Sydney Strike Presents More Serious Aspect.

U. M. Workers Not in Sympathy With Strikers—Rakovsky Succeeds Krassin in London—Peace in Sight in Near East.

CHANGED FOR THE WORSE. SYDNEY, July 8. The strike situation in the Cape Breton coal fields changed over night. Hiesle Dan McLean, one of the leading spirits at New Waterford, told the Canadian Press yesterday that on Friday the men in his district who recently voted against the strike for the 1921 wages scale were wavering and might easily have been induced to return to work, but to-day they met and endorsed the resolutions passed at the Glace Bay meeting, pledging them to stand fast until the two leaders, Livingstone and McLachlan, had been set free, and also calling upon the railway unions to refuse to move further troop trains into Cape Breton. Alex S. McInyre, Vice President of the United Mine Workers, said the Union headquarters had yet to receive the telegram from Lewis, International President, calling upon the miners to return to work and published Saturday afternoon. In any event, he said, the strikers would stand fast, no matter how long the leaders remained in jail. The coke ovens and Blooming mill are being made ready to start work to-morrow.

SYMPATHETIC STRIKE MAY DEVELOP. CALGARY, July 8. The situation is serious and anything may happen, declared William Sherman, President of District Eighteen, United Mine Workers, regarding the attitude of the Union toward the development in the Nova Scotia coal and steel strike. Asked if a sympathetic strike was possible, he said it certainly was. A general conference of all western locals is to be held shortly in Calgary or Winnipeg to decide sympathetic action.

STRIKE IS IRREGULAR AND VIOLATES AGREEMENT. SYDNEY, N.S., July 8. The announcement that John E. Lewis, International President of the United Mine Workers of America, had requested the executive of District 26 "to take immediate steps" to have the miners of Cape Breton return to work, was made here Saturday. President Lewis telegraphed the District President, Daniel Livingstone, from Atlantic City, and terminated the existing strike "unquestionably a violation of the existing agreement between District 26 and the coal companies, the parties thereto." President Lewis also termed the strike "a violation of the principles and policies of the United Mine Workers."

EXTRAVAGANT TALK OF MINERS' LEADER. GLACE BAY, N.S., July 8. At a mass meeting held here Saturday night striking miners from all locals enthusiastically voted to remain on strike until McLachlan and Livingstone were released and also adopted the Caledonia local resolution calling upon the railway unions to refuse to move any more troop trains to Cape Breton. Chairman Angus Kenny McDonald conducted the meeting which was bolstered but orderly. International President Lewis and the Provincial Government were scored heavily by speakers and voices from the audience. At the close of the meeting the Chairman in advising the miners to commit no acts of violence against the troops, added "any man who goes back to work after taking this vow sinks his principles to the soles of his boots. Comrades, I don't ask you to kill any man who goes back to work, I want you to kick him to death."

NO BAIL ALLOWED. HALIFAX, N.S., July 8. Stipendiary Magistrate M. E. Archibald, in the police court yesterday, refused the application for bail on behalf of Daniel Livingstone and J. M. McLachlan, proffered by their counsel; J. A. Walker. The accused, respectively President and Secretary of District twenty-six, United Mine Workers of America, are charged as follows:—"That they did in the city of Halifax, on the sixth day of July, A.D. 1923, wilfully and knowingly, publish a false tale whereby injury or mischief was likely to be occasioned to the public interest, namely, the Government and Provincial police of Nova Scotia." The two leaders were arrested in Sydney Friday and brought to Halifax for trial.

FRENCH AND BELGIAN THREAT. BRUSSELS, July 7. The Belgian diplomatic agent at Berlin has informed the German Government that diplomatic relations will be suspended if the Reich does not repudiate unequivocally the Ruhr crimes. The French ambassador has given similar notice.

CONTRADICTS LAUSANNE STORY. SOFIA, July 7. A report received to-night from Constantinople says that the Greeks attempted to land a regiment at Kara Barun, near the Dardanelles, and that the Turks repulsed them after severe fighting. Many casualties on both sides are reported. In the fighting a Turkish torpedo boat sank a Greek ship, the report says, and many were drowned.

NO CLASH. LAUSANNE, July 8. The Turkish delegation stated to-day it had received no advices regarding a reported clash between Greek and Turkish troops at Karaburun. The opinion was expressed by the Turkish representatives that the report was erroneous.

GETTING BACK TO PEACE TIMES. BELGRADE, July 8. The Serbian representative at Sofia has been instructed to inform the Bulgarian Government that, in agreement with its colleagues of the little entente, the Belgrade Cabinet is disposed to resume normal relations with Bulgaria.

SIKI KNOCKS OUT NILLES. PARIS, July 8. Battling Siki to-day knocked out Marcel Nilles, the French heavyweight pugilist in the second round of what was to have been a twenty round battle.

THE U. S. NAVY. WASHINGTON, July 8. The United States will maintain at full efficiency during the next fiscal year a minimum naval force at sea of eighteen first line battleships, fourteen cruisers and eighty-four submarines, under a decision by the General Board formally approved to Secretary of Navy Denby.

Big Dramatic Triumph at The Nickel To-Day.

"TURN TO THE RIGHT" EXCELS THEM ALL. One of the greatest photoplays to reach our city is Rex Ingram's magnificent production, entitled "Turn to the Right" which is being presented at the Nickel Theatre to-night. There is every reason to expect that "Turn to the Right" will be received with enthusiasm; for the play is compounded with all the elements that the public, in the past, has always heartily approved. Motherlove, the lamp left burning in the window against the prodigal's return, the mortgage on the old home, the thesis that it is more easy to be moral in the country than in the city, the problem of what society can do with a convict who has served his term, the girl who remains faithful to her lover throughout a separation of ten years, a pair of crooks who are tender-hearted and talk telegraphic slang, a young man with a zest for getting on who makes a fortune out of a single bright idea, the American love of business adventure, the American enjoyment of success—these are the ingredients of "Turn to the Right" and any one or two of them would be sufficient to win the approval of the public.

Express Passengers. The following first class passengers arrived at Port aux Basques by the Gloucester yesterday morning: Lord Amphil, Sir John Ferguson, Col. Hamilton Wedderburn, A. E. Carlyle, Mr. Winfield, Mrs. Jones, W. J. Edgar, H. H. Hamilton, W. C. Wigman, F. Pyke, A. W. Ewing, G. H. Comstock, G. S. Batten, H. Boone, F. Hutchings, A. Boone, Miss O. F. Snow, Mrs. J. Hawco, Miss S. M. Snow, A. E. and Mrs. Wasser, J. F. La Costa, E. Reinhardt, Rev. H. W. Cunningham, Mrs. W. Burthwell, Miss H. F. Bartlett, R. S. Blackwell, A. E. Harris, Mr. J. MacManus, H. KRASSIN'S SUCCESSOR. MOSCOW, July 8. The appointment of Christian Rakovsky to succeed Leonid Krassin as head of the Russian legation in London is announced. Rakovsky was formerly President of the Ukrainian Republic.

MORRIS WINS SCULLING RACE. HENLEY ON THAMES, July 8. Morris defeated Gollan in an exciting sculling race here Saturday for the Diamond sculls, winning in eight minutes and twenty-three seconds. Immediately after passing the winning post, Morris collapsed and fell into the water but was soon fished out and revived.

PEACE IN SIGHT IN NEAR EAST. LAUSANNE, July 8. An accord has been reached between Turks and Allies and peace will probably be signed within a week. Thus the Near East Conference, which has been in continuous session for more than three months past, has had a successful outcome. For a considerable period the Conference hung in the balance over the question of the Ottoman debt concessions and the exaction of Constantinople and other Turkish territory by foreign troops, both sides gave way in a measure at the end.

The Incas Buried Their Dead Like the Ancient Egyptians.

Buenos Aires, June 12.—A mummy, surrounded by objects indicating that it was a person of high authority in the ancient Inca dynasty, has been unearthed at an altitude of 1,800 feet on Mount Licancabur, situated in the extreme northwest corner of Argentina, almost on the Chilean border. Like all Inca corpses, it was buried in a sitting position, its high station being indicated by its burial in a pottery jar, whereas ordinary persons were buried in rope baskets. The hair, teeth and nails were intact, but the strangest feature is the perfect preservation of all the internal organs in a petrified state. It was unearthed by Rafael Gentile Leonardis. The burial jar was surrounded by a large number of utensils made of stone and copper and pottery, the latter showing a high degree of skill. Drinking mugs and jars have shapes of cats, dogs, monkeys and parrots. Senior Leonardis states that the stone instruments, copper serpents and other objects, as well as the manner of uniting the objects into one instrument, bear a close resemblance to those found in Luxor.

Don't fail to visit the wonderful Art Gallery at the Methodist Orphanage and College Garden Party. As this feature will undoubtedly appeal to a large number of our people, special arrangements will be made to avoid over-crowding.—July 9, 11.

Many Explanations of Manitoba Vote. LEGISLATION NOT SANCTIONED VOTED DOWN—GOVERNMENT TO SELL LIQUOR. WINNIPEG.—Manitoba, which a few years ago, led the van in advanced temperance legislation, has voted wet by the enormous majority of 35,000.

The result of the referendum tells many things. One is that the great mass of the organized farmers, who have been voting for "total prohibition of the liquor traffic" for years and who embodied that plank in their political platform did not all vote dry on this occasion. It also proved another thing, namely, that all women are not in favor of prohibition as thousands of them must have voted wet.

"The temperance Act was not properly administered," was the reason given for many a wet vote and there is no doubt that there has been much bootlegging and illicit sale of whiskey. There was really a cloud on the Manitoba Temperance Act, too, because the Act, as a matter of fact, had never received the endorsement at the polls of the people of Manitoba. In 1916 a referendum asked for the enactment of prohibition to the extent of provincial power and the Manitoba Temperance Act which was the outcome, didn't prohibit the importation of liquor for use and every mail from other provinces was heavy with orders of liquors to be shipped in for all who wanted to buy. Incidentally the price in those early days was quite reasonable. In 1920 there was a second referendum which had the effect of prohibiting the importation of liquor for personal use and thereby turned the Manitoba Temperance Act into a strict bondary prohibitory measure. The second referendum, it has always been contended, misled the people, many voting for it on the understanding that it would give the province full powers to deal with the question, but a great many people apparently voted for it with the idea that the government would take the opinion of the people on the Temperance Act as changed by the second referendum at an early date.

Humber Agreement in Its Final Stages.

One of the most significant features perhaps in connection with the discussions that have taken place over the Humber Agreement in the press and during the progress of the Bill through the Legislature has been the absence of that kind of criticism—only too often in evidence in the past—which appeared to have as its main object obstruction, or opposition to a new enterprise. For instance the Harmsworth Bill was opposed tooth and nail by certain factions, and the flood of amendments which were suggested threatened for a time to submerge the main issue altogether. The amendments introduced by the Opposition in this instance, and adopted by the Government, have not only assured to the next generation a new source of revenue, but they have also safeguarded the interests of the working man. The trapper's rights have been preserved, and the broad hunting spaces which is one of the greatest attractions that we offer to the sportsman have been retained.

The long period of depression through which we have been passing has brought home to everyone the urgent need for other avenues of employment than the fisheries. The Hon. Sir M. G. Winter, in moving the second reading of the Bill in the Legislative Council stated that the fisheries were year by year becoming more and more of a fluctuating value, and that business concerns engaged in the codfishery had been subject by reason of its uncertainty to severe strain, and in many cases had completely collapsed. He stressed the fact that the fisheries are, and must remain our chief industry, but emphasized the need for the encouragement of new enterprises to supplement the fisheries.

It is earnestly to be hoped, now that the country has adopted the Agreement, that it will prove, if not all that has been promised by its sponsors during the heat of a political campaign, at least a steady source of employment to our fishermen during the slack months of the year, a live advertisement of our resources, and an inducement to other capitalists of the standing and reputation of the Messrs. Armstrong Whitworth & Co. to probe into our lands for the mineral wealth which they undoubtedly contain.

Motor Traffic in Bowring Park.

At the last meeting of the Municipal Council it was unanimously decided that motor cars should not be permitted to drive through Bowring Park. We are not in possession of the reason given for this decision, but unless they were of a very serious nature it is difficult to understand the action of the Council in this matter.

Ever since the Park was thrown open to the public, the generosity of the donor has been highly appreciated by the thousands who visit it whenever possible.

sible. Among these are many who are invalids and who are unable to walk. The broad road which circles the Park was obviously intended as a driveway, as is Rotten Row for riding in Hyde Park or the roads around the mountain in Montreal for wheeled traffic. Owners of motor cars who placed their services at the disposal of the wounded soldiers in hospital were invariably requested to include in the run a visit to the Park, and it is one of the few places near the city to which visitors are taken and shown with pride.

Under the Park regulations the cars have travelled at a low rate of speed and in the same direction, and there are special police to see that the rules are observed. The chance of an accident is therefore negligible.

It is still more difficult to understand why a distinction has been made between motor car and horse drawn vehicles. Criticism of this decision during the week-end has been general, and it is to be hoped that the Council may see its way to have the matter reconsidered.

Our Thanks.

In assuming the privileges as well as the responsibilities which the filling of the editorial chair entails, we beg to thank the Daily News for its enthusiastic welcome into the field of journalism, and trust that in time we too may be of some assistance in carrying on the work in which the daily papers of this country are engaged—the maintaining of the rights and privileges of her people, the advancement of her best interests and the maintenance of the standard of loyalty and patriotism to the Mother Land and to the Empire to which we belong.

Fire Alarm.

At 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon an alarm brought the Central and East End firemen to the residence of Mr. J. Larkin, Queen's Road. The fire was caused by an oil stove exploding. Before much damage was done the blaze was extinguished. Soot in the chimney of the residence of Mr. W. P. Shortall, Gover St., taking fire was the cause of a fire alarm on Saturday afternoon. The application of chemicals extinguished the blaze within a few minutes.

Junior League Holds Meeting.

A meeting of the Junior Football League was held on Saturday night in the L. S. F. U. Hall for the purpose of formulating rules and regulations in connection with the Junior race in the Regatta. The rules governing the same were drafted and will be sent to the Regatta Committee for their approval. The announcement was made that the Senior League had kindly consented to give Tuesday evening next to the Junior League. The Cadets and B. I. S. teams will play on that date. The next game will be played on Wednesday evening when the T. A. and Wesley evenings will clash. On Wednesday afternoon (the half holiday) the Juniors will take part in all the sporting events. They have entered for the Relay Races in the G. V. V. A., Ayre Athletic Sports and St. Patrick's Garden Party, while they will also participate in a series of football five in the latter.

Train Notes.

Yesterday's west bound express arrived at Bishop's Falls one hour and twenty minutes late. The incoming express left Gambo six hours and twenty-five minutes late and is not due to arrive in the city before 7 o'clock to-night. The local from Cartouner arrived on time. A special train with Baron Amptill and party on board reached the city at 12:35 p.m. Let's make this year's Methodist Orphanage and College Garden Party the best yet. Be sure to come, it's going to be a top-notch. So don't miss it. July 9, 11

In Passing.

On the 8th day of July, when the wind was blowing high, I was sitting at my tea with the Herald on my knee. And a cold pig's face before me on a plate.

When a woman rushed in wild and she holding out her child, Saying "Mr. Cluney, Tim Brian's barn is all ablaze."

Many of our readers will remember these lines which were written by Mr. John Burke and distributed in ballad form whilst the great conflagration, which caused a financial loss of city property of over $15,000,000, was in progress.

Thirty-one years ago on Friday, the 8th day of July, the fire which started at Brian's barn, in the vicinity of Freshwater and Pennywell Roads, destroyed the greater portion of the eastern section of the city, leaving fully 10,000 people homeless.

For many months after, the majority of those whose houses were destroyed lived in camps in the parks, where the municipal and government authorities made provision for the needy and destitute.

The fire was in progress for almost two weeks. Lack of water was entirely responsible for the devastation.

Baron Amptill, Pro. Grand Master of English Freemasonry, arrived in the city to-day for the purpose of installing the District Grand Master Designate, Mr. J. R. Bennett, which ceremony takes place to-morrow evening.

From Who's Who we take the following reference:— Amptill—2nd Baron (c. 1881) Arthur Oliver Villiers Russel, G.C.I.E. cr. 1900; G.C.S.I. cr. 1904; G.B.E. 1917. M.A., J.P., D.L., Bedfordshire; formerly Lieut. Royal 1st Devon Yeomanry Cavalry; Lt. Col. Devonshire 3rd Batt. Bedfordshire Regt., 1898-1916; commanded 13th Batt. Bedfordshire Regt., 1916-17, again commanded 3rd Batt. Bedfordshire Regt., 1918-19. Indian Labour Adviser G. H. C. France, May 1917-May 1918 (despatches thrice, Lt. Col., June, 1919).

Baron Amptill was appointed Provincial Grand Master Bedfordshire since 1890, late District Grand Master of Madras Freemasons, Pro Grand Master of Grand Lodge of Freemasons of England 1908.

President of London Rowing Club, born in Rome, 19 Feb. 1849; son of 1st Baron and Lady Emily Theresa Villiers, V.A. D., daughter of 4th Earl of Galloway, 1884. m. Lady Margaret Ly-Margaret Lygon, G.B.E. on the death of Clarence; S. father 1884. m. Lady of Earl Beauchamp in 1894. Lady Amptill order of the Crown of India in 1899 the Kaiser-Rhin Gold Medal in 1906 G.B.E. order of St. John of Jerusalem 1917.

Baron Amptill was one of the founders of the National Party in 1918. President of the National Council National Party year following. He rowed in Oxford University 1889, winner of several silver goblets at Henley Regatta with the celebrated Guy Nicholas 1890. President of Oxford Union Society 1891. He contested Fulham in the L.C.C. election in 1895 as a moderate after which he was appointed Private Secretary to the Rt. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain. In 1899, he was Governor of Madras which appointment he held till 1906. In 1904 he was Viceroy and Governor General (pro tem) of India, British Delegate at International Conference on Sugar Bounties at Brussels in 1898.

Lord Amptill was educated at Eton, New College, Oxford and the Hon. to his title is his son Lieut. Hon. J. H. Russell R.N. The visiting Baron is a prominent member of many of the leading clubs in the United Kingdom including Brooks Bath and British Empire.

Accompanying Baron Amptill are Sir John Ferguson, Lt.-Col. R. Hamilton and Mr. A. E. Carlyle representatives of the Grand Lodge of Freemasonry.

The strike at Sydney is assuming a serious aspect as will be seen by the daily despatches during the past forty-eight hours, and it is quite possible the arrest of the leaders of the United mine workers will have a disastrous effect against the recognition of the men who were employed in the coal mines and steel works.

The possibility of a Dominion wide sympathetic strike as intimated by one of the leaders of the U.M.W. in Western Canada may be accepted with very little serious thought, in view of the announcement of the President of the great organization who is firm in his statement that the strike is irregular and advised the officers and members of the Nova Scotia province to take immediate steps to have the miners of Cape Breton return to work.

Every day additional troops are arriving on the scene which added to the arrest of the leaders Livingstone

Distinguished Visitors Arrive.

LUNCHEON AT DONOVAN'S TO-DAY

Baron Amptill, Pro. Grand Master of English Freemasonry, accompanied by Sir John Ferguson, Grand Treasurer; Lt.-Col. R. Hamilton Wedderburn, Past District Grand Director of Ceremonies; Mr. A. E. Football Meeting.

Several Important Matters Deal With. A special meeting of the Nfld. Football League was held in the offices of the President on Saturday night last. A goodly attendance of the league delegates was present. Owing to the Masonic installation on Tuesday night by Baron Amptill, the Feildian-C.E.I. game scheduled for that night was postponed until the end of the season. The above arrangement was asked by special request from players, members of the organization. The League then decided to give the night over to the Junior League.

The next topic for discussion was the Football Race. One of the representatives pointed out that the above race was a popular one with the general public, and thought it would be a pity to have it dropped from the programme. It was stated that four clubs had already signified their intention of competing. They would draw their own rules, guaranteeing that none but bona fide footballers would be eligible, and asked the League to withdraw their objections to this race being placed on the programme. The League approved what had already been said, and they had no objection to the Regatta Committee placing this event on the programme, but pointed out that the League would accept no responsibility as to the eligibility of contestants. It was decided to write the Regatta Committee to that effect. Before the meeting adjourned several other matters of importance were discussed.

MR. E. ALLEN DOWDEN.

An esteemed citizen of St. John's East, in the person of Mr. E. Allen Dowden, a brother of Councillor R. Dowden, passed away at his home 102 Circular Road, yesterday morning, after a lengthy illness. The cause of death was heart failure. The deceased was a man of exceptional character, kind and considerate to all, and his early demise removes from our midst a citizen whom we can ill afford to lose. For many years he was employed in Messrs. Harvey & Co's Butterine Factory, where he was always held in the highest esteem. He leaves to mourn a young widow and one little daughter Phyllis, two brothers, Thos. and Reginald, and four sisters, Mrs. James Edwards, Mrs. G. H. Press and Misses Jennie and Minnie Dowden. Newfoundland's High Commissioner.

Newfoundland Club's Tribute to Sir Edgar Bowring on His Retirement.

Warm tributes to the personality and services of the Hon. Sir Edgar Bowring were paid, on the occasion of his retirement from the position of High Commissioner for Newfoundland, at a largely attended dinner given in his honor by the Newfoundland Club at the Hotel Victoria, London, recently. The chair was occupied by Lord Morris, a former Prime Minister of the Dominion.

Grace was said by the Right Rev. T. Ramoif of St. George's, Newfoundland. Apologies for absence were intimated by Captain Victor Gordon, the acting High Commissioner for Newfoundland, who is secretary of the Club, from the High Commissioners for Canada and India, and also from Mr. William Goode. In his letter, Mr. Markin said that personally he could not conceive of any Dominion having, at the heart of the Empire, a representative who could more worthily fill the position or be more acceptable to his colleagues, the other High Commissioners. In his association with Sir Edgar, he had always been impressed not only with his agreeable qualities but with his grasp of the affairs which concerned them all, and therefore his capacity for giving service. He had not only been useful to his own country, but of service to them all.

Lord Morris, in proposing the death of Sir Edgar Bowring, said although Newfoundland was the oldest of the Dominions of the Empire, strange to say, she was the last to establish a High Commissioner's office in London. "That," remarked Lord Morris, amid laughter, "may be a reflection on the politicians, because it is not usual to find the possibilities of such a good office as that hanging round without any development. I mention that aspect of it merely for the purpose of paying a compliment to my predecessors in office." Previously the work was done principally through agencies in this country and through the various British Government offices; while, if there was anything of very great importance to be done, delegates were sent over, usually the Prime Minister. After the war, however, it became evident that the interests of the Dominion, there should be a resident High Commissioner in London. Sir Edgar Bowring, who had been long connected with the trade of the Dominion, and had taken a very large share in the public life of Newfoundland, having been a member of its Legislative Council for something like 30 years, was induced to accept the appointment, but only on the understanding that it was to be on the same terms as his membership of the Dominions' Royal Commission, with which he travelled all over the world—namely, that he should receive neither salary nor expenses. That gathering was another proof of how he had succeeded. It would not be inappropriate to say that during the four years Sir Edgar had held office he had been ably supported by Captain Victor Gordon. He thought everyone who had come in contact with the latter and had an opportunity of testing his worth, would agree that he had maintained the high ideals set by Sir Edgar Bowring.

As to the future, Lord Morris said he believed that, as the United States and Canada had filled up in the past, the day might not be far distant when Newfoundland would begin to fill up, and the new High Commissioner, as the years went on, would have opportunities of bringing to the notice of the investor the advantages of Newfoundland. There were great possibilities for the development of their mines, their fisheries, and their agriculture, and now that the spirit of developing the Empire was abroad it was for the future High Commissioner and the Government of Newfoundland to see if they could provide any special inducements to emigrants from this country to go and settle in Newfoundland and to develop Imperial trade.

Lord Morris concluded by expressing, on behalf of the Club and their guests, their hearty appreciation of Sir Edgar Bowring and the work that he had done for Newfoundland and the manner in which he had done it. They hoped he would be spared for many years to enjoy his otium cum dignitate, and that, although he would be officially disconnected, he would, as a Newfoundland, help the country in every possible way and on every possible occasion.

Sir James Allen, High Commissioner for New Zealand, speaking as a colleague of Sir Edgar Bowring, said he was always ready to help and his advice was always good. He could not help thinking what a debt of gratitude the Empire owed to men of the type of Sir Edgar Bowring, who had spent a great part of their lives as business men and had succeeded in their business, but at the same time had not forgotten that there was something to render to the State and to the Empire. As a member of the Dominions' Royal Commission, Sir James also testified to the good work that Sir Edgar had done on that body. He had always felt that he was not only a representative of Newfoundland, he was an Empire man. Addressing Sir Edgar, he said he had learned to know him and to value him, and would like to express the regret that all the High Commissioners must feel at the fact that he was no longer to be associated with them.

British Fair Play.
Sir Edgar Bowring, in acknowledging the toast, said that during the four years he had occupied the High Commissioner's office he had tried to bring Newfoundland before the British public in a way that had not been done before, and to present the island as being a place where people could live happily, where money could be made, and where there were prospects of great development when it was better known. His life, he remarked, had really been a business one, and official life was rather foreign to his nature. At the same time, he was very agreeably surprised, when he came to London, to find such a hearty welcome from all classes of the community. The High Commissioners and the Agents-General received him particularly warmly, although he was representing but a very tiny part of the British Empire; while all the authorities in London had accorded to Newfoundland the same consideration as had been accorded to the representatives of the large Dominions. That showed the wonderful spirit of British fair play—indeed, more than that was what Newfoundland had had during the time that he had been High Commissioner. He had found these four years most enjoyable and interesting, but they were four years out of his life at a time when he might have been doing other things. He still had business interests in various parts of the world; and, while he was extremely sorry to resign the position, still there were other things to be thought of. The fact that the winter climate in London did not really suit him was another reason for his decision. He was extremely sorry to leave, and especially to do so at the present time, because Newfoundland was just now, he regretted to say, not doing so well as formerly. Newfoundland was "under the harrow"—going through a very serious time; but he was hopeful, in spite of that, knowing her recuperative powers, that in a few years they would find her back again where she was a few years ago—back again to the time before the war when all was peace and plenty over there. It was not that the fisheries of Newfoundland had been played out, because there seemed to be about the same amount of fish landed year by year, but the market price had dropped to about a third of what it was before the war, while the cost was more than what it was. He thought, however, that that was only a temporary trouble, and he was hopeful that, when Newfoundland was brought further before the public notice, prosperity would come to them—more perhaps from the minerals and timber products than from the fisheries and agriculture. There was unquestionably a very large mineralized belt running right across the country from Green Bay to West St. George, and he was sure there were not only immense quantities of copper and iron, but also gold, lead, and other products. He hoped that before long there would be brought to the attention of prospectors, and he thought that Newfoundland in that way would be one of the richest countries in the world.

The Acting High Commissioner.
In concluding, Sir Edgar Bowring said he believed the Newfoundland Club had come to stay. He also took the opportunity of endorsing what Lord Morris had said with regard to Captain Victor Gordon. It was one of the luckiest days in his life when the latter called at the office in Victoria Street, and applied for the position of chief secretary. Since then they had worked hand in hand, and had never had an angry word. He had the highest admiration for Captain Gordon, and he wished to really and truly that the Newfoundland Government could do their way to continue him in the High Commissioner's office—a declaration which was greeted with loud cheers. "No one could be better, I know," added Sir Edgar, "and I really hope that the Newfoundland Government will be wise enough to hold on to a man when they have got him. I have let them know my views on the subject, and, if political exigencies will only permit of it, Victor Gordon is there to stay."
Mr. E. R. Morris proposed the health of the chairman, speaking in particular of the good work which Lord and Lady Morris had done in visiting the wounded of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment during the war.
Lord Morris, in replying, referred to the fact that a General Election was taking place in Newfoundland that day, and gave some entertaining reminiscences of some of his election experiences there.
Captain Gordon added a personal tribute to Sir Edgar Bowring, speaking of the affection and respect in which he was held by all who were associated with him, and especially to the unassuming, modest way in which he rendered service, and the absence of self-interest from his generosity. Newfoundland owed a great debt to Sir Edgar, who stood for all that was best in the social and commercial life of the country. Captain Gordon added that he only wished that Sir Edgar was remaining in his position, especially in view of the question of the participation of Newfoundland in the British Empire Exhibition.
Sir Traversa Clarke, vice-chairman of the exhibition, joined in expressing the hope that it would be possible to arrange for this participation.

Obituary.

SR. M. GERTRUDE DUANE.

There passed away on the first day of June, at St. Augustine's Convent, Trepassay, Sr. M. Gertrude Duane. The deceased lady, at the early age of seventeen, made farewell to her home and friends in Ireland, the land of saints and scholars, came to Newfoundland and entered the Presentation Convent, Cathedral Square. While yet a novice she went, with other young sisters, to form a branch of the order at Trepassay in the time of the late Rev. Thomas Hennebury. Here she professed her vows and lived her quiet, gentle life. Perhaps no great deeds are recorded in the life of Sr. Gertrude. She was of an humble, retiring disposition, but her unwearied patience, her labours, both in the school and choir, of which latter she had charge, her zeal as instructress to keep untainted from the world the souls of the little ones under her care, mark her as the true spouse of Christ. Her deeds shall shine in the realms of the blest with a brilliancy that shall never fade, where those who instruct others unto justice shall "shine like stars for all eternity." The youth and maidens who under her guidance have sung the praises of their God at the Mass and Benediction shall always have a tender love for Sr. Gertrude's memory, and many a tear shall fall as they kneel in prayer at her humble grave in the shadow of St. Augustine's.

Sunday at S. A. Citadel.

The evening service at the S. A. Citadel, New Governor Street, was conducted by Commandant H. A. Hurd, assisted by Adj. French and a number of other officers. There was a good congregation present and a hearty welcome was accorded the Commandant, who is spending his first Sunday here for several months. After reading the first Scripture lesson the Commandant gave a very interesting talk on his recent trip to Bermuda, describing very graphically the "coloured section" of the population, the conditions prevailing in that section, stating that the Army makes no distinction between white and coloured persons, and for this reason they have obtained a great hold upon the affection of the coloured population of these islands. He spoke of the generosity of these coloured people who, although very poor, yet give so regularly and systematically that their contributions reach a considerable amount in the aggregate. He stated that the dark spot upon the life of the Bermudians is the very low moral tone among certain sections of the people, as a result of which there are a great many uncared for children of tender years who are rapidly becoming criminals, because the Government has no institution of any kind to deal with this class. He was glad that in this case, as in many others, the Army was able to tackle the problem, and a movement is now on foot for the erection of a reformatory to be under the supervision of the Salvation Army officers. The scheme has been suggested by His Excellency the Governor of Bermuda and is backed by the most influential men of all the denominations on the island. After some testimonies and a selection by the "Singers" the Commandant preached a very eloquent sermon from Genesis 22, which was followed with close attention by the large congregation present.

Wedding Bells.

TILLEY-HAGERTY.

On Thursday night, 5th inst., at the R.C. Cathedral there was solemnized a very pretty wedding, the contracting parties being Miss Tilley of this city, to Mr. William Hagerty of Trepassay. The bride, who was attired in a tawny Georgian costume with hat to match, was assisted by Mrs. Jas. Tilley, wife of the bride's brother, while the groom was ably supported by Mr. David Hipditch. The bride's flower girl was Miss Violet Butt. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Magr. MacDermott. After the tying of the nuptial knot the party with their friends and admirers proceeded to the home of the bride's father, where they partook of a sumptuous repast. Bowring Park. The presents received by both bride and groom were numerous, testifying to the esteem in which both were held.

LEAGUE MEETING.

A special meeting of the Football League was held at President Higgins' office on Saturday night to deal principally with the matter of the Football Race which at a previous meeting had been decided by the League to do away with. Apparently such action by the delegates did not meet with the approval of the members as a matter of fact with the public generally as this race (particularly of late years) has been the most exciting event on the program. It was first held in 1900 when it was won by the Fiddians with Mr. O. H. Hayward as coxswain. The quickest time on record for this race was in 1903 when the B.I.S. footballers rowed it in 10.05 1/2. The League, after some discussion eventually decided that they would report to the Regatta Committee that they had no objection to the race being again placed on the program but that they could not undertake to guarantee the status of any of the competitors and that the Regatta Committee would have to make their own rules regarding it. This being so, it is likely that rowers will be obliged to have played at least three games for the season before being eligible.

AN OLD FAVOURITE.

Fred Marshall, who until Monday last held the Newfoundland record for the mile is getting into condition for another crack at the laurels taken from him by Harvey Skirving. He has apparently lost none of his old time flashes of speed and will likely compete in the mile event on Wednesday at the G.W.V.A. Sports. Should he not be running it is suggested that Skirving be handicapped say fifty yards for the purpose of endeavoring to break his present record of 4.59 1/2 at starting at the scratch his outdistances other competitors so easily that it is not usual for him to be obliged to finish strenuously. We know that Harvey is sport enough to try it if the G.W.V.A. officials are agreeable.

WEDNESDAY BUSY DAY.

All sprinters will have a busy time.

This Wednesday afternoon as there are no less than three cards of events to choose from viz. G.W.V.A. Sports, and the Methodist Orphanage, and St. Patrick's Garden Parties.

WANT SWIMMING RACE.

There was never a more popular event than the swimming race at the Regatta which if we speak aright was inaugurated at the instance of the now Vice-President, Mr. Higgins, in 1906, who secured fifth place. We have been asked to state publicly that it is the desire of many to see the Committee include this race again in the program this year. It takes a little time and trouble, it's true, but 'tis well worth it. What about it, gentlemen?

GAME POSTPONED.

The Fiddian-C.E.L. game scheduled for to-morrow, has been postponed until the end of the season, as many of the players will be participating in the Masonic Installation ceremonies, conducted by Baron Amphil, who is now in the city. As will be noted above the Junior B.I.S. and Cadets will fill in instead.

"MARY" RECLASSIFIED.

Mr. Bob Sexton, the well known raceboat builder, has decided to strip the "Mary" and remodel her to the lines of the "Cadet" which he guarantees will make her equal to if not superior to any boat on the Pond. Formerly the "Pink-Us," she has some notable wins to her credit, viz. Bowring's Mercantile, British Society, Holwell's Truckmen, C.E.I. Football and Tub Factory in 1909; Bowring's Mercantile and C.E.I. Football in 1910 and 1911. She is reputed to have been rowed in 9.28 by Bill Field's truckmen in practice. A crack crew will man her for this year's Amateur Race consisting of Phil Browne (stroke), Jack Tobin, Tom Penney, Jack Caul, Jack Bell and Steve Rowsell. All with the exception of Bell have been stroke oars. Joe Hussey will coxswain her.

A RECORD IN SCORING.

In a recent contest match between Hampshire and Middlesex, the first four batsmen of the latter team secured 552 runs for the loss of only two wickets. The players were Lee 107, Dales 108, Hearn (not out) 184, and Hendren 138. On the following day when the innings was continued Hearn increased his score to 232 and Hendren to 177 when Middlesex declared. The score then stood 642 for three wickets. Unfortunately a down-pour of rain prevented the match from being finished.

Three years ago a similar record was made by Middlesex, and curiously enough both Lee and Hendren participated.

Hendren has now scored his 1000th run, the first to do this season.

BRITAIN MUST STATE HER ATTITUDE.

LONDON, July 9. There is an increasing impression that the present British Cabinet cannot much longer delay a declaration of its policy in the Reparations question. This belief was strengthened by a speech made at Birmingham by L. S. Amery, First Lord of the Admiralty, and Arthur Neville Chamberlain, Minister of Health. They both stressed the point that Britain must make clear her policy without delay.

CANADIAN PREMIER TAKES A HOLIDAY.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 9. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister, left Ottawa yesterday for a rest after the work of Parliamentary session. Mr. King has had no vacation since taking office and intends having a complete rest for two weeks. Hon. W. S. Fielding will be acting Premier in his absence.

$12 a Day no Cure.

New York is not getting its new school houses any faster now that its bricklayers have a contract for a basic wage of $1.50 an hour. The supply of bricklayers has not been increased. The amount of production per man has not been increased. But the cost of construction has been vastly increased, which means that buyers are not coming forward with money to invest in general construction. As a matter of fact, the operation of forces now generally understood gave the unionized bricklayers a corner on the market. Now that the $12 scale has been signed, speculative builders and contractors for labor with just as much enthusiasm as when the scale was $10 a day. The scramble for brick masons goes on just the same; the laborers collect from the contractors and the contractors collect from the owners and the owners collect from the public at large and the whole process is like traveling upward on the furrows of a screw. Some school contractors in New York right now are said to be paying their men the regular $12 a day for a 5 1/2 day week and double time for Sunday's making a weekly wage of $90. What is the end to be?—Boston Sunday Herald.

6 Years' Train Secret.

350 SOLDIERS KILLED IN A GORGE.

M. Maginot, Minister of War, unveiled Sunday, June 17th at St. Michel de Maurienne, near Modane, on the Italian frontier, a monument to the 350 French soldiers who perished in a railway accident there on December 12, 1917. The news of this accident has never been made public in France until now, the censor having suppressed news of it at the time. In Britain the barest reference to it was published. Five hundred French soldiers of the forces in Italy entered the leave train at Modane. The engine-driver pointed out that the train was too heavy for the sharp decline which the line takes to St. Michel. He was told to obey like a soldier. He did. Soon the train was dashing down the mountain gorge. The driver put on the brakes, but the train, instead of stopping, caught fire from the friction. Presently it reached a sharp curve and the engine was derailed. The carriages piled up on top of it, and the mass blazed. Only 150 men escaped. Several soldiers jumped out of the train as it sped to destruction. They fell against the rocky sides of the gorge and their bodies were strewn along the way. The monument will state that the 350 soldiers met death on the field of honor.

DICKENS' OLD HOME TO BE SOLD.

Gadshill Place, near Rochester, formerly the residence of Charles Dickens, is shortly to be offered for sale by auction. Gadshill is represented by Shakespeare as the scene of the exploits of Prince Henry and Falstaff. It was here that Dickens set up the Swiss chalet, a gift from Mr. Fechter, in which he did much of his later work and where he wrote the last page of his unfinished novel, "Edwin Drood," only two or three hours before his sudden seizure. After his death the chalet was presented by his family to the Earl of Devernley, and it now stands in the grounds at Cobham.

Erased. A West Point cadet, some years ago, was told by his instructor to draw up the plans and specifications of a railroad viaduct to connect two high hills, between which ran a small stream. In due course an excellent set of drawings was presented, one showing the bridge in its completion, with a sketch of the surroundings, and the other bridge set two men, with their legs hanging over the side, fishing. The drawing was returned with the request that the men be removed from the bridge. Upon receiving the paper the second time the professor discovered that his instructions had been carried out, that the two men were seated on the bank of the stream, still in quest of fish. Again was the paper returned, and this time with positive orders to remove the men from the drawing altogether. Imagine the consternation which overpowered the features of the "learned instructor," upon receiving the paper for a third time, to find two little graves and tombstones with appropriate epitaphs situated near the bank of the stream. His orders had been obeyed, and the men removed altogether.—Kentucky Standard.

Boy Writes Oratorio. Italy has produced a musical prodigy in the person of Roto Rinaldo, 11 years old, who has written an oratorio, "The Childhood of John the Baptist," which has created a sensation. The composition, which was first presented for the benefit of the Institute for the Blind in Milan, is, according to the critics, "a work of sublime inspiration, handled according to all rules of technique."

Ranger From Labrador.

REPORTS ICE JAM AND GOOD SIGN FISH.

S.S. Ranger, Capt. A. Keap, arrived in port yesterday, after a very successful run to Labrador with fishing crews. The ship went as far as Smoky and landed in all about 400 people. Capt. Keap reports that from Smoky north there is a solid jam of ice. The ice was off the coast from Spotted Islands north when the Ranger passed, but Capt. Keap thinks that with the N.E. winds of the past three days the whole coast is again blocked. There is a fine sign of fish and caplin all along the coast. At Lord's Arm the captain spoke the Sylvia II, which is on an exploration trip to Stag Bay. One of the members of the crew had his shoulder dislocated by being hit with the main boom of the schooner, but otherwise the exploring party were O.K. Capt. Keap towed the Seal to Lord's Arm, where she will await the arrival of S.S. Earl of Devon for a tow to St. John's. The Seal had her main shaft broken and lost her propeller. According to Capt. Keap the natives reported that S.S. Watchful was on the back of the ice off Cape North for two or three days, and it was expected that she would make Holton.

HECTOR ROSS.

After a rather protracted illness there passed away last evening a well known citizen in the person of Mr. Hector Ross, Master Car Builder with the Reid Mfg. Co. The deceased was born in Richmond, P.Q., in 1848 and early in life was associated in business with the late Sir R. G. Reid at construction work on the C.P.R. and Inter-Colonial railways. He came to Newfoundland 32 years ago, and worked for some time at the construction of our railroad. Subsequently he was appointed to the position of Master Car Builder with the Reid Co., a post which he held up to two years ago, when failing health compelled him to retire. Mr. Ross was a prominent member of the Presbyterian Church. He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Boyd Baird, of this city and one son, Hector, with the firm of Wm. Heap & Co. The funeral takes place to-morrow afternoon from the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. Boyd Baird, Monkstown Road. S.S. Mimik which loaded pit props at Magrawetown, sailed yesterday for England.

READY FOR BIG GOLD RUSH TO LABRADOR.

New Midas Lure for Eager Horde of Treasure Seekers.

By PAUL WHELTON.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P.E.I., June 29.—You will need the Frongee prospectors' camping outfit for your Labrador trip.

"Visit Brickley's Busy Bee for your Labrador first aid kit."

"There will be no liquor in Labrador. Take Dunston's concentrated drinks with you."

"Woodfalls, Ltd., has the correct clothing outfit for the Labrador gold seeker."

"We will outfit whole parties going to the Labrador gold fields with all lines of footstuffs. The East Mite Trading Company has them."

"You'll need a kodak in your quest for gold and we can fit you out from A to Z at Melanson's."

"Prospectors! If it's boots or shoes you want—we have them at the Down Town Bootery. Be good to your feet."

The golden sun is slowly rising in the northeast. The great golden west is now tarnished and dull in comparison to the great golden northeast and the new Midas lure.

"Down East" is slowly going gold mad. The full strength of the madny will break out in another month, it is predicted, and then a determined horde of treasure seekers will plod resolutely into the barren northland, sturdy followers of their ancestors in the days of '49 and in the Alaskan Klondike.

This gold road is not an unchartered road. There are signs up everywhere, signs such as the foregoing signs calculated to lure the gold out of the gold seekers' pockets before they start for the gold fields. The merchants are the only sure-fire gold hunters during this gold rush—and other gold rushes. The prospectors take their chances.

"Way down East they will even sell you a steamship, Mr. Gold Prospector, if you have the cash and the inclination to buy one. Practically the only way to reach the gold fields at Stag Bay is by boat, and the boat owners figure perhaps that if a man is eager to reach the spot where the yellow metal may be found he will pay almost any price.

But the prospector need not buy a boat. There will be regular service steamship runs put on this summer—within a few weeks, in fact—to Labrador, from Sydney and Pictou, N.S., and Charlottetown, P.E.I. These runs will be made weekly.

ALL SIGNS POINT TO BIG GOLD RUSH.

According to the signs in Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, Nfld., and other "Way Down East" points, there is no doubt that a gold rush—and a big gold rush—will take place as soon as the ice melts out of the Bell Isle Straits and the Labrador waters further North.

The big question, however, is whether there is actually gold in Labrador. If there is gold the prospectors will pile into the barren country. If there is not gold, the prospectors will pile in anyway.

That's the way of gold seekers. They press ever onward, buoyed up by a constant and unquenchable hope.

The consensus of opinion "Down East," seems to be that there is gold in Labrador.

The staid farmers in the lands nearest the reported gold fields are skeptical. They see a scheme to snail a certain proportion of the public by unloading worthless land and leases on the same public.

In the cities, however, the viewpoint is different. There are city skeptics, of course, just as there are firm believers. But, for the most part, the men from the city who have read the gold reports believe them. And there will be many of these residents of Down East cities in the rush.

Undoubtedly there will be men in the gold rush from Boston and from other cities and towns in Massachusetts. There always have been Hutter men in past gold rushes. No matter where one travels, he bumps plumb into a Boston man.

But, coming back to the gold rush that is on the eve of its precipitation, although a number of men have already started the journey, there have been many questions in the minds of prospective prospectors that have not been answered yet. These are with regard to actual location of the gold fields, means of reaching them, conditions in the country and countless other questions.

GOLD IN THREE BROOKS.

The gold reported to exist is in Three Brooks, emptying into Stag Bay, according to H. C. Bellier, the President of the Labrador Gold Fields Ltd. The most important of these three brooks is Big Brook, and for the benefit of those who wish to spot it on a map, it lies at 54 degrees, 51 minutes and 30 seconds north latitude and 53 degrees, 52 minutes west longitude. It runs for more than thirty miles through a valley, that is not more than four miles wide, two miles on either side of the wide brook. The valley is fringed with high mountains.

There are ample traces of the shifting of the river bed, and clearly defined water marks on the mountain foothills give further evidence that the river has changed its course several times.

At its mouth Big Brook is a quarter of a mile wide, but as one proceeds back along the course, it narrows considerably, containing in a westward direction through high banks for more than four miles, then turns southwest for seven miles, and then south. On the latter two reaches are numerous little rapids and falls, also salmon pools.

The banks of the river here are a mixture containing considerable sand and gravel and some clay. Along the shore, however, where it is not covered by water, there is a stretch of shallow quicksand into which a man sinks several feet if he attempts to walk upon it.

SOME TREES FOR CABINS.

The land in the four-mile-wide valley is fairly flat and rolling and is intersected by many little creeks and brooks. The lowlands are marshy and wet and are overgrown with low, scraggy spruce, fir and birch growths of value only for firewood. There are a few trees of large diameter, out of which log cabins may be constructed by the prospectors.

This river is not navigable for any craft bigger or heavier than a canoe, and then only for the first ten or 12 miles and there is barely 2 feet of water anywhere in the brook above this distance and there are scores of rapids and small falls.

Gold was first discovered in Big Brook, July 27, 1921. It was discovered in September, 1922, in Black Duck Brook, five or six miles to the southwest of Big Brook.

The rivers flowing into Adylik Bay are miles northeast of Big Brook, were also reported to have shown traces of gold last September, and a stampede for mining licenses resulted. Many claims were staked to be worked this summer when the ice is all gone and navigation is open.

The poorest soil sample found by the discoverers on these rivers yielded $7.50 to the cubic yard, they claim. The gold is "placer gold"—the gold of the Klondike and California. No machinery is required to mine it. A pick, a shovel, a sluice box of rough boards and a pan of tin or sheet metal are all that is required for mining. The only other thing needed is the gold.

WHAT MRS. GRENFELL SAYS.

Mrs. Wilfred T. Grenfell, wife of Dr. Grenfell, the Labrador Apostle, who has spent years in that land civilizing the natives, is quoted, however, as saying: "I have known for some time there was gold in Labrador and the heira of 'ameicans to that section of the continent may bear fruit."

The prospectors, however, must be prepared to face all kinds of weather and sudden changes in temperature, Mrs. Grenfell declares. "Summer in the Labrador," she says, "does not mean that the visitors can walk off the ships in their panama hats and Palm Beach suits.

"Although the sun at midday is so hot that it makes the white explorers as dark as the native Indians, summer nights often see the temperature drop to zero.

"In April the temperature will hover around 35 degrees below zero at night, and it will sometimes reach 40 below. It is no strange sight in the Labrador to see a blizzard in mid-summer. With the sealskin boots, the regular clothing in the Labrador consists of airtight bloomers and a jacket with hood attached. The principle of this clothing is to keep the heat of the body in and keep cold air out.

"The gold prospectors will have to bring their own food along. The high tableland, dropping precipitously to the sea, offers little opportunity for agriculture, except the production of lettuce and quick-growing greens.

"In the summer they will have lots of fish to eat, for the waters abound in cod, herring, capelin and halibut. It is in these fisheries that the natives earn their living in the summer.

PLENTY OF BERRIES.

Toward August and September, the invaders will find all the blueberries and partridge berries they can eat. But they must bring along their own supplies of other foods, for there is barely enough for the natives under ordinary conditions.

"They must take brown flour instead of white flour, to ward off the disease called beri-beri, which affects the natives. Besides, the prospectors must have a full supply of tea, sugar, molasses, beans, cornmeal, tinned milk and dried fruits."

There will be no liquor in Labrador, no matter how many prospectors go in. Mrs. Grenfell declared emphatically. Prohibition along that bleak coast is established, and is there to stay. Dr. Grenfell who has established medical and social missions on the borderland of Labrador to assist the native through the frigid winters and to teach them to become self-sufficient, practically rules that frozen paradise of the North.

The only liquor man who ever got a license to sell strong drink in Labrador did not last very long. He proceeded to get half the male Eskimo population dizzy drunk. Dr. Grenfell, a staunch prohibitionist, then proceeded to oust the liquor vendor. Now both he and Mrs. Grenfell have put the ban on liquor forever in Labrador.

WEEKLY STEAMERS.

During the summer and autumn a steamer runs weekly between St. John's Newfoundland, and Cape St. Charles, Labrador, calling at 35 settlements and towns along the east coast, and proceeding northward to Cape St. Charles. Another steamer runs weekly between Bay of Islands, Newfoundland, and Battle Harbour, Labrador, 160 miles from the gold fields. A third steamer, the Reid Newfoundland Company's vessel, leaves St. John's every two weeks, and, calling at various points along the east coast, proceeds to Nain Labrador.

The steamers on the northern route begin running as soon as the ice permits, generally late in June, and cease running when prevented by the ice in December.

In general, the climate in Labrador ranges from cold temperate on the southern coasts, to Arctic at Hudson strait and is generally so rigorous that it is unfit for agriculture north of 51 degrees latitude, except on low country near the coast.

There are two seasons in the interior. Winter begins early in October with the freezing of the small lakes, and lasts until the middle of June. When the ice on the rivers and lakes melts and summer comes on very suddenly. The lower temperatures of the interior range from 50 to 60 degrees below zero. It is slightly higher on the coast.

MUST DIG IN FOR WINTER.

The gold seekers, however, will be in the interior and will be compelled to "dig themselves in" for the winter. The mean summer temperature in the interior is about 55 above, with frosts every month in the northern portion. On the Atlantic coast the climate is extremely severe, the mean temperature for the year being below the freezing point.

The gold seekers are well warned by Mrs. Grenfell to bring their own foodstuffs, for, according to records and the stories of "Down Easters" who know Labrador, there is very little game in that barren land—certainly not sufficient game to provide food for the horde of prospectors expected to engage in the rush soon.

Among the animals indigenous to Labrador are Arctic hares, which become white in winter; squirrels, beaver, Norway rats, Labrador deer, phenacyns, voles, muskrats, lemmings, porcupines, lynxes, foxes, wolves, otters, skunks, wolverines, mink, weasel, marten and many other smaller animals. In autumn almost all the bays abound in ducks and geese, and there are also ptarmigan, grouse, both ruffed and spruce grouse. Salmon and trout also will be available as food for the gold seekers.

Labrador Goldfields, Ltd., a concern that is selling leases on a royalty basis in the Labrador goldfields, claims that even without further experiment the goldfields are 11 times richer than the Klondike, where $96,000,000 in gold was washed out of the streams.

All samples of soil thus far have been taken from the surface and washed. As soon as a vessel can reach Battle Harbour, however, the company states that it intends sending the steamship Petrel to Labrador with engineers and equipment to sound and test bedrock every quarter of an acre in the 18 miles of gold country. The Petrel is now sitting out at Halifax, N.S.

There may or may not be gold in the waste of country that is Labrador. The hardy prospectors who storm up through Halifax, through Charlottetown, on Prince Edward Island; through St. John's, N.F., and the prospectors who "mush" onward will find out to a certainty the answer to the great question.

Labrador bids fair to witness a sight such as old California saw nearly fourscore years ago, and the Klondike saw in the days of "the woman they knew as Lou." But, according to Dr. Grenfell, there will be no "Last Chance Saloon"; no Hell's Kitchen dance hall, where the dancing girls are

The Labrador gold camps will be an innovation—if Dr. Grenfell is stronger than the gold seekers or the camp followers.

If the signs hold true, a few weeks will see grim-faced and determined men, high-booted and rough-clad, clumping off the boats at Charlottetown, at North Sydney, N.S., at Halifax, at St. John's, and loading up on supplies, after which they will clump on the gangplanks of other boats that will take them to the land where the metal of Midas lures.

MERELY TO GRIP.

New Orleans Times-Picayune: Give us laws with teeth—but let us not bite more than they can chew.

CAPACITY WINS.

London Express: Chance is a poor mount, but capacity will carry a man past the winning post more easily and more surely.

A NATIONAL TRAIT.

London Chronicle: The modern Englishman is, as a rule, humane to animals. Even the modern boy often learns in childhood to like animals of all kinds, taking on egg only from a bird's nest, and feeding squirrels rather than pelting them.

SCIENCE AND RELIGION.

Indianapolis News: Men must be at least touched by culture, swayed by morality and dominated by religion if they are to handle helpfully the weapons which science puts in their hands. If their training is exclusively scientific they will have a "view of life somewhat distorted and out of focus, for there are other truths than here."

BACK TO TENNYSON.

London Times: Not long ago, the father, his armchair, and the poems he enjoyed in it, were red rags to modernity. Seeing them, you attacked, or cried: "Progress!" and passed on. Now you pause and smile upon their quaintness. Tennyson is already returning to power. The wicked parent is acquiring a halo of benevolence. Very soon revolutionary young women of the fashionable sort will put away their Oriental divans, and leaning their heads against antique antinassars, will read the "Idylls of the King."

DISREGARD FOR LAW.

Washington Post: The stress that leaders of thought throughout the country are laying on the menace of disregard and violation of the prohibition-law is not misplaced. Prohibition has been written into the Constitution and enforcement has been written by Congress. It is the law of the land, and as such demands the support of good citizens. Disregard of one law makes for disregard of all law. Lawlessness of any kind is a challenge to the supremacy of government, which depends on the maintenance of the supremacy of law.

AFTER COLLEGE, WHAT?

Boston Globe: The real worth of graduates, now emerging from the classrooms to take their places in life, depends upon their learning, much of which most of the munderstand as yet very little. They know about set tasks, but they do not know the exactions of a job. They have missed association with many varieties of the human race which the boy or girl who has gone from school to work understand perfectly. Their trouble will be in getting on with people as they are. This ability is already possessed by most of the graduates. They, too, need broadening, but of a different sort. Having learned many of these things not contained in books, it is incumbent on them to seek to round out an education, already valuable, by what books can teach.

BRIGHTENING DRAB LIVES.

London Telegraph: A vast body of women—and men, for that matter—are just waiting to be caught and labelled by those who will go and seek them out in their homes and take an interest in their interests and brighten the monotony of their drab lives. To leave such a field to the Socialist women preachers is folly; but unless Conservative women emulate their example the bulk of these electors will assuredly be carried off into the enemy's camp. Yet the natural instincts of women, unless all the philosophers and observers are wrong, are towards Conservation, as long as they have anything which they feel is worth conserving, and the idea of violent change is abhorrent to them, especially if the upshot of such change is doubtful.

ESSAYS OF ELMO.

"There's something in this world
Smiles
Shall be unravelled by and bye."
—Tennyson.

I find this quotation fitting about in my mind very often in considering the strange anomalies and contradictions that I meet in the daily life of the city. Some men are honest, industrious and lead good moral lives and yet they never achieve success—at least what the world calls success. Others who are the opposite in every particular except their industry in making money succeed in all their undertakings. There is temptation in this consideration to lose faith, but this will only affect shallow minds. If one gets down to a deeper analysis he will be confronted with the word "Happiness." This is what the whole world is seeking and the money easily and quickly accumulated by the so-called successful man or woman is only a medium towards that end. The obvious question then is: "Is the rich man happy?" History, tradition, experience and the man himself have all told us that "not necessarily" happy and not necessarily unhappy. This is a fair answer and gives consolation for his lot to the man who is doing his best in an honest way and can merely secure the bare necessities of life. The next word that troubles itself is conscience and no man rich or poor if he has his five unpaired senses can ignore that. If the rich man's conscience can say to him "you have earned what you got without wronging anybody" he can be as happy as is compatible with existence.

The War on Germs.

IMPORTANT DISCOVERY—VACCINE FOR CONSUMPTION.

(London Daily Mail.)

A discovery which may prove of the utmost importance for curing tuberculosis and giving protection against infectious diseases was announced yesterday by Dr. Dreyer, Professor of Pathology at Oxford University, in a lecture delivered at St. Mary's Hospital, Paddington, W. The discovery is a means of adding to the power of vaccines which are injected into the body to cure disease or to protect against it. In a vaccine for a disease dead bacilli of that particular disease are contained. The effect of these dead bacilli is to give the beneficent cells of the blood an appetite for the living bacilli of the disease, when the good cells eat them up or otherwise destroy them.

It has been found, however, that some bacilli are coated with fat, which protects them and renders them unassailable by the beneficent cells. Among these bacilli are those of tuberculosis. Dr. Dreyer's great step in advance is that he has devised a way of removing the fat by chemical treatment, thus giving hope of a tuberculosis vaccine which will do its work properly and restore health.

Patients Who Have Shown Marked Improvement.

The application of these principles to the treatment of a variety of infections in man has been put to the test in the inoculation department at the London Hospital in collaboration with Dr. Dreyer. Some cases of pulmonary tuberculosis are also under treatment by Dr. Dreyer's methods at Brompton Hospital for diseases of the chest.

Evidence is already available that under this treatment cases of phthisis if not too acute and advanced, will become normal in temperature, put on weight, and improve in health, and, it is hoped, become arrested and cured. Cases of surgical tuberculosis show manifest improvement, even where there is extensive disease. Children and adults with glandular tubercle benefit obviously, their health improves, and the glands diminish progressively in size, and it is anticipated that they will ultimately disappear. Skin ulcerations and lupus heal up in a manner which may be described as remarkable.

Dr. Dreyer has applied his de-fatting process to bacteria other than the tubercle bacillus, with similarly good results. The degree of immunity against anthrax which he has been able to produce in animals is greater than can be produced with ordinary inoculations. There is no doubt that the principle is applicable to all bacterial diseases in man.

At the London Hospital one patient for whom there was no hope has recovered under the new treatment. All the causes treated show improvement.

At the City of London Hospital for Diseases of the Chest, Victoria Park, the new vaccine is being prepared and will be used very soon. Other hospitals are taking similar measures, and it is expected that the vaccine will soon be in use all over the country.

The warning is given that it is still in the experimental stage, but the results obtained at the London Hospital and the Consumption Hospital, Brompton, give reason for hoping that a really effective cure has been found.

In a world like this. If it says the opposite he cannot be happy and therefore your sentiment is wasted and misplaced if you envy him. If the conscience of the poor man and the struggling man says to him, "you have done your best and wronged no person" he also can be a happy man. Shakespeare the man who more than any other plumbed the lowest depths of the human mind says: "Who does the best his circumstance allows does well acts nobly; angels can do no more." Every man who is inclined to rebel against his lot would do well to put this aphorism in his hat. It will serve as a lifeboat over the ocean of life. Since the war writers like Chesterton and philosophers like Balfour and Lodge have been asking "What is wrong with the World?" I do not presume to be able to give an answer to such an all-embracing question that will satisfy a sophisticated and critical world, but an answer that satisfies my own mind is that the world has set too high a value on the accumulation of wealth and the race is so hot and so keen that there is no time left to consider the humanities and graces of life and those charitable and friendly amenities that enabled people to get more genuine happiness out of life before there were any millionaires. If the rich had more sympathy and consideration for the poor and the poor less bitter feeling and envy for the rich a long step would be made in making this world a better place for all to spend their few years in.

But the untreated guinea-pig, added Dr. Dreyer, remained unchanged and is slowly going down hill. One of the "cured" guinea-pigs was killed, and it was found that all the tuberculous tissue it had practically disappeared.

AIDS TO BEAUTY

Dr. Dreyer's New Appointment.

Dr. Dreyer has been appointed a member of the Medical Research Council to all the vacancies caused by the resignation of Major-General Sir William Leishman, who has become Director-General of the Army Medical Services.

Stripping Germs of Their Defence.

As a general rule, Dr. Dreyer explained, when bacteria (or many other organic structures) are inoculated under the skin of a rabbit this animal will develop in itself a power to destroy them which was previously lacking.

The immunity may be produced by the inoculation of dead bacteria as well as of living bacteria, and in man the former method is always used owing to the danger of producing serious illness with living bacteria. This method of immunising may be applied to a healthy person to prevent disease or to a diseased person to cure it.

The exact manner in which immunised persons are enabled to destroy bacteria is not really known. In some cases the microbes are dissolved and disappear from the blood, while in others they are eaten up and destroyed by phagocytic cells in the blood.

This latter method of advance against disease by phagocytosis, said Dr. Dreyer, constitutes the well-known "opsonic" theory, in which the blood produces "opsonin," a substance which acts as a "snare" to the microbes and makes them more palatable to the blood cells or phagocytes which are ready to consume them.

In order to be successful, continued Dr. Dreyer, the microbes which are inoculated must be digestible by the tissues of the patient. If they are so tough that they remain under the skin like grains of sand, they do not cause the production of antibodies in the blood of the patient.

Captain Douglas showed in 1921 that the indigestibility of some microbes was due to a coating of fat which surrounded them and prevented the juices of the body from getting at them. This coating of fat may be regarded as a protective coat which in the course of evolution the bacteria have developed so as to enable them to live on their host without being themselves destroyed by their host. Captain Douglas found that if he dissolved away the fat these microbes would be easily digested, and if such "defatted" microbes were injected into an animal they gave rise to a better production of antibody.

Unfortunately, Captain Douglas found that in most bacteria the fat was stuck so hard into the microbes that he could not dissolve it off, and so he was not able to apply his new idea to the treatment of disease.

It was from this point, said Dr. Dreyer, that he began his researches. Among the bacteria which Captain Douglas failed to de-fat was the tubercle bacillus.

He therefore took a culture of tubercle bacilli, pickled it with formalin, and then tried the same method of de-fatting which Douglas had used.

He immediately found, he said, that he could now easily de-fat the bacillus so that it became digestible. Further, when these de-fatted tubercle bacilli were injected into animals, these animals produced much more anti-body than when they had been treated with ordinary tubercle bacilli.

Tests on Guinea-Pigs.
He was now in a position to try the effect of these de-fatted bacilli upon the treatment of disease in animals by inoculation. Three remarkable experiments were described by Dr. Dreyer. The guinea-pig is extremely susceptible to tuberculosis. If inoculated with a minute dose of bacilli they always die in several weeks or months.

Dr. Dreyer said he took four guinea-pigs which had been inoculated with tubercle bacilli and showed the signs of tuberculosis, such as great loss of weight, enlarged glands, and so forth. Three of these he treated by inoculations of de-fatted bacilli, and one he left alone. The three treated guinea-pigs soon began to put on weight, and their enlarged glands began to get smaller. As treatment proceeded they became heavier until they reached the same weight as normal guinea-pigs of the same age; their glands became smaller until they vanished.

But the untreated guinea-pig, added Dr. Dreyer, remained unchanged and is slowly going down hill. One of the "cured" guinea-pigs was killed, and it was found that all the tuberculous tissue it had practically disappeared.

ON DOCTORS AND NURSES.

Why is there such a shortage of women entering the nursing profession? I heard a doctor complaining bitterly of that other day. "There was a man," he said, "when we could pick and choose and insist on good material, but now we have to take about as many applicants as we have room for. We haven't enough to fill up the training schools. I don't know what the matter with the women is." "I didn't attempt to enlighten him," I said. "I have a suggestion to offer. I suspect that the matter isn't with the women at all. It's with the times, and the man—in other words the doctor."

While taking my recent course in hospital life about which I have written previously, I frequently went through one experience which always made my blood boil.

Is This Necessary?

I had a very fine nurse, the salt of the earth, deft, efficient, conscientious. Whenever the doctor—himself more of a salt of the earth—would come in to dress the patient she would have everything ready and would wait upon him with the utmost expedition. And his whole manner to her would be brusque, and disagreeable, and impatient as if she were clumsy and inefficient.

One day I made my blood boil just to witness it. If I had had to endure it I think my blood would not only have boiled, but boiled over.

But when I commented to her on it she asked her if he had some special edge against her she said: "Oh, no, she's the way they always are. They seem to be that way to keep discipline."

Another nurse, a well born, well educated woman, the type of whom there is crying need in the nursing profession has this to say in a letter regarding her experiences:

When the Doctor Swears.

There seems to be one place where the doctor forgets that he is a gentleman and that is in the operating room. Just why it is necessary to use and shout like a madman when everyone is getting about as fast as they can has always been a puzzle to me. But things never go so fast as they ought to suit the surgeon and he other women from entering on such a career. I think doctors are wonderful men. But like the rest of us, not quite perfect. And it does seem to me that they might consider a slight modification of this discipline tradition if they want to get the best kind of women as nurses.

A New Victory in the Microbe War.

(Daily Mail, June 15.)

"All things shall man overcome save only Death," said the old poet; and the discoveries which Professor Dreyer announced yesterday in his lecture at St. Mary's Hospital suggest that in the war with the disease-bearing microbe man may be nearing one of his greatest triumphs.

Jenner, with his inoculation against small-pox, led the way in the protection of the body by vaccines; and since his day many new applications have been given to that treatment. Its method of working is not entirely certain; but then we cannot follow exactly what happens among the fifty or so trillion cells (a trillion is a number inconceivably great, represented by 1 with eighteen noughts after it) in the human body when disease bacilli intrude. It is thought that there are policeman cells, or phagocytes, which fall actively to work, killing the bacilli. According to this obscure battle between things infinitely minute proceeds, so is the patient's fate. If the phagocytes win, he lives; if they are beaten, he dies.

The value of inoculation lies in this, that it is believed to be a way of reinforcing the phagocytes. A diet of dead disease bacilli gives them an appetite for the living disease bacilli. But there are certain diseases, among them tuberculosis, where, so far, vaccine treatment has been unsuccessful or a complete failure. This was puzzling until, two years ago, Captain Douglas discovered that some bacilli—and the tubercle bacilli among them—are coated with fat which acted as a protective against the attacks of the beneficent cells. The problem became one of getting rid of the fat, and it is this problem which Professor Dreyer believes that he has solved, by treating the bacillus with the well-known insecticide formalin. This dissolves the fat and thus deprives the bacilli of their armour.
