Care and Abuse of Farm Machinery
 Recent investigations by the Conservation Commission reveal some very interesting facts regarding the effect of care, or neglect, as the case may be, upon the life of machinery on the farm. Between 90 and 95 farms divided into three districts, were visited in each of the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

left out of doors, the average life of the binder is given by the farmers as about 7 years, which is less than half that of the binder protected from the weather. Many binders do not last as long as seven years. One farmer near Moosomin, Sask., who, after 12 years, was retiring from the farm, held an auction sale. His binder after cutting 12 crops sold for $90, or 50 per cent of the original cost and his other machinery at proportionately high prices. It had all been well housed and the necessary painting and repairing had been done to keep it in good order. On a neighboring farm a binder which had cut only three crops, but which had been neglected and had stood out of doors, was being relegated to the early painting and repairing had been purchased. An implement shed costs money, but if its use will double or treble the length of time the machinery will last, it is a good investment. Farmers often say that they cannot afford to be without one. Apart from the additional power necessary for operation, the depreciation on un-housed machinery on the average sized farm is so great as to amount to much more than the cost and upkeep of an implement shed. The binder works for only a short time during the year, while machinery in a shop works the whole year through and lasts proportionately many times longer. It is simply a matter of care. The life of a machine extends in direct ratio to the care it receives and abuse and neglect will shorten the life of any mechanism. The manufacturer is not responsible for the care of the machinery after it is sold. This rests entirely with the farmer, and as a common-sense business proposition he should look after his own interests sufficiently to house his implements and thus save the thousands of dollars wasted annually in unnecessary depreciation.—F. British Trade Shows Big Decrease
 LONDON, Nov. 7.—The effect of the war on British trade is shown in the figures published by the Board of Trade for the month of October.
 Imports decreased £20,170,000 and exports decreased £18,020,000. The principal loss in imports was £5,500,000 on raw cotton from America, and £1,500,000 on cotton from Egypt, together with £7,000,000 on manufactured articles. The exports of coal declined £2,000,000, and the exports of manufactured articles declined £13,500,000. Of the latter cotton yarns made up £5,250,000, and wool yarns £1,250,000.
 A Bradford, Ont., despatch says: "The Six Nations Indians will furnish a company of 120 officers and men, all redskins, for the second contingent. They will mobilize at Cayuga at once."

When Rheumatism Strikes the Heart
It Kills—'Nerviline' the Cure
Effect of Nerviline on Chronic Cases Is Almost Magical
 Exposure to wet or cold is apt to bring on an attack. The muscles stiffen, the joints swell and exertion brings on excruciating twinges.
 Often the pain shifts from one part to another, and this is dangerous, as the heart is apt to be attacked. Death as a rule follows a heart attack.
 The pain of rheumatism is quickly rubbed away with Nerviline.
 This is a swift, lasting, and safe way to "cure" rheumatism. You can depend on Nerviline. It has the power, the penetrating force, the control over pain that is so essential to a rheumatic remedy.
 Lots of testimony to prove Nerviline's certainty to cure.
 The following letter is from Mr. E. G. Sautter, Port of Spain, Trinidad: "Last year I was severely troubled with rheumatism. I had it in my arms, shoulders and knees. The pain was at times excruciating, and laid me up so that I couldn't work. I went to Smith Brothers' Drug Store and was advised by the manager to use 'Nerviline.' That was excellent advice. I used Nerviline as directed and was cured, completely cured of every trace of my old enemy."
 Once you use Nerviline you'll realize it's different from all others—that it contains something that gets right 'at' the pain the minute you rub it on. The large 50-cent family size is the most economical—get it today, or else the 25-cent trial size. Sold by all dealers everywhere, or the Caturrhoeum Co., Kingston, Canada.
Even Russia
 Russia has prohibited the sale of Vodka, their national drink, this to continue even after the war and visitors say that there is such a change that the country is hardly recognizable. Peasants, who before the war had fallen into hopeless indolence and depravity have already become self-respecting citizens. The effect on character is already visible in neatly brushed clothes instead of the former ragged and slovenly attire. Huts which were dilapidated are now repaired and improved.
 Society has become more orderly and the peasants indulge in wholesome amusements. They now save fifty-five per cent of their wages which was formerly spent for drink and their earning power has been increased through sobriety. This extra money is now spent for necessities and comforts. This startling regeneration of the peasantry is, in the opinion of the Russian authorities, likely to have an important effect on the social and economic conditions of all Russia.
 Why cannot we have a similar blessing? Are we not badly in need of it?

The British public are very pronounced in their pleasure and gratitude for the heartiness and promptitude with which Canada, and other parts of the Empire have responded to the call for aid in the present sore emergency.

Looking from this point of view, how little has Canada done in comparison with what it may reasonably be called upon to do, as well as in comparison with what the homeland has done.

Our Canadian soldiers have been royally received and treated since their landing in Plymouth. One thing, may we not say one thing, has been at variance with the expectations and hopes of our people.

The Canadian people do not want to hear that their sons are stimulated to fight by alcoholic poisons, or to see them return home with confirmed habits of intoxication.

There is good ground for the belief that much of the barbarity and obnoxious practices by the German soldiers has been the result of their drunkenness.

diary. "In the afternoon I had a look at the little chateau belonging to one of King Albert's secretaries. ... Our men had behaved like vandals. They had looted the cellar first and then had turned their attention to the bedrooms, and thrown things all over the place."

The evidence increases that Germany has been long intentionally preparing for the present war, and only waiting for a favorable excuse to begin it.

The Canadian Pictorial reports that Great Britain's vast resources will be exhibited, at the Panama International Exposition in 1915, on a larger and more extensive scale than on any previous Exposition.

Canada will also be represented on a large scale. The Steamship "Benefactor" arrived at the freight wharf in mid-summer and landed all the exhibits which Canada had sent to the Exposition at Ghent.

Volunteers from Annapolis County. Lt.-Col. McNeil of the 69th Regiment, was in town on Monday enlisting volunteers for the Second Canadian Contingent.

Red Cross Society. The local Red Cross Society has made splendid progress since its organization a few weeks ago. Eighty-four members are now enrolled and excellent work is being done by them every Thursday afternoon when they meet to sew and knit for our soldiers.

The Society desires to express its thanks to those children who last Saturday gave a comic concert in Mr. W. A. Warren's barn and thus raised seven dollars which they presented to the Society, having arranged their entertainment without adult assistance.
