TENDERS!

Valuable Freehold Timber and Farm Land.

Tenders will be received at the Office of the undersigned up to 12 o'clock noon on Tuesday, May 4th, for that large piece of land situated at Mahers Siding, on the Reid Newfoundland Railway, only 3 miles from Brigus Junction, and belonging to the Estate of the late Sir W. V. Whiteaway. This splendid tract of land comprises 8 square miles—4 of which being on each side of the track—and as the railway runs through the centre, is easy of access, and has some splendid stretches of Birches and Spruce thereon—the Birches on one side and the Spruce and Fir on the other. It is also an ideal spot for farming, and there would be no trouble experienced in loading produce, as there is a siding where cars can be loaded at ease.

Another desirable feature in connection with the property is that the party buying same would be the SOLE owner of all waters on the land, thereby excluding all fishing and shooting over same without license. There is good fishing in the ponds and gullies which abound on same.

It is also an ideal place for Sheep Raising, being away from the ravages of all dogs.

The highest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

CHAPTER I.
AFTER FORTY YEARS.

"How do you know that, sir?" snarled the squire. "The Dale is not entailed, I'd have you to know."

Hugh's brow darkened and his face flushed.

"Sir," he said, with slow distinctness, "I will not marry Rebecca Goodman for her own fortune nor yours."

"Oh, Mr. Positive, you will not, eh?" said the squire rising and pacing the room. "You give me the plain denial, do you? I suppose you don't care a brass button for either of us—for the Dale or the Hall? By Heaven, sir, you're a pretty fellow to beard your father!"

"What, sir?" roared the squire. "I play the villain? By the heavens above us, I'll teach you to backguard your father! Ay, sir, I'll read you a lesson! Play the villain! Look you: I've borne too much of your insolence! Now, mark: you will ask Rebecca Goodman to be your wife to-night—to-night—or leave my roof forever! Play the villain! You think," he continued, sweeping his hand toward the window, "that this is yours already. You reckon upon your old idiot of a father being underground in a week or two. I'd have you to know that the Hall is mine, that it is not your—nay, never shall be, by Heaven, unless you obey me!"

Hugh stood motionless as a statue, his face very white and his eyes fixed upon the passionate face of his father.

"Well, sir," said the squire, in a suppressed voice, "which is it to be, Rebecca Goodman or turned out? Come, I stand no delay! Play the mule, and I will show you that there is some one else who can take care of the Dale and obey me in the bargain. Come, which is it to be? Will you marry Rebecca Goodman or find another home for yourself?"

Hugh threw his head back.

"Am I to understand that you intend me to leave the house if I still refuse to sell myself to Rebecca Goodman?" he asked, his voice very low but very distinct.

"You are," said the squire, sternly.

At the end of the long avenue that led up to the Dale he stopped for a moment to look round at the old house in which he had first drawn breath and which for all the years of his life had succored him.

How dear it seemed! The very windows seemed eyes; even the very trees voices as well for him.

As he turned away, swallowing the lump that rose in his throat, his two greyhounds bounded along the path and leaped to his side.

These had not cast him off.

Dogs' love was firmer and more abiding than man's. His voice trembled and choked as he bid them go back, and the tears he had managed to keep down until now filled his eyes as the poor hounds, with a startled, bewildered look at the first hard word he had ever spoken to them, crouched down, and with many a backward, wistful glance went slowly back.

Not daring to look back again, he walked past the village, summoning up a smile that nearly broke his heart and, nodding to the respectful greetings of the simple people who crossed

Hugh inclined his head slightly.

"You spoke of another—some other person who could take my place. May I ask you, sir, whether you have already prepared him for his good fortune?" he asked, as quietly and as distinctly as before.

"What is that to you?" replied the squire.

"Not much, sir," said Hugh, sadly. "But I gather from your refusal to reply that you are expecting my substitute. Believe me, sir, it needed not this prelude to my dismissal. I could have gone with fewer words and less harsh ones. As it is I will lose no time in ridding you and the Dale of my presence."

The squire stood as upright as a stone and as unrelenting.

Hugh, buttoning his coat across his chest as if he suddenly felt a cold blast of wind, walked slowly from the room and up the broad stair-case.

Ten minutes afterward he descended, dressed in one of his oldest and plainest suits, with a thick walking-stick and a soft hat in his hand.

At the dining-room door he paused. Should he go in and wish the stern old man a last farewell? No. And yet he could not go without. Who could tell; it might be the last time.

With a sudden bracing up of his heart and a final blow to his pride he pushed open the door and walking up to the squire, who stood leaning against the massive mantel-shelf, he held out his hand.

"Good-by, sir," he said. "I could not go without wishing you farewell."

The old man's trembling lips wreathed themselves with a sneer, but he refused to see the outstretched hand, and Hugh, with a sigh, dropped it to his side and left the room.

So they parted: the old man stern, unrelenting, the son sad and sick at heart; five minutes before the heir to a large estate and handsome fortune, now disinherited, penniless, without a friend in the world, with nothing save his youth and strength to help him in the battle which all must fight.

At the end of the long avenue that led up to the Dale he stopped for a moment to look round at the old house in which he had first drawn breath and which for all the years of his life had succored him.

How dear it seemed! The very windows seemed eyes; even the very trees voices as well for him.

As he turned away, swallowing the lump that rose in his throat, his two greyhounds bounded along the path and leaped to his side.

These had not cast him off.

Dogs' love was firmer and more abiding than man's. His voice trembled and choked as he bid them go back, and the tears he had managed to keep down until now filled his eyes as the poor hounds, with a startled, bewildered look at the first hard word he had ever spoken to them, crouched down, and with many a backward, wistful glance went slowly back.

Not daring to look back again, he walked past the village, summoning up a smile that nearly broke his heart and, nodding to the respectful greetings of the simple people who crossed his path, reached the guide-post that pointed, as with the finger of fate, to London.

CHAPTER III.
OFF TO LONDON.

The spirit, Independence, let me share; Lord of the lion heart and eagle eye. Thy steps I follow with my bosom bare.

Nor heed the storm that howls along the sky.—SMOLLETT.

It would take three days of good walking to reach London, and how he was to exist those three days was an enigma to Hugh.

He had left his watch, chain, and other jewelry upon the dressing-table of his bedroom, and had emptied his pockets of every copper.

The only thing, indeed, that they contained was a knife—useful piece of cutlery enough, but utterly worthless as an article of food—and a small gold pencil which had been a gift of one of his school-fellows.

At the end of five miles he came upon an outlying farm, where he was well known.

He had hoped to pass unnoticed and unrecognized, but the woman of the house happened to come to the door with a pan of milk, and, seeing him, bid him "Good-evenin'."

Nodding with a smile, he strode on, but she called after him, and when he turned back offered him a drink of milk, saying respectfully that it was a warm night, and he had far to go—thinking he was making a circuit of home.

He was very thirsty, but his pride would not allow him to accept the refreshing draught, for he argued that the milk was offered to Hugh, the heir to Dale House, and not to Hugh the outcast, and walked on thirstier for the sight of it.

At nightfall he had walked twelve miles, and looked round for a resting-place.

In a field there stood a haystack and a tumbled-down barn. Between the two he threw himself down, lying in the shadow of the hay, and though his thirst was heavy and his brain busy with sad thoughts, he soon fell asleep.

He awoke in the morning not very much refreshed, but, finding a stream at the end of the field, threw off his clothes and plunged in.

The bath freshened him, but gave him a tremendous appetite, a most unfortunate gift, considering he had no chance of getting a breakfast.

However, he was young and wonderfully strong, and, feeding on his pride, darted off again.

At noon, when the sun grew boiling hot and he had left the Dale many miles behind him, he felt faint and almost powerless to proceed, and, very sick at heart—for your empty stomach is a dreadful Old Man of the Sea—flung himself down under a tree.

A man's footstep awoke him from an uneasy doze, and, starting to his feet, he saw an old peddler, whose nose proclaimed him an Israelite, standing looking at him.

"Can I sell you a niceish brooch for the young ladies?" he asked, with an insinuating smile.

Hugh shook his head, but the Jew, who never took the first refusal, on principle, unsling his pack, and, kneeling down, displayed his stock in trade.

PURE SALT

A metal pencil-case lying among the heap of trinkets gave Hugh an idea.

"Is that silver?" he asked.

The Jew hesitated, and was lost.

"It's ash good ash shilver, my tear," he replied.

"What's the price?" asked Hugh.

"Ten shillings," said the Jew, taking it up and turning it over with a wonderful look of admiration in his blood-shot-eyes.

"Ten shillings?" said Hugh, made sharp already by his poverty—your ablest school-master. "What would a silver one be worth, then?"

"Eh? Oh, fifteen, my tear."

The Jew lifted his thick eyebrows.

"I'm sorry I haven't got a goldish onesh," he replied, looking heartbroken.

"Yes, but what would it be worth?" said Hugh.

"Twenty shillings," replied the Jew; "a good onesh."

"Ah!" said Hugh, pulling his out of his pocket. "What will you give me for that?"

The Jew's long claws seized it at once, Hugh putting his hands behind him for fear the Jew's dirty talons should touch him, and leaning against the tree.

"It isn't gold," said the Jew, with an affectation of disdain.

"Yes, it is," said Hugh; "and you know it."

The Jew looked at it again more closely.

"It isn't a good one," he said, this time with a decision that nearly deceived Hugh.

"Is it not?" he said. "Well, what will you give me for it?"

The Jew looked at him keenly.

"Where did you get it from?" he said.

"That's no business of yours," retorted Hugh, sternly.

"Well, well, well, don't be in a passion, my tear!" said the peddler. "I'll give you ten shillings for it and ask no questions."

"You said it was worth twenty a minute since," said Hugh, eying him sternly.

"Yesh, yesh," whined the Jew; "but wheresh my profit to come from—my leetle profit? Besides, how do I know you didn't steal it, my tear?"

Hugh smiled gayly.

"Where are you going?" he asked.

The Jew pointed with his pencil toward Dale.

"Shall you try and sell it there?" Hugh asked.

The Jew looked at him with a knowing leer.

"No, no," he said. "I understand: that's where you found him—eh, my tear? Well, there, I'll give you half a sovereign, and chance how you came by him."

This was what Hugh wanted.

So, stipulating that the old villain should not show it at Dale, where every soul would recognize it as his—Master Hugh's—he took the ten shillings from the man's dirty claws and went on his way.

Hugh knew that there were no haystacks in London and that lodgings must be paid for, so he determined to proceed economically.

At the next ale-house, which stood on a hill about a mile from his recent resting-place, he had a crust of bread and cheese and a glass of ale.

Until then he had no idea that bread and cheese and ale had such a delicate and delicious flavor.

No emperor's state banquet was ever so much enjoyed.

Another man in spirits and vigor he resumed his march, and—not to weary the reader by a repetition of haystacks and bread and cheese—entered London from the west on the third day.

Allies Take Firm Stand.

Germany Must Abide by Treaty of Versailles -- Army Strength Reduced to 100,000 Men -- Chili Making Addition to Navy--Labor Trouble in Venice -- Boycotting Chicago Laundries.

THE ALLIED DECLARATION.

SAN REMO, April 26. The text of the Common Declaration adopted by the Allies at the close of the work of the San Remo conference, says:—"The Allied Powers have taken cognizance of the letter of Dr. Goepfert as head of the German delegation in Paris, of April 20th, transmitting a request from the German Minister of war, asking that the German Government be authorized to retain an army of two hundred thousand, instead of one hundred as provided for in the Versailles Treaty, and affirming that this is necessary in order to maintain order. The Allies must declare immediately that a proposition of this nature cannot even be examined, as long as Germany is failing to meet most important obligations, imposed by the Peace Treaty, and does not proceed with a disarmament on which depends the peace of the world. Germany has not fulfilled its engagements, either concerning the destruction of war material nor in the decrease of its effectives, nor the supplying of coal, nor for reparations, nor for the cost of the armies of occupation. It has given neither satisfaction nor made excuses for criminal attacks which several times members of Allied mission in Germany have been the victims of. It has taken no steps to determine, as was provided for in the Protocol of the Treaty its obligations concerning reparations, in order to make propositions with a view of fixing the total amount which it must pay, despite the urgent character that a settlement of this sort presents in the interests of all parties concerned. It seems to have not been considered how it can meet its obligations when they become due. The Allies realize the difficulty met by the German Government and do not seek to impose too narrow an interpretation of the Treaty, but they are unanimous in declaring that they cannot tolerate a continuance of these infractions of the Treaty of Versailles. That Treaty must be executed and remain as the basis of relations between Germany and the Allies, and they are resolved to take all measures even, if necessary, the occupation of an additional part of German territory, in order to ensure the execution of the Treaty. They affirm, however, that they have no intention of annexing any part of Germany. At the same time the Allies deem that questions arising from violations of the Peace Treaty, as well as from measures necessary to ensure its execution would be more easily solved by an exchange of views between chiefs of Governments than by notes. They decide to invite the chiefs of the German Government to direct conferences with chiefs of the Allied Governments and request that at the proposed meeting the German Government present to them explanations and precise propositions upon all subjects mentioned in the foregoing. If a satisfactory settlement is arrived at on these points, the Allied Governments will be willing to discuss with German representatives any questions which affect internal order and the economic well-being of Germany. But Germany must understand that the unity of the Allies for the execution of the Treaty is as solid as it was for war, and that the only method of taking her place in the world as loyally to execute the engagements to which she subscribed."

ADRIATIC QUESTION.

SAN REMO, April 26. The Council of the Premiers at request of Premier Nitti of Italy, and Foreign Minister Tittoni, of Jugoslavia, will allow the Adriatic question to remain in negotiation between the Italian and Jugo-Slavian Governments, it was learned to-day.

CHILEAN NAVY.

SANTIAGO, April 26. Five warships will be added to the Chilean navy as the result of negotiations between the Chilean and the British Governments. Chile has decided to accept the offer of Great Britain to dispose of one dreadnought, three torpedo boat destroyers of 1800 tons each and transports.

RUHR DISTRICT EVACUATED.

PARIS, April 26. The German Dr. Goepfert, head of the German delegation in Paris to-day, handed the Foreign Office a note addressed to Premier Millerand, stating that additional troops which had entered the Ruhr District had evacuated that district on April 21.

DISORDERS IN VENICE.

PARIS, April 26. Serious disorders occurred in Venice before the Labor Council of the city issued an order on Sunday calling off the general strike which had been in progress there for several days. One person was killed and 15 wounded during a melee that followed an attack on the Police Commissioner, during which the officer fired on the crowd. The strike resulted from disorders in the garrison, during which a soldier was shot by an officer. The Council called off the general strike yesterday, and all public services are now in operation.

OLYMPIC GAMES.

ANTWERP, April 26. The Falcons of Winnipeg to-night defeated the Swedish Olympic Hockey Team by a score of twelve to one, winning the Olympic championship. In figure skating, "pairs," Finland won the first place, Norway, 2nd; England, 3rd, and United States 4th.

COLLAR AND SHIRT BOYCOTT.

CHICAGO, April 26. "A collar and shirt" boycott, aimed at alleged profiteering by haberdashers' laundries, to begin May 5th and continue 20 days, was announced yesterday by a local committee who expect to have ten thousand adherents in a few days. The strikers will wear khaki shirts, and their washing will be done at home.

"Uncrowned King" of Arabia Goes Back to Oxford.

London, April 14.—Colonel Thomas F. Lawrence, the "uncrowned King of Arabia," has abdicated.

The man who organized the forces of the King of the Hedjaz against the Turks in 1917, has retired to a quiet fellowship in All Souls' College, Oxford.

It was Lawrence who succeeded in the almost impossible task of bringing together the scattered Bedouin tribes, welding them into an efficient army, an army which drove the Turk from Arabia, captured that sector, restored allied faith in the descendant of the prophet.

"I shall never go east again," said Lawrence to-day. Knowing his love of that country, I asked him the reason.

"I couldn't go, even if I wanted to," replied he, "because of the imperialism of the present British government. I could not face them. I do not include Lloyd George, but he can't take everything on his shoulders. I do include Lord Curzon."

Lawrence is very much an anti-imperialist. "I would like to see a general revolution of our responsibilities in Asia as quickly as possible." Lawrence deplores any extension of the British empire in the east, saying: "I don't believe we can afford it at the present moment."

Legislative Council.

(Yesterday's Session.)
The House met at 4.30 yesterday afternoon.

The address in reply was read a first and second time. The third reading was deferred until Thursday next.

Hon. George Shea offered his congratulations to the Hon. J. D. Ryan, and hoped he would be long spared to preside over the House. In referring to a former speech of Hon. W. B. Grieve he stated although he was not conversant with the fisheries, he could imagine that the loss of 3 million dollars, which the colony has suffered could not be attributed to the Fishery Regulations, as stated by the Hon. gentleman. He would admit, however, that there were serious losses incurred. Continuing he said that the Fishery Regulations had been made a political football of. The editors of the Opposition press were censured by him for their leading articles on this subject, saying they made political capital out of them, while at the same time they knew no more of their subjects than he did. He thought that given a fair show the Minister of Marine and Fisheries will come out of the (mess) at the right end.

Hon. Mr. Grieve in replying said he objected as being made to appear associated with political parties in the Fishery Regulation discussions. Any remarks made by him were not against the Government, but were the outcome of 50 years experience in the trade, and he thought after such a lengthy experience he should be allowed to express an opinion. Reviewing the details of the regulations as they applied to Italy and Greece he said he was convinced that the regulations will do the colony a great deal of harm. The law of supply and demand has disappeared and we have established arbitrary prices whereby our competitors in Canada, Iceland and Norway, not being so hampered, were able to sell their fish. The

HOME-MADE BREAD
Home bread-making reduces the high cost of living by lessening the amount of expensive meats required to supply the necessary nourishment to the body. The increased nutritious value of bread made in the home with regulations for the Brazilian market were dealt with in a clear and forcible manner, and their disastrous effects pointed out. Continuing Mr. Grieve said if the Minister of Marine and Fisheries has the right to fix the selling prices of fish, competition would be destroyed. Answering the points of Hon. Mr. Shea's speech, Mr. Grieve said, "I said the loss of 2 or 3 million dollars to the colony were largely attributed to the regulations. There is a distrust in the trade and 14 or 15 exporters do not believe in the Fishery Regulations and only 6 or 7 have faith in them, and he believed even some of these latter have left the Advisory Board. I oppose these regulations on my fifty years experience in the business and I state further that in the fall of the year their consequences will be felt. The hopes held out for these regulations have not realized and it looks as if we have substituted a local consorzio for the Italian one with (disastrous) results." He would repeat what he already had said, that the regulations were injurious to trade and their effects will be more fully realized in the fall of the year. Hon. John Anderson in reply to the Speech from the Throne said. The ships given us by the Imperial Government must be a great asset to the Country, and Newfoundland could ill afford to lose 2 or 3 million dollars. Dry Goods have gone up from 5 to 10 times its pre-war value, therefore the Government should interfere and keep up the price of our staple, so that the people would be able to meet the enhanced value of goods abroad. Local tonnage, said Hon. Mr. Anderson, requires the serious consideration of the Executive, and he hoped the Government would realize that it is necessary to have fair and decent sized ships, subsidized to bring commodities from the Old Country. As for the Government's intention to abolish the Shipping Board, he did not think this advisable for some time yet. When he came to the part of the speech dealing with the housing problem the Hon. member said he did not intend to go deeply into the matter as his views on the subject were already well known, but he said the policy is a progressive one, and is already in operation in many parts of the world with good results, and wherever lives to see it, the scheme executed would regenerate the whole of the West End of the City, where 1000 houses are not for habitation.

A communication granting leave of absence to Hon. W. J. Ellis and D. A. Ryan was read by the Clerk. Hon. John Browning gave notice of question re medical staff of the Militia Department.

The House adjourned till Thursday. Minard's Liniment Cures Diphtheria.

Early Days of the Fisheries and Agriculture in Newfoundland.

H. F. SHORTIS.

Although our forefathers have amply demonstrated their work in the quieter walks of life, as instances, such as I have related, the real worth of our people has been brought out whilst in pursuit of their natural avocation—the sea. We are essentially a maritime people. We were this originally by force of circumstances, and to-day it is the pursuit of our choice and habit. Nature made us a maritime people, and for generations the sons of Newfoundland have been battling with the elements. The main wealth of the country was, in the past, and will be, in the future, drawn from the deep. Time will no doubt develop many more auxiliary industries, but we may not hope to have anything to come up to the fisheries as a source of national wealth. The people of this country are eminently qualified by Nature for the pursuit of their calling. They are endowed with courage, fortitude and perseverance. For generations they have been performing deeds of bravery, heroism and valor that, if performed by any other civilized people their names would be handed down in the undying pages of history. How is it then the so-called historians of Newfoundland have overlooked the character and dispositions of her people? The reason is simply that they have confined themselves to a few old documents, easily accessible, and have collected such data together and published them to the world by the high-sounding name of history. In the people of Newfoundland there is to be found the material for making history—a history that would be of intense interest, as an example of what a determined and self-sacrificing race of men can accomplish in the face of the greatest physical difficulties. The collector of data will answer—"This is a thing hard to accomplish considering the absence of records." If the Fathers of History had set about their task in this spirit, the world to-day would be infinitely poorer in the knowledge we possess of nations and nation-builders.

THE VALUE OF TRADITION.
There is one source of knowledge which has never been tapped by our historians, and that is—tradition. It is absolutely futile to attempt the history of a new country without consulting the traditions of its people. The new country keeps no written record of its transactions. The struggle to live at first absorbs all their attention, and they have something else to do besides jotting down every event in their daily life. Yet all information, even the most remote stages of the settlement of Newfoundland, is easily available. It is a well-known fact that a people, who are not capable or accustomed to noting down events, have a most retentive memory. This is owing to the fact that they depend solely on their memory as a guide to the past, and the result is the marvellous retentiveness of the minds of such a people. The people of Newfoundland have this trait strongly developed within them, and, as a consequence, they are possessed of a fund of most of the traditions of the country. The writer of Newfoundland history, to be a success, must consult the traditions of her people. Without that all efforts in any other direction will be absolutely useless. As I before remarked, if the Fathers of History had confined themselves to documentary evidence, how impoverished would be the History of Nations! The Rise and Fall of the Empires of the West were not witnessed by the historians who related those events. They had to consult the traditions of the people of whom they wrote, and there is no getting over the fact the principal events related in history were handed down by tradition, before finding a place in history. It is therefore absolutely necessary for any person attempting to write the history to go amongst the people, to associate with them, to become acquainted with their habits, manners and customs, and to get them talking in order to have them relate the traditions of their country.

AN HEREDITARY GIFT.

The deeds and adventures of the earliest settlers have been preserved, from generation to generation, and handed down from father to son. The real history of Newfoundland is preserved in the traditions of her people. It is only from this source that we can learn of the bravery and heroism of her hardy sons. Tradition unfolds to us the story of their determination and pluck—their self-sacrifice—their almost super-human powers of endurance and their dauntless courage. Their love of adventure is amply illustrated in the prosecution of the seal-fishery. There are hundreds of young men in the outports, as well as St. John's, to-day, who use every effort to obtain a berth to the ice; they are well provided for, and who are in no wise compelled to go for the sake of the pecuniary returns, but their romantic love of adventure induces them to go on this hazardous voyage, more with a view to the love of the chase and its consequent dangers, than for any material gain to be derived therefrom. The spirit of adventure and daring are the two most prominent traits in the character of the Newfoundland fishermen. The history of the seal and cod fisheries, when told by some future historian, will, whilst abounding in scenes of the most realistic character, possess all the elements that go to contribute the most fascinating romance. This history will have to be gleaned from the people themselves, which go back in an unbroken chain to the earliest colonization of our country. It is from this source that we can get at all the noble traits of the true Newfoundlanders, who are intensely typical of the races from which he sprang. He is a combination of the shrewd and calculating Scotchman and ready wit of the Irishman, along with the bulldog tenacity and determination of the Briton. When occasion demands it, all these qualities quickly come to the surface.

CAPABLE IN ALL EMERGENCIES.

Stories could be told without limit of their wonderful resourcefulness and their marvellous power of rising to the occasion in sudden emergencies and dangers. This is a trait that every year is brought to the front when their dangerous calling often brings them face to face with death, and when disasters that would have a fatal termination are often averted by their wonderful power of resource and their readiness to grasp extreme opportunities. Their capability of discrimination is truly wonderful. This was one of the secrets of their success. They judged every man on his merits, and they were quick to catch on to what those merits were. A man who is observant, going on board a sealing steamer, cannot but admire the tact and discrimination displayed in selecting the men for responsible trust. Every man fits into his place with mathematical precision. In every case the master-watches, the bridge-man, the barrel-man are found to be selected with a view to perfect efficiency. In every case these men are tried, trained, file are aware of all this, and act under the man in supreme command. I do not wish it to be supposed that I am finding fault with history written from documents. I contend that such history is incomplete without embodying the characteristics of the people of the country under review. Their growth and progress from an insignificant colony to the dignified position of a factor in the Empire—the vicissitudes and difficulties of a nation in evolving itself from the embryo, are not made matters of record. At such a period the struggle to survive difficulties engrosses all their attention. Where then are we to look for material to write our history? My answer is—from the traditions of the people themselves.

ORAL HISTORY.

One of the strongest instincts in the human breast is that of cherishing and remembering important events. This instinct has been found strongly developed in man in most primitive and savage states. This handing down data in an oral manner, from generation to generation, and from father to son, has been recognized and received by all nations, and it is to this source we must look for our knowledge of the past history of Newfoundland. The historian, if he wishes to succeed, should consult tradition, that hand-maid of history. The historians, who have heretofore attempted to write the history of Newfoundland, have either completely ignored tradition or have barely skimmed over its surface. The man who attempts to compile a complete history of this country must go amongst the people—must go down deep in their traditions—and he will find ample material for, not only a thoroughly instructive volume, but an intensely interesting one. Having made a life-long study of my countrymen, and possessing, as I flatter myself I do, a thorough knowledge of them, I feel perfectly satisfied that the story of Newfoundland has to be evolved from the store-house of the tenacious memory and tradition-loving habits of our people.

R. A. DENNISON, of Los Angeles, owner and trainer of fine trotting horses, who says Tanlac put him right back on his feet again, after he had been in bed for over a year. Declares he is feeling like his old self now.

For the past year or more I have not been right physically. I just didn't feel good at all, but last April 22nd I had an awful attack with my stomach which nearly drew me up and I have been worse ever since. "About the best way I can describe the way I felt is to say I was just leg-weary and all in. I really did not have strength to keep going and I gave up all idea of trying to work. For a long while I had no appetite but would eat anyhow though my food never seemed to do me any good. "I would go to bed at night and would sleep but apparently did not rest for I would get up just as tired as when I went to bed. I got so I could scarcely go a block but what I would have to stop and rest. "Well, I read about Tanlac one day and that reminded me that a friend had spoken about the same medicine, so I got some and began to take it. I had been taking it about a week when one evening, after supper, I started to walk and before I realized it I had walked up to First Street and back, about 14 blocks, and never felt it at all and then I realized that the tonic was helping me. "I have taken four bottles now and am just feeling real good again. I am able to be back at the Exposition Stock Yards every day and have just as much energy as I ever had. I get up refreshed in the mornings now and I have a real appetite which makes me enjoy three good square meals every day. Anyone who needs a good tonic will certainly be satisfied with Tanlac and I am glad to recommend it to my friends. "The above statement was made recently by R. A. Dennison, a well-known owner and trainer of fine trotting horses, residing at No. 214 East 8th St., Los Angeles, Cal. Mr. Dennison has lived in California for 32 years; he is 63 years of age and has followed his present line of business for 30 years. He is well-known on the Pacific Coast. "Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, and by the leading Druggist in every town.—adv.

Mysterious Shootings in New York City.

NEW YORK, April 19.—Three mysterious shootings on the East Side during the past twenty-four hours, all of them apparently the work of an unidentified sniper, are puzzling the police. Charles Gagnio, 26, and Lasitello Orillo, 22, were each found in a dying condition early Sunday, on the streets of the lower East Side. Gagnio was found lying on the sidewalk in Coerck Street, with a bullet thru his head, and Orillo was found in a similar condition in St. Mark's Place. Both of them died without gaining consciousness. Patrick Hayes, 32, was found lying on the street in First Avenue, near 79th street. He was taken to a hospital, where his condition is reported as serious.

Macedonian Murdered

THROAT CUT AND ROBBED. TORONTO, April 19.—Ramssha Hasson, a Macedonian, 35 years of age, had been missing from his boarding house, 159 Wolsley street since since early in March and his body was found in a shallow grave in the cellar there on Saturday evening. His throat was cut from ear to ear, and there was a wound on the left side of the head. The discovery of the body was made by Albert Adolsa, a friend of Hasson, who had engaged two laborers to dig up the cellar in the belief that the mysterious disappearance of Hasson would thus be solved. Adolsa had told Inspector Crowe, of the police department, of his intention to search beneath the cellar for his friend. The murdered man had a wife and family in Macedonia. A number of his countrymen live in the house where he made his home. One of them was reported missing Saturday night. Other inmates denied having had any knowledge of the murder. Two Victory bonds, $100 each, and Hasson's bankbook, are said to be missing. Hasson had money in the bank.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

ON UNDERVALUING NEW ACQUAINTANCES

RUTH CAMERON

How few people there are who make their worth felt on a first acquaintance.

Someone was speaking to-day of a new acquaintance who made a good first impression, but did not have much to back it up. She seemed to think people like that were rather common.

As I felt to thinking it over, I found myself convinced that the opposite was the case.

In short, when I think of the many good people whom, on a first meeting, I had undervalued, thought uninteresting, or not worth further cultivation—or even disliked or found amusing—I am thoroughly ashamed.

The only thing that comforts me is the thought that they probably thought the same about me and so are quits.

Her Aloofness Was Only Shyness.

In college I remember I took a dislike to one of my fellow freshmen because she seemed so aloof and distant. She ultimately became one of my closest friends, and of course realized that the loofness was only shyness of a little country girl.

In the newspaper world I set down uninteresting, on a first meeting, a man who afterward proved to be one of the most interesting men I ever met.

I lived for three months in the Blue Inn with a woman of my own acquaintance under the firm impression that she had nothing in common, and two days before she left that she shared a love of poetry.

I had Met Her A Dozen Times.

And just recently I have found a friend in a woman whom I had met a half dozen times without being acquainted with her, just because we did not have any immediate grounds of conduct. If chance had brought us together for several years on a train journey, I would have missed a good friend.

Look over your own roll of acquaintances and friends, and see if any of your most pleasant acquaintances and most treasured friendships have not been people to whom, if you had met them but once or twice, you would not have given a second thought or whom you even disliked at first.

And Then You Feel Ashamed.

Then again, I think it often happens that people whom one has known slightly for some time and thought to be very commonplace people, will suddenly bring forth a talent or a chapter in their lives that makes you realize how you have undervalued them.

There really is a great deal to most people if you know how to get at it. Snap judgments are boomerangs that often come back in after years to shame you.

Eggs, instead of coin, are used as change in the small towns of East Tennessee. One storekeeper from Powell Station, Tenn., says all his customers use eggs to make purchases.

So great is the supply that in two days he gathered a total of 16,000. Eggs are being hauled to the Municipal Market in wagons, as if they were potatoes, only the wagon beds are well lined with straw and sawdust.

BUD'S AVIATOR.
I know an aviator man
Who used to fight the Germans 'an He's just as nice as nice can be
An' tells a lot of things to me.
An' sometimes when it looks like rain,
He lets me climb into his plane
An' wear his leather coat an' cap,
An' take his seat an' fix the strap
Across my knees, pretendin' I
Am really startin' out to fly.
His name is Mitchell, an' he shows
Me just the way the rudder goes.
You hold the stick an' move it so
For flyin' high or flyin' low,
Or loop-the-loop or turnin' round,
An' you must have a lot of ground
To get a start, because you need
To work up quite a lot of speed
To get your plane into the air
Above the trees an' houses there.
An' Mister Mitchell says that I
Shall some day have the nerve to fly,
But now I can't go up at all
'Coz pa's afraid that I might fall,
An' so I stand an' watch him when He's taking up the other men
An' way up there sometimes I see
Him waving back his hand to me,
An' I ain't ever scared at all
'Coz I know God won't let him fall.

Museum in Monument.

Not many people who daily pass along the Thames Embankment know the history of Cleopatra's Needle.

Fewer still are aware of the fact that when it was erected in 1878, a number of articles were placed inside the pedestal in two jars for the edification of a distant posterity.

Egyptian kings were wont to inscribe a record of their virtues and achievements on the sides of the Needle, when it used to adorn the portals of the Temple of Heliopolis. A parchment copy of Dr. Birch's translation of these hieroglyphics is to be found inside the Needle, together with copies of the Bible in several languages, and a translation into no fewer than 285 languages of the sixteenth verse of the third chapter of St. John.

Touching on articles of everyday use, there are to be found inside a Bradshaw's railway guide, a case of cigars, pipes, etc., articles of female adornment, a London directory, a copy of Whitaker's Almanac, a box of hair-plins, a child's feeding bottle, and toys of all kinds.

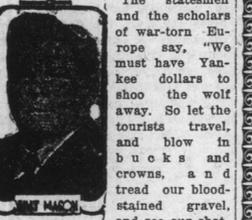

Photographs of a dozen pretty English women were included, as well as copies of daily and illustrated papers of the day.

Of more than ordinary interest is the inclusion of a complete set of British coinage and a two-foot rule. Amongst the remainder of articles placed inside the obelisk were a portrait of Queen Victoria, a memorial printed on vellum giving an account of the removal of the Needle from its ancient site to its present position, together with plans of the various arrangements made at the time to facilitate its transport, some jars of Doulton ware, and last, but not least, a map of London.

"FIVE THOUSAND."

Five Thousand more bottles of "Brick's Tasteless" Cod Liver Oil will arrive in a few days. The two thousand which arrived about two weeks ago is practically all sold. This certainly speaks well for the medicinal qualities of "Brick's Tasteless." The food is very high at present. "Brick's Tasteless" is a most palatable preparation containing the active principles of the purest Cod Liver Oil with all its unequalled tonic alternative reconstructive properties—combined with Phosphorus in the form of the Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites containing 1-100 gr. strychnine to each tablespoonful also, with the nutritious liquid extract of malt and the bronchial tonic and sedative fluid extract of wild cherry bark. TOURISTS.

THE STATESMAN

The statesman and the scholars of war-torn Europe say, "We must have Yankee dollars to shoo the wolf away. So let the tourists travel, and blow in bucks and crowns, and tread our blood-stained gravel, and see our shattered towns. They give us all the willies, those Yankee tourist mobs, the rubbernecks and sillies, the schweinlunge and the swabs. But we must have their boodle, and so we rise and wall, 'Hurrah for Yankee Doodle, and for the eagle's tail!'"

The tourists will be flocking for many years to come, to scenes that once were shocking, where shrapnel used to hum. Through regions grown historic the frowsy bunch will tread, and say, "Alas, poor Yorick!" above the hero's bed. Where once some dauntless creature fought on, though shorn of hope, the dowdy old maid teacher will read her guidebook dope. Where soldiers used to hanker to gain the hero fame, some cornfed Kansas banker will ply his snapshot game. Where once the armies wallowed in mud and bloody foam, on soil that should be hallowed, the rubbernecks will roam. And if old Europe bleeds them, and strings them till they're blind, the while she pets and feeds them, I really will not mind.

That English Opinion

In the 'Daily Star' report of remarks made in the House of Assembly, on Wednesday last, by the Minister of Justice—Honourable W. R. Warren—that gentleman is made to say, "There was nothing criminal about such conduct," (i.e., the conduct of the Prime Minister as alleged by the Woodford affidavit.) "He based this declaration, not only on his own interpretation of the law, but also on the advice of a leading British Constitutional lawyer, who had been consulted on the matter by cable." It is, of course, not quite fair to regard the 'Star's' report as being exact, but it is noteworthy that the other newspapers reported the expression of the Minister of Justice, as of the same tenor, and therefore the 'Star's' report fairly represents the impression which was made on the audience who heard Mr. Warren's declaration.

In a letter from the Private Secretary of His Excellency the Governor to Sir Michael P. Cashin, dated April 21st, this paragraph appears:

"I am further to observe that the acts alleged to have been committed, do not come within the criminal Law of this Colony."

It was not said that this statement was based upon the opinions of English Counsel, but taken in connection with the remarks of the Minister of Justice it is fair to assume that the advice given to His Excellency, by his Ministers, was asserted to have been upon the strength of the opinion given English Counsel. The following correspondence, tabled in the House of Assembly, gives the basis exactly of both the statement made by the Minister of Justice, and the assertion made—for his Excellency—by the Private Secretary.

COPY OF CORRESPONDENCE BETWEEN ATTORNEY GENERAL OF NEWFOUNDLAND AND LEGAL ADVISERS IN LONDON.

TELEGRAM.

3 April, 1920.

"To Bees, London:
See Section 185 Newfoundland Election Act, 1913 and Chapter 63 Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland. Take Counsel's opinion whether sub-section 4, section 41, English Corrupt and Illegal Practices Act, 1883, applies in Newfoundland.

(Sgd.) WARREN,
Attorney-General."

TELEGRAM,
10 April, 1920.

"To Warren,
Attorney-General, St. John's. Counsel advise sub-section 4, section 41, English Corrupt Practices Act, 1883, does not apply to Newfoundland, being impliedly excluded by reasons of sections 186 to 189, Newfoundland Election Act, 1913.

(Sgd.) BERRIDGE."

There are several significant comments to be made upon this correspondence. In the first place, it will be seen that it contains no evidence that "the leading British constitutional lawyers had been consulted by cable." The cabled enquiry was addressed to a firm of Solicitors in London, who chose the Counsel, and in cabling the opinions they had obtained, the London Solicitors did not so much as mention the name of the Counsel consulted. He may, or may not, be a constitutional lawyer: he may, or may not, have been a King's Counsel, or even a Junior Counsel. From the fact that his name is not mentioned it is a reasonable inference that he was not, at least, a man whose name is known all over the Empire. The Counsel did NOT say "there was nothing criminal about the matter." He was not even asked if the matter were a criminal one, but merely, whether a certain section of an English Act was applicable in this Colony. Note the difference. The answer is that the particular section referred to was not applicable here, and this reply therefore amounts to nothing more or less than this—That a particular penalty provided by an English Act of Parliament for such offences as the Woodford charge against Premier Squires is not law in this Colony.

As against this opinion of an English Counsel, whose name is unknown here, there is the solemn decision of our own Supreme Court, which on March 23rd last, with reference to this same matter, said:

"The Principles, Practices and Rules in England, shall apply here."

Even if there be reasonable doubt, why has it been resolved by the Minister of Justice in favor of the Premier? Why has he (Minister of Justice) not taken steps to obtain a formal decision by our Supreme Court, as he would in the case of an ordinary malefactor? It has been asserted upon the streets and in sections of the Press, and the assertion has been made much of by the Premier that the charges made against him are not criminal: that is to say that they are not punishable under the criminal law, and this assertion is alleged to be based upon the opinion of English Counsel. It now appears that this assertion is baseless, that it was made with fraudulent intent, and that in their endeavours, to escape from the burden of the Woodford affidavit, the colleagues of the Prime Minister have not hesitated to add falsehood to fraud, or fraud to fraud, as the case may be.

Spencer Won in Saturday's Game.

Although defeated by the Methodist girls in the first two games of Inter-Collegiate Basketball, the Spencer girls turned the tables and won Saturday's game by a score of 21 to 15.

The game was the fastest of the series and proved very interesting to a large number of spectators. The first period ended with the score very close, but in the second, through the splendid shooting by Maude Hutchings, the Spencer forwards got a large lead, which they were able to keep throughout the entire game—being so strongly supported by their guards. The centres on both sides were again the stars of the game. The line-up was:

Methodist—Forwards, M. Fenwick, M. Robertson, Centres, M. Lawrence, Guards, G. Knight, G. Sparkes, Spares, O. Bishop, E. Martin, E. Parkins and R. Roberts.

Spencers—Forwards: C. Crane, M. Hutchings, Centres, D. Mews, S. Chalk, Guards, N. Wood, I. Rendell, Spares, E. House, E. Scandrett, M. Campbell and A. Mews.

C. C. C. Memorial Committee.

The committee recently appointed to consider the matter of a memorial to the members of the C.C.C. who fell in the Great War, will meet on Wednesday afternoon. The decision of the committee has been to erect a brass tablet in the Cathedral, with the names of the fallen members inscribed thereon. This decision of the committee will be communicated to the Archbishop for his approval. The committee consists of Major O'Grady, O.B.E., Capt. G. Byrne, M.C., Capt. C. McGrath and Mr. T. J. Foran.

C. L. B. Cadets' Dance.

The C. L. B. Warrant and N. C. O.'s of the Church Lads' Brigade Cadets held a very successful dance last evening in the Gymnasium of the Armoury, Harvey Road. The affair was a decided success, over 100 couples being present. Dancing was kept up till the "wee sma' hours", when the affair terminated and was voted by all present to have been a "ripping time." Great praise is due the lady friends of the W. and N. C. O.'s who catered to the entire satisfaction of all present, and their splendid work was greatly appreciated. The music was supplied by the C. L. B. Band Orchestra, under Bandmaster Morris, and was voted "splendid." The Dance Committee have every reason to be satisfied with the splendid results of their work.

Two Men Drowned on Grand Banks.

The following message was received by Deputy Minister of Customs and Excise, St. John's, Nfld., from the British Consul at St. John's, Nfld., dated April 26th: "Schr. Maud Thornhill, Capt. H. Thornhill, arrived here and reports the drowning on the Grand Banks of Wilson Bungay of Mose Ambrose and Samuel Hatcher of Grand Bank, on the 22nd inst., by the sinking of their dory."

Placing the Unemployed.

PATRIOTIC EMPLOYERS SECURE HELP OF RETURNED VETERANS.

At the regular meeting of the Civil Re-Establishment Committee on Friday night, information was gleaned from the Employment Officials that 80 returned veterans had been placed in positions since April 1st—30 jobs having been actually secured during the week ending April 23rd. In this connection, appreciation is expressed to Hon. Geo. Knowling, Johnson's Bakery, Imperial Life Assurance Co., Reid Newfoundland Co., Hon. John Brown, T. Armstrong and Hon. H. J. Brownrigg and Minister of Shipping Cave—these having engaged the services of the men in question. The number of unemployed veterans, however, continues to increase, notwithstanding the splendid efforts being made by the Vocational Officer, and it is to be hoped that employers desiring help will communicate with the latter when they require suitable men.

Old Feildians Re-enter League.

Football 'fans' will be pleased to know that it was unanimously decided, at a meeting of a large number of Old Feildians, held last night, that they would re-enter the Football League this year. In 1915 the Feildians as a team were obliged to withdraw from the League through several of their members going overseas, but they amalgamated with the College and in 1918 were winners of the trophy.

The elections of officers for the coming season took place:
Captain—E. R. A. Chafe.
Vice-Captain—B. Ewing.
Secretary—A. Monroe.
League Delegate—Geo. Hunt.
Team Manager—C. E. A. Jeffery.
The Feildians have some good material to pick from and the College lads may be expected to give a good account of themselves.

At the Casino.

YOUNG-ADAMS COMPANY.

His Excellency the Governor and suite attended last night's performance of "Her Great Temptation" by the Young-Adams Company. The box seats, by the victors party, were draped with the Union Jack, surmounting the Royal Arms, and as the distinguished patrons entered they were received by the ushers in charge, while the whole audience rose, the C. C. C. Band playing the National Anthem. Last night's play demonstrated that the particular forte of the whole Young-Adams Company is the sentimentally sensational drama, and the acting throughout, the whole troupe being employed in the cast, was exceptionally fine. Miss Marie Adams in the dual role of Queens Montrose and Madeleine Renee, took the audience by storm, and being well supported by the ushers in charge, greatly delighted the large audience. Mr. Young as Lord Walter Huntington was perfect in his impersonation of the big game, while Miss Miss Eleanor O'Keefe captivated all hearts. Special praise is worthy last night's production and our only regret is that we have not had at our disposal to do real justice to the acting, staging and costumes in the play of the season, "Her Great Temptation." It will, however, be our duty to-night when another opportunity will be given to witness the star effort of the company.

AMUNDSEN ICEBOUND.
WASHINGTON, April 26.
The Amundsen Polar Exploration party, in the steamer Maude, is ice-bound at the mouth of the Kolyma River, Siberia, and is awaiting an opportunity to sail southward, it was indicated in radio despatches made public to-day at the Navy Department. Amundsen, who discovered the South Pole, apparently has abandoned his attempt to reach the North Pole.

ABSOLUTELY FALSE.

LONDON, April 26.
Stories, published in France and England asserting that there is discussion among the members of the Supreme Council, are termed slanderous, and cruel, is the statement issued by Earl Curzon of Kedleston, British Foreign Secretary, and telegraphed from San Remo. Almost simultaneously the Foreign Office received an official message from the United States saying the reports of alleged dissensions, which had been republished in the United States were creating a deplorable situation.

UKRAINIAN INDEPENDENCE.

WARSAW, Apr. 27.
(By Associated Press).—The Foreign Office announces that the Treaty between Poland and the Ukraine will be signed within a few days. The independence of the Ukrainians will be proclaimed soon afterwards.

WHO GAVE THE CONCESSIONS?

OTTAWA, April 26.
A million and half acres of pulp-wood forests in Southern Labrador, immediately north of Cape Charles, in Newfoundland territory, is being acquired by a United States Securities firm, to supply British trade. It is understood that a full survey of the area has been made by means of photographs from aeroplanes, and the corporation has practically completed its arrangements to take over the forests, install machinery and prepare to ship pulp direct from its own harbors to Great Britain, where the pulp will be converted into paper.

GARRISON WIPED OUT.

ALEPPO, Syria, April 26.
Dr. Robert Lambert, Director of the American Near East Relief Commission in Syria, has just reached here from Urfa in the north western part of Mesopotamia, accompanied by Mrs. Richard Mansfield, Miss Mary Louise Law, Colin Clements and an Englishman named Garnet Woodward. Other Christians in Urfa are reported to be safe. The entire French garrison of three hundred, who evacuated Urfa, were all killed on their way to Djerblous. Aintab has been surrounded since April 16th by eight thousand French troops and quiet prevails there.

BEDOUINS ATTACK BRITISH.

CAIRO, April 26.
Fighting is reported to be taking place between Arabs and British troops in Palestine. Two thousand Bedouins attacked Semakin, south of Lake Tiberias, from which a small British force withdrew after a fight in which they suffered few casualties. The incident was not important, according to the official view, being merely a local development of recent Bedouin cattle forays.

House of Assembly.

MONDAY, April 26.
The House met at 3.15.
Petitions were presented by Mr. Walsh from Little Paradise and other settlements in Placentia Bay for a wharf; from Great Paradise, also for a wharf; from Patrick's Cove for telephone or telegraph connection; from Colinet Island for breakwater. These petitions were supported by Messrs. Sullivan and Sirodt. By Mr. Targatt from 600 electors of Trinity Bay South asking that Mr. J. W. James, J.P., be transferred from the Magistracy of Bonne Bay to that of Trinity Bay South; by Mr. Higgins, supported by Messrs. Vinnalomb and Fox, from Flat Rock, St. John's East, for concrete road to landing place, and from Shoe Cove asking for a way off.

Messrs. Sullivan and Walsh then asked the following questions:

QUESTIONS.

MR. WALSH—To ask the Hon. the Minister of Finance if it is the intention of the Government to increase the vote for old age Pensions sufficiently so that all applicants can receive the Pensions.

MR. WALSH—To ask the Hon. Col. Secty. to table all correspondence between the Government and the Reid Newfoundland Co. with regard to the closing down of the Trepassy line last December.

MR. SULLIVAN—I give notice that I will on to-morrow ask the Hon. the Col. Secty. to lay on the table of the House all copies of correspondence memoranda and other data whatever in reference to or in connection with directly or indirectly any proposal, scheme or undertaking of a public nature in Newfoundland in which Harry J. Crowe either personally or in a representative capacity is interested and upon which he is or has been in communication with the present or past administration or any department thereof, particularly in reference to the acquisition of any rights, privileges or undertakings heretofore enjoyed or carried out or proposed to be enjoyed or carried out by the Reid Newfoundland Co.

I give notice that I will on to-morrow ask the Hon. the Prime Minister, who owing to the absence from this House of the Minister of Agriculture and Mines, represents the Agriculture and Mines Department.

(1)—What steps if any have been taken with regard to cancellation of Timber Grants which are held by Speculators and not developed.

(2)—If it is the intention of the Govt. to take steps to cancel Grants that are held by parties who are not fulfilling the conditions as laid down by the Crown Lands Act.

I gave notice that I will on to-morrow ask the Hon. the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs.

(1)—To lay on the table of the House a statement showing the number of incomplete extensions of the Telegraph System which were commenced in 1919, in the District of Placentia and St. Mary's and when the work will be completed?

(2)—What provision if any is being made to connect Cape Pine Light House with St. Shott's or Trepassy by Telegraph or Telephone?

(3)—What work has been done with the extension of the Telegraph Line from Peter's River to St. Shott's?

(4)—What work has been done with the extension of the Telegraph Line to Long Harbor, Placentia Bay.

(5)—When the Telegraph Office is to be opened in North Harbor, Placentia Bay, the Line being now built to that important settlement.

(6)—What provision is being made to connect up Mall Bay, Colinet, Patrick's Cove, Arnolds Cove, North West Clattice Harbor, Little Paradise, and St. Joseph's, Placentia Bay with Telegraph or Telephone System.

I gave notice that I will on to-morrow ask the Hon. Colonial Secretary to lay on the table of this House:

(1)—All correspondence between the Reid Newfoundland Company and the Government and between the Reid Newfoundland Company and the Government Engineer in reference to the condition of the railway and all proposals for the improvement of the Inland Transportation facilities generally.

I give notice that on to-morrow I will ask the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries, to lay on the Table of this House:

(1)—Any correspondence he may have in connection with the establishing of Life Saving Stations between Cape Race and Cape St. Mary's.

(2)—If it is the intention of the Government to establish Life Saving Stations and further aids to navigation in this dangerous Coast between Renewa and Cape St. Mary's.

(3)—What moneys if any, have been sent to The District of Placentia and St. Mary's, since November 1919 from the Marine and Fisheries Department.

(4)—Where and to whom the money was sent.

(5)—For what purpose the money was required.

(6)—At whose request the money was allocated?

I give notice that I will on to-morrow ask the Hon. Minister of Posts and Telegraphs:

(1)—To table all correspondence between the Marconi Company or any other Wireless Telegraph or Telephone Companies in connection with the introduction of further Wireless Telegraph or Wireless Telephone Stations in this country.

(2)—Also any correspondence in connection with the closing down of the Directional Wireless Station at Cape Race.

(3)—If it is the intention of the Government to vote sums of money for the erection of at least two more Directional Wireless Stations, one to be erected Cape Ray and one at Cape Chapeau Rouge at the entrance of Placentia Bay, as further aids to navigation.

(4)—If any provision is being made for the erection of a small wireless Telegraph or Telephone Plant at Odein, Placentia Bay, or if the Government had decided to connect Odein by Cable with Flat Islands or Baine Harbor.

I give notice that I will on to-morrow ask the Hon. Minister of Posts and Telegraphs to lay on the table of the House all correspondence in connection with the dismissal of Miss Best as Operatress at Come-By-Chance, and why a man from Trinity Bay was given the position as operator at Come-By-Chance?

I give notice that I will on to-morrow ask the Hon. Minister of Finance to lay on the table of the House a statement,

(1)—Showing the amounts received as Profits Tax from the Dominion Iron and Steel Co., and the Nova Scotia Steel Co., operating at Wabana.

(2)—If both Companies have paid the Profit Tax? And if not, Why?

FISH REGULATIONS.

The address in reply was then taken up.

Sir John Crosbie said in part—I have read the Governor's Speech from the Throne with considerable interest. It is not what is in the speech that is interesting, it is what is left out. One part of the speech I am fully in accord with, and that is we are all proud the great world war is over and we are settling down to peace. I am proud to welcome Lieut. Small and Sergt. LeGrow to the House and fully realize the great work they have done, and the noble boys who laid down their lives for the greatest nation in the world, upon which the sun never sets. The only Crosbie who was fit to volunteer did so—my nephew, at 16 years of age—and was killed in the great drive of July, in which so many of Newfoundland's sons laid down their lives. We are proud of them one and all. When reading the speech I came to one of the most important things which, in my judgment, even this House of Assembly ever attempted to handle—fish regulations—and after careful thought decided I would not interfere, in fact decided it was useless. But after a moment's further thought felt that I would be avoiding my duty to my constituents and my country, who had sent me here to represent them, and I immediately decided that I would do my duty. In the speech from the throne it has been said that considerable money has been saved by these regulations. I, for one, cannot see it, nor can any other man, acquainted with the full facts. It's really a dream, it's not a reality; I would be glad if it were true, but I KNOW it is not. Now, on or about the 8th day of February I made a speech to the Board of Trade. I tried to be moderate and fair, as I was anxious that any attempt to assist the fishermen in obtaining better prices for their products should not be blocked. But, Mr. Speaker, I contended that these regulations, in the way of fixing prices were dangerous, mischievous and troublesome, and the only way prices would ever be fixed was by supply and demand, and I said at that meeting, using the words of one of England's Prime Ministers, "Just wait and see," and now results are beginning to prove that I was correct. Fish is troublesome produce to handle; it is a perishable article, it is similar to the fruit trade, not quite as perishable, but nearly as bad in a warm climate. It has been said that under my time as Minister of Shipping, I tried to rule the prices, etc. That is not correct. It was an arrangement made by the merchants themselves, in which I acted as chairman, and it only covered a term of a month, to be cancelled at any time if they so decided. We did not interfere with prices anywhere, except in Brazil, where we tried to maintain prices, but had nothing whatever to do with payment, etc. That was entirely for the merchant himself on the other side. We tried to regulate cargoes for different markets, but this was mostly with Labrador fish—that is practically what I did. Associated with me were Hon. W. B. Grieve, late Hon. J. Harvey and Hon. A. E. Hickman, and as soon as markets brightened we dropped it again. During my visit away last May and June I learned certain things in connection with exchange, and I called a meeting of the Board of Trade and told the exporters exchange would likely go very low, and I was prepared to give every assistance I could in helping to arrange for the coming season's catch. The merchants wanted the Government which I was associated with to lay down some rules and regulations re shipments, etc., but they declined to interfere—and that, Mr. Speaker, is the history of anything I did with fish. Some time last September I attended a meeting with several exporters and discussed with Mr. Hawes the handling of our fish in Italy, and what could be done with the Consorzio. We had a considerable number of meetings, and I pointed out to Mr. Hawes all I did through the Governor, the British Government, etc., yet we could do nothing with the Consorzio, and I feared he would have the same result. Yet, Mr. Hawes started in to work with the Consorzio, and some time late in October I got a note saying he had made sales and hastened to give me the good news, but alas the sales fell through. On November 3rd, as you gentlemen are fully aware, we were beaten at the polls, and as soon as the result was known I understand Messrs. Hawes and Job proceeded to Port Union, and, presumably, some arrangement was made with the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries, which was never discussed with me; and the next I knew was that regulations were issued from the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries, regulations laying down prices, etc., and appointing Mr. Hawes agent. After reading these regulations carefully, I decided to sell my holdings of fish locally, and did so, as I saw trouble ahead. Now, Mr. Speaker, begins the real trouble. I claim, and nobody to the contrary can prove different, that the fixing of prices, etc., has brought about a change of affairs that really may be very serious, indeed more serious than most people can imagine. Just imagine, if you can, our country with a population of 250,000, a small-sized city, dictating to millions that they must pay for codfish. One would imagine we were the only country in the world who catch fish, but we are facing all kinds of competitions now that the world war is over, and if we are not very careful we may lose our markets altogether. I can well remember our Black Monday in 1894. Be careful, then, gentlemen, that history does not repeat itself. Remember the financial position of the world to-day is unsound, and these countries we sell our fish to are seriously handicapped by this great difference in exchange. Remember that to-day it is not hastily we must act, but with serious and careful judgment. One mistake may ruin the whole trade of the country. Diplomacy is required. Standardize your fish, and give your customer the article you profess to sell. Never mind fixing prices. Supply and demand will let everybody sell to whom he pleases. Apparently someone has found light in his darkness. Take Mr. Walter Monroe's message of warning in a cable sent here the other day:

"My opinion is regulations now detrimental to trade interests. If continued, curtail supplies to a minimum. Give publicity."

What does it mean? Mr. Monroe is on the other side and has seen what has happened, and he is now a big enough man to admit his mistake, and I feel before very ion, gentlemen, that the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries will do the same. Just wait and see. We do not realize at all what the loss has been to us through these Regulations. I will here compare figures as to shipments to Brazil:

Sir John Crosbie presented statistics of interest and importance. Amongst them he showed that from Oct. to Dec. 31, 1919, 69,457 drums were sent to Brazilian consignees. For the same period of 1918, the number of drums was 111,885, showing a shortage of about 42,000 drums.

Shipments during the six months ending on March 31st last, compared with shipments of the corresponding months of 1918-1919 show a decrease of 70,000 drums. Figure up the loss:—

74,000 drums would mean a loss on Packages $105,000
Labour on same 42,000
Less Freight 175,000
$322,000

Look at the loss to coopers and to people who have been making drums in Conception Bay, also to labourers, and the loss on freight, etc. Where is this money gone? It is easily answered. I will read to you a clipping from the Maritime Merchant:

"From the importers' standpoint, things of-day are looking pretty good, except in the consignment markets. Porto Rico and Barbados are overloaded with supplies, but Cuba is a ready purchaser, with prospects that she will continue such for some months to come. North Brazil, too, has begun to buy quite freely, after showing extreme bashfulness for some time, and it is expected that she will be a good customer until after the Lenten season; she is not, however, willing to pay the high prices of last year. One of the most interesting bits of news in the dried fish trade at present is what comes to us from Newfoundland. The Government down there are attempting to regulate the export price of fish; that is, to set a minimum below which nothing can be sold. Permits to make shipments have to be secured from the Government who also stipulate the terms which may be given to foreign purchasers. The effect of this effort will not be felt directly in our market, the West Indies, but it should have a tendency to strengthen prices in a general way, and so it is that we find local exporters much more satisfied with the business outlook than they were a year ago. They think they can now see quite clearly how it will be possible for them to clean up everything they have without much effort; they feel that they should have the minimum of worry from this time forward. Some enquiries locally are reported from Italy, but stocks held here which would suit for that market are unfortunately light; what there is that would suit is needed, so it is said, for 'order' trade with Brazil."

How delighted these Nova Scotians must have been. Halifax got the coopers making packages, Halifax laborers got the labor, and Canadian ships likely got the freights, and poor old Newfoundland must suffer. Isn't it awful. All through an error in judgment, making Rules and Regulations to suit some people, Brazil Regulations call for practically 90 per cent. payment before the cargo sails; in the old way they used to pay on 60 or 90 day bills, which, apparently, most people were satisfied with. But, now you cannot do this any more; you must pay cash, and buyers fight shy and do business with other countries on reasonable terms. Yet, they turn around and force us to do business with Mr. Hawes, and draw at 60 or 90 days at Mr. Hawes' pleasure, when often and often we could sell cargoes outright. In other words, they change things at Brazil and turn around and change the conditions and practically go back to Brazil conditions in Europe. It is a funny state of affairs.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Spain has gone to pieces, just as I expected, and predicted. Hawes practically throws up the sponge and sends his ultimatum, and I will read you his cable:

"Situation Spain serious. Our total stocks 55,000, besides 25,000 on the way. Spain average total sales 2,000 weekly. Alicante advice have ample proof. Lazo offering Alicante really good quality large and medium 71/6, small 68/6. In interests of consignments already received and next season, protest must refuse anything more whatever even without advances."

If what Hawes says is right, there is forty weeks' stock there, and he now refuses anything whatever without advances. Oh, what a change to the wonderful things these Regulations were going to do. I wonder what about these hundreds of thousands of dollars they saved. Wait a bit, we are not through with Mr. Hawes, he is a clever man, although he could not handle the Consorzio like he handles the merchants here. He is clever, and somebody may find Mr. Hawes is not through yet. There is going to be lots of trouble before these Regulations of the past winter are finished.

What is the position in Oporto to-day? On April 7th, 1918, the stocks were 5,405 quintals, consumption 7,285 qtls.; April 14, 1918, the stocks were 15,275 qtls.; consumption, 5,508 qtls.; April 23, 1918, the stocks were 6,839 qtls.; consumption, 4,053.

Compare the position, same dates, for 1920:

April 3rd the stocks were 65,567 qtls.; consumption, 7,743 qtls. April 8th, the stocks here 75,200 qtls.; consumption, 5,000 qtls.; April 15th, the stocks were 60,000 qtls.; consumption, 4,057 qtls.; April 19, the stocks were 55,715 qtls.; consumption, 5,200 qtls.

And with six cargoes outside to enter, I will now read a message received from Oporto, which surely speaks for itself:—

"Owing regulations, unless shippers avail of their consignees and sell at best prices obtainable, result ruinous. Six cargoes waiting instructions here."

Is this not enough to make one sit and wonder what's to happen next? If something is not done, fishermen who have fish to come on here this spring will realize to their sorrow something has happened, as it will be practically unsaleable. What are we going to do with large and medium that is in the country now if these markets are unable to handle it? It is really serious, more serious than we think.

Last November no shipper was allowed to ship fish unless he could name the price and destination, not even to Halifax, yet when the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries returns from his trip his advice is to sell all you can to Halifax, rush all the fish you can there—what a change! Consorzio and Hawes—nobody seems to understand just what happened there. Some say Hawes sold 200,000 quintals and all kinds of great things were done; yet I know when some people get their account sales and final adjustments they won't be very happy. I know of a cargo sold to them which is now returning. I feel confident that things in Italy are much more serious than some people think. Yes, 1920 catch will never realize the prices of 1919, just as sure as the chickens come home to roost, and that's pretty sure. Yes, Regulations may be required, standardization of quality is a move in the right direction. Have proper inspection to see the qualities are shipped as sold. This, in my mind, is a move in the right direction, but don't interfere with price. Let a man sell to the best advantage; some men may be satisfied with reasonable profit, while others are not. Why should he not be allowed to sell at a small profit? Again, if these Regulations of prices remain, no young man can ever step up the ladder; he is down and out, the big man will be the man. It is difficult to know just what to do, but one must not act too hastily; it requires great thought and consideration. Remember to-day we have all the competition we want coming along from Norway, Iceland, France and England, which will all be competing with us. How can we, then, fix prices? Utterly impossible. Get the quality up to a good standard, and supply and demand will cover the rest. Buyers? Yes, the more the merrier; it makes competition in our local markets keener; it helps finance, and it will help the fishermen to obtain the very best prices for their fish.

I appeal to the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries to be very, very careful. Fish is our chief product; any false move may possibly change the financial position of Newfoundland in more ways than he can ever dream of—he, who was set by the fishermen to this House to protect their interests. I again appeal to him don't act too hastily, get the best brains the country can produce and give everything great and careful consideration, and, after all, good may come out of evil.

Finance—the world to-day is topsy-turvy. Yes, I believe Newfoundland fishermen and merchants all did well the past five years; but they enlarged their business, increased their trade, and to-day they find themselves with vessels, traps, etc., which they cannot sell, and after all, is this not what has always happened in Newfoundland?

London brokers who have helped so many young men to become exporters to-day are essential to this trade, they are not perfect in everything, but they have been of great assistance, in fact they practically acted as a medium between buyer and seller, made finance easy to handle, and were a great assistance in helping to finance the season's catch, but to-day this way of doing business is no longer. They refuse to advance or handle our fish under these regulations. The result means that the whole fish trade may go into six or seven merchants' hands, and then see what will happen. Competition is the life of trade. Take it away and it means disaster—sure. In closing my remarks on the Fish Regulations, I reserve other information and further remarks until the legislation is brought in.

Other items of the speech were ably reviewed by Sir John, which space and time forbid us to report to-day. Some very witty sallies were made by Sir John. One was in connection with his speech at the Board of Trade in February last. It appears a Minister of the Crown wrote to a gentleman north a six-page letter, in which the statement is made that Sir John and Hon. Mr. Grieve wouldn't dare make the speeches that were reported. The letter was characterized as piffle in the extreme, and that a Minister should be better employed than in writing such stuff. Sir John promised to read this letter at a later sitting. At another time Sir John told Mr. Coaker that a certain gentleman had given him some information, which Mr. Coaker questioned.

Sir John—Do you want me to get it in writing?
Mr. Coaker—Perhaps so.
Prime Minister—Get an affidavit from him.
Sir John—If he makes one you will not deny it. Some people don't like affidavits. If they saw one they would go hide for a month and not be heard from, as the Prime Minister has done in connection with the Woodford affidavit.

Sir John—What about the Novelty's cargo that Mr. Joseph Long sold?
Mr. Coaker—Oh, Mr. Long had nothing to do with selling it.
Sir John—I know it, and that is where the whole trouble is. Instead of letting a man do his own business you interfere and make a muddle of the whole thing.

Mr. Sinnott was the next speaker, and made a neat speech as his maiden effort. He said in part: In considering this address in reply to the Speech from the Throne, it occurred to me that there are some important things to which no consideration whatever has been given in the Speech itself. To my mind, Sir, the most notable and the most culpable omission is that no mention is made that the Government will make any attempt to reduce the High Cost of Living. This is all the more remarkable and all the more deserving of condemnation when we remember that the Prime Minister in the Manifesto which he submitted to the Electors of Newfoundland dealt at great length with this question. To his utterance on this point that both he and his party pledged themselves. The Prime Minister promised that if he and his party were returned, they would at once take steps to deal with this question. Up to the present nothing had been done. We all thought, Sir, that the delay was due to the late opening of the House. Even here we were all disappointed. There is no mention, in the policy outlined by the Government, of profiteers or of dealing with profiteering. That profiteering is going on in this country, no one will deny. And surely, Sir, there is no more urgent question than this. The securing of a remedy for this evil should be the first and chief consideration of this House. There is no question which so greatly affects the people of this country, and I regret very much that no consideration has as yet been given it. I would suggest, Sir, through you, that the Prime Minister and his colleagues should remember their pre-election promises in this regard, and take immediate steps to deal with this matter.

Mr. Bennett, on rising, paid a tribute to Messrs. Small and LeGrow for the work they did overseas. In this connection he welcomed them to the House and expressed great regret that the R.N.R. was not represented. If Trinity Bay had done its duty last Fall when Mr. Matthews asked the people of that District for their suffrages, Mr. Matthews would to-day be on the floors of the Legislative Halls of his native land that he had fought for. Mr. Bennett paid a glowing tribute to Mr. Matthews' ability, also his work in the Royal Naval Reserve and in the British Navy. Mr. Bennett then started a review of the Speech from the Throne, dealing with a number of questions, notably the High Cost of Living, and the sectarian fight waged last Fall. The attention of the House was occupied by Mr. Bennett until 6.30, when adjournment was taken until 8 o'clock.

EVENING SESSION.

After Mr. Bennett had finished, Mr. Higgins occupied the attention of the House till midnight, when Sir Michael Cashin moved the adjournment of the House. Several bills were then put through the Committee stage, and the Prime Minister moved the adjournment of the House till 10.30 this morning. Mr. Higgins objected to this procedure, claiming that to alter the rule of the House wherein it states that the hour for sitting shall be 3 o'clock in the afternoon unless otherwise ordered, must be by unanimous consent of the House. The Speaker ruled against Mr. Higgins, whereupon the ruling was appealed against. The ruling of the chair was sustained by a party vote of 22 to 12. The House then adjourned until this morning at 10.30, when Sir Michael Cashin will resume the debate.

QUESTION.

Sir Michael Cashin asked the Prime Minister if the Commission to inquire into the charges arising out of the Woodford affidavit had yet been appointed, if so who composed it, when would the enquiry commence and what would be the scope of the enquiry?

—April 27, a.m.
The House opened for business at 11 o'clock. Mr. J. R. McDonnell (St. George's) submitted a petition from Godroy for a lighthouse.

Mr. W. H. Cave (Bay de Verde) presented petitions from residents of his district.
Mr. P. F. LeGrow supported the petitions.
Mr. F. Archibald (Hr. Grace) presented a petition from his district.
Dr. Barnes supported the petition.

Mr. H. Small presented a petition from Burgeo for a grant of $1,000 with which to construct a wharf.

NOTICE OF QUESTIONS.

Mr. J. R. MacDonnell, St. George's.—To ask the Minister of Public Works (1) whether or no, at any period within the past few months, the records, books and accounts of his department have been subjected to scrutiny and inspection by one John T. Meaney, (2) if this was done, was such action taken with his permission, or if not, by whose authority was such scavenger work undertaken, (3) whether information relative to his department which was subsequently published in a certain section of the city press was obtained by the said John T. Meaney in the manner referred to above, and furnished by him to the papers in question and whether the Minister of Public Works authorized or condoned such conduct.

Mr. W. J. Walsh, Placentia.—To ask the Hon. the Minister of Public Works if it is his intention to accept the recommendation of the elected members for Placentia and St. Mary's with regard to the matters coming under his jurisdiction as head of the Department of Public Works.
Mr. Walsh.—To ask the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries if it is his intention to accept the recommendations of the constitutionally elected members for Placentia and St. Mary's with regard to Public matters in connection with said district coming under the jurisdiction of the Department of Marine and Fisheries.
Dr. Jones.—To ask the Minister of Public Works if any claim has been made against the Department of Public Works for compensation for damages done by a motor car which was precipitated into the Harbor at Avondale by reason of improper protection on the main line of road during the summer of 1919. Also what amount has been paid, if any, as compensation, and what measures have been taken to prevent the recurrence of such accidents at this point.

Dr. Jones.—To ask the Hon. Prime Minister in the absence of the Minister of Agriculture and Mines, (1) what arrangements if any have been made with Mr. John Moore of Avondale for attendance on sick cattle in the district of Hr. Main, (2) what qualifications Mr. Moore has for such employments, (3) for what period has he been engaged and on what terms, (4) whether he has made reports on the work performed and the number of animals attended by him, (5) if any claims have been made against the Department for losses of cattle, said to be due to his attendance, giving particulars of same, and what settlement, if any, has been or will be made in connection with same.

Mr. M. S. Sullivan, Placentia.—Gave notice that he would on to-morrow ask the Hon. Colonial Secretary to lay on the Table of the House:

All correspondence between the Great War Veterans and the Government in connection with increased Pensions and allowances to Sailors and Soldiers and Dependents?
(1)—And to say the request for a temporary Measure only and until the Scale of Pensions is amended, is the intention of the Government to allow the following increases:
(a) Total Disability, 20% increase.
(b) Orphans of Sailors and Soldiers, 20% increase.
(c) Children of deceased Sailors and Soldiers, 20% increase.
(d) All other cases where deceased or totally disabled Sailors or Soldiers are the Sole Support, 20% increase.

(2)—Also is it the intention of the Government to make this increase retroactive from November 5th 1919.
(3)—Is it the intention of the Government to carry out the Policy in connection with returned Soldiers and Sailors as outlined in the Prime Minister's Manifesto issued in October 1919, as follows:—

"I propose that the Soldier Lad and Navy Lad of Newfoundland, the record of whose deeds is as good as the record of any body of men in Great Britain or in the British Colonies, shall be placed upon the same status as the soldiers of the neighbouring Dominions in the matter of Pensions, Disability Allowances, Gratuities, Pensions and allowances to dependents and financial and other assistance to enable them to get back to a peace basis and earn their living as honourable and independent citizens. The boys who by their sacrifice, their achievements and death, have made the name of Newfoundland famous and won for us a place of honour in the World's War record, are worthy of every reasonable consideration and their parents and wives and children must not be permitted to suffer, because of the heroism and sacrifice of those upon whom they were dependent for comfort and support."

Also, that on to-morrow he would ask the Minister of Public Works to lay on the table of the House a statement showing what moneys, if any, have been sent to the District of Placentia and St. Mary's since Nov. 30th; to whom sent; for what purpose, and by whose request the money was allocated.

The Premier announced that the personnel of the Royal Commission would be: Sir Wm. Horwood, Chairman, and Justice Kent and Hon. R. K. Bishop. The Commission was to enquire into the entire matter of the Woodford resignation.
Sir M. F. Cashin (Leader of the Opposition) congratulated Messrs. Small and LeGrow on their effort and hoped that they would ever do their duty by the country and the "boys" whom they do honor. He then took up the matter of the Regiment, tracing the formation of the first Five Hundred. Finances then occupied the Leader of the Opposition. He told how the various loans had been raised abroad. The history of the famous local loan, which had taken such a big part in the By-election, was dealt thoroughly with by Sir Michael, after which he told about the part Miss Cashin, his daughter, had played therein. The loan was raised in Newfoundland by a number of brokers and others who sold on commission. The names of the big number of people who had sold bonds on 2 p.c. commission were in the Finance Dept. Why was one name picked out and featured and the others left alone? "Dirty" low, despicable means were used by the present Government to obtain election and they have kept it up since being elected.

The Most Beautiful Car in America

A New Development in Light Sixes

Before we began experimental work on our new six-cylinder motor three years ago, we made a very thorough investigation of the light six field.

We found out just what qualities car owners desired in the power plants of their motor cars and then we designed an engine to meet these requirements.

The wisdom of our method is attested by the unanimous approval given our five-passenger "Glenbrook" model. With its first appearance, it immediately won the enthusiastic support of motorists.

And, by its dependable and economical performance, it has so clearly demonstrated its high character as an investment value that our production schedule is already proving unequal to the demand.

The "Glenbrook" is a truly remarkable development in five-passenger cars. Won't you arrange for a demonstration while our dealer is in position to meet your requirements as to delivery?

Seen From the Lobby.

House of Assembly, April 26.
Sir John Crosbie's two-and-a-half-hour speech, dealing mainly with the Fish Situation, was one of the best ever delivered by him, and everybody in the House, friend or foe, could not but congratulate him on his effort.

Considerable amusement was caused by a "conversation" carried on across the floor, between Sir John and Mr. Coaker. For two there was a real flash of wit on both sides.

There are in Oporto, now, 55,000 qtls. of fish, and 6 cargoes outside, waiting for entrance. That makes 40 weeks consumption, or 10 months. Looks serious for the new fish market?

"Labrador fish last year would have sold for about $8 but for the Spanish buyers," was one of the interesting statements made by Sir John Crosbie.

One hundred Newfoundland fish-carrying ships have been lost during the last year, or about 100,000 quintals of fish. "Lloyd's Insurance Company was one of our best customers," remarked Sir John.

Mr. J. R. Bennett, in the evening session, told how, when he was Colonial Secretary, the Imperial authorities had offered Newfoundland 100 aeroplanes. A fat lot the Englishmen must have known about Newfoundland, to offer such a flotta of aircraft. Perhaps they thought we'd use them fishing?

Mr. Bennett, referring to the Labrador Boundary, touched on the vast forest resources of that peninsula. Just now, particularly, when all American newspapers are yelling for newprint, it is very interesting to think of the wonderful supply of pulp that is waiting on Labrador for the keen edge of the woodsman's axe. This is one powerful reason calling for a quick solution of the Boundary Question.

Pensions will cost Newfoundland from $750,000 to $800,000 per year, said Mr. Bennett. This is some money!

Newfoundland's war expenditure is $1 or $2 million dollars—also a pile of money!

Touching on industrial matters, Mr. Bennett said a mouthful when he stated that workmen who a few years ago got from 50 cents to a dollar a day and are now getting what seems to be good wages are worse off than then, because the cost of living has increased at a greater rate than wages. Still people wonder what is causing "unrest"!

Mr. Higgins, also, broached this subject of "unrest." What is its cause? Is it not, first, that the workman is disillusioned as a result of the war, and second that he is dissatisfied with his lot? Never was the workman sailing closer to the wind than now.

Mr. Higgins raised a laugh when, dealing with the gift of two Admiralty ships to Newfoundland the British Government, he stated that in Dover they wouldn't accept Admiralty ships to sink for breakwaters.

There was a big crowd in the evening, men filling seats and aisles, upstairs and down, and even filling the hall outside.

Incidentally, I might observe, it is a pity that the visitors' gallery and "pit" are so small and admit of such a few. It would be a real boon if they could be enlarged.

I saw a funny thing happen in the afternoon. An honorable gentleman was shifting about uneasily in his chair for a few minutes. Then he caught the eye of another member and made a sign to him. He then passed the word and the first member secured another member. The four then left the House together.

Land Settlement for Ex-Service Men.

The Government is prepared to consider the question of affording to ex-soldiers and ex-sailors of suitable character, education and adaptation an opportunity of settling on the land.

The training that would be required of men who would like to take advantage of any scheme the Government may propose would be as follows:

- Work on a farm under some approved farmer for the Summer and Autumn of 1920.
- Every man who during his summer's work had demonstrated his industry and adaptability to the agricultural pursuits would be given an agricultural course in some approved agricultural college, experimental farm or similar institution for the winter 1920-1921.
- Every man who had completed the winter's course and during the course had demonstrated his industry and adaptability to agricultural pursuits would be given work on a farm under some approved farmer for the summer of 1921.

(This second summer on a farm might not be required of men who prior to enlistment in Navy or Army had been practical farmers.)

Men who had by their work and conduct during the above courses demonstrated their industry and adaptability to agricultural pursuits and their ability to earn a livelihood for themselves as farmers would be furnished by the Government with a loan of money on easy terms of repayment to enable them to secure small farms with the necessary equipment and stock to start a farming enterprise.

As it is probable that but few men would be able during training to earn sufficient for their own support and the support and maintenance of their dependents, their wages would be supplemented to a reasonable amount, depending upon the circumstances of each case. Dependents' would include the wives and children of men married before demobilization.

Until a reliable estimate of the number of men who desire to take up agricultural pursuits under these proposals can be formed, it is impossible to announce details of this agricultural plan.

All ex-soldiers and ex-sailors who desire to undertake agricultural work this summer intending to pursue agriculture for a livelihood are requested to make application at once to the Vocational Officer, Militia Building, St. John's, for an application form which must be properly filled in and returned to the Vocational Officer not later than the 30th day of April next.

If any ex-service man has any other proposition for settling on the land that he would like to have considered, he is invited to state it in writing to the Vocational Officer at the earliest date possible, but in any event not later than the 30th day of April next.

This announcement does not necessarily imply that a Land Settlement Scheme will be prepared and announced. The action which will be taken in the matter will depend on the number and nature of the applications.

No man who is physically unable to undertake or is afraid to face the hard work entailed by a training to become a successful farmer need apply.

W. W. BLACKALL,
Vocational Officer.

Yesterday afternoon the police made a raid on a house in Belvidere Street and succeeded in locating a "still" and also a quantity of booze. Head Constable Byrne, Constables Lee and Simmonds made the seizure. Though the manufacturing plant is of the crudest make, consisting of two tin cans and a coil of pipe, the brew has some kick in it. It is said to contain 40 per cent. of alcohol. It will be submitted for analysis to-day.

A "boob" and a "gob" met at one of the entraining stations recently, where they serve tea and biscuit. "I don't suppose you army men savvy our sea-going slang," said the sailor, who wore "U. S. Armed Guard" on his hatband and two overseas stripes on his sleeves. "Sometimes the rookie sailors—we call them 'boots' because they always draw rubber boots at the training stations—don't savvy it, either. Now, you know, in the navy the little smoke stack from the galley or kitchen on a ship is nicknamed the 'Charlie Noble,' after some old sea cook of long ago. Well, on my ship one day we tells a rookie that 'Charlie Noble' said he was a fathhead and a dub. The rookie got sore as a pup and went hunting all over the ship for 'Charlie Noble.' Finally he goes up to the captain himself and complained of being called names by Charlie. "Report to the bo'n, said the skipper. Ask for a pot of red paint and tell him I gave you permission to dab it all over Charlie—do a good job of it, too."—New York Sun.

Forty-One Years in the Public Service—the Evening Telegram.

Newfoundland's Island of Iron.

The Story of Bell Island, That Picturesque "Rock" in Conception Bay.

By J. R. SMALLWOOD, Evening Telegram Staff.

PART II.

Besides the main slope, or tunnel, there are cross tunnels, or "levels," as they are called, which branch out at right angles from the main slope, on both sides. The levels each extend two thousand feet, so that from the end of a level, right across to the other end, is four thousand feet, plus the width of the main slope, which runs down the centre of the levels. These levels branch off from the main slope every twenty-five feet, leaving a solid block of ore separating them—a block twenty-five feet wide and two thousand feet long. But this block is not left thus. Inter-cross cuts or tunnels, are made at right angles to the levels and running parallel to the main slope. These inter-cross sections are cut every twenty-five feet, so that the resulting blocks, or pillars, are twenty-five feet square. Thus, it will be clearly seen, the whole underground is honey-combed, and sixty-five per cent. of the ore, in the land area, may be taken. Of course pillars must be left for safety. In the water area, or under the sea, the pillars are extra thick, being thirty-five feet thick, so that but fifty per cent. of the ore may be recovered. This percentage, for water area, is a good one.

The spaces left in the levels and cross sections are called "rooms." This is called "room mining." Then there is pillar mining. This means, simply, that an extra slice of the pillar is taken. This is done by explosion. A Sullivan Compressed Air Drill is applied to one side of the pillar, about twelve feet from a corner, and three holes are drilled in a straight line, each being about two feet apart, and up and down in a straight line. These holes penetrate twelve feet. Then the drill is taken around to the other side, exactly corresponding, and three other holes, also twelve feet deep, are bored. Then the six holes are charged with dynamite. Eight plugs of the latter are used in each hole, making roughly fifty altogether. The dynamite is then exploded by a blasting wire which extends two hundred feet away. All blasting is done at night and none but those connected with such work are allowed in the mines after tea. This method of mining is called "slicing pillars." As the result of one explosion, 100 carloads, or 160 tons of ore, are opened up, ready to be placed in the cars. The ore breaks up into small-sized, oblong cubes of easily-handled size. The loose ore is then loaded into the cars by the hand-shovelers. There are two men to each car, and they are supposed to load 20 cars a day, between them, or 10 cars each. That works out at 16 tons each per day. For each additional carful they are paid a bonus, an opportunity of which many men avail, thereby making considerable extra money. However, shovelling ore is hard work, and has been described as the hardest work there is, at least connected with mining. By the time a man has shovelled sixteen tons of ore he is not feeling any too fresh. The cars, when filled, are sent out to the main slope, running by gravitation, as the levels are cut on a grade. Ponies, driven by boys, then haul the empty cars back from the slope to be reloaded. The other method of mining is called "room mining," to which I have already referred. The method of doing this varies from pillar mining. It is impossible to bore three holes on one side and then go to the other side and bore three more, as there is no other side to which you may go. The six holes have therefore to be drilled on the one side, or in the "face" of the ore. But they are not drilled straight in. They are drilled at an angle, so that they meet twelve feet inside, forming a big V. It is something like cutting a slice of cake—it is wedge shaped. The holes are then charged and exploded and the big wedge of ore is blown out. The drills have 80 pounds of pressure, and may be heard when working—a kind of muffled sound—for some distance away. As you near a drill the sound grows louder and louder, until you come right up to it, where you cannot hear another sound, not even the sound of your own voice. Conversation is impossible while the drill is going. Two men run each drill. A sign from the manager, made with his carbide lamp, causes the drillmen to shut off the drill, and the silence, by contrast, is very intensive. You look at operations for a minute or two and retrace your steps. When you have gone a few feet the drill starts again and once more the roar fills the "room," getting fainter and fainter as you go away, and the faint sound of the drill in the room lower down reaches your ears. You pass down one of the sections, and out into another room, where exactly the same process is being gone through. When this big wedge of ore is blown out of the face of the room, there is what is called "slicing." This consists of slicing off the sides of the V-shaped space that has been left by the explosion, until the face of the room is flat again. Then another wedge is blown out and the slicing repeated. There is very little rock to be found in the ore, and wherever it is present it is easily distinguished from the ore, being lighter in color. The ore is a dull red, while the rock has its natural color. Strange to say, drilling through rock is much harder than through iron ore. By doing pillar mining from 16 to 17 per cent. extra of ore is taken, which average compares very favorably with any mine anywhere in the world.

In No. 2 Slope, which is the Dominion Company's biggest of seven, there are about 350 men working. Those consist of Drillers, Hand-shovelers, Trackmen, Face-cleaners, Trammers, Engine-drivers and Rock-sorters. Trackmen are for laying track on new rooms and sections. The work of face-cleaners is to break off pieces of ore which may be loose on the ceiling of a newly-mined room. So that the loose pieces will not fall down, and perhaps kill somebody, they are taken down by the face-cleaners, using sledges and hand-drills. Trammers pick out rocks from the ore and pile them by themselves, so that as little rock as possible will reach the surface. Afterwards the ore is gone through again, by boys.

In the main slope progress is being continually made, and the slope advances, roughly toward Hr. Grace, at the rate of four feet a day. The Company's claim extends out under the sea another four thousand feet. However, that limit will not be reached for many a day, yet, and there is lots of ore beyond it.

Vigorous Protest From Three Settlements.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—We, the undersigned residents of Middle Brook, Dark Cove and Gambo respectively, do vigorously protest against the further continuance of the present Prohibition Law as it now stands. We consider it both unfair and unjust in its present form, and a source of far more and greater evils (though of a slightly different colour), than those that would arise from the open bar even. But we have no desire to see the open bar again, nor the unlimited supply of spirituous liquors, but we do wish to see the present law so altered as to enable would-be moderate drinkers to obtain a limited supply for use as a beverage.

We trust, therefore, that the Government will deem it both wise and expedient to amend the present Act in conformity with the sane suggestions so ably set forth by Mr. Warwick Smith, Chairman of the Prohibition Committee of St. John's.

Yours truly,

The farmer who sold a 22-pound turkey to a poultry dealer on Bloomfield Ave., New York, forgot to clip its wings. The turkey succeeded in forcing open the door to the coop. Michael Quadrella, proprietor of the store, didn't know the turkey was loose until there was a roar overhead, and the big gobbler flew through the open door and away. Quadrella gave chase. So did a crowd. The big fowl shot down the street. An automobile at that moment rounded a corner. The turkey settled down on the top. It hasn't been seen since.

Hr. Grace Notes.

It is with pleasure we note the advancement of any of our Newfoundland boys or girls who have to leave the homeland to seek a livelihood. The latest is that of Nurse Winnifred Carroll, who has lately passed very successfully the Massachusetts State examination for nurses, held at Boston. Miss Carroll formerly belonged to Bristol's Hope, and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Carroll, of that place. Her many friends extend their hearty congratulations to Miss Carroll, and express the hope that she will be as successful in the future as she has been in the past.

Mrs. S. Gosse (nee Miss Lillian Adams) died at Spaniard's Bay on Wednesday last at the age of 27 years. Mrs. Gosse was the youngest daughter of the late Mr. George Adams of this town. She leaves to mourn their loss a mother, 1 sister, Kate, living in St. John's, 2 brothers, John at St. John's and George, in Hr. Grace. The remains were conveyed from Spaniard's Bay Thursday morning, by her husband and friends, to her former home, Harvey Street. Funeral took place Friday evening, when interment was at the Methodist Cemetery. Sympathy is felt for the bereaved ones in the loss of a loving daughter, sister and devoted wife.

Miss Winnifred Pike, daughter of Mr. William and the late Mrs. Martha Pike, died at Bristol's Hope on Monday last at the early age of 18 years. Miss Pike was well known and liked here, her demise was received with all-round regret by those who knew her. She leaves a father and one sister Floesie, both living at Harbor Grace. Funeral took place on Thursday, when the remains were laid to rest in the Methodist cemetery. Much sympathy is felt for the sorrowing relatives.

Mr. John Whalen died at Riverhead on Wednesday night last at the age of 73 years. Mr. Whalen formerly belonged to Bryan's Cove, but lived for some time past at Riverhead. He leaves a widow, one son and three daughters. Funeral took place on Friday, interment being at the R. C. cemetery.

The death at Riverhead occurred the same night of Miss Margaret Walsh, daughter of the late Mr. James Walsh. She leaves two brothers, Thos. and Richard of Riverhead, and one sister, Mrs. Bridget Whalen living at Spaniard's Bay. Interment took place Saturday morning at the R. C. cemetery.

Mr. Robt. Davis left here by Monday morning's train for Kelligrews to connect with the Bell Island mail boat for that place to resume work there, having come hither on Saturday by Stewart's motor boat.

Mr. E. Simmons' schr. Dorothy, Jas. Pike, master, arrived here Friday with a cargo of goods for her owner.

The s.s. Othar went on dock Thursday.

Mr. W. H. Parmiter, accompanied by his two sons, Harold and William, went to St. John's by last Monday morning's train.

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Munn went to St. John's by Friday morning's train.

Mr. G. Stewart's motor craft, the G. L. Stewart, arrived here from Bell Island on Thursday with a few passengers, and left again Sunday.

The schr. Inez C., owned by Mr. T. Currie, of Burin, arrived here on Thursday to go on dock.

Mr. Josiah Yetman, of the South Side, has been appointed manager of the Marine Railway Dock Company here, the former manager, Mr. E. Davis, having resigned that position and accepted a place with Messrs. Saunders, Howell & Co., Carbonara.

The assertion that the consumption of sugar in the United States has increased enormously on account of prohibition is contradicted by the statistics of the American Sugar Bulletin, given in a table, showing the consumption of sugar per capita in the United States for the last 10 years, from which it appears that, omitting the years 1916, 1917 and 1918, when consumption decreased on account of the war, the per capita consumption has averaged 83 pounds for the 10-year period, and the 1919 per capita consumption was only four ounces greater for the year than that for 1913--when they had no prohibition.

She had 300 tea gowns alone. She had tons of dozens of every article of underwear, never worn, never unpinned, or unfolded, with the tissue paper just as the work girls had packed them. The wardrobe was sold recently by auction, when Paris dealers bid a gainst each other for her lingerie, $1,000 to 1,200 for each lot of six pairs of knickers. Parisiennes were eager, too, to sleep in the Princess sheets, and one bundle of five was knocked down for $500.

Overall Club Growing.

Women Now Want to Wear Them.

DALLAS, Texas, April 16.--Women working in the offices of the Texas and Pacific Railroad here, yesterday asked the District Attorney for permission to don overalls along with the men of the offices, who have formed an overall club. The office force includes, approximately 800 persons. City employees, numbering 800, have petitioned the City Commission to declare blue overalls the official uniform for city employees.

KANSAS CITY, April 16.--The city officials of Kansas City, Kansas, yesterday organized an overall club as a protest against the high cost of clothing.

NEW YORK, April 16.--Boy and girl students of Jamaica High School to-day decided to wear khaki uniforms in an effort to combat the high cost of clothing. The garments will cost one dollar each.

RE-BUILT Piano Case Organs.

(Six Octaves.)

BY FAMOUS MAKERS.

We have in stock a number of Rebuilt Organs, piano case, six octave, by Bell, Doherty, Thomas, etc., which we are offering at the same price practically as five octave parlour organs. Every instrument guaranteed.

Owing to its limited scale the five octave organ is only suitable for sacred music. The advantage of the six octave instrument is apparent since its larger scale will accommodate any piano selection, while the finish, style and tone of these instruments should appeal to everyone.

Rebuilt Piano Case Organs $150 to $175
Rebuilt High Top, 5 Octaves $100
Rebuilt Low Top, 5 Octaves $85

Books of the Moment.

The Economic Consequences of the Peace — By Maynard Keynes. $3.00

Its appearance is a political event of great moment, for it gives to all who know that Europe has gone wrong at this crisis in her history clear and definite guidance on the measures that can and should be taken to retrieve these errors so far as it is possible to retrieve them.

Red Terror and Green—Richard Dawson $2.00

The author brings out startling facts of the alliance of Sinn Fein and Germany, and of Irish Revolutionaries with the Bolsheviks of Russia and Great Britain.
