FATAL LANDSLIDE

Explosion and Landslide Killed and Injured Twenty Men Sleeping in a Construction Camp on Transcontinental.

Quebec, April 15—Seven men are known to be dead and seven more are still missing as the result of a premature explosion and landslide which buried a night gang of twenty men who were sleeping in a construction camp near Bagotville yesterday afternoon.

Work was being carried on, on the construction of the Ha-Ha bay railway in Chicoutimi county, two hundred miles from Quebec. The day gang was busy blasting out a cut on a farm about three miles from Bagotville, while the night gang was asleep in the camp below. Fifty barrels of dynamite and two hundred barrels of powder had been prepared. THE USUAL WARNING

APPARENTLY NOT GIVEN
It is stated that the man working a battery did not give the usual warning before firing the blast, and an unexpected slide of some 75,000 cubic yards of soft earth and gravel rushed down from the cliff upon the little camp below, where the men of the night gang were sleeping. With out a moment's warning the unfortunate men were buried under a huge mass of debris, and it took considerable time before their fellow-workmen could organize effective measures of rescue, for their task was rendered more difficult by the approaching darkness.

The work of the rescue, however, was pushed ahead, while medical aid was summoned from the villages of St. Alphonse and Bagotville. WITH THE SEVEN DEAD SIX LIVING WERE FOUND

Up to the latest accounts received this morning seven of the dead had been taken from the debris, while six men had been found alive.

A gang of men is still at work this morning searching for the victims, but now all hopes of rescuing any of them alive has been abandoned. It is said there were only nine Canadians in the destroyed camp, the remainder being foreigners.

Annapolis District Division

At a meeting of the District Division for Annapolis County convened at Granville Centre on Thursday, the 7th inst, representatives were present from six divisions.

Resolutions were passed approving of the action of the Grand Division in advancing the per capita tax to eight cents per member.

Also a resolution that this District Division is decidedly of the opinion that the time has fully come when the Government of our county should adopt legislation prohibiting the manufacture, importation and sale of intoxicating beverages throughout Nova Scotia passed unanimously. Rev. Mr. Warren, provincial organizer, was present and assisted in the deliberations.

Officers for the ensuing year were chosen, viz:—

W. P.—J. H. Tupper, Round Hill.
D. W. A.—John Wade, Granville Centre.

D. Scribe.—L. W. Elliott, Clarence.
D. T.—A. B. Clarke, Bridgetown.

L. Chap.—A. D. Parker, Granville Ferry

D. Con.—Vernon Messenger, Clarence Centre.

D. S.—A. Herbert, Annapolis.
D. S. Y. P. W.—Miss Fargent, Round Hill.

Stirring speeches were made in the evening by Rev. Mr. Raymond and Rev. Mr. Warren and others interspersed with musical selections.

L. W. ELLIOTT, Scribe.

Mark Twain a Sick Man

New York, April 14—Samuel L. Clemens, better known as Mark Twain, the humorist, returned to New York from Bermuda today far from a well man. It was said when the steamer arrived that he was confined to his berth suffering from heart trouble and he had been indisposed during the entire trip. Mr. Clemens, the sudden death of whose daughter last winter, told severely on him, went to Bermuda early in the year in the hope of regaining his health. He had complained on his arrival from the island a short time previously, when he came to spend Christmas at his home. He had hardly recovered from the shock of his daughter's death when he again took passage for Bermuda visibly run down and admittedly far from well.

New Baptist Church for Wolfville

The Wolfville Baptist church, having decided to build a new edifice invited competitive plans from several architects. As a result of much careful consideration they accepted those submitted by Dumaresq and Cobb of Halifax. The drawings selected call for an English Gothic type of building, with a handsome Sunday school wing attached. The building, will cost in the vicinity of $35,000, and will be a credit to the Baptists of Wolfville.

Motoring on the Annapolis

(Middleton Outlook)

April 8th may seem rather early for boating, but it was on that date the Outlook man enjoyed a trip on the Annapolis river with Mr. A. M. Reed. The craft in which we sailed was a motor boat recently purchased at Lunenburg by Mr. Reed and Mr. J. Arch Potter.

As the river is too narrow and the banks too high for using a sail, boating on the river at Middleton has been confined to the canoe and the row boat. But Messrs. Reed and Potter determined to make an experiment with the gasoline launch.

The only question was the depth of water. This is a right at the present time as there is now plenty of water below and for several miles above the highway bridge. There would probably also be plenty of water in the dry season between the bridge and the Taylor falls a distance of a mile to a mile and a half. But throughout the summer it might be difficult to operate a motor below the bridge and above the falls.

With a small expenditure in clearing rocks and drift wood, however, a highway might be cleared which would enable gasoline launches to ply between Middleton and Bridgetown. This would prove of some commercial value and of much value in affording a means of healthy outdoor recreation enhancing the popularity of this part of the Valley as a summer resort.

There is another thing which we noticed with regret. A number of the best trees along the river bank have recently been cut down. Now the beauty of the sail on the Annapolis river in the summer season, and it is most beautiful, is largely due to the presence of trees along the banks. Instead of cutting down the trees already there, more should be set out. These would increase the beauty and arrest the process of caving in now going on at many points along the banks of the stream.

Suppose a channel were cleared in the river so that motor boats could ply on the river all summer and the banks from Bridgetown to Middleton were lined with trees as they are at Lawrencetown and other points. The Annapolis river would become famous the world over for its beauty and not only one section but the whole distance along its banks would be known as a paradise.

This experiment and these suggestions may not prove of practical value, but they are at least worthy of investigation.

The proposition of the Outlook coincides with the suggestions that a citizen made to the editor of the Monitor-Sentinel the other day. This young man was of the opinion, and he said his opinions were shared by many with whom he had talked, that it would not be an expensive nor a difficult matter to clear a channel in the river from Bridgetown to Middleton, which would give these communities as well as Lawrencetown and Paradise the privilege of summer boating an amusement which would be generally indulged in and enjoyed.

He suggested that the Monitor-Sentinel propose the plan as in the line of possible improvements and we agreed to do so. We were therefore especially pleased to find that the people of Middleton were considering such a scheme as worthy of serious attention. The important question of course would be the raising of the funds for the expense of clearing away the rocks and debris. If the four communities to be benefited would agree to bear each a proportionate share of half of the expense, doubtless the County Council could be induced to vote the other half. We should be glad to publish further suggestions on this subject.

Bridgetown Tennis Club Elects New Officers

At the annual meeting of the Bridgetown Tennis Club at the Town Hall Tuesday evening, April 12th, the following officers were elected:

PRESIDENT—W. A. Warren.
VICE-PRES.—F. R. Beckwith.

MANAGING COMMITTEE.—H. L. Bentley, F. R. Day, J. E. Bell, H. B. Hicks, John Halfrey and A. F. Hiltz.
ENTERTAINING COMMITTEE.—Mrs. F. R. Day, Mrs. W. D. Lockett, Miss Brenda Troop, Miss Bessie Hoyt and Miss Bessie Ruggles.

It would appear from the interest taken that Tennis would be as popular this year as last. As funds are needed immediately would the members kindly send in their dues to the secretary treasurer at their earliest possible convenience.

F. R. BECKWITH, Sec. Treas.

Boy of Fourteen to be Hung

Deland, Fla., April 11.—Irvin Harshett, a fourteen-year old Connecticut boy, was found guilty in a criminal court here today of the murder of Cleve Tedder, thirteen per cent, and was sentenced to be hanged. The crime of which the lad was convicted was one of the most atrocious of the annals of his state.

He met the girl while she was on her way to school, and their bodies were rejected his proposals he sally blurted to death. Her body was a mass of knife wounds. One physician testified at the trial that he counted seventy wounds.

After the boy's arrest he escaped lynching only by being spirited away. Throughout the trial Harshett maintained a stolid indifference to the testimony and received the death sentence with the same demeanor. His attorneys allowed him to go on the stand and relate the details of the murder in hope of substantiating their plea that he is insane.

Hanchett is a former inmate of the Connecticut state reform school and was brought here by W. T. Woolley and given employment.

Race Track Legislation

Ottawa, April 15—By unanimous vote the house of commons tonight passed the compromise measure which takes the place of the Miller bill to prohibit race track betting. The features of the bill are:

1 To legalize book-making on a race course of a duly incorporated association while a lawful meeting is in progress.
2 To limit race meetings to two meetings a year of seven days each, with an interval of at least twenty days. In the case of trotting and pacing the meetings are not to continue for more than three days in one week with a maximum of fourteen days racing in one year.

3 To prohibit new race track so far as book-making privileges are concerned, except in or near cities of not less than 15,000 inhabitants.

4 To prohibit hand books, pool-rooms, and the sale and advertisement of tips or other advance information for use in book-making or pool-selling. This will include transmission of racing intelligence for such purposes by mail, express, telegraph or telephone.

Government Annuities

Some time ago the Monitor-Sentinel published the scheme devised by our Dominion parliament for the payment of annuities as a provision for old age. The government has sent out Rev. W. G. Lane to visit various centres for the purposes of explaining the plan and its workings to all who are interested. Rev. Mr. Lane will visit Bridgetown on Tuesday the 26th inst. and will address a meeting in Warren's Hall Tuesday evening. The young especially who are dependent upon their own exertions, should be interested in the plan to enable them to earn an independent annuity as a safe-guard from want in old age.

Mistaken Star Gazers

(Halifax Herald.)

Citizens who have been rising early these past few mornings to catch a glimpse of the comet, and who have since been congratulating themselves on their success, have been indulging in mistaken enthusiasm. What they probably saw was the planet Venus and not the comet. What impressed these early star gazers most particularly was the magnificence and brilliant splendor of what they believed was the comet. It apparently became visible about an hour before the sun rose—and remained in sight until shortly after dawn. Astronomer Levis says there are now several objects visible in the morning sky, which, at the present time, are far brighter than the comet. The most conspicuous of these is a new star, which is now appearing in the constellation of the County of Annapolis.

Obituary.

WM. WHELOCK DELANCEY, M.D.

News of the death of William Wheelock DeLancey, M. D., on March 16th, at Phoenix, Arizona, came as a great shock to his family and friends. He had been convalescing from an attack of pneumonia contracted in Panama in February 1909. But he and his friends had every hope for his recovery. Dr. DeLancey was a native of this Province, receiving his early education at the Middleton high school, under the principalship of Mr. O. P. Goucher. Leaving Middleton he spent two years in a Medical Training school, New York, where he graduated in 1903. The following year he resumed his medical studies at the University College of Medicine, Richmond, Va., finally graduating, with honors, from the Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, in June 1908.

Immediately following graduation Dr. DeLancey accepted the position of physician in the New York City Hospital. After spending a few months in this office he accepted an appointment to the Naucas Cay Hospital, Panama, which afforded to a young doctor an excellent field to develop his ability as a surgeon. It was his intention to remain here but a short time then to return to New York to begin the practice of his profession.

Through his devotion to others, he suffered from over-work, being obliged to seek recuperation in the sunshine of Arizona, which gave promise of a complete recovery. However, a second attack of pneumonia proved fatal. His untiring energy and generous disposition won success and friends wherever he went. At Philadelphia he was one of the seven chosen to compete for the gold medal and came second only in competition. Upon his departure from the Naucas Cay Hospital he was presented with a highly appreciative address by the hospital staff. He was only twenty-seven years of age and the promise of his ability and character gave hopes of a brilliant and useful career. He had in an unusual measure the qualities which go to make a man and in his short life he crowded many noble deeds and unselfish thoughts. His last hours were without pain and were brightened by the presence of his brother Harry, who, after all was over, brought the body to their old home in Nova Scotia. The funeral took place on April 6th, the burial being at the Pine Grove Cemetery, Middleton. Dr. DeLancey was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Uniacke DeLancey, and is survived by his parents, three brothers, Arnold, Harry and Walter, by three sisters, Mrs. S. T. Hanger, of Portsmouth, Va., and Misses Mabel and Majorie DeLancey.

ANNIVERSARY OF PAARDEBERG.

It Recalls Story of How Globe Man Beat His Rivals.

The tenth anniversary of Paardeberg Day, which occurred on Feb. 27, must have sad memories for many a Canadian household, for while the battle with the spectacular charge of the Royal Canadians brought fame and prestige to Canada throughout and beyond the limits of the Empire, it was attended by a heavy toll of death and injury. At the present juncture, it may be interesting to relate a little story, never before published, of how the list of dead and wounded reached Canada. The first publication of this list, more than a full day before the names reached Canada from an important "scoop" obtained by The Toronto Globe in its long history. It was accomplished by Charles Frederick Hamilton, now of Ottawa.

Mr. Hamilton, who was then a reporter on The Globe staff, has always made a hobby of military matters, and has a vast knowledge of the subject. When the South African war broke out he was the man detailed by The Globe to go with the regiment. Once on the sands of South Africa, this knowledge gave him an advantage over the other Canadian newspaper men. He understood the various movements better than the others, and was able to smell an engagement when the future seemed to hold nothing for his associates. Thus, when the turning point of the war came, and the British got warm on Cronje's trail, he foresaw a bloody battle and made his preparations to report some hours later than Hamilton's "boy," of rare reliability, and a pony of fine endurance. He had also taken precautions to carry with him when the final moment commenced sufficient funds for any ordinary emergency. After the battle the majority of the correspondents at the scene, Lord Roberts' army were sending picturesque reports, but to the names were the Great Star Smith, and the Canadian.

This time of Harriet's dissatisfaction began the first week in August, when the grass widow, Euphemia Abbott, came over from Lexington on her annual two month's visit and ended about the last of October, some weeks after she took her departure to the Blue Glass "capital."

This condition of affairs had existed since Euphemia's first visit, made when Davidella was an infant. Euphemia harshly criticised Harriet's taste in giving her first and second daughters old-fashioned names. Her six children she had in naming herself, which re- in the Maces wearing what Mrs. Webster called "foolishly impracticable names for negroes"—Claribel, Julianna, Maudeline, Quintilla, Capitola and Octavia. Nothing escaped the criticism of the "blood double cousin," not even Mrs. Webster herself. "Mrs. Webster," Euphemia remarked, "she ain't got no quality ways. De idea o' havin' hollyhocks in her front yard and havin' rag carpetin' on her sittin'-room floah, and havin' cider and ginger cake on her table for Sunday dinner! I lives wid quality myself. Mrs. Warren Bronston on Limestone Street! She has palms and sich like in her front yard; her rooms has hald wood floorin' and administer on 'em, and nothin' less than marshmellow cake and frappe comes on her Sunday table.

"How you all kin stand to look at Mrs. Webster's style of dress, too, is moah dan I can see. Hit'd make my sensibilities plumb turn over to have to tarry my eyes day in and day out wid de sight of an old white-headed lady a wearin' calico dresses dat don't moah dan hit her ankles, wid black glass beads around her neck and old-time cloth boot lace shoes on her feet! Why Mrs. Bronston dresses eight times a day, and never 'pears in anything but all silk, and first-watered diamonds."

Harriet and her daughters wore heavy checked cotton, dresses every day and in summer went barfoot. This humble style of dry-goods display Euphemia malignated as little short of disgraceful. She herself always, she said, kept at least two silks for best wear, while at her work she always wore zephyr gingham and linens.

Harriet's old-fashioned cooking, too was something that did not satisfy cording to her word of mouth, but Jeremiah observed that she partook freely of the "old-fashioned" viands, concocted from sweet cream and milk fresh vegetables and fruits, chickens and hams.

The "presents" which Euphemia brought Harriet and the children and which they proudly displayed at Sunday School, were frayed silk sashes, ragged white silk saris that could not be opened or raised, cast-off kid gloves, discarded stays, silk hose minus both heels and toes, fans that could no longer move air and split kid party slippers.

"She don't bring you nary theng, Harriet," grumbled Jerry, "dat's got a grain o' substantiation in hit—nothin' but a passel o' busted up an' down a-de-heels vantie's."

On the last visit of Euphemia she discovered that Jerry and Harriet had together saved up three hundred dollars, which they had deposited in the town's bank in Harriet's name.

After this interesting piece of information came to her ears she was

QUALITY FOLKS

"If I were you, Jeremiah, I'd make that Abbott negro keep away from here. She has a bad influence over Harriet."

Mrs. Charity Webster, on the porch of her large old-fashioned house, spoke to her man of all work, who, under her directing eye, moved the grass from around some clumps of magenta-colored hollyhocks.

Uncle Jerry paused in his occupation, and in an embarrassed fashion, ran his hard thumb tentatively along the edge of the scythe.

"Lawd, Mis' Charity," he said respectfully, "I knows what you says is de trufe, and I jest hates to see the summer time come on 'count o' dat woman a-comin', but what kin I do? She's Harriet's own blood double cousin."

"I don't care if she is Harriet's blood grandmother, I would not have her about. She's bring you all to grief yet," persisted the white lady.

Jerry and Harriet had occupied a cabin in widow Charity Webster's yard ever since their marriage, fifteen years before, Harriet serving as Mrs. Webster's laundress. The oldest two of the eight children—Charity, aged fourteen and Davidella, twelve, named in honor of Mrs. Webster and her husband—were the waiting maids of the white lady.

Jerry, honest and industrious, was content twelve months of the year. Mrs. Webster paid him well for his work and was easily pleased. Harriet, also honest and industrious, was content nine months out of the year. The other three months she was in a state of discontent that bordered on frenzy.

This time of Harriet's dissatisfaction began the first week in August, when the grass widow, Euphemia Abbott, came over from Lexington on her annual two month's visit and ended about the last of October, some weeks after she took her departure to the Blue Glass "capital."

This condition of affairs had existed since Euphemia's first visit, made when Davidella was an infant. Euphemia harshly criticised Harriet's taste in giving her first and second daughters old-fashioned names. Her six children she had in naming herself, which re- in the Maces wearing what Mrs. Webster called "foolishly impracticable names for negroes"—Claribel, Julianna, Maudeline, Quintilla, Capitola and Octavia.

Nothing escaped the criticism of the "blood double cousin," not even Mrs. Webster herself.

"Mrs. Webster," Euphemia remarked, "she ain't got no quality ways. De idea o' havin' hollyhocks in her front yard and havin' rag carpetin' on her sittin'-room floah, and havin' cider and ginger cake on her table for Sunday dinner! I lives wid quality myself. Mrs. Warren Bronston on Limestone Street! She has palms and sich like in her front yard; her rooms has hald wood floorin' and administer on 'em, and nothin' less than marshmellow cake and frappe comes on her Sunday table.

"How you all kin stand to look at Mrs. Webster's style of dress, too, is moah dan I can see. Hit'd make my sensibilities plumb turn over to have to tarry my eyes day in and day out wid de sight of an old white-headed lady a wearin' calico dresses dat don't moah dan hit her ankles, wid black glass beads around her neck and old-time cloth boot lace shoes on her feet! Why Mrs. Bronston dresses eight times a day, and never 'pears in anything but all silk, and first-watered diamonds."

Harriet and her daughters wore heavy checked cotton, dresses every day and in summer went barfoot. This humble style of dry-goods display Euphemia malignated as little short of disgraceful. She herself always, she said, kept at least two silks for best wear, while at her work she always wore zephyr gingham and linens.

Harriet's old-fashioned cooking, too was something that did not satisfy cording to her word of mouth, but Jeremiah observed that she partook freely of the "old-fashioned" viands, concocted from sweet cream and milk fresh vegetables and fruits, chickens and hams.

The "presents" which Euphemia brought Harriet and the children and which they proudly displayed at Sunday School, were frayed silk sashes, ragged white silk saris that could not be opened or raised, cast-off kid gloves, discarded stays, silk hose minus both heels and toes, fans that could no longer move air and split kid party slippers.

"She don't bring you nary theng, Harriet," grumbled Jerry, "dat's got a grain o' substantiation in hit—nothin' but a passel o' busted up an' down a-de-heels vantie's."

On the last visit of Euphemia she discovered that Jerry and Harriet had together saved up three hundred dollars, which they had deposited in the town's bank in Harriet's name.

After this interesting piece of information came to her ears she was most persistent in urging her relatives to return to the city with her. "Harriet, dear gal," she urged, "of you and Jeremiah would jest go over to Lexington wid me, I'd git you bofe places where you could enjoy style. And ef Jeremiah didn't want to go for a while, on account o' gettin' his crops in, what's to hinder you goin' on wid me and lettin' him and de chillun come on later?"

What, indeed was to hinder? Harriet decided to go.

"Euphemia says," she said to Jerry when he remonstrated with her, "over da' I kin git $20 a month cookin' and we could live in style on de money we makes, and be somepin' thought of."

"But Euphemia is one o' dem niggers dat'll tell a lie fur credit when she could git cash fur hit," demurred Jeremiah; "'twont do to trust her. Harriet, jest settle yoah mind to stay wid me and de chilluns heah wid Mis' Charity."

Harriet said no more, but the next day's train took her and the relative of the tongue to Lexington.

After that Charity was installed as Mrs. Webster's cook and Davidella baked the hoe cakes at the cabin.

The first letter from Lexington came after a lapse of ten days. It read:

"Deer Husband, I take my pen in hand to let you no I am doin' well. I am gittin' twelv dollars a month fur a beginnin' a cookin', you ain't nothin' thought of hear lessen you wears fine clocs; Ufemy is a plum fashion plate, so I am a goin' to save my first two months wages to get myself fixed up respectful. Ufemy has bin mighty good to me a givin' me things to help me put wid my clocs. Next I am gwine to save money to git a foidin' bed and a sideboard again you all comes here to live. De last w ish o my hart will be fulfilled when I sees de chilluns ever one a walkin round over hear wid kid gloves on dey fists, a holdin up dey heds and a being somebody.

"Yo undeyn'ly lovin' wife, Harriet mace."

The next week there came another letter from Jerry's spouse of the affection undying saying that her cousin Euphemia had persuaded her to draw out the $300 they had in the bank. Euphemia thought she might be able to invest it safely for them some time in the next few weeks.

Mrs. Webster shook her head regretfully when Jerry handed her Harriet's letter.

"I warned you, Jerry," she said, "that dat Abbott negress would do Harriet more harm than good. I am afraid you'll never see a cent of that money again, but if the loan of it will bring Harriet home safely cured of Euphemia it may prove to be more gain than loss."

When three more weeks went by and Harriet wrote no more Jerry expressed a desire to go to Lexington to see about her. Capitola and Octavia had had the croup and Davidella had scalded her foot. Davidella's cooking was far from that of Harriet, but the burnt messes which the willing but unskilled hands of Claribel made, put rebellion in poor Jerry's stomach.

"No," said Mrs. Webster, "I'd just wait, Jerry, and let her come home of her own accord." She took the croupy Capitola and the young lady of the scalded foot to her house, where she could superintend their nursing, and allowed the nine members of the colored household to eat of Charity's cooking in the white kitchen.

A few days later came what Mrs. Webster expected—a letter from Harriet begging her "for God's sake, fetch Jerry and come over to Lexington and git me out o' trouble."

When Mrs. Webster and Jerry reached the city that had been Harriet's hope and dream they found her occupying a room in a brown stone house of "quality"—the city jail.

"Hit's all along o' dat low-down, lyin Euphemy dat I's beat," she sobbed in explanation of her position when she was admitted to the presence of her husband and her mistress.

Four days before Euphemia had brought Harriet a 'present' of an elegant gold watch, of which she herself claimed to be a "little tired wearin'," and had persuaded Harriet to wear it to church with her new voile dress.

On the day after Harriet wore the present she had taken away with her Harriet's $300, claiming that she had at last found a safe and profitable place to invest it.

On the day after Harriet wore the watch to church she had been arrested and cast into jail on the charge of stealing a watch from Mrs. Warren Bronston. Mrs. Bronston's maid, who attended church where Harriet had attended, recognized the watch and informed her mistress.

When Harriet had appealed to Mrs. Bronston to let Euphemia's explanation clear her of the charge, the white lady informed her Euphemia was gone on a visit to Indianapolis.

"Dat nigger ain't gone to no Indianapolis no moah den I is," Jerry insisted. "She is a-lyin' up in Maysville wid dat gal o' hers, wha she thinks nobody'll look for her, and dey'll live on our money outwell hit's gone."

plate' was brought from Maysville. In her wallet was found $230 of Jerry's and Harriet's savings and much silver belonging to Mrs. Bronston that had not been missed. Euphemia confessed to the purloining of the "gift" watch and Harriet was allowed to breathe the air of freedom once more.

Two days before Christmas Jerry loath to lose sight of his restored partner, hung about the shedrooms where Harriet picked the six dozen geese of Mrs. Webster.

"Mis' Charity, ef the is old-fashioned, she's jest as much quality as any dem Lexington ladies, ain't she, Harriet?"

Harriet looked past him to where the smoke curled out of the rough rock chimney of her cabin and around the yard to where her children played in the sunshine under the naked plum bushes and thrust the head of the squalling gander she picked more securely under her arm.

"Jerry," she said firmly and with conviction, "dese precincts holds all de quality I wants, now and forever."

Incorporation Drydock Co.

Capital of Company is Given as $1,000,000—The Directors.

Ottawa, April 10—The incorporation of the Dominion Drydock Company, limited, which it has been stated, will establish large graving docks at Lewis and St. John, is announced in this week's issue of the Canada Gazette. The new company, whose capital stock is given as $1,000,000, and whose head office is to be at Quebec, boasts an imposing array of incorporators. Their names are:—

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, K.C.I.O., representing the Canadian Pacific railway, and Hugh Andrew Allan, ship owner, both of Montreal; George Duncan Davies, ship repairer, and Wm. Molson Dobell, merchant, both of Quebec; Walter Edward Foster, of St. John, merchant; the Right Hon. William James Baron Pirrie, of Belfast, Ireland, representing the British shipbuilding firm of Harland & Wolff; Sir Robert William Perks, Baronet, and Arthur Morton Grenfell, capitalist, both of London, England.

The company, it has been announced, will build drydocks large enough to obtain a new government subsidy. The docks will have to be at least nine hundred feet long. In addition, it has been said, a shipbuilding establishment will be opened at St. John.

The company is empowered by its charter to carry on the business of shipbuilding, ship repairing and salvaging, to construct and operate drydocks, wet docks, harbors, piers, wharves and other works required in its business.

Regulate the Bowels

"I have been troubled with constipation for several years, and have tried a great many kinds of pills, as well as medicine from the doctor. Nothing seemed to help me until I began taking Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills. I found the little pills very effective, and I am thankful that at last I have a reliable remedy."

MRS. F. M. DUNKIN, LeRoy, Ills.

Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills

simply cause the bowels to move in a normal manner, and without the gripping effects of cathartics and purgatives. That's why they are so universally used by women and children. The longer they are taken the less are needed. Natural conditions gradually being restored.

Murder Will Out

(Canadian Collier's)

A Saskatoon hotel man, franker than most, prints this on the back of his business card:

To whom it may concern:

"Know ye that by the payment of $1,000 I am allowed to retail intoxicating liquors in this city. To the wife who has a drunkard for a husband, or friend who is unfortunately dissipated, I say, emphatically, give me notice in person of such case or cases in which you are interested and all shall be excluded from the place. Let mothers, fathers, sisters and brothers do likewise and their requests will be regarded. I pay a heavy tax for the privilege of selling whiskey and other liquors, and I want it distinctly understood that I have no desire to sell to drunkards or minors, or to the poor or destitute. I much prefer that they save their money, and put it where it will do the most good to their families. There are gentlemen of honor and men of money who can afford it, and is with those I desire to trade."

Robin Hood, it will be remembered, robbed only the rich, because the poor had nothing to be robbed of. Similarly, this saloon keeper wants only those who have honor and money to spend. How long must they practice at his bar before they have neither?

KIDNEY TROUBLES

Are Overcome By Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills

The kidneys have a very important work to perform in preserving health. All the blood passes through them over and over again and they filter it, removing all the impurities and worn-out muscle and tissue which the blood gathers up, in microscopic particles, in its flow through the body. These impurities are then expelled through the urinary system.

When the kidneys for any reason fail to perform this function, and the impurities are left in the blood, about the most distressing series of ailments which afflict mankind follow. First there is the aching back and a feeling of weariness, and then, as conditions grow worse, come Rheumatism, Gravel, Diabetes, Gall Stones, Inflammation of the Bladder or the dreaded Bright's Disease.

The man or woman who allows kidney trouble to develop into any of these diseases is doing himself or herself a grave injustice, particularly when a cure can be had so readily. One of the constituents of Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills is a Diuretic, which strengthens and stimulates the kidneys, enabling them to do their work thoroughly and with ease. These Pills also increase the action of the bowels and the pores of the skin, which remove some of the impurities, thus lightening the work of the kidneys.

Mr. Geo. Whitney, of Buffalo, N.Y., says they worked wonders for him. He writes: "Your Doctor Morse's Indian Root Pills have worked wonders in my case. I suffered for six years from liver trouble and kidney ailment. If I tried one medicine I tried a dozen, but without good results. Your pills were recommended and they cured me after using four boxes."

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills should be taken at the first sign of back-ache, of rheumatism, or of any difficulty in urinating.

UNION BLEND TEA

the tea that satisfies

YOU know the kind of tea you like—will you let Union Blend prove its own case? That's all I ask. Simply go to your grocer, order a pound packet—or a half pound if you prefer—and see for yourself if it doesn't make half as many cups again as the kind you are using. Just count the cups. A tea at 40c. that goes half as far again as a 30c. tea is economy, isn't it? Your own teacup can be the judge—I'll stand by the decision it makes. Try it.

Union Blend one pound packets—the pound packets only—containly reasons that are worth money to you. But this is merely an advertisement—the tea itself is worth the price, fully.

The Auto and the Horseman

Now that the roads are getting in shape again, and the auto season has arrived, the old-grievance held by horsemen against autoists in general regarding the frightening of their horses by the "red devil" wagons will in all probability be revived. A writer in the Toronto Globe makes some good suggestions on the subject. Here they are:

Allowing there are about as many fools among motor drivers as among other heterogeneous groups of men not suggesting politicians, I would think there is a good deal to be said that has not been said on the side of the motor driver.

I have driven horses all my life, and now have two good ones. Last fall I bought a car and drove it 1,808 miles in two months. I had no accident, nor did I frighten one horse so that it ran away.

I had frequently been held behind a farmer with a heavy load till I reached a cross road or went into the ditch to pass him after overtaking him; all the time being subjected to abuse without cause. In towns men with wagons rarely, if ever, give any part of the road when overtaken with cars.

As to frightening horses with bright brass, I do believe it as I have lots of brass, always clean, and have yet to frighten any horse to run away.

I will demonstrate any time that any horse or horses will pass any car which is not moving, if the driver will speak to it, and the motor driver the same.

The trouble is here, and I have frequently remonstrated with drivers about it: As soon as a car comes in sight, instead of trying to soothe the horse, the first thing the driver does is to jerk on the reins and pull out his whip. As the horse shies a little in passing, he applies the whip to the full strength of his strong right arm. The consequence is the next time the horse sees the car, or any car, he remembers the whipping he got and the trouble is on.

The trouble is that the farmer stores up against all motor drivers the grudge he has against one, and the same with the motor driver. When he has been held for a mile or so behind a load of logs he will likely turn out his exhaust when he does get past. Most of the trouble comes from the professional chauffeur, who as a class is disreputable. Now any legislation will soon affect all classes of people, as the farmer will soon have a car if he has to mortgage his farm to get it. If legislation could be passed to forbid any driver to carry a whip during the coming summer there would not be ten per cent of the horses afraid of the cars by fall. No animal fears without cause, and as soon as he sees that he has nothing to fear from the motors he will pay as little attention to them as to the fences or posts.

I have demonstrated this with a very nervous horse, who never looks at a car for the reason that he has no knowledge that it will hurt him. He is frightened to death of a piece of paper flying on the street, which could not hurt him, because when a cart he was flogged the first time he saw such a thing. He has remembered this for ten years.

A car going thirty miles an hour can pull up quicker than a horse going twelve miles an hour.

I have another horse that will stand till a car touches his face without moving but will jump across the road is a small boy appears on the road. The reason is that this horse was stoned by some "little angels" some four years ago, and he remembers it.

Yarmouth Burned Factory

Yarmouth Herald.—Messrs. Phillips and Keator, insurance adjusters, with Mr. Higgins, are busily engaged upon the loss caused by the fire in the Higgins shoe factory, and the work will probably occupy them till tomorrow night. No estimate is available at the present time.

In communication with Mr. Higgins this morning he told the Herald man that he could not make any decision as to the future until the losses are adjusted. An agent for the American firms that control the royalty machines will arrive in Yarmouth tomorrow morning, and it will then be decided what their portion of the loss will amount to.

As to the rebuilding of the factory Mr. Higgins has formed no definite plans. He will be willing to reopen operations provided assistance in the way of stock is taken by our townspeople and he would give his personal attention to its conduct. As no definite plans have as yet been formulated he cannot say what assistance will be required. We trust, however, that sufficient inducement and encouragement may be given him to reopen the factory and keep employed the large number of hands hitherto at work in this establishment.

(Since the above was in type we learn that Mr. Higgins has sold off his machinery and will not rebuild in Yarmouth.—ED.)

SARTORIAL NEWS.

Party Dresses For Easter Dances—The quest for beautiful party frocks. Little party dresses for Easter dances are something the news of simplicity. Hand run skirts are used, and the necks are worn over pink and blue sashes. A very soft satin mesh is run through buttonholes openings. Sashes of satin edged with marabou are here for spring wear to replace the fur scarfs. Lace in its fluffiest glory is combined with tiny eravats of satin. A large frill falls over the top edge, and a cascade falls below to fill in the

WHY HE WAS LONESOME

Tommy whose varying points of view are illustrated by the Farm Journal, had not yet learned the Golden Rule. Neither had a good many of his elders.

"I should think, Tommy," said his father, "that you might find some boy to play with you. Now, what's the matter with Johnny Jenkins and the little Dobbs boy?"

"Pooh! Why they're a whole year younger than I am," said Tommy, contemptuously. "I couldn't play with them!"

"Well, there's Jack Spears and Willie Harlow. Won't they do?"

"Yes but they're a year older than I am," said Tommy, wistfully, "so the mean things won't play with me!"

OUGHT TO HAVE BEEN.

An old Norfolk (England) lady, famous for her strain of turkeys, sold one just before Christmas to a neighbor named Brown.

But it proved tough at the Christmas dinner, and as Brown had paid a stiff price for the bird he hid to the vendor.

"What do you mean by imposing such a turkey upon me—one of your neighbors?" he inquired.

"Why was there anything wrong about it?"

"Wrong, madam? It wasn't good at all."

"Well, it ought to have been, then," rejoined the dame, "for it won the first prize at the Norwich Poultry Show for eleven years in succession!"

SNEEZED AT HER.

The court room was crowded. A wife was seeking divorce on the grounds of extreme cruelty and abusive treatment. Guns, axes, rolling-pins, and stinging invectives seemed to have played a prominent part in the plaintiff's married life.

The husband was on the stand undergoing a grueling cross-examination.

The examining attorney said: "You have testified that your wife on one occasion threw cayenne pepper in your face. Now, sir, kindly tell us what you did on that occasion."

The witness hesitated and looked confused. Every one expected that he was about to confess to some shocking act of cruelty. But their hopes were shattered when he finally blurted out:

"I sneezed!"—Everybody's Magazine.

Mrs. B. E. Belwell, of 357 Provencher Ave., St. Boniface, Winnipeg, says:—"Some time ago my children took diphtheria, and while attending them the poison entered a small scratch on the second finger of my left hand. This became very sore and blood-poisoning soon set in. For months after the children were quite well I was suffering from a shockingly bad finger. The scratch was caused originally by a pin, and in itself, was not at all serious. The consequences, however, of neglecting this scratch, were very serious to me.

"When the blood-poisoning set in I tried goat's lard and olive I had in the house. These, however, did not save the finger. I called on a doctor. He lanced the finger to let out the pus, and you can imagine how painful the finger was. Despite his care, however, it again festered and the old sores, lumps, and other preparations which the doctor gave me seemed absolutely unable to bring about any relief.

"The doctor thereupon advised me to go to the St. Boniface Hospital. I feared that if I went to the hospital the finger would be amputated. We were told of a case similar to my own in which Zam-Buk had effected a cure when everything else had failed and the doctor had said that only amputation could save the person's hand.

"We, therefore, decided to give Zam-Buk a trial. A supply was procured, and we commenced the Zam-Buk treatment. It only needed a few days to show the wisdom of this step. The blood-poisoning and inflammation were reduced, the pain became less acute, and it was evident very clearly that the trouble was being reduced to a less and still less area. We persevered with the Zam-Buk and in the end the festering sore was thoroughly cleaned, then healed. In under three weeks from first commencing with Zam-Buk, the finger was entirely well, and had we applied Zam-Buk in the first place, instead of trying ordinary preparations, no doubt I should have saved myself hours and hours of acute agony.

All mothers should note this case. Zam-Buk is a sure cure for blood-poisoning, festering, cuts, scratches from barbed wire, bruises, eczema, rashes, burns, scalds, sore throats, piles, bad leg varicose veins, and all skin injuries and diseases. For a list of all druggists and stores or write for Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Send 10c stamp for postage of free trial box. Copy all instructions.

Arrested, and Consumption Cured

Mr. G. D. Colwell, of Walkerville, Ontario, was stricken down with La Grippe in 1906 and it left him in very bad condition. He says: I was all run down and bordering on Consumption. I could not sleep at nights, had awful sweats, and coughed nearly the whole time. This is how I was when I began to take Psychine, in a low nervous state; but from the first bottle I began to improve. It did marvels for me and brought me back to health in no time, making a new man of me. It fortifies the body against the attacks of La Grippe and is a sure preventative. ### Your money back if Purity Flour does not prove entirely satisfactory in the baking.

DON'T simply buy flour from the dollar and cent side of it. Buy high-quality flour. That means PURITY FLOUR. The first little extra cost is more than made up by the extra number of loaves of bread it makes—by the superiority of the bread and pastry in sweetness of flavor and nourishing qualities. Buying Purity Flour is a safe investment. You get large returns, not only on account of Purity's ability to produce more, but because Purity contains the greater nutriment and the vim of a strong hard wheat flour. Food made from Purity Flour gives the consumer health, snap and force, which cannot be gained from the use of the weaker soft wheat flour.

"MORE BREAD AND BETTER BREAD"

PURITY FLOUR

You can buy as little as a 7 pound cotton bag or in 14, 24, 40, and 98 pound sacks. Also in barrels and half-barrels

Purity may cost a little more than some flours but you'll find its more than worth the difference. To be genuine, must bear the Purity trade mark.

Oscar Wilde's play, "The Duchess of Padua," is to be produced in London by George Alexander.

Sheldon Lewis has been engaged by Harrison Grey Fiske for Mrs. Fiske's company in "Timbers of Society."

"The Dawn of a Tomorrow," in which Eleanor Robson has been starred, will be produced in Berlin.

W. A. Brady is shortly to produce a play called "The Detective," in which the chief figure is a woman detective.

Tales of Cities.

Singapore has been for some years the most prosperous and progressive city in the far east.

The city of Pekin has supplanted its insubstantial walls with a thoroughly modern system of waterworks, including pumping stations, settling tanks, filtration beds and water towers.

The maiden name of Nassau street, New York, was Pie Woman's Lane. It was opened in 1624 by a man named Kay, who was granted the right to make it a cartway to what is now City Hall park.

"Forward" is the motto of Atlanta, Ga., and her taxpayers seem more than willing to live up to it. Recently by a large majority they voted to issue $3,000,000 of bonds for permanent improvement.

Church and Clergy.

Forty-two per cent of the clergy live to be septagenarians.

The oldest Presbyterian church in the United States is said to be the one at Southampton, N. Y. The building was erected in 1707 and was dedicated in 1709.

In the English Church Times the clerical obituary for 1909 contains 461 names. The ages of 370 of the deceased clergymen are mentioned, and these show the attainment of an average age of seventy-one and one-half years.

Rev. S. M. Stewart, who has spent eight years on the northern coast of Labrador, says that up there it is often a question of starvation or a diet of raw seal. He says that it tastes like a combination of codfish and beef-steak with a dash of rabbit thrown in.

Facts From France.

Paris has 30,000 liquor selling establishments.

In France the prime minister is more powerful than the president.

The coal trade in Paris is almost monopolized by natives of the single province of Auvergne.

The first salmon of the season was caught with a fly by Haggie, the veteran Indian fisherman, in the river near Paradise last week. Haggie claims that this is a record catch for the Annapolis river.

Strawberry blossoms on the 10th of April are one of the many indications of early spring. A citizen who is an enthusiastic gardener and in consequence especially observant of the vagaries of our seasons states that it is fully a month ahead of the usual season. As an evidence, the crocus, the first garden flower of spring, was making a brave show on our lawns the first week in April this year, though it usually blooms in May. The weather has been cooler during the past fortnight, but not sufficiently to retard vegetation to any extent.

MINARD'S LUMBER CURBS SANDRUFF.

Does Your Bread, Madam, Get Stale Too Soon

Of course, you know, all bread must in time grow stale—unless busy little milk teeth anticipate the flight of days. But the trouble is, Mistress Housewife, some bread grows old prematurely—goes harsh, stale, crumbly. And nobody likes stale bread: your folks dodge the bread-plate, don't eat as much as is good for them, but fill up on a more expensive but less sustaining diet. Sad economy, Madam.

There's a peculiar quality in the gluten of FIVE ROSES flour which makes YOUR bread keep better.

Cannot go stale as quickly as bread made from some of the flours you have known in the past—to your loss and sorrow. Because there's more of the amber gluten and better gluten in FIVE ROSES than seems necessary, you see.

This is the way of it, Madam.

Not only does YOUR loaf retain the actual moisture, the actual liquid, longer than usual; but it retains the property of feeling moist even when a great deal of the water has evaporated.

Of course it doesn't crumble when sliced: it holds together when sliced: it holds together when sliced: it holds together when sliced.

That's the secret, Madam, of the keeping quality of FIVE ROSES breadstuffs.

Wouldn't you like YOUR bread, Madam, to have that richness of nut-like flavor, that freshness and sweetness, which the best cooks envy, that elastic texture and crisp firm crust? Almost a week after baking there's a feeling of moistness by the tips of dainty fingers on the fresh-out surface, an actual feeling of moisture and classic flavor to the hungry palate.

When you use FIVE ROSES. Bake-day troubles, consequent vexations, vanish like mist before the rising sun. Won't YOU get FIVE ROSES Madam? Won't you get it NOW?

LAKE OF THE WOODS MILLING CO., LTD., MONTREAL

Early Railroading in Nova Scotia

(Truro Sun.)

Fifty-one years ago this month, some say last Wednesday, the 15th, the first passenger and freight train (combined) arrived in Truro from Halifax. That, though, was not the beginning of passenger and freight train service in Nova Scotia. A through train from the capital of the province had a short time previous to that pulled into Windsor. But there was an earlier effort than these, that between Albion Mines and the Landing ground some nine or ten miles, along the bank of the East river, the first steam road ever operated in British North America, though some years ago the Montreal Herald claimed that the first British America road was operated in the Province of Quebec, and that the rails were simply wooden poles. The road in Pictou county above referred to, from Albion to the landing ground, was the property of the General Mining Association, that then owned the coal mines of Pictou County.

We stand to be corrected when we say that it was about 1838 when the road from Albion to the landing ground was opened, but it was not then operated by steam, but rather by horses. Over to the coal was conveyed to the landing ground, where it was loaded into sailing vessels for shipment abroad. It was a year or two later that the quaint steam horse the "Sampson" and its equally quaint passenger car came. The engine was so constructed that the driver worked at one end and the fireman at the other, the former seated in an iron chair. The passenger car was built after the pattern of the body of the old style stage coach. There were two seats, capable of holding three persons each, who sat facing each other. The locomotive and car were combined.

The bed of this road, including the masonry, was first class, and it is worthy of note that it was surveyed by and built on plans made by a Mr. Crearer, whose only training in that connection was land surveying. When the plans were prepared and sent to England for approval, they were pronounced first class by competent engineers. The mason work and road bed can yet be seen.

By the way, the yet presence of this old road lying side by side with the modern I. C. R. and the Egerton Electric Tram Road affords three practical illustrations in the progress of transportation in Nova Scotia during the last half century.

It is a pity that first old locomotive the "Sampson" was permitted to be taken out of the province. It is now, we believe, in a dime museum in Philadelphia. The company offered it for sale for $500 but no person in Nova Scotia had enterprise enough to buy it. The government of the province should make an effort to get it back.

The arrival of the first through train in Truro was the final opening up of the Nova Scotia Railway, Halifax to Truro, and Windsor Junction to Windsor, some ninety-four or ninety-five miles in all. This was the work of Howe and his associates, but by no means a realization of the aims and objects of the great Nova Scotian in that respect. His ambitions were continental-wide, ocean to ocean across British soil. The object has been accomplished, but he did not live to see it, yet he did see its consummation by that eye of faith born of that great belief he had in British North America, the greater part of which is now the great Dominion of Canada. It was either in 1850 or 1853, on his return from England, where he has been seeking to interest the home government in railway building in this country and had received assurance of financial support for his Intercolonial railway scheme, that speaking in the old Masonic hall in Halifax, on the result of his mission he said: "I am not a prophet, nor the son of a prophet, but there are those within sound of my voice to-night who will live to hear the whistle of the locomotive amid the passes of the Rocky Mountains as it speeds on its way from ocean to ocean."

Malines bows, the bigger the better, are very strongly featured in the spring millinery. Black bows as well as those of white are much favored. Every variation of the bow coat is to be worn in the spring. The coat pictured includes the slightly full sleeves with deep cuffs that are always pretty, and it is made with a smooth fitting peplum that is attached to the blouse beneath the belt.

ANOTHER MIRACLE IN NOVA SCOTIA

Thought the Disease was Cancer of the Stomach

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Cured Him

SYDNEY MINES, N. S., JANUARY 25TH 1910

"For many years I suffered torture from Indigestion and Dyspepsia. Two years ago, I was so bad that I vomited my food constantly. The agony I endured all these years, I cannot describe and I lost over 25 pounds in weight. I also suffered with Constipation which made the stomach trouble worse. I consulted physicians, as I was afraid the disease was cancer but medicine gave only temporary relief and then the disease was as bad as ever. I read in the "Maritime Baptist" about "Fruit-a-tives" and the cures this medicine was making and I decided to try it. After taking three boxes, I found a great change for the better and now I can say "Fruit-a-tives" has entirely cured me when every other treatment failed, and I reverently say "Thank God for Fruit-a-tives"!!"

EDWIN ORAM, Sr.

"Fruit-a-tives" sweetens the stomach, increases the flow of gastric juice, strengthens the stomach muscles, and insures sound digestion. The wonderful powers of this famous fruit medicine are never more clearly shown than in curing the apparently hopeless cases of Dyspepsia and Constipation. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c. At dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

The Marathon a Freak

Sport and Destined to Short Life

Many are of the Opinion That the Distance is Too Long and That the Craze Has Passed.

The Marathon—is it a freak sport? What destiny holds the future for it? Its great Grecian pastime, nurtured among the sunny hills of Hellas, the home of mythology, of culture, of learning, of ancient heroes, destined to sink into oblivion? Few there be who would care to predict its exact future. Yet many give their opinion, and the general trend of it is that Marathon racing is a freak sport too strenuous for the human system.

For long centuries, ages, Greece too had its Marathon runs, but it was not until four years ago, in the summer of 1906, when Billy Sherring, of Hamilton, Ont., trotted from the hot country into the streets of Athens, as the early rays of the setting sun bathed the spires and minarets of its decaying architecture in fire, that America and the bigger part of Europe paid any attention to the Marathon.

Since that day, however, it has rapidly become a mania, and now every fall and spring we have our Marathon Derbies either here in Canada or the United States. Two years ago when Dorando Pietri staggered into the stadium at London, blind, stark, staring, drunk from exhaustion, collapsed in a heap, then with bloodshot eyes and contorted face, tottered to his feet and reeling from utter loss of nerve power, was half carried, half pulled over the string at the finish, the civilized world applauded in wonder and admiration.

Following this, the Americans, following their natural custom and instincts, turned the race into a money-making proposition and to this mercenaryizing of the race is due its late decline.

Marathons were held every week, the people tired of the very monotony of the thing, for a Marathon is a long grind, and does not rouse the excitement or thrill of the short spirited dashes. The craze came quick, was entirely overdone and the novelty and historic attractiveness of the Marathon soon passed.

Now the question is arising whether or not twenty-five and twenty-five miles are too long; more than the human system can normally endure. It is generally conceded that it is by those who know, and one month's ill-health is not worth all the cheap glory to be won at all the Marathons in the world. Fifteen miles is long enough for any race.

The Toronto Telegram has its hammer out for these long Marathons, and a last week's issue has the following regarding the big Derby at Gotham:

"Yes, there was a Marathon Derby at New York Saturday. It was run in the afternoon, and the folks in Toronto went on about their business as if nothing out of the usual was happening. And what a difference from a year ago. Remember then the newspapers bulletined the race, and anxious crowds surrounded the boards, and groaned when Longboat quit. And then when Alfie Shrubbs was forced to throw up the sponge along towards the finish, remember how the Canucks cheered, and our cousins from across the ocean looked so black that it looked as if a race war were the next real event on the sporting program.

"And yet Saturday's race was a better performance than the one a year ago. The Swede cut about four minutes off the time St. Yves made then, and a Canadian led for eighteen miles at a record pace. "But Canada forgot to enthuse, the simple reason being that the Marathon craze has swept over and left us at least partially sane. Freak sports die young."

What Beautiful Hair

How often do we hear that exclamation of a certain woman's hair or a certain man's hair!

A prominent scientist and hair specialist emphatically states, and has proven, that any man or woman can have luxuriant, lustrous hair, by using a famous prescription called Parisian Sage.

Parisian Sage is now made and sold in Canada. S. N. Wear, the druggist, is the agent in Bridgetown, and the readers of Monitor-Sentinel can buy from him for only 50 cents a large bottle.

S. N. Wear knows that Parisian Sage will beautify the hair, cure dandruff and stop falling hair, and for that reason he sells it under a guarantee to cure or money back.

If you cannot obtain Parisian Sage where you live, you can get a bottle for 50 cents from Giroux' Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, Ont., express charges prepaid.

ON THE ROAD IN 1751

HOW THE SEIGNEURS TRAVELLED IN NEW FRANCE.

When Marquis Duquesne Went From Quebec to Montreal a Century and a Half Ago the Old City Turned Out En Masse to Say Good-bys—Mugs Cavalcade Needed to Take Him and Nine Attaches.

In some respects this age is simpler than were the times of the past, in other respects life is much more complex than it was a generation or two ago. The latter is true of what may be called the industrial side of life in which there is such a mingling of varied interests and such a diversity of services.

It is simpler, in one respect at least, in what may be called the externals, in the stage of civilization which it is played, in the manner in which men go up and down the various paths of occupation, discharge their duties and perform their work.

There are still formal and sometimes elaborate ceremonies, but today they are not the picture but only the frame.

The picture consists in the doing the thing for which the office or position really exists.

A Prime Minister goes about his work like an ordinary private man of affairs, and even a governor-general moves here and there throughout the country over which he rules with the least possible display in keeping with his high office, and often with as much simplicity as would be shown by any citizen of independent means in his travels either for pleasure or business.

Perhaps this in part is due to the democratic spirit of the age, perhaps in part to the pace at which we live and the little time there is available for what may be called "fuss and feathers."

This becomes more conspicuous when the present is contrasted with conditions of the past, and thanks to the journals of a French military man, who lived in Canada a little more than a century and a half ago, a comparison can be made of the way in which things are done to-day with the way of the old regime when Canada was but a scar on the wilderness of the St. Lawrence valley and her entire population was scarcely equal to that of a present day city of the second class.

In 1751, when the Marquis Duquesne came out as governor, the clouds were lowering over Canada and New England, and only four years later they broke in that storm of war destined to make such great changes on the map of North America.

The coming storm was at that time foreseen and preparation was made to meet it. Among the military men who at about this time France sent out to her American colonies was Col. Franquet, Chief Engineer of Fortifications.

He was first employed at Louisbourg, Cape Breton, where he planned and directed the construction of those fortifications which eight years later the British army destroyed. Franquet and Wolfe battled down after a long and trying siege. His work at Louisbourg finished, he crossed over to Isle St. Jean, now Prince Edward Island. Then he came on to Quebec and what he saw there and in other parts of Canada, he soon wrote up in considerable literary merit and which throw sidelights upon an interesting chapter in Canadian history. Thanks to the Annuaire de l'Institut Canadien for the year 1878, the memoirs of Col. Franquet have been made accessible to the student of history, and in his charming sketches Sir James Lemoinse de Spenser Grassie has given to his English readers a number of Franquet's most interesting chapters.

One tells of a mid-winter journey formed by Marquis Duquesne and party from Quebec to Montreal, and from it one can learn how the governor of Canada traveled one hundred and fifty-three years ago.

"Each year," writes Franquet, "it is customary, may necessary, that the general in the colony should go to Montreal in January returning and Quebec in the following August." He then gives a summary of the business to be transacted at Montreal, selecting officers to command at the King's posts in the upper country, providing the posts with officers, arms and stores, to issue permits to traders, to receive the delegates from the Indian tribes and so forth.

In 1753 Duquesne fixed January 14th as the day for his departure from Quebec, and with him were to go nine officers as a military staff.

The setting out of the vice-regal expedition for Montreal was a great event in the Ancient Capital, participated in by the elite of Quebec society and witnessed by the greater part of the city's population.

In the office company assembled to see the governor off was the notorious but then powerful Intendant Bigot who, to use the popular term of to-day, was the great grafter of that administration. Bigot was to accompany the governor as far as Pointe-aux-Trembles, twenty miles above Quebec, and with him he was taking a party of ladies and gentlemen. All were to be Bigot's guests at dinner that day and at breakfast the following morning.

At ten o'clock in the forenoon of the day appointed for the departure of the governor a gay cavalcade of single sleighs and tandems assembled before the Chateau St. Louis, where the great marquis held his little court. Franquet relates that it was a bitterly cold morning, with howling wind and driving snow. So strong and boisterous was the gale that its roar almost drowned the salvo of guns fired from the fort as the governor and party drove through St. Louis Gate. The procession of sleighs filled with the high dignitaries of the colony and the leaders of Quebec's gay society, followed the Ste. Foy road until it reached the heights of Cap Rouge, where the road skirted the hill. Here there was danger of being upset and thrown into the val-

Agricultural Report for 1909

The Agricultural Report for 1909 is now being circulated and is available to all interested in agriculture in the Province of Nova Scotia. The Report is moulded on the lines of the 1907 and '08 Reports. It will be remembered that, in addition to the reports of the official proceedings of the Department of Agriculture, the 1907 Report contained a series of educational articles on Sheep, and that of 1908 on the Dairy Cow. The present Report contains a similar series of articles on Soils, Soil Cultivation, and Manures.

The reports of the Agricultural Societies, Associations, Exhibitions and College are all of interest and indicate a most prosperous condition of affairs of these institutions since their organization. The articles on Soil Cultivation, etc., make good reading for any one practicing or interested in agriculture. These articles occupy one hundred and sixty pages and include a discussion of many phases of agriculture, written by such men as Principal Cunningham, Secretary for Agriculture; F. L. Fuller, Superintendent of Agricultural Societies; E. S. Archibald, of the Agricultural College, Truro; R. Robertson, Superintendent Experimental Farm, Nappan; J. H. Gridale, Manager Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa; Prof. W. H. Day, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph; Dr. Andrews, Sackville, N. B.; S. J. Moore, Truro; R. J. Messenger, Bridgetown; C. H. Church, Dartmouth; J. D. Murray, Pictou; John Donaldson, Port Williams; F. A. Hilsley, Somerset; S. A. Cook, Chebogue, containing the results, methods, cost and other conditions in connection with drainage. Many will be interested in the illustrated article in this series on the new drainage machine which the Department of Agriculture has purchased and purposes operating this summer.

A timely article is that on Barnyard Manure, and another on Commercial Fertilizer. This latter article contains a treatise on the principles of fertilization and gives formulae for mixtures of fertilizers for the various crops. There are three articles on Roots and How to Grow Them, which ought to be of special value to Maritime Province farmers. Other subjects of equal importance dealt with are the Growing of Potatoes, Alfalfa, Red Clover, Grain, The Use of Nitri Cultures for Legumes, Good Seed and, finally, a well written series on Farming in Yarmouth County, Farming along the South Shore, and Farming in Cape Breton.

In the Reports of the Secretary for Agriculture and of the various departments of the College, there is, in addition to the formal statements, matter of considerable general interest. In the former there is a full statement in regard to the Field Crop Competitions, which were quite a feature of last year and promise to be an even more important feature of the present year. Those interested in the latest developments of the study of the Brown Tailed Moth, Canker Worm and other insects, as well as of fungus diseases, will find much interesting matter in the report of the Biological Department of the College.

The report of the Horticultural Department of the College contains a valuable statement in regard to the fertilization and profits likely to accrue from orcharding. Gardeners will find, at the conclusion of this report, a list of varieties of garden crops which have given the best satisfaction. Model orchards and a practical consideration of methods of cultivation, in the college garden. In the report of the Farm Manager is to be found a statement as to methods of cultivation practiced on the farm, and a most interesting statement of the production of the dairy herd, which last year averaged nearly 10,000 pounds of milk per cow, in contrast to 8000 pounds, the production of the average American cow. A new and most valuable feature is the report of the Experimentalist, which contains results of the various varieties of field crops and of various mixtures of fertilizers.

Of all the reports which have thus far appeared, this report contains the most information for the farmer of Nova Scotia. It has already been widely circulated among the members of the County Associations and the officers of the Agricultural Societies. An extra number have been printed and as long as they last they can be had free on application to M. Cunningham, Secretary for Agriculture, Agricultural College, Truro, N. S.

Every family and especially those who reside in the country should be provided at all times with a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment. There is no telling when it may be wanted in case of an accident or emergency. It is most excellent in all cases of rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by all dealers.

New Temperance Bill

Halifax April 12.—Premier Murray introduced legislation for the Province of Nova Scotia in the Local Legislature this afternoon. It is in effect the enactment of the prohibition provisions of the P. E. Island law in all parts of the Province except the city of Halifax and places in which the Scott Act is in force. The provisions are more drastic than those of the Scott Act, which continues to be the law in every County in which it is now in force until it has been repealed by a vote of the people. Strict provision has been made against the shipping of liquor into places where the act is in force from places where it is not in force.

A change has been made in respect to enforcing the law. While the inspectors appointed by the municipalities are continued, provision has been made for inspectors in chief, who are to be appointed and paid by the Province. The duties of the inspectors in chief are to supervise and assist the inspectors throughout the Province, including counties in which the Scott Act is in force. They are also required to undertake and carry on prosecutions for violation of the sections relating to the shipping of liquor.

In the city of Halifax the number of licenses is reduced to seventy and after the population has been ascertained from the census to be taken in 1911 to a number which shall not exceed one license for every thousand inhabitants.

A board of license commissioners is created, a majority of whom are appointed by the City Council and remaining members by the Government. No member of the Council, no official of the city, is eligible as a commissioner. The board hears and decides all applications for licenses and has also power to divide the city into districts for the purpose of granting licenses.

On a petition of one-fourth of the rate-payers the city council may order that a vote be taken at the next regular election of mayor and aldermen on the question whether licenses shall or shall not be granted the city. If the vote is against granting of licenses, the prohibition act is brought into force. The act is practically provincial prohibition except in the city of Halifax.

Smith Cove

Mr. Frank McGuire has been promoted by the Canadian Northern Railway Company to the position of city ticket agent at Winnipeg, with a salary of one hundred and fifty dollars per month. He is climbing rapidly. It is only two months ago that he went to work with this company, accepting a situation as clerk in the General Passenger agent's office. The importance of his present position will be realized when it is known that his predecessor therein has been made manager of the Company's Steamship lines, and Mr. McGuire's selectio over the heads of others long in the service, is convincing proof of his marked ability. He was chief clerk in the General Passenger agent's office of the D. A. R. for years, and he was thoroughly schooled there, which speaks well for the fine system in vogue on the D. A. R.

Mr. Herbert Woodman, has sold Mr. Dunlavy a Harbord gasoline engine for his new boat.

Mr. William Cossaboom has been confined to his home with grippe.

Miss Nettie Gerritt writes home that she is having a jolly visit in Boston. She is expected home in May. It is surprising what a number of people can be found to offer suggestions regarding moral reform, but when called upon for help they are afraid of their own shadow.

Eggs have dropped in price to four-tenths cents per dozen, and we are having great tuck-outs on ham and eggs.

Miss Durland, of Clementsport, a former teacher here, spent last Sunday with us renewing old acquaintances.

Miss Francis Austin has gone to Weymouth to visit friends.

An English family arrived last week to work for Mr. George R. Weir. Mr. Weir likes them very much and if they are disposed to remain, Mr. Weir will probably put them in charge of his farm while he will move to Deep Brook.

Some of our residents are beginning to rise early to get a glimpse at Halley's comet.

Dr. Mount has broken up house keeping here and removed to Boston and will spend the rest of his days with his sons there.

Mr. O. P. Goucher spent several days in the place recently selling life insurance. Mr. Goucher has some fine propositions for consideration in the insurance line, and he and his company are very popular here.

Mr. Simeon Sulis has sold a few lots near Argonaut Knoll for one thousand dollars. This is a very desirable site and land in that locality will eventually become very valuable.

Bishop Jagor has had part of his estate surveyed for building lots, and it is probable he will lease them for bungalow purposes as the demand arises. This action on the part of the Bishop opens up for settlement some of the most commanding lots at the Cove, and the venture should prove exceedingly profitable.

The new motor boat which Mr. Wm Romans, of Bear River, purchased recently been seen in the Basin several times and her fine appearance created a lot of favorable comment. She looks capable of developing considerable speed.

Miss Addie Cummings is having a cellar put under her house. The work is in charge of Mr. David Dukeshire, of Bear River.

The annual meeting of the Thistle tennis club will be held the first Saturday in May, when the season's program will be mapped out and arrangements made for the fitting up of the court.

Messrs. B. D. Lingley and D. W. Puddington are expected to move here in May for the summer.

Indications point to a busy tourist season. Everything is pretty well booked ahead.

Henna Leaves and Sage Will Grow Hair

It has only recently been discovered that Henna leaves contain the ingredient to grow new hair. England and Paris have become flooded with preparations containing the extract of Henna to grow hair, and every one of these preparations has an enormous sale. All other hair tonics are practically at a standstill, and the ones containing Henna are found in every home. Society ladies purchase them by the dozen bottles. On the streets of London and Paris can be seen women with beautiful, luxuriant heads of real, fluffy hair. The same women only a few months ago had their heads decorated with artificial hair. The first one of these preparations to reach Canada is called SALVIA, and is sold and guaranteed by Mr. Warren. SALVIA will grow hair in abundance and cure Dandruff in ten days, or your money back. A large bottle 50c.

ley Lelaw; and so the road was lined with trees to keep the sleighs from rolling down the hill.

At St. Augustine the party took the ice of the St. Lawrence for a time, and then returning to the land where they found the roads very heavy. Here in his narrative, Franquet diverges in order to tell what the habitants should do in order to make the winter roads passable.

Their front roads they should shovel out and mark with evergreen boughs to guide the traveler after storms.

It was the duty of the Grand Voyeur to look after the country roads, and this office continued down to 1840, when municipal government was established and the roads passed to the jurisdiction of the parish authorities.

In due time the first stage of the journey, a drive of twenty-five miles, was completed by the arrival of the party at Pointe-aux-Trembles, where the night was spent. The vice-regal party drew up at the door of the Convent of the Nuns of the Congregation, founded there in 1713, and then in charge of two sisters. The governor made the convent his headquarters, and his followers were lodged in the neighboring buildings. Col. Franquet was the guest of the cure, Rev. Messire, Chartier de Lobiniere, whose sister-in-law was one of the party. The governor also was given a bed at the presbytery, but his chef and staff were installed in the convent kitchen where they prepared supper which was served at ten o'clock, after which all retired.

The trained eye of the soldier Franquet did not fail to notice the guard of honor lined through the long and bitterly cold January night stood guard around the presbytery in which the governor was lodged. This guard consisted of thirty of the local militia commanded by the parish captain. When the party entered the village the militia lined the street so that their numbers would permit them to do sentry duty during the night, and when the governor set out the following morning they were dismissed, glad to return to their fireplaces and breakfast. At every village in which the governor lodged on his journey to Montreal this would be repeated so that a winter visit from the great marquis was not an unalloyed pleasure to the local militia in the rural parishes.

At nine o'clock in the morning his excellency set out from Pointe-aux-Trembles for Montreal, his staff consisting of Duchesnay, captain of his guards; Merdes, his secretary, his body servants and two soldiers. Six carriages loaded with baggage preceded the governor's sleigh to the road.

The governor's sleigh, the Intendant Bigot became the head of the gay party from Quebec, that proceeded no farther than Pointe-aux-Trembles. Bigot's official duties were evidently not pressing, for at his suggestion the company decided to remain another day setting out for Quebec. He had made ample provision for the stay, his servants having brought with them large supplies of good things for the table. Much of the time was spent in gambling. "Ton y joue beaucoup," writes Franquet, and the whole entertainment was on the same elegant style as those for which Bigot's palace in Quebec was so famous.

On the following day the cavalcade returned to Quebec, the only stop that was made being at the ferryman's house at St. Augustine to enable the ladies to go in and warm themselves, as the weather was still very cold.

Quebec was reached at four o'clock in the afternoon, the party driving to Madame Pean's mansion in St. Louis street, where a sumptuous meal awaited them, the gathering breaking up at ten o'clock in the evening. Such was a winter "partie de plaisir" at Quebec in 1753, participated in by the governor of New France, several of his highest officials and the gayest set of the society of the capital.

Two years later the storm clouds burst and the colony was plunged into war, and as events proved, the last that France fought in this part of the world. It may be that seeing the coming storm and knowing how ill prepared the colony was to meet it, the Marquis Duquesne asked for his recall in 1754, the year following this journey to Montreal, so as to be relieved of the responsibility of facing the crisis.

Hullo!

One of the most remarkable of living inventors, Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, to whom we are indebted for this telephone, is sixty-three years old this month. What makes so rare the case of the man who added the telephone to our every-day utilities, who produced the device which above all others has made possible the annihilation of space, is the fact that the invention of the telephone was the result of sound reasoning and observation, and that soon after its invention was some progress of the human race, Mr. Bell retired and left to others the opportunity which he had provided. The invention of the telephone was something more than a product of skill. Bell himself says: "When I began my experiments upon the telephone I had no scientific knowledge of electricity. I knew practically nothing about it, and had it been otherwise I could never have made the discoveries which culminated in my success. I don't believe any electrician could have invented the telephone." Others preceded him in this line of research and experiment, but Bell succeeded where trained scientists had failed, and this fact proves the soundness of his opinion.

Back to the Farm.

Where the large farm given over to grain-growing and grazing gives place to small farms, devoted to fruit growing, dairying and poultry raising, the value of the land is enhanced, the population increases and the whole countryside prospers. Archbishop Ireland has said that the social, moral, political and economic salvation of the United States lies in the farm. The same thing hold true in Canada.
