STOCKERS CLASH WITH THE TROOPS.

Situation in Warsaw is Becoming Daily more Serious—Many Drowned Whose Bodies Will Not be Recovered—Russia's Future in Peril.

Warsaw, Jan. 31.—Several persons were killed and many were injured, in encounters with the troops and police in various parts of this city yesterday.

The first aid society has opened operation, telephonic communication is interrupted and conditions throughout Warsaw are such that it has been impossible thus far to ascertain the number of victims.

By order of the Chief of Police the doors of houses are kept closed and are only opened to admit people living on the premises.

Two additional regiments of infantry and two regiments of Dragons have arrived here.

Increasingly Serious. St. Petersburg, Jan. 31.—The latest reports from Warsaw depict the situation throughout Poland as increasingly serious.

Minor collisions between the troops and the populace continue to swell the number of dead. Trade and industry are completely at a standstill.

GO UP FOR TRIAL.

Harry Maher and Wm. McIntyre Committed in the Police Court This Morning.

The preliminary examination in the case against Harry Maher and Wm. McIntyre was concluded today, and the prisoners will be sent up for trial at the next sitting of the county court.

The only witness examined was Joseph O'Brien, who lives over McGuire's store.

He stated he was at the express company's stable the night of the robbery, and went home shortly after ten o'clock.

After reaching home he was told by Mr. Webster that the store had been broken into and robbed.

When asked if he had anything to say, McIntyre said he was outside the store all night and knew nothing about it.

His honor, in addressing the prisoners observed that while it was not his duty to try them he had to decide whether or not there was sufficient evidence to send them up in this case here.

OFFICER CRAWFORD.

Says He Was Called a Red Faced Lobster by Wm. Garnett.

The case against William Garnett for using obscene and insulting language was heard in the police court this morning.

Officer Crawford testified that Garnett had called him a "red faced lobster" and informed him that if he had of those brass buttons he would fix him.

Garnett pleaded not guilty and accused the patrolman of using profane language to him.

Crawford denied the charge, and stated that he had only allowed him to come into Brussels street to see his brother.

Manifests for the following United States products, were received at the custom house today.

PROVINCIAL AUTONOMY.

Bill to Make Two Provinces of the Northwest to be Introduced Feb. 15.

Ottawa, Jan. 30.—(Special.)—It is expected that the bill giving provincial autonomy to the Northwest will be introduced about February fifteenth.

Fair progress is being made with the measure. There is no reason to believe that there will be any material changes in the bill from that outlined already.

Outside the ownership of the land there does not appear to be any great difference of opinion among all the parties concerned.

There is a disposition here, to treat the new provinces, for there will no doubt be two, generously, and this fact is being recognized by the western members and the western delegation as well.

As to the lands that are to be given over to the provinces, in lieu thereof there will be an equivalent.

This year the dominion will spend very little short of a million dollars in immigration, and the land will be necessary if this work is to be prosecuted successfully.

OFFICER SWARE.

The boy problem has once again been brought before the public.

THE PERILS OF THE FISHERMEN.

Grim Winter Experiences on the Shores of Newfoundland.

St. John's, N. F., Jan. 30.—Finance Minister Jackman was apprised today by the authorities at Bay of Islands that a straggle light was visible Sunday night on Tweed Island at the mouth of the Bay.

It is believed the light was made by shipwrecked men, probably the crews of the Gloucester fishing vessels Perkins, or Atlantic, which are supposed to be frozen in ice floes in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

The straggle of men has been organized, and will travel across the floes with dogs, sledges, traps and food, to rescue the men if they are unable to leave there otherwise.

The Director, however refused to discuss the matter, saying he had not consulted Mr. Christie and would prefer not to give an opinion.

The meeting adjourned until this evening at the same hour.

THE STORY OF A GREAT SECRET. Millions of Mischief.

By HEADON HILL. Author of "By a Hair's Breadth," "The Duke Decides," "A Race with Ruin," Etc., Etc. "And some that smile have in their hearts, I fear, millions of mischief."—Julius Caesar, Act IV, Scene I.

(Concluded) CHAPTER XXXIX. Aftermath of Storm. Four hours later a council of war was assembled in the library at "Ardmore" to consider the proofs which Janet had received from Herzog, and the new light shed on my case by her experiences at the hands of Roger Marske and his father. There were present Lord Alphington, Lady Muriel, Ralph Carden, and myself. Colonel Chilmark had been notified of his daughter's rescue, but was not well enough to join me. Lord Alphington, who had listened gravely to Janet's story, from the day of her departure down to the fatal conflict between Roger Marske and Herzog on the wreck, sat at the table, pursuing the packet of letters procured at Marske's chambers. Janet, pale and exhausted by her sufferings, lay back in an easy chair with Lady Muriel hovering near while Carden and I stood silent, waiting for the Premier's opinion.

That it could do him no harm, Janet faltered out her explanation—that she had promised the not-distant Doctor Barralbes to conceal his real name in consideration for what he had done for her. A change came over the Premier's face as he listened to my love's halting tones, and I began to fear that we had lost our powerful friend, so grey and stern did he grow. But his half-incoherent exclamations revealed the real meaning of his anger. "Herzog!" he muttered, under his breath. "He was Gideon Marske's man. My Heaven, but this is too terrible." And flinging himself into his chair he bowed his head in his hands. I saw what had happened. His quick mind had penetrated the veil, and he had made the connection between Sir Gideon Marske and the plot against himself, in which, till that moment, I do not think he had wholly believed, or, if so, only to treat it as the work of some lawless anarchists. There was a tap at the door and a footman brought in a telegram for his master. Lord Alphington, pulled himself together on the man's entrance, read it, and heaved a sigh of relief. "Thank God!" he cried. "Now we can hush this greater horror up. Marske was always clever, and he has taken the best way out."

The clock would be put back three hundred years, if it leaked out that a political assassination had been planned by a minister of the Crown. "I have His Majesty's ear, Rivington," he said, turning to me. "I can rely on his tact to join us in this conspiracy of silence. To explain your escape it will be necessary to bring in Herzog's part, but so far as the public is concerned let him be called Barralbes, so that the reports can make an anarchist of him, or anything their ingenuity suggests, when they come to interview you. Roger Marske's misdeeds have no national importance, and can, and shall have full publicity." With which he abruptly left the room, to start on the short journey designed to secure for me an even more mighty ally than himself—the only one in the realm who had power to stay the doom that had been pronounced. Lord Alphington took Janet's hardly-won proofs with him, but we had all seen them, and there was plenty of food for discussion in the cold-blooded guilt they revealed. The story disclosed was a commonplace one enough in its earlier stages—that of a trading girl secretly married to a man who soon began to tire. My sister's letters showed that after a week's honeymoon on the river they had parted on good terms and to start on the New Forest, to return to her home in the New Forest, and he to resume his bachelor mode of life in London. From first to last Clara's letters breathed a spirit of repining at the separation, but full of cheerful references to the time when they would be together "some day."

So matters went on till my mother's death, and fortunately for me it was easy to reconstruct Roger Marske's first crime from materials in one of Clara's letters. She herself had evidently been the intended victim, my mother suffering death in her place by mere accident. On the day when she received the poisonous comfits by post Clara had been unwell and had given them to her mother, who had probably put them away and eaten them a month later, such being the interval between Clara's acknowledgment of the sweets to her husband and the date of our mother's death. Thus at the time my sister did not associate the death with the present that came to her by post so long before, and my mother having suffered from chronic heart disease there was no trouble about a death certificate. Roger Marske, delayed in his purpose, but not daunted by the mis-

Can Eat Anything Now.

How many Dyspeptics can say that?

Or perhaps you are dyspeptic and don't know it.

Have you any of these symptoms?

Variable appetite, a faint gnawing feeling at the pit of the stomach, unsatisfied hunger, a loathing of food, rising and souring of food, a painful load at the pit of the stomach, constipation, or are you gloomy and miserable? Then you are a dyspeptic. The cure is careful diet; avoid stimulants and narcotics; do not drink at meals; keep regular habits; and regulate the stomach and bowels with BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS.

Nature's Specific for Dyspepsia.

Miss Laura Chicago, Belle Lanes, Que., says of the wonderful curative powers:—"Last winter I was very thin, and was fast losing weight owing to the sun-down state of my system. I suffered from Dyspepsia, loss of appetite and bad blood. I tried everything I could get, but to no purpose; then finally started to use Burdock Blood Bitters. From the first day I felt the good effect of the medicine and am now feeling strong and well again. I can eat anything now without any ill after-effects. It gives me great pleasure to recommend Burdock Blood Bitters, for I feel it saved my life."

Possibly Your Wife

Doesn't look so young and pretty as she used to. If her cheeks are hollow and pale, if she is tired and nervous she needs Ferrazone, which is noted for restoring the bloom of health to sickly girls and women. Complexion quickly becomes rosy, spirits rise, and strength increases daily. Health and vigor will soon return to your wife or daughter if Ferrazone is taken. It's the best tonic made, and costs 50c. at druggists.

Nothing to do with Mr. Martin's identity.

So passed the great shadow from my life, all the dark places that it had clouded throughout those dreary weeks being illumined by the light of truth at last. They tell me that I look ten years older, and my sweet Janet, though she appeared as young as ever on our wedding day, says that she feels twenty years older than I look. But, as there is peace in our hearts and no dishonour on our name, we can afford to laugh at the ravages, real or fancied wrought by the terrible experiences which we have, jointly and severally, here set down.

It only remains to say that the great secret of Sir Gideon Marske's dastardly plot against his noble chief never reached the man in the street, nor was the enforced resignation of two colleagues in the Cabinet ever connected in the public mind with my escape from Winchester. I have no doubt, however, that Lord Alphington's private inquiries at the prison traced the blame to the proper quarters, and revealed to him how Herzog had wielded a key so mysteriously powerful to open the door of my cage. But if Sir Gideon escaped the everlasting obloquy of having schemed for the assassination of the Prime Minister, he fully shared the infamy heaped on his son when Janet's treacherous treatment by him was made public after the investigation necessary to my final rehabilitation. Being deprived of the advantage which the trial of Roger Marske would have given me, I had that investigation rigorously pressed home, and among the minor fish caught in my net was Mrs. Wobley, the news-vendor at Notting Hill.

Being deprived of the advantage which the trial of Roger Marske would have given me, I had that investigation rigorously pressed home, and among the minor fish caught in my net was Mrs. Wobley, the news-vendor at Notting Hill.

The woman confessed that during Janet's absence from the shop Roger Marske had entered, and that it had been at his instigation, "for value received," that she had sent my brave sweetheart to the Mill House at Chipping Wyvern, which, being near his father's country seat, he must have known of as a likely spot for compassing the death of the persistent little amateur detective who was so close on his heels.

And Janet and I, when we sit over the fire on winter's evenings in the old cottage in the New Forest, where to honest Sarah Leven's delight, there was after all no sale, come to varying conclusions about the man who played so great a part in our life-tragedy.

Herzog was a rascal, possibly a villain, but with the elements of a good fellow in him," I will say.

And my wife will catch me up severely with the answer: "I won't hear a word against him, Arthur. He was a deej. He gave you to me."

THE ST. JOHN EVENING TIMES

ST. JOHN, N. B., JANUARY 31, 1905. The St. John Evening Times is published at 19 and 21 Canterbury Street, every evening. (Sunday excepted) by the St. John Times Printing & Publishing Co. Ltd., a company incorporated under the Joint Stock Companies Act.

THINK IT OVER. If the next St. John city council should prove to be less intelligent, less experienced and less able to deal with important civic problems and the general administration of civic affairs than the present council, the fault will lie entirely with the citizens. Think it over.

THE CITY COUNCIL. The people of St. John have fallen too much into the habit of thinking that it makes little difference what kind of city council they may elect. It is really of as much importance to them to have the right kind of council as to have an intelligent and progressive legislature. Directly, it affects them more. They pay the taxes that are levied, they use the streets and sewers, they are affected by the water supply and sewage system, the safety of their property depends upon the efficiency of the fire department, they purchase supplies from the country market, they are interested in having public lands and other property productive of revenue, they are interested in having a well equipped police department. In short, every matter that is dealt with by the city council affects the people at large.

When a business man engages another to take charge of any department of his affairs, he insists upon having evidence of experience and ability to perform the work, so that due economy will be joined to reasonable enterprise in promoting the interests of the house. The same rule should apply in the selection of a city council. The men selected to administer the affairs of the city should be chosen because of their special fitness to exercise economy, without starving any of the departments or putting a check in progressive industry.

IN RUSSIA. Last night's Associated Press summary of the situation in Russia was as follows: While there seems to have been a restoration of order in St. Petersburg and Moscow, conditions at Warsaw continue to go from bad to worse. Estimates of the killed and wounded in consequence of the collision between mobs and soldiers place the number at 160. The bakers being on strike, bread is at famine prices in Warsaw, and attempts to break the strike have caused numerous collisions with the military. The finding of revolvers of uniform make many of the rioters arrested afford confirmation of recent reports that revolutionary agitators have been smuggling arms in anticipation of an outbreak. It is asserted that the official tale of the death toll in the recent conflict between the strikers and troops at Riga is far short of the actuality, many having perished in an attempt to cross the river on the ice when the soldiers opened fire, the ice breaking and the water engaging the fugitives.

SAN DOMINGO. A hearing bill will be applied by President Roosevelt to the outraged feelings of the United States senate. In reply to Senator Bacon's demand for information relative to the alleged protocol by which the government of the United States undertakes the financial administration of the republic of San Domingo, a treaty with that republic will be submitted to the senate for approval.

There is the usual outcry by the anti-imperialists, and exiles from San Domingo, who force that United States interference would make it impossible for them to enjoy their annual diversion of fomenting a revolution, are also passing resolutions, but the affair is as good as settled.

A Washington dispatch states that the foreign commerce of San Domingo amounts to between eight and nine million dollars per annum, according to a statement just prepared by the department of commerce and labor through its bureau of statistics. About one-half of the imports amount to about $3,000,000 per annum and the exports between $5,000,000 and $9,000,000 annually. The United States supplies about 47 per cent of the imports and receives about 24 per cent of the exports of San Domingo. Sugar is the chief item of export. Of imports from

Strong Working Plan Adopted at New Orleans Last Week--The States Unite--Want Railroad Rates Regulated by Interstate Commerce Commission.

Permanent organization under the name of the Southern Cotton Association was last week completed by the Southern Interstate Cotton Convention at New Orleans. The convention, which was held from January 24 to 28, was the largest ever held in the South. It was held at the New Orleans Hotel, and was attended by delegates from all the cotton producing states. The convention adopted a strong working plan, which includes the following: 1. To hold the cotton crop in the hands of the producer until the price reaches a certain point. 2. To reduce the acreage of cotton in the South by 25 per cent. 3. To regulate the rates of interstate commerce by the Interstate Commerce Commission. 4. To build a railroad from New Orleans to the interior of the South. The convention also adopted a resolution to support the proposed amendment to the United States Constitution, which would give the federal government the power to regulate interstate commerce.

Exciting Incident in a Kentville Residence--Personal Notes. Kentville, Jan. 30--The cold weather and storms of the last week have equalled the experience of the oldest inhabitant, and "all the world" was snowed under on Thursday morning. Tuesday morning, brought much work to the plumbers, as the cold weather of Monday night caught several people unawares. What proved to be a very serious affair occurred to the home of Angus McLeod, Kentville. The water pipes leading to the bath room were frozen, and when struck by the falling snow, the pipes burst, and the stove was completely shattered. Fragments of hot iron and burning fuel were sent all over the kitchen. Miss Lily McLeod, assistant telephone operator at Kentville, was in the kitchen and was struck by the flying pieces of iron. She was badly cut and burned, and since the affair happened, other members of the family escaped unhurt.

THE COTTON PLANTERS OF THE SOUTH have gone to work in a very sensible and practical way to avert the evils of over production and over-speculation. The story is told in today's Times. The president of the Van Buren Lumber Co., describes the St. John operators as pure-prod and tyrannical. Apparently his company now desires to assume that role.

It is gratifying to note that despite the recent storm the Canadian Pacific Railway is handling more through traffic for New Ross than at this time last winter. There is talk of labor candidates for the city council. What is the matter with Aid. Daley and Ald. Holder? Revelations in the police court help to inform one half of the world how the other half lives.

AGAINST THE BEEF TRUST. Supreme Court of United States Renders Decision.

Washington, Jan. 30--The Supreme Court of the United States today decided the case of the United States vs. Swift & Co., known as the Beef Trust, case charging conspiracy among the packers to fix prices in fresh meats, etc. The opinion was handed down by Justice Holmes and affirmed the decision of the court below which was against the packers. In his opinion, Justice Holmes dismissed at length the serious contentions of the packers and disposed of them individually. He admitted that some of the charges were less specific than desirable, but said this was necessary to the success of the case. He added that enough had been shown to prove continuous offence and an offence of such a nature as to justify the proceeding. The opinion continues the injunction granted against the packers under the Sherman anti-trust law by the lower courts. The case was argued in by all the members of the court.

A DIAMOND WORTH $4,000,000. The Biggest Ever Heard of Found in the Transvaal.

Johannesburg, Transvaal, Jan. 30--The largest diamond ever heard of has been found near Pretoria. The stone weighs 3082 carats, and is said to be of the finest quality. It is locally valued at from $3,500,000 to $4,000,000. The famous Caligula, which is valued at $600,000,000, weighs 123 carats, though it is said to have weighed 100 before it was cut. There is immense excitement here and at Pretoria as a result of the discovery. The finding of a 3000-carat diamond is most remarkable. The biggest diamond previously known, was the 971-carat diamond presented to Pope Leo XIII, in 1895 by Kruger, the late president of Transvaal. The stone was found in an African chief in the mines of Jagersfontein. It is of a bluish white cast, and is a beautiful specimen, its only blemish being a minute spot which is invisible to the naked eye. No valuation is placed on the stone. The famous Kolorado diamond originally weighed about 800 carats. When Queen Victoria died, it was valued at $1,850,000. It had been cut down to 136 1/8 carats, and it was afterwards reduced to 106 1/8 carats. The famous Mogul, which mysteriously disappeared at the sacking of Delhi, is described as weighing 186 carats. The Orloff, the most valuable imperial sceptre of Russia, weighs 198 carats. The Regent, another historical gem, and among the most perfect in water and cutting, originally known as the Pitt diamond, weighed 136 carats, which was reduced in cutting to 136 carats. The stone, purchased by the Duke of Orleans, 1717, the mottoed by the French Republic, and is valued at $2,500,000. The price paid for it in 1717 was $675,000. The Victoria or Imperial diamond weighs 180 carats, and was purchased by the Nizam of Hyderabad for $1,500,000. Another large diamond is the De Beers. It weighs 225 carats, but its value is considerable because of its color. It is owned by an Indian prince. It will, perhaps, be also interesting to know that a carat is four grains Troy, so that the diamond just found in South Africa weighs nearly two Troy pounds.

COUNTING THE COST.

The recent snow storm will probably cost the city about $3,000. Previous to the last snowfall nearly $3,500 had been paid out for removing the snow. The railway corporations have found the recent storm exceedingly expensive. The Superintendent estimated the expenditure directly caused by the storm at $3,800 per day, commencing on removing the snow. They have about 500 men at work on the main line and branches. L. B. Ross, of the I. C. R., says the storm will probably cost the government road about $1,000

A $50,000 DINNER AND 70,000 HUNGRY.

Causic Comment on the Shameless Extravagance of the Rich. (Nashville American.) At a recent dinner in the St. Regis Hotel, New York, a gold service was used exclusively. Even the trays were silver. The table was in the shape of a horseshoe in the white marble room. The favors were four-inch gold clocks for the women and gold buttonmotes for the men. There were thirty-six guests, and the dinner is said to have cost $50,000, or $1400 a plate. This reminds us of the days of our old friend Lucullus, who frequently spent as much as $100,000 for a single dinner. Apicius spent $2,000,000 in gluttony. In the New York paper containing an account of the St. Regis dinner, it is declared that there were 70,000 children in that city who go to school hungry every day, and that there are 600,000 people in distress because of poverty. Of New York's dead one out of every ten is buried in the potter's field. Mr. Hunter, who secures a life of ease in order to do a noble work, says the question may be asked: "What is there in our boasted civilization, or where is that generous fraternity that pulpit orators prate about?" He says charity will not settle the problem, and of course it will not.

THE ST. JOHN EVENING TIMES, TUESDAY, JANUARY 31, 1905.

ST. JOHN LUMBERMEN A "PURSE-PROUD" LOT. The President of the Van Buren Lumber Company Waves a Big Stick--Tells a Wonderful Hard-Luck Story to the Kenebec Journal.

(Kenebec Journal.) Van Buren, Jan. 28--An article clipped from a recent issue of the St. John Times has been going the rounds of the Maine Press of late relative to the building of a pier in St. John river, that conveys a wrong impression of the situation.

lower St. John, who has not a single interest in common with him, pass up along the Saint John river into the Maine woods and cut down the river several hundred miles to the Fredericton boom, there to be rafted by the New Brunswick and floated down to the few mills at Fredericton and the many mills in St. John, there to be manufactured by a crew composed entirely of foreigners who spend more or less of their leisure time in cracking jokes at the expense of the poor Yankees.

"Nor is this all. Not satisfied with having had a monopoly of the manufacture of the lumber of the Saint John valley both in New Brunswick and Maine for more than 75 years, the New Brunswick mill owner has become so simply rich, but proud and tyrannical and has arrived at the conclusion that he owns the St. John river in fee-simple, and has made up his mind to prevent such few citizens of Maine as have ventured to engage in the lumber business on the upper St. John from stopping, sorting and holding their logs for the purpose of manufacturing lumber for the market.

"And so a systematic persecution has been organized against the mill-owners on the upper St. John, with a view to driving them out of business, with the intention evidently and almost avowedly of not allowing any lumber to stop above the Fredericton boom.

"The act of Congress above cited has been supplemented by another passed in 1891 also in the interest of the New Brunswickers, and which is entitled 'an act to incorporate the Madawaska Log Driving Company.'

"Now, the St. John mill-owners have absolute control of this corporation, and it is run under their direction and in their interest. Whatever its legal worth may be, in effect, gives them control of the upper St. John waters and everybody must clear the way for them. While protesting most vociferously against the obstruction of the Saint John river they are constantly and continuously in possession of it, and obstructing themselves.

"Frequently, the corporation drive remains in the river and filling the river completely for miles and miles. The man who has a mill on the banks of the upper St. John holds his lumber back in one of the smaller streams until the corporation drive has got out of the way, it having naturally and in a sense necessarily the right of way.

"The corporation drive is made up of saw lumber which goes to the Fredericton boom. Large bodies move slowly. The water is falling and by the time the corporation drive is abandoned for the season and the Maine mill-owner of the upper Saint John has lost the benefit of the spring freshet for driving purposes while waiting for the big men of St. John to get out of the way, and by and by finds the whole river filled and absolutely blockaded with their lumber, and finally must content himself to give up wholly the idea of driving his own lumber that season, or must endeavor as best he can to drive it through the entire corporation drive, hung up on account of the security of water, at an expense which so far exceeds his original calculations as to turn what might have been a successful operation into an absolutely ruinous one.

"Now, were it not for the act of Congress above cited, such a condition of things could not exist, for the St. John mill-owners would have practically no lumber to drive on the upper Saint John, and likewise could find no pretext for objecting to the use of the waters of the river by the Maine mill-owners, who manufacture lumber on the northern border.

HE FOUND IT Just as Recommended.

"I bought a fifty cent package of Pyramid Pile Cure from my druggist, and have used two dollar packages since. I find them just as you recommended them to be. I have not felt the least sign of piles since using your remedy three months ago. If you want to use my name you may do so, as I feel like a new man. I now have no trouble with the dreadful, aggravated disease.

"I meant to write you sooner, but thought I would wait until I was cured. I thank you for your wonderful Pile Cure. I was a great sufferer from piles." Fred Deery, R. F. D. 4, New Brunswick, N. J.

Seldom, if ever, is there any doubt about the effect produced by the use of Pyramid Pile Cure, as is shown by the experience given above. The proprietors of this remedy have thousands of letters on file, and are not better proof of the merit of the preparation could be adduced, when it is borne in mind that these letters are wholly unsolicited, there is certainly cause for pride in the remedy. Pyramid Pile Cure is sold by druggists for fifty cents a package, and if you have not it he will get it for you if asked to do so. Accept no substitutes, and remember there is no other remedy "just as good".

Sleigh Drives. Two large sleighs conveyed about sixty members of the boys' branch of the Y. M. C. A. on their sleigh drive yesterday, and the outing was a very pleasant one. A short programme of vocal and instrumental music was carried out.
