The room has been nicely papered and furnished with desks, tables, chairs and allother conveniences. Quite number of magazines, newspapers and the roading matter of an interesting character have already been provided, and though opened only a few nights ago, the room has been well patronized by the members. No better or more profitable way of spending the evening hours could be devised, and we trust the members will profit by the opportunity this afforded to them of attending to their mental culture.

Mr Scott (North Grey) enquired of the Ministry if any or what steps have been taken to define the boundary line between this Province and Manitoba.

Mr. Blake said there was no boundary line between this Province and Manitoba. The line was between the Province and Manitoba lay further to the west, steps had been taken to obtain a definition of the North-west boundary of the Province, and a commissioner had been appointed for the purpose. It was supposed that the commissioner would shortly make his report, and then further steps could be taken.

Mr. Harrington enquired of the Ministry whether it was the intention of the Government to revise and consolidate the Municipal Law of Ontario.

Mr. Blake said it was the intention of the Government to revise and consolidate the Municipal Law of Ontario.

Dr. Baxter enquired of the Government, whether the Government intend. at an early date, to take into consideration the subject of providing an asylum for inchriates in this Province.

Mr. Blake said it had been already stated, in answer to another gentleman, that the Government had that question under consideration, the advisability of introducing a measure during the present session which will impose additional restrictions upon the sale of intoxicating that its and the covernment had intoxicating the present session which will impose additional restrictions upon the sale of intoxicating that its and the covernment had intoxicating the present provides and the covernment had strictions upon the sale o' intoxicating liquors.

Mr. Blake said the Government had no intention of preparing such a measure during the present session.

Mr. Sinclair rose to move, "That in the opinion of this House it is highly desirable that the Indian lands situated in this Province should be the property of the Province that they should be under the control of this Legislature, and subject to the management of the Department of Crown Lands, like the rest of the Crown Lands, and that a portion of the surplus can be most advantageously expended in acquiring those Lands from the Indian Department."

Wilson, rock to torial—48.

During the debate after recess Mr. Blake was absent from the Chamber, and abstained from voting, as the question affected himself personally.

The main motion was then put and carried upon the same division.

During the debate after recess Mr. vestigate. The investigation so far had been merely a fishing for evidence, and he wanted to know how much longer it was to continue. Lauder said he had no more witnesses to produce, and unless he could get Dwight to produce all his telegrams the investigation would be a failure. It was finally agreed to send to Grey for parties who had received and sent telegrams in order to obtain their consent to their production. The Committee adjourned to Thursday.

It is not true, as stated in some of the papers, that Farewell, who takes Pardee's place on the Committee, has only the reports of newspapers to rely upon for previous examination. A verbatim report of all the question and answers has been taken down by short hand writers, and written out in long-hand, and will be examination.

AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE AND EXPERIMENTAL FARM.

EPORT IN FAVOR OF GUELPH. The Council of the Agricultural and Arts Association held their adjourned meeting yesterday inToronto, and drew up a report in which was embodied their opinion of the land they had visited in the neighborhood of Guelph, as to its suitability for the Agricultural College and Experimental Farm. That report was sent to the Commissioner of Agriculture and will most probably be presented and read in the House to-day.

We cannot give the report to-day but we may state on the most un authority that it is in doubted authority that it is in favour of having the Farm located in this neighborhood, and that the Council were unanimous in coming to this decision. It remains now for the House to say whether it will back up the Government—in—sanctioning—the removal on the recommendation of the Council.

We will be in a position to say more on the subject when the report is published.

THE WOOD SLANDER CASE.

This case, which has for some time been under investigation by a Committee of the House, was disposed of on Monday. We need not rehearse the facts of the case, as they are well known. Suffice to say that Mr. M. C. Cameron charged Mr. Blake with offering Mr. Wood a corrupt inducement to retire from the late Govern ment. The Committee after a care ful investigation found that there was not a shadow of truth in the charge reported to that effect, and the report was adopted by a large majority.
Thus Mr. Cameron's mountain has dwindled down to the smallest pos sible mole hill. He and a few of the most bitter opponents of the Government sought to refer the report back but they were completely foiled, and now on Mr. Cameron's shoulders must rest the responsibility of having pre-ferred a charge which was found to have no foundation in fact. What do the Conservatives now think of their precious leader in the House?

NEWS ITEMS.

NARROW GATER METTING.—The meeting in Kineardine on Saturday night was attended by nearly live hundred people. It lasted from five o'clock until about eleven, and was an overwhelming success for the broad gauge. The vote in its favor being nearly three to one, the full strength of both deputations was concentrated at it, and excellent speeches were made all round. This closed the series of meetings, but the narrow gaugers have called nieetings of their own.

Frans.—Avery destructive fire occurred on Monday morning at an early hour at Tilsonburg, by which a large number of persons suffered. The amount of the loss is not yet stated, though it must be great. The fire-engine was uscless, and the flames consequently made great headway, until they consumed all inflammable material within reach. The destruction by fire of a hotel at Lifidsay, and black-smith's shop at Fort Erie, are also reported; while most deplorable news comes to hand from Nova Scotia, announcing the burning to death of five children in a brilding.

Mayor Hall Arrahoned.—Mayor Hall, of New York, was on Monday brought before the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court for his trial for alleged irregularities. He was represented by his own law partners, as well as other distinguished legal gentleman. The number of those implicated is said to very large. Grave charges are also made against Superintendent Kelso of the police, Judge Dowling and Hank Smith, the first of these as being especially connected with gamblers and sharing their profits, as well as couniving at the escape of notorious thieves and even highway robbers.

BRUTAL MURDER IN YONG STATE.—On Sanday night a farmer named Daniel Kramer, residing about nine miles west of Aubarn, Schuylkill county, on the line of the Schuylkill and Susquehanna Railroad, was brittally murdered, and his wife left for dead. Kramer's son, on entering his father's house on Monday morning, found his mother on the bed with her skull his mother on the bed with her skull fearfully fractured and still alive, but unable to speak. The father was found 100 yards from the house with his brains beaten out and frozen to the ground. No trace of the murderers has been discovered. The murderers has been discovered. The murderers robbed the house. Mrs. Kramer cannot recover. The heavy club ased to commit the bloody deed is in the hands of the authorities.

All Equal Herr.—It is related of the Duke of Wellington that once when he remained to "take searament" at his parish church, a very poor old man had gone up the opposite aisle, and, reaching the communion, knelt down by the side of the Duke. Some one—a pew opener, probably—came and touched the poor man on the shoulder, and whispered aim to move further away, or rise and wait until the duke had received the bread and wine. But the cagle eye and quick ear of the great commander caught the meaning of the touch and that whisper. He clasped the old man's hand and held him to prevent his rising, and in a reverential undertone, but most distinctly, said, "Do not move—we are all equal here!"

HELEN MOIR

LOVE AND HONOUR.

A TALE OF THE CLYDE. CHAPTER XVIII.
THE RECOGNITION, AND WHAT IT LED TO.

When at length they rose, and came slowly over the rocks and under the trees into the road, David Bridgenorth's being had undergone an utter revolution. What a flood of light and knowledge had flowed in upon him since the moment when Helen had accosted him, and asked him to come and join them! What amazing truths had he learned since then—truths which had brought to him mingled fleelings of joy and pain, and which altered most completely the very position of his life. He now knew all that, Mrs Allerton could tell him about Helen—about her love and her grief—about the events of the last few days, and what powerful issues had come out of them. Above all he knew—and his throbbing heart thrilled with the blissful consciousness—that his child pitied, loved, and yearned to see and solace that poor father whose mournful history she had come to knew, so that no longer need he contemplate the sacrifice of quitting her presence for ever, lest he should bring shame and sorrow upon her. Now his heart went up in gratitude to Him who had brought him into this new world of thought and feeling, and had opened up for him in the gloom a vision of light such as he never had hoped to behold. It was in this fulness of knowledge that he now accompanied Mrs Allerton along the road towards the villa, where the consummation was to come in the meeting with his child—when they should know each other as father and daughter, and open in each other's arms that fountain of parental and filial love which till now had found no outlet.

Helen awaited their coming in a state of excitement which can scarcely be described. She had expected them to follow her to the villa almost immediately; but, instead of this, more than an hour had clapsed since she left them, and still they came not. What could this mean? and what, also, could be the meaning of Mrs Allerton's agitation when she so unexpectedly asked her to proceed to the house and give the directions for dinner? Helen was certain her friend had some special object in view in sending her away, a some emotion snone, ngames singular intensity.

One hand she pressed to her throbbing temples, and the other to her beating breast, to stay if she could her violent emotion, for she was certain she was immodiately to learn tidings of her father. Her first impulse was to rush down stairs and meet them in the lobby; but when she rose from her seat her trembling limbs refused their support, and she sank helplessly back, while a rushing noise sounded in her ears with painful distinctness.

In this state she heard them enter the house, and go into the dining-room; then, a few moments later, Mrs Allerton's foot was heard ascending the stair, and at her appearance within the room Helen's power suddenly returned, and with a low cry she sprung towards her.

"The tidings—the tidings:" she grasped. "I see—I know—you have learned something."

"Yes, my darling. I have learned

"The tidings—the tidings!" she grasped. "I see—I know—you have learned something."

"Yes, my darling. I have learned something—I have learned much."

"Tell me—for heaven's sake tell me what. Is my father alive? Does Mr Bridgenorth know him?"

"Dear Helen, try to calm yourself, and call up your firmness to bear the joy that awaits you."

"The joy! Oh, then, it is joyous tidings you have heard? My father is alive. I shall be able to go to him. Perhaps this kind stranger will permit me to accompany him to Australia, and lead me to my father's presence."

"My darling, you do not require to go so far as Australia to see your father. He is nearer than you think."

"Ah, he is on his homeward yoyage. He is returning at last. Shall I see him?"

"You shall."

"You shall."
"Thank heaven!" murmured Helen, clasping her hands fervently, and lifting upward her flushed face and tearful eyes, "And this gentleman knows him; perhaps he has been his friend, his companion, knows the sad history of his exile, his sorrow, his suffering!"
"Did it not strike you, Helen, that Mr. Bridgenorth has the aspect of one who has suffered himself?" asked Mrs. Allerton.

has suffered himself? asked atrs. Anerton.

"Oh, yes, I noticed the traces of deep sorrow on his face, and—and—"

Helen stopped, for, catching a view at the moment of Mrs. Allerton's tell-tale countenance, a wild suspicion crossed her mind, and instantly, the truth cante like a flash, and in all its vivid certainty, for in the occurrences not of that day only but of all the days since the evening of the ac-cident on the loch.

She could not speak the thought, the bewildering conviction, but his coming revealed itself in her face, and Mrs. Aller-ton saw and understood its presence as clearly as if it had been expressed in words.

ords. "My darling, my darling," she faltered. I see you understand it now. You we seen your father already. He it was no rescued you and Herman on the loch, he sat beside us on the rocks to-day, avid Bridgenorth is none other than y long-lost husband's brother, Edwin larten."

Allerton."

"And he waits below for my coming reried Helen, with frantic cagerness.

She was about to rush away, when Mrs Allerton gently restrained her.

"You will meet him alone. It is right that it should be so. He had discovered that you were his child, but deemed not that you knew of your poor father's existence, and with heroic self-denial he intended not to reveal himself, lest he should bring grief and shame upon you. He knows all now—all—and his thoughts and views are changed. Now, my darling, go to him, and may God bless you both."

and views are changed. Now, in, using so to him, and may God bless you both."

She tenderly kissed Helen and released her, when like a bird the fair girl flew down the stair and made for the dining-room. How she turned the handle of the door she knew not. She was only conscious of the door opening at her touch, of standing on the threshold, and seeing a tall form on the hearthrug with arms extended towards her.

Then burst from her with a loud cry of deepest joy—" My father, my father!" and next moment she was lying in his bosom, encircled by his trembing arms, and pressed to his throbbing heart.

"My child, my child, my child!" was three times murmured by the deep voice of David Bridgenorth, and his hot, sealding tears fell like rain upon her glossy hair.

Let a veil fall for the present on the tender, sacred, holy scene, We cannot possibly realised it nits depth or intensity, but we can all imagine somewhat of these, and the imagination stirs up the finest and best feelings of our nature. It is good for us, then, to pause awhile, and let them work their blessed influence on our souls.

Nine years before the public, and no preparation for the hair has ever been produced equal to Hall's "Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer," and every honest dealer will say it gives the best satisfaction. It restores GRAY HAIR to its original color, eradicating and preventing dandruff, curing BALDNESS and promoting the growth of the hair. The gray and brashy by a few applications is changed to black and silky locks, and wayward hair will assume any shape the wearer desires. It is the cheap-set HAIRDRESSING in the world, and its effects last longer, as it excites the glands to furnish the nutritive principle so necessary to the life of hair. It gives the hair that splendid appearance so much admired by all. By its tonic and stimulating properties it prevents the hair from falling out, and none need be without Nature's ornament, a good head of hair. It is the first real perfected remedy ever discovered for curing diseases of the hair, and it has never been equalled, and we assure the thousands who have used it, it is kept up to its original high standard. Our Treatise on the Hair mailed free; seed for it.

EST Dr. Guthrie, an eminent Scotch minister, has made a statement at a meeting in Edinburgh, upon the state of the poor laws in Scotland. These, he says, are eating, like a cancer, the very vitals of the country; undermining that stone which he believes to be the true foundation of society, namely, the hearthstone. These laws have "taught parents to abandon their children, children to abandon their parents, and brothers their sisters."

We understand that the whooping-cough is quite prevalent in the towns around us; but that no cases have proved fatal. Some families use nothing but "Johnson's Anoydne Liniment. Our Doctor, however, says a little ipecae, to produce voveriting, would be an advantage.

There are more than one thousand

There are more than one thousand different kinds of pills in the United States. Some of them are worthless and injurious, others are good and beneficial. Old Dr. Parsons invented the best antibilious pill we ever saw or heard of. They are now sold under the name of "Parsons' Purgative Pills."

"Time tries all Things," and has proved that "Dr. Wistar's Balsaim of Wildherry" is the remedy par excellence for the cure of coughs, colds, croup, whooping-cough, bronchitis, asthma, phthisic, sore throat, and influenza. It cures coughs and colds instanter! It soothes the irritated parts; it heals the inflammation; and even consumption itself yields to its magic influence.

Banocarris.—Freeport, Digby County, N. S., January, 1868.—Mr. James I. Fellows.—Sir:—In the winter of 1866 I was afflicted with a severe attack of Bronchitis, and although our doctors were very attentive, and used all the means in their power, they failed to afford me much relief. I obtained your Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites, and took it until it made a permanent cure. I am now in perfect health and free from Bronchitis. Respectfully yours, Mendall. Crocker.
