HARRISON'S INAUGURAL.

Not Written to Please Anglo-Americans.

(BY TELEGRAPH TO THE GAZETTE.)

LONDON, March 5.—The Times doubts whether President Harrison's proposed new departure relative to the naturalization laws would be advantageous, either for America or for the rest of the world.

Mr. Blaine's foreign policy, it says, appears prominently in the address. The general assertion regarding coinage, duties and harbors is probably intended to cover both the Senate and the Chamberlain. In the department of finance the Times thinks President Harrison's views are not very clear.

The Daily Telegraph says there is nothing at all in the address to excite alarm. The fact that Harrison is so well disposed to deal with foreign affairs is a calm and equitable spirit will be remarked with satisfaction by every country in the old world with which America has friendly relations and occasional differences.

The Chronicle says the address will be searched in vain for anything calculated to excite the sympathies of Englishmen. The Standard says: The message on the whole is disappointing. Harrison was under obligation to strike a reasonable chord. Some of the phrases suggest Whitman, but it is not reasonable to credit the president with the inspiration of Whitman's side of the Atlantic. If it were adopted with any view to appreciation of our poet, it is his master.

All the Unionist dailies make a point of Harrison's references to law and order as a lesson to England on the Irish question.

AGRICULTURE.

Which is not flattering to the Irish.

(BY TELEGRAPH TO THE GAZETTE.)

BELMONT, March 5.—The North German Gazette, referring to what it calls the remarkable contrast between the utterances of American newspapers published in England and those of German American papers, charges the former with bringing groundless accusations against Germany, and placing the events in Samoa, in such a light as to make Klein's criminality appear as heroic.

While the German American press points out the hostility to Germany in the American press, it is also full of
