Rumors From Teutonic Empire Tell of Great Strikes and Growing Unrest, But Official News is Tightly Muzzled by Censorship

Beyond an officially inspired despatch from Berlin stating that no disorders occurred in Germany during May Day the veil of secrecy which has been drawn over the situation in the Central Empires remains unbroken, as far as any direct news is concerned. News despatches from the German frontier speak of great strikes and rumors upon rumors in regard to the growing unrest among the Teutonic nations, but there is little that is tangible on which to base a judgment. Everything points to a crisis having been reached in the internal affairs of both Germany and Austria but the outcome is uncertain.

London, May 2.—The Times' Amsterdam correspondent says there was a series of air attacks on Zebruge about midnight of April 30. There was also a terrific cannonade, the flashes of which could be clearly seen at Flushing.

There is something wrong with our governmental system, as is clearly proved by Germany's political failures and in fact by the whole war. Fresh blood must be infused in the government.

The Fremdenblatt advocates the removal of bureaucratic barriers in order to allow the parliament and government to work in closer touch. The Berlin Tageblatt takes up the statement of The Koelnische Volks Zeitung that at a free masons congress in Paris it was decided to indicate an anti-monarchical movement in Germany with the chief aim of de-throning the Emperor. The Tageblatt says that leaders of German free masons have informed it that they have absolutely nothing to do with such outgrowths of so called international free masonry. They stand on a strictly national basis, are determinedly loyal to the Emperor and Empire and, the paper says, do not concern themselves with political machinations.

London, May 2.—A despatch from the Exchange Telegraph Company from Amsterdam says: "The Berliner Tageblatt asserts that Dr. Cohn, Socialist member of the Reichstag, proposes the appointment of a parliamentary committee to consider the German military leadership. The pan-German papers express profound indignation at a Jewish lawyer like Dr. Cohn, should wish to control Field Marshal von Hindenburg, but the extreme Socialists insist on a discussion of his proposal since von Hindenburg's powers now far exceed those of a chief of staff."

DECISION OF RAILWAY BOARD REGARDING ST. PAUL AVENUE SUBWAY

No Cost for Vehicular Purposes Can be Put on the Grand Trunk Railway—Fourty Per Cent of Cost to be Levied on Them in Case of Pedestrian Subway—If City Constructs Vehicular Subway Including Sidewalks, G.T.R. Will be Ordered to Pay $4,800 and Board Will Contribute 20 Per Cent Not Exceeding $5,000

Mr. A. D. Cartwright, Secretary of the Board of Railway Commissioners, Ottawa, has forwarded to the City the following copy of the judgment of the Asst. Chief Commissioner as concurred in by the other members of the board.

By an agreement, dated 24th July, 1905, made between the Grand Trunk Railway Company and the City of Brantford, the City agreed by Clause 9 to take all necessary steps for the permanent closing and stopping up against public travel of St. Paul's Avenue where it is crossed by the right of way of the railway at grade, "the company however agreeing as to St. Paul's Avenue to erect turnstiles on each side of their track and to keep open a crossing on St. Paul's Avenue for the use of persons on foot if requested by the City to do so."

In accordance with the agreement, the Municipal Council passed Bylaw No. 858 on the 20th December, 1905, closing a number of streets. Clause 4 of the Bylaw is as follows: "4.—THAT part of St. Paul's Avenue lying between the northerly limit of the right of way of the Grand Trunk Railway Company and the southerly limit of the right of way of the Grand Trunk Railway Company, if the same were produced across St. Paul's Avenue aforesaid, be closed and stopped up save and except for foot traffic."

The City now applies to the Board to have a vehicular and pedestrian subway constructed at St. Paul's Avenue under the tracks of the railway company. St. Paul's Avenue is an important highway and a subway under the tracks of the railway at St. Paul's Avenue would, undoubtedly, be of great benefit to the City. I think the City should be granted permission to construct a subway in accordance with plans to be approved by the Board's Engineer.

U.S. TROOPS ARE READY FOR FRONT

America Willing to Send Men When Transport Ships Are to be Had

Washington, May 2.—The French commissioners to-day had assurance that the American Government is willing to send troops to France, one of the urgent recommendations they brought to this country—when the allies believe they can afford to spare the necessary ships for transporting an army and its equipment across the Atlantic.

The Administration has put aside the objections of the army general staff to sending any troops to the battle front until a big force has been raised and trained for nearly a year, and has decided that for the sake of the moral effect of actual participation by the United States in the trench battling a small contingent shall go forward as soon as possible. This will be soon, it is believed, although the Government is mindful that nearly 500,000 tons of shipping would be required for a regular army unit of 24,000 men and that this amount would have to be diverted from carrying food.

Both British and French commissioners were enthusiastic over the prospects. It was believed President Wilson would informally discuss plans for an American expedition to-day with Rene Vivanti, Marshal Joffre and Admiral Chocheprat, leaders of the French mission, whom he expected to lunch at the White House.

NORWEGIAN LOSSES.
Christiania, Norway, May 2.—via London.—Seventy-five Norwegian vessels were sunk by German submarines in April and more than 100 sailors lost their lives. If such a monthly loss was maintained Norway's merchant navy would be destroyed in a year and a half.

NORSE SHIPS SUNK.
London, May 2.—According to the Central News the Norwegian foreign office has announced the sinking of the Norwegian Steamers Hectoria and Landand by German submarines. The crews were saved.

RUSSIANS QUIT MUSH

Retirement on Caucasian Front Continues, Say Turks

Constantinople, Tuesday, May 1.—via London, May 2.—1.50 p.m.—The evacuation by the Russians of Mush in Turkish Armenia, is announced by the war office. The town has been occupied by the Turks. Retirement of the Russians on the Caucasian front apparently has been under way for several days, although announcement to this effect has come from Petrograd. The official Turkish announcement of Monday said the Russians were withdrawing at various points.

Mush is an important town 83 miles southeast of Erzerum and forty miles west of Lake Van. The Russians have been in possession of virtually all of Turkish Armenia since last year, and there has been no indication of any change in the military situation which would cause them to retire. In fact the Russian armies further south and the British allies in Mesopotamia have won a series of striking victories in the last few months.

THE SITUATION

The French are successfully consolidating their gains in Champagne, and on the British front there is much aerial activity, pressing, it is believed a further onslaught. There is great activity, both among the Allies and the foe in the matter of bringing up guns and supplies.

During April Haig's official report shows that 19,343 Germans were taken prisoner, and he also records the capture for the same period of 257 guns and howitzers, 227 trench mortars and 470 machine guns.

The internal situation in Germany is evidently exceedingly menacing. The authorities have sealed all news exits, but enough has leaked out to show that the people are very restive. Papers and Socialists are indulging in plain talk, with a freedom never before tolerated, and it is evident that Prussianism, as such, is doomed.

Disorders are reported in Petrograd, but apparently were not of a general nature. There is some talk in the interior of a threatened jacquerie. That was the name given to insurgent peasants in France in the middle of the fourteenth century when they devastated the land in a most appalling way in order to enforce demands.

The sub menace still occupies the foreground of public attention in the Old Land. Lord Percy, the ship expert with the British mission now in Washington, stated in an interview that the present rate of British construction and estimated rate of U. S. production will not be sufficient to replace losses.

Lloyd George is said to have conducted a personal investigation, with a view to more effective remedial measures. Meanwhile Germany is stated to regard the results of the undersea warfare as a splendid lever for peace terms. She evidently doesn't even yet know John Bull.

A British success is reported over the Bulgarians.

BARRING ALIENS FROM THE BALLOT.

At a meeting of the Toronto City Council on Monday, the following resolution was carried by a vote of 17 to 5:

"That this Council petition the Dominion Parliament to provide that only such naturalized natives of alien enemy countries that have lived in Canada for 25 years shall be allowed to exercise the franchise at any election in war time, or until otherwise provided, except such naturalized natives of alien enemy countries that are on active service themselves or have sons or daughters on active service in the Canadian Expeditionary Force or other of His Majesty's forces."

The proposal is drastic, but it has undoubtedly been aroused from the fact that Germany and her allies have so utterly and completely violated all the laws of decency and humanity, that British feeling revolts at men of those races having any say in electoral matters. As affairs stand, they possess great voting power. Take the case of Saskatchewan.

In that Province recently the Liberal Government decided to give the soldier vote by giving them three members from among themselves. This, of course, was to prevent the scattered influence of their ballots in the various constituencies. In that Province, no less than forty-six per cent. of the residents are of foreign origin, and one-sixth of the population Germans and Austrians. The soldier vote is restricted, and these aliens may well turn the tide in more than one Riding. It is a menace such as this at which the Toronto Council resolution is aimed.

SUBS SNEAKING OUT

By Courier Leased Wire. London, May 2.—In the House of Commons to-day Sir Edward Carson, first lord of the admiralty, said there had been suspicions that enemy submarines had destroyed allied and neutral shipping, and he was finding their way out from enemy ports through neutral waters. He added that this subject had been under consideration from time to time.

FOULING THE DOMINION NEST.

The Stratford Beacon (Liberal) strongly approves of a recent article in the Woodstock Sentinel-Review, also Liberal, as follows:—

"We have the assurance of a supporter of the Borden government that history will say it authorized a military expedition as many of Canada's sons were willing to serve on the field of battle. We don't know what history will say of the Borden Government," says the Woodstock Sentinel-Review, but unless a change comes very soon history will have an opportunity of saying that if the governments of the other countries engaged on the side of the entente allies had done no more than did the Canadian Government the battle for liberty would probably have been lost.

History will much more correctly say that in no other country save Canada, has a vicious press gone to such an extreme extent in attempting to hamper and deride Government effort on behalf of the war, as that attempted by certain Grit sheets in the Dominion.

Unprejudiced observers fully realize and appreciate what the Borden Government has accomplished. Here is one tribute, for instance, from the Boston Herald:—"Canada has found itself in the past two years and a half. It has been through the fire of a test such as few dependencies have ever had to face, and it is coming out of the fire not only welded closer to the British Empire, but of empire strength itself. It has set an example and has had experiences that are very likely to prove of much value to us on this side of the border in the months ahead."

"Remember that to do things on the scale that Canada has been doing since the summer of 1914, the United States would raise and train and equip an army of 5,000,000 men in a little over two years, and ship 4,000,000 of them across the Atlantic. It would raise and spend no less than $12,000,000,000 for war purposes. Yet when the warcloud burst over the world, Canada was fully as unprepared as we have been. Its army which has grown to 400,000 soldiers was smaller than the militia of Massachusetts, and its resources and industries, now splendidly mobilized and efficiently organized for the great work in hand, were on the most peaceful kind of a peace basis.

"Small wonder that our patriotic gatherings listen with much regret to the deep breath of Canadian speakers. One thing is certain, the Canada of the future is not to be looked on with anything resembling the superior air that we have habitually worn on the most peaceful kind of a peace basis. The peace that has made it unnecessary to build a fort along the 3,000 miles of border will continue, but it is not to be the peace of the condescending kindness of a big brother to a helpless youngster. An American only belittles himself if he fails to recognize and applaud the great things that Canada has done in this world crisis."

True, every word of it, and yet the disquieting spectacle has been presented for months of certain Grit sheets depicting Canada as lagging in directive force and achievement. Reprehensible political aims have been their sole and unworthy object.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

In the matter of warmer weather May evidently just now won't.

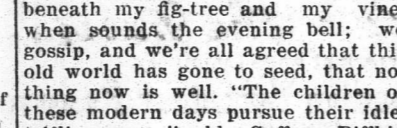

Germany has decided to confiscate most of the wheat from her farmers. In return they will be given some more grains for thought.

It is announced from Ottawa that when Premier Borden returns a measure will be submitted to extend the life of parliament. Then those Grits who have been talking of forcing a war time election will have to show their hands.

The finding of the Board of Railway Commissioners with regard to the St. Paul's Ave. subway gets the much needed improvement just that much further ahead. Action should be the next thing in order.

There's one thing the cold Spring hasn't succeeded in killing and that is the house cleaning microbe. Mercantile as usual at this annual period, is made to realize that he is a mere worm of the earth and lucky to get a hard boiled egg for dinner in the kitchen, while lovely woman goes around with a towel around her head and all the furniture yanked on the verandah.

Universal Liberty at Stake in the War

By Courier Leased Wire.

London, May 1.—Lieutenant-General Jan Smuts, who was relieved of the command of the British forces operating against the Germans in German East Africa to attend the Imperial Conference here received the freedom of the City of London yesterday. General Smuts said:

"The United States entered the struggle because like us, she recognized that universal liberty was at stake. Our ideal is to be free to build up our country under a sky of our own. We cannot do that while the terrorism of militarism overshadows us. The end of the struggle is coming nearer, there is no doubt about that. There are difficult anxious and dangerous weeks ahead which will apply as severe a test to the ally assumed on this side of the border. The peace that has made it unnecessary to build a fort along the 3,000 miles of border will continue, but it is not to be the peace of the condescending kindness of a big brother to a helpless youngster. An American only belittles himself if he fails to recognize and applaud the great things that Canada has done in this world crisis."

PRESENTATION TO MR. GEORGE CROOKS

Courier and Employee Honored Veteran Member Retiring From Service

An event of once pleasing and impressive took place yesterday afternoon in the office of The Courier, when Mr. George Crooks, who after long years of faithful service has retired from active work in the composing room of the paper, was made the recipient of an umbrella and a pair of gold cuff links as a token of the esteem in which he is held by the employees of all classes alike. The presentation was made by Mr. J. Finch, Mr. George Moore reading the following address:

Dear Mr. Crooks: Typo: The members of The Courier's Chapel, office, Editorial and pressroom staff have learned with feelings of sincere regret, your decision to retire from the employ of The Courier as an active every-day worker, after having served some twenty-eight years, faithfully and well, the greater part of that time, as Foreman of the Composing Room. It is not given to every man to be able to point to such a record of continuous service in the employ of one firm.

During that period you have, in deed, seen many changes. Few, in fact, are left in this office or city of the followers of the craft who were wont to ply their trade at the "take", and have ended their final copy with the symbolic "30"; others are scattered far and wide. In that time, you, no doubt, have spent many, many happy hours, the thoughts of which will bring warmth of gladness to your heart. But, we realize that in all those years of your labor among us, none will bring a fuller sense of happiness than the thought of duty faithfully and honorably performed; duty to your employers, and justice and fair dealing to those under you, as Foreman, and with you as comrades in work.

The members of the staffs in grateful recognition of your long labors among us, and as a token of the esteem and regard in which you are present for your acceptance this slight testimonial. It is the joint contribution of all the employees of this office, and is intended as an ever-present reminder to you of the hours you have passed in our society. Receive it dear friend, and let it represent to you that subtle depth of feeling that words cannot define or language express, and be assured that our earnest hope and prayer is that you will long be spared to see our "old down" your "sit," if not so often as in the past, at least once in a while.

So you'll sometimes think of us, George,
As the boys who are thinking of you,
The comrades of keyboard and stick,
Whose memory of you is true and blue.

And until the "last take" from life's book
In the "last form" is molded and cold,
You'll have proof you can read like a book
That our friendship for you is pure gold.

Signed on behalf of "The Courier Chapel": The Courier, Pressroom, The Courier Office Staff, The Courier Editorial Staff.
Mr. Crooks replied with a few feeling and appreciative words, thanking all for the expression of their kindness and for their co-operation with him in the daily work.

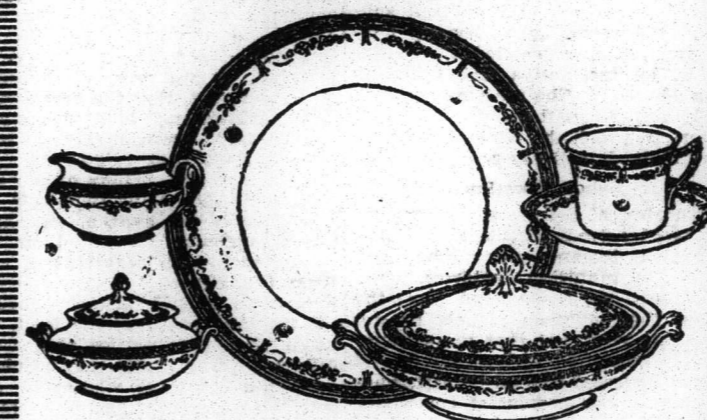

WESLEY CHURCH CHOIR CONCERT

Annual Entertainment of Successful Order Held Last Night

The annual concert of the Wesley Church Choir was greeted by an encouraging attendance last night, especially in view of the unfavorable weather conditions. The artists were all excellent and displayed ability of an unusually high order. The programme was well balanced and consisted of violin, vocal and instrumental selections, and readings. Miss Helen Hunt, violinist, of Toronto, who delighted the audience with several pleasing numbers that were exceptionally well rendered. Miss S. Smith, the well-known local elocutionist, gave "Cigarette's Ride" and "The Teacher's Sleightride" both of which were well received. Mrs. E. Barton, and Messrs. Walter Carpenter and E. McKinley, each contributed some beautiful vocal solos well above the average merit, while Mrs. Barton and Mr. McKinley contributed a pleasing duet, "O that we too were Maying." Mr. Neil McCreedy, "Marjorie Green" most acceptably, and the Wesley male quartette rendered "Love's Old Sweet Song" very creditably. Miss Rose Tremble most sweetly sang "An Old Garden" that was heartily applauded. The artists participating in the programme were uniformly good, and their selections were of a splendid calibre, such as to delight the well filled church. The proceeds of the event will be devoted to the general choir fund.

CHURCH UNO DISCUSSED BY HAMILTON AND LONDON SYNOD

Lengthy Debate at Yesterday's Sitting of Presbyterian Body Threatened at Times to Precipitate a Crisis; Other Business of the Synod

The meeting of the Hamilton and London Presbyterian Synod yesterday afternoon was exceedingly interesting, being featured by the consideration of several important subjects, the reception of reports containing valuable knowledge, and followed by instructive and illuminating addresses. The meeting concluded by an animated debate on church union, in which the respective speakers indulged in lively repartee.

Labor Question

"In view of the present movement for greater production and involving increased demand for labor on farms, in munition factories, and elsewhere, we recommend to the synod that summer schools be not held this year, but that the summer school committee be continued, and that it be asked to include its efforts in helping the provincial committee of national resources to forward its work and turn the attention of its constituents toward the new movement of national service." Such was the text of a recommendation that was made to the synod by the committee having charge of the summer schools for the past year. The resolution was presented after the report of the years' work had been made by the Rev. Mr. Sheppard, who stated that during the existing conditions, the summer schools at Grimby and Leamington had not during the past year achieved the success that had been anticipated. The attendance had not been satisfactory, owing chiefly to the fact that the undertaking had not been sufficiently advertised, and had not been familiar enough to those who would be eligible for attendance. The committee were not, however, discouraged, but adhered to their original intention of establishing these summer schools as a permanent institution in connection with the synod, but thought that it would be advisable to defer further activities along this line until after the war, when the situation would be more favorable. The resolution was carried, and a committee appointed for the coming year.

Dr. Dickie of Chatham read the report dealing with the Sunday school work in the synod during the past year. The different phases of the church's relation with the younger people were related with the report on the Sunday schools, the young peoples' societies, and the teacher training courses being particularly commented upon. The speaker pointed out the advantage of the church displaying more interest in the other institutions that affected the life of the younger people, the home, the schools, and the community. While the home was the fundamental basis of Christian education, the church was also interested in the public schools, an aim the Sunday schools, over which it could exert an influence both beneficial and inspiring. The adoption of the report was moved by Dr. Dickie, who found a seconder in the Rev. Mr. Knox of London.

The Rev. Mr. Myers.

of Toronto, who is actively engaged in this work under the jurisdiction of the church, gave an interesting address on the topic dealt with in the report. This section, he contended, was not only the garden of the province, economically but it was the center of Sunday school endeavor and work among the younger people generally. In reviewing the country from coast to coast, the range, significance and magnitude of the tasks being met and administered by the church was marvellous. The great task of the church, he thought was to spiritualize the life of man, and this object was being successfully accomplished by working on a wide scope, and contending with the many problems confronting the Presbyterian church in common with other denominations, by casting broadcast, the message of the Master, and instilling into the plastic minds of the young, the principles of Christianity. The board of Sunday schools and young peoples' societies, of the General Assembly was as yet in its infancy, and forms a striking contrast with the other boards, whose undertakings involve expenditure on a huge scale, and the results of whose work may be presented in a more tangible form. The accomplishments of this small board however, were realistic and actual, and while the expense were not comparable with some of the other organizations of the church, nevertheless the consequences would justify the energy that had been put into it. Everything else would fall through the speaker unless the rising generation were reared, instructed and trained within the church. He made the startling announcement that over fifty per cent of the boys and girls in the teen age were outside the reach of the Sunday schools, and of the balance who attended, only three out of every ten were communicants. There existed, he thought, a crying need of a devoted curriculum, and this had been prepared and had passed by the action of the general assembly. Every phase of Christian education had been provided for, and in this respect the Presbyterian church was in the forefront of progress. The features that had been incorporated in the curriculum, were unity of the different subjects to be studied; progressiveness, that the work must be adaptable to the age of the scholar; comprehensive, as much as was possible; and lastly an attempt had been made to encourage regular church attendance where the young people might gain inspiration, and training in self-expression. It was now ever becoming more apparent, that the organization of the church must be greatly simplified so as to include all the many organizations that existed to uplift the boy and girl. Many of these existed while not being definitely connected with the church, and hence much overlapping resulted, as well as the attraction of attention away from the church. The quality of leadership should also be improved into the youth of the land, that when the opportunities that would follow the war arose, they would be competent to meet the exigencies of the situation, if the intelligence of the people and the prosperity of the land were governed by moral forces. This could be brought about through the personality of the preachers in the churches. In conclusion, the speaker stated, "My challenge to you to-day is fathers, encouragement and enthusiasm. Learn the best principles that are known, and go forth to inspire the boys and girls of the to-morrow."

Foreign Missions.

The Rev. Mr. Smith presented a highly satisfactory report on foreign missions. This work of the church was not dependent upon sound financial conditions, but mainly upon primarily upon the true missionary atmosphere. He maintained that there were a large number of members and adherents of churches in the United States, but that they were doing nothing toward the upkeep of foreign missions. The remedy for this state of affairs, Mr. Smith believed, could be found in concentrating an extensive propaganda of information, information he described as the mother of interest. In his opinion, missions formed the greatest asset of the church, and constituted the world programme of Jesus Christ, which must be regularly and systematically kept before the attention of the church members. It never before been so insistently directed to the church to participate in the forward tendency of the times and this call was greatly emphasized by the present war. He stated that the time has struck for the greatest drive that the church has ever made, both at home and abroad, "emphatically declared the speaker, "shall be our response," he demanded. He stated that the Dominion is spending as much in three days on the front as the present church is spending in Canada to evangelize and foreign missions in a year, and that if we had not been so niggardly in our expenditures along this line in the past we should not now be passing through the deep waters.

Dr. Menzies.

For the past twenty-two years, Dr. Menzies has been engaged in mission work in Hong Kong, China, and he was thus thoroughly competent to give the splendid address with which he favored the gathering. He gave a clear insight into the work that had been accomplished in that foreign field by the Presbyterian church since the field had been opened, and mission outposts of Christianity established. When war had commenced, the missionaries had anxiously awaited callings in funds, and supplies, but these expectations were limited and had not been experienced, and the work had progressed, interrupted or delayed only through the departure of medical missionaries and other workers, for the front in France. That his hearers might have a better understanding of the vast undertaking in China, the speaker reviewed the early history of Cathay, how European mariners had first discovered its existence, and how their approach and entrance had been opposed and resisted by the exclusive and prejudiced Chinese people who refused to acquaint themselves with advanced western ideas and ideals. There had been no desire on the part of the Chinese for intercourse with foreign nations, and all commercial and diplomatic relations had been forced by the intruders. It was with extreme reluctance that he was absorbing himself from his work said Dr. Menzies, and only pressure of important personal matters compelled him to remain away for a term from the scene of his activities for the past twenty-two years. He outlined the obstacles that had been encountered and surmounted, so that while the mass of the people and the government was at first antagonistic and violently opposed to the religion of Christ, the main, and, in fact, many of the high officials of the land are now Christians, while over three hundred thousand have been converted from the masses. The education system with a single stroke has been revolutionized and replaced by Western methods, the missionaries acting as teachers of the new learning. The other peoples of the world, and especially those of the Orient, do not realize that the entrance into the war on the part of China meant, to the world as affecting the ultimate outcome of the struggle. The country had been organized by German agents an months after the outbreak of hostilities, false reports had been circulated in the newspapers containing accounts of alleged German successes. This condition of affairs does not now prevail, however, and the Chinese people have learned the truth and have decided to throw their resources at the command of Great Britain and her allies. The work was proceeding, but there is at present an absolute necessity for two doctors, and Dr. Menzies made an appeal to the synod to locate two qualified doctors who would be willing to work in that field and will have been commensated, and their own medical men had returned from serving with the colors. There was also a need for more missionaries, and he could conceive of nothing greater or nobler than to be engaged in missionary work there at this time of transition in the nation's history, to assist in laying the foundations of Christianity in the land.

Overture from Huron Presbytery.
An overture from the Presbytery of Huron was ardently supported by a strong delegation from that district of the synod. The subject of the overture was addressed to the general assembly in main, read as follows:

It is respectfully overtured by the Presbytery of Bruce that the general assembly do not take steps toward the immediate consummation of organic union, but by incorporation and Christian fellowship seek to maintain and strengthen the present unity that exists between the religious bodies. To this was attached a preamble setting forth the reasons for the overture. The Presbytery requested the synod to express approval of the overture to the general assembly. The chief advocates in support of the overture were Revs. Little and Gale.

The overture, which was indeed a tragic circumstance to disrupt the church of the fathers of the present members, in fact, he contended it would be almost equivalent as entire and complete obliteration. If the union movement were the work of God it could not be broken, but he did not believe that it was inspired by Him. He pointed out that the continuance of the controversy would only widen the breach and that he was not assured that the movement was the result of prolonged and earnest prayer. It did not tend to maintain harmony in the churches. The church body were generally judicious enough to not discuss the matter, and it was principally the laymen who were agitating for change. Some years ago the union had been regarded as an economic necessity but with the passing of time, the maintenance of church work, the falsity of this argument was apparent. He would not be satisfied, declared the speaker, "until the movement of God's until the mass of the people supported it. The Rev. Mr. Gale presented a protracted debate in which he compared the proposals of the Methodist church to the blushing young maiden, and the Presbyterians to the sturdy but thoughtful young man who deplored his late in connection with the ceremony. There was a lively interchange of argument, numerous speakers advancing their views from different viewpoints. The fight of Bruce Presbytery made the state-ment that in this city permission to place literature opposing the union in the vestibule of one of the local churches had been refused. This refusal, declared the Rev. A. Wood, together with the acceptance of the report of the social service committee, calling for Dominion race track gambling, and the doing away with the present open canteen system prevalent in English military camps. The report of the auditors stated that the books of the synod had been kept in good condition during the year and showed a balance on hand of $979.33.

Home Missions.

The report of the Home Missions committee was introduced by the Rev. J. G. Miller of St. Mary's, who gave most interesting statistics concerning the work of the main power branch of church work. The machinery of the organization, he pointed out, was working satisfactorily, but the chief element essential was the person who was the main power. Religion was the soul of national life, it was not machinery, but rather the means whereby men inspired of God should lead the nation to a higher plane of life. In order to cope with the vital issue of home missions, ardent and diligent work was essential. Enthusiasm and gifted personality among the youth of the nation. The speaker in closing, introduced a resolution calling upon the ministry of the synod to keep the claims of the ministry ever before the people of their congregations. After the address of the seconder, the resolution was carried.

Rev. Mr. Sedgwick.
"The New Canada That Ought to Be" was the subject of an impressive and elevating atmosphere from the gifted lips of the Rev. Mr. Sedgwick of Hamilton, who seconded the resolution of Mr. Miller. Whether or not a new Canada should evolve from out the pain and turmoil of the present war, he considered, depended upon the spirit of the men who returned home from the front, and upon that of us who remained at home. He held forth hope for a new life, spiritual in its essence, humanity in its expression, piety wedded to it to humanity and humanity transfused by piety. In the mediaeval ages, when men of every creed resorted to violence to enforce their belief, piety existed, separated from humanity. To-day the tendency was rather to divorce piety from humanity. Humanity characterized the present age, but piety could scarcely be said to do so. Few atheists there were in this world, more agnostics but a still greater majority were in their expression, piety wedded to it, but consumed by the things of this world. The speaker scored the ideal of the present age, characterizing all attempts to establish morality without God as building upon sand, and holding forth as watchwords in the life of the new Canada, the phrases "Supremacy of Science above Scripture" and "Supremacy of Principle Above Party." He went on to speak against political corruption, which, he charged was doing to death the higher things in our national life to-day, and querying the profit of crushing the Teuton war machine, if the home political machine were left untouched. The fight over the bar-room system, rather, and the next great moral campaign must be against political corruption. The first step in this was the abolition of the patronage system, rather than the regard for party service, a public office should be regarded as the opportunity for public service. The after war problem was next masterfully grappled with by Mr. Sedgwick, who proceeded to a discussion of what is to be done with the instincts called into being by the war. The British army he characterized as the greatest triumph in democracy the world had ever known, all classes being united in one national ideal. Upon the degree of the returning men depended the degree in which this spirit might be perpetuated throughout the Dominion.

The report of the Evangelist and Social Service Com. was read by Mr. Patterson of Sarnia, who deplored the increasing disregard for the sanctity of the Sabbath, considering that the crisis had reacted an acute stage through the war, and that the door had been opened by Sunday work in munition work to a practice against which all the forces of the church must be mustered in order to transmit to posterity the heritage of a sacred Sabbath. The enactment of prohibition legislation in the province was approved, and the opinion expressed that race track gambling should be abolished. Recommendations were made and adopted to the effect that, the synod petition the Dominion Government to enact a Federal Prohibition law forbidding manufacture, importation or sale of intoxicating liquors or falling such legislation a majority plebiscite of the persons to be affected. The anti-war canteen system in vogue in military camps of the old land.

Dr. Johnson.
"Home Missions" were most ably and graphically dealt with by Dr. Johnson, of Montreal in a vigorous and inspiring address pulsating with enthusiasm and gifted personality of the speaker. He emphasized the necessity of keeping the fire of mission work burning, dwelling upon the great importance of services which to the door might appear trivial and inconsequential. Canada to-day was a cosmopolitan nation, and it was to-day, the future was bright as the promises of God could make it, and Canada might become to become that city of spiritual mention, "four square, its length, breadth and width equal, dwellers dwell righteousness." Never before such an opportunity exist as in the Dominion of Canada to-day, and the speaker closed his address with the striking appeal "Who, then, is striking this day to concentrate mind to the Lord?"

Upon the motion of Mr. Wood, seconded by Mr. Miller, a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Dr. Johnson for his presentation of the greater part of the evening meeting and for the instructive addresses he had delivered.

PRESIDING JUDGE.
Toronto, May 1.—Mr. Peter O'Loughlin of the American League is known throughout the entire baseball world, is a native and resident of the city of Rochester, N.Y. Doubtless many wonder why he is in Toronto. He is known by the nickname of "Silk." Some people ascribe it to the high quality of his work, but that is not how he won the title. When he was a very young man he had long silky hair which caused his brother to call him "Silk." The other boys were quick to take this up and "Silk" has been from that day to this a name of respect in the ranks of amateur baseball clubs, and he was drafted into the ranks of an amateur in his home city where he was connected with some of the best amateur teams of the city and surrounding towns. He played amateur ball until the year 1893 when his general technical knowledge of the game was recognized and he was drafted into the ranks of the city of Rochester and vice versa. The city of Rochester and vice versa has always been noted for its splendid amateur clubs, and the rivalry, that has existed between teams of that city and neighboring towns and villages.

SPORTING VIEW.
Toronto, May 1.—Arrangements have been made between the Toronto Baseball Club and the Northcliffe publications in England for transmission of baseball news. The Mayor's Club has proposed to take up with Sir George Perceval Canadian overseas minister, the matter of furnishing various kinds of trophies with various kinds of sporting news from Canada.

Major League Schedules for 1918 to be Cancelled Unless Peace Comes. New York, May 1.—There may be no major league baseball next year.

San Johnson, president of the American League, flatly stated his belief today that unless peace comes by December and conscription as now stands goes through it will be necessary for the two big leagues to call their 1918 schedule off.

Governor John K. Tener, president of the National League, foreseeing the conscription of hundreds of young ball players, said he did not believe baseball could continue under such conditions.

FRANCE TO TRAIN SOLDIERS OF U.S.

A Force of Regulars May be Sent Within Three Months. Washington, May 1.—President Wilson and his Cabinet held a very brief session today, and it became known definitely that the prevailing view among Administration officials is that a force should be sent as soon as possible.

The French viewpoint toward armed assistance from the United States may be summarized as follows: 1. American troops to be sent across the Atlantic within three months, the first battalion to embark possibly a month earlier than that.

2. The original contingent to consist of regulars, fully armed, equipped and drilled, and with a full complement of machine gunners, cyclists and other auxiliary effectives of 20,000 men.

THIS WOMAN TO THIS MAN

—BY— C. N. and A. M. Williamson (COPYRIGHT)

From Tuesday's Daily. The girl sat up shivering, though from heated by steam, had not been bitterly cold when the grate...

She hated the very word "plan" in the story of the trick he had played on the Savoy. She hated the way to talk with him; but it was necessary. They ought to arrange something for the future—something and hateful future—before she came, and daily life began...

As she hesitated, Knight—who was a knight no longer in her eyes—knocked the door, very softly, not allowing her to see the light which pale in the uncurtained window, their eyes met.

Annesley slipped off the bed and stood up, cloaking her bare white neck with her hair. Suddenly she felt that he was a strange man who had no right to be in her room. He was not the husband she had loved with a beautiful and sacred love.

"I won't come if you'd rather," he said. "I only looked in to see if you were awake. I thought perhaps it would be best to talk about what's to be done." He spoke quietly, standing at the door. He was dressed for the day, as if nothing had happened; and Annesley felt dimly resentful because he looked bathed and well-groomed, his dark hair smooth and carefully brushed; altogether just his usual self, except that he was pale and very grave.

"You had better come in, I suppose," the girl replied grudgingly. "I was thinking that—that we must talk. Let us—get it over quickly."

"You haven't been to bed, I see," she said, his eyes lingering on her body. He flushed, then said, "Annesley's mind that it was as if he were looking for the last time at the sweetness and happiness of life. But her heart did not seem to him. It was his fault alone that there was no longer any happiness or sweetness left in either of their lives."

"No, I haven't been to bed," she stammered. "But it doesn't matter. I am ill at all. Please let us not waste time in discussing me. There are other things."

"Yes, there are other things," he said. "But we'll not begin to talk of them until you have got into bed and covered yourself up. You're as white as marble."

"I don't want," she began; but he cut her short. "What will Parker think if she finds your bed hasn't been slept in?"

"Oh, very well!" Annesley assented impatiently. "I must get used to tricks."

"Perhaps not," said Knight. "I've been thinking of ways and means. Have you? Because if there's anything you feel you would like to do, you've only to tell me."

"I haven't been able to think," she confessed. "Well, then, I'll tell you what I've thought."

Annesley had now crept into bed; and before she could protest Knight had carefully covered her with the down quilt, having done this, he drew a chair near, yet not too near, and sat down. It was as if he recon-

Good Night Stories

By Blanche Silvert In Butterfly Land

Dorothy lay in the hammock watching the sunbeams that flickered in and out the leaves above her. From the garden came the drone of the bees as they lazily sipped the honey from the flowers. A robin's song floated from the boughs and a lot of yellow hovered, then fluttered down to a leaf and shook out its wings.

"Oh you beautiful butterfly!" Dorothy whispered. "Where did you find the golden coat?" "In Butterfly Land, where it is always sunshine," replied a tiny voice, and Dorothy asked him where that land was, and how one could find it. Then Yellow Butterfly said he would take her to Butterfly Land if she would like to go.

Dorothy laughed as she saw him spread his beautiful yellow wings, but to Dorothy's amazement she found he had to stoop before she could even climb upon them, because she was so tiny. They flew away to the garden and right up to a sunbeam, soon reaching a lovely land of sunshine. Little elves ran here and there with palettes and brushes in their hands, all busy.

"They are our Elf artists, getting ready to work," said Yellow Butterfly, and Dorothy saw several queer little imps drag out an ugly brown cocoon. They pricked it open, and inside lay a tiny ball of white. The Elf Artists placed it tenderly on a leaf and the breeze fanned it, and two gauzy wings unfolded.

One little Elf Artist dipped his brush in the rays from the sun and painted the wings yellow. Another dotted them with blue and black while a third sprinkled dust over them. And when the butterfly spread its golden wings Dorothy cried with awe: "Oh, you gorgeous creature!"

The Golden Butterfly fluttered down a sunbeam out of sight. The Elf Artists dipped their brushes in the pale moonlight and painted some creamy wings; tipped with silver, some with the deep tones taken from the twilight sky, and others a delicate green.

Dorothy clapped her hands as each butterfly came from under the Elf Artist's brush, for it seemed to her each was lovelier than the one before and she was quite sorry when the elf came to take her back to the hammock.

Dorothy opened her eyes in the sunlight, yawned, and there the beautiful Yellow Butterfly was still on the leaf trying his wings. "That golden coat," said Dorothy softly. "And you dainty one," she said, as she saw a tiny Blue Butterfly hovering over a pink rose, you must have dipped your wings in the mist as you fluttered down."

From the garden came the drone of the bees, and from the tree tops burst forth the Robin's song. map; and if you weren't free to marry somebody else, at least you'd be free of me. "But if you won't take my money that plan will not work. You can hate me as much as you like, but I'm not going to leave you alone in the world without a penny. Neither you nor anyone else can force me to that. I've thought of another thing, though, just now, since we began our talk. Only I don't like to propose to you, Anita. It isn't a very good plan—from your point of view."

"Well, I might get a cable hurrying me across to the other side, and you might go along."

"Oh!" "I warned you you wouldn't think it a good plan. But since I've begun let me finish. In Canada and the United States I'm known—in my most important character—as Michael Donaldson, and I've tried to keep the name fairly clean because of my father and mother. When there's been anything shady going I've taken a fancy name and made such changes as I could in myself. The reason I didn't want you to see the name in the register was because of what happened on the Monarchie. I'd given you that ring, you know, I couldn't resist doing that. I wanted you to have it, not because of its value, but because it's beautiful. I thought it was like you, somehow. I had to make up its loss in another way to the men who expected to have it—that 'Napoleon' I mentioned."

"I know, the old man—Paul Van Vreck," Annesley guessed with weary impatience. "I'll not say yes or no to that. But it will be bad for me, and perhaps for you, too, if you ever mention Paul Van Vreck in such a connection to any one else. Not that you'd be believed."

"I shan't mention him to any one else, or to you again."

"Just as well not. But it was my name and my plan I began to speak about. I was going to say, you needn't be afraid that if you took my real name (which is yours now), you'd have to be ashamed of it. We could go to America, and in England Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Smith would soon be forgotten. I'd hand over all the money you hate to charities—not the kind of charities I've been supporting here! They've all been part of what you call my fraud, and have only given me a chance to bring some queer-looking fish around me, who might have raised curiosity if I couldn't have accounted for them. But real charities."

ASPARAGUS WITH FIGS. Boil one bunch of asparagus 20 minutes, cut off the tender tops and lay them on a deep plate, butter, pepper and salt well, then beat four eggs very light; add two tablespoonful of milk or cream and pepper and salt them; pour over the asparagus and bake 10 minutes. This is dainty and very nice.

FOREIGN PRESERVES. Fourteen green tomatoes, 8 pickled limes, 3 pounds brown sugar, 1 tablespoonful ground ginger. Chop the tomatoes and limes, make a syrup of the sugar and cook two hours.

STUFFED CABBAGE. Take a fresh cabbage and remove the centre; fill the cavity with a stuffing made of cooked veal or chicken, chopped very fine, seasoned very lightly, and put into balls with yolk of egg; tie the cabbage firmly together and boil two hours.

ASPARAGUS WITH SAUCE. Cook until tender, but not overdone, in salted water. While cooking make a sauce of the yolks of four eggs well beaten, 1 tablespoon melted butter, 1 tablespoon vinegar, with the juice of 1-2 a lemon, a little nutmeg and salt. Stir until well heated but not boiling. Lay the asparagus upon a platter and pour the sauce over it.

BAKED CORN. Six large ears of corn (or a can sifted), 2 eggs, butter, salt, pepper, milk if desired. Cut through the centre of rows of corn, scrape downward with back of knife blade, add beaten eggs, salt, pepper and bits of butter, pour into buttered pudding dish, bake in slow oven 1-2 or 3-4 hour. Milk may be added, if desired.

Build Up the Blood

It is a hopeless task to try to restore your health when your blood is deficient in quantity or quality. The blood circulates through every portion of the body. It takes nourishment from the food it distributes to the various organs and muscles; it takes also any medication that is administered through the mouth. The blood is the only means by which medicine can reach the nerve force and she was quite sorry when the elf came to take her back to the hammock.

Dorothy opened her eyes in the sunlight, yawned, and there the beautiful Yellow Butterfly was still on the leaf trying his wings. "That golden coat," said Dorothy softly. "And you dainty one," she said, as she saw a tiny Blue Butterfly hovering over a pink rose, you must have dipped your wings in the mist as you fluttered down."

For Home Service

"We should send overseas with as little delay as possible the troops now in Canada which have enlisted for overseas service."

"It is necessary that the country should not be left without an adequate force for home defence in case of emergency."

EDWARD KEMP, Minister of Militia and Defence.

HERE IS YOUR CHANCE— You Men Who Cannot Go Overseas

Take these two statements above and you will realize your opportunity. Who will enlist for Home Defence, and release a trained soldier, ready and anxious to fight in France? You can stay in Canada, yet serve the Empire in its greatest trial. In this day, when every man is needed, you can help to provide adequately for home protection by enlisting in the Canadian Defence Force

The term of enlistment, training, equipment and clothing are the same as for overseas service. Pay the same as that for Militia or Active Service. Separation allowances for married men in addition to pay. Enlist now in the Canadian Defence Force if you are between 18 and 45, physically fit, and anxious to serve to the best of your ability.

For full particulars enquire at Armories of the Regiments listed below. MEN STILL REQUIRED FOR OVERSEAS IN THE CANADIAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCES.

More men are required for reinforcements at the Front. Those who desire to volunteer for Overseas service may enlist through one of the regiments ordered to mobilize for Home Defence.

Military District No. 2—Headquarters, Toronto, Ont.

Brantford, 38th Regiment (Dufferin Rifles). Toronto, 2nd Regiment (Queen's Own Rifles). 10th (Royal Grenadiers). 109th (Highlanders). 110th Irish Regiment.

Hamilton, 13th Royal Regiment. 91st Regiment (Canadian Highlanders). St. Catharines, 19th Lincoln Regiment. Sault Ste. Marie, 51st Regiment (Soo Rifles).

SIDE TALKS

THOSE BIG PROMISES. "What do you mean by that?" "Just what I say. She could promise to serve and obey and keep it, if she tried hard enough, but what does a promise to love or to honor mean? Nobody can promise that. You can only promise to honor anyone as long as he remains honorable. And as for loving—you can't promise to love anyone to-morrow."

But He Didn't Justify Affinities. "Then I suppose you justify all this affinity business," said the Author's wife tartly. "Certainly not," said the Author. "You can't promise to love a person forever but you can promise to be faithful to him."

"Can you promise not to fall in love with anyone else?" wondered Molly. "Yes," said the Author. "I think you can—or almost. You can't promise to be expected. Obey and serve are the only two things she could promise to do and so she leaves them out."

"The whole trouble," said the Author, "is that we expect too much."

"Trouble with what?" said Molly. "With marriage," said the Author. "Now take the marriage ceremony, it's a perfect crystallization of our false attitude towards the whole thing. What is it the bride promises—let me see—to obey him and serve him, love and honor him."

She Didn't Say "Obey." "She didn't say 'obey' broke in Molly, "didn't you notice. She always said she wouldn't and she did not."

"So?" said the Author. "Well that's to be expected. Obey and serve are the only two things she could promise to do and so she leaves them out."

"The whole trouble," said the Author, "is that we expect too much."

Children Cry For FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

THE TRAIL OF THE HUNS! THE NEW "KULTUR."

Here is a picture of the former smiling town of Chauny in the Noyon Salient evacuated by the Germans. It was not shelled by the Allies but dynamited by the Germans as they retreated, thus adding to the long list of Hun barbarisms.

Children Cry For FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

CHILDREN'S DRESS. By Anabel Worthington. should have the style of dress illustrated in No. S.261. It is the simplest kind of a one piece bloomer dress and is surprisingly easy to make. The dress opens all the way down the front and so is very little trouble to iron. It has the new style belt, with a broad piece in the front which suddenly divides into two narrow belts, fastening at the back. The long or short sleeves are a matter of choice. The shape of the collar is a little unusual and the cuffs carry out the same design. Full bloomers are a part of the pattern and are to be made to match the frock. They fit smoothly around the hips and are finished with a narrow belt.

The bloomer dress pattern No. S.261 is cut in five sizes: 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. As on the figure the 8 year size requires 4 1/2 yards 36 inch, with 5/8 yard 36 inch contrasting material. The separate dress takes 3 yards 36 inch and the separate bloomers take 1 1/2 yards 36 inch.

To obtain this pattern send ten cents to the school and pay every small girl to the office of this publication.
