The Valley of the Gaspereau.

The spring's embroidered kirtle, hung gracefully round the earth,
Starred with the rainbow blossoms of glad rejoicing birth—
The green trees shook their tassels in fashy beauty hung,
And music filled the forest by a thousand voices sung.
The bladed grass looked upward from the rich and fallow soil,
And Sabbath beauty mantled those summers of happy folk.
While the sun from heaven's blue arches cast a wondrous golden glow
On the glad and fruitful valley of the lovely Gaspereau.

Fair slept that pleasant valley—a sweet Arcadian scene—
While the lazy river sparkled the sloping banks between;
The blue flags cast a shadow of azure on its breast,
And sedge-grass twined the mill-wheel, now motionless in rest.
The wild rose shed its perfume upon the balmy air,
And the graceful linnæe trembled in the blue beauty there,
While the green and pleasant willows bent lovingly and low
Like a hand of trusty wardens o'er the winding Gaspereau.

Far in the hazy distance some feathery elm-trees grew—
So graceful in their grandeur—so emerald in their hue—
One, like a broad umbrella of nature's own design,
Caught the glistening dew of heaven, and the rays of glad sunshine—
Each lifting to the south-wind a leafy diadem,
Whose soft green clusters shadowed the old centennial stem.

The elm-trees and the willows brought back the long ago,
When Acadian peasants wandered by the happy Gaspereau.

Here in this peaceful valley they tilled the grassy sod,
And lifted up the incense of simple hearts to God;
And here, beside the river, at purple eventide,
They set those willow saplings—now old and sanctified—
Aye, sanctified by sorrow, by sufferings and by time,
By the dearest things of memory that stir the spirit's flame—
For those willow clumps a legend, by the river where they grew,
Of the first Acadian settlers by the sunny Gaspereau.

The elm-trees and the willows are but memorials now—
Through the rich and fertile ridges the Saxon spears his plow—
Rough English voices echo through the woodlands green expanse,
Where fell the silvery cadence of the sunny land of France.

The heartlands is deserted, and low the roof-tree lies,
While Nova Scotia claims the soil beneath Acadia's skies;
But the exiles live forever—still their storied annals grow
In the elm-trees and the willows by the winding Gaspereau.

Strange mystery of nature! defying change and time—
Keeping the soul immortal amid earth's frosty rime!
The hands have long been lifeless that set each slender stem,
But these wend a living witness—a pledge and type of them.
Like a good name after burial, each elm and willow bears
Sign-manual for the exiles of the land that once was theirs;
And their hallowing presence lingers through the stillness soft and low,
That wraps the peaceful valley of the lovely Gaspereau. —M. J. K.

STORY.

The Woodman's Daughter.

In a little two-roomed hut, in the midst of a vast pine forest, among the mountains of Sweden, there lived an honest woodman, with his wife and seven children.

He named his baby girl Christine. She had large blue eyes and rough yellow hair.

When she was old enough to take notice, she did not begin to talk as other children do, but sang to herself like a bird.

It was the bright and beautiful Swedish summer, so that the woodman's children were out of doors nearly all day. The birds were singing all around them, and Christine learned to imitate their sweet notes.

There is no spring or autumn in Sweden. Summer changes to winter almost in one day.

When the singing birds had taken wing, and flows across the sea to the warm south, little Christine murmured like the dying storm, and imitated the sighing of the wind among the trees.

Her infant soul was filled with nature's music, for she heard no other in the lonely hut in which she lived.

You must not think Christine could not talk. She would answer when she was spoken to, but she was always singing to herself.

The winter before Christine was three years old, her eldest brother became the happy possessor of a fiddle. It was small and old, but to the woodman's children it was a prize and treasure.

How Christine loved to stand by her brother's knee, and sing to his fiddle.

The door and window of the low brown hut were half blocked with snow. All without was wild and drear.

Father sat by the fire and told them tales of the towns that had never seen, for no work could be done in the depth of that iron winter.

Nothing delighted the children so much as a description of the summer fair at Wexio, the nearest town, until it became their talk by day and their dream by night.

In short, they set their little hearts on visiting this wonderful fair, which was only a few miles from their little hut.

They must not think of spending money there; oh, no! but could they not earn a very little somehow, among so many people?

For these little foresters thought, in their own simplicity, that Wexio must be a magnificent place indeed.

At last a delightful idea occurred to the eldest brother. He and Christine would go into partnership.

He would fiddle, and she would sing.

Christine entered into his project heart and soul.

Like wise children they did their best to prepare themselves for such a glorious adventure.

Not only did the persevering child learn by heart the words of one or two of the old Swedish songs, but she coaxed her brother to teach her to fiddle.

When the joyous summer returned, baby Christine excelled her teacher. The fiddle bow in her tiny fingers drew sweeter notes than he could awaken.

It was a long walk through the forest to Wexio; but when Christine grew tired she bathed her naked feet in the mountain stream, and on they went refreshed. As the trees grew thinner, they saw the brown roofs of the village of Djungby, and here, also, there was a little fair. Could they do better than to rest awhile at this by ('by' is Swedish for village), and try their fortune with the simple folk who were more like their own father and mother.

The baby violinist took the fiddle from her brother and began to sing one of the old national Swedish airs. More than one kind-hearted villager gave a coin to the infant singer as they listened to the dear familiar words.

With what unmeasured pride and satisfaction the children counted their gains—in all, equal in English money to threepence halfpenny, more than the baby hand could hold!

With such a beginning, what untold wealth might be awaiting them at Wexio fair.

Away they started, elated with success and emboldened by praise.

But once again upon the road to Wexio, a new difficulty presented itself. What would they do with their treasure? Where would they put it to be safe whilst they were playing and singing in the fair? They knew so poor, that even little Christine knew the value of money and felt with her brother that they could not be too careful. A pocket was an unknown convenience to either of them.

Christine remembered that father and mother put their money in a stocking. They looked at their bare feet and laughed; they had no stocking in which they could hide it. And, oh, if they should meet with robbers on the road! With a coin in each hand and a weight of responsibility at their hearts, they trudged on, gathering all their courage as they entered Wexio.

Their cheeks glowed with tears and exorcise, and their eyes danced with excitement as the wee violinist began to play her very best.

The baby and the fiddle became one of the "attractions," until a crowd gathered around the children.

For people were saying, "How is this? Did you ever see such a might

STORY.

The City of Canmore.

The Dominion government have had the plans of the town site of Canmore, Alberta, drawn up similarly to Washington, D. C., with squares, boulevards, avenues and drives, and surveyors are hard at work laying it out and making rapid progress. The city is only 14 miles from Banff, and is expected to be the metropolis of the Northwest, knocking Calgary away out. The C. P. R. have established workshops and round houses there and have made Canmore a divisional point between Donald and Gleichen. Coal is found in large quantities within a mile of the place, and two companies, the Canadian Anthracite Coal company, and the St. Paul Coal company, are working mines and expect shortly to have a combined output of 20,000 tons per day. The working of these mines will necessitate the employment of nearly 700 men which will give over two thousand extra population to the city. The C. P. R. will employ about 100 men and 400. Dairying is another industry which is in full swing in the neighborhood of Canmore, and which

STORY.

The Loss from Smoke.

Efforts to solve the problem of consuming smoke are said to have met with considerable success in London. Tests made have shown that the value of coal wasted in smoke from the domestic fireplaces in that city amounts to $11,282,500 annually, while the aggregate waste of unconsumed carbon is $13,000,000 a year, and the damage to property caused by smoky atmosphere is put down at $10,000,000.

The effect on human life and health of an enormous volume of hydro-carbon and carbonic oxide gases pouring into the atmosphere daily is fearful to contemplate. Both from this point and that of economy, the gain that would arise from preventing the waste of unconsumed carbon would be tremendous. It is not too much to hope from the experiments already made that this end will yet be attained.

A gain of over one-half has been made by the use of stoves instead of the open hearths in general use even for cooking purposes in the early part of this century, and the still further improvement in stoves and other methods of disseminating heat is going on all the time. Perhaps in time we shall get rid of coal altogether in private houses, at least, and use gas and electricity.

Too Coarse.

Country people amuse the cockneys, and cockneys amuse the country people; and so the account is kept even. A man from the rural districts—from the famous town of Wayback, perhaps—had gone with a friend into a city restaurant.

Presently a young fellow came in, having in his hand a tennis racket. The countryman looked at the novel utensil for a few minutes; then he turned to his friend and said, in a tone of decision:

"John, I drink no milk in this town."

"Why not?"

"Why not! Why, just look at the strainers they use. You could shove a catbird through 'em."—Arkansas Traveller.

Liver Disorders

Soon cause the blood to become contaminated and require prompt treatment. The most marked symptoms are loss of appetite, headache, pains in the back or side, nausea, and relaxation of the bowels. Ayer's Pills assist nature to expel the superabundant bile and thus restore the purity of the blood. Being purely vegetable and sugar-coated, they are pleasant to take, mild in operation, and without ill effects.

"After many years' experience with Ayer's Pills as a remedy for the large number of ailments caused by derangements of the liver, peculiar to malarial localities, simple justice prompts me to express to you my high appreciation of the merits of this medicine for the class of disorders I have named."—S. L. Loughridge, Bryan, Texas.

"I had tried almost everything for chronic liver complaint, but received no relief until I used Ayer's Pills. I find them invaluable."—W. E. Watson, 77 East Illinois St., Chicago, Ill.

with the eventual establishment of iron works, manufactories and smelters, and the development of the lead, silver and copper mines which abound in the neighborhood, may bring forth an era of prosperity unequalled by any city in the West. Canmore is situated on the Bow river, five miles from where it issues from the Rocky mountains, and for scenery is unrivalled. In twelve months' time it will be seen whether the predictions of the government are true, and whether Canmore will be the Western metropolis, a flourishing city of 10,000 inhabitants.

The Misery of Happiness.

What is a pessimist, my son? Well, if the spring opened unusually early, and there was an increase of about 25 per cent. in the acreage of the cereals sown, and the weather was so near perfection all summer that no one cared to go to California, and the harvest showed a yield that fairly lifted the roof of the barn and made the sides of the elevator bulge, and prices have gone down 10 and wages increased 15 per cent., the national debt paid, taxes reduced, a free soap trust organized by the anarchists, Saturday made a legal holiday and ten hours' pay for eight hours' work established by constitutional amendment, all the almshouses closed for lack of patronage and the prisons sold to the hotel trust—if in the midst of all the dawning millennium you come across a man sitting on a fire plug on a windy corner, pouring dust on his head and weeping because all his prosperity is wasteful to develop luxuriously and wasteful habits among the masses—he is a pessimist. "And what is your duty as a Christian man, to such a sorrowful brother?" Kill him, my son; kill him. Don't use violence; just tie him to a man who is having a good time, and he won't last two hours.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., SEP. 27, 1889.

The Exhibition.

This has been a busy week for Kentville. The Exhibition for the three counties, King's, Hants and Annapolis, was held there this week and the town has been full of people. Extensive preparations had been made for the event and the exhibition was a success in every way.

In canned fruits the Aylesford Canning Company had a fine display and there was also a fairly good show of fruits in jars.

Good displays of parlor and bedroom furniture were made by Messrs W. H. Curry & Co., of Windsor, and Messrs J. B. Reed & Sons, Bridgetown and Kentville.

The attendance at the Exhibition was good each day. Over 6,200 tickets are said to have been sold on Wednesday and the attendance probably totalled 8,900 persons.

His honor the Lieutenant-Governor then declared the Exhibition open, the band playing the National Anthem, and the visitors scattering about the grounds.

Since the last exhibition here the building has been much improved, two new tables have been put in the whole length of the building, giving additional space for exhibits, and the south end and gallery has been made new.

The exhibit of pears was not extra, although some very fine ones were shown. The principal varieties were Great Britain, Clairgan and Bartlett.

The show of vegetables, as a whole, considering the season, was not what might have been expected. There were some very good samples of potatoes in the following varieties: Jenny Lind, Dark Albert, Dakota Red, Light Albert, Early Rose, Early Sunrise, Prairie Rose, White Calico and Prolific.

On the right as you enter the grounds was to be seen a very fine display of poultry. A pair of bronze turkeys was particularly noticeable. Horses came next in order and the specimens exhibited show a very marked improvement in this line of farm production over that of twenty years ago.

The display of manufactured articles was not large. Mr Parkman, of Windsor, had a fine show of carriages and sleighs, and a number of good ones were also shown by Mr Charles H. Borden, of this place.

er and second on the latter. Mr Lloyd, of Waterville, had some of his machines on exhibition and succeeded in getting the attention of a good many persons.

The display of the products of the dairy although not large was very good, particularly the butter, some samples being of very fine color and inviting appearance.

In the miscellaneous department the exhibits were not numerous but some were very good. Mr Lewis Rice had a splendid display of photographs and crayon work, including a fine crayon portrait of the late Dr. Crawley.

The attendance at the Exhibition was good each day. Over 6,200 tickets are said to have been sold on Wednesday and the attendance probably totalled 8,900 persons.

Considerable dissatisfaction was expressed concerning some of the arrangements made. The worst feature of all perhaps was the way in which the press was treated.

Halifax Dry Dock.

DEAR ACADIAN—Seeing some reference in your last to the opening of the Halifax Dredging Dock, a few more facts on the same subject may be interesting to some of your readers.

The large breech-loading cannon are worked as easily as a toy. On the quarter-deck are Nordenfletts and Gardner's firing a steady hail of bullets as long as the operator can stand and work the lever.

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editors of the ACADIAN:

An editorial writer in the Halifax Echo of a few weeks ago takes advantage of an unoccupied moment and a want of better employment to criticize in a very uncalculated manner a person whose only fault is that the writer had never heard of him and that an over-zealous friend saw fit to write some well-intended if injudicious things about him in an opposition contemporary.

Halifax, Sept. 15, 1889.

To the Editors of the ACADIAN:

In the death of Leslie L. Davison, the author of the "Book of Wonders," Nova Scotia certainly lost a brilliant writer. It was with real regret on my part that I read the concluding article in that very interesting series of articles which has been running in the ACADIAN during the summer months, entitled "Book of Wonders," contributed by Ben Zeene.

Billtown.

The ladies of Billtown had a pleasant tea meeting and bazaar in the vestry of the church on Wednesday afternoon and evening of last week. The object was to raise funds to paint the church. The day was pleasant and the attendance good, and a very enjoyable time was had. The tables presented a nice appearance and the whole arrangement reflected the greatest credit on those who had the arrangement in hand. The very creditable sum of $41 was realized.

Mr Daly, a student of Acadia College, has been in charge of the church at this place during the summer months. He is now about leaving to resume his studies at the opening of the College term. During his stay here Mr Daly has made many warm friends, and his preaching has been much enjoyed and appreciated.

Mr Morse has got his mill in working order, and is now manufacturing lumber of all kinds and also barrel stock. He expects soon to be also making shingles and laths. This industry will be a valuable addition to the place and should receive the support and patronage of the people.

SLEEPLESS NIGHT, made miserable by that terrible cough, Shiloh's Cure is the Remedy for you. Sold by Geo. V. Rand.

Our Water Works.

The tenders for the work of making excavations and for caulking and covering the water-pipes closed on Wednesday. Only two parties tendered, Mr Brown of Windsor, and Mr Mackintosh, of Pictou. The tender of the former was accepted and the work is to begin on Monday next and will be completed this fall. Mr Brown, to whom the contract has been awarded, has had considerable experience in this kind of work and is a thorough practical man. Owing to some detail having yet to be arranged we are yet unable to give the exact amount of the tender, but will probably be able to do so next week. We may say however that the amount paid is considered low. In another column will be found an adv. asking for tenders for hauling pipe, etc., which should receive the attention of those interested.

THAT HACKING COUGH can be so quickly cured by Shiloh's Cure. We guarantee it. Sold by Geo. V. Rand.

A Mountain Orchard.

The opinion generally prevails that to raise apples successfully in this county it is necessary to procure a farm some where in the valley between the North and South mountains; and to avoid as much as possible the high lands, particularly the mountain tops. There is no doubt but that the valley offers inducements that the mountain cannot, yet it is not at all certain that any better fruit can be raised or that the crop will be, under normal circumstances, any better in the valley than on the mountains. There are a number of orchards on the South Mountain which produce as much fruit and of quite as good a quality as can be found in similar orchards in the low land; and some varieties appear to grow larger and better on the higher lands. Mr Jehiel Davidson, who owns a fine farm on some of the highest land on the Gasperau Mountain, has a very fine orchard which will compare favorably with the best of our orchards in the valley, both as regards quality and quantity of fruit. Perhaps he has taken better care of his trees when young than would be necessary if planted on lower ground, more sheltered from the high winds. He has planted on the north and west a hedge of spruce trees, which keeps prevailing winds in great measure from his trees. He also believes in thorough cultivation and a liberal supply of fertilizers. His crop of Gravensteins, Baldwins, Ribstones and Bishop Pippins this year is very fine, particularly the Bishop Pippins, which are large, smooth and comparatively free from black spot, and the yield per tree abundant. His Baldwins are exceptionally large and well colored and his trees are loaded down with fruit. Four apples, picked up under one of these trees, a fair sample of the whole, weighed 2 1/2 lbs, and the largest of the four weighing 11 oz. Mr Davidson's Ribstones are equally as good, if not better, than those found in the orchards below. Other varieties, of which he has several, are equally as good. Taking his orchard as a whole it would be hard to find many superior in this county.

Read This. Dr Geo. A. Pickles, a very eminent doctor of Mahone Bay, N. S., says: "I knew a man on this Bay who has been sick for a long time. All the medicine we tried or could get, did not reach his case. He tried Canadian Bitters and other Patent Medicines, all failed and he was gradually growing worse. At last I tried a bottle of Dr Norton's Blood Purifier. Imagine my surprise that in less than a week he was much improved in health, and by the time he had finished the second bottle he was a well man. I now have great call at my Drug Store for Dr. Norton's Blood Purifier in the case mentioned proved itself far superior to any Bitters or Blood Purifier that I have ever known."

GOOD PICKERS.—Mr Frank A. Dixon, of this place, received a cablegram from Messrs J. C. Houlton & Co., of London, a few days ago stating that the apples received by the steamer Ulanada have sold as follows:—Calverts, 16s. to 18s.; Gravensteins, No. 1 and 2, 20s. to 26s.; Ribstones, 24s. to 26s. These prices are certainly very encouraging to our fruit growers, who will probably make up this season for the small prices of last year.

A NEIGHBOR'S WEEKLY.

It Was Not Less Sweet Because It Was Slow in Coming.

"Never will I forgive Follett," said Robert Murdock, with bitter energy. "Never is a long day," said his wife, calmly. "That may be, but I mean what I say, nevertheless," he rejoined. "It's hardly Christian, Robert," she retorted. "You can't deny that he has served me a mean trick."

"I do not deny it. I was certainly surprised to find that he could treat you in so unbecomingly a manner." "Oughtn't you to have known that?" he asked. "I should think it was only right before last that I announced my intention of buying the Walsingham lot, considering that it would greatly rise in value within the next few years, for reasons which I detailed to him. He advised me to do so, and the next morning he asked me to sell it to him at a price which, if that wasn't mean, I should like to know what it was."

"I agree with you on that point. But I hope he may come to see his meanness himself." "No chance for that. He's as mean as dirt, and cares only for his own interests." "Certainly it did seem that Mr. Murdock had a right to complain. The Walsingham lot contained five acres, which, for special reasons known to him, was likely to become valuable at no distant day. For this reason he had for a year past desired to possess it. The death of the owner, necessitating a sale, opened to him the coveted opportunity. But he was indiscreet enough to communicate his intention to his neighbor, with the result already mentioned."

"It was not until two days afterward that he accidentally met Follett at the village store. With some embarrassment in his manner, Follett said: "Good-morning, Mr. Murdock." "Murdock looked him full in the face and then retired to another part of the store. Follett flushed at the decided rebuff, which had been witnessed by several others who were well acquainted with both parties. "What is the matter with Murdock?" asked an acquaintance. "I don't know, I'm sure. If he don't want to speak to me, he needn't!"

"I am going to send you a story I have written, but I shall send it under a fictitious name." "Then," was Mr. Aldrich's remark, "I advise you to send it to a fictitious editor." "I have never inquired whether the story is true, but it came back to my mind the other day when I heard the story of a woman, whose name I pretty well know, was arguing with a brother author the obvious foolish proposition that acceptance goes by favor, and being of a disposition which I hope he will pardon my saying, since I do not name him—is at least unusually firm, his support of his views of the case became more determined as he proceeded. "I'll tell you what I'll do," he said, at length. "I've two short stories done, and one is much better than the other. They are written on the type-writer and I'll send the worse one over my own name to a magazine and the other over an assumed name, and I'll bet you five dollars that my name carries the poor one, while the better one comes back."

The man who was accepted, the manuscripts sent off, and the event awaited. By a consideration of the poetic justice the young author should have won his wager, but as a matter of fact he did not. The story with his name on it came back, "declined with thanks"—to how many a luckless writer has that phrase come!—and the other was accepted, and the editor wrote the author a kind note, advising him to send no more, evidently believing that it was his good fortune to have discovered a new writer. Whether the editor was amiable or not when the matter was explained to him, I do not know, but the moral is obvious.

"I heartily recommend Putner's Emulsion to all who are suffering from affections of the Throat and Lungs, and I am certain that for any form of Wasting Disease nothing superior to it can be obtained."

"I have been suffering from Palmonary Disease for the last five years. About two years ago, during an acute period of my illness, I was advised by my physician to try Putner's Emulsion. I did so with the most gratifying results. My sufferings were speedily alleviated, my cough diminished, my appetite improved, I added several pounds to my weight in a short time and began to recover strength. This process continued until life, which had been a misery to me, became once more a pleasure. Since then Putner's Emulsion has been my only medicine. As one who has fully tested its worth I heartily recommend it to all who are suffering from affections of the Lungs and Throat and I am certain that for any form of Wasting Disease nothing superior can be obtained."

HOSPITAL REMEDIES. What are they? The growth of intelligence in medical matters has given rise to a demand for a class of genuine, reliable remedies. The opportunity of the ignorant quack, who grew rich curing everything out of a single bottle has passed. To supply this demand a list of remedies has been prepared. They are the favorite prescriptions of the most famous medical practitioners of the day, gathered from the hospitals of London, Paris, Berlin and Vienna. Prescriptions which cost the patients of these specialists from $25 to $100 are here offered prepared and ready for use at the nominal price of one dollar each. Not one of them is a cure all; each one has only the reasonable power of curing a single disease, and all are kept in contact. Sufferers from Catarrh, Dysentery, Cholera, Asthma, Consumption, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, Liver and Kidney Complaints, Fever and Ague, Neuralgia, Female Weakness, Leucorrhoea or Nervous Debility should send stamp for descriptive catalogue to Hospital Remedies Co., 304 West King St., Toronto, Canada. If you druggist does not keep these remedies remit price and we will send direct.
