Immediately it was known that much could be obtained from the demand for more money...

It is now coming out that pending the temporary absence of Senator Fairbairn, the responsibility of leading the order...

Senator William M. Bennett is not only allowed to be one of the very ablest lawyers, but also one of the most brilliant political generalists...

It is to be hoped that the drama of population transfer will be a success. It has been taken from New England to the west, but will be a returning tide...

It is possible that when Mr. Egan gets through leading his Toronto newspapers, one of them will be found opposing colonialism...

The Hamilton Dominion thinks "worldly" things things to justify with advice and Toronto to "kick her industrial arse"...

The season of railroad building is a competitive one. It is a marked feature of recent years on the border...

The World calls attention to the following sentences from the Globe of Saturday: "But we are not going to get any more from the people that a real trade policy...

It results as a necessary incident of our political system that these same be a large and all powerful interest...

FARMING ON THE PRAIRIE

A CITY LAWYER'S TRIP THROUGH MANITOBA AND THE TERRITORIES.

What has he seen at Winnipeg—Prairie in the foreground, but beyond the country on the west, from the train and the following interesting letter, by Mr. All. Hoekin, was sent to The World some time ago, but on account of the crowded state of our columns during the Exhibition season we have had to hold it over till to-day. Another letter in continuation of the same subject will follow:

Editor World: In August, 1935, I visited Manitoba, and then I had the opportunity of seeing what I had seen and my impressions of the country. I have lately returned from another trip, and having visited other parts of the province in addition to some portions I then saw, it occurred to me that a short story of what I saw and learned might interest some of your readers.

I left Toronto on Aug. 1, and as I had not seen the North Shore route determined to go by rail the whole way. There is little but desolation to be seen for several hundred miles. There is some homogeneous scenery, particularly at Selkirk, Brandon and Park. The North Bay on Lake Winnipeg is a beautiful change, it is a stirring little place and had no existence four years ago. There is a fine brick hotel here, and an endeavor is being made to create a town which will be the center of the province. It is a fine town and will be a fine town in a few years. Although we were three hours late in leaving North Bay we arrived punctually on time at Winnipeg. The Canadian Pacific Railway is a well managed road and the service is excellent. The meals on the dining cars are all that could be desired. As Jack Fish Bay I met the Wesleyan Methodist missionary for Manitoba. He is a fine man and is doing a fine work. He is a fine man and is doing a fine work. He is a fine man and is doing a fine work.

I arrived at Winnipeg on the morning of Aug. 4. Between Selkirk and that place I saw very little grain; some oats were ripe and there were quite a few. I drove over to the west and found very little change since 1935. It appeared to me that the business was better, the Hudson Bay Trading and trading goods the Canadian Pacific Railway Station. Some private houses had been erected of a substantial character, and on the whole, although there had not been much change there had been progress. The result of my trip was that the people were better off than they were a few years ago. The people were better off than they were a few years ago. The people were better off than they were a few years ago.

In 1935 I began my drives through the country on Aug. 5 and got through by Aug. 6. I started from Winnipeg and drove to Selkirk. This time I began on the 8th and continued on until the 11th. I saw a lot of wheat, and the farmers expected to begin to harvest on the 22nd. It is a fine country and the wheat is doing well. The wheat is doing well. The wheat is doing well.

The morning of the 8th was lowering and rainy, falling a few showers in the night. We took the Manitoba Southwestern branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway for Carleton Place. This line is a fine line and is a fine line. It is a fine line and is a fine line. It is a fine line and is a fine line.

Creek, goes west several miles, and a spur runs south a few miles. At the end of the "spur" you are in a beautiful country. The prairie, and have a drive of six miles to reach Carleton. The country is a fine country and is a fine country. The country is a fine country and is a fine country.

These descriptions are not intended to be a complete description of the country, but they are a fine description of the country. They are a fine description of the country. They are a fine description of the country.

The morning of the 13th was clear, bright and warm, and the day a very pleasant one. At 9.40 a.m. we took the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway for Portage la Proulx. In my former letter I mentioned the country between these two places. I will now describe what I saw on this trip. Between Selkirk and Portage la Proulx there is a fine country and is a fine country.
