withstand ironing."

"This was a new one to me, but when I came to open up the shirt and looked it over I didn't wonder that they hadn't tried to iron it. One arm was all but torn from its socket, and there was a hole punched through one cuff, with a tear extending from this hole for an inch or two up the sleeve. The shirt was sure not in condition for ironing, but how did it get so?"

"I certainly never sent it to the laundry in that shape. I'd have had hard work tearing the sleeve out of the shoulder the way this one was torn, and I couldn't have made that hole in the cuff without some sort of a sharp and big punch. Clearly the shirt had been torn and mangled in that manner by being caught in the laundry machinery, and so I wrapped it up in a neat little bundle and took it over to the laundry office, intending to make a claim for the value of it. I spread the shirt out on the counter and called the clerk's attention to it and told him that I couldn't have torn the shirt in that manner; it must have been done in the laundry, and how about it?"

"Well," said the clerk, "we made no charge for it."

"As for the significance of this came upon me—they had torn my shirt all to pieces, but they didn't make any charge for it—I staggered back, and I kept on staggering that way until I had got out of the door."

"I shall never make any further claim for the shirt. I got back far more than its value in that lesson in nerve, cold nerve."

DEAL'S LIFEBOAT HERO

COXSMAIN HAS SPLENDID RECORD OF SERVICE.

Over Fifty Years of Life-Saving Work

—Made More Than Four Hundred Rescues — Visited Thousands of Wrecks—Stirring Incidents in Busy Life—Ships on the Dreaded Goodwin Sands.

In the roll of lifeboat heroes the name of Mr. Richard Roberts, the retiring coxswain of the Deal lifeboat, occupies a foremost place.

Deal boatmen have gained a niche in the temple of fame and a unique reputation for their heroic rescues and their triumphs over all the terrors of the dreaded Goodwin Sands. In helping to make this record Dick Roberts has played a leading part. A press representative found him at the Seamen's Mission hall, a man slight of stature, but very wiry, or as he himself expressed it, "hard as nails," and like all true heroes modest and unassuming.

Born at Deal on a night when the wind was blowing a heavy gale, in December, 1838, it was perhaps hardly to be wondered at that Mr. Roberts has passed the greater part of his life on the water.

"I knocked about the North Sea in a fishing boat when I was thirteen," he said, "and after that served my time before the mast between London and Melbourne for four years. 'In '54 I should have been in the Navy, fighting against the Russians. There was a call for powder-boys, and I volunteered. But, a tinge of regret crept into his voice, 'I wasn't big enough."

Deal's First Lifeboat.

"The first lifeboat in Deal was the 'Van Cook,' that was in 1865. I was appointed assistant coxswain, and we very soon found out what she was made of."

"It was in February, 1865, one terrible stormy night, when we saw in the rifts of the storm a full-rigged ship on the Goodwins. She was the Iron Crown, a tea clipper. The lifeboat bell was soon ringing, and we quickly volunteered, and the poor boat launched. Wild and it was steering. After a time we anchored, and drifted to the wreck, over which the seas were breaking. We saved all on board—thirty in number—and, with the help of the tugs, the vessel was saved as well."

The gallant deed was the forerunner of a long and splendid series of rescues, no fewer than 441 lives having been saved from fifty-six vessels by the lifeboat in which Roberts has been coxswain for over 30 years. It is a record which has assisted into safety the total number mounts up to about 600.

Continuing his interesting narrative, he said: "We have been stranded on the Goodwins several times. One night we had saved some people when we were blown on to the treacherous sands, and had to stay there for six hours. But we knew we could get off when the tide turned."

"Save My Father!"

"It was about twenty years ago when the Golden Island, bound from Antwerp to London, struck with tremendous force on the Goodwins. The crew had to come through the water to us tied together with lines. The captain made his last bid to the rope first, and when the child came through to us he looked up in my face and cried, 'Oh, save my father, save my father!' I remember the incident as though it were only yesterday. We saved his father all right, and all the others on board, too."

"One night—I forget when it was—we had rescued the captain, his wife, and the crew of a Swedish barque that was wrecked in Pagwell Bay in a terrible hurricane. That same night we took the crew off a French brig, which went to pieces just afterwards. We don't know how we saved them. Our boat was stove in, and it was only the air-chambers that kept us afloat."

"I have never left a man behind alive," continued Dick Roberts, with pardonable pride. "Unfortunately, we lost one of our own boatmen—not one of the lifeboat crew—who went out in his boat to help in the rescue of a foreign schooner, loaded with wheat. This was about 25 years ago."

"It was in November, 1881, during a terrible gale, that two luggers went out to help a vessel in distress, but such was the fury of the gale, and so the mountains were themselves overpowered and had to anchor for safety."

"A small vessel which had anchored inside the Brake Sand had lost her anchor, and was drifting to certain destruction. The lifeboat was soon off to the rescue in the terrible sea. We flew before the wind into the rolling surf on the Brake Sand, six of us having to steer."

Inadequate Reward.

The vessel was the Thistle, and she was fast sinking, but the lifeboat got

PANDORA RANGE

A Strikingly Handsome Range

The owner of a Pandora is always proud of the impression this strikingly handsome range makes upon her neighbors.

The solid, compact appearance of the smoothly finished body, the bold, large pattern of the carving, and the brilliance of the heavy nickel coating, combine to produce an effect that is distinctly pleasing to the eye of the most critical observer.

The Pandora Castings undergo a "special process" to make them easily and quickly take a lustrous shine.

The Nickeling is done with extraordinary care—will not chip and crack like the nickeling on ordinary stoves, but will retain its smoothness and brightness for years.

Because of the absence of any fine, fancy carving, which catches and holds the dust, the Pandora is much more easy to polish and will remain clean longer.

Altogether, the Pandora is a very superior range. If your local dealer does not sell the Pandora, write direct for free booklet.

THE TREE DOCTOR.

His Method of Treating a Trunk That is Decaying.

When a tree doctor treats a decayed tree he begins by cutting an aperture in the tree large enough to allow him to get at the inside and remove all the decayed wood. This is essential to the success of the operation. When this work has been done the cavity is ready to be filled. The composition used in case of large fillings contains five parts of sand to one part of portland cement, except for the outer part, where these ingredients are used half and half, this outer coating being several inches thick.

To hold the cement in place while it is hardening a stout tin of zinc is employed, this being secured to the trunk of limb in a way to preserve the natural shape. The tin is put on in strips, being fastened with round steel nails having a broad head and a small shank. The strips are wide enough to lap over upon the sound wood, and the nails are placed from half an inch to an inch apart, according to the strain imposed.

The first strip of tin is put on at the lower part of the aperture and the cement put in until it reaches nearly to the top of the tin. Then a second strip is put on, lapping over the other two or three inches, and the tin nailed together. Then more cement is used, and so on until the cavity is filled, the last strip of tin being bent down while the final application of cement is being puddled into place and the cavity entirely filled, and then it is straightened up and nailed in place. In case of extra large cavities large sheets of tin or sheet iron are nailed on the outside to prevent the tin from bulging out until the cement has hardened, when they can be removed. The smaller the cavity the larger are the strips of tin employed, as the strain is proportionately less. In twenty-four hours time the cement will have hardened completely, and the tin may all be removed. This remedy is applied successfully to fruit trees as well as shade trees.

STORY OF HARDSHIPS.

Alleged Ill-Treatment of Men in the Lumber Camps.

La Presse of Montreal in a recent issue devoted three pages to a thrilling story of hardships said to have been encountered in the lumber camps at Macdonald's chute, and Driftwood City, in New Ontario.

That lumbermen are half starved, robbed of their wages, ill-treated by their foremen and threatened with fire arms if they dare resist is hard to believe.

Still that is what a reporter of La Presse, who spent two weeks in the wilds, declares to be true. He interviewed a large number of shantymen. Before they reached the camp they say they had to travel 600 miles with dry bread and cheese as their only food. During their long trip on a slow train they were not even given water to drink.

Before arriving at camp after tramping through the woods for miles without food they were relieved of their baggage and subjected to altogether different treatment.

The men say that the company will not take cash to settle any indebtedness for board, railway fares or any other expenses, but demand that the men work till they have evened up accounts, and the company invents all kinds of charges to keep the men at work.

A party of workmen once tried to escape, but were run down by private detectives and marched back to camp under cover of guns.

Food of a bad quality is supplied, they say, and scores of cases of exorbitant charges for necessities of life are recorded. The price even of postage stamps is increased.

A gang of Italians newly arrived at Driftwood wanted to purchase rubber boots before they started to work in the swamps. The company refused to let them have any, however, before they had earned them in work. The Italians insisted, and some of the clerks tried to disperse the crowd with revolvers. The Italians drew knives, and one of them had a rifle. The company furnished the footwear.

Hon. J. J. Foy was asked if his attention had been called to the story of La Presse.

He said it had not, but some time ago similar representations were made to the Dominion Government regarding the treatment of a number of Austro-Hungarians employed by the contractors building the extension of the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway, Col. Sherwood, chief of the Dominion office, referred the complaints to Attorney-General Foy, who sent a special commissioner to Macdonald's Chutes to investigate.

The report of this officer has been sent to Col. Sherwood.

WHY SCOTCHMEN SUCCEED.
Some of the Best Immigrants Canada Receives.

Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, in a recent speech, gave a breezy description of the characteristics of Scotsmen and why they succeed in life—a description which was the more interesting in that it came from an Irishman, says P. T. O. The Scot, said Lord Charles, is one of the most hard-headed men in the world. He pays the greatest attention to detail. He has proverbial honesty of purpose. He absolutely sticks to his dealings. He has indomitable energy. The Scot is very business-like in his methods, and in many cases he possesses exceptional ability so far as mechanical skill goes. These characteristics of the Scot are the reasons that have brought the Empire to the place it occupies at the present time. Lord Charles Beresford adds that Englishmen and Irishmen have similar characteristics, but these distinctive qualities are essentially Scottish, and that is why Scotsmen stand over the world have advanced to the great positions in every sphere of activity.

It was under a Scotsman that Lord Charles served three years of his apprenticeship to the sea as a midshipman; namely, Sir Houston Stewart, who was one of the finest seamen who ever trod deck. Another great admiral whom he remembered in his early days was Sir Alexander Milne, familiarly known as "Sandy." Recently Lord Charles was over upon business in Canada. One day he saw two trains arriving with emigrants for this country, and he said to the mayor of Calgary, "What lucky people you Canadians are!" because in these trains were the finest specimens of Scotsmen and North of England Englishmen he had ever seen, full of energy and full of go.

Murder Through Ignorance.
In the case of the Indian chief and medicine man in the Kewatin district taken to Norway House for murdering a squaw of their tribe supposed to be possessed by an evil spirit, or Wendigo, it appears the prisoners were appointed by a meeting of the band to which they belonged to put an end to the unhappy victim of savage superstition. The woman was sick and afterwards became delirious, and the Indian belief is that when this happens the Wendigo has entered the afflicted person, and if the latter afterwards dies a natural death, the evil spirit escapes to the woods and the game takes fright and disappears and famine results. The report received by the Indian department states that the band assembled according to established usage, and "the high honor" of choking the squaw to death in order that the spirit might remain imprisoned in the corpse was accorded to the chief and medicine man. The two executioners, therefore, placed a piece of canvas around the squaw's neck, with a noosed rope, and tightening the rope, the ravings of the poor demented creature were stopped and the band was satisfied that the evil spirit remained safely imprisoned and that the game in the woods would not disappear. News of the affair coming to the knowledge of the police, the chief and his assistant were taken into custody, the band protesting that what had been done was the custom of their fathers, and they did not know it was wrong, and asking for leniency.

MONEY SYSTEMS.

The World's Coinage Muddle and the Range of Units of Value.

Twenty-six different monetary units are used by the forty-eight principal countries of the world. Thus Great Britain uses the sovereign and pound sterling, France and six other countries of Europe use a unit equal to the franc, and Canada and the United States use the dollar.

In value these different units range from 4.4 to 494.33 cents of money of the United States. They are represented in their turn by coins the values of which are either multiples or fractional parts of the value of their own chief units, and there are no doubt at least 200 such sufficient coins not one of which seems to have a value equal to that of any commonly known unit of weight, as the gram, for example, or the ounce of gold, although forty-three of these forty-eight countries have accepted gold as their standard measure of value.

This lack of logical relation of coins to any widely used unit of weight of the precious metals may be due to the fact that money systems seem to have grown up haphazard, under diverse conditions of life, in different parts of the world.

Such diversity in money may have been of little moment when millions of people spent their lives knowing nothing of the existence of other millions and there was little traffic. But these differences in monetary units are of importance now that international commerce includes millions of tons of products of the soil of all lands and billions of dollars each year to settle its bills, for such differences put upon a trade a wholly unnecessary tax. No account is made here of the burden laid on domestic trade by like variation in the value of such units at home, as of the tael of China, which has sixteen different values within that empire.

WOMEN WHO WEAR WELL.

It is astonishing how great a change a few years of married life will make in the appearance and disposition of many women. The freshness, the charm, the brilliancy, the bloom like the bloom from a peach which is rudely hidden. The matron is only a dim shadow, a faint echo of the charming maiden. There are two reasons for this change: ignorance and neglect. Few young women appreciate the shock to the system through the change which comes with marriage. Many neglect to deal with the unpleasant drains which are of consequence on marriage and motherhood, not understanding that this secret drain is robbing the cheek of its freshness and the form of its fairness. As surely as the general health suffers when there is derangement of the health of the delicate womanly organs, so surely when these organs are established in healthy action, and form at once witness to the fact in renewed comeliness. Half a million women and more have found health and happiness in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Ingredients on label.

SITUATION GROWS ALARMING.

Thirty Thousand Moors Mobilizing Against French Troops.

Paris, Sept. 6.—While there has been no more fighting at Casablanca since the armistice of Tuesday, the seriousness of the general situation in Morocco and the possibility of its leading France into diplomatic difficulties with the other powers of Europe, notably Germany and Great Britain, to say nothing of the apparently growing necessity of increasing the size of the French force on the Moroccan coast, is occupying the attention of the French people.

The press is calling attention to the difficulty of keeping within the terms of the Algeiras convention and the call to convolve Parliament to discuss and decide what course the nation should pursue is becoming more insistent. There is a growing feeling that the important decisions in the matter of France's policy in Morocco should be made by the members of the Cabinet.

The situation is now referred to as a "war" and no longer as heretofore, as an "expedition of pacification."

The situation at Mazagan is reported to be growing threatening, and the exodus of French troops from Tangier continues. Premier Clemenceau, however, announced yesterday there was no reason to believe that neither Abdul Aziz, the reigning Sultan, nor Abdul Hafis, his brother, who has been proclaimed Sultan in the south, intended to move against France.

Native advisers received at Tangier declare that 20,000 hostile Moors have concentrated not far from Casablanca, and that 10,000 Kabyle tribesmen have mobilized near Alcazar.

Spain is preparing to send reinforcements of men and ships to Morocco. One Spanish battleship, the Emperor Carlos V., arrived at Tangier yesterday.

BRITAIN AND RUSSIA.
Foreign Minister Places Seal on British Relations with King.

Martinebo, Bohemia, Sept. 6.—The Russian Foreign Minister, M. Isvolsky, who recently signed the Anglo-Russian agreement in behalf of Russia, was received in audience by King Edward here yesterday.

The Minister, who was presented to His Majesty by Sir Edward Goschen, the British Ambassador in Vienna, remained to take lunch with the King.

Satisfaction in London.
London, Sept. 6.—The conference at Marienbad between M. Isvolsky and King Edward was arranged to discuss the recently concluded Anglo-Russian agreement. The meeting gave the greatest satisfaction here, placing the final seal on better relations between Great Britain and Russia.

It is understood that Great Britain, while she has secured all that she could from the Russian concessions, has made concessions there in order to obtain advantages in Afghanistan which were considered essential to safeguard India.

Among the concessions thus made is one enlarging the fact, that while Russia has the right to define the spheres in Persia, in which each country will not interfere with the commercial interests of the other, the door is left wide open for the merchants of other powers.

MODUS VIVENDI RENEWED.
Prohibition of Sunday Fishing Most Important Change in Agreement.

London, Sept. 6.—The negotiations for a renewal of the Newfoundland fisheries modus vivendi have practically been concluded, and a new agreement, covering the present season, probably will be signed within a few days.

The delay was caused by repeated proposals of the Newfoundland Premier, Sir Robert Bond, of a substitute for the modus vivendi, to which the American and British officials have given every consideration. The matter, the Associated Press is informed, has now been disposed of, and an agreement has been reached to renew the modus vivendi, with some modification.

The most important change relates to Sunday fishing, a prohibition of which, it is understood, the United States has agreed to.

Engineer's Spine Fractured.
Brookville, Sept. 6.—A young locomotive engineer named J. McMahon lies in a local hospital badly cut up from injuries received in a railway wreck.

While running a train about ten miles out of Depot Harbor the engine jumped the track, and falling down an embankment carried McMahon and his fireman with it. McMahon was caught between the tender and the engine, sustaining a fracture of the spine.

Australia Buying Canadian Salmon.
Ottawa, Sept. 6.—Canada's trade agent in Australia reports that Canadian brands of canned salmon have secured the bulk of orders.

The Commonwealth Government has provided that patent medicine imported into Australia shall show on the label the various drugs and materials of which the medicine is composed.

New Zealand's Tariff.
Ottawa, Sept. 6.—The New Zealand tariff maintains the preference to all Canadian goods except paper hangings, but the new tariff on cheap boots and shoes will almost be prohibitive, amounting to about 6 per cent.

Murdered in Chicago.
Chicago, Sept. 6.—The body of a man, supposed to be A. A. Anderson of Toughwood Hills, Canada, was found floating yesterday in the lagoon in Garfield Park. He evidently had been murdered.

Three Years for Bank Clerk.
Halifax, N. S., Sept. 6.—John S. Cather, who absconded with $6,500, belonging to the Bank of British North America, and was caught in London, Eng., was yesterday sentenced to three years.

LONDON'S GREAT SCHEME.

Ultimate Cost Will Probably Be $115,000,000 to Supply Electricity—Covers 461 Square Miles.

A great anti-trust move is proposed by the London County Council, which, if it can obtain the consent of Parliament, is going to spend $20,250,000 on a huge scheme for supplying London and the surrounding country with electricity. This would kill the threatened formation of a trust which is looming ahead with its inevitable accompaniment of increased rates.

It is proposed to cover an area of 461 square miles, comprising the County of London and parts of Middlesex, Essex, Kent and Surrey with the Council's system. A great central generating station will be built on the banks of the Thames below the city at a cost of $7,000,000, and the other $13,250,000 will be spent on the transmission and distribution of the power.

The majority of the London County Council is Progressive (Municipal Socialist), and the scheme is opposed by the Moderates (Conservatives) on the Council, who favor another scheme for leasing the right to supply the whole London district with electricity to a corporation. In other words, the Moderates are backing the trust proposition.

Their corporation would simply be the controlling centre, which would combine all the existing electricity corporations in London, eliminate competition, regulate wages, and fix the rates to consumers at its own figure.

London hopes to be saved from the clutches of an electricity trust by the bold scheme of the County Council. The proposal, although it came late, was made a prominent issue in the London municipal elections, and gained the Progressives, who were threatened with a landslide, many votes.

If the Council does not take up the control of the electricity supply, it will fall into the hands of the trust, which, after running it for some years, will sell it back to the Council at a huge profit.

The Parliamentary Committee which considered the question of London's electricity supply last session decided that it was desirable that the Council should have control of the whole undertaking, and the big Liberal majority in the Commons, which is opposed to the trust interest, is certain to carry the scheme through.

The only thing the bill will have to fear then is the House of Lords, which has already attempted to wreck some of the Council's improvement schemes.

In 1910, if the scheme goes through, the first two sections of the generating station will be working, and a great impetus will be given to the industries of London by a cheap and plentiful supply of power.

The Council is confident that the revenue derived from the undertaking will be more than sufficient to cover the expenditure, including the charges for sinking fund and interest on capital, so that the Council's successful street car and other undertakings are likely to be followed by another great object lesson in municipal ownership.

A Distinguished Trio.
The Hon. Joseph Chamberlain is fond of relating an incident that occurred when he and Lord Rosebery were returning from the theatre one night. While crossing the street they were accosted by a ragged boy who, after sweeping the mud from their path, asked for alms.

Lord Rosebery was about to give the boy a coin when an idea struck him. "My boy," said Rosebery, "I will give you ten shillings." Promptly to the word, the boy crept in back of the officer, and raising his broom stuck him in the back, then turned and ran, but to the dismay of Rosebery, the officer caught the boy after a chase of a few yards.

Not wanting to leave the boy in a fix Rosebery tried to fix things up with the officer, but the worthy gentleman would not listen, and took them all three up to the station.

They were then taken before the judge of the station, and after surveying them through his glasses, he took down a book and, turning to Chamberlain, asked his name. "Hon. Joseph Chamberlain," was the reply, and the judge smiled.

Rosebery responded also with his full title, "Lord Rosebery."

The boy was next, and stepping to the front he drew himself up to his full height, and waited for the usual question, "Your name?"

"My name," said the boy, "Well, judge, I'm not the kind as what goes back on me pals. I'm the 'Duke of Wellington.'"

Faithful to Her Love.
Few people are aware of the reasons which bind Queen Alexandra and the beautiful Duchess of Argyll in such close friendship. The Duchess, who has been visiting the Queen, is a sister of the Queen of Portugal, and a daughter of the late Comte de Paris.

As the beautiful Orleans Princess she was a playmate and companion of the King of the late Prince "Eddie," the King's eldest son, and when she grew up the affection between the two ripened into love.

Queen Alexandra would have much liked to have seen the two united, but at that time the marriage between the heir to the British throne and a Catholic princess was deemed to be out of the question. Whenever Queen Alexandra deposits on the day of her eldest son's death a wreath on his tomb at Windsor, there can always be found another from the Duchess of Argyll.

The other day the Duchess made a special trip to Windsor with another wreath to lay on the Prince's tomb, although it was not the anniversary of his death.

Irish Wit.
An Englishman traveling in Ireland complained that he could find none of the famous Irish wits of whom he had heard. He was advised to speak to the next farmer or teamster he met.

A little later he encountered a peasant leading a horse with a load of turf. The horse had a blazed face, belonging to the Duke of Argyll, as my man," said the Englishman, by way of an opening.

"Sure," replied the Irishman, "your own will be as white when it has been as long in the halter."

THE TRAIN BELL ROPE.

How It and the Conductor's Supremacy Came to Be Established.

Although there does not seem to be anything in common between pugilism and railroad rules, yet the adoption of the familiar bell rope that stretches through every car of the modern train was the result of a fistic encounter.

At the same time and by the issue of the same combat the supremacy of the conductor in railroad travel was ordained. It was Philadelphia which gave both to the world.

One of the oldest railroads in the country, the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore, now known as the Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, which was opened in 1837. The terminus in Philadelphia was at Broad and Prime streets—Prime street now being known as Washington avenue—and after crossing the Schuylkill river at Gray's Ferry the route ran along the Delaware river on what is now the Chester line of the Reading railway.

The first schedule contained one passenger train, which went to Baltimore one day and came back the next, which was considered a remarkable feat in rapid travel. When a train a day each way was placed in service the people of the two cities served concluded that the time of convenience in transportation had been reached.

Next to the president of the railroad the most important functionaries were the engineer and conductor. It was a question whether or not the head of the line was not considered a subsidiary officer in popular estimation to the men who ran the train, but Robert Fogg, who pulled the throttle, and John Wolf, who collected fares, won the deference of the public because of their high and responsible duties.

Fogg, an Englishman, had all the tenacity of opinion of his race. Wolf, an American, had the ingenuity of the Yankee and, seeing the need of some method by which he could communicate with the engineer, devised the scheme of running a cord through the cars to the locomotive. As the engine was a wood burner, Wolf fastened one end of the cord to a log, which was placed on the engineer's seat and was pulled to the floor when the conductor desired to signal for a stop.

Fogg resented what he considered an interference with his rights on the platform of the locomotive and on the first run out from Broad and Prime streets with the new device paid no heed to the displacement of the log from the seat when the conductor desired to take on a passenger from a farm near Gray's Ferry, but sped on over the bridge and did not deign to bring his engine to a stop until Blue Bell station, on the south side of the Schuylkill, had been reached. Then he demanded to know of Wolf why he had been jerking that log all about the locomotive.

Wolf hotly declared that he had signaled to stop, but Fogg retorted that he would stop when and where he pleased and that, too, without any reference to orders from the conductor, whom he did not regard as his superior in the management of the train. The altercation grew very heated, and Wolf invited the engineer from the cab to settle the matter, and the challenge was quickly accepted.

Passengers and a group of men who had gathered at the station to see the train come in formed a ring about the combatants, but the fight did not last long, as Wolf proved by far the superior artist with his fists and with a few blows made it almost impossible for the engineer to see sufficiently to complete his run, but Fogg admitted that he had been fairly beaten, and the supremacy of the conductor on a train was settled for all time.

As the log signal was crude and ineffective, Wolf devised the use of a bell on the locomotive, and this method was soon adopted by all of the American railroads. Then a code of signals was adopted, and these remain practically to this day. The only change in the bell code is that by use of the air from the brake system a whistle has superseded the bell in the locomotive cab.

MORE THAN A SINGER.

The Beautiful Character and Singing of Jenny Lind.

Jenny Lind the woman was greater than Jenny Lind the singer. "I would rather hear Jenny talk than sing, wonderful as it is," wrote Mrs. Stanley, the wife of the Bishop of Norwich, in whose palace the great singer was a guest while in that city. The bishop's son, subsequently Dean Stanley, who had no "ear for music," and on whom, therefore, her singing was wholly lost, wrote that she had "the manners of a princess with the simplicity of a child and the goodness of an angel." Her character showed itself, he added, "through a thousand traits of humility, gentleness, thoughtfulness, wisdom, piety."

She looked upon her natural beauty as a gift of a princess, and she sang without reflecting that it might be for the last time.

"It has been continued to me from year to year for the good of others."

This feeling was no fine sentiment, but a religious principle. While she was the bishop's guest, she begged Mrs. Stanley to allow her to sing three of the maids to a concert where she was to sing.

At a service in the cathedral she was moved to tears by the singing of the boy choristers and had placed her hands for them in

FLOURISHING DEPARTMENT

The Commercial Department of the C.C.F. is becoming one of the most important and efficient departments of the work at that institution. Ever since this department was formed it has grown in size. Last year there were 65 students enrolled, and this year it starts out with 75 on the roll. Under Mr. Edward there is no cause for complaint about the manner in which the work is conducted, in fact, the Board of Education are fortunate in having the services of this talented teacher. Ever since he first took charge he has displayed his ability by the splendid results to which he has attained and during the present year, even better things are looked for. It is expected that this large class will grow even larger as the term progresses.

THE POSTAL DELIVERY

H. S. Clements, M.P., has received the following letter from R. M. Coulter, of the Dominion Postal Department, in reference to the mail delivery which the energetic young member for West Kent was trying to secure for the Maple City. The letter is self-explanatory, but it is hoped that it will soon be shown that Chatham has sufficient population to warrant the Government in granting this accommodation. Postoffice Department, Canada, Ottawa, 28th August, 1907.

Sir—With further reference to your letter of the 30th ultimo, making inquiry as to what has been done in regard to extending the Letter Carrier Service to Chatham, I beg to say that the free delivery system is only to be extended to cities and towns where the postal revenue is not less than $20,000, and the population not less than 12,000. While the revenue of the Chatham Postoffice exceeds $20,000, the population is only about 9,940, and it does not, therefore, I regret to say, come within the regulations governing the establishment of the free delivery service.

Sincerely yours,
R. M. COULTER,
Deputy Postmaster-General,

CANADIAN HORSES WIN

Fred Brisco's fast horses, "Jerry Dillard" is doing great work in the Ohio circuit, winning firsts from the fastest American horses. Yesterday he won a first at Canton, Ohio, against 11 starters. Last week, at Cleveland, he won a first against nine starters. He is being driven by Ernie Crummer. Lucky Jim and Colingwood Boy, two other Canadian horses, are also making names for themselves over the same circuit under Crummer's care.

The same stable of horses will go from Canton to Wheeling, West Virginia, next. The races at Wheeling are always looked forward to as the biggest and fastest races of the American circuits.

The Liar, owned by Mr. Matthewson, of Windsor, is also making himself a favorite on the Ohio circuit, winning every race he has started in this season.

Queen of Woodliffe, a fast trotting mare, owned by Mr. J. Reach, of Stratford, won first at Canton, last week, and first at Detroit, yesterday.

Galagher, 2:03 3/4, a Canadian horse, owned by Brown, of Leamington, broke the Detroit State Fair record by pacing a mile in 2:05, on Thursday last.

Outsellowho was to have raced yesterday, at Detroit, but did not on account of the race being called off, is owned by James Banks, of this city. About 200 Chathamites, who went to Detroit to see the start, were disappointed.

It is expected that Joe Brady's fast pacer, Mac Wilkes, will make a start at some place in the States during the present month. This was one of the best horses on the American circuit last year, but, owing to an accident in the early spring, the horse is just now rounding into racing shape.
