THE WAR NEWS.

We are able to read today that the French and Americans took the offensive last night between the Ourcq and the Marne, advanced some distance, captured several positions, and took prisoners.

On the subject of forest fires the Maritime Merchant says:—"The worst of it is that these fires originate in most cases through sheer carelessness. One would think that by this time there can hardly be anything better understood by people who go into the woods than the importance of thoroughly extinguishing camp fires, and taking all other precautions for the prevention of danger from such fires.

CHANGING THEIR LOCATION

British heavy artillery shifting to a new position. The gun in the foreground is passing over a military road. Motor trucks give the guns the right of way. A gasoline station for motors is seen at the right. Piles of crushed stone for repairing the road are beyond the gas cans. Except for the destruction wrought by shell fire the military roads are kept in the best condition. Owing to the German advance the French and British have been obliged to reconstruct many railroad lines.—French Official Photo.

SOLDIERS SINGING PSALMS.

London Express: At a conference on church hymn singing at St. Mary's Primrose hill, the vicar, the Rev. Dilly Jones, said he never heard such singing anywhere as he heard in billet services in tumble-down villages when Scottish boys used their hearts and their voices in rendering some of those Psalms which are so dear to them, and when the whole place was filled with the strains of "Dunfermline" or "St. Paul" or "Duke Street" or "Wiltshire." They almost felt themselves back in Scotland.

MOST DEPEND ON V. A. D.'S

Toronto, June 6.—"The call for nurses overseas is an imperative one, and is being met," says Miss Gunn, superintendent of the General Hospital and resident of the Canadian National Association of Trained Nurses, which opened the seventh annual convention at the University of Toronto today.

The training schools at present are turning out more than the usual number and the training is a long and arduous process, although new training tools are being started.

"In spite of the bombing of hospitals, nurses are willing and ready to volunteer for overseas duty, but so far we see no solution ahead. The demand for nurses to both military and civil life is increasing. Some two thousand have been sent overseas. The demand must be filled without lowering the standard of efficiency and training."

"They say this war has produced no one Florence Nightingale. That is true because it has produced so many of her, and her name is just V. A. D.," said Mrs. Henderson, of Montreal.

"The conclusions which must be arrived at after close contact with the V. A. D. are that they fill a great need and release for other duties the trained nurse, whose time is too valuable for duties which may be performed by the V. A. D."

"It is as easy to maintain discipline with the volunteer as with the paid worker."

ADDRESS ON PUBLIC HEALTH.

Dr. Mabel Hamington addressed a meeting last night at Quispamis under the auspices of the Women's Institute. CREeping VEGETABLES.

The creeping vegetables, such as squash, egg-plants, cucumbers, peppers and pumpkins are all tender and should not be planted until all danger of frost is over. They require warmth and sunshine and are useful to fill up blanks in the garden, although they have a tendency to take up a great space. They should be protected at night for two or three weeks after being set out.

A forkful of well-rotted manure worked into the soil under each hill will help greatly where cucumbers are concerned. Place hills three feet apart with rows three or four feet apart. Plant ten or twelve seeds in each hill, some thin and when the plants are well started, if beetles appear, dust with fine street dust to which a very little kerosene has been added.

Eighteen inches should be allowed between each pepper, and the plants are set out with two feet between each. Three or four plants will supply a family of six.

EXHIBITION AND TEA AT THE ART CLUB

The combined annual exhibition of the work of the St. John art club students and patriotic tea and sale work by the Girls' branch of the Soldiers' Comforts was held in the Art Club hall yesterday afternoon and was an event that was greatly enjoyed by the large number of people who were present.

The work of the art students was a revelation of talent to most of those who viewed it. There were also on exhibition some paintings and pastels by local artists, that were very fine.

There are about twelve students in the advanced art class and during the past year they have had two terms of tuition. They have exhibited and made use of their time, and their instructor, Miss Alice Haggarty, is to be congratulated on the results of her teaching. The winner of the first prize was Miss Florence Ord, the very first pupil who entered the club. The prize was awarded her for a life study of a girl's head done in charcoal. The second prize was won by Miss K. Fitzpatrick, who did a study of a plaster cast done in charcoal; the third prize winner was Miss Caroline Page, life study in charcoal. The fourth prize was won by Miss Madeline Wilmot. Her study of a girl's head was done in pencil. The first prize winner, and a pupil who shows more than ordinary promise, is Miss Madeline Wilmot. FIGHTING FOREST FIRES

Fredericton, N. B., June 6.—The excellent work of the provincial department of lands and mines in fighting fires in the crown lands in the province is being continued, and, last night, two crews were sent in response to reports that fires were burning on timber limits in Kent county. One report was that a large fire was burning in timber limits of the Fraser Company, Limited, on Salmon River, Kent county. A fire-fighting crew as dispatched at once and is now fighting the flames.

The other fire was on Block 6, range 10, licensed to D. J. Buckley, and on the line of the Kent Northern railway. Fire Ranger Miller, of Motus River, sent in the report and is engaged on the fire with a large crew.

The department of lands and mines is not aiding in the fighting of fires on privately owned lands. Last night a serious fire broke out in timber lands at Scott's Siding on the Fredericton and Grand Lake railway, the smoke of which was plainly seen from Fredericton. The fire was on private lands, however, and when application was made to the deputy minister for assistance he informed the applicant that under the provisions of the forest act the department could not undertake to fight fires on private lands. The fire reported from Campobello Island also is on private lands.

Joseph G. McKnight, of Newcastle, mentioned in recent despatches as being awarded the Military Cross, having taken charge after the company commander was wounded and led the men to their objective, is a son of Councillor and Mrs. Joseph McKnight, of Douglas Point. WOMEN WAR WORKERS OF ENGLAND

The officers of the "Wrens" who are doing yeoman service. They are volunteers from all ranks of society and do clerical work and of a general nature—including repairing of clothes, cleaning, nursing, cooking, etc. They often work behind the firing line and have shown remarkable bravery and daring under any and all circumstances.

Lieut. Fonck Now The Ace of Aces

Guymer's Mastle Falls on Daring and Deadly Young French Flier

Not since Guymer, the "Hawk," was shot down last winter have the Allies had such a skilful and deadly airman as young René Fonck, who recently brought down six German planes in one day, and is now known as the "Ace of Aces."

"I am going out to avenge Chapuis," declared Fonck, Chapuis having himself been killed the day before and having been a famous and popular ace and friend of Georges Carpentier, French heavy-weight boxer, and of his comrade in the air service.

In a few minutes Fonck met a squadron of six German planes. Within six minutes he had sent three of them hurtling to earth in flames. Later the same day he encountered nine German planes and downed three of them.

Lieutenant Fonck began flying a year and a half before the war, at the mature age of sixteen. When the war began he was able to start as a pilot observer, although he did not become a chaser until 1916. He brought down his first enemy airplane August 6, 1916, since having accounted for forty-one other planes, reckoning only those credited under the strict standard followed by the French.

His wonderful success and skill are counted not only by the number of machines he has smashed, but by the still more extraordinary fact that his own machine never has been hit by a bullet.

That means that besides the cleverness with which he manoeuvres to get at the man he is attacking he has a positive genius for deciding when to strike and when not to strike, using his judgment as well as his mastery of the aerobatics of flying to choose the right moment for assailing his quarry or retreating.

He is a wonderful shot, and in his last affair he made six direct hits out of fifty shots.

The daring young Frenchman has fought a good deal with the British, for whom he has a great admiration. He has two British decorations in addition to the Croix de Guerre and the Cross of the Legion of Honor. He is described as extraordinarily modest, frank and likable, just a jolly open faced slightly

Wilson's Skill in Unifying People

Archbishop of York Pays Tribute to President's Great Achievement—With Allies to Finish

London, June 7.—The Archbishop of York, speaking at Middlesbrough on his recent visit to the United States, said that the message he had tried to take to America was:

"We rejoice that beyond words to the providence of God which brought this great people, dedicated to freedom, into the struggle for the freedom of the world. We ask you to come quickly to our aid and pledge yourselves to hold on until you arrive."

The answer the Archbishop said he had brought back was:

"We rejoice that we have seen the greatness of this struggle. We are eager and ready without stint to offer our resources to the United States. We will read our promises, fulfil our pledges and stand by you until the end."

The Archbishop paid warm tribute to the patriotism of millions of Americans of German extraction, whose views, he said, might be expressed in the words: "We shall never allow the blood of our veins to drown the conscience in our brains."

After emphasizing the unity of American labor and America's resolution and determination to concentrate all her vast resources on the war and place them at the disposal of the Allies, the Archbishop added: "Here a word needs to be spoken of disappointments and delays. Our friends across the ocean are far more sensitive to them than we. It was not so long ago that we needed, but rather, increased appreciation of the greatness and skill with which they had planned their help and the increasing measure with which their plans would be fulfilled."

"That great and generous people, who received me with a warmth of welcome I shall never forget, are saying to you: 'We are coming to stand by you till the end. We have vindicated the peace and freedom of the world and secured it for our children.' We say: 'It is hard to hold on, but we are coming.'"

The Archbishop paid tribute to Pres-

New Canadian Novel

Willow the Wisp is the title of a new novel by Archie P. McKishnie, just issued by Thomas Allen, Toronto. How the wilderness of New Ontario wore its spell upon a young "dope-dens" from the city, who fled to it broken and hopeless, and under its influence regained manhood, faith and love, is the theme of this novel; but there are also introduced characters to whom the voices of forest and stream and air brought no saving inspiration, and they make enough trouble to keep the reader continually anxious for the safety of the hero and his friends. Primitive passions rule these rough children of the wild. There are trappers and half-breeds and an occasional Indian, with one majestic Algonquin chieftain and trail runner who might have posed for one of Fenimore Cooper's red-skinned heroes. For the purposes of the story several city folk are introduced, and their former relations with the man who had renounced the city that broke him on the wheel, as well as with certain evil-doers who seek his downfall for their own purposes, lead to complications of a somewhat thrilling character. Nature appeals very strongly to the author, and the reader breathes the atmosphere of the woods and lakes. The hero has established a great game preserve, which is the haven of all hunted things, and the envy of lawless trappers whose activities are a constant source of worry, and who lend themselves to the plan of a more intelligent and crafty schemer to loot the preserve and "get" the proprietor. Their scheming fails, and there is a dramatic finale, with a moderate amount of gun-play that brings retribution to the arch-enemies of law and order, and incidentally unravels the mystery of the birth and fortunes of Willow the Wisp, the lovely forest maiden whose love for the hero is as true as the ivory sights of her cherished rifle. The story is a gripping one, the characters well drawn, and the appeal to the lover of nature pervades the book.

Willow the Wisp, by Archie P. McKishnie, published this month by Thomas Allen, 215-217 Victoria street, Toronto. Price $1.85.

A novelty show was tendered Mrs. Edith M. DeLong at the home of Mrs. Percy D. Hunter, 12 Richmond street, last evening. Many handsome and valuable gifts were received and after a pleasant gathering the party dispersed, extending best wishes to the bride-to-be for war work.

KILLS WIFE, THEN HIMSELF

Lumber Exporter Mentally Deranged by Worry and Insomnia

New York, June 7.—Suddenly deranged mentally as a result of worry and insomnia, Werner H. Degueue, a lumber exporter, shot and killed his wife, Katherine, as she slept in their home at 127 Cambridge Place, Brooklyn, and then put an end to his own life with the same weapon. The double tragedy took place while their son and daughter lay asleep in their rooms upstairs, and they were unaware of it until they arose some time later. The daughter, Mrs. Lillian D. Smith, discovered the body of her father on the floor of the dining room.

Mr. Degueue was fifty-two years old and was in business in Manhattan. As in other lines, the war interfered with the export lumber trade and he worried greatly about it. For some time he had been under treatment for insomnia. When he killed his wife he used a pillow to muffle the report of the weapon. He then went down stairs to the dining room, where he fired a bullet into his brain.

Mrs. Smith, the daughter, is the wife of Lieutenant Ralph Bevin Smith, an American aviator and member of the Lafayette Escadrille. Recently the family learned that he had been captured while fighting over the German lines in France, and was being held in a prison camp in Karlsruhe. This news greatly upset Mr. Degueue. Yielding to the advice of his physician and family, he had decided on Monday to go to his country place, near Greenwood Lake, for a long rest.

To show his annoyance that the government had excluded the clergy from the scope of the new Military Service Act, the Rev. C. T. Waring, rector of Stoke-Fleming, near Dartmouth, has resigned the living, and its net income of $511 a year sooner than he originally intended. He is now going to volunteer for war work.

"It is unthinkable," he says, "that I should be doing the quiet work of a country parish during the summer while the fate of England and the world is being decided."

He went to Devon, Mr. Waring, in Dulwich, Battersea and Lee, and was vicar of St. Hilda's, Crofton Park, S. E.

WRITE UNDER BOMBING OF THE CITY OF COLOGNE

German Letters Taken From Prisoners—Eager to See the End of it All

With the British Army in France... The bombing of Cologne by British air men has brought some interesting comment in letters written by German civilians to soldiers at the front. Several letters taken from enemy prisoners speak of the raids. One sent from Eusdrichen, Rhenish Prussia, a short distance from Cologne, on May 21, says: "The people in Cologne had a visit from the enemy airman on last Saturday. They have caused rather heavy damage, and our quarter was punished most, especially in the neighborhood of the Neumarkt. It was mostly roof damage. An enemy machine was shot down. They arrived quite unnoticed about 10 o'clock in the morning."

In view of the British agreement not to disturb Cologne on Corpus Christi day and the German action in bombing Paris at that time, the following letters written from Cologne the day before Corpus Christi is worth reporting:

"This morning again the wretches wanted to pay us another visit, but only came as far as Wesseling, where both sections were heavily fired upon with machine guns."

"Our people are now keenly on the alert, and the whole day long one hears vibrations in the air. This morning, after an alarm had been given, we were again obliged to sit in the cellars. To-morrow, Corpus Christi, I feel certain, we shall have another attempt, but the wretches must believe that processions will go out. No such procession, however, is to be allowed and our parochial procession on Whitmonday is forbidden for may there be a procession in church at all massing of people must be voided."

A letter from Essen dated May 27 reads: "Things seem to be very lively with you, and it is very sad—you have already had so many losses. When will there be an end to all this trouble? Flying activity here is very lively; Cologne has had a dressing down and has got a proper letter of thanks."

WHEN EIDSVOLD WAS SUNK

An Atlantic Port, June 7—An American steamship which arrived here last night from Central American ports with 200 passengers, was only thirty miles distant from the Eidsvold when the vessel was sunk Tuesday by a German submarine off the Virginia Capes. The liner had been warned by wireless, and ran far out of her course.

Another American steamship reached here last night with seventy-eight passengers from South America and the West Indies. The ship's company remained on deck all of Monday night wearing life belts. The boats were stocked with food and water.

Allies Soon Recovered The Air Mastery

Lost it for Day But German Triumph Short-lived—Many Enemy Balloons Destroyed

French Army Headquarters, June 6 (via Reuter's Ottawa Agency)—During the first twenty-four hours of the battle between the Aisne and the Marne, their triumphs were short-lived. As the attack opened on Monday, a powerful aviation group, including some of the best known French aces started towards the Aisne via the German front on the Oise, causing the greatest possible damage en route. The group took the air on Tuesday, engaging the German airmen, descending within twenty feet of the ground in order to attack troops and convoys and by the end of the day the balance in the air was deemed. German airplanes which had been firing on our troops with machine guns from low altitudes learned caution quickly. During the course of Wednesday our supremacy in the air had been definitely re-established and since then has hardly been challenged.

PALE FACE CHIEF NOW LEADS SIOUX

Captain Welch Only White Man Ever Adopted Into the Tribe

Mandan, N. D., June 7—With the passing of Chief John Grass of the Sioux tribe of Indians, who recently died at Fort Yates, the headquarters of the Standing Rock agency, his mantle falls upon the shoulders of the only white man ever adopted into the tribe. Thus Captain A. B. Welch of Mandan, adopted son of the old chief, becomes, according to ancient customs of the Sioux, the chief of the tribe.

The new Sioux chief, whose Indian name is Mato-Watake, is with the United States Infantry in France and is the aide of Major-General Hunter Liggett, a grandson of John Grass, Albert Grass, is serving with the same division.

Although there were formerly four chiefs of the Sioux, only one line remains, and the old chief's sons all being dead, Captain Welch, by reason of being an adopted son, takes precedence over the remainder of the tribe.

The name Mato-Watake is the Sioux name of the old chief and means "Charging Bear." When he was adopted Captain Welch chose this name as the one by which he would be known among the Indians.

Although the chief of today has not the same powers of the chief of years gone by, the title still gives him the respect of the Indians and they recognize him as their leader. A chief still represents his tribe in all the disputes or conferences with the government.

Captain Welch for many years has been a student of the Indian customs and formed many friendships with members of the Sioux tribe. In 1915, because of a mutual regard that had grown up between the captain and the chief, John Grass, the latter asked the captain if he would be willing to be adopted as his son. The captain consented and, conforming to the ancient ceremonies of the Sioux, was taken into the tribe by a service held at Fort Yates, the old trading centre. The service began at dawn and lasted until sundown.

The body of the old chief has been laid in the cemetery at Fort Yates and the Sioux now look for the return of their "pale-face chief" from the great war to assume control of their affairs and act as their spokesman in all matters in which the tribe is involved.

SOME DIVINITY COLLEGES CLOSED

Death of Ministers and Number of Students Overseas Makes Course Advisable.

London, Ont., June 6—The finance committee of the general assembly met yesterday in conjunction with the board of education, to discuss the mobilization of colleges. On account of there being so many divinity students at the front, it was thought advisable to close some of the colleges. It was decided to recommend that a few colleges be closed, but that some men be left in charge to look after the libraries and community. Many colleges cannot be closed during war time, because they are maintained in conjunction with various universities, the students taking a double course. The staff relieved from the colleges affected will counter-balance the death of clergymen caused by the absence of members otherwise engaged as chaplains, the staff taking over their duties and also managing home mission conferences. The matter was left to the general assembly to be brought up for discussion.

ARMY CLOTH NEEDED BY UNITED STATES

Extensive Manufacturing Scheme is Discussed at Ottawa—Some Against Proposal

Ottawa, June 7—A big delegation of woollen manufacturers from all parts of Canada has been here at the invitation of the War Trade Board and War Purchasing Commission to discuss launching into extensive manufacturing of cloth for the army needs of the United States. A private meeting held in the Chateau Laurier was addressed by members of the Canadian War Mission in Washington.

The meeting, which was attended by sixty woollen manufacturers, was called by G. M. Murray, secretary of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. The United States is desirous of securing large supplies of cloth from Canadian mills for manufacturing into blankets, puttees, shirts, etc., and the meeting was decided upon as a means of getting the manufacturers to increase production to the utmost. It is believed that it will result in a decrease of the adverse balance of trade against Canada.

Several clothing manufacturers, including a delegation from Montreal, have also come to Ottawa, and they are not entirely in sympathy with the proposed exportation of cloth. They say that the exportation of huge quantities of cloth would demoralize the industry here.

Order Our Made-To-Measure Garments Now For Next Year--- They Will Pay For Themselves

Contractors To the British and Canadian Governments.

WE are now making to measure many Suits, Topcoats and Overcoats that won't be worn until a year from now.

These garments are being ordered by the wide awake men of the Dominion who are placing their orders now against the time when clothes will cost more than at any time in history. It is not at all improbable that a good Made-to-Measure Suit, a year hence, in many tailor shops, will cost from $75 upwards.

Give this subject more than passing thought—you should "stock up" now for the coming year with a Made-to-Measure Suit, Top-coat or Overcoat at $17—a price that before long may be but a memory. You had better take time by the forelock and place your order for three English & Scotch Woollen Co. Made-to-Measure Suits tomorrow—opportunity days have a way of slipping by quickly.

IN the face of trebling woollen costs and with the prospects of but little wool being available next year at any price—we are still quoting our standard price, $17 for genuine Made-to-Measure Garments. The fact is we would be fully justified in advancing our quotations as much as 50% on the basis of market conditions—the finished garments are intrinsically worth that much. We honestly doubt if you can buy our kind of fabrics, tailored to your measure anywhere, even at twice our price. An investment in our Made-to-Measure Garments will pay you handsomely.

It was only natural that Lenin should make the same accusation in the pamphlet issued before the Bolsheviks came into power, and that he should state that "the strengthening of the power of the councils, the organizing and arming of the masses" was the only condition under which the assembly could be "really convoked," that "only thus can the assembly be assured."

last so long? The answer is simple: The opposition of the country is passive because the country is exhausted, and, on the other hand, the Bolsheviks have the support of the disorganized remnants of the army because they allow the soldiers to do as they please. The Bolsheviks are playing at "government," are issuing decrees, orders, and laws, but, in fact, their fundamental principle may be expressed, as someone suggested, by the brief phrase, "help yourself." The soldiers help themselves, and this kind of a "democratic government" naturally appeals to them.

MAKING WEALTH AS NEED GROWS

Canada Now Supplying The Greater Part of Money For Own Use

Wealth Increasing—Surprising Demands for Money in War-time Surprisingly Met

(By William Lewis Edmonds in Toronto Globe)

Since November, 1915, the Finance Minister has secured from the Canadian people, through the four domestic loans floated, a total sum of $760,000,000. That he could have obtained more had he chosen to take it is evident from the fact that the total sum subscribed was $94,942,000 in excess of that which he accepted.

Seven hundred and fifty millions of dollars is a lot of money for a country to take from its pockets, stockings, strong boxes and savings deposits that up to the outbreak of the war felt compelled to go abroad for some three hundred millions annually in order to finance its public and industrial enterprises.

Canadians are naturally rather proud of this achievement, realising as they do that it is an outward and visible sign that the Dominion is evolving from the debtor to the creditor status as a nation. As this is a pardonable pride it does not come within the condemnatory clause of the Wise Man who laid down the principle that "pride goeth before destruction."

But while it is right that good Canadian dollars should be enlisted for the purpose of bringing the war to a successful issue, and that Canadians are proud of being able to supply them, yet it is just as well to remember that unfortunately money capitalised for such a purpose has a function somewhat different from that capitalised for ordinary commercial enterprises.

Generally speaking, capital expended on war account is not only unproductive, but it is destroyed. On the other hand, generally speaking, capital devoted to the development of the industrial activities of a country is not only unproductive, but it is reproductive. It creates additional dollars for additional capital expenditures.

the purpose of destroying military autonomy in order that smaller nations may exist. In that respect, capital cannot, strictly speaking, be said to be wasted. Neither can it be termed unproductive.

But while it is the duty of Canadians to continue to provide capital on war account, it is also their duty to energise their efforts in creating new capital for the development of the industrial life of the country.

And that means that the producer must produce more and the merchant, the wage-earner and the salaried man save more.

While the amount of capital subscribed to each of the four domestic loans is devoted to a worthy cause, yet it does not alter the fact that the capital resources of the country available for industrial enterprise have been greatly diminished.

thereby. We cannot put our capital into munitions, guns and armaments of various kinds and have it, any more than we can "eat our cake and have it."

In the "piping times of peace" the necessity for creating our own capital resources was not as imperative as it is to-day. The credit of the Dominion was so good that we had no difficulty in running over to London and borrowing two or three hundred millions a year. Besides this source of supply there was largely taken the place of London as a purveyor of Canadian securities.

And now, with the United States in the war, and its own as well as the Allies' financial needs to look after, New York can no longer be counted a source of supply for funds. Canada is therefore thrown more upon her own financial resources than she was even a year ago.

The extent to which Canada has been gradually thrown upon her own financial resources since the outbreak of the war may be gathered at a glance from the following figures: In 1914 her total borrowings for government, municipal, railway and various other purposes amounted to $273,000,000.

If we were to turn this sum of $760,000,000 into dollar bills and paste them end to end it would give us a continuous chain nearly 88,000 miles long, or just about sufficient to make twenty-four separate and distinct lines across the Dominion from coast to coast.

This shows that while the Dominion is borrowing more than double the amount of money that she did in antebellum times, she is contributing to her own capital resources a much larger proportion than she then obtained from abroad. That should make us sit up and take notice, as well as give us reason for pardonable pride.

In a sense, it is better that we should be paying to ourselves, rather than to foreign capitalists, interest on money borrowed. But to a young country like Canada, with great natural resources awaiting development, it has its disadvantages as well as its advantages, meaning, as it does, considerable strain upon her moderate capital resources.

That Canada has been able to bring forth a greater number of dollars for her expenditures on capital account than was three or four years ago deemed possible there can be no doubt. "Some day when her population is sufficiently large," wrote Lord Shaughnessy in December of 1914, "and her people have put aside more savings, Canada may herself provide the capital to develop her own resources, but for many years to come a large proportion of this capital must come from outside."

Lord Shaughnessy is an optimist, as well as an authority, but that which he held could not take place "for many years to come" occurred within three years. She is already supplying the larger proportion of her own capital. And in view of the fact that the war is eating up the capital of the belligerent nations at the rate of approximately $100,000,000 a day it is pretty certain that the Dominion will, willy-nilly, be compelled to do so for some years to come.

Our Capital Increasing. The productivity of the Dominion is increasing year by year. Last year the aggregate productive value of all industries (field crops, live stock sold, animal products, manufactured goods, mineral products, fishery products, forest products) was approximately four billions of dollars, or practically double that of four years ago.

But while we are concentrating our efforts upon production it is also necessary that we should concentrate our energies in the direction of economy. Just as we do not produce all we might, neither do we save all we should. When we waste our money in unnecessary expenditures, either of a public or private nature, we are on a par with the savage who cuts down a tree in order that he may obtain the fruit that hangs upon its branches.

"Do More Than
The Regulations
Require of You"

Advice of Member of Canada
Food Board

Public Meeting Held
Spirit of Conservation Rather Than
Letter of the Law That Counts
—Bread Wrappers Advocated

"It is the spirit of conservation we need in Canada, not so much the sticking close to the letter of the regulations of the Canada food board. Do more than the regulations require that you should do."

The enforcement of the regulations therefore was left in the hands of the local police and he felt that the great majority of the people of Canada were honestly endeavoring to live up to the regulations.

Mr. Abraham's address was largely a personal one and he went through the different departments of the Canada Food Board, explaining as he went along the work of each department.

"Many people are of the opinion that the Canada Food Board is costing the country a great deal of money, but I would like to say," said Mr. Abraham, "that the Canada Food Board is not a license system."

That the license system was not only a good measure but that, in his opinion, it had come to stay was another opinion expressed by Mr. Abraham. He had given the government immediate control of the business men of the country and their activities, and was safety valve to all business operations coming within its jurisdiction.

Both Mr. Abraham and F. W. Stewart, the second speaker, paid a glowing tribute to the work of the chairman of the Canada Food Board, Mr. Thomson, "standing six feet three or four inches, in his stocking feet, and every inch a man," Mr. Stewart described him. A man of resolute spirit and brilliant energy, who had brought much of the success that had been attendant upon the efforts of the Canada Food Board.

of food in the packages and thus protect the consumer.
Ice Cream Manufacture.
"Many have urged that the manufacture of ice cream be placed under a ban," he continued. "In the summer months, naturally, produce greater quantities of milk, but in order to get that quantity of milk the farmer must keep those cows throughout the winter season. There is a larger percentage of profit on the manufacture of ice cream than there is on the manufacture of butter or cheese. The profit on 200 pounds of milk used in the manufacture of ice cream is equal to the profit on 800 pounds of milk used in the manufacture of butter, and in view of this fact and that in some cities at least 75 per cent. of the total ice cream output is consumed in the homes and used as dessert the board decided to permit the continuance of the manufacture of ice cream."

As to our sending of food supplied to the Allies overseas, he said that one steamer-load from Canada to England was equivalent, because of distance, to two steamer-loads from the Argentine and three from Australia, and because of this fact and the scarcity of bottoms Canada must send all her products overseas that is as far as possible.

Opposed to Rationing.
The chairman of the food board feels very strongly against the placing of Canada in a rationing system. "I feel confident," he continued, "that at least 90 per cent. of the households in which now occupied an entire building at Ottawa."

Mr. J. W. Lawlor spoke briefly in behalf of the Housewives' League, and somewhat startled her audience when she stated that recently in St. John lamb was selling at $1 per pound and at times salmon had been 75 cents per pound. She criticized the food board rather severely in the matter of food control, saying that it took the Canada Food Board only five minutes to take them off.

Mr. Stewart, in answer to her criticism, pointed out that the delivery of the bread in most cities in Canada was not the same as that practiced in the city of St. John, and he saw where the objection lay in St. John in ordering the wrappers that is as far as possible.

The fruit and vegetable section of the board, he contended, had accomplished the splendid work and enquiry had taught the officials that contrary to popular opinion the fruit business was a most precarious one so far as profits employed were concerned, and added, "If I had a particular grudge against any individual I would urge him to enter into the fruit business."

Not Price Fixing.
F. W. Stewart, who is chairman of the public committee of the Canada Food Board, in his address, dealt with the subject of food conservation from a very wide viewpoint. He said the term Food Control was one very often misunderstood, for people were of the opinion that food control necessarily meant the fixing of prices. The Canada Food Board does, he said, control prices through its license system, but it does not fix prices nor attempt to do so.

Y. M. C. A. WORKERS ACTED HEROICALLY DURING RETREAT

Paris, June 6.—Y. M. C. A. units with the French troops played heroic parts in the recent retreat east and west of Sedan and one, Carl Lytle, of North Brookfield (Mass.), is believed to have sacrificed his life. Lytle, who is thirty-three years old, is officially reported missing. Amid a rain of gas shells Lytle went into a certain burning village to rescue refugees after the troops had come out. He has not been seen since.

Edmundston, N. B., June 4.—Mrs. Paul Pearce, aged seventy-one years, died suddenly on Saturday morning. Death was due to heart disease, and occurred at her home at 100 St. John street.

Salisbury, N. B., June 6.—The funeral of John Gowland, who died at his home at 69 Elm street, St. John (N. B.), on Tuesday morning, was held here on Thursday morning after the arrival of the express from St. John. The service at the grave was conducted by Rev. R. Coleman, of Pettaucode.

Paris, June 6.—General Robert E. L. Taylor, of the American Expeditionary Force, died in a railroad train near Rouen yesterday. His death was sudden and unexpected and he had been ill.

Captain Frank Brown, senior captain of the Eastern Shore line, died recently at his home in Hampden Highlands, Me. He had been ill two weeks with pneumonia.

Ottawa, June 6.—"I never saw a finer body of men in my life," said General Venoit, minister of militia, this afternoon, minister of the new Quebec battalions. "They are coming in in great shape and happy spirit. Apart from the numbers sent overseas, a depot battalion in Quebec City has just gone to Valcartier and another will take its place. The Laval officers training here, full and well equipped, are being sent to the front."

ST. GEORGE PEOPLE PLEASED WITH THE GOVT. ROAD POLICY
St. George, June 5.—The minister of public works, Hon. P. J. Venoit, visited St. George last week. Many of the leading citizens met him and were very favorably impressed by the evident determination to accomplish something in regard to the roads. During his visit the minister was taken to Letete, Back Bay, Beaver Harbor and other nearby sections. The road policy of past years has resulted disastrously for most of these places, with the result that the people are not only handicapped by the conditions of the roads but are actually suffering great hardships. As one citizen put it, "A few years ago a large sum of money was expended on the old St. John road, putting it in fairly good condition. It answered the purpose for automobile travel, but from Lepraux to St. George, the people who pay the taxes live along the shore, the route is but twenty minutes longer by auto, and scenery is much more varied and really charming, and the people live there. The result has been that the Shore road, getting practically nothing from the government, went from bad by worse and remained in that condition. It was not treated our people right," and the minister readily saw the injustice and promised more consideration, saying "The object of our government is to serve the people, and the purpose of the money where it will benefit the people."

Bombing of German Towns Urged As Surest Way to Peace

Amsterdam, June 6.—"If the Allies want peace—soon—let them bomb German towns to a standstill." That was the declaration of a prominent Dutch citizen, who has just returned from Germany. "An extraordinary panic has resulted in the towns along the Rhine from the allied air raids," he said.

"Many persons have gone insane. Others have fled to the interior. The authorities are trying to prevent this exodus by issuing passports only in exceptional cases. "The Kaiser's headquarters were moved from Krucenac to Spa, because his staff was afraid he might be hit by a bomb."

"I HATE TO DO THIS," SAID U-BOATS CAPTAIN

Atlantic City, N. J., June 7.—The commander of the German U-boat which shelled and then sank the former Holland-American freighter Texel, now operated by the United States Shipping Board, sixty miles out from New York on the final leg of her seven-day trip from Porto Rico with a cargo of sugarcane Sunday afternoon, was a former commander of an American Line ship. This was learned here today from members of the Texel's crew who arrived late last night. "I hate to do this," he said. "I used to command an American liner, and I have some good friends among the commanders of American steamers. I commanded on big American liners before we started this feud, but was in war, so we will go right through with this little job."

DEFYING THE HUN'S GAS

Asphyxiating gases and mustard shells have no terrors for these French soldiers, who are "leading the Hun" 150 men, etc. That the position of the men is extremely hazardous is indicated by the fact that they are performing their duties while wearing gas masks.

Fredericton, June 6.—The directors of the St. John & Quebec Railway held an important meeting yesterday at which the principal question discussed was the progress of construction work. That this is not satisfactory was quite evident from the statement given out by the secretary-treasurer, E. S. Carter, today. He said that the directors, including the chief engineer, C. O. Foss, had made a personal visit of inspection about ten days ago over that portion of the road from Gagetown to Oak Point and were astonished to find that the contractors were making little or no progress with the exception of the rock out at Woodman's Point where Messrs. Longley and Inlis, sub-contractors under Kennedy and McDonald, were engaged in blasting out the balance of the rock required to be excavated.

Under the act, there are included perhaps 13,000 or 14,000 who were either found or were held for further examination or who are now on furlough for agricultural work. The net reinforcement actually made on the boys is estimated to be fully 60,000. The better and prompt results secured during the past months or so may now enable the government to give a little more elasticity to the new regulations insofar as agricultural workers are concerned whose drafting would actually mean decreased production. It would also seem that for the present at least there will be little likelihood of any call on the boys of nineteen years.

Athletics Are Unknown To Huns Absence Explains National Characteristics Education Different Schoolboys Get Their Exercise in Military-like Gymnastics-Beer-drinking Instead of Games when his 21st birthday arrives and he begins his military duties. Playing the Game. Dr. I. J. Kandel, a professor at Columbia, who writes on the subject in the New York Times, says that the sort of education enjoyed by Anglo-Saxons, in which games play so prominent a part, tends to develop personal initiative and a sense of fair play. For instance, we all thoroughly understand what is meant by "playing the game." The phrase would have no meaning whatever for a German. Nor do the games of Anglo-Saxons fall in inculcating some ideas of discipline. They teach each individual player that he must sacrifice himself for the sake of the team; they teach him to obey orders given by someone whose familiarity with the game entitles him to authority. To excel in a game it is necessary that temperance and moderation and clear living should be adhered to. They give each player an opportunity to develop his own individuality to the full. They promote quick thinking; they develop courage and tenacity of purpose. They are the very spring of the sentiment of fair play, which has been so noticeably lacking in the Germans.

German schoolboys have their gymnastics, they have also certain games, which would strike us as more in the nature of kindergarten exercises. When the student goes to his college he finds there are only two sports there. One is beer drinking, the other is duelling. The idea that duelling is a severe test of those who engage in it is an error. Some years ago there was a scandal in Germany by the discovery that half the freshman students who were expelled by exhibiting their scarred faces in public were not fire-eaters at all. They got their scars as a result of surgical operations which produced the maximum of gash with the minimum of pain for so much a scar. Duelling probably by law, and at any rate is the sport of the small minority of aristocratic students. Its only effect upon the masses is to give the Germans a sense of superiority to other human beings. In conclusion one might suggest that perhaps character is not so much modified by sport as sport is modified by character, and that the Germans as a race are incapable of engaging in the games that have been developed by the genius of the Anglo-Saxon race.

Most Damning And Damnable Record New Evidence of Hun's Plans For After War To Exploit Canada

$100,000,000 Corporation Formed for Purpose - Other Parts of Empire to be Parceled Out What the American Manufacturers' Record calls the most damning and damnable record of German wickedness ever discovered is the confession of August Thyssen, a German steel manufacturer of international renown, which has been reprinted by the Record in pamphlet form. It shows that in 1912 the Kaiser's plans for a world war had been so far advanced that he took into his confidence some of the great industrial and financial magnates of the Fatherland, explained to them his purpose and asked if they were prepared to finance it. He promised them that the war would be over in 1915, and in return for the loans he requested was willing to give them great tracts of territory and business opportunities in various parts of the British Empire. According to Thyssen his promises were specific. Certain famous English estates were definitely allotted to various German industrialists. Thyssen himself was promised 30,000 acres of land in Australia and a loan of $750,000 from the Deutsche Bank at 3 per cent to develop the property. A syndicate was formed for the exploitation of Canada with a capital of $100,000,000, half of which was to be supplied by the government.

MAJ. GEN. MEWBURN Minister of Militia and Defence in Canada

Some informed writers have declared that the war has proved a destroyer of reputations. This is true, but it has destroyed the reputations of men who could not rise to a great opportunity. It has destroyed the reputations of men who have had to step aside for younger and "inexperienced" men, who, by virtue of their youth and inexperience, were fitted to lead a war-pressed people out of the clough of despair to heights of victory. It has characterized the changed personnel of the higher commands in all the Allied and enemy countries, but in no place as in Canada has there been so few changes of men holding important positions, therefore the men who now occupy important positions must obviously be men gifted with initiative, resourcefulness, even imagination and personality, and most of the attributes that help make success. In this connection the most striking example in Canadian military and now political life, is Major-General S. C. Mewburn, minister of militia and defence. It can be safely stated that had any one suggested to Major-General Mewburn, say eighteen months ago, that ere the sun had set on the last day of November, 1917, he would be minister of militia, he would have laughed them to scorn, and General Mewburn would have done that because he is thoroughly human and dearly loves a joke-on the other fellow. He would have scorned such a suggestion because it was so inconceivable, yet everybody knows that he has jumped that tremendous gap between the assistant adjutant-general's office in Military District No. 2 to the minister of militia's office at Ottawa. People who do not know Major-General Mewburn will say that he is aggressive, pushful, self-assertive; he must have been otherwise he would not have landed where he did. Such is far from the facts. General Mewburn is quite the reverse. He is exceedingly modest and unobtrusive, unless something goes wrong because of some foolish subordinate who does not attend to duty, and then he can give vent to his wrath in stentorian tones. General Mewburn is a lawyer by profession. He has all the earmarks of a lawyer, he goes at his work like a lawyer who must do every-

HAVE YOU SEEN The TOOKE HOOK in Tooke Soft Collars The great offense of the Armenians is that they are Christians, and the German Kaiser uttered not one word of protest when the Moslem ally sought to destroy this Christian race. Fresh opportunity for Armenian slaughter in the Caucasus region has come to the Turks through this region. The Russian government, which yielded to Germany's demand and the Armenian National Council are now protesting against the wholesale slaughter of Armenians in the Caucasus by Turkish troops. Armenia furnished 100,000 soldiers to Russia in this war, and is still ready to offer an army of 150,000 to fight the Turks. We agree with Representative Little of Kansas that the United States could not spend $10,000,000 more wisely than in helping Armenia to get back into the war. Armenia looks to America not only to save her people from German and Turkish slavery, but also to save them from starving. Two new United States destroyers have been named after two United States sailors who have given their lives in action during the present war.

OPPOSED TO THE METRIC SYSTEM

The Manufacturers' Action Has Roused Interest

British Report Cited—Frederick A. Halsey Expresses Satisfaction at Action Taken by Convention in New York

(New York Evening Post.) Manufacturers and business men generally were much interested to-day in the action taken by the National Association of Manufacturers at the close of its three-day convention at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in condemning the movement to introduce the metric system.

Whereas, The agitation for the adoption of the metric system has been revived and is being vigorously conducted, and whereas, The British Committee on Commercial and Industrial Policy After the War, which voted against adopting the system in Great Britain...

Resolved, That we endorse the work of the American Institute of Weights and Measures in opposing the adoption of the metric system.

Agitated a Hundred Years. Frederick A. Halsey, Commissioner of the American Institute of Weights and Measures, 30 Vesey street, said that he was pleased with the action of the National Association of Manufacturers.

"The agitation for the adoption of the metric system in this country is more than a century old," said Mr. Halsey. "Various organizations for the promotion of the system have come and gone, the movement measured by the life of such organizations having had greater vitality in Great Britain than in this country."

In Great Britain, as in this country, the opening of the great war was a signal for a revival of the agitation under the assumption that at the close of the war the system would be of increased importance in connection with export trade.

Having given very full consideration to the subject, we are unable to recommend the compulsory adoption of the metric system in this country. In our opinion, it is absolutely certain that the anticipated uniformity could not be obtained for a very long period, if ever.

There is, further, the serious objection that if we introduced the above mentioned countries to change-over to the metric system, we should be surrendering to Germany the advantage which our manufacturers now enjoy over hers, both in their markets and our own.

In referring to these considerations, we have to point out that there is no unanimity even as to the theoretical merits of the metric system as compared with our own. The practical argument that its adoption is desirable in order to secure uniformity in the markets of the world has been shown to be unfounded. We are not satisfied by any evidence which has been brought before us that trade has actually been lost to this country owing to the fact that the use of the metric system is not compulsory.

It is often popularly supposed that the introduction of the metric system would render possible the immediate sweeping away of many complicated weights and measures. As we have already indicated, this belief is, in our opinion, wholly fallacious.

Resolved, That we endorse the work of the American Institute of Weights and Measures in opposing the adoption of the metric system.

Themselves Suffer Very Light Casualties — Great War Near Tendency — Germans Disguised as French

With the American Army in France, June 6.—(By the Associated Press)—Reports received here from Chateau Thierry are to the effect that the Americans in the fighting with the Germans killed a large number of the enemy and themselves suffered very light casualties.

Some of the Germans said they had been told that the Americans were not trained, but that they had found the Americans could shoot.

HOW OLD IS THE OCEAN?

(By-Bills.) How old is the ocean? Standing on the slope and looking out over the expanse of water, the ocean seems a fixed and eternal fact, but the sea had a beginning and will have an end.

The first copies of the final report of this committee have just reached this country, the subject of the metric system being discussed in Chapter X under the heading, Weights and Measures.

There is, further, the serious objection that if we introduced the above mentioned countries to change-over to the metric system, we should be surrendering to Germany the advantage which our manufacturers now enjoy over hers, both in their markets and our own.

Training Them For Civil Life

Curative Workshops of British Hospitals Cure Men and Fit Them to Earn Living

(By Captain H. B. C. Pollard.) The foreigner who visits the great London military hospitals is invariably astonished at the medical and surgical perfection attained, but he is even more impressed by the methods by which some of the larger institutions prepare a partially disabled soldier for his civilian life.

horing (to them) than the usual routine of hospital life. Numbers of these men are recovering from limb injuries which call for protracted convalescence before the full use of the limb can be regained. Hospital treatment in the ordinary way means long periods of idleness, detrimental to the habit of industry, so natural to the majority of workers. But at the modern hospitals the patient is encouraged to enter the workshops as soon as possible, in order that his mind shall be diverted from dwelling upon his injury, and that his muscles shall be exercised automatically by his chosen task.

Most men have some kind of craft or hobby which leads them to select either the carpenter shop, the engineering or electric works, or the shops where leather working and boot-making are carried on. The man without a craft now being applied for the benefit of neurasthenic or "shell-shock" cases, for the curative effect of work is beneficial in healing the mind no less than the body.

ments of a vast institution dealing with tens of thousands of cases annually, are provided by the hospital workshops themselves. The men are happy, contented, and keen about their work, for all the feelings of doubt and fear concerning their future struggle in life, handicapped by a partially disabled limb, disappear as they recognize that they can work and work well.

Recovery is invariably hastened by this relief of mental stress, and it is by no means unusual to find men who assert that they can do better work than they were formerly capable of doing. In practice the curative workshops system is not only applied to patients who have suffered amputation, but to all leave permanent disabilities or ill effects. In a minor degree the same system is now being applied for the benefit of neurasthenic or "shell-shock" cases, for the curative effect of work is beneficial in healing the mind no less than the body.

royal charter to certain men who were pledged to act lawfully and keep the peace. But Lobengula complained presently that when his cattle were stolen without any cause, shot dead 30 of his army whom he sent to fetch them back. His letter went on: "The white men told my people that they had bought the country and the people who live in it. Your majesty, what I want to know from you is if people can be bought at any price?"

DR. JOWETT'S FAREWELL. (Dr. Jowett in his farewell sermon at Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church.) "I am returning to my homeland on the clear call of duty. No soldier ever heard the bugle more imperatively than the summons comes to me. I am too old to fight with material weapons in our sacred cause, and I can make no contribution to our material strength. But there are forces beside those which are supplied by munitions. The moral and spiritual forces of a nation are, after all, its mightiest equipment. If the morale of a people suffers, if its ideals grow dim, if its enthusiasm lose its fire, if its spiritual vision become faint, if any deadly weariness creep into its temper, all the munitions in the world will not secure its triumph; and, indeed, if such a nation were to snatch a victory, it would be devoid of ultimate worth and glory. The spiritual food of a people, its moral resources, the deep wells of virtue and godly passion in which alone the unshrinkable springs of endurance can be found—these are the vital things which are going to count in the next few months or years."

LOBENGULA AND VICTORIA.

More of King Lobengula's quaint letters to Queen Victoria were read to the judicial committee of the privy council the other day.

The question at issue is the ownership of certain lands in Africa captured by the British from Lobengula. A letter from the "Great Queen," as she was referred to, was read, telling Lobengula that it was impossible to exclude white men from any place where gold was to be found. To avoid trouble by different parties of white men going to the country for gold, the queen had granted a
