CANADIANS SATISFIED ON WATER SITUATION

Ontario Hydro Representative Talks Over Progress at Washington.

1,000 FEET NEEDED

U. S. Committee Realizes That Chicago Requires But 1,000 Feet of Water.

Special to The Advertiser.

Washington, May 3.—At the conclusion of this hearing of the house, rivers and harbors committee on the bills to legalize the withdrawal of 10,000 cubic feet per second of water from the lakes by Chicago, The Advertiser's correspondent asked the representative of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, Arthur V. White, if he thought the present condition satisfactorily supported the hopes of the Canadian delegation. Mr. White replied that the course of events had been satisfactory, and he added:

"The principal strength of Canada's position with resard to the objection to the proposed legalizing of Chicago's abstraction of water from the Great Lakes lies in the fact that the opponents in the United States to the Chicago bills are such a unit in their opposition and in the further fact that the rivers and harbors committee never loses sight of the feature of their work, which confines their recommendations chiefly to navigation.

"The committee has before it a report of the United States war department engineers, that one thousand feet per second will provide for such Chicago and Illinois river navigation, as the war department engineers recommend. This report the committee frequently cited as authoritative, and asked witnesses to demonstrate why the recommendation of such expert navigation engineers as those of the war department should be set aside. It is doubtful if the efforts made by the sponsors of the bills to answer this question will carry much weight, because of the undoubted competency of the war department engineers and their superiority as experts to pass upon the requirements for river and harbor improvements."

The Canadian delegation have returned to their homes as the commission adjourned until May 8.

Those attending included President Cosgrave, K. O'Higgins, minister of home affairs; Desmond Fitzgerald, minister of foreign affairs; Deputy Eamon J. The ceremony concluded with the sounding of the "Last Post."

FOUNDED IN 1560

Located in Fleet Street Ever Since, It Is Full of Historic Associations.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, May 3.—Child & Co., the oldest private bank in England, and perhaps in the world, is to be absorbed by Glyn, Mills & Co. in accordance with the will of the eighth Earl of Jersey, senior partner, who died on Dec. 21.

Child's Bank was founded about the year 1560, has occupied the site of its present offices in Fleet street ever since, and is full of historic associations. Oliver Cromwell, Samuel Pepys, Horace Walpole, the poet Dryden, Charles II. and his famous paramour Nell Gwynn were among the many prominents who had accounts at the bank, which is identical with "Tellson's" in Dickens' "Tale of Two Cities."

The connection with the bank of the Earls of Jersey can be traced to two romantic elopements. The tenth Earl of Westmorland, who died in 1841, ran away with the daughter of the banker Child, the couple being married at Gretna Green. Their daughter similarly eloped with the young Earl of Jersey, and the Jerseys ever since have been partners in the banking business.

The latest balance sheet of Child & Co. showed deposits of £3,000,000. Combined with Glyn's, they will exceed £30,000,000.

MAYOR'S SECRETARY WILL START MONDAY

Miss Jenny Patterson Appointed to Position at City Hall.

Miss Jenny Patterson has been appointed secretary in the mayor's office at the city hall, it was announced this morning. She will commence her duties Monday.

During the past few days Miss Patterson has been temporarily employed in the city tax collector's office. She comes to the city's employ very highly recommended from the Bank of Montreal.

It is Mayor Wenige's contention that the mayor's office should be more than an office for the mayor alone, but should be, in fact, an information bureau for the ratepayers generally, and by the same token the mayor's stenographer should be a full-time secretary. Provision was made in the estimates for this innovation at the city hall.

The mayor has concluded that Miss Patterson will prove an excellent choice as one admirably qualified to meet the general public.

McQuarrie was buried up to the neck and for nearly a round of the clock watched fellow-employees frantically working to effect his escape. When extricated he was rushed to the hospital, where it was found he had sustained no serious injuries. Two companions escaped when the fall occurred.

COW ONCE WORTH $50,000, OWNER COLLECTS ONLY $750

Associated Press Despatch.

Sacramento, Cal., May 3.—The owners of Tillie Alcarita, famous milch cow, killed because she had foot and mouth disease, will receive $750 state compensation, although the animal once was worth more than $50,000 and had produced calves which sold for as much as $61,000 each. Tillie no longer was a breeder, and it was said her value principally was advertising and sentimental. An insurance policy of $25,000 recently was permitted to expire.

KIWANIANS TO SUPPORT REDUCTION OF CABINET

Sweeping Changes To Be Advocated in Resolutions From Committee.

MEMBER FOR 60,000

Would Abolish Duplication of Federal and Provincial Department.

One member of parliament for every 60,000 population.
Reduce the cabinet to seven or eight members.
Consolidation of civil service into no more than five departments.
Reduce number of civil servants.
Abolish duplication of provincial and federal departments.
Reduce direct taxation on industry.
Apply more modern efficiency methods in tax collection.

These and other sweeping changes will be advocated in resolutions forthcoming from the Kiwanis committee on public affairs, as the direct result of the movement launched at yesterday's sesion to induce the federal government to amend its system in various forms.

The Rotary, Lions, and similar clubs and organizations throughout the country will be asked to co-operate in this fight, the point being stressed that the move is non-political and not to be regarded as a direct attack upon the party in power but to organizations of all political shades, governments past and present.

Different resolutions will be submitted by the various members of the committee, from which, will be drafted, it is proposed, the most suitable or the most suitable will be perhaps, amended to suit the wishes of the majority of those interested.

When final approval is forthcoming, copies of the resolution will be sent to kindred organizations for support and then forwarded to the authorities at Ottawa.

DRAKE SEES NO NEED TO OMIT RELATIVES

Would Give Fireman's Position to Son of Deputy Chief.

Deputy Fire Chief Scott's son should be given a job on the fire department, providing he is able to qualify, argues Ald. Gordon Drake, who cannot agree, he stated today, with the recommendation in the Brittain report that there be as little hiring of relatives as possible.

"What difference would it make, just as long as he is competent," Ald. Drake inquires. "We have more than one from one family now on the force. There's Chief Aitken's brother, for instance. I can't see anything wrong with the principle."

Ald. Drake scores those members of the city council who would shelve the Brittain report; at least that portion of it involving the survey of the fire department.

"We must go through with it now" he warned. "The report certainly cost the citizens plenty."

JURY HAS PRONOUNCED ON MITCHENER DEATHS

Canadian Press Despatch.

Arcola, Sask., May 3.—The uncovering of the mystery poison as arsenic was the only development disclosed at the inquest here yesterday into the deaths of Robert and Katherine Mitchener, who died last week following an attack by poison after the morning meal.

Eight other members of the Mitchener family became ill after the meal, but have since recovered. The coroner's jury yesterday brought in an open verdict, which stated the deaths were caused by arsenic poison contained in food, but from what source it came or by what means it entered the food cannot be determined."

'BORROWED' MOTOR RUG GETS BRAVE 30 DAYS

Cecil Cady Informs the Court That His Knees Were Chilly.

WENT TO FEET

Started To Run When Officer Arrived To Investigate.

Cecil Cady, a young brave of twenty from the Muncey Indian reserve will spend the next thirty days in the county jail for "borrowing" an automobile robe from the car of J. E. Bickell, parked on the Market Square last night.

Cady told the magistrate, he wanted the robe to cover his knees as he sat in the car of a friend, Mr. Burch, also from the reserve.

"It was cold, that's why I took it" stated Cady.

"You had no reason to steal it" replied the court.

"I didn't take it to really steal it, I was going to put it back" declared the prisoner.

Crown Attorney Albert M. Judd stated Constable Snell saw Cady take something out of a car and move on to another one. When he approached the man, he ran and the constable proved to be the better runner. The rug was found hidden under the hood of Burch's car.

Chief Birtell advanced the information that there had been a number of thefts from cars on the market during the last two weeks.

"Was Burch with you the time you stole some automobile tires?" the crown attorney asked.

"Yes."

"You were found guilty and sentence suspended?" again queried Mr. Judd.

"Yes"

"There is no justification for suspended sentence now" declared the magistrate. "Thirty days in jail."

U. S. FLIER PASSED CHIGNICK LAGOON

Associated Press Despatch.

False Pass, Alaska, May 3.—Definite information that Major Frederick L. Martin, who has been missing since 11:10 a.m. Wednesday, passed the cannery at Chignik Lagoon in the direction of Portage Bay, just north of the Shumagin Islands, was reported by an overland searching party when it returned here last night.

Belief that Major Martin was forced down by a strong gale which arose shortly after he departed from Chignik toward the Bering Sea resulted in orders being broadcast for vessels to "comb immediately the Bering Sea shore line from Dutch Harbor, Unalaska Island, to Unangashik," north of Chignik.

LIQUOR BILL IS AIMED TO CONCILIATE ALL FORCES

Labor Opinion Is Marshalled to Support Bishop of Oxford's Measure.

EXPENDITURE LESS

Associated Press Despatch.

London, May 3.—The chancellor of the exchequer's figures with regard to the consumption of liquor in Great Britain, while admittedly prodigious, do not seem to unduly alarm the reasonable advocates of temperance. The expenditure of £6,000,000 a week on liquor at any rate is nearly £500,000 less than the amount spent in 1922. The reduction in the price of beer has resulted in an increase in consumption of three per cent, while the consumption of "spirits" has dropped seven per cent.

The Guardian, a weekly church paper, notes with qualified satisfaction that there is an advance of seven per cent in wine drinking and that this probably means that there is less whiskey-drinking than formerly. It adds: "But when all is said, the country which still contains more than 1,000,000 unemployed persons has no business to spend over £300,000,000 a year upon liquor."

While practically every member of the present ministry is an abstainer, the members of the Labor party as a whole show a disposition to go slow on advocating increased restrictions on the liquor trade. Nevertheless Labor opinion is being marshalled diligently to support a bill

PERILOUS TRIP OVER RIVER ENDS IN ARREST OF ALIENS

U. S. Immigration Inspectors Catch Five Crossing From Canada.

IN POLICE COURT

Associated Press Despatch.

Niagara Falls, May 3.—Five aliens, one a woman, were brought across the upper river from Canada in a rowboat and landed on the United States shore a mile and a half above the falls early today, only to fall into the hands of immigration officers who were patrolling the river bank. The five are lodged in police headquarters here today awaiting deportation, and Joseph Snyder, 65 years old, of Chippawa, Ont., charged by the inspectors with bringing them into this country, is held on a charge of smuggling aliens. He will be arraigned before a federal commissioner today.

The trip across the upper river last night was a perilous one. The night was dark and many ice floes were being carried by the swift current down to the rapids above the falls, which start less than half a mile below where the quintet was landed. If the boat had been carried slightly west of its course by the current it probably would have been swept into the rapids and over the falls, the police said.

The aliens held are Joseph Bluzwicz and his wife Barbara, Polish, and Cruise Noman, Martin Cawley and James Halson, all Irishmen. All were well dressed and well supplied with money. They said they had been turned back at the bridges several times. Immigration men say that the price per head for smuggling aliens across the upper river is $100. On the lower river, where the danger is less, the price is $20 to $50 per head.

75 PARTIES APPEAR IN GERMAN ELECTION SUNDAY

GERMAN ELECTION SUNDAY ATTRACTS WORLD INTEREST

RESULTS TUESDAY

Associated Press Despatch.

Berlin, May 3.—The German nationalists at their campaign for the general election tomorrow are making a determined eleventh hour attack on the Socialists for precipitating the revolution of November 1918. They threaten parliamentary investigation and punishment of the "red traitors" whom they charge with "stabbing the army in the back" inciting the naval mutiny at Kiel and staging the revolution throughout Germany with the aid of Russian rubles. A score of old army leaders, among them General Von Hutier and General Von Kosch, are broadcasting an appeal to their former comrades urging them to work for the nationalist ticket which demands renunciation of the Treaty of Versailles as well as other "humiliating and degrading demands from our former foes."

While the German Chauvinists are hewing close to their familiar political demands in the fight for votes, the middle parties—comprising the Socialists, clericals, people's party and Democrats—are carrying out a "gentlemen's agreement" whereby they are tacitly abstaining from attacking one another in the course of their campaign, centering the election issue on the adoption and execution of the experts' report as a sure cure for Germany's reparation ailments. The Democrats, clericals and people's party now are joined with the radicals in a strongly galvanized front defence of German's acceptance of the experts' report in which they have secured the outspoken and decisive support of the German industrial interests.

The present campaign suggests a political "witches' Sabbath" in that no less than 75 parties are represented in the 23 factions appearing on the official ballot. Unnumbered local, civic, political, economic and religious organizations have entered the field, thus complicating the official count of the ballots and their distribution on the basis of the proportional system obtaining in Germany.

The federal election commission in all probability will not be in a position to indicate even approximate results before Tuesday as the country is divided into 35 electoral precincts, each of which must take a laborious count of the variegated party ballots.

Chancellor Marx, interviewed by Germania, is quoted as declaring that, contrary to expectation, the election campaign was passing in perfect order. The German people, he said, realized that the first essential was for all to pull together to improve the country's financial and economic situation and restore its currency, as the domestic difficulties could only be solved when the reparation problem was out of the way. The chancellor appealed to the electors to vote for the moderate parties, which he declared were the only ones able to save Germany from the danger of greater misfortunes.

QUAINT OLD-WORLD FOLKS PICTURED IN GLEN WORKS

SPRING DISPLAY

An art exhibition which holds unusual interest for Londoners is being displayed at 399 Richmond street by Edward Glen, the versatile and talented local artist. More than 100 paintings of various themes and diversified treatments have been hung in the building, and citizens may put in an interesting and entertaining hour or more inspecting them.

The spring display of Mr. Glen's work may be seen every day until May 14. Some powerful effects of light and shade have been executed by Mr. Glen and the exhibition embraces every detail of treatment in which the London painter specializes.

Pastoral and water scenes abound in the Glen exhibition. The artist spent several years in Normandy and Brittany, and the influence of the sylvan atmosphere and quaint, picturesque customs of old-world folk is strikingly apparent in his artistic achievements. Foremost among the pictures is one of a sleeping Spanish boy which is rich in texture and eminently fascianting by reason of sombre color tones employed. The impression of fatigue and languor is here splendidly carried out.

A reflection of Raphael's genius is seen in a decorative picture featuring a symbolical figure of a woman nursing children. Here too, the deeper colors predominate and a distinctly tranquil and pleasing impression is given.

One of the most popular of Mr. Glen's paintings is that of a wounded war hero being cared for by one of the enemy. In this Mr. Glen has obviously sought to memorialize the essential humanity of the rough soldier who, stripped of the destructive instinct for the moment, gives expression to the Christlike spirit which is inherent in all men. It is a gripping picture, combining pathos and drama with a high degree of reality.

The smaller paintings breathe the atmosphere of French provincialism. On viewing them, the peasant homes of Jean and Yvette assume a vivid and startling familiarity to those who have toured and delighted in the unspoiled complacence of a land only vaguely touched as yet by the commercialism of 20th century civilization.

These less imposing paintings are little poems in colors which soothe the mind and lend a mild stimulant to the imagination.

who won a decisive victory in the Ohio primaries over W. G. McAdoo in the contest for the Democratic presidential nomination.

REVENTLOW WILL KEEP DOWN WOMEN

Pan-German Leader Declares Female Element Must Not Rule.

Associated Press Despatch.

Berlin, May 2.—The state is an institute of men and will remain a manly institution, despite the efforts of modern women to get the upper hand, Count Von Reventlow, Pan-German leader and candidate for the new Reichstag in Schleswig, who is opposing Count Von Bernstorff, declared in a campaign speech today.

"German women have had a taste of politics and like it," he declared, "and now have dreams of becoming a dominating power. But we do not want to see them rule Germany and have no idea of permitting them to oust the men as the governors."

Harking back to the war days and the German U boat campaign, Martha Boje, in the Berlin Zeitung Am Mittag, answers the Count and reminds the women voters how a "manly" war brought nothing but misery to Germany. She urges the women to show their power with the ballot.

LIQUOR BILL IS AIMED TO PLEASE ALL PARTIES

introduced in the House of Lords by the Bishop of Oxford, a measure that is an ingenious attempt at the conciliation of the various schools of temperance thought.

The bill is calculated to prove attractive to the advocates of local option by proposing to leave to the various localities the question as to how the liquor trade is to be controlled, while the advocates of state ownership are induced to support the bill because it proposes a modified form of public ownership, and the prohibitionists may be beguiled by reason of the bill, providing for the gradual acquisition of licensed properties—until the dog, being fed with bits of his own tail, has eaten himself entirely.

REPORT KU KLUX KLAN ORGANIZING IN VANCOUVER

Canadian Press Despatch

Vancouver, B. C., May 3.—Police here are investigating reports that organization is going forward in Vancouver for a Canadian branch of the Ku Klux Klan. It is said that the organizer here comes from a city in the middle western states.

The first step toward entering the Klan is said to be the payment by the candidate of $10. On the date set the would-be klansman goes to a hotel room, where in the presence of three masked, hooded and gowned figures he is initiated with all the weird pomp of the klan and bound by a terrible oath of loyalty and secrecy.

HUNDREDS APPLY TO SEE LIBRARY

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, May 2.—Hundreds of applications from scholars, research students and the idly curious for permission to visit the magnificent Pierpont Morgan Library in East Thirty-sixth street have deluged the staff since Mr. Morgan on Feb. 15, as a memorial to his father, turned the library and its contents over to a board of trustees for the use in perpetuity of scholars.

The waiting list already is so long that no further applications, no matter how meritorious, can be considered until late summer, according to Miss Belle da Costa Greene, the director. Nearly every section of the nation is represented in the list which is the result of careful elimination of sight-seeing curiosity seekers and of granting of applications to those intent upon serious utilization of the resources offered by the books and manuscripts of the $7,000,000 collection.

The smallness of the library and the great value of its contents and decorations make it impossible to admit many persons at a time, while general visitors must be barred entirely to save the treasures from possible accidental injury.

ESKIMO LADS SHOW ABILITY AS STUDENTS

Associated Press Despatch.

Juneau, Alaska, May 3.—The steamer Boxer, of the United States bureau of education, was here recently preparing to go south after her first season of service as a floating industrial school. Throughout the winter the Boxer carried 19 students, Eskimo lads who had distinguished themselves in the seventh and eighth grades of the government schools near their homes.

Eight of the students came from the country between Point Barrow and Wainwright Inlet, the farthest north of all United States land, and the rest from the Panhandle or southeastern Alaska. The young Eskimos were taught navigation, gas engineering and radio telegraphy. They all proved good students, reported C. W. Hawkesworth, superintendent for the bureau.

BUENOS AIRES PRESIDENT NOW FACING BIG CRISIS

Associated Press Despatch.

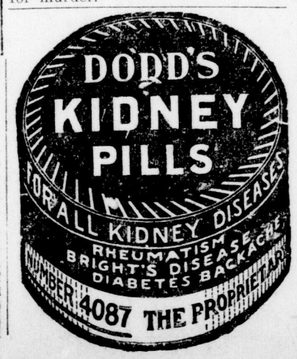
Buenos Aires, May 3.—President De Alvear was faced today with the alternative of postponing application of the new pension law or accepting the consequences of a nation-wide strike. The law provides for the deduction of five per cent from salaries to be applied to a pension fund, the employers contributing a like amount.

President De Alvear, while represented as acknowledging the imperfections of the new law, has taken the stand that, as it is on the statute books, he is powerless to alter it and obliged to see that it is enforced.

CRIMINAL JUDGE AGAINST DEATH PENALTY ABOLITION

Associated Press Despatch.

London, May 3.—Mr. Justice Avory, one of the most experienced of British judges, who specializes in criminal rather than in civil work, told a Yorkshire grand jury yesterday that after 50 years experience he would unhesitatingly assert that abolition of capital punishment would lead to a disastrous increase in crime. Men who held that the extreme penalty had no effect could never have witnessed, much less partaken in a trial for murder.



FIND 3-YEAR-OLD DEAD ON STREET

Police Are Looking For Clue —Believe Lad Was Struck by Car.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Guelph, Ont., May 2.—Early this morning the dead body of Angelo Beletti, the 3-year-old son of Angelo Beletti, was found on Alice street, near his home. There is considerable mystery, how the lad came to his death, no person seeing the boy on the streets nor hearing any cry from him.

Medical examination disclosed the fact that the boy's neck was broken, indicating that he must have been struck by a motorcar or other fast-moving vehicle. There were no passersby on the street at that hour, and complete mystery envelops the manner of death. The police are busy upon the case, but have not the slightest clue on which to work. Alice street is a much travelled thoroughfare all day long.

Ingersoll, May 2.—A fine of $25 and costs has been paid by Mrs. H. Our Inquisitive Reporter yesterday asked this question of four people chosen at random:

"Does it seem to you that the study of vertebratepaloontology affects to any pronounced degree, in the light of astro-physical phenomena, the established periodicity appertaining by and large to nationally observed holidays?"

Mrs. Thomas Townsend, housewife: "Probably you're right, but I think indirect lighting is much more artistic for the small home."

Tommy Briggs, messenger boy: "Better make it a night letter, mister. Ninety cents for fifty words."

Dwight Hillyer, merchant: "I know just how you feel. Had the same trouble with my first car, so traded it off for a motorcycle."

Red Wilson, waiter: "Say, if I want a third degree, Bo, I'll have the district attorney do it. Get me?"

Appreciation.

She was at the symphony concert.
Never before had she heard such exquisite tones.
The music was of Tschaikowsky.
It was at the last note of the Pastorale from "Manifred" that she clutched at her bosom, gazed around the audience with frantic eyes, and shrieked shrilly.

"A true artist!" breathed the musician as he bent over her.

But that's the way that hens are made:

Said the duck: "Your chances, too, are dim, of ever being in the swim."

"FLEXLUME" ELECTRIC SIGNS

"SERVICE"—Another Point of "Flexlume" Superiority.

IN BUYING electric signs, it is not simply a matter of price—though price is important—nor is it wholly a matter of superior workmanship and design.

Has the manufacturer facilities for fulfilling his contract? Has he an organization capable of handling the many details of erection and maintenance?

In the matter of service, as in the matter of price and quality, Flexlume superiority can be easily demonstrated.

Not only are Flexlumes built in the largest factory in the world devoted to the manufacture of electric signs exclusively, but they have the backing of a service organization which is more than nation-wide.

Flexlume Electric Signs have a place in your advertising campaign. Let us explain how they will "tie" all your publicity right to your door. Let us send you a sketch showing your trademark in the form of a Flexlume and give you an estimate of cost in whatever quantity you could use.

CONSTANT HEADACHES and DIZZINESS

It is hard to struggle along with a head that aches and pains all the time, and in nine cases out of ten the persistent headaches are due to some derangement of the stomach, liver or bowels.

Undoubtedly, the cause must be removed before permanent relief may be had.

Burdock Blood Bitters removes the cause of the headaches, as it acts on every organ of the body, and strengthens, purifies and regulates the whole system.

Mrs. Peter Curran, 27 Morrison street, Sydney, N.S., writes: "I have been troubled for the last five years with constant headaches and dizziness. After trying several remedies, which I found to be of no avail, Burdock Blood Bitters was recommended to me.

"B. B. B. did me a world of good, and I cannot praise this remedy enough."

LIBERALS CLAIM EIGHTY LABORITES KILLED P. R. BILL

Declare Vindictive Members Defeated Proportional Representation Measure.

NO OBLIGATION NOW

Associated Press Despatch.

London, May 3.—Members of the Liberal party today made no effort to conceal their mortification and anger over the rejection in the House of Commons yesterday of the proportional representation electoral bill, which they declared was due to the vindictive action of about 80 Laborites.

These members of the government party were declared by the Liberals to have opposed the bill in resentment against what they regarded as the attempt of Mr. Asquith, the Liberal leader, to dictate to their party through his recent "ultimatum" to Premier MacDonald. The Liberal newspapers today are bitter in their comment, implying that when the budget, which the Liberals will support, is disposed of, it will be war to the knife between the two parties.

"The Liberals now are clearly exempt from any obligation to keep the government in power, and will exert themselves to safeguard their own position and emphasize the points of difference between their own policy and that of the Labor party," says the Westminster Gazette.

"The only possible effect of the division is to strain still further the relations between the two parties," says the Daily News, adding: "The result of a complete or of even a partial breakdown of the Liberal-Labor understanding can only be a Conservative victory in the general election, which is not likely to be long deferred."

The political correspondent of the Daily Chronicle says the possibility of more effective co-operation between the Liberals and Laborites has now receded to the background.

It is announced that the Liberals will meet again next week to consult on their future action, and, according to some lobby talk last night, they intend to make it hot for the Laborites.

SOME PAYING TAXES.

Former Accountant Temporarily Takes Assistant Tax Collector's Work.

C. C. McDougall, formerly accountant at the market branch of the Bank of Montreal, was placed temporarily at work this morning as assistant tax collector at the city hall.

City Treasurer James Bell stated that he would in all probability remain on duty, pending definite action by the members of the finance committee, who have directed him to submit a tabulated statement of the two dozen or more applications for that post received during recent weeks.

In the meanwhile the city treasurer instructed Mr. McDougall to come into the tax collecting department today under Tax Collector Houghton and familiarize himself with the work. Although the members of the committee have taken no definite action, it was unofficially intimated several days ago that the recommendation to appoint Mr. McDougall would be accepted.

Mr. McDougall was recently moved as accountant of the market branch of the Montreal Bank to take charge of the Muirkirk branch. He retired from the institution, however, as he did not care to leave London.

The leader of the group, which will leave this country in July, will be Edward Lawson, first Fellow in Landscape Architecture at the American Academy in Rome, and now assistant professor of landscape architecture at Cornell University.

SONGS NOW FORM BASIS OF CLEVER ADVERTISING

A veryk famous and, at the same time, very cynical writer has advanced the bon mot that "a public man is never truly great until the cartoonists deem him worthy of caricature." In similar vein, the famous Henry Ford is said to have stated that he did not care what newspapers, cartoonists, vaudeville performers and song writers said about the Ford car as long as they mentioned the name; it was the advertising he wanted. A number of lilting, tilting, whistlable songs have lately formed the basis of a clever advertising campaign. Using such favorites as "Last Night on the Back Porch," "Cut Yourself a Piece of Cake," "Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean," "Yes, We Have No Bananas" and "That Old Gang of Mine," and many others, the parodies are clever enough to remind one of MILLBANK Cigarettes whenever the songs are song or played. b

The Motor-Wise and Money-Wise are turning to the Knight

Men who have driven different makes of cars and who have learned what to look for, are turning to the Willys-Knight. They have tired of annually trading in their old cars for new ones—and have made up their minds finally to own a car they can keep and enjoy for years.

Years only season the Willys-Knight. The longer you drive it the more you are proud of it. The wonderful Willys-Knight sleeve-valve engine is quiet as a whisper—and it actually improves with use!

Willys-Knight owners report 50,000 miles and more without ever a mechanic touching the engine. You may never want to drive all over the map, as many Willys-Knight owners do—but it is a mighty big satisfaction to own a car with an engine that has never been known to wear out. Certainly a wonderful investment!

There are seven beautiful Willys-Knight models, ranging from the roadster with its long, graceful, sweeping lines to the sedans, distinctive and luxurious, each priced within reach of the man of moderate means.

FINE PROGRESS IS MADE IN YEAR BY BOYS' BOARD

F. G. McAllister Is Elected Chairman of Board at Meeting Last Night.

COMPETITIONS KEEN

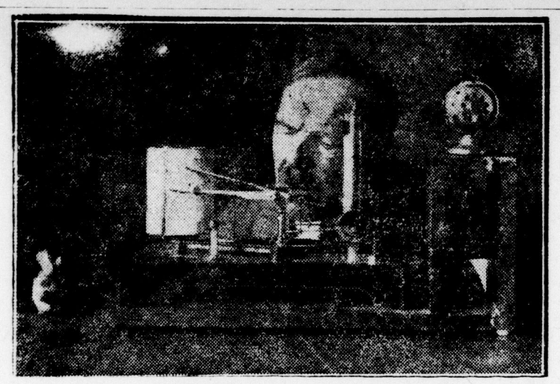
The Boys' Work Board, Y. M. C. A., held its annual meeting last ngiht at the Blue Dragon tearooms. Reports of the year's work were given by the chairman and secretary, which showed that a very intensive program had been carried on. The feature of this year's work has been the great interest shown on the badge achievement. One thousand one hundred and six badges have been reported to the secretary. Quite a number of badges have been won which no report has gone through for.

The all-round efficiency contest has been the keenest that the "Y" has ever had. The Trail Ranger competition between the Pilots of St. Andrew's and Gordons of Dundas Centre has been exceptionally close, the Pilots receiving a grand total of 4,509 with thirteen boys in their group, making an average of 347 per boy; the Gordons receiving 4,420, with fourteen boys in their group, making an average of 316 per boy. In the Tuxis section, the Olympics of Knox Presbyterian Church received 3,981 points, with twelve boys in their group, making their percentage 332 per boy.

Election of officers for the new board was held and resulted as follows: Honorary chairman, F. G. McAlister; chairman, J. J. McWilliam; vice-chairman, B. S. Scott; secretary, W. H. Spearman; councillors, Rev. F. W. K. Harris, Rev. E. W. Jewitt, Rev. H. B. Storey, H. R. Franks and S. S. Hudgell.

It was decided to hold the closing C. S. E. T. banquet on Tuesday night, May 20, and the C. S. E. T. athletic meet will be held in two sections, one section comprising the groups in London South and London East and the other section London North and Central. The meets will be held on June 5 and 6.

Rev. T. Floyd Holland addressed the meeting and pointed out the importance of extending C. S. E. T. work amongst the boys of the city. He cited some very interesting facts, showing where boys' work had greatly helped the lives of some, who had risen from low positions in the community to real leadership.



WEIGHING THE BREATH.

Professor Alexander George McAdie, director of the Harvard Lookout, is pictured here breathing into his device, by means of which he determines the weight of a person's breath. Science says that the real weight in any person's breath is determined upon the amount of vapor given off with each pulmonary relaxation. The McAdie device is known as the psychrometer or chill measurer, somewhat resembling a thermometer, barometer and scale, incased in a small cabinet. By means of this device, Prof. McAdie weighs the water vapor in the breath which comes from man, and which may be seen on a cold day like a cloud of smoke. Prof. McAdie measured the collective breaths of 200 students attending his lectures and determined the weight at 360 pounds.

News From City Churches

HALE ST. CHOIR.

Following the weekly practice last night the choir of Hale Street Methodist Church held its annual meeting and election of officers. A word picture of the activities of the past year given by the secretary, Mrs. M. Stevenson, detailed a splendid record, both socially and in the development of the choir services. The popular president, Mr. George Poad, who has admirably filled his office during the past year, automatically resigned, and Mr. Arthur Dempsey was elected his successor, with Mr. Allen White as vice-president. Mrs. M. Stevenson was returned by acclamation to the office of secretary, and was complimented also on the accuracy and faithfulness of her work during the past year. Miss Mary Bossence was elected treasurer and Mrs. George Yull appointed by acclamation to the office of press correspondent. Members of the executive are the following: Mrs. Bradt, Miss Eva Coulke, Mr. George Poad, Mr. J. Shepherd. A special musical feature also will be the trio selections by the Misses Jean Forester, Hilda Reavely, and Edith Talbot.

Miss Manton was the guest and speaker of the evening, telling of her experiences as a pioneer nurse among the new Canadians in Vita, Manitoba in an exceptionally interesting manner. Excellent reports of the past year's work were given by the secretary, Mrs. W. Clarence Galbraith, and in a short address by the retiring president, Mrs. K. P. R. Neville. The opening Bible lesson was read by Miss E. Watson and solos by Mrs. Ernest Tremeer were a delightful feature. Rev. W. L. DRAMATIC CLUB TO AID TUBERCULAR VETERANS

Benefit Performance of H.M.S. Pinafore Will Be Presented May 9 and 10.

The work of the Tubercular Veterans' Association is shortly to be aided by the dramatic association of St. James' Anglican Church, which is presenting benefit performances of "H. M. S. Pinafore," in the Majestic Theatre on Friday and Saturday, May 9 and 10. The entire proceeds will be devoted to the assistance of the tubercular veterans, in whose interest a branch of the association was formed at Byron Sanatorium.

J. T. Masters, president of the association, reports already a splendid interest on the part of the public in the forthcoming production, and the cause for which it is being given. Assurance is felt that the Majestic Theatre will be crowded for each performance.

"One of the chief aims of the T. V. A.," he states, "is to assist by every possible means in the fight against the spread of the disease and to correct false impressions which exist.

"The benevolent work of the organization is very extensive and finds a great field in caring for the immediate needs of those ex-service men who are not in receipt of pay or allowances or pension, owing to the fact that their claim was not recognized as a disability due to service. In this respect, the association is paying insurance premiums for a number of men who were financially unable to avail themselves of government insurance before the same expired."

In addition to this work, the association financed all men not on pay or allowances to visit their homes last Christmas and one man was sent as far as Halifax, N. S.

Baby's Own Tablets Always Kept on Hand

Mrs. David Gagne, St. Godfroy, Que., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my three little ones and have found them such an excellent medicine that I always keep them on hand and would strongly advise all other mothers to do the same thing." The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which quickly relieve constipation and indigestion, break up colds and simple fevers and promote that healthful refreshing sleep which makes the baby thrive. They are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.—Advt.

CITY AUDITOR SCORES CADET TRAINING CORPS

Henry B. Ashplant Opposes Practice of Government Grants.

What common enemy is in sight today, asks City Auditor Henry B. Ashplant, who deplores the expenditure of government finances for cadet training in the schools.

The city auditor is frankly opposed to the practice and asks why there should be need for military training of even the mildest form in the schools of this country.

Pointing to the fact that in common with others throughout the country, the board of education receives a certain annual grant from pose, the city auditor states that the aggregate expenditure in this regard must be quite substantial.

Inquiry shows that the board of education receives from the government $50 for each of the 13 public schools in this city where cadet training is in vogue, while similar grants are forthcoming for the technical high school and the collegiate institutes, bringing the total to about $800 or more.

Mr. Ashplant questions the advisability of this expenditure and scores what he believes to be a practice which, intentionally or not, will tend to imbue the students with the militaristic spirit.

"Who will there be to fight?" he asks.

Fetherston, has greatly assisted the work of these young musicians, encouraging them in every way, and to her is chiefly due the honor conferred on them yesterday.

POPULARITY CONTEST WILL CLOSE TONIGHT

Final Ballots Accepted at Loew's To Decide Business Girls' Race.

The popular business girl contest conducted jointly by Loew's Theatre and The London Advertiser will end this evening, when final ballots will be taken in during the evening performance. All this week intimate scenes from London stores and factories have been shown, and the audiences have displayed keen appreciation of this special feature.

The winner of the contest will not be announced, it is expected, until next week. Much enthusiasm has been notde among patrons of London's foremost moving picture house since the contest started, and hundreds are looking forward to the announcement of results with great interest.

The number of ballots filed this afternoon and evening will probably have a big effect in determining the winner. That is why everyone is urged to take advantag eof the voting privilege.

CITY WORK BOARD DECIDES TO TRY PLAN IN LONDON

INTEREST IS GREAT

Children's Week commences in the city on Monday. The success of the children's parade in connection with the World Missions' Conference in London last year, and of the Dominion-wide observance of Children's Week in recent years have led the local children's work board to institute their first annual Children's Week, and to this end a campaign is in progress among the greater number of Protestant churches of the city. Miss Mayme Young, secretary of the local board, is directing a program in which the children of all Protestant Sunday schools in the city, in all about 14,500 children, are asked to participate.

The program drafted by the children's work board of the Dominion will, in the main, be followed locally. The outstanding feature of the week will be the mass meeting on Saturday, May 10, in the First Methodist Church. The children will assemble at 3 o'clock and will parade through the city, returning to the church for the special program which has been prepared. Lantern slides will be shown and a story-telling hour will be conducted by Miss Brenton, supervisor of the local kindergartens. Children's hymns will be featured and special children's music will be furnished by Mrs Grant Harris and her juvenile orchestra and Mrs. F. Smith, pianist of the local board.

The program of the Dominion board offers many interesting suggestions, several of which are being carried out in the local districts of the children's work board. Special sermons by the pastor, visitation of the homes, story hours for the children, parent-teachers meetings and song festivals are among other worthwhile ideas offered.

The local officers are confident that the children's work will resutl in a splendid stirring up of interest in the work of religious education among younger children.

He Is Quite Strong Now

Erickson, Man., May 2.—(Special.) "Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me a lot of good. I had suffered for about a year with rheumatism, backache and headaches. After taking two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills I felt much better. I continued taking them and now I am quite well and strong again."

Mr. N. David, who lives here, makes the above statement. He feels he owes it to other sufferers to tell them how he got relief from his suffering. He is always ready to say a good word for Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Other sufferers from rheumatism tell of pains relieved and health restored through the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

SEEDING IS PROGRESSING IN PRAIRIE PROVINCES

WHEAT ALREADY UP

Canadian Press Despatch.

Winnipeg, Man., May 3.—Seeding is now progressing favorably throughout the prairie provinces, and with an ample supply of moisture in practically all districts, the soil is in excellent condition, according to a report issued by the Manitoba Free Press today. In the great central wheat plains of Portage la Prairie, Manitoba, Indian, Regina, Moose Jaw and Swift Current, Sask., conditions are uniformly good, while Southern Alberta reports as high as 65 per cent of the wheat seeding completed at some points.

Seeding is general throughout the whole of the south section of the province of Manitoba, and wheat is reported up at several points. Eastern Central Manitoba, which suffered last year from flooding, this year reports conditions good.

Northern Manitoba not only reports conditions good, but considerably earlier than last year. The southwestern portion of the province is better supplied with moisture than has been for some years.

While there is little or no wheat up in Saskatchewan conditions are very satisfactory. Seeding is general in nearly every point or will be on Monday next. Saskatoon reports 35 per cent of the wheat acreage seeded and 10 per cent of the oats. Regina reports seeding at least ten days earlier than last year and conditions generally more favorable. Kinsaid district reports that 50 per cent of the wheat is seeded.

In Southern Alberta conditions of the ground for the germination of the seed are much more favorable than last year. In Central Alberta conditions are reported as good, with an ample store of moisture. Seeding is now general and from 25 to 35 per cent completed. Northern Alberta is generally well supplied with moisture, with seeding about eight to ten days later than in 1923, but with a most excellent condition of seed bed

TRUSTEES' IDEAS TOO BIG FOR CITY. THINKS ED. SMITH

Alderman Declares Views On High Schools of Metropolitan Nature.

ILLUSTRATES POINT

"They have a metropolitan idea of high schools," said Alderman Ed. Smith in referring to the desire of the school board to build more units to the central collegiate. "Why, in both Hamilton and Ottawa they have just one central collegiate, the Hamilton school having 54 rooms, and they are satisfied with one school. This talk about the department of education being opposed to an addition being made to the central is all bosh. The department is agreeable to much larger schools in other cities, and it will not object to a larger school here.

"At the time London was considering building the present central collegiate, Windsor was building a much larger school, and in Toronto they have no high school as small as any of ours in London. In any case, the figures show that the tendency is for pupils after leaving school and taking their entrance to go to the technical school, where the majority of them go now. It would look as if there is not so much need as we hear for this extra high school accommodation.

"Then, with every additional unit, there comes a heavy overhead cost, that is a continuous charge to city ratepayers. I contend that an addition to the central building would cost less in maintenance than an extra unit, either in London South or in London East. It looks as if the technical high school is going to be the avenue through which most of our public school boys and girls will pass in future on their way to business, and that the purely academic side of the collegiates is having less value to the majority of the pupils. We are only a city of sixty thousand here after all, and however much it may be an honor to be a great educational center, it is the business of aldermen, who after all are returned to look after the expenditure of the ratepayer's money, to take a very practical and dollar and cents view of any question presented to them."

The collegiate committee of the London school board will hold a meeting on Monday afternoon to discuss the request of the finance committee for information as to the proposed high school and its location. There is not much difficulty on the part of the board in deciding where the school shall go, the only hitch in the building of the school (if there is one) will be reached when the council has its say on the matter.

SEND IN 1923 TAXES.

Firms in the annexed district continue to send in their 1923 taxes, following the conclusion of the McCormick case. A check was received today from the Empire Brass Company for $915.85, in fact the same check sent in by that company last May and rejected by the city.

"AFTER SIX DAYS" COMING TO GRAND

In point of magnitude, impressiveness and colossal entertainment values, this production exceeds anything ever before attempted by motion picture producers of the old or new world. Presenting with the touch of the supreme artist an array of characters and scenes comparable only to a kaleidoscopic panorama pulsing with life, drama and color, the picture carries the spectator through a swiftly moving narrative, beginning with Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden and ending with the Immortal Songs of Solomon, picturing in a manner never before seen on the screen the dramatic story of Moses and the ten commandments, Moses and the miracle, the crossing of the Red Sea, Cain and Abel, the mighty project of the ark, with its outstanding figure, Noah, the cataclysmic flood of the waters, the thousands of artisans erecting that frenzied monument, the Tower of Babel, the top of which was to touch the top of heaven; the awe-inspiring destruction of the wicked cities of Sodom and Gomorrah, with a terrible visitation of fire and brimstone; the gripping story or Joseph and his brethren; all these pictured with a dramatic intensity and a generosity of color and action that fill the eye and hold the attention spellbound. "After Six Days" sweeps on and on from startling climax to stupendous thrill, until it reaches the pinnacle of dramatic intensity in the tremendous battle scenes between the Egyptians and the followers of Moses. The sufferings of the great prophet and his people, the miracles wrought by the hand of the leader, the pathetic death, which put a period to the career of Moses; all of these fairly tingle with life and pathos on the silver sheet. The magnificence, the gorgeous beauty of the Court of Solomon, the blare of trumpets, the fads and foibles of kings and rulers of kings, the pageantry and romance of the days of Pharaoh; all these are part of this mighty production. The tender and beautiful love story of the Shulamite Woman, the first vampire of history, and the inspiring and romantic interludes in the Songs of Solomon will have their appeal to young and old. To the seeker of thrills and startling narratives "After Six Days" will live long in the memory of the theatregoer, presenting a distinctly different screen entertainment and drama of life itself, depicting with vivid boldness every element which has governed and swayed the loves, passions and human frailties of man and woman since Adam first succumbed to the wiles of Eve in the Garden of Eden.

Manager Minhinnick has arranged a special augmented orchestra and prologue in conjunction with the screening, and Miss Muriel Jackson, well-known soprano, has been engaged for the engagement here, and will be heard at each performance daily. There will be three performances every day, commencing Monday, at 2:15, 7 and 9 p.m.

The entire executive of the Highland Ladies' Golf Club was re-elected at the annual meeting held yesterday afternoon at the club house. New officers added to the list were: Hon. president, Mrs. John Pringle; hon. vice-president, Mrs. E. F. Emery, and treasurer, Mrs. A. E. Cooper. The old executive includes: President, Jared Vining; first vice, Mrs. A. O. Hunt, and secretary, Mrs. A. G. Calder. The executive committee includes Mrs. C. E. Morris, Mrs. Angus Graham, Mrs. Frank White and Miss Josephine Macfie, and the members of the advisory committee are Mrs. E. E. Reid and Miss Amy Bartram, and the golf committee Mrs. Archie McPherson, Mrs. Walter Gunn, Miss Isabel Ross, Mrs. Nelson George, Mrs. C. R. Collyer and Miss A. E. Pope.

A meeting of this latter committee will be held some time next week, when a captain and vice-captain will be chosen. The report presented by the secretary, Mrs. Calder, showed that the club had enjoyed a most successful year. An address was given by W. C. Keene of the men's golf committee, who outlined the plans of his committee for the coming year, asking the co-operation of the women with the club activities. A number of silver cups have been offered for play to the ladies' committee, as well as those received by the men, which shows the keen interest being taken by the members in the activities of the club this season. Following the meeting a number of members stayed on for tea.

Poor Jerry Is Frightened To Death When the Hunter Fires His Gun

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Jerry Muskrat, sitting forlorn, miserable and frightened on a little platform of trash that had caught in a crotch of a tree just at the level of the water which had flooded the Green Meadows, caught sight of something moving over the water in the distance. At first he couldn't make out what it was. You see, it was too far away. As it drew nearer it grew bigger. Then his heart gave a little jump of fright. He knew what it was. It was a boat. Jerry had been down to the Big River and had seen boats there. He knew that boats were used by those dreadful, two-legged creatures called men.

Anxiously Jerry watched that boat draw nearer and nearer. He could see two men in it. One of them was rowing that boat. The other was sitting in the forward part of that boat with something across his knees. Just what that something was Jerry didn't know. It wouldn't have made him feel any better if he had known. It was a terrible gun!

Jerry remained motionless. He felt that that was the safest thing to do That boat was going to pass at a little distance if it kept on the way it was headed. Not once did Jerry take his eyes from it. It was almost past when it stopped. Then it turned toward Jerry and began to come on very, very slowly. The hunter in the boat had seen Jerry.

That boat was going to pass at a little distance if it kept on the way it was headed.

Poor Jerry! He was frightened almost to death. He didn't know what to do. He had been hunted before at the Smiling Pool, but always there had been safe hiding places. Now he had nowhere to go. He saw the hunter slowly raise the terrible gun. Then Jerry plunged into the water. He did it just in time. There was a bang from that terrible gun. But the hunter had been just too late. The shot struck the place where Jerry had been sitting just as Jerry's black heels disappeared in the water.

Jerry swam under water just as hard as he could in the direction in which Jerry had been headed when he dived. The hunter with the terrible gun watched for Jerry to come up again. It was Jerry's good fortune that that boat had rowed a little too far this time, and when at last he had to come up for air he was back of the boat. The rower saw him and spoke to the hunter. But by the time the hunter could turn with his terrible gun Jerry had once more dived.

This time Jerry had seen a mass of floating rubbish. He made straight for it under water. When he came up he came up underneath it, and could poke his nose out to get fresh air without being seen. There he remained while those hunters rowed about and watched for him. At last they gave up and rowed away.

"It isn't fair! It isn't fair!" Jerry kept saying over and over to himself. "Those hunters are not fair! They know I have no place to go and are hunting me when I am helpless."

And indeed it wasn't fair. Nothing could have been more unfair. Jerry Muskrat and others of his kind have troubles enough and dangers enough without being hunted by men with terrible guns.

Mr. Ernest Seitz To Give Recital

Mrs. McHardy-Smith Presents Clever Canadian Pianist.

Mr. Ernest Seitz, the young Canadian pianist, who will be heard in St. Peter's Hall, Monday evening next, May 5, has designed a most attractive program to regale music lovers. It embraces Chopin's ever-popular "Sonata in B Minor," Schubert's melodious "Sonata in A Major" and two groups from classic composers, while the moderns are represented by Moszkowski's well-known "La Jongleuse," Debussy's "Minstrels," and the same composer's "La Fille Aux Chevaux de Lin," two very melodious pieces, ultra-modern in style. The group will conclude with a piano transcription by Schulz-Euler, of the Strauss "Blue Danube Waltz," which Mr. Seitz plays with such rhythmical fluency that admirers of his art demand it on all occasions.

Mr. Seitz has just concluded a series of recitals in Toronto and his artistry and interpretation has been of such a high order that it called forth the following enthusiastic commendation from Hector Charlesworth, the veteran critic of "Saturday Night," who said in part: "Mr. Seitz showed himself of equal accomplishment with any pianist, whatever his nativity or fame, who played in Toronto this season. As yet Mr. Seitz is too young to have had a legend or tradition grow up around his name and individuality, but from strict viewpoint of performance and pure interpretation, he is superb." Mr. Seitz's London appearance is under the direction of the well-known teacher of piano, Mrs. S. H. McHardy-Smith.

Brings Strength and Vigor When Mother Most Needs It

WHAT joy there is in the home when baby arrives.

Now the mother looks forward to returning strength and vigor.

But oftentimes this is slow in coming and the weeks drag on until the strain brings depression and discouragement.

So many mothers have written to us about the great benefit they have obtained by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food under these conditions that we cannot refrain from passing along the good words.

Since prevention is always the better way it is wise to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food during the expectant period as well as after baby comes.

By so doing the blood is kept rich, the nerves steady and the general health is kept at high water mark all through this trying time.

Then after baby's advent you quickly pick up strength and know the joy of healthful motherhood.

Mrs. H. McClure, Norwood, Ont. writes:

"After my baby was born I was terribly weak and run down, with a weak, painful feeling across my back. I had heard so much of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food that I decided to try it, and before very long I began to feel stronger. Three boxes proved enough to make me quite strong and well again. I also used Dr. Chase's Ointment, for a rash which broke out on the baby and it worked wonderfully—the rash disappearing completely in a short time."

Can a Girl Love Two Men at the Same Time? The Problem of the Stepmother With Four Children of Different Temperament — The Husband Who Is Always Underfoot.

Dear Miss Dix—Can a girl be in love with two men at the same time? Does a person experience real love only once in a life? Can a person be infatuated with another person of the opposite sex and still not be in love with him? AN INTERESTED READER.

Answer:

We love different people for different qualities. Therefore a girl may love one man because he is gentle, and tender, and chivalrous toward her, and she may love another man because he has the opposite qualities and belongs to the cave-man type. Or a girl might love the quiet dignity of one man, and adore the rollicking high spirits of another, but this is a sort of half love. The perfect love is that in which we find in one individual all that we crave to satify body and heart and soul.

As to how many times an individual may love in a lifetime depends upon the person. There are those who never love but once because they give all they have to give, they empty out their heart's devotion on the one beloved one. And there are others who are off with the old love and on with the new as often as occasion demands. You see men and women who have married two and three times, and who seem to be equally devoted to each wife and husband. Generally speaking, the human heart is an inn in which there is always room for one more and the latest guest seems to get the warmest welcome.

Undoubtedly, we can be fascinated by those we do not love. Many men and women have a physical attraction for us, whose principles and attitude toward life revolt us. DOROTHY DIX.

* * * *

Dear Miss Dix—Three years ago I married a man with four children. No two of them are alike in disposition, and no matter what I say to them for their own good, they laugh at me. It is a waste of time to tell their father, for he sides with them and tells me that I take everything too much to heart, and am worried too much over their disagreeable ways and hateful remarks. It seems my lot is one of the hardest ever put on a woman's shoulders and I am about to give it up.

A DISAPPOINTED STEPMOTHER.

Answer:

You are right, sister, a stepmother's lot is one of the hardest lots in the world, and there is no other task so difficult and so thankless as the one she has undertaken. She has to make all of the sacrifices of a mother without getting a mother's compensating love. She is looked upon with suspicion, and her best motives misunderstood by the children who will not take from her the correction that they would not dream of resenting from their own mother, and generally the children's mother's people and the neighbors incite the children to carry on a perpetual guerilla warfare with their stepmother.

Besides all of this, it takes a lot of love to enable any woman to endure the faults of childhood, and this the stepmother lacks. When a child is born God puts in the heart of its mother a mysterious affection that enables her to be deaf to the noise it makes, instead of having her nerves rasped by it; that enables her to see an inventive mind in little Johnny's breaking up the parlor chairs to make a choo-choo train, and that makes it sweet to her to spend her life toiling for those who repay her with impudence and knocks instead of kisses and gratitude.

A hard job that of being a stepmother. One not to be undertaken except by a crazy woman or a saint. But remember, stepmother, that you voluntarily undertook this vicarious motherhood, and the curse of curses is upon you unless you treat the dead woman's children as kindly as you would treat your own. There is no present remedy for your situation unless you turn quitter and leave it entirely. But if you do your duty by these children who are so unappreciate now the day will come when they will arise and call you blessed, and your reward will be in having raised up worthy men and women out of those who, lacking a mother's care, might have been wastrels. DOROTHY DIX.

* * * *

Dear Miss Dix—I have been married twelve years, and I am a slave, body and soul. My husband insists on coming home to lunch, and I have to cook him a big, hot meal. Wherever I go he insists on going also. He says that he loves me so much that he is not contented without me. Never being able to get rid of him even for a minute of an evening; never having any chance to do anything I want to do, or go any place I want to go, or express an opinion of my own, or have any privacy, just never being alone, has got on my nerves so that I almost hate him, I am so fed up with him. Should married life mean this slavery? I ask you to tell me.

A MARRIED WOMAN.

Answer:

I hope some of the wives who are forever complaining about their husbands wanting an evening off now and then will read your letter, Mrs. Married Woman, and realize that your case is far worse than theirs. For there is nothing harder to endure in matrimony than too much husband, and there is no woman who has a man perpetually underfoot who doesn't want to kick him out of the way. The secret of husbands and wives keeping in love is to take each other's society in broken doses.

Yours is a case where drastic measures are needed, and you will have to stage a rebellion. Remind your man that the accepted ideal husband is the man who goes to work at 8 in the morning and doesn't come back until 5 in the afternoon. And if he won't leave you of an evening, put on your hat and go out and leave him. DOROTHY DIX.

Oliver October

By GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON,
Author of "Graustark" and Other Novels.

INSTALLMENT VI.

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY.

OLIVER OCTOBER BAXTER'S fate is foretold on the day he is born by a travelling gypsy fortune-teller. She prophesies that he will gain honor and wealth, but before he reaches the age of 30 he will be hanged for a crime which he will not have committed.

OLIVER BAXTER, senior, a widower, loving his son deeply, becomes nervous and irritable as Oliver grows to manhood, fearing in his heart that the prophecy will come true.

REV. HERBERT SAGE, one of Oliver October's dearest friends, places no faith in the prophecy. His lovely young wife.

JOSEPHINE SAGE, left him years ago to go on the stage, where she is a tremendous success. Their daughter.

JANE SAGE, was once Oliver October's boyhood sweetheart. With the passing of the years they have become true friends.

SILAS LINK and JOSEPH SIKES, old cronies of Baxter, senior, are determined to keep Oliver October out of harm's way until he shall have passed his 30th birthday.

DR. LANSING is in love with Jane.

Oliver October is nearly 30 years old, when one night he and his father have an altercation as they walk along the path bordering Death swamp, in back of Baxter's house. Young Oliver rushes away in a temper. The next day it is discovered that Oliver, senior, has disappeared—vanished completely! A state-wide search for the missing man fails to reveal his whereabouts. Horace Gooch is about to run for state senator. Young Oliver has recently come to the aid of two old women whom Gooch was attempting to turn out of their home. Sammy Parr, with other good friends, starts a boom to nominate Oliver October to run against his uncle. Oliver is one night stricken with the realization that he is jealous of Doc Lansing. Horace Gooch, angered at his nephew's running in opposition to him, announces that he is going to have a very thorough investigation made of the manner of old Oliver's disappearance. He hints that Oliver October knows more than he has disclosed. On the afternoon of this declaration Josephine Sage is expected home from her tour abroad.

CHAPTER XIV.

A Star's Homecoming.

The return of Mrs. Sage after an absence of 23 years was an "event" far surpassing in interest anything that had transpired in Rumley since the strange disappearance of Oliver Baxter.

Hundreds of people, eager to see the famous "Josephine Judge," crowded the station platform long before the train from Chicago was due to arrive; they filled the depot windows; they were packed like sardines atop the spare baggage and express trucks; they ranged in overflow disorder along the sidewalks on both sides of the street adjacent.

The train pulled in. The crowd tiptoed and gaped, craned its thousand necks, and then surged to the right. Above the hissing of steam and the grinding of wheels rose the voice of Sammy Parr far down the platform.

"Keep back, everybody! Don't crowd up so close. Right this way, Mr. Sage—How are you? Open up there, will you? Let 'em through. Got my new car over here, Mr. Sage—lots of room. Hello, Jane! Great honor to have the pleasure of taking Mrs. Sage home in my car. Right over the way. Grab those suitcases, boy. Open up, please!"

Mr. Sage paused aghast half way down the steps of the last coach but one. He stared open-mouthed out over the sea of faces; his knees seemed about to give way under him; his nervous fingers came near relaxing their grip on the suitcase handles; he was bewildered, stunned.

"In heaven's name—" he groaned, and then, poor man, over his shoulder in helpless distress to the girl behind him—"Oh, Jane, why didn't we wait for the midnight—"

But some one had seized the bags and with them he was dragged in gloriously to the platform. Jane came next, crimson with embarrassment. She hurried down the steps and waited at the bottom for her mother to appear. As might have been expected of one so truly theatric, Josephine delayed her appearance until the stage was clear, so to speak. She even went so far as to keep her audience waiting. Preceded by the Pullman porter, who up to this time had remained invisible but now appeared as a proud and shining minion bearing boxes and travelling cases, wraps and furs, she at length appeared, stopping on the last step to survey with well affected surprise and a charming assumption of consternation, the crowd that packed the platform.

Now, a great many—perhaps all—of those who made up the eager, curious crowd, expected to behold a young and radiant Josephine Judge, they had seen her in the illustrated Sunday supplements and in the pictorial magazines; always she was sprightly and vivid and alluring. They were confronted instead, by a tall, angular woman of 52 or 53, carelessly—even "sloppily"—dressed in a slouchy two-piece pepper and salt tweed walking costume. What most of the observers at first took to be a wad of light brown fur tucked under her right arm was discovered to be a beady-eyed "Pekinese."

But the minister's wife was still a vividly handsome woman. She had taken good care of herself; she had made a business of keeping young in looks as well as in spirit.

In a clear, full voice, trained to reach remote perches in lofty theatres, she spoke to her husband from the coach steps:

"Herbert, dear, have you the checks for my luggage, or have I?"

"I—I will attend to the trunks—" he began huskily, only to be interrupted by the indefatigable Sammy.

"Don't give 'em another thought, Mr. Sage. I'll see to everything. Give me the checks and—right this way, please, Mrs. Sage."

"Thank you—thank you so much," said Mrs. Sage graciously and, as Sammy bustled on ahead, inquired in an undertone of Jane, at whose side she walked: "Is that the wonderful Oliver October I've been hearing so much about?"

"No, mother—that is Sammy Parr. I—I don't see Oliver anywhere. I wrote him the train we were coming—"

A few paces ahead Sammy was explaining loudly to Mr. Sage: "I guess something important of a political nature must have turned up to keep Oliver from meeting the train. We had it all fixed up to meet you with my car and he was to be here at 4 sharp. Doc Lansing's up at Harbor Point, Michigan, for a little vacation. Won't be back till Sunday week. Muriel's out here in the car, Mr. Sage. She'll drive you home while I see about the baggage."

Mr. Sage had recovered his composure by this time. He leaned close to Sammy's car and said gravely:

"Luggage, Sammy—luggage."

"Sure—I get you," said Sammy, winking. "But just the same I'll call it baggage till I've got it safely out of the hands of Jim O'Brien, the baggage masters. Here we are! Hop right in, Jane. Permit me to introduce myself, Mrs. Sage. I am——"

"I remember you quite well," interrupted the great actress (pronouncing it "quate"). "You are Sammy Parr—little Sammy Parr.

"I say, Herbert, old thing, you can't make me believe this is Rumley. You are deceiving me. I don't recognize a single—— Oh, yes, I do! I take it all back. I would know that man if I saw him in Timbuktu. The old Johnnie in the car we just passed, it was Gooch—the amiable Gooch—and my word, what a dust he was raising!"

CHAPTER XV.

Oliver's Disappointment.

Oliver, pedalling furiously, arrived at the parsonage ten minutes behind the Sages. The minister greeted him as he came clattering up the front steps.

"Sh!" he cautioned, his finger to his lips. "Don't make such a noise, Oliver—if you please. She's—she's resting. Sh! Do you mind tiptoeing, lad?"

"Where is Jane, Uncle Herbert?" broke in Oliver, twiddling his hat. He was struck by the dazed, beatific, and yet harassed expression in the minister's eyes.

"Jane? Oh, yes, Jane. Why, Jane is upstairs with her dear mother—helping her with her hair, I think, I am sure she will not be down for some time, Oliver. After the hair I think she rubs her back or something of that sort. Do you mind strolling around the yard with me, Oliver? I was on the point of taking Henry the Eighth out for a little exercise."

"Henry the what?" inquired Oliver, still gripping the pastor's hand.

"The Eighth," said Mr. Sage, looking about the porch and shifting the position of his feet in some trepidation. "Bless my soul, what can have become of him? I hope I haven't been standing on him. I should have squished him——. Ah, I remember! The hat-rack!"

He dashed into the hall, followed by Oliver, and there was Henry the Eighth suspended from the hat-rack by his leash in such a precarious fashion that only by standing on his hind legs was he able to avoid strangulation.

"I am so absent-minded," murmured Mr. Sage, rather plaintively. "Poor doggie! Was he being hanged like a horrid old murderer? Was he——"

"I say, Uncle Herbert, don't you think Jane may have finished—er—rubbing Mrs. Sage's back by this time?" interrupted the impatient Oliver.

"Possibly," said the other. "Come along, doggie—let's romp a bit."

Meanwhile, Jane, having brushed her mother's hair, was now employed in the more laborious task of rubbing the lady's back.

"You have a great deal of magnetism in your hands, my dear," droned Mrs. Sage, luxuriously. "As I say, my maid always did it for me in London, but she never had the touch that you have. The right shoulder now, please."

"I think Oliver is downstairs with father," began Jane wistfully.

"She was my dresser, too," went on Mrs. Sage drowsily. "Really, I wonder now that I endured her as long as I did. And I shouldn't if she hadn't been so kind to Henry the Eighth. I do hope your father is giving him a nice little romp in the front—"

"Shall I run down and see, mother?" broke in Jane eagerly.

"Presently, my dear, presently. I shall be taking my tub in a few—you say we have a bathroom now? Dear me, how the house has grown. How many servants have we?"

"One," said Jane succinctly.

"One?" gasped Josephine. "I never heard of such a thing."

"One is all we need, and besides one is all we can afford. I am afraid you will have a lot to put up with, mother, dear."

Josephine was silent for a long time. Suddenly she lifted her head and looked up into her daughter's face.

"My dear," she said, with a wry little twist at the corner of her generous mouth, "I've come home to stay. I daresay you will find me capable of taking things as they are. I did it once before, and I can do it again."

The express wagon with Mrs. Sage's trunks arrived as Oliver, in despair, was preparing to depart as he had come, on Marmaduke Smith's bicycle. He took fresh hope. Here was a chance to see Jane after all.

"Where do you want the trunks, Jane?" he shouted from the bottom of the stairs. There was no answer. "Where shall we put them, Uncle Herbert?" he asked, his hands jammed deep in his pockets.

"Bless my soul, I—I haven't an idea," groaned Mr. Sage, passing his hand over his brow. "Unless you put them in my study," he suggested brightly.

Fifteen minutes later, the trunks being piled high in the pastor's little study, Oliver mopped his brow and expressed himself feelingly to Mr. Sage from the bottom of the porch steps.

"Uncle Herbert, I think Jane might have been allowed a minute or two to say hello to a fellow. Good Lord, sir, is—is this to be Jane's job from now on?"

"Sh! The windows are open, Oliver."

"Is she to be nothing but a lady's maid to Aunt Josephine?"

"We are so happy to have her with us, my dear boy, that—er—nothing—er——"

"I understand, Uncle Herbert," broke in Oliver contritely, noting the pastor's distress. "I'm sorry I spoke as I did. Tell Jane I'll call her up this evening. And please tell Aunt Josephine I am awfully keen to see her. I used to love her better than anything going, you know."

Then he pedaled slowly away on Marmaduke's wheel, looking over his shoulder until the windows of the parsonage were no longer visible.

Fashions By Wire

THE FISH-TAIL TRAIN.

Paris, May 2.—The fish-tail has appeared again. Some of the newest evening gowns have a bi-sected train with a cluster of crystal tassels on each end.

A CAPE OF BEADS.

Paris, May 2.—One woman noted for her individuality in matters of dress has translated the vogue for shoulder capes into beads. On her shoulders she wears a cape which is little more than long strings of beads, much like a bead portiere.

BATIK HOSIERY.

London, May 2.—It seems to be the fashion just now to wear hosiery of Batik design. Legs tinted like the rainbow and covered with delirious patterns are much in vogue.

VOILE FOR LINGERIE.

New York, May 2.—The favorite material for lingerie seems at the moment to be voile. These underthings are trimmed with Irish crochet, real filet medallions, or colorful pipings. The garments themselves are often in pale blues and greens.

LIKE A MAN'S DERBY.

New York, May 2.—Among the chic hats being worn today by young girls is one of shiny silk that looks a little like a man's derby. It is decorated with a wide band of grosgrain ribbon finished with a square colonial buckle.

CAUSE OF CHILDREN'S DISEASES ATTRIBUTED TO SPINE

The first duty of parents to children relates to their health. The little fellows are men and women in the making. What they are worth to themselves and the world when formed and responsible is measured in terms of health. The nation does not select the physically unfit. It needs above everything else a clean bill of health for best results. So do the community, the family and the individual.

Chiropractic is indorsed by more than five million of our people, who know its benefits, adhere to its practice for their health and commend the science to anyone in need of health. This science has proved by good results through a quarter century of time that a great percentage of sick and ailing children—no matter what their complaints may be called—can be restored to health by adjusting the spine to insure freedom to the nerves.

The importance of the spine is shown by the following quotations:

"The spine is the key to the entire health situation of the individual. It has more to do than any one factor with the maintenance of health on the one hand and the establishment of disease on the other."—Alfred Walton, M.D. (Philadelphia), ex-president and chief of the surgical staff, Essex County (N. J.) Hospital.

Supporting Dr. Walton's opinion, J. H. Crenshaw, M.D. (St. Louis), made the following statement:

"Seventy-five per cent of the school children of St. Louis are afflicted with spinal deviations which will cause many grave and dangerous diseases. . . . out of fifteen hundred boys examined at the Kansas City Y. M. C. A., more than fifty per cent were found with spinal defects, sure to produce grave consequences if not cared for."

Dr. W. H. Sumply, M.D., of national note, made extensive investigations of the subject, and gives as his conclusion that "eighty per cent of the entire population are afflicted with spinal deviations, which are the cause of so much nervousness, rheumatism, mental weakness and other diseases."

Chiropractic adjustment of the displaced vertebrae of sick and ailing children will restore health and prevent disease by the free action of the vital force of the body. There never was a child that didn't get sick sooner or later if the joints of his spine deviate and compress the nerves to interfere with vital force, merely because that will affect normal resistance, and normal resistance is health. Disease does not occur all at once. If vital resistance has been declining for some time it is due to interference with the spinal nerves. As the result of this hindrance of vital force the organs and parts gradually develop conditions where disease will set in and continue with varying effects until the nerve compression is lifted and normal current of vital energy restored.

An examination of your child's spine by a Chiropractor is logical, common sense and necessary to its health. No other profession specializes in the care of this important organ. Give your child the benefit of an expert adjustment of its spine in case of sickness or disorder and the result will not disappoint you. Thousands of children have been restored to good health by this method.

MAH JONG

Foster Talks About Importance of Managing Kongs Properly.

By R. F. FOSTER.

The most valuable set that can be laid down in the game of Mah Jong, apart from doubling possibilities, is a kong. That is, four tiles of the same suit and denomination. Kongs may be obtained in various ways, which depend chiefly on luck, and they may be managed in different ways, which depend chiefly on luck, and they may be managed in different ways, which depend mostly on skill, or the knowledge of their possibilities.

In the first place, with regard to the luck. The probability of any named player finding any named kong in his original thirteen tiles is one chance in 19,084. Suppose for the sake of clearness we call the player S, and the kong Red Dragons. Leaving out of consideration the Flowers and Seasons, which have nothing to do with the game as a game, there are 34 kongs in the complete set of 136 tiles, only one of which are Red Dragons.

If the chances against S's holding a kong of Red Dragons are 19,083 to 1, we must divide this chance by 34 to get the chance of his holding a kong of any kind, which gives us 561, so that it is only about once in 560 games that a player will find a complete kong of any kind in his original hand of thirteen tiles.

Starting With Triplet.

But if you start with a triplet, or get a triplet during the play, you may turn the triplet into a kong under certain conditions.

1. If you have three already in your concealed hand, which we shall hereafter call your rack, as distinguished from grounded sets, and draw the fourth from the wall, you may lay down all four. If you do not lay down the kong immediately after drawing the fourth from the wall, you must wait until it is your turn to draw again, because you cannot take a discard to ground a set and then lay down the fourth tile of a kong in another set, as that would be a double play.

When all four of a kong are taken from your rack, the two end tiles must be turned face down, to indicate that they are to be scored as "in hand," although exposed on the table. If you neglect to do this (and to take a loose tile before discarding), you cannot score the kong except as a grounded set, half value.

As we shall see presently, you are not obliged to lay down a kong, but if it happens to be a Winds or Dragons, there is no possible reason for not doing so.

2. If you have a triplet in your rack, and another player discards the fourth, you may take it, and lay down the kong; or you may lay down only two of those in the pack for a pung, as you please. If you fail to complete the kong on the table before someone woos, you cannot count anything but the triplet.

3. If you have a triplet grounded, you cannot take the fourth from a discard; but if you draw the fourth from the wall you may add it to the three grounder, for a kong, if you wish to do so. You need not do this at once, but you must do it at some time immediately after drawing from the wall. If any player should happen to want this fourth tile that you draw from the wall and add to your grounded triplet, he can "rob the kong" by taking it away from you, if it puts him out; but not otherwise. He cannot rob a kong which you lay down all at once from your rack, with the ends turned down.

Draw For Every Kong.

It is most important to draw a loose tile for every kong shown, before discarding, otherwise you will have a short hand, as you are not allowed to correct your oversight after you have discarded. It is in order to show that you are entitled to take a loose tile that you lay down complete kongs from your rack, with the ends turned down, so as to restore your hand to its normal condition. Unless you take a loose tile you will find that all your 13 tiles will be used up in sets, and you will have nothing left to match up for your "eyes," the essential pair in every complete hand.

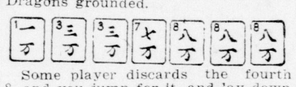
Remember that it is no one's business to tell you that you have forgotten to turn down the end tiles of a kong, or to take a loose tile, any more than it is to tell you what to discard. There are no partnerships in Mah Jong.

No one is obliged to lay down a kong under any circumstances, and if the kong is not Winds or Dragons, there are many cases in which it would be bad play to lay down all four tiles at once. This is chiefly true when you have other tiles in rank, which might from a sequence, especially if the sequence looks as if it might be necessary for an early woo.

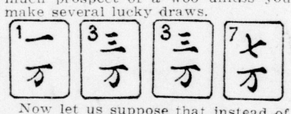
There Are Dangers.

If a complete kong is kept in the rack, the only danger is that some player will woo and thus compel you to count the kong as a triplet, as your hand is irregular, through your failure to take a loose tile. The same danger exists if you have three grounded and keep the fourth in your rack until someone else woos. Remember that the fourth tile added to a triplet multiplies the value of that triplet, whatever it is, by four, and you must be guided by the amount of your risk and your judgment of what you may gain by taking that risk. A typical case may show how these two things, the risk and the prospect of gain, may balance.

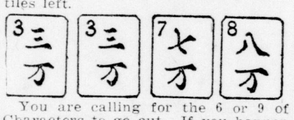
As we have seen, if you have a triplet in your rack and some player discards the fourth, you can call "pung" and take the discard for a triplet, keeping the fourth tile in your rack. Suppose you hold these seven tiles, with three Winds and three Dragons grounded.



Some player discards the fourth 8, and you jump for it, and lay down the kong, drawing a Dot, which is of no use to you, and spoils your cleared suit, so you discard it again. This is what you have left, and not much prospect of a woo unless you make several lucky draws.



Now let us suppose that instead of laying down all four of those 8s, you had called "pung" and shown three of them only. Not being obliged to take any loose tile, you discard the 1 Character. Now you have these tiles left.



You are calling for the 6 or 9 of Characters to go out. If you happen to draw a third 3, you can either discard it again or shed the 7, and if you get another Character on your next draw, so as still to have a cleared suit, add the 8 to the triplet for a kong.

Prof. Mulveney—Dear Sir: "I am enclosing you the picture of little Lillian. Your remedy, called "Mother's Friend," has done wonders for her. She took as many as forty-two fits in a day, caused from pin worms. We have used several bottles and now she is quite well and healthy, rosy and is getting quite fat. Mr. Edwards says: 'May God bless you and give you health and strength to carry on the good work.' I am much pleased and wish you continued success. I will be pleased to see her picture in the paper."

Dear Sir.—Please send me one dollar's worth of your Mother's Friend Worm Medicine. Am obliged for your good help.

Dear Sir,—I am pleased to be able to recommend a man that not only proffers to be able to expel a tapeworm, but can really do it. Two more ladies here are the victims of tapeworm. I will give them your address. I am sure I can't speak too highly of your remedy. Every word you say is right. You are welcome to use my name if it is of any use to you, and I will always recommend your remedy to others. It is so easy to take and no fasting necessary.

Dear Sir,—Your Tapeworm Remedy received yesterday (Monday) noon. My wife took it as directed at 8.30 this a.m., according to directions. At 11 o'clock, very proud to say, was relieved of a 20 ft. tape worm. The head and everything was there plain to be seen. My wife and I can thank you and only you. Deloro, August.

Prof. R. L. Mulveney—

It affords me great pleasure the way your Tapeworm Medicine removed a tapeworm from my little boy, 2 years and 10 months old. He had been suffering for quite a while. We had him treated about two months before but only got part of it. Prof. Mulveney's Tapeworm Remedy worked like a charm, and so easy to take, and never made him a bit sick. We are so thankful and I am sending the worm to you to-day.

Yours truly,
SILVESTER PHILLIPS,

Prof. Mulveney.

Dear Sir.—I thought I had better write and tell you what success I had with your Tape Worm Cure. Well, I took it at 9 o'clock in the morning, and by 1 o'clock had Mr. Worm in a bottle, head and all. Had eaten my dinner in the meantime, and suffered no inconvenience whatever. I had been carrying that worm around for ten years to my certain knowledge. I never felt better in my life than at present. If you want another testimonial in addition to those you have, just refer them to me.

Yours thankfully,

Dr. Mulveney, Toronto.

Dear Sir,—A few weeks ago a chum of mine, Mr. Horace Wiggins, 43 Northcote Ave., Toronto, sent me one of your treatments, which I have now used, as the contents of this bottle will show. I hope the worm is complete. I must say I was surprised at the mild and easy nature of the remedy. Trusting this will reach you intact.

I am yours truly,
J. M. JOHNSTONE.

Sept. 24, 1914.

Dear Sir,—Your wonderful remedy received, and I took it according to directions, and am pleased to say the tapeworm was expelled, the head and all, in one hour and a half—first motion of the bowels. Your medicine is certainly a wonderful discovery, and no words can express my thankfulness to you. During the past nine years I have taken five other doses of medicine and starved from 36 hours to 48 hours and 60 hours before I took their medicine, and it would only fetch part of it away. I shall tell my doctor at _____ of your great remedy, that he may direct others to you. I know of another lady who has been troubled longer than I have, and I will send your address to her. I feel it a duty to let all who need help, as I did, know of your worthiness, for what you can do for me I know you can do for others. I hope you may be spared a long life to continue your noble work, but sincerely hope you will in some way leave your discovery so that it won't die with you, for it is so easy to take and acts so quickly.

Gratefully yours,

A Well-Pleased Mother Writes

Professor Mulveney.

Dear Sir.—

It is with pleasure we send a testimonial for the good of others, to let them know the good you are doing in the world. Your tapeworm exterminator is all you say it is in every way. My son had a tapeworm a year, and and I do not know what we would have done if I had not seen your announcement in a Toronto paper. My son had treatment of doctors; one doctor informed us it would take two weeks to get this tapeworm away, and insisted on my son going to the hospital, but I could not send my child, for he is very nervous. Your remedy expelled the worm in three hours without starvation or pain. My child used to put in awful nights grinding his teeth, tossing in bed, and never satisfied with his meals; it was the first tapeworm I had ever seen; felt just like putting it in the fire right away. Not one mother in the world has any cause to feel nervous to give the cure to her child. Just follow the directions, nothing can go wrong. I am sure we will never forget you, and the good you are doing. We belong to the Life Brigade, and we wish you a long life and happiness and success in every way, thanking you for your kind attention in doing all you profess to do.

Yours resp

B'WELL ?

It Makes People Feel Well

B'Well is a medicine that assists nature, made from roots, barks, herbs, leaves, etc. The concentrated extracts of these herbs tone up the stomach, regulate the liver, act on the kidneys, and it contains a harmless worm destroyer that is sure death to worms, and can be used with perfect safety.

B'Well is restoring thousands of people to health. I am not going to enumerate the different diseases and complaints that people have been relieved of from the use of B'Well, as it would take up too much space. I can simply say that restlessness and disease cannot remain if you take this medicine for a time, and it will surely make you feel fine.

It does not contain poison in any form, or narcotics that only relieve pain, but the different roots and herbs that regulate the system. It stimulates the stomach, liver and kidneys into healthy action, helps digestion and keeps the bowels regular, expels all gases from the system and takes away the bad feeling around the heart and fearful feeling from the head, depressed spirits and melancholy simply vanish and a cheerful spirit takes their place. B'Well is a blessing to those that feel life is a burden, to them; that are downhearted and unhappy from disease. B'Well carries the poison out of the system through the natural channels of health, and, as the poison is carried out of the system, nature restores herself, and a cheerful spirit follows, as there is nothing like good health to make a person cheerful and happy. People treated for Epileptic Fits have been restored by its use. Don't ask me if it cures this, that and the other diseases. It is different from most medicines advertised as cure-alls, and I am not advertising this remedy as such, but simply advertising it as a medicine that has and will regulate the system, carry the poison out of the blood, and common sense must surely tell you the result. Men and women who have been nervous wrecks with hollow cheeks and sunken brow, have become plump, healthy and cheerful from its use, and I can only say what it has done for others it will surely do for you. Young men and women whose faces were covered with pimples and a sickening sight to look at, are now free from them from its use. Men, women and children who had eating ulcers and running sores have been healed, and what it has done for them it is likely to do for you.

Prof. Mulveney's World Famous Tapeworm Remedy is saving thousands of valuable lives, and B'Well is doing just as much for those requiring this kind of medicine.

B'Well is put up in powder form for convenience to send to foreign places by mail, which does away with all breakages. The package of powder makes twice as much medicine for the same amount of money. Full directions for making. Price $1.25, six packages $6.00.

Write for further information, free, and send self-addressed, stamped envelope with your address written plainly for reply. These remedies are sold only by Prof. R. L. Mulveney, 211 Ossington avenue, Toronto, Ont.

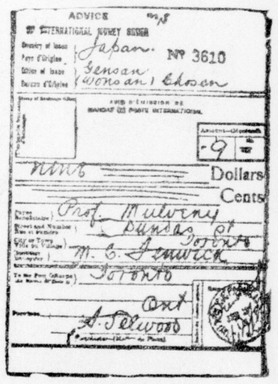
PROF. MULVENEY'S PLEASING ANNOUNCEMENT

Ladies and Gentlemen,—In making this announcement, it is my earnest desire to spread glad tidings of joy, for the remedies I am going to talk about have brought joy to thousands who have used them, and their smile of satisfaction and relief has brought joy to myself. I would be pleased to have you call at my office at 211 Ossington Avenue and see the evidence of what these remedies have done; I am sure you will be more than surprised. An eminent lawyer of this city called one day to purchase some of my Worm Remedy for his boy. After looking around a few minutes, this was his remark: Well, said he, you have the evidence here. I have read about your remedies, but had no idea you were doing such wonderful work for suffering humanity, a person must see before they can realize, you are certainly a public benefactor. An eminent physician called to purchase my Tape Worm Remedy; after looking around, he said: You certainly have us all beaten on this job. He purchased my remedy, which proved satisfactory, and this physician sends all his patients suffering from Tape Worm to purchase my Remedy. A lady from Newmarket called, she was wonderfully impressed with the sight of the exhibit of parasites, she purchased my remedy, and her last words before leaving were: Prof. Mulveney, you are an angel of mercy, may God spare you, you are doing a wonderful work. A gentleman called the other day, he had two children with him. Said he, pointing to the younger of the two, you see that little one; well she took fits and we had her treated by many doctors without relief. We were recommended to try your Mother's Friend. The first few doses relieved her; she has not had a fit since; you can see how healthy she looks; I am buying this bottle for the boy, he has not been well lately, and I am sure Mother's Friend will do as much for him as it did for her; she has not had a fit for over two years. I receive many letters from people who have been relieved of tapeworm, who are highly delighted, and finish their letter with a prayer that God will spare me a long time to continue the good work. This brings me great joy; also to know my remedies are such a blessing to humanity. My remedies are sought for all over the world, as an exhibit of envelopes of letters from anxious enquirers can be seen at my office, 211 Ossington Avenue, from England, Ireland, Scotland, France, Japan, China, India, Klondike, Florida, California, Vancouver, and thousands from other places too numerous to mention, and the letters in my possession received from satisfied customers are sufficient to convince the most skeptical person on earth. I will publish a few as evidence of the wonderful work my remedies are doing, so if you are a sufferer you will know where to get certain relief. You are invited to call and see for yourself.



A miniature photographic reproduction of postal advice for an order of $9.00, balance due on tapeworm remedy sent to a party in Wanson, Corea, Japan. The first letter was 60 days reaching here, and it contained $1.00. On account of the long time it would take to communicate two or three times, Prof. Mulveney sent the remedy stating it was $10.00 (ten dollars), and trusted to the honesty of the party to send the other nine dollars, which he received three months later. This shows his appreciation and that honesty of principle stands the test, and distance makes no difference.

Take a Dundas car, get off at Ossington Avenue.

"WHEN THE FURNACE GOES OUT"

ORDER YOUR
THIS SPRING

CLEANING UP SEASON IS HERE WITH SPRING

REPAIRS NEEDED

Many Valuable Suggestions Presented On This Page To Help in Work.

The snow and ice have gone. The birds are moving north. Flowers, just a little more venturesome than most of their kind, are already blooming. Spring is here.

And with the coming of spring there comes that period of rehabilitation and repair. Some call it housecleaning time—we prefer the niftier name although it means the same thing.

The furnace that has done duty through another winter will have to receive that much needed attention —new pipes, new grates, a thorough cleaning. Perhaps it has "played its last tune"—you may need a new one. Then again you may signalize the advent of spring by planning and building that home you have pictured so long. This year is a good year for building.

When the furnace goes out there will be the question of an available supply of hot water at all times. Gas and electric heaters will have to be repaired or installed.

Spring means out-of-doors and you will naturally think of the many, many people who will be scrutinizing the outside of your home. Look at it yourself. Then think how much nicer it will look and how much more proud of it you will be when it has "had its face washed," and has been dressed up in a new coat of paint.

Your clothes will also claim a great deal of your attention. The winter apparel will have to be cleaned, pressed and stored safely away for the summer. And the clothes that did service last year—they will have to be brightened up and pressed ready for the coming season.

Numerous other things will come up to bid for a share of your attention in order that this summer may be better and brighter.

On this page are listed a number of progressive merchants and manufacturers who are bidding for your patronage. Look over and check up your requirements. Read the advertisements. Then to the firm who solicits you from this page give out your work. They are tried and proven in their line and can simplify what now looks to you like a "great big job."

TORONTO WOMAN HEADS ANTI-WAR DELEGATION

Associated Press Despatch.

Washington, May 2.—A deputation of British delegates headed by Mrs. Christine Ross Barker of Toronto, drove to the British embassy this afternoon to advocate adoption of a motion to outlaw wars which was introduced a short time ago in the British House of Commons.

W. G. RAYMOND TO RENEW DEBATE ON BUDGET PLANS

Brantford Member Is Expected To Vote Against the Government.

EULER DOING SAME

Special to The Advertiser.

Ottawa, May 2.—The budget debate will have to speed up if progress is going to be made on it. There have been days when the party whips have been at a loss to know who to put in from their side of the House.

Monday will probably see W. G. Raymond of Brantford take the floor, and his remarks are awaited with some interest as expressing the opinion of the makers of agricultural implements. His criticism of the speech from the throne as it touched on the intimation that there might be a decrease in the duty on implements would lead to the belief that he will follow much the same course when speaking on the budget. There is this one difference, that where he voted with the government on the speech from the throne, he will probably vote against the budget of the government.

There is also some speculation regarding the course to be followed by W. D. Euler of Kitchener. He was elected as an Independent Liberal, and has always been inclined to follow that course in the House, although he has given consistent support and assistance to the government in debate and voting. His address will come early in the week. From what can be learned, Mr. Euler will vote the same as Mr. Raymond of Brantford against the government.

With these two exceptions, it is expected that the Liberals of Ontario in the House will vote with the government.

From a source generally regarded as very reliable, it was learned tonight that Hon. Mackenzie King, the prime minister, has received additional information regarding the attitude of some of the makers of agricultural implements, and it would cause no surprise were he to deal with this phase in his address.

UNEMPLOYMENT SITUATION IN TORONTO UNCHANGED

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, May 2.—The employment situation in Toronto has not changed during the past week and the male registrations at the employment office still number over 4,000. In contrast to the quiet state of affairs at the men's bureau, the women's employment bureau has been quite busy handling a large number of domestics who have arrived from the old country, most of whom have been provided with jobs.

TRAFFIC BOTHERSOME.

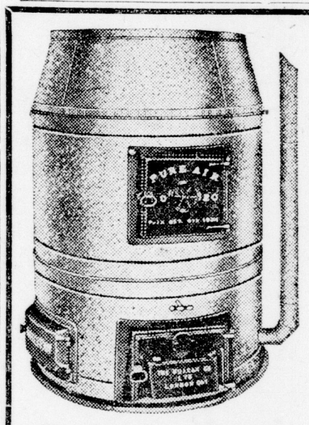
Two citizens paid $10 each in police court yesterday for violations of the highway traffic act, while another contributed $2 for riding on the sidewalk.

SNOW GEESE FORWARDED JACK MINER, KINGSVILLE

Canadian Press Despatch.

Quebec, May 2.—Acting at the request of the commission of conservation, the Sportsmen's Fish and Game Protective Association issued instructions a few days ago to its guides at Cape Tourmente, 25 miles east of Quebec, to trap some greater snow geese, a variety of migratory birds, which twice a year make their home at the point mentioned.

Five of them were caught in padded traps and were forwarded alive to Jack Miner, naturalist, at Kingsville, Ont., where they will be subjected to study.



THE PURE AIR FURNACE IS EXACTLY WHAT ITS NAME IMPLIES

The Pure Air Furnace is different in one essential feature — it constantly takes fresh, pure air from the outside, heats it and passes it up through the registers for heating the dwelling. Other warm air furnaces simply circulate the same old air over and over again. In a home heated by the Pure Air Furnace you always find the air fresh, snappy and invigorating.

Write or call for catalogue giving complete details of this furnace—its principle of operation—its fuel economy and construction.

She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Escaped the Operation Doctor Advised

Louisville, Ky.—"I wish to thank you for what your medicine has done for me. I was in bed for eight or nine days every month and had a great deal of pain. The doctor said my only relief was an operation. I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines and tried the Vegetable Compound and the Sanative Wash, and they surely did wonders for me. I feel fine all the time now, also am picking up in weight. I will tell any one that your medicines are wonderful, and you may publish my letter if you wish."—Mrs. ED. BOEHNLEIN, 1130 Ash St., Louisville, Ky.

Backache, nervousness, painful times, irregularity, tired and run-down feelings, are symptoms of female troubles. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound should be taken whenever there is reason to fear such troubles. It contains nothing that can injure, and tends to tone up and strengthen the organs concerned, so that they may work in a healthy, normal manner. Let it help you as it has thousands of others. COOLIDGE FAVORS EXCLUSION OF JAPS

U. S. President Hopes Measure Will Not Create Friction.

Associated Press Despatch.

Washington, D.C., May 2.—President Coolidge came out today for Japanese exclusion.

The president has no doubt that there will be an exclusion bill finally enacted, but in his conference with congressional leaders, is attempting to arrange it in a manner courteous to Japan.

Hopes are entertained by the executive that a bill will be finally enacted which will provide for exclusion and at the same time avoid any deep offence to the Japanese people.

DEATH OF GUELPH LAD REMAINS A MYSTERY

Special to The Advertiser.

Guelph, May 2.—A post-mortem examination, held this afternoon on the body of Angelo Beletti, three-year-old Italian lad, who was found dead on Alice street at an early hour this morning, revealed the fact that the lad's neck had been broken in two places, and also showed a mark believed to have been caused by a wagon wheel passing over him.

The police, after making a careful investigation today, were unable to find any person who could throw any light on the fatality, but it is surmised that the little fellow was run down by a milk wagon which passed along Alice street shortly before the body was found. Dr. T. H. Orton impaneled a jury this afternoon and opened an inquest, which was later adjourned until Tuesday night next.

HERE'S A RECORD TO BE PROUD OF DUNLOP SCORES AGAIN!

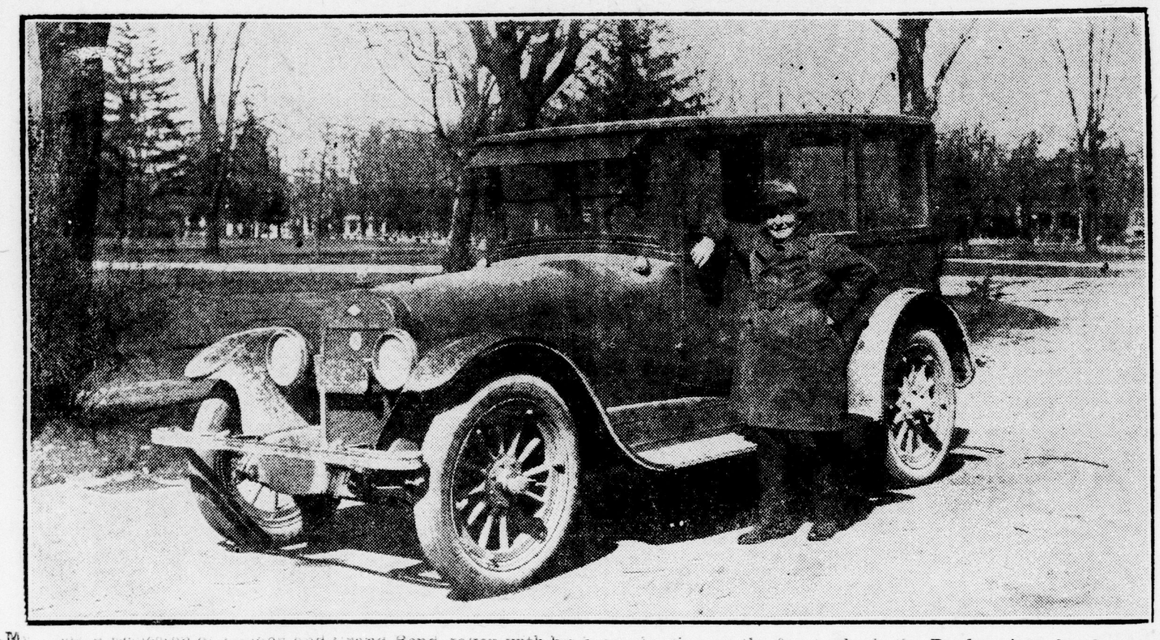
20,000 MILES AND STILL GOING STRONG

TIME OR DISTANCE NO TERROR TO DUNLOPS



Mr. George Eccleston of London and Grand Bend, taken with his car, showing on the front wheels the Dunlop tires that have made such a remarkable record—21,502 miles and never off the car.

Remarkable Performance of Dunlop Tires Cause of Much Comment

A whole host of records are going by the boards in these days of keen competition. In the realm of sport almost daily we see records that have stood for years shattered over night. Every year sees new speed records established on the various speedways throughout the country—only to fall by the way the following year, due to more skillful driving and advanced motor car construction.

It is not strange then that automobile tires should come in for their share of attention in this respect. Guarantees that tire companies deemed adequate for years are being realized by almost every motorist to his entire satisfaction.

The Dunlop Tire Company feel no little pride in the achievement of a pair of their tires purchased three years ago as part of the original equipment on a large seven-passenger sedan by Mr. George Eccleston of London and Grand Bend. Mr. Eccleston has subjected these tires to all sorts of hard usage—has made numerous trips to Detroit, Toronto, New York, Philadelphia, and has also made two round trips to Florida—until today these tires have turned in the almost unbelievable mileage of 21,502 miles. This in itself is remarkable, but when you add to this fact that he has gone all this distance and never once had the tires off the front wheels of his car—has never had the air out of them—has never had a puncture—and that today they look good for at least the original mileage guarantee, the performance looks like one that will stand for quite some time without being successfully challenged.

Canada's Pavilion Is Finest Structure At Wembley Show

Lovat Fraser Declares British Put To Shame by Dominion's Building.

FINE WORKMANSHIP

Noted British Journalist Makes Some Comparisons On Exhibits.

By HENRY SOMERVILLE.
Special Correspondence to The Advertiser.

London, April 24.—Comparisons are undeniably odious, but it was inevitable that comparisons should be made between the exhibits of the various parts of the empire at the great British Empire Exhibition at Wembley. A comparison has been made, not by a Canadian, but by Loval Fraser, one of the most widely-read of British journalists, in the Sunday Pictorial. His words may be reproduced here:

"The interior of the Canadian pavilion, which would dwarf any railway terminus in London, is, without doubt, the most beautifully decorated, the most artistically conceived, and in many respects the most charming structure in the exhibition. The Australian pavilion is very fine, too, and both of them do the heart good to see, for they convey a suggestion of youth and vigor and prosperity; but Australia has gone to work on simple lines, and has not striven after the subtle grace which is apparent the instant one enters the Canadian building. This surprised me very much, for I know something of both dominions. Under the warm Italian skies of Australia, a very distinctive school is developing in paintng, decoration and architecture; but I was not aware that austere Canada was much attracted by the arts. This time Canada has beaten everybody, and puts the plain interiors of our British palaces to shame."

Bankers Pay Ryan Reward

Inspector Walter Duncan of the Dominion police, who trailed Ryan to Minneapolis, where he was arrested, is here today, but would not admit that he had received $2,000 of the reward, as stated in some quarters.

If you desire a Cord Tire with a good record, but selling at a lower price than "Traction" Cord, you will decide in favor of Dunlop "Clipper" Cord—a tire that is being chosen by owners of many different makes of cars.

Dunlop "Traction" Fabric

Bus and Truck Heavy Service (30 x 3½) Dunlop "Traction" Cord

Dunlop "Clipper" Fabric

If you prefer the highest-grade Fabric Tire, selling at virtually the same price as "Clipper" Cord, then your choice will be Dunlop "Traction" Fabric.

If it is a competitive price tire you want—but still one that is of recognized value—then you will buy Dunlop "Clipper" Fabric.

If the tire desired is for Livery and Truck purposes—in size 30 x 3½—Dunlop "Bus and Truck Type" tire is "just the thing." You do not need to purchase tires of doubtful or unknown quality when you can obtain nationally known, sure quality Dunlop Tires to meet every requirement, such as referred to above.

"These Are the Only Tires You Need"

As the tube is a vital part of the casing, it will pay to see that your expenditures for casings are amply protected by the purchase of Dunlop Regular Tubes or Dunlop Extra Heavy Tubes. There are no better tubes made, and, like Dunlop Tires, they are all fairly priced.

The Dunlop name and seal on each and every one of the above-mentioned Tires and Tubes is your protection and a guarantee that no matter what price you may pay, or what grade you may select, you are sure of full value and honest service, backed up by the Dunlop reputation of thirty years' standing.

London Advertiser

The London Advertiser was established in 1863, and is published four times daily by London Advertiser Company, Limited. The subscription rates are: London, 15 cents weekly. By mail: In Canada, $5.00 yearly; in the United States, $6.00 yearly.

The Advertiser is represented in Toronto at 95 King street east and in Montreal at 1013-1014 Transportation Building, by J. B. Rathbone; in New York at Park Lexington Building; in Chicago at Wrigley Building; and in Boston at Old South Building, by C. H. Eddy Company.

SATURDAY, MAY 3, 1924.

Changing the Seats Around.

The committee sitting at Ottawa in connection with redistribution has a delicate problem to handle. Toronto is almost certain to claim and to get two additional members, the unit of representation there being placed at about 58,000. North Essex, by reason of its growth, will probably have a claim good enough to secure two members instead of one.

Northern Ontario, owing to development in recent years, will have additional representation in Algoma and Nipissing. Welland, with 66,668 on the 1921 census, is also asking for consideration.

In all, it seems possible there may be six new seats created in Ontario, and this means that six other seats will have to be wiped out. This is not going to be an easy matter to attend to without working hardship.

Some of the discrepancies are very apparent. North Perth has 32,461 population, against 18,382 in South Perth, yet each riding has one member.

East Peterborough has 13,716, while the west riding has a population of 29,318, or over twice as many as the east.

Russell has a population of 43,413 with one member, while Prince Edward has a member for its 16,806 people. North Wellington has 19,833, while South Wellington shows 34,327. East Algoma's population is 40,618; Dufferin has 15,415, yet each riding has one member. East Elgin is a small riding in population, with 17,306, the west riding showing 10,000 more.

London city, with 53,838 in the section of the city included in the riding, has one member, yet it has more population than East and West Middlesex combined, the former with 27,994 and the latter 25,033.

It is an easy matter for cities to present their claims in very concrete fashion. On the basis of population, they can point to their increases, and claim that according to representation by population they are entitled to more seats.

In this way the tendency grows to place the increasing representation with the cities. The more that people huddle themselves together in cities the more will their voice be heard and their votes felt in the matter of making legislation.

It is not easy to arrive at any other basis of working, yet the danger is that rural districts are going to lose part of their voice. Cities are very apt to see things from the viewpoint of cities, and it is a fact that the problem of the man on the land might suffer in this atmosphere. It is desirable that rural Ontario shall still have the channel through which to speak audibly at Ottawa.

Letters to the Editor.

The Forest Free Press makes mention of a letter appearing from a resident of Forest in The Advertiser.

The comment is made: "If they wish to publish false statements anonymously they can find space in The London Advertiser.

That is a charge that one reputable newspaper would hardly make against another. It has all the earmarks of a man wishing to compress something powerful into one small sentence.

The Advertiser publishes letters from its readers, the stipulation being that their signatures must be sent with the letter to identify the writer. If the correspondent, for reasons of his own, desires to use a pen name in the paper, there is no objection.

The letter in question came from well-known citizens of Forest, who stated their views on the waterworks expense and the way publicity had been given to the case. They acted quite within their rights as citizens in stating their views, and The Advertiser was quite right in allowing its columns to be used to give expression to them.

The Free Press statement that the columns of The Advertiser are open to letters from Forest citizens who wish to make false statements is based on intolerance. If the Forest paper had considered the matter seriously it would probably never have made use of the phrase.

When Hansard Saves the Day.

Hansard, that long-suffering paper at Ottawa that carries a verbatim report of every speech made in the House of Commons, comes to the rescue of many a speaker who hits upon a dull hour in a duller day to place his views before the Parliament of Canada.

It is 5:30 on Thursday afternoon. There are 28 members in their places out of a total of 234. Some 64 are on the private bills committee, and they are listening to the pros and cons of the church union case.

A member from Northern Ontario rises after the routine of the day to pick up the thread of debate where he left off the previous evening. He quotes figures and dividends, tons of metal and ounces of gold. A couple of members finish writing notes and snap their fingers for page boys, who scamper off to carry these tremendously important documents. These boys should walk—it is too great a break in the dreadful quiet of the chamber. A couple of Progressive members exchange nods with the Speaker and withdraw. Like the old nursery rhyme, 28 legislators sat in the hall, two went out, then there were 26.

Then Denis from St. Denis rises in his seat straight out from the elbow of the Speaker. He is taking no chances with words. He reads his document in forceful French—at least it seems forceful, because he puts lots of force behind it.

Hon. H. H. Stevens, from away off in Vancouver, has found something of interest in an afternoon paper; Hon. A. B. Copp is also filling his mental silo from the pages of the daily press. Two from the Conservative side decide to leave—24 left.

Hon. W. R. Motherwell pens a letter, holding the quill firmly between the first and second fingers. It may be that he is answering a letter from some merchant up the country who wants to wreck the government if it persists in egg grading.

One French member seems impressed at what Denis from St. Denis has said, for he pounds his desk and says something that amounts to "Hear, hear."

Frank White from London has a pencil and a piece of paper; he draws figures and scrolls. Mathew Duncan from North Grey yawns as he wonders if the seeding is finished in his riding.

Hon. Charles Stewart and Hon. James Murdock are holding the fort for the ministerial section. Mr. Stewart comes for a little chat with the Speaker. One from the right, one from the left go out—22 left.

Mr. Garland speaks to save the nation, as all good Conservatives should; he gets on dangerous ground about pensions and Sir Henry Drayton turns around to wink at him. Another Progressive leaves, and one from the Liberal side—20 remain.

It is ten minutes to six. Six women are in the galleries and three men, while two lone watchers sit on the press benches; there is no copy in the performance, but they stay.

Twenty left, just enough to keep going. Tommy Church counts on his fingers, and holds up his five knuckles four times. He's going to watch for the next man to leave and have his little joke with the Speaker. One more Progressive rises—19—no, Dr. Rankin from Perth comes through the curtains at the back and takes his seat. He has been at a redistribution meeting. He enters all unconscious of the fact that he saved the great parliamentary machine from stalling right at the door of the garage.

But the Hansard reporters, working on relay, have taken every word, and it will read just as convincingly to the voters at home as though the whole 234 members were there, thundering applause or offering criticism. It's a great institution. Blessed be Hansard.

The Property of the People.

From a small beginning, hydro enterprises in Ontario have reached the place where they are referred to in terms of millions of dollars involved.

The fact that the Chippawa enterprise has so soon demonstrated its feasibility is good news. Sir Adam Beck and the men associated with him are entitled to credit for the way in which this scheme has been carried out.

It is a practical demonstration of what the people can do for themselves when they go ahead and replace theory with accomplishment.

Where the Money Goes.

Six hundred millions of dollars, probably more, is lost in a year through "get rich quick" schemes launched on this continent.

Earning, spending and saving seem to be big problems for the average man and woman.

A life insurance expert has figured out how the average income is spent as follows: Out of each dollar 24½c goes for living expenses, 22c for luxuries, 14c is wasted, 13½c goes for "sundries," 11c is "invested," 8¼c pays for crime, 4½c is for the government, 1½c maintains our schools and ¾c goes to the churches.

The remarkable thing, however, is that of 11c "invested," 3c goes into life insurance, but that small fraction creates 87 per cent of all estates.

Under the circumstances, the life insurance companies are not out of order when they suggest that more of our incomes be intrusted to them.

These figures are interesting, if not even alarming. The life insurance companies are not out of order in stressing the immense amount of sound estates they create out of the small percentage of the nation's earnings that is turned their way.

Note and Comment.

It would have been all right dancing around the May pole this year provided a red flannel shirt were included in the outfit.

Black and white is a favorite decoration for ladies' hats this year. The Holsteins adopted this color scheme a long time ago.

Bolshevik Russia carries on its propaganda in British India, yet fails to understand why Old London is not cheering for a loan to Russia.

A New York woman is suing for $25,000 because when she got her hair treated it turned pink and then fell out. Now her chief trouble is that her new outfit may turn sideways and then fall off.

Sir Henry Thornton, speaking at Winnipeg, predicted that in two years the Canadian Nationals would be paying their way. The man who can take a poor concern and put it on its feet is sure of plenty of elbow room in Canada. We need a whole tribe of that variety.

The first round in London's bargaining with the street railway has ended. Both men retired to their corners breathing a bit heavily. The city council will now proceed to fan Mayor Wenige with Bylaw 916 until round two begins next week. The Free Press will probably pan him with anything that's handy.

Thornton tells Winnipeg that in two years the Canadian National should be "self-supporting and profitable," and that it is "the best bet he knows in the transportation game." What a fresh breeze in all the ancient fog of despair! Will someone please lead out Arthur Meighen and Henry Drayton? We want them to have a whiff or two. It will put some color into those pale cheeks.

GET THIS BOOK ON ETIQUETTE.

Why are you unmarried? Why will girls have nothing to do with you? Why do they snub you on the street?

The answer is obvious. You have not read Pratt's Book of Etiquette. It teaches you how to behave like a gentleman when you aren't one. Invest $2 (50c down) in this book and we guarantee that you will marry an heiress in six months.

It gives you firsthand information on fashions for the well-dressed ham. It explains the science of bean eating. It makes you a master of that famous parlor trick of flipping a bean up to the ceiling with your knife and catching it in your mouth on the rebound. We answer all questions on etiquette. Here are a few samples:

Q.—Is it necessary to have flashing eyes to attract women? A.—Flashing a bankroll is much more effective.

Q.—If a girl drops her purse should I pick it up for her? A.—Not unless you care to go to jail for attempted theft.

Q.—How can I prevent my dancing partner from stepping on my toes? A.—Step on hers first.

Q.—A girl let me kiss her last night. What do you think of that? A.—We think she must have been terribly hard up.

Q.—When I became engaged I was given to understand my fiance had money. Now I learn that her mother has the money. What shall I do? A.—Marry mother.

Q.—When riding in the back seat I always put my arm round Stella. What should I do with the other arm? A.—Hasn't Stella a nice girl friend?

These sample questions and answers are tangible proof that Pratt's Book of Etiquette can make gentlemen out of thugs. Do you want to be a thug all your life? Certainly not! Then fill in attached coupon. We need your money.

About Gradin' Eggs

In years gone by we went to shop, my aunt, my uncle and my cousin, we bought eggs at the corner store and counted out each Leghorn dozen.

And in them days the eggs was fresh, just picked from out the barnyard stack, and if they musted to your smell you forthwith took the dozen back.

It was a simple way to deal, no legal trappin's in the path, them eggless folks around the block they went and bought from him that hath.

But we've been marchin' on since then, a-lookin' here and there for flaws, until the humble egg trade now is fenced about with rules and laws.

They're gradin' at the hen fruit now, and folks is pressed to understand just how to buy the eggs they want from them what dwell upon the land.

For 'cordin' to the statue book there's 57 kinds today, and puzzled men they figure out what kind it is you took away.

They're extra fresh the day they start, then fresh for two hours after that; selects and grades and storage eggs and then what's ancient like and flat.

It may be fine to do such things and pass a act to make it law, and chase the beggar with a club who sells a egg that boasts a flaw.

Perhaps Im ancient in my views, my reasonin' needs a cane or crutch, but I'm most sure in many ways we're regulated far too much.

Getting Away From Oneself

THE most miserable person in the world is the one who is never able t oescape from himself.

Let others argue whether one is one's own best friend or one's great enemy; one thing is sure, one is one's greatest bore.

The trouble with the egotist is that he is forever thinking of himself.

It is this which makes him not only intolerable to others but internally wretched.

People that are always being hurt, always having their toes stepped on, finding umbrage in every casual remark, are people who are living in a cell, where their only companion is self.

The secret of happiness is escape.

The pleasure we get from the beauty of nature is that by means of it we can go out from ourselves, and mingle with the larger universe.

WHO has not known the joy of this escape? Sometimes when our inner thoughts are black, when the puzzles of life drive us to despair, when the devils of morbidity flood us, if we can grasp the glory of a golden sunset, the majesty of mountains, the wide peace of valleys, the mothering calm of a summer day, the joyance of young spring or the brisk challenge of snow-covered fields in winter, we can get away from our hated selves and taste the delicious medicine of nature.

The bluebird of happiness is outside.

"Look out, not in," was the terse maxim of Edward Everett Hale. It is also well to look up, not down.

After all the ministry of culture and of education is to provide the soul with avenues of escape.

When we wander through an art gallery and are trained well enough to enjoy the masterpieces there, we are stepping out of our own narrow houses into a palace beautiful.

When we listen to a concert and know enough to appreciate the beauty of music, we have escaped again.

When we read a skillful tale, when we play a game, when we lose ourselves in work; in all these ways we are simply slipping out of our prison and enjoying the outdoors of unself.

And this is at the bottom of that command of religion which tells us to live for others. It is not a fanciful nor unnatural precept. It is based upon the psychological truth that in proportion as the spirit of man goes out of himself and finds its interest in others, it finds its true blessedness.

As a matter of fact, no man finds himself until he gets away from himself.

ENGLAND SEES CANADA

By H. SOMERVILLE
62 Chatto Road, London, S. W.

THE untravelled people of the Old Country have many romantic illusions about Canada. They are quite prepared for all the British Empire Exhibition can show them in the way of prairie scenes and gold nuggets and stuffed beavers and mammoth lumber logs. What good English folk are surprised to find is that Canada is not simply a pioneer land but a country of developed civilization. The manufacturing exhibits are an eye-opener to England of what Canada has achieved, and perhaps still more educative is the specimen of a Canadian home given as a Canadian government exhibit. Though a government exhibit it has been arranged by Mr. Anderson of the T. Eaton Company and the goods are taken from that company's ordinary stock.

One characteristic of the English people at the present day is their interest in housefurnishing. The most popular newspapers run "Ideal Home" competitions and exhibitions year in and year out. At the Empire Exhibition is a Canadian conception of the "ideal home," and it is vastly interesting. Truth to tell, there is not very much distinctively Canadian about this home. It is not strikingly different from what one would see in a refined and modern English home. The English spectator will see in this Canadian house nothing that looks strange or unfamiliar, but something which, while having its own consistent individuality, borrows inspiration from Italy, from the English renaissance and from the Orient. The arts of other lands and other ages are freely drawn upon and adapted in this home where every single piece of material is of Canadian origin and manufacture.

The chances are that the visitor will first see the dining-room. Here there is an effect of richness, homeliness, and yet of a certain ruggedness. The furniture is solid walnut, not too much polished, but showing the grain. The floor looks like dull red marble with strongly-marked whitish veins. It is not marble, however, but rubber, and the white markings go right through so they will never be obliterated by wear. There is throughout the room a suggestion of Italian influence. The walls and ceiling resemble sand-coated plaster of old ivory color. Consistently with the absence of too much polish and delicacy in this room the hangings are of some such fabric as mohair, flame-colored, and are cunningly looped over a pole without the use of rings. The upholstery is of flame damask. The rug is of Axminster quality and Persian design, but it was made in Peterborough, Ont. On the service table are electrical devices which are novelties to English visitors. These are an electrical chafing dish, a percolator and a toaster by which you can turn the toast without touching it. There is an oil painting on the wall, the work of a Canadian artist, being a reproduction of an old Italian Madonna.

New Things to Look at.

NEXT we see the guest chamber. The English eye detects as a truly Canadian feature electric curling tongs and an electric comb, which, it is explained, a lady finds useful for drying her hair. On the floor in a suede bag is an electric iron so that a guest can press his clothes. In this room are twin beds, the bedspreads and curtains being Dunville fabric. The color scheme is rose and gray warmed up with ivory.

Another bedroom is the owner's room. Here the color scheme is gray and mulberry warmed up by an electric lamp with gold-colored shade. The rug has a plain blue center, but the border introduces a Chinese influence. In a corner of the room is a chaise lounge where the owner reclines for a siesta. Over the lounge a silver bridge lamp is suspended. On a table is a doll lamp, the capacious frock which to a masculine eye looks crinoline serving as a shade. One remembers that a similar sort of dainty doll with wide frock ornaments the guests' room, but there it covers not a lamp but a telephone.

Canadian Ideas All Through.

THE finest room in the house is the living-room which in style is a modern adaptation of the English renaissance period. The wall-paper is of a neutral shade of ivory with stiles of a somewhat darker hue being panelled with walnut mouldings. The floor is of quartered oak and there is a beautful Axminster rug of Turkish design. There is an electric fireplace; the mantel has no shelf and has hearth and face of Canadian marble. The draperies are made of artificial silk and cotton stripe velours. They were made in Oshawa, and in texture, design and color are masterpieces of textile art. The pictures are hung from the mouldings by silk cords falling perpendicularly which is a rather novel way of hanging. The pictures themselves are all by Canadian artists. Two pictures, "Summer" and "Winter" are by Mr. Fleming of Chatham; another two "Autumn" and a pastoral scene, are by Herbert Palmer. There is a bronze statue by Alfred Howell of the Toronto Central Technical School. All the books in the bookcase are by Canadian authors, and on the top of the bookcase is a bit of Morris art pottery baked and turned in Canada. A lamp of gunmetal finish is also an example of Canadian pottery. The piano is a Toronto made baby grand, and the music on the stand is "O Canada!" Absolutely everything in the house is Canadian and indeed most of it is Ontario. Ladies from the finest homes in England have visited this Canadian house and have been charmed with its combination of beauty and convenience.

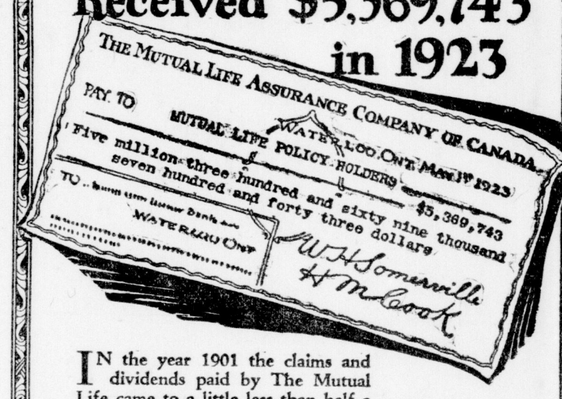
Mutual Policyholders Received $5,369,743 in 1923



IN the year 1901 the claims and dividends paid by The Mutual Life came to a little less than half a million dollars. Last year The Mutual Life of Canada paid to policyholders and their beneficiaries $5,369,743—more than ten times the amount paid in 1901!

Who can say what sorrows were sweetened, what anxieties were eased, by the distribution of these great sums? Who is there that doubts the benefit of Mutual profit participation when $2,193,081 out of the above amount was paid in cash to participating policyholders in profits for one year.

Let our agent explain Mutual Profit Participation. Write us for literature.

IS MR. MAN BECOMING NAMBY-PAMBY?

Modern Males Too Soft Says Famous English Woman Doctor —Toronto Pathologist Declares It is the Female Sex Which is Degenerating—But There Are Men in Toronto Who Dwell In Scented Ease

By G. C.

ARE men becoming namby-pamby?

A famous English woman doctor says they are.

She refers not merely to Englishmen. They, she says, "are not so bad as Americans." And between the two, Canadians may be said to stand.

Dr. Jane Walker, of Harley street, London, puts it this way:

"The modern man is becoming too soft. The early morning cup of tea in bed is a perfectly silly self indulgence. The Englishman's cold tub, once historic, is rapidly going out of fashion. A hot bath may make him cleaner, but——!

"Then there is the question of smoking.

The cigaret habit is growing faster and faster, and no one can condemn chain-smoking too much. If a man is going to smoke, let him smoke a pipe.

"It is, by the way, just as well for the modern Englishman that he seems incapable of drinking as much as his father or grandfather did, and that one never hears of two-bottle men nowadays.

"Another sign of growing softness is the use of spats. No doubt they serve a useful purpose in keeping the ankles warm.

"What about women, though? They wear the thinnest of thin silk stockings, and suffer no harm. Let me say I admire the modern girl tremendously.

"It is well enough for an old man of sixty to wear spats, but not for anyone younger. They were dispensed with entirely by our grandfathers. Woolly waistcoats are another modern way of getting soft. And as for fur-lined overcoats, if I ever see anyone wearing one I feel at once that I am dealing with a decadent. Company promoters frequently wear them.

"People nowadays stay far too long in bed. You ought to get up as soon as you wake. But beds, also, are too soft. No words fit young men who go and have their hands manicured. It is bad enough to wear thick gloves."

What about Canadian men?

Has the motor tour taken the place of the canoe trip into the wilds? Have golf and bridge ousted fishing and hunting in the rigorous outdoors? Are the men seeking softness and comfort and ease on every hand to escape the hardening virtues of rougher and less comfortable living?

☆ ☆ ☆

"Of course men are becoming softer," he said. "They have been getting softer ever since the beginning. Men are softer than they were in Boadicea's or King Arthur's time. So are women. I am softer than my grandfather was.

"Street cars, autos, pavements, furnaces, brick houses, decent clothing have all contributed to making us softer.

"But——healthier!

"Being hard isn't necessarily to be healthy. There's the biggest mistake people can make. In my practise, I have found thousands of great, husky, hard toilers who were by no means healthy. And I have at the same time met thousands of little, soft, sheltered comfortable men who hadn't a hard muscle in their bodies, who were the very acme of good health.

"I live within a half mile of where my grandfather dwelt on a farm. If I want to go to King and Yonge streets, I either back out my car and drive in perfect comfort, through wind or rain, or I get slightly exposed to the weather walking to a street car.

"But my poor old grandfather, a hard and hardy man, had either to walk nine miles over fearful mud roads, in dire discomfort if the weather so willed, or he had to get out and harness a horse to a flat wagon and drive miserably, through snow or rain. He was hard because he had to be hard. We are not hard, because we don't need be. That's about the answer.

"You wouldn't say we are any softer than we were in 1913. We had bars and flowing booze then, a very softening thing. We had all the comforts we have now, and I remember distinctly that we took full advantage of them. Yet, overnight, practically, that whole world rose up and went to war, lay on the ground at night, lived like cattle in the fields, ate extraordinary food, got soaked whenever it rained, froze when it froze, and in a few weeks at the most, hardened themselves to meet the hard conditions.

"Hardness is no virtue, in my opinion. We can be fit without being hard. We can be healthy without being husky. So why go about like a lunatic avoiding all the comforts that have been devised just to make a tradition survive. The fad for hardness is no less absurd than the desire of certain cults to go back to the state of nature that the Greeks enjoyed.

"I know something of the ancient Greeks. If they lived to-day, with our advantages, they would have brought comfort and softness to a refinement we don't even dream of."

ONE of the leading diagnosticians and pathologists of Toronto takes the absolutely opposite stand.

"Men," he says, "here and everywhere, are in splendid shape compared with the women. Something serious is happening to the female branch of humanity.

"I take the view that it is not the men but the women who are getting namby-pamby. I think you'll find that there is a strong impression roaming around that this is the case.

"What about the effeminate Englishman a few years ago when the war came along? The effeminate Englishman, then, came from his haunts and did the work of a superman?

"I think the secret is that the Englishman affects these things, especially when he is catered to by women who want to pet him. You must remember that there are seven women for one man now. And you know the old adage when seven women shall lay hold of one man.

If men are becoming effeminate and degenerate, it's because the women are making them so. They are petting them. The female wants the male, and she finds that she has to compete pretty hard now to get him. So, if there are six females petting one male, he'd have to be a marvel to withstand it. If six females want to bring a man's tea up to him in bed, why the dickens shouldn't he take it?

"It's not so much the men who are the cigaret fiends of to-day. Doctors know it's the women who are smoking the cigarets and drinking the whiskey in this city. It's the women who are degenerating, not the men.

"If, for instance, you go into one of the high-class New York restaurants—I know, for I was there only a few days ago—who do you see doing the drinking? The women, principally. It's the man who carries the flask for the woman to drink. It's the man who carries the cigaret case for the women to smoke. It's certainly the women of the leisure classes in the United States who are degenerating.

"In many ways the whole question is one of sex neurosis. During the war, men were elevated on a pedestal. They were fighting for the women, the children and the old people. The women pitied their heroes. The women worshiped them, and they haven't broken themselves of the habit yet. They are still after their heroes."

"IT is local," insists a Toronto doctor who has a wide experience in one of the wealthier districts of the city. "They had a soft class in Athens and Rome, Versailles and Madrid, from the beginning of history, wherever wealth was accumulated and a hereditary leisure class was evolved.

"I know of cases of just such softnesses as Dr. Walker describes right here in Toronto. I know of men who have coffee brought to them in bed before they rise, men who have servants shave, wash and manicure them, men who dwell in scented ease, actually like girls. But they are in every case inheritors of wealth and ease, pampered and fatheaded, who don't know what to do with their time, but ape the attention-drawing habits of other fatheads they read about in yellow fiction and the ultra-ultra magazines.

"Why, I traced a mysterious malady in the case of a young man of a family well known in the whole of Canada, to the use of cosmetics!

"Then there is effeminacy among those not wealthy, but that, as is well known, is due to a mental weakness, not to any softness other than in the head.

"But among the vast majority of the men of Toronto there is decidedly no namby-pamby-ness. Golfing, motoring for those who can afford it—baseball, football, and—for those who can afford nothing else, good hard work.

"They may not have the coarse hides of their grandfathers, but they have their engines in as perfect order as any past generation."

Standard Time Canuck "Fad" Scientists Thought It Joke

By FRED. WILLIAMS

THE visit to Toronto this summer of the British Association for the Advancement of Science will be a gathering on one common level of the best scientific brains of the Empire, irrespective of whether they were born on one of the British Isles in the North Sea or in one of the self-governing dominions. Canadian and Britisher will be on an equal footing, with the Canadians as the host.

It was not always thus. In the year 1878 a son of Scotland, who had become the most eminent engineer in Canada, Sandford Fleming, of Toronto, one of the founders of the Canadian Institute (later Sir Sandford), wrote to the executive of the British association offering to read a paper at the meeting in Dublin that summer upon the subject of "Terrestrial Time," which he was then urging upon the people of North America, indeed upon the whole world. His offer was accepted and Mr. Fleming proceeded to Dublin, to find that his paper had been put down on the program of the section of mathematics and physical sciences.

Its reading was put off from day to day, but finally it was fixed for August 21. Unfortunately, however, the session ended on the 20th, so Mr. Fleming's paper was never read. It was at the foot of the list, completely ignored. When the Canadian engineer protested all the satisfaction he got was a statement by the secretary that the paper was of little importance, and that anyway the author had no cause for complaint, since he was not a British subject, but "merely a colonial from Canada!"

Mr. Fleming wrote a letter of protest to the then president of the British association, but never received the slightest attention, not even the compliment of an acknowledgement of its receipt.

Four years later, when the B. A. decided to meet in Montreal, its first meeting outside the British Isles, Mr. Fleming had his revenge. The system of standard time, to which we are now so accustomed, had been adopted jointly by the United States and Canada in 1883, and our great engineer was able to write that:

"The British association was coming to this continent to learn that the managers of 100,000 miles of railway, traveled over by more than 50,000,000 people, had taken the step by adopting the system of comparative time reckoning, which as an association it had officially and offensively refused to [illegible]

A CURE FOR SNORING DISCOVERED IN PARIS

SNORING can be suppressed, not only painlessly, but with benefit to those whose musical slumbers sometimes cause insomnia in others. Dr. Georges Gautier, who has for twenty-seven years been studying the human respiratory system, has concluded that in a large proportion of people, particularly city dwellers, says a Paris correspondent, the air passages from the nose to the throat are so small that they materially reduce the supply of fresh air to the lungs, thereby actually shortening life in some cases, and in many others retarding both physical and mental development. Dr. Gautier has therefore perfected a method by which these air passages may be painlessly enlarged. This is achieved by passing from the nostrils to the throat a succession of probes of gradually increasing dimensions.

The result, the doctor claims, is not only comparative freedom from such minor annoyances as colds in the head, but better protection from the microbes of diseases and a more efficient cleansing of the blood stream. Deafness, headaches, asthma, and snoring are among the maladies which have already yielded to treatment, of which the doctor computes about 70 per cent. of the population of Paris are in need.

WHEN SHE SPOKE

THERE was once a one-act play concerning a naval officer who married a girl whom he had found cast away alone on a desert island. The girl was supremely lovely, but was deaf and dumb, the result of the shock received when shipwrecked. A friend, anxious to restore the girl's speech and hearing, discovers that the only chance rests on the girl's experiencing a shock similar to that which caused her disability. The method he adopts is to pick an imaginary quarrel with the girl's husband, and, in her presence, produce a revolver and fire a blank cartridge at him. The experiment is a complete success. At the firing of the pistol the hitherto dumb girl flings herself upon her husband, satisfies herself that he is uninjured, and exclaims, "Thank Gawd 'e didn't 'it yer!"—"Faithful Philanderers," by Basil Macdonald Hastings.

An Underground Idyll

(Dedicated to the Wrigglesome Worm)

DOWN beneath the garden mold,
While for summer we are yearning,
In the dark and damp and cold
All the little worms are turning.
Tra-la-la, tra-la-la,
Slowly in their sleep they're turning.

Fat worms, thin worms, short and long worms,
Brown and red worms, weak and strong worms,
Tall and small worms, plump worms, lean worms,
And the biggest-ever-seen worms,
Tra-la-la, tra-la-la,
Red-nosed, truly-rural-dean worms.

All are turning in their sleep;
Very soon they'll start to creep,
Boring with their noses cold
Through the hard unyielding mold.
Fighting, striving every one,
Creeping upwards to the sun.
Tra-la-la, tra-la-la!
For to show that Spring's begun.

Punishment and Friendship Go Together To These Men Who Are Prisoners and Yet Free

Sometimes They Earn More Than the Parole Chief Officer Himself—Humane System of Handling Ontario Offenders Proves Practical and Generally Successful.

By F. G. GRIFFIN

ONE day some time ago, Dr. Alfred E. Lavell, of Toronto, came out of the Chateau Laurier, Ottawa, and was greeted by a man with whom he stopped and chatted.

They were joined by a well-known judge whom Dr. Lavell introduced to the third man. Leaving the two of them talking, he went back into the hotel for something he had forgotten.

When he came out, the judge and his chance acquaintance were shaking hands in farewell. The latter also took leave in a friendly fashion of Dr Lavell.

"What do you think of him?" Dr. Lavell asked the judge.

"He seems a very decent fellow," replied the judge. "What does he do?"

"You know him. You've met him before."

"No, I don't know him. When did I see him before?"

"Ten months ago. You sentenced him to a year in a reformatory."

"Well," in a surprised tone, "is he out on parole?"

"No, extra mural permit. He's out from Guelph in my custody and in the custody of the chief constable acting on my behalf. And making good, too, as you may judge from his manner and appearance."

This middle-aged man, indeed looked the part of the prosperous, respectable, responsible business man. Yet a year or so formerly he had found himself in difficulties and stolen money, the first and probably the last slip of his life. Justice sentenced him to the year his crime demanded.

When he had served two months it was brought to the attention of Dr. Lavell in his capacity as commissioner for the Extra Mural Employment of Sentenced Persons that the man's wife and family were in a very serious condition. It was found that his employer was willing to take him back—he knew that the man would not make a slip again. So the man came out on permit to serve the remainder of his sentence in his old employment, not free, not released, but outside under suspension, to earn money for his wife and family and to rehabilitate himself as a member of society. During the year, when he might have been a charge on the state, sinking lower morally and spiritually every day he served, to come out in the end under a handicap from which he would probably never recover; when his wife and family might have been a charge on society, suffering, sinking to a social level of want and destitution which might blight the remainder of their lives; the man, instead of being behind prison bars, a useless kept convict, though still a prisoner, was outside winning back his self respect, fulfilling whatever economic value he had in the community, supporting his wife and family and earning more money than Dr. Lavell had received in salary as chief parole officer.

When at the end of the year he reported for formal discharge, instead of being friendless, worthless, a liability to himself, society, his family and his friends, he was on his feet, with tears in his eyes, ashamed, grateful, his lesson learnt.

Protecting Prisoners' Families

HOW can a man, as in this case, be a prisoner and yet free? The question sounds like the title of a revivalist hymn. It may seem paradoxical, and it is; but the system is proving practical in handling Ontario prisoners.

The system had its beginning in the warm heart of the late Rev. William B. Findlay, former head of the Toronto jail farm. He was constantly having brought to his attention the suffering of women and children whose husbands and fathers were in his charge. He was constantly seized with the economic waste involved. He frequently discussed the matter with Dr. Lavell, then a propagandist for prison reform.

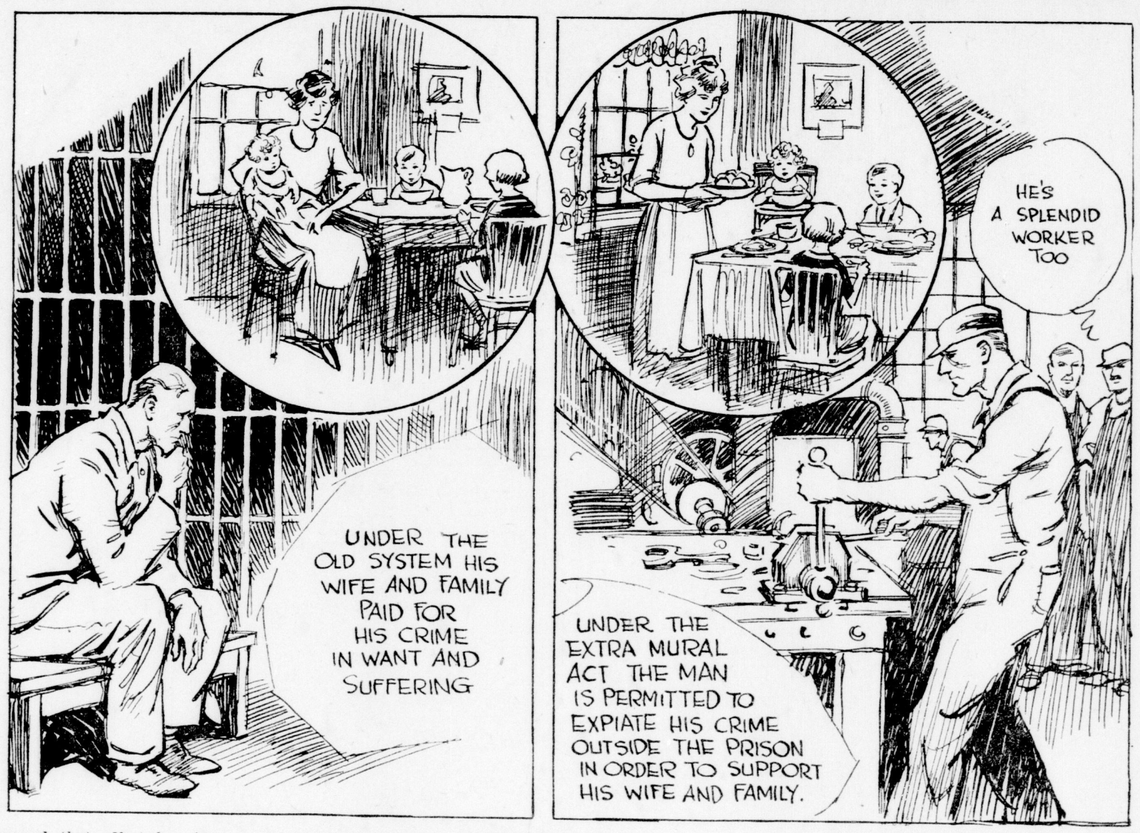
"The neighboring farmers need occasional help," he would say in 1912. "I have the men here. Why can't I let the men out by the day and give the wages they earn to their wives and families?"

"You can't do it legally," replied Dr. Lavell. "But it is just and right and should be done. Why not see Mr. Hanna about it?"

So Mr. Findlay saw the late Hon. W. J. Hanna, provincial secretary of Ontario, from whose era most of the advanced prison reforms now in vogue in Ontario date, and put the matter before him. His answer was "Go ahead."

So without official sanction other than this Mr. Findlay began allowing men to work outside the jail farm for wages which he turned over to their families. But the system was without legal sanction until 1916 when Mr. Hanna was responsible for an amendment to the Ontario Prisons and Reformatories Act which empowered the lieutenant-governor to sanction or direct the employment of prisoners outside the walls of an institution. This regulation, however, was never put into effect in any provincial institution except the Toronto jail farm. And after Mr. Findlay's death in 1917 the system slowly lapsed altogether and the power given by the 1916 amendment became a dead letter.

When Dr. Lavell became chief officer of the Ontario Board of Parole, knowing the interest that his friend Findlay had in the matter he interested himself professionally now as he had always been from a humane viewpoint. He brought the amendment to the attention of both the dominion and provincial governments and proposed that effect be given to it again by putting responsibility for the extra mural employment of prisoners on the shoulders of a commissioner to administer for the whole province He offered to serve as commissioner himself for five years without salary on an allowance of $800 a year for expenses



The federal department of justice at first demurred that the procedure was likely to be a dangerous one; that politics and bad judgment were likely to creep in. Dr. Lavell argued that the scheme was worth a trial. The department then argued, "The men will run away. If we can't hold them as prisoners behind stone walls, steel bars and rifles how can you expect to hold them as prisoners at large?"

Things Stronger Than Bars

"THERE are stronger things than bars and rifles," replied Dr. Lavell.

"All right," agreed the department, "Go ahead."

No new law had to be passed by the dominion. The 1916 amendment was still on the statute books. But the Extra Mural Act of 1921 was passed by the Ontario legislature to cover the provincial side of the matter.

So the great experiment began, the unique experiment, for Ontario alone shows such a favor to convicted men; of allowing men under certain circumstances to serve their sentences outside instead of inside the walls of a prison. The system has been now three years in operation. How has it worked out?

In those three years 641 men under sentences running up to two years less one day have come outside the walls of Ontario prisons under extra mural permits. "To the best of my knowledge," declares Dr. Lavell, "I do not recall a single case of protest by police, magistrates, municipalities or neighbors. Partly luck, of course, but largely, I think, extreme care in the granting of permits. In the three years, out of 641 men given permits, I've had a custodian failure in 23 cases; that is, 23 men under permit have committed crime or run away. Of course, there have been cases where men out on permit did not comply with the restrictions or did not play the game fairly, who have had to have the permit canceled and return to serve the remainder of their sentence in the ordinary way inside the walls. But this was a disciplinary phase of the matter to be expected and over which there is thorough control."

Last year alone the men granted extra mural permits in Ontario served outside prisons an aggregate of 18,311 days, of which the commissioner has record. As the average cost of a prisoner per day in a provincial institution is $1.10 there is a saving here of over $20,000 for the year. The men granted the permit were mostly married. They earned in the year a total of over $50,000 in wages, which went to support wives and families who would otherwise have become a burden on municipalities, the Salvation Army, some of the churches, or organized charities. And the total cost to the province for administration was a little over $800. So much for the economic side of the affair.

Extra mural permit must not be confused with parole. It is not parole; it has nothing to do with parole. It is not clemency. A man is not "released" under an extra mural permit. He leaves the walls of the prison for work outside, but he is not set free. He remains technically a prisoner subject to certain rules imposed on his life and restrictions on his manner of living for the remainder of his sentence. He remains on the prison roster and may be sent back there at any time for the slightest infringement of his licensed liberty. He becomes a trusty at large, a privileged prisoner, a civilian convict.

There is nothing haphazard about the system. Every precaution is taken to see that the sentence of the court is not side-stepped, changed or interfered with. The commissioner is made personally responsible for every man who leaves prison under such circumstances. Every individual case must be the subject of an order-in-council.

Extra-Mural Permits

NO extra-mural permit is granted against the protest of the local chief constable. No permit is granted to any person convicted of a vicious crime or to any person given a short sentence under such circumstances where it was clearly the desire of justice and of the court he should serve in full actually inside an institution. For example a man given seven or thirty days for being drunk in charge of an automobile could not obtain an extra mural permit.

The man allowed out on permit goes into the custody of some local person, usually the chief constable, who must report to the commissioner. The man must not leave the municipality where he lives; in fact, his movements are sometimes even more restricted than that, to his home, his work and back again or to the boundaries of his own farm. He is under a curfew law. By eight o'clock each evening he must be within the walls of the prison, the county jail or his home, according to the regulations laid down for his particular case. He is entirely as much a creature of rote, subject to good behavior, responsible to authority for every act and every hour of the day, as any prison inmate, only that he serves his sentence outside the prison instead of inside and is an economic unit in the community supporting his family. If he misbehaves or breaks the instructions given him he is liable to go back behind the bars at once to finish the full term of his maximum sentence and also possibly to receive such further additional penalty as may be his lot for committing an offense while a "prisoner."

It may sound paradoxical, but Dr. Lavell has given extra-mural permits to men to whom he would not feel justified in granting parole. A man might not deserve parole, but circumstances might be such that it would be advisable and desirable to grant him an extra-mural permit.

Last spring a man of excellent repute in the community came to Dr. Lavell and made representations about a prisoner. "That fellow has a wife and three children," the man declared. "They're starving. He ought to be working for them."

Dr. Lavell agreed with the last statement. So the man urged, "I've got work I'll give him. I'll take charge of him."

"Do you know the man well?" asked Dr. Lavell, curiously, for the prisoner in question had a bad record.

"Know him," snorted the other. "Know him! He is the most forsaken scoundrel who ever walked."

"All right," agreed Dr. Lavell. "You know him. You may have him. But you'll have to watch him."

A Foolish Escapade

SO the man was allowed out of prison to work for his family. All went well for a week. Then he ran away—one of the very few cases on record in the last three years. A month or two later he was caught and prosecuted for being unlawfully at large. He is now in Kingston penitentiary. An extra-mural permit was worth trying in the case of this man. Parole, as may easily be seen, on his record, was out of the question. No one was to blame because the extra-mural experiment in his case failed. The only sufferers, as before, are his wife and children. But the system went as far as it could when it granted him a permit on their account. He cannot ever be given another.

But the great majority of cases have very different results. Three young fellows were recently each given a straight sentence of two years less one day for theft. Their first offense, but a serious one. Two of them were married men. Dr. Lavell looked up their records. Up to that time they had gone straight. A foolish escapade, serious, of course, but foolish rather than criminal. Their families were having a hard time. Their employers declared their willingness to take them back to good jobs.

So at the end of three months Dr. Lavell granted the two married men extra-mural permits. To one of them, whose brother was the third unmarried man, he said, "If you behave well your brother may be given a permit, too, within a reasonable time."

At first the two men were required to go into Toronto jail every night. They left every morning for their work. At the end of two or three months, they had behaved so well that they were allowed to sleep at home, only being required to be in the house every night at eight o'clock. Months have passed. Those men are still prisoners, leading regulated lives, but they have never once slipped from the ordered path of rectitude. They have been working without a break and earning money for their families. Their punishment was loss of liberty for two years less one day. And they have, in effect, lost their liberty in spite of their virtual freedom to function as citizens so far as their homes, their work and their families are concerned.

A saying of Dr. Lavell's is: "If you buy a bottle of castor oil for a child and one dose proves sufficient you do not force it to take the rest of the bottle, although there may be lots left." The point is applicable.

It may be cited as a weakness of the extra mural system that its success depends so much on the personal element in its administration. It cannot be applied in a cut and dried way indiscriminately. Every case must be weighed and measured, dissected and reviewed to the very limit before a permit is granted. And even with the greatest care and after the most deliberate thought a judgment may be occasionally wrong. The arguments in favor of granting a permit are always a mixture of the economic and the sentimental, the hardest things in the world to argue against. And yet it must be done every day and cases turned down. The tremendously small percentage of failures in the first three years of the experiment is a commentary on the successful methods of the administration. It allows for a further valuable trial of this constructive scheme which a heavy percentage of failure of judgment, with possibly grave consequences in the community, might have meant its being discarded long ago or at least at the end of Dr. Lavell's five year commissionership.

Cured by a Spanking

THE extra mural system often calls for the interpretation of its rulings according to the spirit rather than the exact letter. Some of Dr. Lavell's decisions are Solomonic. In the early days of its operation a returned soldier was given a year's imprisonment for theft. A month after his sentence began the D. S. C. R. represented to Dr. Lavell, "This man's wife is destitute. And she is going to have a baby." In reply to the commissioner, the D. S. C. R. offered to obtain work for the man and to take him into their custodian charge. So he came out on permit, under the necessity of reporting into his home every night at eight o'clock.

All went well for some weeks. Then, one night, he went to a dance and got drunk. Next morning there was a council of war on his case. His wife and new baby were in the hospital. If he were sent back to prison they would suffer. If he were not sent back for a flagrant breach of the rules the whole system might as well be thrown on the scrap heap at once.

This was on a Friday. Dr. Lavell made his decision. He sent the man back to the reformatory and instructed the warden that the man while an inmate of the institution under his charge had got drunk. Technically, you see, he was an inmate of the prison. The warden was told to deal with him accordingly. He did. He turned the man up as he had a right to do and gave him a fine spanking. Thus he was punished as he would have been had he been actually drunk within the prison. So justice was satisfied. The man suffered. His wife and child did not. He came out again on Monday on permit and went back to his work cured and chastened. For the remainder of his sentence under permit he was an angel of good behaviour. So far as the records show he still is. For he has never fallen from grace since though he has been twice out of work in that time. It is an interesting commentary on the system, and his feeling towards it and the commissioner, that on both occasions he should have come to the latter for advice and help in getting a job, though he was no longer under his jurisdiction.

It may be mentioned incidentally that just five men have been spanked out of the 641 given permits. The circumstances were not necessarily parallel to those just quoted.

The extra mural permit is permissible in the case of the youthful offendor where the parole would be a weakness. A young fellow of seventeen steals a car or two and goes joy riding. Serious of course. Needs to be nipped in the bud. So the magistrate gives him a year's sentence. If such a youth is allowed out on parole at an early period he thinks the law a joke. Yet on the other hand if he is kept any longer than is absolutely necessary for punishment purposes the effect will be degrading and deteriorating. He will sink morally and spiritually and come out vindictive, bitter, frequently hard, in the ripe mood for fresh crime. To such, instead of parole, Dr. Lavell frequently grants extra mural permits, placing the youngster at work in the care of some local custodian and making him report in his house every evening at eight o'clock. Thus he is removed from deteriorating influences inseparable from even the best penal institutions and at the same time he is punished in the spirit in a most effective way.

A Wife's Brave Fight

A LITTLE over two years ago a young farmer and another young fellow in the neighborhood were convicted of theft and each given two years less one day. They deserved it too. The farmer was a married man and had two fine boys. The other lad was unmarried. The farmer had been slowly paying for his farm.

Within a few months, Dr. Lavell learned that if the latter stayed two years in jail the farm would go. The wife, a former school teacher, was making a vain fight to carry on alone. If the man stayed in jail she would suffer and her two boys also. Dr. Lavell reasoned, "Why should this woman suffer? Why should these two boys suffer? They may be future assets of the country. Why should they lose their chance because their father sinned?"

So he sent the man home on an extra mural permit to work his farm. He was placed under the custodial care of the local reeve. He was confined to his farm within a certain limited radius. Beyond that he could not go.

Since then that man has materially lessened the debt on his farm. His wife and children are happy. There have been no complaints against him. Only two weeks ago Dr. Lavell sent two paroled men up to work for him at his request. He will probably never do criminal wrong again.

It might be mentioned, as showing the aim of the extra mural system, that the father of the young fellow convicted with the farmer wrote to Dr. Lavell asking why his son should not be given an extra mural permit as the farmer had been. The commissioner replied, explaining the reasons why the farmer was given apparent preference, pointing out that the other lad had no dependents and that he had once been convicted before. The father saw the affair at once and agreed that the reasons for differentiating between the two men were perfectly good.

Dr. Lavell illustrates the equity and general morality of the matter thus: Some years ago two men were sentenced in Toronto for the same theft to six months each at the jail farm. On the surface it looked like even justice. For each man had a wife and two children. But was it?

96 Per Cent. Successful

THEY had been sent down in October, just in the beginning of winter. One fellow was delighted. He had a wife and two children. But he should worry. Somebody would look after them. Somebody usually looked after them anyway. As for him, he was sure of comfort for the winter and then out in the spring; no coal bill to worry about, no grocery bill, no missus and kids.

But the other man, same crime, same sentence, same place to serve, but first offence, served six months of horror. He had a heart and some decency. So he suffered not merely on his own account but on his family's.

The first man who might have been benefited by severe punishment was given a holiday. The second man whose conviction was nearly sufficient punishment in itself was given a dose of the tortures of Hades. In both cases, the wives and families, innocent victims, suffered to a degree worse than either of the men.

The extra mural permit system irons out to some extent some inequalities of our present system of punishment, according to Dr. Lavell, and takes the burden off the innocent shoulders on which it too frequently falls heaviest. For another thing, he declares, it helps to overcome the greatest danger of imprisonment, contamination. The longer a man is in an institution the more he becomes branded. In prison a man feels a cleavage between himself and society. Retain him there and the cleavage grows. Gradually he will come to regard himself as belonging to a social class outside society altogether. Anything that prevents this to a degree is constructive.

But there is danger on the other side. Dr. Lavell realizes this. "You must be neither vindictive nor sentimental," he declares. "If you weakly release him to go his way you do him no good and will probably do him much harm. If he should be in an institution no sentimentality should place him outside. If the circumstances of his family, and his own personality, are such as properly demand that he serve the balance of his time outside let him be given a permit. This is common sense. He remains a ward of the state to the end of his sentence, and how should a ward be treated? He should be given a chance, and if possible re-established and put on his feet."

As an experiment in human salvaging and reconstruction the extra mural permit system has so far stood the test with a 96 per cent. success.

By G. C.

SOME day it is a return to La Pompadour and Madame de Maintenon and the precious affectation of the period of Louis the Grand.

Others say its a degeneration into the period of Lefty Louis, the One Gun Kid.

Short hair, boyish suits, brogued shoes flat in the heel, and now—canes.

Baby blue canes, pink, white, mauve canes, canary yellow and cerise canes, slim, light, four feet long and made of the very rarest pine.

You will see them in Rosedale and on Dundas street, on the Hill and down in the Flats.

Those who seek a Symbol in all things, who look for the Significance and the Reaction and the Psychology of the thing, say that the cane is a symbol of the upper hand having been got by woman. The cane is a sort of banner, like the Roman eagles, a threat to man.

Others submit that the fashion was set by the female chief of police of New York City, who advised girls to combat the "masher" by carrying light canes with which to smash the masher over the cheek and so identify him in the crowd so the police could pick him out.

The Star Weekly, however, goes in for original research. We sallied forth, therefore, on to Yonge street at the tea hour, and had not far to go before we met two beauteous young maidens carrying canes.

They were garbed in the height of fashion. Their perfectly plain tailored suits were in pastel shades of tweed, the coats being cut somewhere in the neighborhood of the fifth joint of their spines. Their skirts were wrap-around, tight above and loose below, a marine effect. They both had on salmon yellow silk stockings and large, suede brogues. Tight bonnets hid what little hair they had left, for not a tress was showing.

And one had a blue cane and the other a pink.

"Pardon us...." we began.

They gripped their canes.

"We are a university professor in search of the Reaction, the Symbol and the Psychology of the thing."

Both girls had on fraternity pins, so they knew what a university was. They relaxed their grip and leaned gracefully on their sticks.

"Could you please tell us why you carry canes?"

The two beautiful young girls looked at each other and giggled.

"In the interests of science, will you not disclose the reason for this fashion?"

They continued to giggle beautifully together.

"Is it the symbol of the threat to man?"

"What!" exclaimed the more intelligent, or less stunning of the two. "Threaten the boys? Us?"

"The canes mean something," we averred.

"Come on, Lily," said the more stunning one. "I don't get him. He doesn't get himself, either."

Lily, however, was of a curious and explorative disposition.

"Everybody is carrying a cane," she explained, while her companion twirled her cane restlessly. "That's why we carry a cane. Everybody has a cane. So we have them. Everybody...."

What about the masculine note in all women's dress?" we asked. "The boyish design?"

"Well," said Lily, "everybody...."

"Bobbed hair, eh? Cut short."

"Everybody...."

"Boyish tailored suits."

"Why, everybody...." began Lily.

"Did you know," we demanded, "that the latest style from New York and Paris banishes the wrap around skirt? (Lily's companion turned alert.) That the newest boyish note in feminine dress is to hold the skirt with suspenders? Everybody is wearing suspenders."

"Suspenders!" gasped Lily, with a joyful expression.

Black Eyes to Order Shock Violent Wives

Artist in Black Eyes Has Thriving Business—Paints Out Damaged Optics

NO city in the world boasts a stranger assortment of little-known occupations than London, and of them all none is perhaps more curious than the trade of "black eye" artist, carried on as part of the business of Mr. W. Clarkson, the famous theatrical costumier and wig-maker.

"My assistants and I have painted out dozens of black eyes for victims of assault and accidents," he says. "We have also painted in quite a number! I remember a man coming to me to have one of his eyes made to look as badly bruised as possible. He explained that he had quarreled with his wife, who had thrown a book and hit him in the face. He wished to give her a shock by exhibiting a seriously damaged optic. Whether a reconciliation followed, I never heard.

"One client called with a black eye, which I duly painted out, and astonished me the next morning by turning up with another. Once two society women had a quarrel on the eve of a function at Buckingham Palace, and came to me to make them presentable. Both had badly blackened eyes. Another case was that of a girl who accidentally received a black eye the day before her wedding.

"Some of the excuses made by people with black eyes are amusing. One client said that her baby had hit her in the eye with its chubby fist, although I happened to know that she had quarreled with her husband; while a clergyman declared that he had blackened his own eye while waving his arms in the pulpit. As a matter of fact, he had been jabbed in the eye by an umbrella wielded by an irate parishioner!"

The materials used by Mr. Clarkson's "black eye" specialist comprise grease paints, lily powder, and sometimes a little carmine. Using the sound eye also requires touching up, in order to match the other eye.

Personal Recollections of a Famous Train Robbery

Bob Ford, Who Afterward Shot Notorious Bandit, and His Brother Charlie Entered Car First—Frank James Acted as Guard and Humorist of Party—A Canadian Tells How the Train Robbers Went About Their Work—Ladies and Babies Were Exempt.

By L. KNIGHT

ONE evening in the late summer of 1880 or 1881, I was on the Alton train that was "held up" at Blue Cut, a few miles east of Independence, Mo., by the James gang, the Second Blue Cut Robbery, as it is known in Show-Me-Land history.

The experience of being "held up," I imagine, does not affect everyone alike. From what I afterwards learned, though, I must have missed the most exciting part of it, the actual stopping of the train. I was asleep at the time that happened. The part that I witnessed would have been rather a drab affair had it not been for a very courageous young lady, an elderly lady, evidently "unacquainted with fear," and an elderly gentleman of the same type.

When I awoke I discovered that most of the passengers were in the aisle of the car, three or four, perhaps, sitting upright in their seats—the C.Y.L., the E.L. and the E.G. among them.

I asked what the matter was, and was told that the train was being held up by the James gang. The E.L. said: "Didn't you hear the shots?"

"Not a shot. Guess I must have been asleep."

"Well, you must be one of the celebrated seven sleepers to have slept through all the racket that has been going on. There were all of thirty or forty shots fired, and when they were fired all these people dropped into the aisle as though they had been shot," casting a look of contempt at the people in the aisle.

"The shots were fired for the purpose of terrorizing weak-kneed passengers," said the E.G. "You don't suppose the train robbers would do such a silly thing as to shoot into a car, do you, when it would make matters worse for them?" evidently intending his remarks for the aisle people.

At that time a gentleman from the smoking car came into the chair car and said: "They are coming through the train, and you had better get up into your seats"—a bit of advice that was immediately followed.

Robbers Display Humor

IT could not have been more than a minute or two, although it seemed much longer, owing to the tenseness of the situation, when five men wearing improvised masks entered the car, one of them carrying an empty flour sack, and in language far from polite commanded everyone in the car to throw up their hands, which was forthwith complied with.

The first to enter the car was Charlie Ford, back of him was his brother Bob, who afterwards shot Jesse James at St. Joe, Mo., and by his side was a young man by the name of Wood Hite. I never ascertained the names of the other two, but imagine one of them must have been Jesse.

After entering the car one of the train robbers said: "Now, we have a little business matter to transact with you this evening, and if you will be reasonable, and not raise a rough house, we'll get along fine, I am sure, and it won't take us long to get through." Then they commenced business. The modus operandi was to tell some to "shell out," and others they searched.

Afterwards, in reflecting upon the manner in which the T.R.'s transacted business, it occurred to me that inoffensive and impecunious looking people got off easy. A revolver was poked at them, and they were told to "shell out," which was usually done to the best of the victim's ability, and that was all there was to it. Prosperous and offensive appearing people were searched.

After the gentleman who came from the smoking car had told the passengers the robbers were coming through the car, he took a seat next to me; and when the man with the bag was opposite our seats, and Charlie Ford had pointed his revolver at our breasts, and told us to "shell out," this gentleman threw his pocket knife into the bag, saying that he wanted to contribute something to help them along, and that was all he had, except his railroad ticket, which, he presumed, they didn't want, a pardonable deceit, under the circumstances, as I afterwards learned when he took me into the smoking car and showed me in the bottom of a basket, underneath two setter pups, a large roll of bills which, he said, amounted to five thousand dollars, received on a consignment of cattle from Texas.

"Keep Your Money, Lady"

I CONTRIBUTED fifty cents, and a lady in the seat back of us was on the point of making her contribution when the man with the bag said to her in a very cavalier manner: "Keep your money, lady; we are not robbing ladies and babies."

While the "matter of business," as they insisted upon calling it, was transacted, one of the robbers said: "Don't be afraid, people, we will not harm you if you will only act reasonable. In fact, we would not shoot anyone for a car full of money; we would rather go away empty-handed than to do that."

These remarks were far from comforting, though, when they were continually cocking and uncocking their revolvers in such close proximity to one's anatomy.

They also told us while "conducting business" that if we would look at the Kansas City papers the next morning we would see startling headlines reading something like this: "Another Dastardly Outrage at Blue Cut—Alton Train Held Up By Band of Masked Bandits—Express Car Looted, Passengers Robbed—Lynx-Eyed Detectives and Sheriff's Posse Hot on Trail of Robbers. BUT they won't catch us, they won't catch us; no, they won't, and don't you forget it."

Considerable time had been taken in the express car by the robbers, and the passengers, anticipating that they might come through the train and hold them up, secreted portions of their money underneath spitoons, under seats, in the soles of their shoes, etc., thinking it would not be good policy to secrete all, so that when the "gentlemen of the road" commenced their business operations, the thing they were after didn't show up in quantities sufficiently large to satisfy their modest "dreams of avarice," and exclamations like: "Well, are you traveling on air?" "Do you ever eat?" "Did you bring your grub from way down east?" "You must be a thrifty lot when you can travel on so little", "Fasting, maybe," etc., were remarks heard.

Probably owing to the poor picking the chair car afforded one of the robbers said: "Let us go back in the Pullmans, where the Big Uns are. They may have some swag." This was no sooner suggested than it was acted upon.

Passengers Quote Scripture

AFTER the five robbers left the car it was guarded by Frank James, ably assisted by a Winchester and two large revolvers. His conversation was uniformly polite, although at times it trenched upon the jocular, as it seemed to some of us at the time.

For instance when he was asked by the C. Y. L. "Where do you expect to go when you die?" he replied. "Why, I hope to go to Heaven, a man had better be dead right now than to be without hope." And when interrogated by the E. L. "How do you think that possible in view of what you are doing now?" Frank replied:

"Oh, what we are doing is not so very much different from what everybody is doing. All business is more or less robbery. About the only vital difference is that some is done according to law, and some is not. Unfortunately for us ours is not according to law. We are not such a bad lot when you get the proper angle on us."

Of course forty-three or forty-four years have obliterated from memory a great deal that was said at that time, but I have a very distinct recollection that the E. G. and the E. L. and Frank had a rather spirited argument from a scriptural point of view as to the likelihood of Frank's realizing his hope. Each of the parties quoted passages that seemed to sustain the conflicting points of view.

During a lull in the conversation Frank said: "I have never been robbed or held up in my life, that is in the way we are holding you up, and, of course, I cannot tell from actual experience how it feels, but I should judge for those of you who have not been in the habit of taking physical exercise,—and I imagine that most of you have not been, judging from appearances,—that it must be rather tiresome to hold up one's hands over one's head so long, and I am going to relax the rule we invoked when we commenced business this evening, and allow you to lock your hands over your heads," for which I am sure everyone felt grateful.

Some Hid Their Rolls

OBSERVING a scowling old gentleman in the rear end of the car, who evidently wanted to be within both the letter and the spirit of train robbing law, holding up his hands higher than was necessary, Frank said to him:

"Oh, put down your hands altogether. I don't believe if you had a shot gun loaded with bird shot you could hit me half way across the car."

After the "business operations" had been concluded, and the robbers had left the train, and the engineer had been instructed to "pull out," and a parting salute had been fired, and several jeering remarks had been made by some of the "lower classes" connected with the gang, and "good-byes", and "God-bless you's", "Hope we'll meet again," etc., etc., had been made on the part of the robbers, and passengers felt free to unreservedly express themselves, quite a few were decidedly uncomplimentary to a state which would permit such atrocities and one in paricular said that if he ever had occasion to go west again it would be via the North Pole or around the Horn.

Others who had seen "the show" for a small fee complaisantly remarked: "Well, they didn't get this anyhow," exhibiting a substantial looking roll. One old gentleman, however, had a different song to sing: he was heard to say: "Oh, dear me, dear me, I've given them the big bunch."

There was one pitiful case. Sitting opposite me was an old man from Syracuse, a carpenter by trade, so he told me, who was robbed of several hundred dollars, the result of years of hard work, so he said: "and here it goes in a moment, and my poor consumptive wife for whom I was going west to get a better place to live, I guess will have to die: taken by men, too, whom I never harmed even in thought."

A man sitting beside him was relieved of his gold watch, and a small amount of money. He proffered them a couple of drafts, which they said he could keep, as they could not very well use them.

When the train arrived at Kansas City I remember seeing the express messenger helped from the car. His head was wrapped up, and the blood had run down on to the shoulders of his shirt. I believe he was the only one who was hurt.

A Week's Romance

WHEN Thyrza Gotrox he had won,
A happy man was Joe one Sun.
He thought, "My life will be all fun,
For Thyrza has a lot of Mon!"
"I am not fit to tie your shoes,"
He said; "your darling Number Tues."
But all such loving banter fled
Quite shortly after they were Wed.
His tastes were all opposed to hers,
He said, "I cannot stand it, Thurs.
"To separate, we must decide—
You like eggs boiled—I like 'em Frid!"
They quarreled, and Joe, after that
"That chapter of my life is done,"
Said Thyrza, smiling like the Sun."

Don't Steal Your Neighbor's Cat

WE stole a cat!

That is to say—shh-h-h-h—my wife—but I'm bearing the burden of the shame with her. (Splendid fellow.)

For some weeks the "dear old thing"—make no mistake, I'm speaking about the cat. That's the term my wife applied to the animal until I had to remind her that our landlord still lived in the adjoining apartment. I didn't want him to think that it was a raise in pay that drew forth these honeyed words. But to get back to the cat. It had been making a cafeteria of our back porch for several weeks before my wife told me anything about it.

At first so I have learned since, it came in a meek, apologetic way, just hinting at a "hand-out" in that anything-you-have-ready sort of manner. But gradually it became bolder until that stage of assurance was reached when it would walk up to the back door, give it a vigorous knock and call out for its salmon sandwich and glass of milk in I-want-a-little-service tone of voice—and don't be so slow about it.

It was at this point that I first heard of friend cat.

"Oh, the loveliest old pussy was here again to-day," was the way the news was broken.

"What?"

"Why, yes, the dear old thing has been coming here for weeks. . . and now I'm going to adopt it into the family.

"Nothing doing," I growled. (Grrr-r-r-r.)

So the cat was duly sworn in as a member of the household.

After all, what's a family without a cat? I contented myself.

The feline wasn't with us many days, until I found my favorite chair occupied by our guest. My wife had placed a covering affair over the seat to make sure that the cat wouldn't soil it. Whether the animal was there or not, it meant much fiddling and fumbling to remove the article. On the other hand, if puss was there I had strict orders not to disturb its slumbers. There were plenty of other chairs in the house, I was told.

The Kitchen a Sight

THE kitchen was a sight! Dishes were scattered about the floor just where a man would be sure to put his foot in them. It was a saucer for this and a saucer for that. Her ladyship, the cat, had asked for service and got it.

About one o'clock every morning I used to be awakened by weird sounds coming from outside my window.

The weepings and wailings would continue until my wife awoke.

"Well, I suppose I will have to let the cat in," she would say.

That meant that I would have to get up from the dark, stumble over several chairs, stand shivering at an open door and wait for the beast. It would see me and come half-way up the porch and stay there quite content to purr and wave around in circles. No one but the animal could hear the language I used while pussy-footing out in the cold to give it a persuasive boot towards the doorway with my bare foot.

That over—to bed again.

Every day in every way my wife was becoming sillier and sillier over the cat. All I would hear would be: "The dear old thing." "My, isn't it cunning?" "I wonder if the poor kitty is hungry?" I told her she was too solicitous about the fool animal and that she was paying more attention to the cat than she was to her husband. (Jealous cuss!)

Strained to the Breaking Point

SEVERAL times our marital happiness was strained almost to the breaking point—all over a cat.

I believed that the situation was saved, however, when I learned through some children that our boarder belonged to a neighbor a few doors down the street.

"We'll have to get rid of that animal," I immediately announced to my wife in a delighted manner.

"That's not the question," I cut in. "It doesn't belong to us . . ."

"We have stolen a cat," I impressed upon her with great solemnity. "You'll have to take it back to the owners and apologize to them for keeping their pet."

This aroused a storm of protest.

So with the cat in my arms, I rang my neighbor's doorbell.

Yes, the animal was theirs. But they didn't want it back again.

"We don't mind in the least. Won't you take it?" I urged.

"Oh, no, you can keep it for a while. Perhaps later . . ."

If they cared anything about their pet, I wondered why they didn't accept it. My wife was sure that they had noticed how healthy-looking the "dear old thing" had become, and it was just an admission on their part that we could care for the animal better than they could.

With the ownership settled and with no way of escape, I became reconciled at last to have the beast around.

Early one morning, about a week later, we were awakened by strange sounds coming from the cellar.

"Burglars!" whispered my wife.

"No, the cat's meow," I corrected.

"I'm sure it's burglars. Go and see what it is—but be careful of yourself," she added.

A few minutes later I returned to the top of the cellar stairs.

"Here they are. There's three of them," I announced.

"No, three kittens' meows."

Things have gone from bad to worse. When there was one cat before, I now see four.

If our marriage is to be a success, the kitten must die or be taken to another boarding school.

Are We "Wet" Batteries Run By Electricity?

Living, Loving, Thinking Are Only Electrical Reactions, is the Startling Theory of Dr. George Crile, Famous Cleveland Surgeon — Man is a Mechanism—Brain is Positive Pole—Liver the Negative Pole.

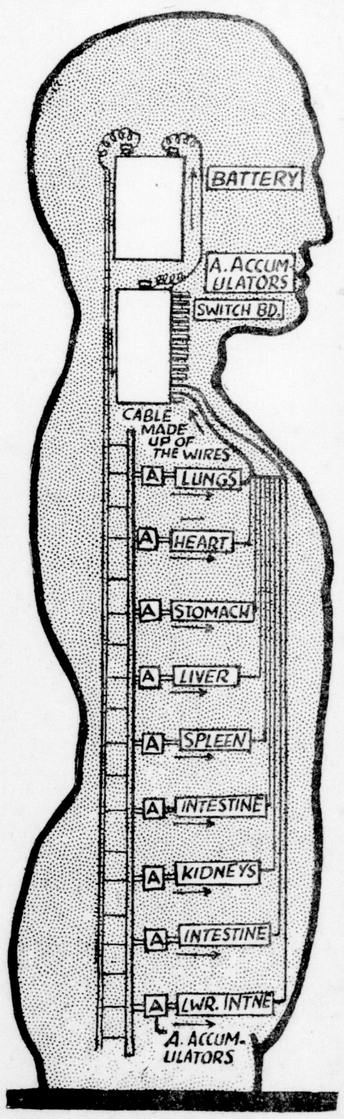
By ERNEST BENNECKE

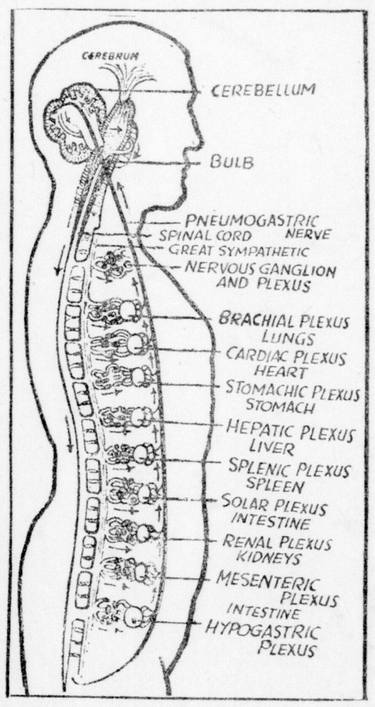
WHAT is the human body? What really is this collection of bones, blood, skin, hair and tissue which each one of us possesses, this mechanism which moves about, "lives," performs all manner of actions, and finally "dies"? What is the strange force that drives it; that makes it act as it does?

One of the most startling of all the answers that have been recently suggested is a theory with which an American physician amazed the Congress of the International Society of Surgery in London a short time ago. This is the theory that the human body is nothing more than a complicated "storage battery," and that the force which drives it and keeps it "alive" is nothing other than the mysterious but familiar force of electricity.

Love, hate, fear are but stimuli, loosing currents of electricity through certain paths, believes Dr. Crile. Man is simply a mechanism, an extremely delicate mechanism, run by electricity and chemical reaction, he says. Whether the theory is true or not will be proved when man succeeds in constructing the equivalent of a living human cell—when, in other words, we succeed in creating life artificially.

Most of us know what an old-fashioned electric "wet battery" or "wet cell" is—a copper rod and a zinc rod immersed in a bottle filled with salt water. Chemical action takes place in the bottle. Somehow this chemical action, which eats away the copper, is changed into an electric current which will flow through a wire connecting the zinc and copper rods. The copper rod we call the positive or "plus" terminal of the cell, and the zinc rod the negative or "minus" terminal. A modern "storage battery," such as is contained in a box which supplies the current for driving an electric delivery wagon or the lights and self-starter of a motor car, is nothing more than a combination of many of these little "wet cells" joined together by wires which terminate in two heavy cables, one "positive" and one "negative."





"NOW, the human body," said Dr. George Crile of Cleveland, O., addressing that body of distinguished scientists and medical experts gathered from all parts of the world, "is nothing more than an electro-chemical mechanism, or electric battery, constructed on the pattern of constituent electrical 'cells' (there are 28,000,000,000,000 of them), each of which is in itself an electro-chemical mechanism. The positive pole or terminal of the whole human battery is the brain, the negative pole is the liver, the connecting wires are the nerves, and the electrolytic fluid in which the mechanism is immersed in the blood which contains the body salts. This theory will explain many, if not all, of the phenomena of life." Such is the gist of the remarkable thesis of this famous physician—a thesis which has had the effect of a bombshell thrown into the camp of traditional medicine and surgery. Most of the older physicians of course refused to give their adherence to Dr. Crile and his ideas, but a small group of younger men has been deeply impressed with the power of this new idea to explain many facts about the human mechanism which have heretofore defied analysis.

There have, of course, been electrical theories of the body before Dr. Crile's, such as the "electronic theory" of Dr. Albert Abrams of San Francisco which created a great controversy, but few of them have been advanced with as compelling logic as Dr. Crile's. Its broad outlines are about as follows:

Each tiny blood cell in the human body, containing its minute share of precious bodily salt, is really the liquid element of a small electric "wet battery." Without the salt the cell could not produce electricity; hence the great importance of giving the body an adequate supply of salt. The chemical action which causes the current to flow is spurred on by the action of oxygen which is sucked into the body by the lungs, where it acts on the blood which is pumped into that region by the heart. This action is known as oxidation. That it causes a definite chemical change in the blood is amply demonstrated by the fact that unoxidized blood is blue in color, while blood which has been acted upon by the oxygen in the air is red. All the blood one ever sees exposed to the air, even the blood from a "blue" vein, is red in color.

Suppose this oxidation of the blood should cease; what would happen? Dr. Crile says that in that case there would be no chemical action in the cells, no electricity would be generated, and the machine would cease working; in other words, the body would die. And this is exactly what happens if we are deprived of air or stop breathing for a few brief minutes.

In an electric battery, wires are necessary to connect one cell unit with its neighbors, to collect the accumulated current and send it through cables to the important centres or terminals, which then represent the total pressure of the battery's entire electrical power. The driving force between the two poles or terminals is known as the electrical tension or the "difference in potential" between the "plus" and the "minus" current.

SIMILARLY in the body the nerves, those tiny fibres which spread throughout the whole system, are the connecting links between the cells. They are bound together in small bundles, just like the wires in complex electric cables. The nerves make it possible for the cells to act together instead of separately; they add the energy of one cell to that of its neighbors and convey the accumulated power to the great body centres or terminals.

Where are these terminals or poles situated? Obviously, answers Dr. Crile, in those places or regions where the electric tension is greatest, where the positive and negative potentials are, respectively, highest and lowest. Now, the highest positive potential will exist where the chemical action known as oxidation is strongest, and the lowest negative potential where oxidation is weakest.

"Investigations have proved," said Dr. Crile, "that the brain has the highest rate of oxidation, and the liver the lowest. Hence we cannot avoid being led to the hypothesis that the body's positive pole is the brain and its negative pole the liver. Between these two points of greatest tension there is a continuous flow of electrical energy, conducted over the nervous system. The difference of potential between these two points is what causes life to be maintained.

"This hypothesis is an adequate interpretation of the fct that when either the liver or the brain is removed or destroyed, the human or animal organism perishes, just as when the cable leading to one of the terminals of an electric battery is cut or injured, the battery ceases functioning and the machine which it is driving stops."

From this point the theory goes on to provide a most interesting series of explanations of the back-and-forward pull which is known to exist between the brain processes and "splanchnic" processes, that is, the functions of the organs in the region of the liver, spleen, kidneys, etc. When a man's brain is violently disturbed or stimulated, for instance when he feels excessively strong emotions or is tortured by pain of any kind, his digestion suffers. Interference with one pole of the battery puts the opposite pole out of order. Chronic fear or anger for this reason causes a general failure of health, whereas faith and a calm mind react favorably on the physical condition of the lower organs of the body.

Sir Ernest Rutherford has just told the British Association that all matter is probably electrical in structure, the atoms of which it is composed being nothing more than collections or systems of electrical charges. Now comes Dr. Crile with the unmistakable suggestion that electricity may be the ultimate life force, the force that creates and controls everything that lives.—N. Y. World.

The Judge's Decision

—By Ben Ames Williams

ILLUSTRATED BY J. G. STEPHENSON

Judge Hosmer Has Just Written His Decision On An Important Case When a Lawyer Appears to Offer Bribes, Then Threats—The Result Is a Dramatic Surprise Which Has Its Comic Side.

Mrs. Hosmer followed the attorney into the hall and watched him climb the stairs.

JUDGE HOSMER'S study was on the second floor of his home. Not a pretentious room. Calf-bound volumes on the shelves that lined the walls; a comfortable chair under a reading light, a work table on which books, papers, pen and ink were usually littered; and a more formal desk, where in laborious long-hand and disdaining the services of a stenographer, the judge wrought out his opinions. There was a homely honesty about the room; a clean suggestion of common sense and fundamental decency; a certain uprightness. Rooms much used do thus at times reflect the characteristics of those who use them.

The judge was this evening at the desk and writing. He used a stiff stub pen; and wrote slowly, forming the large characters with care, forming the pellucid sentences with equal care. He consulted no notes; it was his custom too clarify the issues in any case so thoroughly in his own thoughts that there could be no hesitation when the moment came to set those issues down. Half a dozen sheets already covered with his large hand, lay at his elbow. His pen was half-way down another when a light knock sounded upon his closed door.

The judge finished the sentence upon which he was engaged, then lifted his eyes and looked across the room and called:

"Come, Mary."

His wife opened the door and stepped inside. She shut it behind her, and crossed to her husband's chair, and dropped her hand lightly on his head. He lifted his own hand to smooth hers caressingly.

"Almost through?" she asked.

He nodded. "Another line or two."

"Jim Cotterill is down-stairs," she told him.

An Unpleasant Surprise

THE judge seemed faintly surprised. "Jim?" he repeated. And added thoughtfully, half to himself, "Well, now."

"He says there's no hurry," she explained. "Says he just dropped in for a word or two. Just to say howdy."

"That's—neighborly," her husband commented. "Course, I've seen him every day, in court. But I haven't had a chance to talk to him. To ask him how things are, down home."

She nodded, smiling. "Another of your scruples, Bob?"

"It wouldn't hardly have looked right," he agreed. "The other side were doubtful, anyway I'd been attorney for the Furnace a few years ago, and knowing Jim and me were townsmen."

"I know," she assented.

"Case is finished, now, though," he commented. "Tell Jim I'll be through in fifteen or twenty minutes. You entertain him, Mary."

She made a gesture of impatience. "He makes me uncomfortable," she said. "I never liked him."

The judge smiled. "Oh, Jim's all right. He's fat; and he's a little bit slick, but he means all right, I reckon. Give him a cigar and ask after his folks. He'll do the talking for both of you."

She nodded, moving toward the door. "Yes," she assented and asked: "I haven't bothered you?"

The judge smiled. "Lord, Honey, you never bother me."

But when the door closed behind her, his countenance was faintly shadowed. Concern showed in his eyes, dwelt there. He remained for a little time motionless, absorbed in some thought that distressed him. At the end, there was a suggestion of effort in his movements as he picked up his pen and began again his slow and careful writing. Bethany Iron Furnace against John Thomas, David Jones, et al. His decision.

In the Judge's Study

IT was half an hour later that the judge came out of his study to the head of the stairs and shouted down them: "Hi, Jim!" Cotterill, a certain impatience increasingly manifest in his eyes, had been talking with Mrs. Hosmer. He answered, and the judge called to him: "Come along up."

Mrs. Hosmer followed the attorney to the hall and watched him climb the stairs. A short, bald man with a countenance that was always good-natured, but never prepossessing. She saw him grip her husband's hand at the top, panting a little from the ascent. They turned together toward the judge's study, and she went back into the living room.

"This is neighborly of you, Jim," Judge Hosmer was saying, as he closed the study door behind him. "Come in and set. Have a stogie. I'm glad you didn't hop back down home without coming to say hello."

Cotterill's rather small eyes whipped toward the older man, then away again. "I didn't figure we ought to get together while the case was going on," he explained. Both men, meticulous and precise in their professional utterances, dropped easily into the more colloquial idiom of their daily life.

"Right enough," Judge Hosmer agreed. "Fair enough. But no harm now. How're tricks, anyhow? Folks well?"

"Yes well enough. Were when I left. I've been too busy to do much better writing, since I came up here."

"They have sort of kept you humping, haven't they?" the judge agreed.

"Well, that's my job," Cotterill told him; and the judge assented.

"Sure, that's your job."

A little silence fell between these two. The judge tall and lean, with bushy brows above his wide-set eyes, studied the fat little man with some curiosity. Cotterill seemed indisposed to speak; and the other asked at last: "Family all well, Jim?"

"He Elected You"

"WELL? Sure. Fine."

"What's the news, anyway?" the judge insisted. "I haven't heard from the folks lately."

The attorney leaned back in his chair, somewhat more at ease; and he smiled. "Well," he said. "Things go along about the same. Folks down home are right proud of you, judge."

"Sho," said Hosmer deprecatingly.

"Yes, they are," Cotterill insisted good-naturedly. "Yes, they are. I was talking to old Tom Hughes, when he sent for me about this case, in the beginning. He told me to give you my regards and good wishes."

"That was neighborly of of him."

Cotterill nodded. "Tom's always been proud of you, you know, Bob. Course, being at the head of the Furnace the way he is, he runs a lot of votes in the county; and he always kind of figured that he elected you. Helped anyway. Feels like he's done something to put you where you are. He liked you, when you were handling their business, too. I guess the Old Man kind of feels like you were his own son."

"Well, he's not the only one down there that feels that way about you, Bob. You know how the folks there stick together. The men that amount to anything. Tom's bunch, Old Charley Steele, and Dave Evans, and that crowd. They've always been back of you. Sort of feel as though you were one of them."

Cotterill chuckled. "Matter of fact, it's right funny to see them watch the papers when you're sitting in one of these big cases up here. Bragging to strangers that you're from there."

"Yeah," Hosmer remarked encouragingly. He watched the fat little lawyer, an ironic question in his eyes.

"You're Dodging Corners"

"THEY'RE all getting ready to get behind you and push, when you run again," Cotterill assured him. "Dave Evans said here, just the other day, that you could get pretty near anything you wanted to, if you watched your step. It means a lot to have the home town folks back of you, you know. There's a neat bunch of votes down there, Bob."

"Sure," the judge agreed.

Cotterill opened his hands with a frank gesture. "Of course, they're all watching this case, right now. It's pretty important to the Furnace, you know. Not much in this one case, but it's a precedent. Reckon it would cut into the business they do down there quite a bit if things went wrong. Tom says to me when we first talked about it: 'You got to win this case, Jim. If you don't, it's going to cost us money.' And what hurts the Furnace hurts the town."

He hesitated; and the judge said slowly and pleasantly: "You're dodging around corners, Jim. What's on your mind?"

Cotterill swung toward the other, leaning a little forward in his chair. "Well—" he began, then hesitated. "Bob, you know my reputation, I guess?"

"I know your're reputed to be—successful," said the judge. If there was in his word anything of criticism or of reproach, Cotterill paid no heed.

"I mean, you know, that I've the reputation of going right after what I want. No wabbling around."

"Have you, Jim?"

"And I'm coming right to the point now."

"Come ahead."

"Stick With Us"

"FIRST thing," he explained "I want to be sure you understand just how important this is. To us, and to you, too. It's business with us; but it's a policy with you. That's what I want you to understand. They haven't asked you for anything because they helped you get started; and they don't aim to. Not for what was done for you then. But we can't afford to lose this case now."

Hosmer said slowly: "Case is finished, Jim. Decision is all written. It's in that envelope there." He pointed toward the top of his desk.

Cotterill shot a glance in that direction; and beads of sweat started upon his forehead. "That's all right," he said. "No need of going into that. I know I'm not much as a trial lawyer. I know I fell down on this case. Facts and law were with us; but I didn't get the stuff into the record the way I'd ought to and some of our witnesses didn't stand up when Marston got after them. Marston's a good lawyer; but there's more to trying a case than the court end of it. I'm trying my case right now, Bob."

The judge did not reply. He seemed to have settled into a certain stony calm; his eyes were steady and inscrutable. Cotterill waited for an instant, then swung swiftly on.

"Thing is," he said. "You want to figure whether you're going to stand with us, and have us back of you; or whether you want to stand with this other bunch. They were against you at the start. You know that. And they're not going to shift now even if you're good to them. They'll just figure you're scared. You're coming up for re-election one of these days. Maybe for a bigger job. And if we're solid back of you you can have anything you want. You know that, Bob. But if we split ,you're a goner. There's the whole thing. You stick with us, and we'll stick with you. You throw us, and we'll—remember it. We're not asking favors for what we have done, but for what we figure to do. See?"

Cotterill Opens Up

HE stopped short, watching the other shrewdly. The judge at first made no move, said no word. His eyes were thoughtful; and his glance was not turned toward the other man.

"Do you see?" Cotterill repeated.

"I—see what you mean," said the judge, slowly.

"Then what do you say?" the fat man insisted.

Judge Hosmer swung slowly to face him. There was something judicial in his tones, even and calm; and his colloquialisms were gone.

"I'm not ambitious—in a political way," he replied.

Jim Cotterill watched him, marked the apparent hesitation in his answer; and the fat man licked his lips, and looked behind him toward the door with something furtive in his manner. Then jerked his chair still nearer to the other with the button-holing instinct always so strong in his ilk. And laughed in an unpleasant way.

"All right Bob" he said. "All right, I get you. We're ready to meet you on that ground, too."

"On what ground?" the judge asked tonelessly.

Cotterill whisperingly explained. "We know your affairs pretty well, Bob," he said, assuringly. "You've got a reasonable salary; but it's none too much. You like to live comfortable; and nobody blames you. Everybody feels the same way. There are a lot of folks that'd like to be friendly, help you out. If you wanted they should. And there are a lot of ways they could help you. Any way you like."

"What way?" Judge Hosmer insisted.

Cotterill's embarrassed reluctance, if such an emotion can fairly be attributed to the man, passed before the judge's encouraging inquiry. "There's that mortgage," he suggested. "I know it's a burden to you. It ain't that you need the money.

"You're paying six percent. on it, and making more than that on the money it releases for you. Pays any man with a business head to borrow at six per cent. That's all right. But maybe there are times when you fret a little bit about that mortgage. Well, judge, you don't need to. Easiest thing in the world to have it tore up. All you got to do is say the word."

"I Don't Take Bribes"

THE judge did not say the word. Cotterill pursued the subject, "Maybe there's something else" he suggested.

"I take it you're a business man, but I may be wrong. Maybe you don't know where to get any better than six per cent. for your money. If that's the trouble, we can help you, too. You don't know the market. Not your business to. But there are men that do know it. Fact is, they are the market, judge. They make it jump over a stick whenever they like. Old Tom is in with them. And they'd be glad to show you the way. You wouldn't have to worry. You just open an account. Put in as much as you like. I can guarantee it'll double and double for you, pretty regular. Handled right. You can call it a speculation; but it's not that. Not when the market is trained, way it is. You see how I mean?"

The judge said nothing at all; and Cotterill threw out his hands with an insinuating gesture. "Or," he suggested, "it may be you haven't got any loose money to put in. That'll be all right. They'll carry the account for you. Carry it, and take care of it and whenever they make a turnover, mail your check to you. You cash it, that's all there is." There was no answering glean in thejudge's eye; and Cotterill added hurriedly, "Maybe the notion of a check bothers you. It does leave a trail. But cash don't. And cash can be got. There won't be any trouble about that. Nor about how much. We're responsible people. So are you. Come on, Bob; what's the answer?"

The judge said, almost abstractedly, and entirely without heat:

"You're interesting, Jim; but you're not convincing. You see, it just happens that I don't take bribes."

Cotterill twisted in his chair as though under a blow; and his fat face purpled with anger. He struck his fist upon the edge of the desk before him.

Threatening the Judge

"ALL right! All right, Bob!" he cried hotly. "If you won't have it in friendship, take it the other way. You can't pull this high and mighty on me. You can't get away with it. What are you after, anyway? I haven't named a figure. You could have named your own, if you'd been reasonable. 'Stead of that, you've got to grow wings and fan 'em like an angel, or something. You can't pull that with me, Bob. I know too much."

"What do you know, Jim?" the judge asked mildly.

Cotterill laughed. "Getting under your skin, am I? Thought I would. You think I'd go into this without making sure I had winning cards? I've looked you up, Bob. I've had you looked up. I know you, inside out. And I'll tell you flat, either you come across now, or everybody'll know you as well as we do."

"How well do you know me?" Hosmer inquired.

The attorney held up his left hand, the fingers outspread; and he ticked off his points upon these fingers. "This well," he declared. "Item one: You sat in the Steel case. When the decision was announced, the market went off. Robertson Brothers had you on their books short a thousand shares. You made a nice little pile. Legal enough, maybe, judge; but not right ethical. Would you say so?"

"Go on," said the judge.

The fat little man touched another finger. "Item two: Remember the Daily trial, down home, Chet Thorne. Remember him? Witness for the other side. You was defending Daily. He needed it, too. He was guilty as the devil. Chet told the truth, first trial. But you got a disagreement, just the same. Second trial Chet lied. You got Daily off. Well, we've got Chet. You can't find him, but we know where he is. And we've got his affidavit to why he changed his story. Oh, it was slick! Nobody could get Chet for perjury. Change didn't amount to enough for that. But it was enough for what you needed. You got away with it then; but Chet's ready to tell how you got away with it, now."

Blackmailer Fails

HE stopped again, and the judge inquired: "Is that all?"

Cotterill shook his head. "Not quite. Item three: The matter of the Turner trust, and how it happened the trustee was short and how the thing was covered up. You were the trustee Bob. One Two Three, and there you have it." He struck the desk again, triumph inflaming him. "Furthermore," he cried, voice suddenly shrill. "Furthermore, the story's ready to spring. This afternoon, petition for your disbarment was filed down home. In a sealed envelope. And the whole story back of it's ready. When I leave here, before midnight to-night, I'll hit a telephone. If I say one word, the envelope goes into the fire. If I don't say the word, the envelope's opened in the morning, and the story's on the street in the Chronicle before breakfast. There's the load, judge." He shrugged, his hands outspread.

"Look it over. Simple enough. Be good and you'll be happy. Now what do you say?"

For a long moment, there was silence in the quiet room; and when the judge spoke, it was in a gentle, but a decisive tone.

"Nor I've never permitted myself to be blackmailed, Cotterill," he replied.

The lawyer stormed to his feet; he threw up his hands. "All right!" he cried, "Then it's bust for you."

The judge nodded. "Maybe," he agreed, "Of course, this is old stuff. A little of it true, and a good deal of it lies. Dates back ten—twelve years. Maybe you can make it go. I don't know. But I do know one thing, Jim. I know you're a dirty specimen." There was, abruptly, a hot ring in his tones.

Cotterill cried: "That'll do! You're through. No man can talk to me that way...."

Hosmer's long arm shot out; his fingers twisted into the other's collar. "Talk to you? Talk to you?" he repeated quietly. "Why Jim, I aim to do considerable more than talk to you."

Old Affairs Raked Up

HIS right hand swung; he slapped the squirming man across the cheek. Swung and cuffed Jim Cotterill to and fro in a cold fire of rage....

Urged him toward the door; half dragged, half thrust, half threw him down the stairs; spurred his tumultuous exit from the house. A last stinging blow, and: "Git," he said.

Cotterill was gone.

The judge's wife had come into the hall. Hosmer slowly shut the door, and he rubbed his hands as though they were soiled. There was trouble in his eyes, where the anger died.

Mary Hosmer touched his arm, asked softly: "What is it Bob?"

He looked down at her; slowly shook his head. "Trouble, Mary," he said frankly. "He wanted to beg, or buy, or steal the Furnace case. They raked up those old affairs. The Chronicle will print the whole business in the morning. He's gone to release the story now. I guess folks will walk right by and never see us, to-morrow, Mary."

Comprehension came swiftly into her eyes; she cried rebelliously: "You've lived those old tales down, Bob!" He shook his head. "Anyway," she told him, "I'm glad you—kicked him out as you did."

The judge nodded. Then a slow smile crept into his eyes. "Matter of fact, Mary," he said, "this affair has its funny side."

"Yeah."

"Why.."

"I'd written my decision before he came upstairs," he explained. "I'd decided the way he wanted me to."

"I—see what you mean," said the Judge, slowly.

Saginaw, May 2.—"Lefty" Carmen, former London, in making his season's debut today held Jack Beatty's boys to four hits and himself drove a home run out of the park with a runner on base, beating the Tecs by 7 to 1.

Joe Delman, who opposed Carmen, was unsteady in the pinches. In the first he passed two men, forcing in a run. Infield hits by Boyle and Gerald were sandwiched in between passes to Bashang and Yoter. Boyle tried to steal home, and was out, ending the inning.

In the second Stanley opened with a base knock, and when Eiffert threw wide of first on Dunn's bunt both runners were safe. Carmen promptly sacrificed, and, after Bashang had hopped out, Boyle sent them home on a lucky hit that bounded badly just as Sandquist was set to handle it.

Carmen's home run came in the fourth. The ball hit the top of the right field fence and went on over. Dunn was on first, having forced Vermilyea, who had singled to start the round.

The final brace of Ace runs came in the eighth, when Cozington doubled, Yoter tripled and Vermilyea singled through Beatty.

Carmen's wildness cost him a shut-out. The little southpaw gave out six passes during the afternoon. One of them, given to Barbelon, preceded Delman's triple over Bashang's head in the seventh. In the second, with Beatty on second base and Eiffert on first, due to a double pass, Stanley knocked down a hot drive from Barbelon, and recovered in time to get Eiffert at second. He couldn't have made a play at any other base.

The Aces fielded brilliantly all afternoon. London, on the other hand, was sloppy and uncertain in spots.

Down in Brantford the seniors are having a rough time of it. Some one who appears to have been left out of the senior list of officers and who wants to have a finger in the pie is promoting an intermediate O. B. A. team and wars and rumors of wars have been rife in the Hello City ever since. Nothing like a settlement appears to have been reached in the war that is still raging there.

The magnates, laboring under the hallucination that the baseball customers want fewer and shorter hits than they have been having, have ordered the umpires to economize in the matter of baseball ammunition. The custom has been to use a new ball the moment one becomes discolored. Obviously a new and shining sphere is a better target for the batter. The pitchers have been moaning to the effect that their art has been hampered by the lavish use of baseballs.

There are some whispers to the effect that the new ruling was made particularly to restrain Mr. Babe Ruth, whose hitting was a joy.

Evidently Mr. Ruth is out to foil them. He is far ahead of all of his schedules in the matter of hoisting out home runs for the current season. If Ruth can prevail against the removal of restraint on the pitching it will be the most popular sort of victory.

The bat of Ruth is more powerful than the judgment—if any—of the magnates and it brings more customers to the ball parks.

The Inter-County Baseball League will hold a meeting in Kitchener Monday at 7 o'clock when the senior playing certificates will be passed and the junior schedule drawn up.

The baseball season has been on for two weeks in the United States, and no umpire has appealed to the police for protection. Has prohibition done it?

THE KID HIMSELF AND HIS FOLKS.

Here we have the one and only William Stribling, who last night in Toronto won the decision over Tommy Burns of Detroit after ten rounds of milling. Burns took a lot of punishment, but only two of the rounds. With Stribling in the picture are his mother and father, who accompanied him to the Queen City.

SPORT SNAPSHOTS

Far away fields are not always as green as they are painted. Carson Cooper was offered a position at Niagara Falls at a salary which would make Henry Ford envious. That was when the hockey fever was at its height, but now that the enthusiasm has died down, there is no such position in sight. "Coop" journeyed to the Falls recently and the only job offered him was posing as a tiepost outside the Lafayette Hotel. He will not be found in a Niagara Falls uniform next season, and neither will Steve Rice, as the latter has located in Grimsby and intends to play with the Peach Kings.

It remains for the Toronto International team to make an innovation as far as baseball is concerned. The players have numbers affixed to their backs, and are easily recognized from the corresponding numbers on the scorecard. It is a good idea and could be used to advantage by the London Tecumsehs. Many fans are unable to recognize a player for a few moment, and have to wait for some one else to call out his name and before they can cheer him.

Young Stribling Awarded Decision Over Burns In Toronto Fight

GEORGIA BOXER OUTCLASSES BURNS, TAKING EIGHT ROUNDS

DEFENCE IS GOOD

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, May 2.—Young W. L. Stribling of Augusta was given the decision over Tommy Burns of Detroit here tonight after ten rounds. Burns took considerable punishment, and was willing to take more, but Stribling was too fast on his feet, and had a great defence. Burns held his own in two rounds, but Stribling had the other eight.

The principals in the main bout entered the ring at 10.45. Stribling kissing his mother just before he stepped through the ropes. Stribling weighed 166½ pounds, while Burns was announced as weighing 165¼.

Round One.

Burns landed a tap to the jaw, but Stribling came back with a left that shook Burns. Stribling danced around and let Burns come in, generally copping the Detroiter as he came in. Burns took several on the gloves, but was slow compared to Stribling. It was Stribling's round.

Round Two.

Burns was eager, and in the first minute clipped Stribling a couple and blocked the return. Stribling rushed, and Burns almost stopped him with a hook to the jaw. Stribling landed a left jab several times that gave him the round.

Round Three.

Stribling whipped a couple of rights to the stomach. Both landed solid punches. Stribling feinted, and then crossed with the right, and sent Burns to the ropes. Stribling's round.

Round Four.

Round Five.

Stribling was caught by a left hook. He rushed Burns to the ropes and when the Detroiter fell through, the Southerner helped him back. Burns slipped on the floor. Burns was the aggressor, but appeared to be tiring. Stribling took matters easy and worked on the defensive. Round fairly even.

Round Six.

Stribling landed to the body, and Burns blocked a right to the head. Burns landed a light one to the body and missed an uppercut. Stribling was taking matters easy, and before the bell had the better of an exchange of punches. Stribling's round.

Round Seven.

Stribling landed with both hands, but appeared to lack power behind his punches. Burns tried hard, but was slow, and at times when Stribling wished, was hard-pushed to stave him off. Stribling's round.

Round Eight.

Stribling landed both hands to the head, switched to the body and narrowly missed an uppercut. Burns took a lot of punishment. Stribling's round.

Round Nine.

Stribling jabbed a few light ones, and then landed on the chin. Stribling twice landed his left after right feints, but Burns took them all and came back with a left to the jaw. Twice Stribling was set, but Burns blocked them. Stribling's round.

Round Ten.

Stribling landed left to head, but Burns came in strong. Burns blocked two lefts and then a couple in the body. Stribling hooked to the head. Burns landed to stomach and then to the head. Stribling tried to land to the stomack, and before the round ended landed to the head.

ANDERSON WILL NOT PLAY WITH AUSTRALIAN TEAM

Associated Press Despatch.

Sydney, Australia, May 2.—James O. Anderson, captain and star of the Australian Davis Cup team that was defeated by the United States in the 1923 challenge round, has abandoned definitely all hope of competing in this year's contest for international team supremacy. Anderson today expressed surprise when reports were brought him that, in view of Australia's excellent opportunity to lift the historic trophy this season, he might be added to the Australian team which now is composed of Pat O'Hara Wood and Gerald Patterson.

"There is no truth to these reports," said Anderson. "I have not the slightest chance of playing this year."

TRACK MEET WON BY HARRY COURSEY

Takes Every Event in Competition With Best of Local Athletes.

Last night at Queen's Park Harry Coursey ran away with all the events in the first of the weekly track meets to be held under the management of the L. E. A. C. In conjunction with the meet Bill Godfree had his bicycle men on hand to provide the added sensations for the good-sized crowd of fans that were present. Mayor Wenige was on hand to start things off and did the trick in his usual breezy manner.

Coursey showed surprising form in all his wins, outrunning the best of the other local athletes. Of course he was given handicap in the running events, for it is his first time out this season, and he cannot claim the same experience as the other competitors.

Harry Reynolds, the sensational sprinter, who showed up well in the Ontario indoor championships at Hamilton in April, did his stuff remarkably well also, when he tied Wanless for second place in the 50-yard sprint and ran second to Coursey in the 600-yard run.

Ken Hunter, London's hope for the Olympic half mile, finished fifth from scratch position in the 600 yards, pushing Wanless, who had the 10-yard handicap.

L. E. A. C. officials are more convinced than ever that Coursey is the man they will send to Montreal for as a result of his showing last night, the Olympic trials in the broad jump when he leaned ahead of his competitors with 9 feet 6½ inches under a handicap of four inches.

Perrin Gorman was ill and, therefore, unable to compete.

The results were as follows:

50-yard sprint—Coursey, (Reynolds and Wanless) tie for second. Time, 5 4-5 seconds.

Half mile bicycle for boys—G. Quiener, scratch; Billy Godfrey, 50 yards; Frank Hagan. Time, 1 minute 29 3-4 seconds.

Half mile bicycle, for men—G. Davies, T. Hope and Frank Graham. Time, 1 minute 15 seconds.

Half mile bicycle, novice—T. Hope, A. Oldham and L. Hope. Time, 1 minute 20 seconds.

Broad jump—H. Coursey, 4 inches; Armstrong, 5 inches; W. Wanless, scratch. Distance, 9 feet 6½ inches.

Two-mile handicap, bicycle, men—G. Davies, F. Graham and T. Hope. Time, 5 minutes 30 4-5 seconds.

600-yard, handicap—H. Coursey, 45 yards; H. Reynolds, 40 yards; Fitzmaurice, 75 yards.

Golf

AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT

When muscles have tightened as a result of over-play, what is the quickest way to get in shape again?

Answered by TED RAY

The siege gun of English golf. Winner of innumerable tournaments and member of the greatest golf combination in history—the team of "Vardon and Ray."

* * *

I recommend hot baths, whilse benefit wil lalso be found by having the limbs rubbed at night for a week or so. But don't over-golf. Cut out swimming. Cut down the usual amount of walking. This routine greatly benefits me, and I have to face the problem of "getting stale" now and then.

Goderich, May 2. — The Goderich Bowling Club has reorganized for the season with the following officers and committees: Honorary president, Rev. Dr. Andrew B. Meldrum, Cleveland; president, Joseph Brophey; vice-president, Gerald G. Newton; secretary, Charles A. Reid; treasurer, Charles A. The club's rink tournament is to be held Wednesday, June 18, and the doubles tournament Wednesday, July 30. Local rink and doubles tournaments will be held Monday and Wednesday of each week throughout the season. The feature of the rink tournament June 18 will be competition for the Purity Flour trophy, first presented to the Goderich Club in 1918 by the Western Canada Flour Mills.

Hensall and Goderich clubs each have two wins to their credit on the trophy; a third victory for either gives them possession of the cup. An Exeter rink carried off the honors in 1921. Local rinks, skipped by Charles W. Chapman, now of Palmerston, and Dr. A. C. Hunter, respectively, were successful in winning the trophy in 1922 and 1923.

KELLY'S LINER WINS GAME FOR TORONTO

Jacobs Hits Homer For Baltimore—Beall Fans Ten Skeeters.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, May 2.—Joe Kelly's hit to right field in the ninth inning today scored Miller from second and gave Toronto a 4 to 3 win over Newark in the second game of the series.

The game was a pitchers' battle between Norman Glaser and Myrl Brown, late of Pittsburg, each allowing three hits to the eighth. Glaser was taken out to allow Doyle to bat for him, and Doyle struck out with two on base. Capes, Miller and Kelly did some great fielding.

C'Rourke was banished in the second for disputing the umpire's decision on balls and strikes, while he was at bat, and Satterfield batted in his place, while Miller went to second at the start of the third.

There is sound reason back of the demand for more Concrete Highways

PROGRESSIVE communities are demanding the kind of roads that meet the traffic requirements of a revolutionized method of transportation.

Canada wants roads that will bear the shock of great loads at high speed — roads over which all varieties of traffic can operate with safety in all weathers and at all seasons.

The call is for roads that will yield their builders a profit instead of creating a deficit — prosperity roads.

And when the people, through its press, its legislatures, its motor car associations and its civic bodies, make insistent demands for modern highways, it is Concrete they have in mind. For they have learned by actual experience how concrete reduces haulage costs, speeds up transportation and saves upkeep charges.

Thoroughly alive to all that paved roads mean — realizing how they invite tourists, link towns, build trade and improve living conditions, all classes of people are now looking closely into this matter of "the right road," and the more thoroughly they examine the facts, the more clearly is it revealed that the right road for modern conditions is the Concrete road.

It's the little they cost to maintain that makes Concrete Pavements Economical

GIRLS OF CENTRAL COLLEGIATE WIN DEBATING FINALS

SHIELD PRESENTED

London Central Collegiate, in the persons of Louise Wyatt and Elinor Higgins, won the "Wossa" senior debating contest last night in the Central School auditorium from Gertrude Conrad and Elizabeth Ruddell of Kitchener, after a keenly-contested argument that gave the large audience a polemical treat.

The silver shield presented for the competition by the Canadian Women's Club of London was presented to the winners at the close of the evening by Mrs. F. W. Hughes, who congratulated not only the London girls on the fine argument they had presented, but also the Kitchener girls, whose brilliant defence of their side of the question and thoroughly sporting way in which they received the judges' verdict, had endeared them to their London audience. She remarked that it was in such contests as these that Canadian girls were being trained to become adequately fitted for the duties of life that would later fall to them as educated women of the Dominion capable of taking part in the legislation and social development of the country with cultivated thought and independent judgment.

The subject of the debate was: "Resolved that reciprocity between the United States and Canada would be in the best interests of Canada," with the London girls taking the affirmative side. The judges, H. G. Manning of the Stratford Normal School, P. S. Dobson of Alma College, St. Thomas, and J. D. K. Black of London, declared that they had never been so severely tested in rendering a decision in a debate, but added that the London girls, in their opinion, had won a clearcut margin.

The program of the evening was made exceptionally attractive by the presence of Miss Hortense Nielson, whose readings from "As You Like It" proved the versatility of her art, the reputation of which had preceded her from over 1,500 universities in the United States and the Dominion. Dances and songs by Francis Parker and Evelyn Nicholson, and piano solos by Miss Annie Ward rounded out the most interesting school program of the year at the Central Collegiate.

Teaches School For 51 Years

Special to The Advertiser.

Stratford, May 2. — Miss Selena Horner, of Hamlet School, is celebrating her 51st year as a teacher. In all that time she has been absent from duty but one day and she has never been late in the 32 years she has served in Stratford. Miss Horner's first charge was in Wellington Township. Later she went to the Stratford collegiate. She taught at Welland, Beachwood and St. Catharines before coming to this city.

"The children were different then," she said, when interviewed. "My first school was one with 13 little barefooted children as pupils. The school was in Bertie Township, Wellington County. But after all the children do, they have not changed in the 51 years. We change. They do not."

Associated Press Despatch.

Washington, May 2.—Judge Kenesaw Landis, commissioner of baseball, was a witness today before the Daugherty senate commission in relation to a sentence imposed upon and the pardon later granted to Philip Grossman, a Chicago ex-saloon keeper, charged with prohibition law violation.

"You can't go to a dinner party," he said, "where an hour's talk is not for ten minutes about the Volstead law and fifty minutes about bobbed hair."

Then as an afterthought, he went on:

"I'm not impressed with the hanging-on powers of this pre-war stuff, and the hostess always comes up and says to try this, because it's "a little that's left over from the old years. They seem honest."

RYKOFF WELCOMES HIS FOLLOWERS

Associated Press Despatch.

Moscow, May 2.—Alexis Rykoff, Nikolai Lenin's successor as premier, made his first public appearance since his appointment at Moscow's May Day celebration. He stood in the center of the rostrum above Lenin's tomb in Red Square, radiant, active, shouting greetings to the hundreds of thousands of processionists who passed by, indifferent to the rain and the cold which did their best to spoil the ceremony.

Hitherto Moscow's May Day celebrations have consisted mainly of great military parades centering around War Ministry Trotzky. This year the demonstration was wholly civil, the troops being confined to their barracks. All members of the professional unions, which include every form of organized industry, were represented, commanded by their shop committees.

MIDDLESEX MOTORS MAKES RECORD IN SALE OF FORD CARS

GROWING BUSINESS

School of Instruction For Employees Is Innovation.

Anniversaries come and go, but the second anniversary of the Middlesex Motors, Limited, Ford dealers exclusively, celebrated on May 1 by the company, will go down in history due to the fact that the greatest number of Fords ever sold in London was the record made after two years of successful business.

Twenty-four months ago Middlesex Motors, Limited, made its debut to London, and during the time that has elapsed it has developed into one of the largest auto service stations in Canada, one of the few devoted exclusively to one make of car. The permanent location of the company is at 447 Talbot street, the spacious building occupying something like 24,000 square feet, and in which are employed 60 people, all residents of London.

Opening at 781 Dundas street, J. D. and B. F. Isaacs, proprietors, found that to cope with the enormous amount of business they would have to secure more suitable quarters adjacent to the shopping, marketing and theatre district. Also, they had in mind that it would be to the best advantage of prospective buyers if they located in a district away from the car lines.

Up-To-Date Equipment.

Purchasing a large area of ground on Talbot street, they built one of the most up-to-date and modern auto stations, equipped with the latest in machinery, accessories and supplies. The Middlesex Motors has spent $300,000 to build up this plant to give the public the kind of service appreciated by car owners. It might be of interest to add that all of the $300,000 was spent solely in London.

Middlesex Motors came to London on its own initiative, there being little inducement for it other than that the owners were confident in their belief that they could maintain Ford service to the satisfaction of all, and that the enormous investment would be an achievement worth while.

Large Concern.

To appreciate the magnitude of this firm, one would find that a visit through the premises might strengthen one's belief that the Middlesex Motors is one of the largest concerns doing business in London today and one which reflects credit on the city itself.

The feature of the service maintained is that a school of instruction is held weekly. The classes are addressed by A. C. Mitchell, assistant manager, and adds greatly to train the employees in the modern conception of Ford service. The classes have now been held for five months.

In the service are men who specialize in one particular branch of the industry, while in the repair department each man has his own bench and tools to work with. Little time is lost in the securing of tools, as the farthest distance any workman is forced to go is something like 70 feet. Only the best in tools is used. These are supplied by the company.

To give one an idea of the immense stock of Ford parts which the firm carry on hand, it would be possible for them to assemble 25 cars with the exception of the chassis and body. The value of this stock is in the neighborhood of $25,000, and three men are retained in this department to keep the stock up to that figure all the time.

The sales force of the Middlesex Motors is composed entirely of London men and consists of the following: W. J. Coates, R. Fulcher, R. E. Duckworth, C. A. Dobbie, F. T. Ball, R. I. Olmstead, J. A. McCallum, D. L. Carter, A. J. Scully, J. Barclay, and C. A. Matthews. These men are schooled and trained in the workings of the car and make up one of the best selling staffs ever gathered together by any auto firm in the city.

REJECT P. R. BILL IN BRITISH HOUSE

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, May 2.—The House of Commons this afternoon rejected by a vote of 228 to 144 the proportional representation bill sponsored by the Liberals.

The Duchess of Atholl, in moving rejection of the bill, said that under it a member of the House would lose personal touch with his or her constituents, and that it would put a real difficulty in the way of candidacy for women of parliament, as well as lessen the representation of rural areas—a prospect which was keenly felt in many parts of Scotland.

Former Premier Asquith, in supporting the bill, said that under existing electoral conditions there was no safeguard that the House of Commons would be an accurate reflection of the national opinion.

T. P. O'Connor, who supporting the measure, expressed the hope that his friends would look at the question with full appreciation of the new world they now were living in.

Arthur Henderson, for the government, said that question would be left to the free vote of the House, and in view of the many other bills awaiting the committee stage he could not hold out the hope of affording this one any facilities, even if it should obtain a second reading by the action of the House today.

When it became evident that the government would not support the bill the Liberals grew restive and heckled Mr. Henderson repeatedly. One member shouted: "Turn them out!"

To this Mr. Henderson replied: "If they are going to turn us out, let them get on with the job."

DR. D. SPOHN, KITCHENER, MEDICAL HEALTH OFFICER

Special to The Advertiser.

Kitchener, May 2.—The finance committee decided to recommend to the city council the appointment of Dr. Douglas Spohn as medical officer of health for the city. He will devote part of his time to the work at a salary of $1,800 per year. He was chosen from a field of several applicants.

Made To Lubricate the Ford Exclusively!

For years folks lubricated their Ford cars—many still do—with the same oils that other folks used in McLaughlins, Dodges, Chevrolets—correct oils for those cars, but not for the Ford!

The very same oil you use in your Ford engine must lubricate your Ford transmission. This exclusive Ford feature requires an exclusive lubricant.

With Veedol Fordol you notice the complete absence of jerky chatter, caused by the use of wrong oils. No more do the brake bands hold you back when you coast. Your Ford has the smooth ease of operation of higher priced cars.

Equally important are the economies of Veedol Fordol. Better gasoline and oil mileage. More power when you need it most. Fewer repairs.

Do this to convince yourself. Go to your dealer. Have him drain the old oil and refill the crankcase with Veedol Fordol. Better still, buy a five-gallon can of Veedol Fordol and get 2,000 to 3,000 economy miles at less than one-third of a cent per mile.

For Large Battery Demands

Canada's leading Government radio stations are equipped with Hart Batteries, as well as the principal institutions requiring power stand-by, such as the Bell Telephone Company. Large or small, Hart Batteries are built for dependability.

The Standard for Automobiles

Hart Batteries are highly regarded by motor car owners everywhere for their dependability under all climatic conditions. A Hart in your car will give you unusual satisfaction.

The Vital Spark of the Great Battleplanes

On many a perilous mission the Hart became a factor of first importance in the very existence of the individual, the army and the nation.

"Contact! He's away!" Are the batteries true and staunch and dependable? What wonderful support to the aviator who gambled with death to know that the Hart would not fail!

Ask Bishop or Barker or McCuddon! Ask "Tam O' the Scoots' or Eddie McKay, if you can find them! And then you will be proud to equip your car, your motor boat, your radio or farm plant with Hart Batteries.

INCLINE CHECKED BY PROFIT-TAKING

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, May 2. The upward movement of stock prices was checked late today by a wave of profit-taking, closing prices displaying considerable irregularity. Trading was in relatively small volume, the day's transactions totalling about 650,000 shares.

Low money rates and the huge surplus available for stock and commercial purposes, together with the more optimistic tenor of a number of the commission-house market letters, contributed to the more cheerful ative sentiment in evidence at the opening. Strength and activity of a number of specialties was generally construed as an indication of pool operations.

U. S. Steel Loses.

All the so-called pivotal industrial issues closed lower. United States Steel common showed a net loss of nearly 1 point on the day. Baldwin closed ¾ lower, after having crossed 118½. A bullish demonstration in the shipping shares was based on indications of expanding ocean traffic and higher earnings as a result of the recent increase in ocean freight rates. Easing of the copper metal market had no effect on the copper shares, the stability of which is probably due to reports of unusually heavy domestic consumption and prospects for a brisk foreign demand, once the plan of the reparations experts is put into operation.

A temporary burst of strength in Allied Chemical, which spurted 2½ points to 73½, was predicted on the publication of the 1923 report, showing a strong cash and working capital position. The stock closed 2 points below its top price of the day.

Railroads Firm.

Railroad shares held relatively firm, despite the publication of some additional disappointing March earning statements, including that of the Pennsylvania, which showed a decrease of nearly $1,750,000 in net below March, 1923, and a further reduction in car loadings. Pere Marquette established a new 1924 top at 48, and then dropped about a point, while Norfolk and Western closed nearly a point lower at 123. Call money held steady at 3½ per cent all day. Time money funds eased somewhat, maturities up to 90 days being available at 4¼ per cent, but lenders still held out for 4½ for the longer dates. The commercial paper market was quiet, with prime names ruling at 4½ per cent.

Foreign exchange rates held steady in extremely dull trading. Demand sterling ruled around $4.88⅜, and French francs were quoted around 4.40c. Spanish pesetas were again strong.

BUDGET CAUSES GOOD IMPRESSION IN LONDON

Business During Week Only Moderate Owing To May Day Holiday.

London, May 2—Although business on the stock exchange this week has been only moderate, owing to the May day holiday, the operations toward the week-end confirm the impression that Chancellor Snowden's budget on the whole had quite a favorable reception around Throgmorton street.

It is rather curious that while the ordinary editorials in the Tory newspapers of the extreme type have been filled with gloomy forebodings, the financial writers in the same papers have readily admitted good points in the chancellor's proposals. At any rate, they acknowledge that there is nothing about the budget to preclude financial activity in the near future.

The maintenance of the sinking fund and the abandonment of the corporation profits tax in the budget are two features which presage this outlook of qualified optimism.

The most gilt-edged stocks were a little better on today's market than they had been, and where prices moved in other directions the movement was upward.

GERMAN CONTRACTS CLOSED.

Montreal, May 2.—The British Empire Steel Corporation has closed contracts with Germany for delivery of 500,000 tons of Wabana iron ore, and 150,000 tons with English firms. Should the Dawes report be accepted by Berlin, it is expected that half a million tons will be shipped to Ruhr steel makers this season.

DAIRYMEN'S EXCHANGE.

Listowel, May 2.—At today's meeting of the Dairymen's Exchange, the first of the season, six factories boarded 735 boxes. There were six buyers present, but little business done.

The salesmen refused 13¼c, and only one sale, at a slight advance over 13¼c was reported.

INSPECT 415 WHEAT CARS.

Winnipeg, May 2.—Wheat inspections yesterday totalled 415 cars, including 354 of contract grades. Last year 458 cars were inspected. Coarse grains numbered 200, against 123 cars last year.

STOCK PRICES ARE IRREGULAR TODAY

No Definite New Developments Influence Wall Street Market.

New York, May 3.—Wall Street—With a number of traders absent over the week-end, and no definite new developments to influence the market, stock prices moved in a rather irregular manner in today's brief and quiet session. Bear selling of some of the volatile specialties in the early trading was checked by a sharp display of strength in Colorado Fuel, which advanced 3 5-8 to a new 1924 top at 3 7-8, and in the shipping shares. Marine preferred also touching a new high, just below 37. Kresge jumped 15 points on a single transaction. The closing was firm. Sales approximated 275,000 shares.

BEANS

Special to The Advertiser.

Detroit, May 2.—Beans, immediate and prompt shipment, $4.40 per cwt. at shipping points.

SUGAR

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, May 2—An easier tone developed in the local raw sugar market today, with a decline of 1c to the basis of $6.03 for Cuban, duty paid. Sales included 20,000 bags of Cuban for second half May shipment, also 7,000 bags Philippines, due about June 1, all at $6.03.

Ignoring unfavorable political and labor developments in Cuba, raw sugar futures were weak all day on the increased crop estimate, closing from 7 to 16 points below the previous day. Cuban and Wall Street interests were the principal sellers. May closed at $4.28, July $4.42, September $4.46, December $4.12.

Refined sugar was unsettled and unchanged to 10 points lower; fine granulated ranging from $7.70 to $8.10. Business was still light.

FORCE IS INCREASED TO FIGHT SMUGGLERS

Five Hundred Additional Men Are Patrolling International Border in West.

Canadian Press Despatch.

North Portal, Sask., May 2.—In order to cope with the smuggling ring whose operations have caused serious trouble, the United States immigration authorities are adding 500 men to their staffs along the border to prevent further wholesale violation of regulations. Most of the men to be added to the force will be equipped with motorcycles, and will patrol between entry ports along the international boundary line.

A smuggling ring with headquarters at Winnipeg, it is stated, has recently offered to smuggle aliens into the United States. The men demand a certain fee and smuggle them across the boundary. Many arrests have been made recently, both of immigrants and "immigration bureau" officials. This condition was caused by the quota regulations restricting entry into the United States.

GODERICH OLD BOY RESIGNS CLEVELAND PASTORATE

Special to The Advertiser.

Goderich, May 2. — News comes from Cleveland, Ohio, that Rev. Andrew B. Meldrum, D.D., has resigned the pastorate of the Old Stone Church there. Dr. Meldrum, who is recognized as one of the foremost preachers in the United States today, is a Goderich old boy, having come here from Scotland with his mother while still quite young.

He received his early education at the Goderich Collegiate Institute under the late Dr. Hugh Innis Strang, and is one of a half-dozen pupils of the late educationist to achieve the degree of doctor of divinity. Dr. Meldrum is well known here, having preached in Knox Church on more than one occasion during his holidays spent here during the summer months.

DEPOSITORS' COMMITTEE APPEALING TO OTTAWA

Toronto, May 2—About $5,000 was received by the Home Bank liquidator today from those who must pay the double liability, and this brings the total amount paid on this account up to nearly $200,000, or about ten per cent of the total to be paid. There are 1,686 shareholders, and of these only 235 have paid up, or partly paid up.

The liquidators are making preparations to collect from those who do not comply with the court order or fail to make arrangement for payment on the instalment plan.

The depositors' committee held a meeting today and decided to go down in a body to confront the House of Commons and demand relief from the Dominion treasury. They will be reinforced, it is understood, by many representatives of municipal and political organizations.

CONGRESS TAKES ACTION ON SOLDIERS' BONUS

Associated Press Despatch.

Washington, May 2. — Congressional action on the soldiers' bonus bill was completed today with adoption by the House of the conference of the report on the measure which now goes to the president.

Financial Briefs

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, May 3.—Reduction of the local federal reserve rediscount rate was the outstanding feature of this week's financial markets.

While there was a wide divergence of views as to its ultimate effect on business and securities prices, the first response of the stock and bond markets was favorable. In the stock market, traders reported that it had a tendency to restrict short selling, particularly by small speculators, but they said it was still too early to determine the extent of fresh buying resulting from the local bank's action.

Publication of the United States Steel Corporation's quarterly report showing net earnings of about $50,000,000 and the declaration of an extra dividend of 50 cents on the common was about in line with what most Wall street observers expected. Bethlehem was depressed on the announcement of new financing.

Motors were heavily sold following the publication of the Studebaker quarterly report showing a large drop in the earnings compared with the first quarter of last year.

About a dozen stocks in that group, including Studebaker, touched new 1924 lows, but they all joined in the recovery which set in later in the week.

Textile and leather shares continued to reflect the disappointing trade reports from these industries. Sugars moved in a rather erratic fashion, most of the popular issues benefitting by reports of political disturbances in Cuba.

Many of the March railroad earnings statements were disappointing in comparison with those of the same month last year, but most of the carrier stocks held firm. Northwestern issues made the best showing.

Easy money rates were an encouragement to pool operations, which were in evidence in a number of specialties.

Local Market

Owing to the uncertainty of the weather this morning the local market was not as large as the usual Saturday market.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Winnipeg, May 2.—A record shipment of 40,000,000 bees valued at more than $10,000 will reach Winnipeg on May 12 from South Carolina. This unusual shipment is for distribution to prairie points.

Special arrangements have been made to expedite the movement of the cars containing the packages of bees, and it is expected that the distribution will be carried out within 12 hours after arrival here.

GOLD COAST COLONY PROSPERS

Associated Press Despatch.

London, May 3.—The Gold Coast Colony has at last justified the faith, and money, which the British government expended upon this strip of wild land for more than half a century. The surplus in the treasury of the colony at the end of 1923 was $3,750,000. The revenue was $17,400,000.

WINNIPEG WHEAT CONTINUES STRONG

Canadian Press Despatch.

Winnipeg, May 2.—The wheat market continued to show strength today, aided by a stronger Liverpool market and higher cables, together with an excellent buying power, and prices advanced early in the session, the May future closing 1c higher, July ⅞c and October ¾c higher.

The market was very broad, with a large volume of business handled, exporters and shippers taking all offerings. Commission-houses were also good buyers, with the local trade inclined to be quite bullish and anticipating further improvement in values. While no estimate of the actual sales of Canadian wheat abroad has been made, enormous ocean freight bookings indicate clearly that a large trade is passing, and as yet there is no abatement in the demand for space.

In sympathy with wheat, all coarse grains were strong and substantially higher, but there was only a moderate trade reported. The flax market was strong, with May 4c higher and July 3c better.

With the exception of No. 2 northern, all grades of cash wheat were in good demand today, with offerings heavier from the country. Spreads were generally unchanged to a fraction higher, with No. 1 northern ⅛c to ¼c over, No. 2 northern 2c under, and No. 3 northern 6½c under. Cash oats and rye were quiet, but a good demand came out for barley. Flax was also in good demand, but offerings continue light.

Cash prices:

Oats—No. 2 C. W., 38⅞c; No. 3 C. W., 37c; extra No. 1 feed, 36⅞c; No. 1 feed, 35½c; No. 2 feed, 33½c; rejected, 29⅞c; track, 38⅞c.

WEEKLY STORIES FROM OUR BUSY CENTERS

QUICK SHOP RENDERS INDIVIDUAL SERVICE

Nothing But Best Wood and Filling Used in Chesterfield Suites.

In thousands of London homes the handiwork of Charles M. Quick, upholsterer, holds a proud place in drawing and living-rooms.

For 25 years Mr. Quick has been giving individual service in building upholstered furniture and re-upholstering. His first premises were at 725 Richmond street, but the business outgrew the original shop and Mr. Quick purchased the property at 523 Richmond street, nearer the center of the city, which he now occupies.

Furniture making and upholstering constitute one of the oldest crafts and it has been Mr. Quick's aspiration to have those associated with him worthy of the reputation of master craftsmen. The aim has been to provide absolutely dependable workmanship and materials rather than to attract business with the appeal of cheapness; and on this policy the largest upholstering business in Western Ontario has been built. An exceptionally rich stock of furniture coverings is carried, including tapestries, velours, and the famous Lister's English mohairs in all their beautiful shadings.

Chesterfield suites are built up piece by piece on the premises and nothing but the best wood and filling are utilized. Real curled hair and moss are used for filling, including the Marshall springs. All work that comes from the shop of Quick, the upholsterer, is guaranteed. Service there is prompt and all work has the personal supervision of the proprietor.

RAPID ELECTROTYPE INSISTS ON QUALITY

Longevity Outstanding Mark of Plates Made in Local Shop.

Precision, the motto of the Rapid Electrotype Company of 211½ King street, is amply evident in the work turned out by this concern, which for the last ten years has been supplying a large proportion of the electrotype, lead mold, nickeltypes and stereotypes used by the printing and lithographing trade in London and Western Ontario.

"You get the maximum of quality when you buy our lead mold nickeltypes," was the comment of the manager of this firm last night. "In ordering plates for work where quality counts, you make no mistake when you specify the above kind of plate. They will outwear any other kind of plate on the market by many thousand impressions.

"As to estimating on work that will require a great deal of electrotyping I think it would be to anyone's advantage to consult an electrotyper in planning the job, as it is probable that we could lay out the work in such a way as to mean a saving to the man who wants the job done.

"In duplicating brass cover plates for embossing, we have special facilities, and can give the printer a plate that will outwear the brass plate in running two or more to a sheet."

Expansion Awaits City

This London of ours is a city admirably situated for greater expansion as the years progress. There is no limit to the surrounding territory that can be annexed and made part of the city. Certain Canadian communities are so geographically placed that they can grow in only one or two directions, but such is not the case with London. There are any number of prosperous little suburbs surrounding the city, and these can be taken in and made part of our civic whole whenever the necessity arises.

London is a community pre-eminently designed for progress. All indications point to a definite forging ahead in the business life of the city. Its transportation facilities, as the hub of Western Ontario, are unexcelled, and its manufacturing concerns are among the most important in the Dominion.

London has steadily progressed from a small group of pioneer homes clustered in a forest to a foremost place in Canada.

Not alone in material advantages, however, is London making progress. These would be of no avail were it not for the splendid spirit of citizenship which prevails throughout the city, and the carrying out of the social service motto: "Each for all and all for each."

Considered from every angle, business, production, industry and home life, the finest country in the world boasts no finer city nor one from which greater developments may be expected than London, Canada.

WASTE RECLAMATION MEANS LOWER PRICES

Leff Company Handles 40,000 Pounds of Scrap Daily.

Several years ago the firm of W. Leff & Co. made the proposal to the various public schools and churches of the city to have waste paper collections to raise funds for various worthy purposes, and today in many of the public schools are to be seen monuments and tablets in commemoration of those who sacrificed themselves during the great conflict. These were possible by the funds raised through the disposal of old paper and other waste materials. Had it not been for the "junkman," as the collectors are generally called, and the well-organized scrap material industry, many articles of everyday use at present would be prohibitive in price.

The firm of W. Leff & Co., which deals in scrap of all kinds, has a modern and fireproof building located at Bathurst and William streets, and which is solely used in the reclamation of scrap for mills, foundries and other manufacturers.

This firm has an average of twenty employees earning their livelihood and spending their earnings in London.

The service maintained by the W. Leff & Co. is of the highest standard, and no matter what quantity of scrap may be accumulated, their well-organized staff assures its prompt removal from home, office or factory, not only in London, but also in the surrounding districts.

Upwards of forty thousand pounds of scrap are handled through this plant daily. If all this material were held for a year, it would fill a whole city block, and the pile would be as high as a house.

The firm of W. Leff & Co. is not a new one, and has been transacting business on fair and honest methods from its inception, and the square deal, also courtesy and prompt service policy have built up this mammoth scrap material house. Many changes in size of the plant from year to year, were made necessary for the increased expansion of trade, and the firm is now contemplating further extensions.

I. X. L. GOODS ENJOY ENVIABLE REPUTATION

London Firm, Begun in 1908, Now Sells Products Throughout Canada.

Many concerns in various lines of business have, from small beginnings grown to vast proportions right here in the Forest City, but none has made more rapid strides than the I X L Spice and Coffee Mills of Marmora street. Back of this growth is a reason, and that reason is that from its inception this company has enjoyed an enviably high reputation for the high quality of its coffees, spices, jelly powders and the score or more of kindred articles made in its plant for the households of the country.

I X L products have won several gold and silver medals at both the Western Fair in this city and the Central Canada Exhibition in Ottawa, which facts are a standing testimonial to their goodness.

This concern ws first organized in 1908 by D. Gwalchmai, who is still the active head of the firm, and since that time, when I X L products were known to London alone, the business has attained such proportions that today I X L goods are seen on the shelves of stores from coast to coast throughout Canada.

In 1919, it was necessary to build a considerable addition to the original premises, and the next year it was found that even this increased floor space was inadequate. The I X L Mills then purchased the property on Rectory street formerly used as a canning factory. This structure is now being used as a warehouse, and from it every day I X L products are being shipped to every city, town and village in the Dominion.

BEST SERVICE IS MOTTO OF CHANTLER BROS. FIRM

The coal and wood business of Chantler Bros. of 263 Bathurst street was founded 33 years ago by George J. Chantler, who still remains the active head of the firm. This concern, which had a small beginning, is today one of the largest retail coal and wood yards in Western Ontario.

Chantler Bros. handle only the very best grade of Scranton anthracite coal, and insure absolute satisfaction in every ton of fuel they sell.

Mr. Chantler says: "We have always made service our motto, and the majority of our customers are ones who have used our coal and wood for many years back, and every one of them is strong for this company because they appreciate the good service we have always given them.

ARE MOTORISTS FAIR WITH SERVICE MEN?

City Dealer Comments On the Thoughtlessness of Some Auto Owners.

"Bill Newman's, for service and repairs on tires and batteries," is the good word that an ever-increasing number of London and Western Ontario motorists are passing on to their friends, and when they say this they are voicing advice that has a solid background in the high standard of work that is the outstanding mark of the Newman Battery and Tire Shop at 91 York street.

"We have always tried to render the best service possible, in the way of maintaining gasoline and oil pumps, inspecting tires, testing batteries, supplying free air, and so forth, and the majority of auto owners have reciprocated by looking us up when they needed new tires or accessories," said Mr. Newman to The Advertiser.

"But," he continued, "there are some motorists who take it for granted that this phase should be—for them—a case of all take and no give. They never stop to think that it costs money to supply them with free service, and that if they do not, in return, patronize the service station which is ever at their command, the man who gives them service is the loser.

"As an instance of this, a short time ago a certain Londoner drove up here and called me out to fill his tires, look his battery over, and do a few other odd things to his car. He had been coming around regularly for this free service. I commented upon the fact that he had two new tires on his machine. 'Yes,' was his answer, 'I sent to Toronto for them and made quite a saving that way.'

"If that same man were faced tomorrow with a state of affairs in which all shops like mine cut off their free service, if he were obliged to perform the back-breaking work of pumping up his tires by hand, and if he had to depend upon his own resources for the innumerable necessary adjustments which he now receives gratis, he would certainly come to realize within a mighty short time that it is only fair play to buy his motoring needs from the service shop which does so much to obviate unnecessary labor on the part of the individual motorist."

WILLIAMS WELDING SHOP REPAIRS DAMAGED METAL

In days gone by a valuable article made of metal had to be trown away or repaired in a makeshift manner when broken, but today the advance of modern welding methods has meant great economy in reclaiming such articles. The Williams Welding Works of 386 Ridout street has every latest facility for work of this kind and broken or damaged metal of any description can be made as good as new again in this plant.

For four years past this shop has been repairing and welding stove and automobile parts of every description, broken machinery, and in fact everything made of metal that has become damaged.

A special lead burner has been installed by this concern for use in relining tanks with lead. In the Williams Welding Shop is also carried on brazing on malleable iron and steel and boiler plate from the smallest to the largest sizes. The shop can be reached either from Dundas or King streets.

PETROLIA HIGH SCHOOL CONDITIONS CRITICIZED

Provincial Inspector Declares Building To Be Worst in Country.

Special to The Advertiser.

Petrolia, May 2.—Commenting upon the condition of the Petrolia high school building, Inspector Levans of Toronto, declared it, without reservation, the worst school building in the province. He also stated that the work of Principal McKickan was greatly hampered by the poor accommodation, and expressed his admiration of him for working under such difficulties.

He thought that a new high school should be built as soon as possible.

Inspector Levans said that under the act of 1921, the county would pay $40,000 towards the cost of erecting a $100,000 school based on the present county attendance of 48 per cent.

U. S. SENATE REJECTS TREASURY PROVISION

Associated Press Despatch.

Washington, May 2. — A treasury provision in the proposed revenue bill limiting tax deductions in relation to income from tax exempt securities was rejected today by the United States Senate, 37 to 36.

The proposal was bitterly assailed as an indirect levy on tax free federal state and municipal bonds, while its proponents argued it would bring in $135,000,000 additional revenue annually by check tax evasions by holders of large incomes.

Trinity College Provost Gives Brilliant Address At Church Mass Meeting

MANY PRESENT

Declares Anglicans' Form of Interest in O. T. A. Was Different.

Rev. Dr. Seager, provost of Trinity College, Toronto, addressing a mass meeting of men of the Church of St. John the Evangelist last night, with his vivid phrases, drew a clear, colorful chart of the world wide development of the Anglican Communion, through its history of a thousand years, to the position it now occupies, that of twelve independent churches in as many countries of the earth. Dr. Seager's address was a brilliant feature of one of the initial social functions of the rector's advisory board, an organization recently formed at St. John's Church, and the object of which is to link every man in the parish into close co-opeartion with his church. In attendance, in interest, and in enthusiasm, the banquet, following which Dr. Seager spoke, was an auspicious start for a campaign launched by the board which is to lead the parish into new pathe of progress and prosperity. In particular, a financial campaign to be launched tomorrow is expected to result in a balanced budget for the present year and increased accommodation for the growing activities of young people in the congregation.

Anglican Communion.

Dr. Seager spoke on the Anglican Communion, first making clear the distinction between the Anglican Communion and the Church of England.

"You can travel," he said, from Liverpool to Shanghai, and from Australia to Herschel Island, and you can attend the communion to which you belong all along the way. Of the Anglican Communion it is true that "the sun that bids us rest is waking our brethren in the southern sky."

The principles upon which the Anglican Communion had its foundation, the strength with which it withstood the trials of the times and the need which has arisen with itself of late years were made the subject of searching examination by Dr. Seager.

"The constitution of the Church of England is a wonderfully successful attempt to strike a balance between liberty and authority, and therein lies the secret of all social and political development. Democracy and liberty do not consist in every man doing as he likes. There is no restraint upon a free man which weighs heavier than the responsibility of protecting the liberty of other freemen, and this is the principle upon which the Anglican Communion is based. It is the freest ecclesiastical institution in the world today. It is the most truly catholic. It is, while very much more than a mere Protestant sect, the most truly Protestant.

Disputes May Arise.

Disputes may arise within, but then religion start out with the greatest paradox known to man—God the infinite over against man the finite. And any man who cannot hold an unsolved paradox in his heart can never know development. All the men whose views give rise to dispute are right, and at the same time they are all wrong, because no man can grasp the truth and the mystery which is summed up in Our Lord. It is essential to any church to have men who hold opposing views as long as they are loyal to the basis of our church. From the roots of our doctrine will spring all types of interpretation, but they will all be one, the vine and the branch. As a matter of fact, the Anglican Communion does succeed in holding together men of all sorts and conditions in loyalty to one institution. There are opposing views and antipathies, but there is no Kingdom of Heaven which can be entered except by the way of tribulation.

Quiet Sanity.

"There is a sort of quiet sanity about the Anglican communion. We do not wear our hearts on our sleeves. The cant of religion is not often on our lips, but you know of what depths of devotion the church is capable. It is notable too for the beauty of worship, and concerning this there is a curious and erroneous impression abroad that the Anglican communion is capable of all sorts and types of varied expression. We may well be thankful that the spirit is so vigorous that no such thing as an act of uniformity has ever been able to crush it. In true worship, there will always be diversity. But to contradict the impression, if you will go across the continent, you will not find this tremendous difference in worship, but only the varied interpretations which show that spontaneity has not been denied. The church has been noted too for its simple, straight address to all the needs of men. The needs are those which arise out of the very fundamental experiences of human life.

Sometimes Criticized.

"The church is sometimes criticized for a certain detachment from the passing waves of human emotion. It is claimed that we did not take any interest in such things as the O.T.A. It is simply this, that our form of interest was different. Our detachment is a characteristic of our church which must be concerned. By the time other Protestant churches have been through the vicisitudes of a thousand years as we have, they will be equally detached. We are free from those crazes which sweep democracy off its feet and from which it is likely to wake up the next morning with a very sore head.

"The church is a balanced witness to the truth. It is the garnered wisdom of vast experience, a heritage of a priceless sort, and one full of significance for the future of the world."

GLEE CLUB HOLDS FESTIVAL SHIELD

MAY MAKE TOUR

Special to The Advertiser.

St. Thomas, May 2.—The Mendelssohn Glee Club of St. Thomas successfully defended the shield in choral class competition at the Ontario Musical Festival in Massey Hall. The achievement was won with 30 voices as against an average of 50 voices in the other four competing choirs, namely, the Toronto Welsh Male Choir, the Harmony Choir and Glee Club of Toronto, and the Peterboro Male Voice Choir.

Dr. Herbert A. Fricker, conductor of the Toronto Mendelssohn Choir, was coadjudicator with Dr. Lyon, a famous composer and conductor of London, England. Dr. Lyon spoke enthusiastically of the work of the club and stated that it was his intention to dedicate a composition to the club on his return to England.

Fired by success, the club is seriously considering entering on a concert tour, having received several tempting offers. Great credit is due the director, George C. Carrie, for the way in which he brought the club through with flying colors.

Hobby Fair Winners.

Hundreds of people visited the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium tonight to see the exhibits in the boys' hobby show, which opened yesterday, the fine assortments of stamps, birdhouses and other work bringing much admiring comment. Perhaps the center of attraction is the exhibit loaned by Mr. Smith of the "Old Gardens" of flowers and insects, some of which have come from Africa, Madagascar, Brazil and Ceylon. Mr. Smith prizes his collection very highly and has refused to part with them to the Canadian museums.

Collections—Stamps, John Barrett; coins, George Johnston; wild plants, Frank Duckworth; woods, J. T. Brown; pennants, Fred Matthews; flag girls, Lewis Wallace; souvenirs and advertising buttons, Carl Logan; scrap book, Robert Galloway; miscellaneous collection, W. M. McCance; war trophies, Art Galloway.

Craftmanship — Birdhouses, Jack Balsden; special award for fretwork to Mr. Knight, who placed three copies of the Lord's Prayer done in fretwork, and several photo frames; lamps, John Barrett; sailing schooners, Keith Edgar; miscellaneous, Robert Galloway; father and son exhibit, Malcolm Turnbull; meccano work, a ferris wheel, by George Reid; wool mats, Sid Rowell; a special award for a Ringling Circus complete, Max Ryckman; Mr. Wright for the Salvation Army Boys Scouts, a special award for woolen mats.

Literature—Horace MacGregor, an essay on St. Thomas.

E. L. Officers.

Harry Underwood, was re-elected president of the First Methodist Church League. Other officers are: First vice-president, Miss A. Underwood; second vice-president, Mrs. Roy McLean; third vice-president, Harold Small; fourth vice-president, Mrs. Leo Lane; fifth vice-president, Claude Garton; secretary, Miss G. Harvey; corresponding secretary, Miss M. Demery; treasurer, Stuart Harper; pianist, Miss M. Demare.

Customs Returns.

Customs collections for April of this year fell from $62,141.54 during a corresponding period of 1923 to $40,336.30. The difference was largely due to the large amount of steel rails and other railroad equipment brought in by the P. M. R. and M. C. R. last year.

Vital Statistics.

Births for April took a slump from 30 to 25 compared with the previous month, and from 32 in the corresponding month in 1923. Marriages for April number 8 as against 11 in March and 12 in April, 1923. April of 1923 shows 22 deaths, while 9 were registered this year. Of the 25 babies born last month 13 were girls and 12 boys.

More Bobbed Hair.

A group of 16 collegiate girls invaded a local barber shop this afternoon and had their hair clipped. One of the number declared that every girl in the collegiate had her hair bobbed, with the exception of an average of 2 girls in each class.

NORTH END CHURCHES SHOW DEVELOPMENT

St. Luke's and Church of the Redeemer Are Two Promising Parishes.

FINE SITUATION

Record of Years Has Lifted Burdens of Debt With Future Promise.

St. Luke's Church, Broughdale, and the Church of the Redeemer, at the corner of Grosvenor and Adelaide streets, are by reason of their position, veritable outposts of the Church of England in London. At the present time they are combined under one rector, and form one of the most promising parishes in the city.

The new university has given particular promise to St. Luke's Church. It is situated at the very heart of a district which will inevitably develop and grow in population as the result of the transferral of the university to the new campus. The church was built under the rectorship of the late Archdeacon Richardson, in connection with the parish of St. John's, Arva, and Emmanuel, London Township. It was dedicated on Nov. 1, 1906, by Right Rev. David Williams, the Bishop of Huron, and Right Rev. Philip Du Moulen, D.C.L., the then Bishop of Niagara, came to London especially to preach on that occasion. The consecration of the church by Bishop Williams took place in April of 1912. The previous year Emmanuel Church had been united with the Church of the Redeemer, and St. Luke's Church and St. John's Church, Arva, became an independent parish. The rectorship of the late Archdeacon Richardson continued until June 29, 1919, and during those twelve years the history of St. Luke's Church was marked by great progress and prosperity.

The second rector of the parish was Rev. William Lowe, who at the present time is in charge of St. John's Church, Arva. In December of 1920, the parishes were rearranged by the executive committee of the diocese, and St. Luke's Church was connected with the Church of the Redeemer, and both were placed under the rectorship of Rev. A. S. H. Cree, who is in charge at the present time. Both under the late archdeacon and under the present rector, the work has been materially assisted by the students of Huron College, many of whom are today filling important positions in the diocese.

Strong Factor.

The Ladies' Aid Society has been an especially strong factor in the development at St. Luke's Church. From the beginning it has proved the backbone of congregational activity, and progress commenced with the late Mrs. Richardson, wife of the archdeacon, as president, is being continued under the present presidency of Mrs. George Bowman. The A. Y. P. A. at St. Luke's Church is also a particularly active association, strongly organized as to itself, and affiliated with the local council of A. Y. P. A.

It has been a wonderful power for good in the district, and under the present presidency of Mr. W. H. White is living up to the highest ideals of the organization. The Sunday School at St. Luke's Church has been of inestimable value to the community at large. It has trained its children in the "fear and nurture of the Lord." Under the superintendency of Mr. Arthur Way its membership has become increasingly large and energetic.

Started as Mission.

The Church of the Redeemer had its beginning as a mission of the Church of St. John the Evangelist. On July 7, 1907, under the rectorship of the late Rev. Canon W. T. Hill, assisted by H. B. Ashby, a student of Huron College, services were opened in the Orange Hall on Adelaide street. Two years later steps were taken by the rector to erect a permanent church building. This was dedicated by Bishop Williams on October 31, 1909, and given the name of the Church of the Redeemer. In 1911, the Church of the Redeemer started upon its separate existence, distinct from the Church of the Evangelist and, with Emmanuel Church, London Township became a parish by itself, under the rectorship of Rev. S. S. Hardy. In 1913 the Rev. H. B. Ashby returned as rector, and for six years and a half did loyal and faithful work, still warmly remembered throughout the parish. During his term of office a handsome, modern rectory was built on Adelaide street. In 1919, Rev. John Morris became the third rector, and in his time steps were taken for the moving and enlarging of the church. This was commenced on Thanksgiving Day in 1921, and services were reopened temporarily in Orange Hall. On Jan. 9, 1921, the present incumbent, Rev. A. S. H. Cree, took over the work. He was appointed to the newly-formed parish of the Church of the Redeemer and St. Luke's Church, Broughdale, Emmanuel Church having been connected with St. John's Church, Arva. The new building was dedicated by the bishop on March 3, 1921, and the congregation were able to take pride in their better accommodation and the parish hall in the basement.

As in St. Luke's Church and many others, the Women's Guild has proved itself the backbone of the church. Through its labors the rectory was cleared from debt, and following this achievement, the Guild turned its attention to the removal of the church mortgage, a business which it has now in hand and toward which it is working with great success. At the present time the president is Mrs. B. W. Kennedy.

The Sunday school has a history of outstanding success. Its attendance is ever-increasing, and it has present rector of the combined parishes of the Church of the Redeemer and of St. Luke's Church, Broughdale.

REV. A. S. H. CREE,

been responsible for a splendid contribution to the work of the church as a whole. The rector is at the present time acting as superintendent. Since its inception, the A.Y.P.A. at the Church of the Redeemer has been a strong organization. It has been loyal to the entire work of the church and proved conclusively that the young people are willing and able to do their duty to "Christ and His church." The future of the Church of the Redeemer should be assured through the blessing of God and the co-operation of the people.

SOUTH COLLEGIATE LOSES BOYS' DEBATE

Kitchener Team Declared Winners in Finals of Wossa Competition.

Special to The Advertiser.

Kitchener, May 2.—In the finals of the boys' Wossa debates tonight the London South team went down to defeat before the local debaters, but the contest was so close that the judges did not give any margin of points.

The subject was: "Resolved, That the Labor Government in England is in the Best Interests of the Empire."

The visitors, Archie Knapp and Arthur Hill, had the affirmative, while the negative was taken by Stanley Weber and Lewis Jenkins.

Judges of the debate were Professor Freeman of the University of Western Ontario, Dr. Stevenson of O. A. C., Gulph, and H. G. Martin of Stratford Normal School.

The debate was staged in the auditorium of the Kitchener-Waterloo Collegiate vocational school, and was listened to by a large audience, who were thoroughly appreciative of the excellent work of the debaters.

WOMEN TRAVELLING LESS BY NIGHT NOW

Wabash Railroad Officials Find Daylight Trains Are More Popular.

Chicago, May 2.—Night railroad travel by women is diminishing, the Wabash railroad finds. Unlike men they are turning to daylight riding as the more pleasant and convenient, judging by a survey of John Maloney, assistant general passenger agent.

"It was not long ago that night travel was about evenly divided between men and women," Mr. Maloney said. "Our survey shows that in our Chicago-St. Louis service, only 15 per cent of the night patrons are women, while on the day trains 70 per cent are women. This is due in large measure to comforts and general conveniences afforded them on day trains.

"Women traveling alone, or with children especially, have forsaken night travel and almost all of the roads are arranging for increased comfort of this class of travel.

"It is quite different with men, who as a time saver alone, prefer to do their traveling at night."

NEW INITIATION PLANNED FOR "U" FRESHIES IN FALL

Students' Council Discusses Question of Holding More "Pretentious" Ceremony.

ARRANGE FOR BAND

Members of the new Students' Council, recently elected, of the University of Western Ontario, held their initial meeting yesterday afternoon at the old Arts buildings, where problems which will confront them, as the student governing body, when the university fall term opens in the new buildings, were thoroughly discussed.

The main question at the meeting was that of initiation of the new class of freshmen. Many plans have been suggested to the council for this ceremony, but no definite program has as yet been worked out. According to the prefect of the new council, a more "pretentious" ceremony is planned for the freshmen initiation in the fall than has been the custom in former years.

It was said that the freshies are to undergo a three-hour ordeal this time, but their "torture" will not exceed that received at former initiations at the university. A brass band, also advocated, will add to the dignity of the occasion, and will usher in the aspirants to the halls of higher learning in a proper manner.

Last fall the large number of freshmen almost succeeded in getting the upper hand on the sophs in a flag rush. All efforts are being made to guard against a repetition of such an occurance this fall, when an even larger freshman class is expected, and a new method of subduing the freshies will be inaugurated on the campus of the new buildings.

The transportation of the "U" students to the new buildings, which are located about half a mile off Richmond street, and their housing in the near vicinity of the buildings also came up for consideration at yesterday's meeting of the council. A motion for a student court to try unruly students, by R. Shaw-Wood, received some criticism because of the necessity to change the student council constitution to allow for such a judicial body.

THISTLES HOLD ANNUAL BANQUET

Name Management Committee For Big Scotch Doubles Tournament.

At the annual Thistle Club banquet last night, the officers and members, after a sumptuous repast, settled down to business, with the president, F. B. Fetterly, in the chair. Mr. Fetterly, after a few remarks, brought the meeting to a start by calling on A. A. Langford, who suggested that a committee be named to draw up a slate of officers for the Scotch doubles tournament. J. Taylor moved that A. A. Langford, T. Benson, A. Smith and M. Brittain be the committee to name the officers.

While the members were waiting for them to report, Mr. Petterly stated that this year the W. O. B. A. annual tournament will be held at the London Rowing Club greens the last week in July, and suggested that the Thistle Club loan its greens to shorten the playing time. H. Ashplant moved this motion, and it was seconded by J. McGuffin.

Harry Owen, on a question from Bill Rath, as to when the bowling season would open, said May 24 would be the opening date.

The tournament committee named was: T. Benson, A. A. Langford, C. K. Bluett, W. T. Oates and J. Fremlin; prize committee, A. J. Hart and N. C. Smith; decorating committee, H. Owen, R. Dunsheath, A. E. Chapman, L. Spry and G. C. English; refreshment committee, G. Coombs and F. B. Fetterly. The newly appointed officers then retired to set a date for the tournament, and selected June 25 and 26, the date for the past twelve years.

It was decided to hold the Mintee doubles on the same date as last year, Civic Holiday. H. Owen was appointed chaiman of the games committee, with power to select the other members.

The rest of the evening was spent in a sing-song and solos by Messrs. King, Pink, Barbour and Steward.

BUXTON VILLAGE SWEPT BY FIRE

Special to The Advertiser.

Chatham, May 2.—Fire of unknown origin wiped out three buildings in the village of North Buxton at 3 o'clock this morning, creating damage to the extent of $10,000.

The firs started in the rear of William Shadd's general store, and quickly involved Morrice Harding's blacksmith shop, and the postoffice and dwelling occupied by Mrs. H. S. Bachus.

Several people continued to sleep in the three buildings, oblivious to the danger. They were aroused by Wilfrid Ward, proprietor of another North Buxton store. The flames had made such headway that villagers were powerless to control the blaze.

COUNSEL CHALLENGES POWER OF UNIONISTS

F. H. Chrysler, K. C., Fires Opening Gun in Church Union Battle.

RENEWED TUESDAY

Rev. Dr. L. Pidgeon Sets Forth Party's Views Before Committee in Toronto.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, May 2.—The opening gun for the opponents of the church union bill was fired this afternoon before the private bills committee of the House of Commons adjourned its consideration of the measure until Tuesday.

The man behind the gun was F. H. Chrysler, K.C., Ottawa, and his statement was in the nature of a careful legal argument, challenging the right of the church unionists to secure legislation merging the Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational churches in the United Church of Canada.

Mr. Chrysler had completed only a part of his argument before the committee rose, but in the hour at his disposal he laid down four main propositions:

"No bill containing such powers (as the union bill) has ever been passed by the Parliament of Canada, nor as we believe by any British Parliament.

Affects Religious Freedom.

"It invades and is intended to affect the religious freedom of tens of thousands of the people of Canada, and to put out of existence the church to which they owe allegiance.

"No provision was made in either the Presbyterian or Methodist union acts for terminating the existence of the constituting churches, and such churches were not in fact extinguished by the legislation.

"Neither of these bills (just mentioned) contained any provision for merging the negotiating churches and their congregations and associated corporations in the United Church."

Dr. Pringle Examined.

The greater part of the day was consumed by speakers for the bill. Rev. Dr. Leslie Pidgeon of Winnipeg was under cross-examination during most of the morning, and in reply to a direct question by William Duff of Lunenburg, he stated that if the "central object" of the bill were destroyed by amendments it could not be accepted by the unionists. Dr. Pidgeon was followed by Rev. John Pringle of Sydney, N.S., and formerly of Yukon, who testified to the accuracy of the map of union churches in the Halifax Presbytery, which had been challenged by Mr. Duff. During the afternoon Dr. Pringle was placed under examination, and denied that the bill involved coercion of a minority. He said that if his own church did not go into the union he would leave it.

The committee will meet again on Tuesday morning.

At the opening of the afternoon sitting of the private bills committee Dr. John Pringle, who had spoken at the morning hearing in favor of church union, was examined by Gordon Wilson (Conservative, Wentworth) regarding his statements on the petitions presented in opposition to union.

Dr. Pringle maintained that 90 per cent of the petitions were not from the congregations as such. They were unofficial, and in most cases the board had taken no part in the petitions. Mr. Wilson asked what should be done by a congregation when the board declined to act.

Mr. Pringle pointed out that the sessions could not take a divided course on a subject.

Mr. Wilson asked how a congregation could place its opinion before parliament when the session was of opposite view and the minister was neutral.

Refers to Own Church.

Dr. Pringle referred to the case in his own church, where neither he nor his session had the knowledge of a petition being circulated. If the petitioners had come to him, had consulted him, petitions on both sides might have been presented to the committee. Mr. Wilson then referred to the vote taken in 1915. "Was it all right," he asked, "to take a vote while the soldiers were overseas?"

"It was all right for the opponents," was the reply.

"We would like to see that tested," said Mr. Wilson.

"I think I know the views of the men overseas," replied Dr. Pringle. "I could give my opinion of their views on sectarianism."

"Would it be advisable to take a vote on the O. T. A. on the lists of 1915?" went on Mr. Wilson.

"Because the assembly had taken action," was the reply.

"Would it be fair to compel the so-called minority to go into union?" asked Mr. Wilson.

"There is no compulsion" replied Dr. Pringle. "As loyal Presbyterians they should accept the mind of the supreme court or withdraw."

"Is there any possibility of compromise," went on Mr. Wilson.

"The general assembly asked for a conference at its last session," was the reply, "but found that no compromise was possible without surrender of principle."

Minority Rights Not Denied.

"Is it not true the British flag flies because of compromise," queried Mr. Wilson. "No compromise of principle," was the answer.

A little later Dr. Pringle stated that if his own church refused to go into union, he would leave her.

"I have never denied them the right to leave," was the reply.

Mr. Duff asked if it was not regrettable that the creed was not well known throughout the church. Were not the session and the ministers to blame perhaps?

Dr. Pringle believed that in so far as the creed was contained in the shorter catechism is was well known. He didn't believe any congregation between Lunenburg and Dawson would stay with him if he attempted to preach sermons on Westminster Confession of Faith.

Did Dr. Pringle accept the questions asked to Presbyterian ministers before induction? Mr. Duff then asked.

"Without reservation," replied Dr. Pringle.

Dr. Pringle approved because the rank and file could now read it.

Mr. Putnam asked if Dr. Pringle would go so far as Dr. Pidgeon in saying that even though there was today a majority opposed to union in the church they should still go ahead.

Dr. Pringle was uncertain. He believed that "if a vote was taken today the majority in favor of union would be greatly increased.

"Does the Presbyterian Church accept in entirety the shorter catechism?"

Dr. Pringle—I don't know.

Mr. Putnam—Do you accept it?

Dr. Pringle—I do.

Mr. Putnam—Would it be acceptable to the Methodist Church?

Dr. Pringle believed it would.

Bill Without Precedent.

Mr. Woodsworth, Labor member for Winnipeg Center, asked if there would be objection to the non-concurring churches to take a name "indicating that the light of the church was being carried on"?

Dr. Pringle was agreeable "to any kind of arrangement not in conflict with the principle of the bill." The dissenting churches could not be prevented from using the term Presbyterian.

This concluded the case for the bill, and F. H. Chrysler, K.C., of Ottawa then took the stand for the opponents.

Mr. Chrysler began with the statement that the bill was without precedent. This was proven, he claimed, by the statement of G. W. Mason, K.C., counsel for the unionists, that the instructions given him were to draft a bill to carry out the appendix of laws in the basis of union.

One of the provisions called for by this appendix was the ratification of the basis of union. It was not the province of parliament to ratify the basis of union, he argued. It was true that this had been done in the case of the Methodist union in 1884, but that date was early in the history of confederation, and probably that bill passed without much consideration. However, the approval of the articles of faith, said Mr. Chrysler, was only a stepping stone to greater things. The bill, further, by ratifying the basis of union, gave the new church power to alter its standards and formulas. In other words, under the act, it would be no breach of trust to change the doctrines of the church.

"Where is the process of absorption to stop?" asked Mr. Chrysler. Under the bill this new church, with its ambitious name, was free to absorb into itself all other churches, to which it could accommodate itself by changing its standards.

At this point Mr. Chrysler was understood to refer to the new church as "large and vicious."

Beyond Power of Parliament.

There was a suppressed wave of half laughter and half amazement. Then J. T. McBride of British Columbia protested against the word "vicious."

"I said 'ambitious,'" explained Mr. Chrysler, amid general laughter. He then went on to say that under the basis of union the general council of the united church could change its standards. There was no such power in any church court known to Presbyterianism. The bill, moreover, he said, had failed to make account of the limited powers of parliament to legislate on the religious rights and powers of the people of this country.

It was beyond the power of parliament, contended Mr. Chrysler, to incorporate a church and compel people to surrender property to that church.

AIME GEOFFRION, K.C., Roman Catholic lawyer of Montreal, who delivered a brilliant pleading for the church union bill before the private bills committee of the Dominion Legislature Thursday.

The Delicate Girl

What Mothers Should Do as Their Daughters Approach Motherhood.

If growing girls are to become well-developed, healthy women, their health must be carefully guarded. Mothers should not ignore their unsettled moods or the various troubles that tell of approaching womanhood. It is an important time of life. Where pallor, headache, backache or other signs of anaemia are evident you must provide the sufferer with the surest means of making new blood.

Remember, pale bloodless girls need plenty of nourishment, plenty of sleep, and regular open-air exercise. But to save the bloodless sufferer she must have new blood—and nothing meets the case so well as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills increase the supply of new, red blood; they stimulate the appetite and relieve the weary back and limbs; thus they restore health and charm, and bring to anaemic girls the rosy cheeks and bright eyes of strong, happy girlhood.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. —Advt.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, May 2.—Announcement was made today by Hon. W. F. Nickle, K.C., attorney-general for Ontario, that Harry Pepall, manager of the Aemilius Jarvis bond firm of Toronto, had been taken into custody as a material witness in the under orders from Hon. W. ONE POLICE COURT CASE IN DUTTON IN SIX YEARS

Special to The Advertiser.

Dutton, May 2.—The first police court case to be heard here in the past six years was held by Magistrate Maxwell of St. Thomas, when Ernest Hull was charged with assault and causing bodily harm to Leighton Reichheld. Hull was censured very severely and ordered to reimburse Mr. Reichheld and pay the costs of the court.

Magistrate Maxwell, in opening court, stated that this was his first visit to Dutton since the new Memorial Hall was built, and highly commended the village on such a fine hall.

This was the first case to be heard in the new hall, and it is contended that Dutton is the most law-abiding village in the county.

To-day I saw

When I was poking around in the French gift shop today I saw some of the most fascinating things that ever came from a famous New York specialty shop.

In Vantine's originations all the mystery, the color, the haunting charm of the Orient is feelingly expressed. If you have a flair for the unusual, you will be intrigued by these quaint pieces for your dressing table.

The one I like best is a round powder box, with a compact of fragrant clinging powder, and a puff of softest velour. The spicy tang of roses rises like incense from clusters of rosebuds crushed beneath the transparent gold net which covers the top of the box.

Another masquerades as an Eastern pagoda, and its triple tiers conceal a flat porcelain box containing cold cream, and boxes of powder and rouge. Novel two-tier compacts for powder and rouge appear as tiny houses surmounted by statuettes of Buddha, of saucy chow dogs, or of the sacred elephant.

Fashion has "heard the East a-calling," as her long tunics, her coolie collars, her tassels and clear colors show. So Fashion's devotees will choose such appropriate accessories as a jade and gold vanity box, with clever fittings. Even a mandarin would nod approval!
