Notice.
Complying with widely expressed public opinion as voiced by the Press and individual citizens, we, the undersigned members of the Municipal Board, deem it our duty to offer our services to the City for the next two years.
While making this announcement as a body, we wish it to be clearly understood that we are standing as individuals, and desire to express our readiness as individuals to work with any Mayor or with any other Councilors that the Citizens may see fit to elect.
In respect to the Charter which has been submitted to the Legislature, we beg to state that while firmly of opinion that its adoption will enable the City to be more effectively governed than at present, we have always recognized that some of its provisions are debatable. We have supposed that the Legislature and the Citizens would carefully consider such sections and would arrive at some decision in respect to them which would be generally satisfactory.
We can point with some satisfaction, if not with pride, to the improvements which have been made during our short term of office, and it is in the hope that we may be able to complete and perfect the work begun, and to institute further improvements, that we now signify our willingness to serve the City for another term of two years.

To the Ratepayers of St. John's.
At the request of a large number of my friends, both East and West, I have decided to place myself in nomination at the forthcoming Municipal Election. Owing to the limited time between now and Polling Day, and the possibility of not being able to call on every elector personally, I would kindly ask them to accept this card as a personal canvass. I promise, if elected, to use all my energies to see that the civic taxes are spent judiciously.

"KYRA,"

OR,
The Ward of the Earl of Vering.

CHAPTER XV.

her fingers in it, and wiped them on her napkin, then rose from the table, and deliberately walked round the room, eyeing the pictures, and examining the whole room, as if for an inventory, then she glided slowly, with undulating grace to the curried rug, and, slipping down on it, hurried herself up like a statue of meditation.

Mrs. Taping looked down at her from a respectful distance with profound admiration; here was a curiosity indeed! Talking parrots, green shells, monkeys even, were nothing to this beautiful, living creature from foreign parts. Mrs. Taping couldn't take her eyes off until Kyra suddenly raised her own full, dark ones, and then Mrs. Taping's dropped like lead. Kyra looked hard at her for a moment then spoke.

"Tell Kyra where Mr. Chester has gone."
No pen could write the English tongue as she spoke it—so carefully, so sweetly, and yet so naively broken. The "Mr. Chester" was like a chord on a harp.

"He has gone to see my lord, his uncle, miss," replied Mrs. Taping. Kyra pointed to a chair, into which Mrs. Taping dropped, with instant obedience.

"The lord; that is a great chief? And where is his wigwam—no, house?"
"Over there, miss," replied Mrs. Taping, pointing in the direction of the Wold. "You'll see it soon, I dare say; Mr. Chester didn't take you, I expect, because of my lord's illness; he couldn't, when one comes to think of it."

"The Wold!" repeated Kyra, springing noiselessly to her feet. "Show me."

Mrs. Taping drew the heavy curtains of the bay window aside. It was a moonlight night, and The Wold stood out as distinctly as if it were carved in silver.

"There it is, my dear. Ah! isn't it a beautiful place? That's where Mr. Chester has gone."

"Are you certain—sure?" asked Kyra, with grave regard.

"Why, where else should he go, miss?" retorted the landlady, with a humoring smile. "Seeing that his have lived and died in it ever since Vering was Vering, and that it will be his own when—" She stopped.

"Yes, my dear; that's where he's gone, but he'll come back to you soon; I heard him say so."
"Soon?" asked Kyra, in a voice that was throbbing wildly with fiery, scornful impatience.

"Yes, very soon, no doubt," said Mrs. Taping. "I dare say you miss him," she added, drawing the curtains to again. "What shall we do? Would you like to look at the picture-book?"

Kyra sank on to the hearth rug, acquiescingly, and Mrs. Taping placed one of the silver candelabra on the floor beside her, propped up a sofa cushion in front of Kyra, and opened a huge volume of the Illustrated London News.

"There, my dear, that's full of pictures; and there's plenty more volumes when that's done with. And now I'll go and see about some tea, and a nice cake, and—Lord bless the child! she looks at me with the eyes of a woman of twenty."

And poor, bewildered Mrs. Taping hustled out of the room.
No sooner had she gone than Kyra slid upward and sprang noiselessly to the window, drew back the curtain, and peered out upon the silver towers of The Wold. Like a young fawn, motionless and graceful, ready to be stratled at the slightest sound, she stood and murmured:

"What for does he leave me—my brave, my chief? Who is the other chief?—he not Kyra's chief? Why he leave Kyra for him? Oh, come back—come back!" And she stretched out her long arms imploringly. "Kyra no live, no sleep, while her brave away from her. How long will you leave her alone—how long?"

Some part of this pitiful prayer was in broken English, some part in her own liquid tongue.
The footstep of the landlady was heard outside. In a moment the Indian girl had regained her former position before the fire and was turning over the leaves of the Illustrated London News with an air and attitude of content that would have deceived a more astute individual than kind-hearted, simple Mrs. Taping, who bustled about and got the tea in, poured out some in a delicate china cup, and waited on the young heathen with no Christian name as if she had been a princess, noting all the while the fur lining on the girl's dress, her delicate, slightly tinged hands, the slender neck, the tiny feet, and the exquisite loveliness of the face; and wondering where and when Mr. Percy had come across such a rare curiosity, and what he was going to do with it.

"And now," she said, having waited for some time for the girl to address some remark to her, "what shall we do next? Will you have another picture book, miss?"

Kyra shook her head.
"Kyra tired of pictures; Kyra no know what they mean."

She rose to her feet, and folding her arms, gazed down at the fire.

"Kyra go where you've been?" she said, pointing her finger downward.

"So you shall, miss," responded Mrs. Taping, warmly flattered.

"There's nobody downstairs, and you shall come with me; it will amuse you, and I'm sure Mr. Chester wouldn't mind."

"He not mind," said Kyra. "Kyra do what she please. He no say no!" Mrs. Taping smiled.

"No; and I don't wonder at it. Who could say no to such a face as yours? Come along, my dear—miss, I mean. Oh, lud!" and holding the girl's hand she led her downstairs again. "Stop a minute," she said, suddenly, "you mustn't catch cold. I'll fetch your furs, miss."

With a wrap of costly beaver thrown round her, Kyra was conducted into the lower regions of the "Vering Arms." As Mrs. Taping had said, there was no one there excepting Mr. Taping, and he was so reverently respectful that, after a long and flattering stare at this strange ward of the heir of Vering, he effaced himself by retiring into the cosy den behind the bar, and Mrs. Taping pointed him out as one of the objects of interest.

"My husband, miss. What is he doing? Smoking his pipe, miss! No offence—he shall put it out if you like!"
But Kyra didn't like anything of the sort. She drew her hand away and glided to Mr. Taping, who stared in speechless awe.

"Give me," she said—"we are friends."
And, with a smile, she held out her hand for the pipe.

"Mercy on us!" exclaimed Mrs. Taping, turning pale. "If Mr. Percy should see her! 'Twill never do, Taping!"

"I'd give her the sign off the post outside if she asked for it," replied Taping, stoutly. "Here's the pipe, miss; you can break it, if you like, there's plenty more! Only," he added, in alarm, "don't ye burn yourself, for mercy's sake!"

To his surprise and Mrs. Taping's utter dismay, Kyra put the red-mouthed stem to her beautiful lips and gave one puff.

"There see," she said, "Kyra friends now; you give her good dinners, you show her pictures of paleface! She smoke the pipe of peace—it is good!"
"Good!" ejaculated the landlord. "It's awful! What will Mr. Chester say?"

"He say good, too," responded Kyra, promptly, and glided out into the hall again. The door was open, as a matter of course, and she stood on the threshold, her gaze fixed on The Wold, for a minute or two, listening to Mrs. Taping's chat, as it appeared, then turned again with the downcast face that an Indian wears when he is thinking.

"And this your wigwam?" she asked suddenly. "It is fine, large wigwam; and now Kyra go to sleep, sleep."

"That's a dear, good miss!" exclaimed Mrs. Taping. "Just what I was going to suggest. I know you must be almost worn out. Come along, then."

"Good-night," said Kyra, as she passed Mr. Taping again, overwhelming that worthy man by her condescension, and then she glided to her own room.

Mrs. Taping had opened all the four boxes marked with Kyra's name, and had hunted out the nightdress, and aired it with motherly caution. She had, at the same time, taken an admiring and curious peep at the stock of clothes that the evidently important young lady possessed, and longed to take them all out and set them straight, especially one costume of dark Indian red, all decorated over with feathers and quills, that she had caught a glimpse of, lying at the bottom of the trunk; but her orders did not extend to anything so comprehensive, and so she contented herself with remarking, as she disrobed her young charge:

An Excellent Coffee

"What a heap of beautiful clothes you have got miss!"

To which Kyra, with open-eyed indifference, responded:

"Yes, there much plenty."

"And now, miss, you'll have a night-light; and there's a bell close to your hand, and, if you want anything—if it's in the dead of the night it don't matter—pull at that, as if your life depended on it and I'll come down to you. Good-night!—What, a kiss? Why, miss, who could a taught you that? And who could help loving you? though I don't think Mr. Chester would like it," she added, remorsefully.

"Mr. Chester like anything Kyra like," were the last words, as Mrs. Taping, with one long, comprehensive look, closed the door.

Kyra lay in her snowy-white bed, as still as a mouse, and listening as intently as a mouse; she was not unlike one in color, a little lighter, perhaps, but as sleek and quick and graceful. She was listening for one sound, and she could have picked it out from a babel of sounds—the footstep of Percy Chester.

The weeks that had been consumed in their journey from the wild places of her native land to the home of the paleface had weakened many an old habit, changed her manners, taught her a new tongue and fresh customs, but they had not weakened the passionate adoration which she had felt for the paleface chief who had snatched her from death, and succored her that snowy night by the Snake River. They had not wrought any change in her full dependence and implicit trust in his lightest word; they had not taught her to look upon him in anything less fanatical a light than that in which she had regarded him that night when he had wrapped her in his cloak and sheltered her from death.

Never since the world was created had there been a deeper, more intense adoration than that which burned in the bosom of the Indian girl for the man who had crossed her life in all the glory of his manly beauty and strength. To say that she would have died for him but poorly expresses the intensity of her devotion to him; to say that she could not live without him scarcely exceeds the limits of bare truth.

Our Volunteers.

The total number of enrolments to date is 3,872, nine more young men having offered their services for King and Empire yesterday. The new recruits are:

Fred. E. Chafe, St. John's
John Jos. Lambert, St. John's
Robt. Oakley, St. John's
Samuel Parnell, St. John's
Jas. Fitzpatrick, St. John's
Chas. Dicks, Flat Islands, P.B.
Ralph Senior, Flat Islands, P.B.
Norman Way, Bonavista
Fred Abbott, Bonavista.

During the day a squad of volunteers went on a route march, another squad on a section drill and another had rifle practice at the Southside Range. The men also received their fortnightly pay.

Prospects Encouraging Caplin Plentiful.

The latest fishery reports received are:

To The Board of Trade.
(Red Island to Conmore)—The total catch is 7559 qtls. with 789 for last week. Ten traps and some 60 boats are fishing. Prospects are slightly improved and caplin in abundance landed to-day. The average per trap is about 5 qtls. for the week. Two schooners have arrived from the Banks with 300 qtls. each.
(Salmon Cove Pt. to Colliers North Pt.)—Seven traps, ten dories and skiffs but no boats are fishing. The catch for the week was about 5 qtls. Some of the traps operating here have taken a little fish but others have done nothing so far. Prospects are now improving slightly and there is a plentiful supply of herring bait.

To Marine and Fisheries.

Seal Cove—Weather fair with a sight of codfish and plenty salmon and herring.

Lawn—One trap yesterday had 25 qtls. in one haul while others averaged from 5 to 10 qtls. There is also plenty of caplin.

King's Cove—Very little fish with traps; liners 1/2 to 1 qtl. on caplin bait.

Lamaline—There was a fair sign of cod for traps and hook and liners the last few days with a good supply of caplin.

Twillingate—Traps averaging 1/4 bri.; only a few fish caught by hook and liners.

Bonne Bay—Traps taking from 5 to 10 qtls. and hook and liners from 1/2 to 1 qtl.; caplin plentiful.

RUSSIAN ADVANCE CONTINUES.
PETROGRAD, June 15.
The Russian advance along the whole southwestern front continue to develop with a degree of swiftness which has astonished the country. The success of the movement thus far is looked upon as the more remarkable in view of the strong defences which have been erected by the Austrians during the long period of preparation. Their supposed readiness for resistance to any manner of assault is one of the outstanding features. The number of prisoners is steadily mounting up and has been augmented by the surrender of large Austrian units in their entirety. There is wholesale abandonment of trains with all sorts of field equipment, and in such quantities that they cannot yet be estimated. Finally, so far as is known here, there is a comparatively small extent of Russian losses. Except on the centre front, which runs from Volhynia to the Roumanian border, the Austrians have been wholly unable to resist the Russian drive.

NO CHANGE IN SITUATION.
LONDON, June 15.
The British official statement issued to-night, reads: In the past twenty-four hours, quiet prevailed in most parts of the front. Last night there was intermittent shelling by both sides. On the front lately re-taken by us near Zillebeke, there has been no infantry action, and the situation is unchanged. To-day trench mortars and artillery have been active by both sides in the sector about Angres. Mine warfare continued actively at Loos salient, but otherwise there were no special incidents.

HAMPSHIRE TRAGEDY REVIVED.
LONDON, June 15.
Details of some incidents aboard the British cruiser Hampshire just before she sank off the Orkneys last week, causing the death of Lord Kitchener, were given out in an official statement issued to-night, based on statements by the dozen survivors of the cruiser, who were washed ashore on a raft. From the report of the twelve survivors of the Hampshire, says the statement, the following conclusion is reached: As the men were going to their stations before abandoning their ship, Lord Kitchener, accompanied by a naval officer, appeared. The latter said to make way for Lord Kitchener. Both ascended to the quarter deck and subsequently four military officers were seen there walking aft on the port side. The captain called Kitchener to the fore bridge near where the captain's boat was hoisted, to enter the boat, but it

ITALIANS CAPTURE AUSTRIAN TRENCHES.
ROME, June 15.
In a surprise attack made yesterday on the Austrian positions east of Monfalcone, the official statement of to-day announces the Italians captured Austrian trenches, after a severe engagement, taking several hundred prisoners, and seven machine guns.

RUSSIANS MAKE MORE CAPTURES.
PETROGRAD, June 15.
More than 150 thousand men have been captured by the Russians during the offensive movement on the Volhynian and Galician fronts, it was announced officially to-day. The Russian statement yesterday announced the capture of 1,780 officers, nearly 120,000 men, 130 cannon, and 200 machine guns. Probably the difference in these figures and the ones given in to-day's statement does not represent the captures made in the interval between the issuance of the two statements, but rather increases the due receipt of more detailed information from the front.

COST OF LIVING DISCUSSED.
THE HAGUE, June 15.
Socialist Deputy Scheper, in the Chamber of Deputies, to-day, interpellated the Government as to the high cost of living. He demanded extensive food control measures to prevent speculators carrying on swindling practices, and enable workers to buy foodstuffs at reasonable prices. Premier Van Der Linden, in reply, detailed the various measures already taken to prevent the exportation of home grown foodstuffs, on which he said the embargo would continue until the quantity required for consumption at home was provided for.

BOMB IN MAIL PACKAGE EXPLODES.
BUTTE, Montana, June 15.
A bomb in a package in one of the mail pouches, which was being transferred from the Chicago to the Burlington Quincy train of Oregon, a short line here to-day, exploded and wrecked the Oregon short line mail car. The package was reported to be addressed to the Governor of Utah.

ASKED TO RESIGN.
LONDON, June 15.
The Chamber of Commerce to-day passed a resolution, requesting members of German or Austrian birth, even if naturalized subjects of Britain, to resign.

Death of Reservist Jacob Pearcey.

We have received the following official communication from Commander MacDermott, of H.M.S. Briton:
"I regret to inform you that a telegram has been received from Rear-Admiral of the Royal Naval Barracks, Devonport, stating that Jacob Pearcey, seaman, Newfoundland R.N.R., died at that establishment on 11th June of pneumonia. Pearcey joined the Reserve 11th April, 1916 and embarked for England 23rd April. He resided at New Portland, T.B."
Reservist Pearcey sailed with the last draft of reservists. His service was sadly short, being just two months, but it is sealed with the highest sacrifice of all. His name is on the roll of honor. To his family and friends the Telegram offers its deepest sympathy.

"MEASLES."

Hundreds of children are suffering from "Measles" at the present time, and one has to be very careful in trying to avoid the complications that often follow them.

A heavy "Cough" is very prevalent during the present epidemic, and "Pneumonia" is the great danger. Avoid this by keeping a bottle of "Stafford's Phoratoxine Cough Cure" on hand.

RUSSIAN NAVAL VICTORY.
COPENHAGEN, June 15.
The Daegena Nyheder says that in the recent fight in the Baltic between Russian torpedo, craft and German war vessels which were convoying merchantmen, two German auxiliary cruisers, the Herzmann and Koenig von Sachsen, and two armed trawlers were sunk by the Russians, in addition to ten more merchantmen. The newspaper says that five wounded German sailors, who landed in Sweden, have since died.

Citizens Committee Meeting.

The 14th regular meeting of the Citizens' Committee took place in the Board of Trade Rooms last night. Chairman Super presiding. At 8:15 the meeting was called to order and the Secretary read the minutes of the last meeting which were adopted. A discussion then followed in which much diversity of opinion was evidenced, as to public meetings during the summer months. After some motions and amendments it was decided to hold meetings on the 2nd and 4th Thursday during the months of July and August. Mr. Jonas C. Barter (architect) who arrived at the meeting shortly after the minutes were read, asked if any letter had been received from the Colonial Secretary in reply to their request regarding the publication of a correct definition of the qualification of voters. He was informed by the Secretary that no reply had been received. Mr. Barter stated that he had been informed by the Attorney General that the matter in question had been forwarded to the Colonial Secretary on Saturday last for publication. It was pointed out that over 800 taxpayers were being deprived of the use of their franchise, through what was evidently a misinterpretation of the Election Act. It was the opinion of the majority of the Committee present that a slight had been cast on their work which they strongly resented; it was further ordered that the Colonial Secretary be again written to and if a satisfactory reply be not received by Saturday night, that all correspondence in relation to the matter be published in the daily papers.

Rod and Gun.

The June issue of Rod and Gun is on the news stands and its list of contents is of interest as usual to the sportsman and lover of life in the open. An article on the Nipigon and Cause Routes to the East is the leader in this issue which contains among other stories "Bjornsen's Grizzly," an unfortunate encounter through what is called grizzly; "Fisherman's Luck"; Trout Fishing on the Stave River; an article on the Destruction of Fish and Game in the Laurentian Mountains; descriptive of the damage that is being done in that region by residents who are ignorant of or criminally careless as to the game laws; besides well conducted departments devoted to guns and ammunition, fishing notes, the kennel, trap, etc. Rod and Gun, the sportsman's magazine, is issued by W. FADED HAIR NOT INCURABLE.
When the color of the hair becomes so faded as to cause anxiety the sufferer may be quite sure that the nervous system is not in the best order, and so seek first of all for the internal tonic and improved habits of life which will build up the body. Sulphur and iron taken internally anointing the scalp at the same time with yolk of egg, is a treatment indorsed by good physicians for restoring faded hair to its natural colour, as these things supply the minerals upon which the coloring matter of the hair is supposed to depend.
The following solution of iron, applied externally, is also advised by authoritative persons for the same cause: Citrate of iron, 2 drams; nux vomica, 2 drams; coconut oil, 11-2 ounces; Bay rum, 2 ounces. This is especially good for dark hair, as the iron produces a delicate stain. The scalp and hair must be moistened with the lotion about twice a week.
Regarding simple dressings for the hair, something that will give the high gloss fashion now demands for the well-dressed head, the simpler the mediums used the better as all hair dressings tend to clog the scalp after a while.
A dressing which will give a look of richness and, besides, increase its growth, is made of 1 ounce of eau de cologne and two ounces of pure castor oil. If the cologne is made of pure spirits it will dissolve the oil completely, leaving a lotion clear and sweet, so it is necessary to get the purest German cologne the market affords as the cheaper ones are worthless for the purpose, only the best thing blending properly with the oil.
Very often the mother, bent on training her child in the very best way, overlooks what is right before her eyes in straining her vision into the distance. She looks to the future, forgetting that in the present she is laying the foundation for that future.
For instance, when her baby is still in her arms, in the earliest days of its infancy, she should begin to teach it good habits, for it is at this stage of life, before any counter-influences are at work, even those of personality, that things are learned with the greatest possible ease.
It is not fair to dandle and play with a baby continuously while it is small and light and easy to manage, and then suddenly expect it to manage without attentions. Just so in everything. Try not to form habits which are apt to be broken quickly or rather, always avoid sudden changes for the baby.

Having It Out!

RUTH CAMERON.

Jealousy, to the best of us. I don't mean that remorse and a he would deliberately plan to hurt you, but in moments of exasperation and thoughtlessness that do come even to happily married people, he might use the weapon you have trust into his hands.

That Unnatural Atmosphere.

Again, isn't there a danger that you might create an unnatural atmosphere? Suppose he does reassure you to your heart's content, and proves his sincerity by neglecting her and being especially attentive to you? Won't you suspect him of making an effort to do these things, of "putting it on"?

I once knew a wife who confessed her jealousy to her husband. He assured her that there was no foundation for it all, and went out of his way to be especially tender and sweet. But to her the savor had gone out of his tenderness because she couldn't feel that it was spontaneous. That made her suspicious and exacting, which ultimately exasperated him. It took a big shock and a big experience to finally get them back into normal relations with each other.

Try Everything Else First.

I hesitate to say, "Never admit that you are jealous," because there may be times when "having it out" brings more relief than bad results, but I do say, "Try everything else first."

Be just as attractive in every way as you can, both to your husband and to others. Don't deliberately try to make your husband jealous. That's too obvious, but show him that you can enjoy and be enjoyed by other people.

Keep your jealousy down. If you let it get up in the top of your mind, you'll be showing it unconsciously. If you can win out without showing your own hand you've won one of the biggest battles of life.

Jealousy Almost Never Takes Advice.

Poor lady, how I wish I could help you! But the trouble with jealousy is that although it sometimes asks advice it seldom takes it. It is too unreasoning, too primitive an emotion to be controlled by the inhibitions of judgment.

Nevertheless— It might be better for your present peace of mind to have it out with your husband. He would doubtless reassure you to your heart's content. But do you think it would be best for your ultimate peace? In the first place, you give him a sense of power by letting him know that you are so easily made jealous. And power is a dangerous thing, even IMPROVIDENCE.

The country's being painted red by cheerful, careless lads, who never look a day ahead, but blow in all their scads. To-day they have abundance health, a n d sickness seems afar; to-day they're out in goodly wealth, so why not buy a car? The sage rebukes them with a sigh, and says, "Be safe and sane, and while the weather's fair and dry, prepare, my sons, for rain." In vain his noble words are said, they list with scornful look, and beg that he will soak his head, in some convenient brook. And then they make the village hum with their resounding mirth; but sickness comes, reverses come, to every man on earth. And when the luck is breaking rank, how bitterly they say, "We have no hope in the bank, and here's the rainy day!" If you've a package in the bank, you do not fear the worst, when Fortune gives your nose a yank, and sets you back a verst.

If Your Throat is Husky, Catarrh May be Starting.

A weak or irritated throat is the first step towards Catarrh. Everything depends on your remedy. A cough mixture slips quickly over the weak spots, drops into the stomach and does little but harm digestion. It's altogether different with Catarrh— it cures because it gets right at the trouble. You inhale Catarrh, breathe in the vapor of healing balsams that strengthen and restore the weak throat tissues. You'll never have colds or coughs. Throat trouble and catarrh will disappear with the use of Catarrh. Get the large dollar outfit which includes the inhaler, it lasts two months and is guaranteed to cure. Smaller sizes, 25c. and 50c., sold everywhere.

Body Found.

A few days ago the body of the young man Golding, which had lain three months beneath the waters of Badger Brook, was discovered. The unfortunate man lost his life while returning from the lumber camps in company with several others, by falling through the ice on Badger River. He was carried away beneath the ice by the swift running waters, it being impossible to render assistance.

VOLENTIERS DISCHARGED FROM HOSPITAL.

Several of the volunteers who were in hospital at Donovan's were released recently, having recovered from their ailments.

Man Falls From Scaffold

A man named Michael English, a resident of Balsam Street, while making repairs to his house last evening, fell from a scaffold that he had erected, a height of twenty-five feet. He was picked up in an unconscious condition. Stimulants were administered, but failed to revive him. An examination of the man's injuries by a physician showed that no bones were broken, but he sustained severe bruising and was badly shaken up internally. He will be incapacitated from work for some time.

At the Yarmouth Y. M. C. A. A Boys' Camp held at Tusket Falls in August, I found MINARD'S LINIMENT most beneficial for sun burn, an immediate relief for colic and toothache.

MEDIAEVAL LIFE AT THE NICKEL.

The performance at the Nickel Theatre for the week-end is made up of most attractive pictures, which are certain to afford pleasure and satisfaction to all who attend. The feature film is "The Wrath of Haddon Towers," which is a three-part clip per star film with eminent stage celebrities in the leading roles. Constance Crawley and Arthur Maude play well in this interesting story. "Mudry in the Jungle" is a thrilling melodrama which is splendidly staged. "The Shabbies" is a two-act comedy drama by Lillian Walker. Evert Overton and Paul Kelley. The comedy is by the Vitagraph Company—"The Family Picnic." Bert Stanley will sing another of his comic songs. To-morrow afternoon there will be the big matinee for children.

Passed Away.

The first death in a family of thirteen children occurred at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon when little Pauline, the 2 1/2 year old daughter and youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Clarke, Superintendent of the G. P. O., succumbed to an attack of bronchitis following upon measles. To the bereaved family the Telegram extends deep sympathy.

TO-DAY'S Messages.

10.30 A.M.

BRITISH VICTORY ON LAKE NYANZA.

LONDON, To-day. British forces operating on Lake Victoria, Nyanza, captured the German islands of Ukarwe which constitute an important point for attack on Muansa, the principal town on the southern shores of the Lake.

CZERNOWITZ EVACUATED.

PETROGRAD, To-day. The Austrians have evacuated Czernowitz, the capital of Bukovina, according to despatches to a semi-official Petrograd News Agency from Bukovina by way of Bucharest.

STORY OF THE HAMPSHIRE.

LONDON, To-day. The Hampshire was proceeding along the west coast of the Orkneys. A heavy gale was blowing and seas breaking over the ship, which necessitated her being partly battened down between 7.30 and 7.45 p.m. The vessel struck a mine and began to once to settle, heeling to starboard before she finally went down about fifteen minutes after. Orders were given by the captain for all hands to go to their established stations before abandoning the ship. Some hatches were opened and the ship's company went quickly to their stations. Efforts were made without success to lower some boats. One of them was broken in half and its occupants were thrown into the water. Large numbers of the crew used life belts and waistcoats which proved effective in keeping them afloat. Three rafts safely launched, with about 50 to 70 men on each, got clear. It was daylight up to about eleven. Though the rafts with these large numbers of men got away, in one case out of over 70 men aboard only six survived. The survivors all report that the men gradually dropped off, or even died aboard the rafts from exhaustion and exposure to the cold. Some of the crew must have perished while trying to land on the rocky coast after such long exposure, and some died after landing.

ALLIED OFFENSIVE EXPECTED.

LONDON, To-day. Significance is attached to a sentence embodied in a semi-official French communication received in London to-day, inasmuch as it seems to draw the attention of the public to what is considered seriously as a failure in Germany's recent strategy. It seems that since the Vaux affair, the sentence reads, the Germans fronting are maintaining an attitude of expectation in view of the menace of events which they feel are becoming increasingly imminent. This statement is generally interpreted in the light of public expectations that the time is rapidly approaching for an important Entente Allied offensive. Professor Pollard, holding the Chair of English History, at the University of London, lecturing to-day on the progress of the war, said he anticipated a great offensive by the Allies on the western front before long, but that people must not expect the war to end before next year. The utmost he hoped for this year, he said, was the defeat of Austria, the virtual settlement of the Balkan difficulty, and the driving back of the Germans a considerable distance on the western front. The final defeat of the Germans could only come some time next year. The speaker added: After a winter of discontent such as Germany had never known, after another naval battle, Pollard's anticipations reflect the prevalent idea in London of the view held here—that Germany made a serious mistake in strategy when she permitted Austria to withdraw half her effectives from the Russian front for operations against Italy, after having brought her own reserves from the Russian front to Verdun, which apparently had the result of enabling Russia to make a successful drive in Galicia and Volhynia. It is further considered that the recent naval battle deprived Germany temporarily of the means of prosecuting a combined military and naval offensive in the region of Riga, thus countering the Russian drive which it is now expected, is likely to go on to fresh successes, as it is believed it will be extremely difficult to reinforce the entente Allies on the Russian front.

LIGHTSHIP MOVED AWAY FROM MINES.

THE HAGUE, To-day. The Naval Department announces that in view of the extension of the English mine field in the North Sea, the Northlighter Lightship will be moved about eighteen sea miles northwards.

LONDON BUDGET.

The twelfth day of the great Russian offensive against the Austro-Hungarians and Germans from Volhynia to Bukovina, shows nowhere any signs of slackening along all the front. Fresh gains for the Russian troops, the capture of thousands of additional prisoners and guns, machine guns and war supplies, are claimed by the Russians. The aggregate prisoners now exceed 150,000, while semi-official advices from Petrograd give the report that the Austrians have evacuated Czernowitz, the capital of Bukovina. The latest official communication from the Austrian headquarters says, the troops of Emperor Francis Joseph are making a stand northeast of the city and at both points repulsed the Russian attacks in their drive westward from the region of Lutsk. The Austrians are counter-attacking or entrenching themselves in new positions for a stand against the Russians. No reports of gains for either side in Galicia in the region of Tarnopol, have come through here. Apparently there is still a deadlock between the Russian and Austrian-German forces on the German end of the northern front in Russia. The Russians near Baranovichi attacked and carried the German trenches, but later were forced to give them up under strong pressure by the Germans. Infantry attacks by the Germans have occurred along the Dvina River and in the Lake region south of Dvinsk, but all these were repulsed, according to Petrograd. The French on the slopes south of Le Mort Homme, northwest of Verdun, have attacked and captured a German trench. The Germans are still violently bombarding sectors of Thiaumont, Fort Souville northeast of Verdun, probably preparatory to another infantry attack with the hope of a further advance toward the fortress. Only artillery activity is in progress on the remainder of the front in France and Belgium. The Canadians are still holding the positions re-captured from the Germans in the vicinity of Zillebeke where there is intermittent shelling by both sides. Fighting on the Austro-Italian line in the Tyrol has seemingly died down in violence. Only artillery bombardments and small infantry engagements have been reported. East of Monfalcone, which lies a short distance from the head of the Gulf of Trieste, the Italians have captured Austrian positions and made prisoners of 498 officers and men. Near Felahis on the Tigris River, the Turks repulsed an attempt by the British advance, according to Constantinople, annihilating four hundred British troops. On the Euphrates sector fighting is also reported by the Turkish War Office. Persian volunteers are declared to have been attacked by Russians near the Persian border, inflicting heavy losses.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., To-day. The Democratic National Convention shortly after nine o'clock announced its purpose of remaining in continuous session until it had nominated President Wilson and Vice-President Marshall, adopted their platform and transacted all other business brought before the representatives of the party. All Vice-Presidential booms were effectively killed off by President Wilson's announcement. He desired re-nomination of Marshall platform. The committee remained at work drawing up the declaration of its principles so that it might be brought before adjournment and the work of the convention might be finished. That the session would last well into Friday morning was assured.

WILSON AND MARSHALL UNOPPOSED.

FIENDISH PLOT FRUSTRATED.

FORD, Ont., To-day. One hundred and twenty sticks of dynamite, enough to blow the town off the map, were discovered late last night by workmen engaged in a factory here. The explosives were found hidden in the back part of the building on the second floor.

ACTIVITY IN THE BALKANS.

SALONIKA, To-day. There have been conflicts between advance guards of French and Bulgarian on the right bank of the Vardar. It was officially announced to-day. In the vicinity of Gumenitsi, German aeroplanes bombarded the Allied positions while French aviators bombarded the Bulgarian encampment near Negorci, Strumitza and Petrich. The bombardment of Strumitza occurred at the railway station while supply trains were arriving to re-victual Bulgarian troops.

CZERNOWITZ HAS FALLEN.

LONDON, To-day. News of the capture of Czernowitz reached London early to-day. The despatches of the past few days had in a measure prepared the public for the fall of this important centre. Nevertheless, the speed with which the city was compelled to capitulate came as a surprise, and it is declared here in military circles that the briefness of the time allowed the Austrians for evacuation must undoubtedly have added largely to the toll of prisoners and booty which the Russians are now gathering in.

EARLIER REPORTS.

PETROGRAD, To-day. Details of the reported evacuation of Czernowitz by the Austrians, are given in a despatch from Bukovina, received semi-officially.

AUSTRIANS EVACUATE THE CITY.

PETROGRAD, To-day. News Agency.—The despatch says that before abandoning the city, the Austrian authorities arrested a number of persons who were forced to accompany the retreating troops. The railway rolling stock was sent to Ikkani and the tracks about the city were destroyed. Train loads of wounded were despatched to Dornavatra, seventy-seven miles from Czernowitz.

GERMAN ATTACKS FAIL.

PARIS, To-day. Powerful German attacks made last night on the French positions southeast of Thiaumont Farm, on the Verdun front, broke down under the French machine gun fire, according to to-day's statement by the War Office.

THE BALTIC FIGHT.

STOCKHOLM, To-day. In the naval engagement off Harvinge last Tuesday, Russian torpedo boat destroyers are believed to have sunk the German auxiliary cruisers Herzmann and Koenig Von Sachen, two armoured trawlers and a number of merchantmen vessels laden with timber and ore which the German warships were convoying. Only two of the fourteen vessels under convoy, namely the Levnia and Ingrie Hovd, have been accounted for. They took refuge in Swedish ports. The crews of the sunken vessels are be-lived to have been saved, except 50 men from the auxiliary cruisers. The German officers said that the German warships with their convoys were off Harvinge on the Baltic, south of Stockholm, when they were surprised by the Russians who approached at high speed and gave the German craft a broadside and then disappeared with equal rapidity. The Germans had time to fire only a few shots. A trawler saved her commander but the majority of the crew were lost. Half of them were killed during the brief engagement while others were drowned.

Friday and Saturday, at the Nickel Theatre.

A SIGNIFICANT RUMOR.

ATHENS, To-day. It was reported in Athens to-day that the Bulgarians were withdrawing the majority of their forces from Salonika to the Roumanian frontier.

Serious Forest Fire.

We are informed by passengers who reached the city by the last cross country train that the series of forest fires, which have been raging inland the past few days, have reached alarming proportions. In fact one gentleman told us that the entire interior extending from the foot of Deer Lake almost to Holyrood, an area of several hundred miles, is threatened with destruction. In either direction one looks passing along on the train there is a mass of flame to be seen. It is estimated that fully ten million dollars worth of timber is destroyed thus far. It is also alleged that much havoc is wrought in pit crops, which is evidence that the fires extend many miles inland. The fires are fiercest between Deer Lake and Badger and along the Terra Nova River.

Reids' Boats.

Prospective Nuptials

The subjoined extract is from a London Journal:— "An engagement is announced between Lieut. Cyril Boyd Carter, Newfoundland Regiment, second son of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Carter, St. John's, Newfoundland to Eva, Constance, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Mogg, Ingleswood, Nicosisia Road, Wandsworth Common, S.W."

The Telegram congratulates Lieutenant Carter, and wishes him a speedy recovery from his injuries received at Gallipoli and so bravely sustained during months of suffering.

Train Notes.

The incoming express left Port aux Basques at 9.30 a.m. to-day.

The outgoing express is due at Port aux Basques early to-morrow morning.

The train from Carboneau reached town at 12.20 p.m. to-day.

The Trepassey train arrived in the city at 11.30 a.m. to-day.

NOTICE

To All Ladies and Gentlemen of Newfoundland.

THERE WILL BE A Free Demonstration of
"5 Diamonds" Flour

AT
WOOD'S (Central) CANDY STORE,
Water Street, St. John's,
FOR ONE WHOLE WEEK, beginning Monday, June
12th, ending Saturday, June 17th.

Samples of Bread will be given away.
Be sure and get yours.

Arrangements have been made with Wood's Central Store to demonstrate the qualities of "5 Diamonds" Flour as a "bread" flour, &c., for one week as above.

The public, we hope, will assist the millers of this high grade flour by making special calls at "Wood's Central Store" for their afternoon teas, and pass judgment on the bread, &c., made from "5 Diamonds" Flour.

Ask your grocer to get "5 Diamonds" Flour" for you.

Revelations of a Berlin Hotel Manager.

Remarkable Disclosures Made by an Englishman who has for Many Years Managed one of Germany's Biggest Hotels. He has had Opportunities of Meeting Royal Huns and the Heads of the Prussian Army and Navy. He now tells some Unique Stories of his Experience. The Spy System in German Hotels.

In the season we had crowds of English people as diners at the restaurant, including Lord Haldane, the Duchess of Wellington, Mr. Winston Churchill, and many other well-known people.

We had, by the way, always to send a list of English people staying at the hotel to an official in the Kaiser's household. Very often when we had English visitors of any importance an officer in the secret service, or from the military commandant's department in Berlin, or even from the Imperial Household itself, would come to stay at the hotel for the purpose of either spying on the English visitors or of getting into touch with them and extracting, if possible, useful information from them.

This is a thing that has been done at all the leading German hotels for the past ten years.

This was, of course, part of the German spy system, but it was not always successful. I remember on one occasion a very wealthy and rather irritable English M.P. came to stay at the hotel with his wife, and their names were sent the night of their arrival to the Imperial Household. The next morning an officer came to the hotel and informed me that he would dine at the restaurant that evening, and stated that he would like to be put at the same table as Sir G., the M.P., I have mentioned.

Costly and Elaborate Dinners. In this way the officer made Sir G.'s acquaintance, but it did not last long. Towards the end of the dinner the German officer got up from the table and left the hotel. Sir G. afterwards said to me:

"That man you put at our table asked me some infernally impertinent questions considering I had never met him before, and I told him what I thought of him. Don't put anyone like that at our table again—I don't like it."

As a matter of fact, I did not recognize at the time the real purpose that the German Government had in mind in doing this sort of thing, but, of course, I see it now. I had some interesting experiences during my stay in Berlin in the way of superintending dinners and banquets at private houses for which we did the catering. I have looked after banquets given by General von Hindenburg, Prince von Bulow, Dr. Bethmann-Hollweg, Count Zeppelin, the King of Wurtemberg, and many others.

Von Hindenburg had a villa about a mile outside Berlin where he gave some very elaborate and costly dinners, but he never had more than half a dozen guests present. The great German General is a notorious gourmet, and he would pay very large sums to secure the rare and costly dishes for which his dinner-parties were celebrated.

Von Hindenburg and His Cat.

One of the walls of the General's dining-room bore autographed photographs of many reigning monarchs in Europe. He secured the autographed pictures of King George and the Czar from the Kaiser and had them enlarged. The dining-room was furnished with very heavy black oak, the walls were papered in a rich dark crimson, and on the oak floor were strewn costly tapestry rugs. One wall was covered almost completely by an immense oil painting representing the Israelites leaving Egypt. The picture was the work of a Flemish artist, and had been purchased by von Hindenburg at a sale in Paris after the war of 1870 for about £25—something about a hundredth part of its present value.

The whole villa was furnished in a most artistic manner, carried out and designed, I believe, by a well-known English artist.

Von Hindenburg was a very extraordinary man. He had one of the coarsest and cruellest faces I have ever seen; but cruel and ruthless as man as he has proved himself to be in this war he was very kind to and fond of animals. He had a dog, two cats and a rabbit and he would sometimes, so his valet told me, sit for hours in a chair with the rabbit or a cat asleep on his knee, and would not stir in case he might awake or disturb his pets.

He was a very silent man and I have seen him sit through a dinner at his own house almost without opening his lips except to eat food or drink pass through them. He would fold his arms when he had finished eating a dish and stare moodily before him at the big silver eagle that formed the table centre-piece whilst his guests chattered and laughed among themselves. They understood the General's mood, for they never addressed him until he made some remark; then the laughter and talk would die down at once, and everybody would listen attentively to what their host had to say.

When the Kaiser Didn't Turn Up.

One of the most extravagant banquets I had charge of was one given the week before the wedding of the Kaiser's daughter by Herr Ballin, the great shipowner.

The dinner was attended by Prince Henry of Prussia, the Crown Prince and Princess, and the King of Wurtemberg. Herr Ballin gave the most extravagant dinner, but this banquet was probably the most costly he ever gave. The floral decorations alone cost £2,000.

The walls of the dining room were completely covered with La France roses and every bloom was carefully selected. In the centre of the big oval table was a large silver gilt bowl, about two feet in circumference, filled with the same flowers, and opposite each guest was a smaller bowl of the same flowers. The great hall and reception rooms were ablaze with blooms. The cost of the dinner worked out at £17 a head, and the wines at about £5 per head.

But the dinner, from Herr Ballin's point of view, was a failure, for the Kaiser and Kaiserin, who were to have been present, sent word in the afternoon that they could not come; and it was in their honor, of course, that Herr Ballin had spent his thousands on the banquet. One of his servants told me that when Herr Ballin received the message that the Emperor could not come he flew into a tremendous rage. He sent for his butler, and ere the man had reached Herr Ballin's study, his master shouted out to him:

"The Emperor cannot come to dinner to-night—put the whole show off!" and then slammed the door.

How Royalty is Guarded.

The butler did not know exactly what to do. To put off so important guests as were to be present was, of course, an impossibility; but no one in the household dared to approach the master of it to suggest this. However, at about five o'clock Herr Ballin had sufficiently recovered his temper to come downstairs and give me some necessary directions about the banquet.

On the occasions of great banquets attended by royalty in Germany, the house is simply filled with detectives. There were half a dozen detectives in the dining-room during this banquet, and in the great reception rooms afterwards many more, clad in Court dress, were dispersed among his guests.

The King of Wurtemberg is one of the most simple-living men in Germany; he suffers greatly from indigestion, induced by his fondness for suppers of pork, cheese and beer in his younger days. At this great banquet, where ortolans formed the least costly of the dishes, the King of Wurtemberg's dinner consisted of a few spoonfuls of clear soup, a piece of partridge and an ice.

AT THE CRESCENT.

All the noted photo play stars are presented at the Crescent Picture Palace to-day. Maurice Costello and "L. Burt" in "The Romance of a Handkerchief," G. M. Anderson and Marguerite Clayton in "The Convict's Threat," a strong western drama in two reels. Romaine Fielding and Jack Lawton in "When Souls are Tried," a rich comedy drama; and all the Vitagraph Comedy Company in "Willie Stayed Single," a laughable Hobo Comedy. Professor McCarthy playing the piano, drums and effects. Send the children to the big matinee to-morrow afternoon; extra pictures for their benefit.

The Racking Pains of Sciatic Rheumatism

Were Well-nigh Unbearable—After Five Years of Suffering Curé Was Effected by Dr. Chase's Medicines.

For downright excruciating pain few ailments can be compared to sciatic rheumatism. Since this condition of the nervous system, the logical cure is found in the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to nourish the starved nerves back to health and vigor.

Reports are continually coming in to us regarding the splendid results obtained in the treatment of sciatic rheumatism by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food after each meal and Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills occasionally as a means of arousing the action of the liver, kidneys and bowels and thereby keeping the system freed of pain causing poisonous impurities. Mr. W. J. Tibbitts, Edenwald, Sask., writes:—"It is a great pleasure for me to recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Nerve Food as a cure for Sciatic Rheumatism. The pain I

Quackery and Corns

Hundreds of treatments have been offered for corns. Some were sedative to quiet pain. Some were acids, harsh and sticky. Some mere quackery. But one man—a famous chemist—studied corns for 25 years. And finally discovered Blue-jay. That is now the standard treatment, gentle, certain, scientific. It is used on a million corns monthly. It has stopped the corn pain instantly, 70 million times. It has ended the corns completely within 48 hours, in 91 per cent of the cases. The others take a little longer. Stop paring corns. Stop treating them in wrong ways. Use Blue-jay, and that ends them in a gentle, easy way. Prove that tonight.

Put the Clock on To-night.

DAYLIGHT SAVING AT LAST. To-night, before you go to bed, put the clock on one hour.

That is all that the Summer Time requires of the average dutiful citizen, but it will bring him a rich reward. More daylight, fresher air, ampler leisure, improved health, and increased economy can all be had by this simple operation. Indeed the Act is one which will have a greater and more beneficial effect on the habits of our people than most of the measures that have found a place on the Statute Book during the past ten years.

When the late Mr. Willett started the Daylight Saving plan and The Daily Mail, as we are glad to remember, lent him his warm support, the notion was widely looked upon as a joke, if not in questionable taste. It required the convulsion of the war to knock the common sense of his proposals into the Governmental head. No Ministers are so completely converted to the expedient that they appear almost to think it originated with themselves; and last week they were so enthusiastic in commending it to the nation that we can only wonder that none of them lent a hand when Mr. Willett and ourselves were patiently explaining its benefits, nearly ten years ago, to a sceptical world.

Two prophecies may safely be made. One is that we shall never go back to the old system. The other is that from next year onwards we shall begin to adapt our lives to the amount of daylight available not in May but in April.

We cherish a further hope in this matter. It is that Mr. Willett will come to be recognized as a national benefactor and that a public memorial to him may mark the gratitude of the people to whose health and happiness he so greatly contributed. —Daily Mail, May 20th.

What We Pay Our King

His Majesty Has Given Almost One-Fourth of His "Earned Income" to the Country.

In giving £100,000 to the Treasury to be applied "in whatever manner is deemed best in the opinion of His Majesty's Government" the King has made the nation a war-gift of nearly one quarter of his annual "earned" income.

Apart from investments the King's income is £470,000, made up as follows:—

Privy Purse	£110,000
Salaries of Household	125,800
Expenses of Household	193,000
Works	20,000
Royal Bounty	13,200
Unapportioned	8,000

As is well known, the King has considerable investments, which are, of course, subject to the usual fluctuations of the market, and his position as Duke of Lancaster represents further income for him. The revenue of the Duchy is derived from rents, profits of courts, royalties, and various dues, and the annual excess of income over expenditure in connection with the estate is about £61,000, which is paid to his Majesty's Privy Purse account.

The Tsar is the Richest Ruler.

Altogether, therefore, it will be seen that the annual income of the King is approximately half a million. This, remembering the demands upon his purse and that he has five children to educate and support, and compared with the incomes of other ruling sovereigns, is by no means excessive.

The Tsar of Russia, for instance, is a Croesus in comparison with King George. The Tsar is the richest ruler in the world, his income being estimated at from three to eight millions. The exact figure is impossible to arrive at, much of his money coming from the profits of mines, but it is probably about five millions a year. The Tsar gave £20,000,000 from his own money towards the cost of the Russo-Japanese War.

The Kaiser's income is approximately £290,000, plus interest from investments, while the Emperor of Austria, in addition to his big private fortune, draws £900,000 per annum. The war has certainly increased rather than diminished the Kaiser's income by reason of the enormous output of the Krupp works, in which he is a partner.

What Princess Mary Will Receive.

King George is fortunately of very simple tastes in many ways, and since the war he has reduced his expenditure all round, strict economy being the order at Buckingham Palace.

The Prince of Wales is, as yet, the only member of the King's family who has a sufficient private income to make him "independent." From the Duchy of Cornwall the Prince derives about £87,000 a year roughly, half of which is paid into his private and personal account.

On attaining her majority, or marrying, Princess Mary will receive £4,600 a year; while each of her brothers, apart from the Prince of Wales, is to receive £10,000 a year on coming of age, and a further £15,000 a year on marrying.

Kaiser's Springtime Luxury Cut Out.

His Holiday Palace is Now in French Hands.

The Kaiser is said to be feeling sore about the loss of his holiday palace in Corfu, which is now in French hands. The island, which is situated in the Ionian Sea, is famous for its beauty, and its delightful climate. Roses grow there all the year round, and tropical flowers and fruit run riot everywhere. In the past it was a favorite spot for European honeymooners, who found it ideal for their purpose.

Achilleion, the marble palace that is now a hospital for Serbian wounded, was originally bought by the Kaiser from the Emperor of Austria. It is a wonderful place, but too showy to be really beautiful. In one courtyard is a fountain measuring seventy feet in width, and all the other furnishings are on a similar scale. The avenues are lined by marble statues representing heroes and heroines of Greek and Roman history. The palace contains one hundred and twenty-eight rooms, all lavishly decorated, and there is an indoor swimming bath built on a Roman model, as well as a large gymnasium.

The park, consisting of 30,000 acres, abounds in rare flowers and plants, but it was never on any occasion open to the public, and only German workmen were employed by the Kaiser. The feeling in Corfu is strongly sympathetic to the Allies, and the French troops were well received by the natives when they landed at midnight on January 24th. Since that date the island has been French territory.

HEAD WAITER: Yessir, we are a bit old fashioned, as you say—but we find people like it so long as we make them comfortable. I haven't heard no complaints on that score.

GUEST: Good beds and good food, eh?

HEAD WAITER: Excellent beds and good wholesome food—comfortable Gas Fires and 'ot water in every room in the 'ouse.

GUEST:—Gas Fires, eh! That doesn't sound old fashioned.

HEAD WAITER: No, sir, it don't. But we 'ad to move with the times, sir, and it's our business to give people what they want. If you'll excuse me, sir, that 'ave been 'ere all my life, I find that our people mostly want 'ot baths, 'ot water, well cooked food, good fires, good beds and no fussing. We couldn't do that with coal—not satisfactory as I may say. So we puts in gas—everywhere. We cooks by gas, we lights by gas, we 'eats the water by gas and we 'as Gas Fires. So you can 'ave a 'ot bath in ten minutes if you want it, sir, a fire in your bedroom and whatever you like to order for dinner, sir, punctual to the minute.

GUEST: That sounds top-hole—but where's the old-fashioned part come in?

HEAD WAITER: It don't come in, sir, so far as that's concerned. But there's the 'ouse, the furniture, the pictures and—if I may say so—the 'omeliness of the place.

GUEST: (a trifle bored) Well, well I'll have that hot bath right away—if you'll get the bathroom ready.

HEAD WAITER: The bathroom is ready, sir, always. There's plenty of 'ot water; you'll find clean 'ot towels in the 'ot cupboard in the bathroom and the Gas Fire lighted in your room.

GUEST: Right O!—and dinner at 8 sharp, please!

HEAD WAITER:—What'll you 'ave, sir,—a nice sole, leg of mutton and sweets?

GUEST: Well, if that isn't troubling the cook too much—I'm rather late, I'm afraid.

HEAD WAITER: No trouble at all, sir. You see, sir, our kind of comfort means comfort for us as well as our people. We don't 'ave no coals to carry, no fires to make up, no bathrooms to attend to—This 'ere gas, if I may say so, saves money and time, and—

GUEST: You may say so at dinner time, please, I'm off to have that bath . . . (ascends stairs slowly) . . . Decent old boy, though he does talk a lot; and a real nice place. Thank heaven, I've struck a decent billet at last! (The bathroom door bangs sharply.)
