ONE OF 26TH RECOMMENDED FOR THE V. C.?

Kenneth Linton of Fairville So Writes Home

HE HAD NARROW ESCAPES Several Times Men Struck Down Quite Near Him—People at Home Have Reason to Be Proud of Their Soldiers

A letter dated October 18, received by Mrs. Amelia Linton, of Main street, Fairville, from her son, Kenneth, of the 26th Battalion, contained much news of interest to local people. It was in part as follows: "We have just come out of the trenches for a rest. I am feeling fine, though we were in there for six days. Things went well until the day before we came out. Our artillery began a bombardment of the enemy's trenches and kept at it for an hour and a half or more, after which the Germans started to reply upon our trenches. How some of us came out alive I do not know. There were shrapnel and shells of every description.

"All we could do was to lie flat in the ditches. I was coming out of our dug-out and one of our men was just coming in when, as we were squeezing past each other, he was hit in the leg by a piece of shrapnel. I helped carry him into the dug-out and to dress his wound. He died about twelve hours later. Afterwards I was walking along a trench a few minutes later when a shell hit a fellow a few yards ahead of me. My nerves were blown to pieces. My nerves are pretty steady, but after that I confess I was uneasy. I was nearly buried with mud once or twice, and had four narrow escapes. It seems as if somebody a few steps ahead of me had gotten it every time. We had about fifty-one casualties, killed and wounded. I saw some awful sights that day. We were ordered to go back to the trenches and those of the enemy. We were recommended for the V. C. General Turner, our divisional commander, was well pleased with the work we did. We were all glad to get out for a rest, as the change of position was a relief. We were billeted in a barn in the rear of the lines. When off duty we can appreciate magazines and newspapers, as if you have any to spare, don't hesitate to send them along.

"Two men of the 25th Battalion were on outpost duty one night recently. They were between our trenches and the Germans. The next day we found them tied back to back with their heads dashed in. Some Germans had evidently surprised them, and that was the way they were treated.

Whole of 26th Volunteered When Called on For The Work of Clearing Crater

Not One Flattered When Told That There Were Poor Chances of Their Coming Through Unharmed

The Halifax Recorder says:—In a letter received at his home, on Saturday, Sergeant-Major Roy Edwards, of the 26th New Brunswick Regiment, refers interestingly to several Halifax boys, now in France. Speaking of Private Maurice McPhee, a Halifax boy, with the 26th New Brunswick, and killed in action, Oct. 18th, he says: "Maurice McPhee gives the following graphic description of the circumstances under which he met his death:

"Another day gone, and now to tell you that Maurice McPhee was killed this afternoon. We were ordered to clear out a crater from which the Germans had been bothering us a lot. It was well known that the task of clearing the crater from that position would be very dangerous, so volunteers were called for, and the whole regiment stepped forward. It was, however, decided that only a limited number of men could be used to advantage, and out of the thousand who offered, the required number of us were selected. We were then frankly told that there were poor chances of winning through but not a man faltered. The chosen ones just tightened their belts. "Then came the word 'go,' and with a rush we broke over and headed for that crater, but at a heavy cost, our losses in the few minutes it took to reach the crater, and drive out the Germans, were 26 killed outright and 80 more or less wounded. One of the killed was gallant Maurice McPhee, a brave lad as ever fought for the old flag. Tell his friends in Halifax that he died a man's death, as did our other 26 comrades who crossed the Big Divide in those few minutes of bloody work.

"In that desperate rush and the rough house work at the crater, we lost some of the best men in our regiment, but the boys of the 26th are game and ready to repeat as long as a man is left alive."

The police in Japan will not now allow Germans to travel without permits.

Henry Magee of Fairville Writes Home of the Charge of the 26th Boys — Playing Well Their Part

A letter has just been received by the parents of Private Henry Magee of Fairville, now with the 26th Battalion, in which he states that the boys were all in good spirits and had demonstrated their ability to fight the Hun in no uncertain way. Part of Private Magee's letter follows: "We are having fine weather here at present though the mornings and evenings are a little cooler, indicating a much needed rest. We are again for the second time now, and are out for a much needed rest. As we feel pretty tired, being without a wash or shave during our spell, but when our truck over was we had a chance to have a bit we soon felt as fresh as ever. Last time we had a real battle this time we had a real battle. We were a run for their money. We lost a few men but the enemy's losses were for a much needed rest. It was a regular hell for a few hours with our big guns roaring and the answering Jack Johnson's from the despatch adds introduced a new note of severity, which culminated in the execution of Edith Cavell. He signed the death sentence and the master's secret, which permitted of the execution before any appeal could be made. His last proclamation threatened severe penalties for concealment of arms. "It is noteworthy," the correspondent further says, "that last week the Emperor made a tour of the principal towns in Belgium occupied by the Germans. His presence may be assumed to have resulted in the General Sauerberg removal."

Another was for the dead in general. All churches and cemeteries were crowded with persons at prayer.

CROWN PRINCE AGAIN REPORTED DEAD

Turin, Nov. 2.—Crown Prince Frederick William of Germany is dead, according to a Rome despatch to the Gazette of the morning. The diplomat is said to have refused further details, but to have assured the correspondent the news was authentic. [The last previous report of the death of the Crown Prince was in last March. THIS MAY BE A MOMENTOUS DAY IN COMMONS

Carson Expected to Follow Premier in Debate

TIMES CRITICIZES AGAIN

Veiled Attack Upon Lord Kitchener Read Into His Remarks—Discussion of Lord Derby's Voluntary Recruiting Plan

London, Nov. 2.—Sir Edward Carson is expected to follow Premier Asquith in an important debate in the House of Commons today, with a speech explanatory of his resignation, and in a large measure critical of the government's policy, although his friends repudiate any desire of his to act as leader or even a member of an opposition party in the house.

According to the Times, Sir Edward holds very definite views both on the machinery of government, and on the Balkan situation.

It remains to be seen how far Premier Asquith will permit discussions and criticisms to proceed, but if the Dardanelles expedition comes up for debate some important explanations are expected from Winston Spencer Churchill, rumors of whose resignation as Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster are still current.

With regard to the appointment of a general staff along lines somewhat similar to those of Germany, the Times asserts that fresh appointments were made during October, but that there had been important changes in procedure, but that thus far these alterations have not worked out satisfactorily, because the theory that the general staff should be an independent body permitted to give the cabinet professional advice has not been carried out in practice.

The Times says:—"We now have got the right staff machinery, but still have to reach the stage of using it wisely and freely." The paper does not expressly explain in what way the staff has been hampered, but it is inferred that its remarks imply criticism of Lord Kitchener.

MATTER OF VOTES FOR WOMEN OCCUPIES NEW YORK ATTENTION TODAY

New York, Nov. 2.—Some 6,000 women arose long before daylight and when the polls opened at six o'clock were on duty at every election district as watchers in the cause of women suffrage. Proposed changes in the constitution were the only state-wide issues before the voters of New York today. A new constitution was submitted for popular approval, but the suffrage question appeared on the ballots as a distinct proposition calling for a separate vote.

While the suffrage organizations have conducted a careful campaign throughout the state, they have concentrated efforts upon this city, because they believed that their opponents were strongest here.

FRIDAY'S PROMISES TO BE ANOTHER ROUSING MEETING

Five Processions, With Bands, to the Place of Rally

Although very little has been said about it, there are excellent prospects of Friday night's big recruiting rally in Queen's rink producing another fine body of men, such as signed the roll at Col. Fowler's gathering last week. The "Fals" idea of enlisting in groups is growing upon the young fellows about town and not by any means has the supply of material been exhausted. In fact, now that there are so many of our fine young men, either at the front, in camp or recently enlisted, the attraction of military life, aside from its ideal in this present crisis, is growing stronger each week. Friday night's meeting will be conducted on the same lines as the Col. Fowler meeting. Hon. Jas. A. Murray will speak, also Sergt. Knight and the city will be "swept" towards the rink by five band processions, approaching the place of meeting by five routes.

These and several others who have signed will proceed to Sussex in a few days. Many who have enlisted are still in the city, but arrangements are being made to have the majority of them in camp before the 10th of the month, as it is expected that by that time equipment for them will have been completed.

Miss Chrystal MacMillan Arouses Public Indignation

Member of Hague Peace Convention Spoke In Toronto—Attitude Does Not Suggest Sympathy With Britain

(Toronto Daily News)

It was a stormy meeting last night, when Miss Chrystal MacMillan, of Scotland, one of the women who attended the peace conference at The Hague, spoke at Victoria College.

And really, can you wonder at it being stormy?

There was a British woman taking the stand that all nations were equally responsible for the war, that all the nations, Germany included, were fighting for peace.

No account was taken of the fact that it was Germany that had committed the devilish acts on Belgium, without any possible excuse; that in fact, were it not for Germany there would not have been a war.

Miss MacMillan's point of view was so markedly neutral, she refrained so carefully from placing blame which all the world knows belongs to Germany, that it was impossible for you not to be left with the impression that she was pro-German. Her sentiments, anyway, were not British.

It has been pretty conclusively proved that the International Peace Conference at The Hague was of German origin and in German interests. And yet a British woman who only has her husband's liberty now because British soldiers are fighting and preserving that liberty, calmly says that Germany is at fault for peace.

Doubtless many of the individual German soldiers are taught to believe that they are fighting for right. But the fact that they in their ignorance are misled into thinking so does not put the German side on the same level with Britain's side. Certainly we have not been misled into any wild notions.

Germany did not enter the war to uphold her promises and her honor, to defend a nation wrongfully treated, or even to defend her own land. Germany went into the war to reap advantage—to gain more territory and power.

On the other hand, not only honor, but protection of our empire forced Great Britain into a war she did not want, and was not prepared for, as we have learned to our terrible cost. And yet Miss MacMillan actually says that in judging we should remember that we have caused reports just as Germany has, intimating by her words whether you may wish to take out of it.

That Peace Conference

Then, about this International Peace Conference at The Hague. It has been claimed as an excuse for connecting that they do not mean to endeavor to use their wills to bring about peace in the present war, but that in the future they will take action in a peace conference when the other government will, and that they are accordingly calling a conference. Also that at a conference of peace societies in San Francisco it was decided that the peace societies should be urged to co-operate with neutrals in the hope of taking some action.

Yes, the plans of the peace conference are distinctly bearing on the present war. If one man, with no provocation, attempts to kill another, are both those to be treated alike? Is a third party who does not care a hang so long as he saves his own skin to be allowed to say, "Murderer, give back the arm and the leg you cut off. They are dead now, but give them back anyway, and shake hands over it?"

This is about the attitude of Miss MacMillan and her Hague conferees. Place No Responsibility.

At that Hague Conference they pleasantly agreed on several little rules. One was that no responsibility for their discussions. Another was that the conduct of no nation in the war was to be discussed. Can you conceive of any British woman with an ounce either of humanity or patriotism being willing calmly to discuss things, leaving out the glaring truths which tell why there is war? Could any sane person say that in the solution of a problem facts as they exist should be ignored?

If there is a mad dog do we allow it at large, and pass the same judgment on it as on the faithful watchdogs guarding the homes?

But forsooth our reports are censored, says Miss MacMillan, maybe the mad dog doesn't know he is mad, so why kill him?

The plans of the Peace Commission are of course that international disputes shall not be settled by war. Everything shall be settled by arbitration and conciliation. Well, it may work out in some halcyon age. After this war is terminated.

Moreover no territory is to be transferred from one government to another without the consent of the people who live there. In future not only disputes shall be settled by arbitration and conciliation, but the countries of the world will all agree to bring pressure to bear on any country going to war—a pressure that is economic, social and moral. For instance, if you please, just now Germany is complaining that Great Britain has cut off her fleet from all ports of the world, and the unique little suggestion from Miss MacMillan was that if the other countries would boycott Great Britain for being so naughty, then Great Britain could be started out. It seemed an odd suggestion to come from a British woman. It seemed odd to consider that, an instance for reprimand—rather than that Germany should be punished in some way for slinking peace-ships, for killing women and children.

Unbelievable Opinions

It was a strange address, to hear in Canada. It was almost unbelievable that a woman for whom British soldiers are dying, whose actual safety at the present moment from things too awful to con-

'IT SAVED MY HAND'

I am a blacksmith. I contracted a sore finger, which led to blood-poisoning. After three months of doctoring, the finger had to be cut off.

It was too late! The poison had spread to my hand and arm. My hand was opened and the bone scraped. No use! Doctors said hand would have to be taken off. I refused, and began to use Zam-Buk. I used it regularly and freely for a few weeks. It subdued the blood-poisoning and by the time I had used 7 boxes of Zam-Buk my hand was healed.

Zam-Buk surely saved my hand, and I firmly believe it would have saved my finger too had I used it at first.

These facts were sworn to by Mr. John Evans of 87 Lawrence St., Halifax, N.S., before Supreme Court Commissioner O'Hearn, and the sworn statement may be seen by any person so desirous.

Miss Jessie G. Corliss Gets Into Trouble Driving Auto

Newton, Nov. 2—A fine of $80 was imposed upon Miss Jessie G. Corliss, aged twenty, a student in Boston by Judge J. C. Kennedy, on a charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

The girl, driving a high-powered runabout, was arrested on Commonwealth avenue, near Boston College by Patrolman Sartwell.

A young man who was with her at the time saw the officer coming and ran away leaving the young woman to get out of the mix-up the best way possible.

She told the officer that she went to a Halow's party and that the punch was a little strong, which after she had two glasses, resulted in her condition. She was able to drive her car to headquarters.

LAST NIGHT'S APPEAL

President Falconer and Sergt. Knight would form a great working team in a recruiting campaign. Last evening the university president sounded a note of warning lest Canada as a nation enjoying great prosperity forget at what an awful price to her and lest she fall as a nation to grasp the real meaning of the struggle in Europe and what it means for Canada. He dwelt upon the gravity of the situation, the necessity for saving Canada by confining the scope of the war to Europe, and the obligation of this country to send her best to fill the gaps to strengthen the Allied forces, and so gradually wear down the enemy and gain a glorious victory.

country is inventoried, and Mrs. Almond's pot and Mrs. Deutsch's brass kettle is requisitioned when it is needed. We have just been told that a Hun airplane has been shot down and found to be using a Canadian machine gun captured at St. Julien. This is efficiency. Wherever there is a need it is provided for with the material at hand. Wherever there is a shortage of men they are strengthened with men from somewhere else. "Automatically efficiency runs its course and supplies whatever is lacking with whatever can be transferred. The process will go on as long as it is possible to continue it. Then, one day, the wonderful system of efficiency will come to an end. There will be no more material to strengthen the weak points. All the thick places will have been scraped bare to thicken the thin places. There will be no more substitutes for food and no more metal to scrap. Everything will be equally strong—and equally weak. Then will come the smash. It will be like the one-loss shay. It will all go to pieces at the same time. There will be a universal disintegration, and the German Empire will resolve itself into its component parts. The Kaiser will cease to be a component part. The World is right, but it is right because the Allies, with their greater resources in men can keep up the struggle until they have established such a superiority as to be able to break through the thinned and thinned German ranks. Germany, with her very efficient system of transportation can rush men from one point of attack to another as long as she has the men; but she must now have passed the maximum of her strength, and as attack follows attack, east, west and south, her available men will dwindle in number month by month until she will be unable to spare them from one front to strengthen another. In other words, the Allies will win when Germany has been worn down, providing they keep up the steady supply of men to establish the final superiority. The road to victory must be full of marching men, and the pressure must be kept up steadily on every front. To ensure that result more and more men must enlist.

PRETTY NEAR TREASON

Miss Chrystal MacMillan, of Scotland, has been creating a sensation in Toronto. She was a member of the recent Hague Peace Convention and really appears to have talked in Toronto as if she were a German sympathiser. The Toronto Telegram report says: "You all know what the International Woman's Peace Congress proposed to do. It's been in all the papers for the last six months. Yet last night Chrystal went all over it again and argued for the peace of the world. She argued that Britain should not hold German colonies without their consent, any more than Germany should hold Belgium. She added that we are getting our news from only one source, and in general made a fairly frank pro-German speech. When she had finished she was showered with so many indignation questions that the meeting appears to have closed in some confusion. One Toronto paper says: "Miss MacMillan has not given the National Council of Women so much prestige as perhaps was expected. She struck the wrong note for Canada. Her apathy towards the facts of war does not strengthen her arguments for the theories of peace. But for the army and navy of Britain, with which Canada is co-operating of her own free will and choice, Miss MacMillan would now be a German Fraulein or perhaps a Frau, and if she had offered to oppose the German war lord in the middle of his war, as she is doing in Toronto in her attitude towards the British intervention on behalf of Belgium, she would have received such treatment as Miss Carell got from the Teutonic agents of Kultur."

THE WEARING DOWN PROCESS

The Toronto World reminds its readers that there must be a breaking point for Germany's wonderful efficiency in this war. We quote: "We hear constantly the reports of the results of efficiency in every department of German government. All the food in the country is classified and catalogued and sold in the proper quantities at the proper prices. All the metal in the (Edward Sears.) Forward boys! To line of battle, Join your brothers in the fight. Where the deadly bullets rattle And the fever's at its height. Manhood calls you, Cause enthralled you, This alone is reason why, Britain's story, Full of glory, Touches deeds that cannot die. Forward boys! To Freedom's marching, Open springs to its desire, With you warriors are marching, Who the enemies inspire. Match their daring, Little caring, For the dangers in your way; God is keeping, Tho' you're sleeping, Fire by night and cloud by day. Forward boys! To comrades calling, Not for self for Empire's need; Wounded, dying, they are falling On the path where heroes bleed. Here death lingers While his fingers Only touch the empty clay. Life's great Master Thro' disaster, Carries each brave soul away. Forward boys! For time is fleeting, Laggards help you forward's mile; "King and Empire" he befalls you, One with Duty's Guards entrained, Oh, the glory Of this story. That our children's children read, Keep it brightest As you fight, Bravest boys of Britain's breed.

LIGHTER VEIN

"If you say this service is solid silver, I suppose I'll have to take your word for it," said the man who was selecting a wedding gift, "but it certainly doesn't look it." "That's just the beauty of it," replied the jeweller, "it's a service right out in plain sight on your sideboard and burglars will never touch it." One of the wisest of clergymen advocating the maximum of her strength, and as attack follows attack, east, west and south, her available men will dwindle in number month by month until she will be unable to spare them from one front to strengthen another. In other words, the Allies will win when Germany has been worn down, providing they keep up the steady supply of men to establish the final superiority. The road to victory must be full of marching men, and the pressure must be kept up steadily on every front. To ensure that result more and more men must enlist. Mr. Bonar Law says that for more than four months no political issue of any kind has been raised in the British cabinet. That is real patriotism.

If one man has amassed any great wealth, no matter how he got it, he should be compelled to pay a liberal portion of it for the maintenance of families whose main supports are fighting his battles in the trenches.

BUTTERNUT Tempting, Toothsome, Nourishing and Austria, becomes an established fact. This greater Germany, however, is to be merely the nucleus of "German Central Europe," Herr Lensch insists, and proceeds to explain how the smaller states need a great power to safeguard them. Thus "German Central Europe" may easily and naturally evolve into a "Federation of Central European States," under the German aegis. This, he insists, will be the only means of protecting the smaller states of Central Europe against the "rapacity and greed" of the great world powers—England, Russia and the United States of America. Besides the United Germany and Austria-Hungary this federation should comprise the Scandinavian States, Switzerland, Holland, Italy, the Balkan peninsula with European Turkey, and, if possible, France, Spain and Portugal, with all the colonies of these countries.

TO DIE FOR AIDING IN THE MURDER OF WEALTHY EMPLOYER New York, Nov. 2.—Onni Talas was found guilty of murder in the first degree, for killing Mrs. Elizabeth Griggs Nichols, by a jury in General Sessions Court, after many hours of deliberation. Talas, an eighteen-year-old Finn, was sentenced to death in the electric chair by Judge Malone. He killed his employer on September 8. The death of the elderly and wealthy woman resulted from an attempt to rob her in her home, a plot in which Talas took part, though he remained downstairs while others, who are still at large, went up to do the actual robbing. Mrs. Nichols, who was found dead with a towel wound about her throat, and a piece of cloth jammed into her mouth, died either from fright or strangulation. Experts disagreed as to whether Talas, though acknowledging that he admitted the robbery, now wanted by the police, and who were known as Arthur Waltonen, Eddie Lehto and "the Italian," said, when he took the stand in his own defense, that he allowed them to go up to their victim's rooms because one of them pointed a pistol in his face and he feared he would be shot if he did not submit to being tied up. A similar story was told by a maid, who

VENIZELOS, THE GREEK LEADER

Character Sketch of Their Most Prominent Man

LED REFORM MOVEMENTS

Averted Revolution in 1910 by Carrying Out Radical Programme—Has Great Personal Influence

In the summer of 1910, says a correspondent of the London Times, chance afforded me an opportunity of discussing the situation in Greece with one of the most intelligent members of the Greek Royal family. A year had passed since the acute dynastic crisis of 1909, when King Edward had spent the greater part of his last "cure" at Marzenbad in urging the late King of the Hellenes not to seek in abdication relief from the troubles and anxieties of the position. Thanks mainly to the King of England, King George of Greece retained his throne, and stood his ground against the mutinous officers who, evincing the Young Turk, had carried out a pronouncement at Athens and had assumed practical control of public affairs.

personal influence that went far to secure recognition for his high moral character and steadfastness of purpose. His manner, his language, and the thoughtful expression of his features conveyed a convincing expression of sincerity which, as those who know him well can testify, was, and is, not deceiving. To him the leaders of the "Military League" appealed to redeem a position that had got beyond their control. He redeemed it without delay. Reaching Athens on January 10, 1910, he succeeded within three weeks in persuading not only the officers, but also the various political leaders, and through them the late King George, to accept the idea of a Revisionary Assembly, which, by reforming the constitution, would complete the programme of the Military League, and facilitate the painless extinction of that moribund coterie. At the same time, with a courage unique in Greek political life, he, the Cretan leader, declared for the exclusion of Cretan deputies from the new Hellenic parliament, and thus obliterated danger from the side of Turkey.

second Balkan War. Had his counsel been heeded, even the Treaty of Bucharest might have been shorn of its vindictive character. He was, and is, above all a Greek patriot, but he has always combined a sense of Balkan responsibility with his ambition for his own country. Friend of Britain. On the outbreak of the European war he says that the welfare of the Balkans in general, and of Greece in particular, was bound up with the triumph of the allies; and, last March, he sought to seize the occasion afforded by the operations in the Dardanelles to link the fortunes of Greece definitely with those of England, France and Russia. His sovereign differed from him at the critical moment, and he was compelled to abandon office. Pressure of public opinion alone prevented him from retiring altogether from public life. M. Gonmaris, who succeeded him, dissolved parliament, and adopted a policy of temporizing neutrality, under which German influences and intrigue gained the upper hand at Athens. Nevertheless, in June, when elections for a new chamber could no longer be postponed, the country returned a majority of Venizelists, with whose support their leader resumed office in August. Though the situation was apparently compromised beyond redress, M. Venizelos adhered tenaciously to his convictions, and promptly mobilized the Greek army on the morrow of the Bulgarian mobilization. The landing of allied troops at Salonica in support of Greece and Serbia seemed to have set the seal of success upon his courageous policy. Yet, once again, his sovereign, who is a brother-in-law of the German Emperor, withdrew Royal sanction, and left him no choice but to resign. The sequel, which cannot now be long delayed, may show whether his patriotic efforts are destined to remain solely as an isolated episode in modern Greek history, or to remind future generations of Hellenes what their country might have been.

ST. JOHN MATTERS OF IMPORTANCE

Board of Trade Not Satisfied With Transcontinental Outlook—Why Not Two Battalions Here?

Regret was expressed in the summary of the work of the council of the board of trade submitted to the meeting of the board last evening that the situation with regard to the Transcontinental Railway connection with St. John was in no way satisfactory. Reference was made to the unsettled question of crossing the St. John by the Valley Railway and to the fact that the board had been unable to secure the crossing had been finished but that the provincial government was not taking any further action. An effort to impress upon Mr. Guelin, general manager of government railways, the advisability of taking action in the matter of the I. C. R. elevator was reported, the argument having been made that the foundation and the power house were still in place. Mr. Guelin had replied that Lower Cove was to be preferred as a site but in any case no action was likely to be taken until after the war.

HERE FROM MAINE TO ENLIST, WATCH IS PRESENTED TO HIM

A pleasant time was spent last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bailey, 21 Richmond street, in honor of Mrs. Bailey's brother, William S. Gray, who came from Portage, Maine, to enlist with the 10th Battalion for overseas service. During the evening his uncle, Wm. The recipient made a suitable reply and said he came from Maine to serve his king and country and wished all the men present would follow his example. The gathering broke up at midnight, wishing him good luck and safe return to wife and child.

CHEERING NEWS OF MUCH BUSINESS FOR WINTER HERE

Twenty-two liners, the majority of which are very large steamers, will come to St. John this winter in the regular C. P. R. service, and the company will handle an average of 800 carloads of freight at this port daily. The shore is cheering information given out by the C. P. R. officials who inspected the winter port facilities yesterday afternoon. Another announcement of interest was made by Mr. Harris representing the Dominion government department in charge of imperial shipments, who said that forty-one sailings were scheduled in this service and that St. John would get at least twenty steamers, possibly more. It was decided that the C. P. R. be allotted berths 1, 2, 3 and 4, and that communication with the other lines be practically the same as last year. The city officials believe that the port will meet the demands of increased business without inconvenience to any of the lines.

How Thin People Can Put on Flesh

Thin men and women—what big hearty, filling dinner you ate last night! What became of all the fat-producing nourishment it contained? You haven't gained in weight one ounce. That food passed from your body like unburned coal through an open grate. The material was there, but your food doesn't work and stick, and the plain truth is you hardly get enough nourishment from your meals to pay for the cost of cooking. This is true of thin folks the world over. Your nutritive organs, your functions of assimilation, are sadly out of gear and need reconstruction. Cut out the foolish foods and funny sawdust diets. Omit the flesh cream rubrics. Cut out everything but the meals you are eating now and eat with every one of those single Sargol tablets. In two weeks note the difference. Five to eight good solid pounds of healthy, "stay there" fat should be the net result. Sargol charges your weak, stagnant blood with millions of fresh new red corpuscles—to deliver every ounce of fat-making material in your food to every part of your body. Sargol, too, mixes with your food and prepares it for the blood in easily assimilated form. Thin people gain all the way from 10 to 25 pounds a month, while taking Sargol, and the new flesh stays put. Sargol tablets are a scientific combination of six of the best flesh-producing elements known to chemistry. They come 40 tablets to a package, are pleasant, harmless and inexpensive, and all druggists sell them subject to an absolute guarantee of weight increase or money back.

GERMAN OFFICIALS GREW RICH WHILE BELGIAN ARMY ESCAPED

Thousands of Men Passed Into Holland on Payment of $2 Each; Thence To England For Mobilization and Now in Trenches

(By S. N. Dancy in Toronto News.) Mobilization of armies is at all times a complex problem, but when it involves the escape of whole units from the enemy territory to so to complete the complement of men it becomes a precedent in world military history.

Along the banks of the Yser Canal and in the sand dunes surrounding Newport, the remnant of Belgium's first army, is still in grips with the enemy. Forty thousand men represent all that is left of the original three hundred thousand who threw themselves in the path of the advancing Hun when the latter sought to subdue King Albert and his people by a policy of murderous force.

Down near Rouen, in France, there is a second Belgian Army. It represents the

Would Wake Up With Smothering Spells

There is nothing that brings with it such a fear of impending death as to wake up in the night with that awful sense of smothering. The terrible smothering is caused by the heart and nerves being in a deranged condition, and calls for prompt relief.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are the only remedy that can give prompt relief and effect a complete cure in all cases of such severity.

They strengthen and invigorate the heart, tone up the nervous system, and the trouble which is the cause of so much fear and anxiety becomes a thing of the past.

Mrs. Wm. McElwain, Temperance Vale, N.B., writes: "I am not much of a believer in medicines, but I must say Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are all right. Some years ago I was troubled with smothering spells.

In the night I would be sound asleep, but would wake up with my breath all gone, and think I would never get it back again. I was telling a friend of my trouble, and he advised me to use Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. He also gave me a box which I tried, and I had only taken a few of them when I could sleep all night without any trouble.

I did not finish the box until some years later, when I felt my trouble coming back. I took the rest and they have cured me entirely.

new Belgium. Its spirit is born in the throbbing for revenge upon that cruel foe that has laid in ashes and ruins the native health and has massacred hundreds of thousands of compatriots. And the strongest feature of that new army, is that the greater part of it passed through the German lines in order to reach the recruiting depot.

Military history holds many strange and perplexing stories, but it would be impossible to provide a parallel for the incidents associated with the mobilization of King Albert's new fighting force. Hundreds have paid the price because of their zeal to join the colors. They ran the gauntlet of German discipline and tyranny and they fell victims. Stealing along the roads under cover of darkness they ran foul of an enemy sniper. Others concealed themselves by day under a straw stack, or in the cellar of a farm house. On one occasion, three Belgians had already reached Holland territory, but the German fired across a neutral ground.

Money or Orders. "Thousands there are, however, who are safe today behind the Belgian lines and who can look back to their thrilling escape. They were face to face with German guards who had orders to allow no one of military age to leave the country—but they allowed them to pass for a sum of money.

There was a whole season, principally during the first six months of the war, when the German government at Brussels conducted a system of "laissez-passer." By this system, thousands of people passed beyond the border of Belgium into Holland upon the payment of ten francs. It was most remunerative for the German government, but serious for German arms.

At one time, so "liberal" was the intercourse between the Belgian capital and Holland that trains were operated and whole regiments gathered together in Holland, crossed into England where they were outfitted, and thence sent to the concentration camp at Rouen.

Belgian Home Guard. The "garde civile," which is the equivalent of the "home guard" in Canada, was summoned to report at the military school in Brussels shortly after the German occupation. Their arms had already been deposited at the "Hotel de Ville."

There was some speculation as to whether or not the German government had the names of the members of the corps, reports being very conflicting. It was claimed that the commander had destroyed the lists, but German agents proclaimed in emphatic language that they possessed the lists and those who did not comply with the official order would be severely punished.

Confidence in the loyalty of leaders persuaded large numbers of the guard to ignore the order. Those who did report were made prisoners on parole and their detention in Brussels secured. But the great majority of those who did not comply succeeded later in securing passports in exchange for money and left the country.

Recruited in England. For weeks and months the trek into Holland continued and the coffers of the German government at Brussels grew richer and richer. Once in Holland the reservists and the volunteers were met by Belgian agents. They crossed into England where active recruiting depots had been established and there they became active members of the national army. The British government was in-

The new army is a large one. Many of the men have already been sent to the fighting lines to fill the places of those who have fallen. But the bulk of that new army, and it is an efficient fighting organization—is holding back for the day when the orders will come for a general advance. Then they will move forward to the task from driving off its native soil the foe who brought death and desolation to a peaceful people.

encing the organization of the new Belgian army and no effort was spared to provide every comfort and facility for the men, many of whom had exposed themselves to danger and even death. Thousands of recruits had already been found in the ranks of refugees who had invaded England and whose care and protection had likewise been undertaken by the British government.

Berlin in a Rage. German officials could see nothing wrong in this exodus from Belgium into Holland, they could appreciate only the monetary results. Air pilots reported tremendous activity in the vicinity of Rouen, and it was later learned that this activity was nothing but the tramp of thousands of men in training for the delivery of Belgium from the hands of the enemy.

Word was flashed to Berlin German officialdom was stirred to the very depths by this wanton indifference on the part of the Brussels government. New orders were issued and new men were sent out to enforce them. The laws became cast iron in their character and severe in their punitive qualities.

Exodus is Stopped. Proclamations were posted in all leading centers advising the Belgian people that parents would be held responsible for the departure of their sons and that they would be punished. In the meantime the call for the class of 1906 had been received at Brussels through "smuggled news routes." Every young Belgian smarting under the tyranny of the German masters, yearned for one opportunity to serve. The wall of steel that barred their escape, however, was daily becoming more secure. German sentries along the frontiers had orders to shoot and barbed wire charged with electricity had been strung across the frontiers. It was made a criminal offense to carry a Belgian or English newspaper, even as it had previously been an offense to read them.

Up to this moment the influence of Mr. Brand Whitlock, the American minister had been effective in preserving the human liberties of the "Bruxellois," but this was changed now. Time and again was the seal of the American Consulate refused and it was finally decreed that all American passports should be signed in the presence of German officers, should carry photographs and that the latter should be stamped in the presence of a German official.

Army in Large One. These new regulations, inspired by Berlin, closed the gates against further exodus of Belgian men of military age. It was a most miserable and inhuman condition for the Belgian people, but they could not kill the Belgian spirit. Had the German government moved more promptly in the suppression of that freedom which German love of gold made possible at Brussels, the world would have been possible for King Albert to produce the magnificent force which represents the new Belgium.

Thousands of recruits were gathered together from among refugees and those who are familiar with the circum-

JURY RECOMMENDS COMPULSORY INSURANCE ON ALL ELEVATORS

At the inquest into the death of William H. Smith, who died on October 18 from injuries sustained when an elevator collapsed in the warehouse of J. S. Frost, Smythe street, which was held last evening in the court house the jury returned a verdict that Mr. Smith died from injuries and shock received from the breaking of a cable and the falling of an elevator, and being in a weakened condition from the use of alcohol was unable to stand the said shock.

They strongly recommended that all owners of freight elevators place a sign warning people from going on them and embodied in their recommendation part of the testimony given by John Kenney, machine and factory inspector for New Brunswick. It was as follows: That the provincial government be requested to amend the Factories Act at the earliest opportunity by adding a section making it compulsory for the owner or user of a power elevator to insure the same in some standard insurance company daily authorized in the province for that purpose." He said that these companies have in their employ expert inspectors who would see that the elevators were kept in a safe condition. If the owners refused to carry out their instructions then the factory inspector has power to compel them to comply with the same.

HEAVY MEAT EATERS HAVE SLOW KIDNEYS

Eat Less Meat if You Feel Back-ache or Have Bladder Trouble

No man or woman who eats meats regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of some waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleepiness, bladder disorders, come from sluggish kidneys.

"At the moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys, or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then get fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation and thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delicious salt water drink, which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

THE OLD GUARD AT DARDANELLES

29th Division in Almost Every Engagement

FEW LEFT TO TELL THE STORY

Ashmead Bartlett, in Belated Story Held Back by Censor, Again Emphasizes Turks' Incalculable Advantages

(By Ellis Ashmead Bartlett, special cable to 'The New York World.') London, Oct. 20.—The purpose of this article is to do belated justice to the role played by the famous 29th Division in the heroic struggle in the Dardanelles. The renown of this division is world-wide, and the number will ever in the future be surrounded by that mixed halo of romance and glory which attached to Caesar's 10th Legion or Napoleon's Old Guard.

In fact, the 29th earned for themselves the title of the Old Guard of the Army. Unfortunately but few of the original veterans who landed at Sedul-Baba are left, for nearly all are dead or else invalided home. Some, in fact, have been wounded many times, as the division has played the most prominent role in almost every engagement that has been fought on the peninsula during the last six months.

I do not know how many times it consumed itself in furious attacks on the Turkish works, but already at least three times the number of its original strength have passed through its ranks.

29th Held Its Ground

The 29th Division landed under command of Major General Hunter Weston, and has since been commanded by Maj. Gen. de Lisle. All four countries, England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales have the honor to be represented in its ranks.

On Aug. 6 the division was holding the old position on the left of our line at Cape Helles, across the gully and ravine, and on that day the 88th Brigade delivered a most gallant assault on a section of the Turkish line, over ground devoid of cover. Whilst the landing at Suvla Bay and the great advance from Anzac were taking place, the 29th held its ground and successfully repulsed attacks from the Turks.

When the attempts of the new divisions to take the Anafarta Hills had definitely failed, by Aug. 10, it was decided to make a final effort to cut the enemy's lines of communication by employing the Old Guard. Secretly at night three brigades were brought up in trawlers from Helles to Suvla, and landed at about the Turks being aware of the movement.

In my accounts which have appeared in the press of the events of this memorable Aug. 21, the chief credit has been given to the newly-arrived yeomanry, because they were the only corps the censor allowed to be mentioned, but in reality the 2nd Mounted Division of yeomanry were held in reserve behind Lala Baba Hill until late in the afternoon, and they only came into action after repeated efforts of the 88th and 89th Brigades of the Mounted Division failed to shake the Turkish defense.

Yeomanry Deserves Credit

The yeomanry deserve every credit for the magnificent manner in which they behaved when in action for the first time. They advanced two miles under a perfect hail of shrapnel over ground which afforded not so much as a blade of grass as cover, before they reached the dead ground at the foot of the Turkish works. It was the 2nd Brigade, under the Earl of Longford, consisting of the Bucks, Berks and Dorsets, which made the final glorious charge in conjunction with the 87th Brigade, and obtained temporary possession of Hill 70, which had subsequently to be abandoned in the night.

The losses of this brigade were very heavy, the Bucks regiments losing almost all their officers and men. The arrival of the famous 29th Division on the battlefield stimulated the whole army and showed how seriously their leaders regarded the task ahead. The division was ranged along a line stretching from Hill 70 to Hill 112; the 87th brigade was ordered to attack Hill 70 and the 88th Hill 112.

The South Wales Borderers acted as connecting link between the two. The 88th Brigade, which suffered very heavy losses at Helles on Aug. 6, was held in reserve. The men of the 29th rested quietly in the trenches during the morning. They realized that the eyes of the whole army were watching them, and that a signal of danger, honor, had been conferred on them.

Charge Gains Hillcrest

Throughout the afternoon the 88th Brigade made repeated efforts to advance on Hill 112, suffering heavy losses, but could make no progress in face of the Turks' determined resistance. When the final effort was made to capture Hill 70, late in the afternoon, the South Wales Borderers, who had been in reserve, were brought up. This regiment advanced against the south face, and dug themselves in beneath the crest before the Second Yeomanry Brigade under Lord Longford came up from behind Lala Baba. Here they remained until about dark, taking part in the final charge which gained possession of the crest.

It will thus be seen from this brief summary that the brunt of the fighting on Aug. 21 fell again to the 29th Division, but even the efforts of these heroic troops, ably seconded by the yeomanry, failed to achieve success against an enemy equally brave and equally determined, who enjoyed the incalculable advantage of fighting behind entrenchments on the commanding hills. But the 29th Division has only added to its fame by this failure.

The Vossische Zeitung also denounces the anti-Zeppelin movement in Germany saying, "The raids are of the most vital importance and must continue in London if abandoned elsewhere. To make the Englishman feel, you must attack him in the weakest spot--destroy his property, his banks, his money, his spinning establishments. This is best done by King Zeppelin. You deal him a blow in the ribs, the Englishman will beg you most anxiously to excuse him. This is the result of personal experience in the course of intimate dealings with Englishmen. We must apply personal experience to our warfare against England. Translated into good German, this means 'Our government must repeat again and again with ever growing violence the Zeppelin raids on London and other English towns.'"

The character of the Englishman has long remained an enigma to many people, but those who have traveled outside of Germany regard it correctly enough. "If in the course of your travels an Englishman should hustle by you and tread on your toes you should never beg his pardon for if you do he will treat you with the utmost disdain. If, however you deal him a blow in the ribs, the Englishman will beg you most anxiously to excuse him. This is the result of personal experience in the course of intimate dealings with Englishmen. We must apply personal experience to our warfare against England. Translated into good German, this means 'Our government must repeat again and again with ever growing violence the Zeppelin raids on London and other English towns.'"

LETTER OF ABSORBING INTEREST COMES FROM CHAPLAIN HOOPER; THE WORK OF GALLANT 26TH

Captain the Rev. E. B. Hooper, chaplain 6th Field Ambulance, writing from the front on Oct. 17 to a friend in St. John, speaks of events before and after the 26th battalion was in its first serious action, and also sends to this community a very strong message on the urgent and pressing need for more young men to go to the front.

As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country. Never have I realized this as in these days of war, when, far from the land I call home, letters come too seldom and at such intervals that they never become common, and do not begin to satisfy the heart's craving for good news from the far country. All this is leading up to an expression of the pleasure with which I received yours of Sept. 24.

I know that you in St. John and New Brunswick are especially interested in the doings of the 26th, and so am I, and I will have something to say about them before I have finished. My first, and the object nearest to my heart, at the moment is to say something further to stimulate recruiting, which I am gratified to learn is proceeding now quite briskly in our province by the sea.

The daily press is performing a splendid duty to the empire. The despatches which are being published from day to day make it more and more evident that the empire is engaged in a life and death struggle. A new phase of the already gigantic war has opened up through the treachery of Bulgaria, and the so-called neutrality of Greece.

All the forces of the empire will be needed to meet this fresh combination of enemies and luke warm friends. I would that men and nations would realize the absolute truth of the principle enunciated 1900 years ago by the Saviour of the World, "He that is not with me is against me."

THE YOUNG MAN WHO STAYS AT HOME AND SATISFIES THE LOYALTY OF HIS CONSCIENCE BY CHERRING PATRIOTIC UTTERANCES OR BY GIVING A FEW DOLLARS TO PATRIOTIC PURPOSES WHEN IT IS HIS STRENGTH, HIS ENERGY, HIS MANHOOD, HIS LIFE, WHICH IS DEMANDED OF HIM AS A BRITISH CITIZEN, IS NOT WITH THE EMPIRE IN ITS STRUGGLE FOR LIFE AGAINST AN IRREPLACABLE FOE, AND IF NOT WITH US, HE IS ASSUREDLY AGAINST US. LET HIM SQUIRM UNDER THE ACCUSATION EVER SO UNCOMFORTABLY.

Never has there arisen such a time as the present when the "Old Grey Mother," who has nurtured and guided and guarded us for ages, needs all her sons to come to her side and all her daughters to bid them and to speed them on their high and holy mission.

St. I mean every word I say, I speak from a heart fired by an absolute knowledge of what will happen when the fighting men of Canada, Australia, New Zealand and other parts of the world-wide empire, trained and equipped for military service join in the mighty chorus:

Thine, England, thine, Bone of thy knees are they, Loyal to the Faith, to the throne, They are thine all things today.

Victory—peace shall be ours—when England herself and the empire with her shall give all to the cause for which she fights. SOME BLOOD-STIRRING INCIDENTS.

Here are some two or three incidents which stirred my blood. They are true. The first may be a "chestnut" told before, but I heard it from one who was present. General Smith-Dorrien, inspecting a battalion of the 1st Canadian contingent, passing down the ranks came to an oldish soldier, whose breast had as many or more war ribbons as that his own.

The general said, looking the man in the eye, "You have seen much service?" "Yes, sorr."

"How old are you?" "Forty-five, sorr."

"Ah! And how many years' service have you had?" "Forty-three, sorr, and I have four sons in the war, sorr," he added, throwing out his chest with pride. He was, in fact, sixty-one years of age.

Passing through the big ward in my hospital last week I came to a man, who looked a bit odd for active service. I said to him "Good morning." "Good morning, sir," he replied.

"How old are you?" "I was forty-five last year, sir."

I sat down on his cot and talked a bit and got him talking and then I said "totto voo" to him.

"Now honestly how old are you?" "Sixty," was his answer.

The other day I went to the small room of the 27th and found in charge an old sergeant, too old for the trenches but delighted at being brought to look after the battalion post office. Hart was his name, and an old soldier too. He told me that he has three sons in the war, two in the navy and one in the army. He and his three boys were all he had to give and all his brave wife had to give. One boy went to his death on the submarine E-13. It will be remembered that the Danish government saved the survivors, salvaged the submarine and cared for the bodies of the dead. Sent them to England for burial. Over each coffin was a new Union Jack, the gift of the Danish government.

ones have fallen I would express my own deep sympathy for their sorrow. But it is sorrow gilded with pride. They died as brave men should in the path of duty. Their bodies lie in soldiers' graves, their souls are with God, and which wherever their faults and sins, yet passed into the wider life of the Great Beyond in their performance of duty.

This is the first great toll of New Brunswick blood for king and country. It will not be the last. Let every one pray that our gallant lads may be supported in every danger and bring honor to themselves and their country in carrying the flag on to victory, the complete victory, which shall bring to the world an enduring peace.

Three officers were wounded in Wednesday's business. Lieutenant Carter quite seriously, Major Brown a painful wound in the foot and Lieutenant Fairweather slightly. When I saw the latter yesterday he looked uncommonly well and like all other officers and men cheerful and ready for the next turn in the trenches.

I will not refer to the men in the ranks by name, either to those who died or to those who were wounded, there are too many of them. I am told that Sergeant Ryan greatly distinguished himself by bringing in a wounded comrade under heavy fire. All honor to the heroic sergeant and all honor to the officers and men of the battalions. They richly merited the letter of congratulation which was read to them from the general himself.

CHURCH SERVICE AFTER BATTLE. Never have I enjoyed a service as I did the one today, held in a field, with a heavy fog shrouding the landscape and the khaki-clad ranks of our boys. I love them so. I feel like a father towards them with a father's pride in my sons. I take off my hat to them with a "Te Salutis". They are mine and they are yours. Many who read this will say with pride "and mine too."

Yes, and where they have led, many, many more must follow. Ayl and they will follow. The empire calls, the king calls, the mother calls, let 10,000 voices shout, "Here we come!"

I am in honor bound to withhold anything forbidden by a strict censorship. It is for this reason that I have refrained from much that would be of interest were it told, and for the same reason, I have waited three days for the official publication of such data as I have given.

My heart and brain are alike full of the subjects on which I have written and they should strike a responsive chord in the hearts of any who read them. Since beginning this letter I have been called away to bury a soldier, a most impressive service, too, and afterwards the band which played at the grave came back to the hospital here and gave us a most enjoyable concert.

Remember me to our boys in the 26th for a commendation service, out of doors, with a box for an altar and the side of a barn for a background. Notwithstanding church rites I told the lads that all who will may come, and I hope to have a great number. Every need of our men is met—spiritual and physical, as well as circumstances will permit. In our hospital we care for the sick and wounded men.

They are tenderly and skilfully tended, and I spend hours of each day with them. Here I find a splendid field for expending much of the money sent me from St. John. Hundreds and hundreds of cigarettes and great quantities of writing materials I distribute to those who need them.

I earnestly trust that no one who contributed to my fund will feel aggrieved because I treat all men alike, whether from New-Brunswick or elsewhere. WE ARE ALL ONE OUT HERE, WITH ONE SOVEREIGN, ONE EMPIRE AND ONE FLAG.

HOOKS $1,800 IN BANK. Sick Thief Gets Cash in Baltimore While Confederates Occupy Tellers' Attention With Conversation.

Baltimore, Nov. 2.—By the use of a device resembling a fountain pen, an unidentified man hooked up a package of 1,800 and a check for $22,000 from the National Exchange Bank here, while three confederates engaged the bank teller in conversation. The man made off before the teller realized what had occurred.

There is no clue other than the teller's statement that the men were of dark complexion and unshaven foreheads.

Germany altogether has only 60,000,000, leaving only one-half this strength from which to select men to oppose France and England in the west. The odds are against Germany.

Above all things, Professor Falconer decided against pessimism. He discouraged depression over the Balkan outlook. Russia was recovering, and the campaign there will result in the right way if sufficient men are sent there.

Relative to Canada's position he felt that she had not fully awakened to the realization of the war. Her trade has developed tremendously during the last year. Figures go to show that instead of a wearing down, business has been in most lines, on a continuous increase. He felt that Canada is taken up too much with this situation at home and believed that more earnest consideration should be given to matters abroad.

President Falconer spoke of the relative positions of the colonies and their participation in the war. He dwelt on unanimity of the empire and the effect of the war in solidifying more closely the scattered members. As to the ultimate outcome of the war he had no doubt. He wanted Canada to act accordingly with all parts of the British empire, pursuing the same purpose with equal vigor and earnestness.

President Falconer was listened to with much attention by the large audience that crowded the hall. There was much enthusiasm evoked at different parts of his speech and he was applauded time and time again.

W. M. Jarvis presided at the meeting. He opened with a brief address pertinent to questions of the day. He spoke of recruiting and of the war situation. Serf Knight—the Billie Sunday of the recruiting platform—was also heard in a remarkably clever recruiting speech.

Miss Blanka S. Thomson and Gerhart S. Mayes entertained with vocal selections. They were encored in patriotic numbers.

DYESTUFFS COMING. Sec. Lansing Notifies Congressman Carter of Shipment of Fifty Tons From England.

Boston, Nov. 2.—Congressman William H. Carter of Newham, has received a letter from Secretary of State Lansing advising him that a shipment of fifty tons of dye-stuffs is now coming forward from Great Britain, consigned to the Secretary of Commerce for account of W. A. Mitchell.

Mr. Lansing writes that the department is keenly alive to the need of dye-stuffs in this country and has been doing all it properly can to obtain shipments, but as these products are embargoed by the German government, it has not been possible up to the present time to obtain shipments upon practical terms.

DARKEN GRAY HAIR, LOOK YOUNG, PRETTY

Sage Tea and Sulphur Darkens so Naturally That Nobody Can Tell

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get the mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wright's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe for about 60 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it. No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy.

GALLANT ACT OF NORTH SHORE OFFICER MAY GAIN MILITARY CROSS

Max M. Mowat of Campbellton has received an interesting letter from Lieut. Tim O'Brien, of Moncton, in which he gives some information regarding the work of the former's son, Lieut. Ollie Mowat. The story was brought to O'Brien camp by a soldier named Darling. At Fleubert, a subaltern had taken a gun right up to the Canadian first line trenches and had done some fine work. It was Mowat. "I asked if it was young Ollie Mowat, and Darling said 'Yes, and by golly, that young fellow got grit!' Darling said that he thought Ollie would get the military cross for his work. What Ollie has done has not been done more than a couple of times in this war and generally those who performed the feat all suffered for it.

A WELL PLANNED HALLOWEEN EVENT

A Halloween social held in the school-room of St. John Presbyterians Church last evening under the auspices of the Young People's Society of the congregation was a most enjoyable success. The story of Halloween found expression on every hand from the silent ghost who met all-comers at the door to the refreshments, daintily encased in Jack-o-lantern napkins and served by waiters and waitresses whose attire evidenced their uneasy relationships with the world of sprites and elves and witches. The decorations, the shaded lights, the pumpkins, the games and the guessing contests in which silhouettes of several people of the congregation and tableaux vivants of Biblical and historical characters, played an interesting part. All had their own suggestion of Halloween and lent much real fun and liveliness to what proved a rare social treat. The evening closed with the singing of Auld Lang Syne, in which the thoughts of those present went out to the boys of the congregation in the trenches or on their way there—the national anthem and the benediction by the pastor. The proceedings were under the direction of the social committee of the Y. P. S. of which Miss Edna A. Hamm is convenor.

GERMANY MUCH WORSE OFF FOR FOOD THAN AT FIRST OF LAST WINTER

London, Nov. 2.—The Daily Mail believes it is misleading to say that Germany is starving or in immediate danger of starvation, but adds, "there is no denying that food conditions there are vastly less favorable than at the outset of the first winter of the war." Other London papers emphasize the bearing which the British submarine blockade in the Baltic Sea is likely to have on Germany's supply of certain foodstuffs. It seems to be taken for granted that Germany's connections with Silesia and Turkey cannot be protected soon enough to have any considerable bearing on the food situation this winter.

Every Man Buys His New Winter Suit and Overcoat in His Own Good Time
But As to Where He Buys It His Pocket-book Must Have a Word
If every pocket-book in St. John could be given a tongue as well as a mouth, to plead for its life blood, this men's clothing store would have so many voluntary advocates that advertising any further would be like carrying coals to Newcastle.

It is the pocket-book that knows that a man can find greater balm in the 1915-1916 Oak Hall clothing stocks than he is likely to find elsewhere.

These savings do not come in price reductions, but come in original bedrock prices now, at the beginning of the season.

They come in reliable fabrics and in all-around worthiness up to the highest standard known to the trade.

Oak Hall suits and overcoats are better for the money!

The statement is a deliberate one, seriously intended and with strong proof back of it.

New Overcoats in many fabrics and pleasing styles, from $10.00 to $30.00. New Suits, $6.00 to $30.00.

WAS KILLED AS THE SIGNAL TO RETIRE CAME

Lieut. Ferguson Writes of Private Keenan's Death
Tribute Paid Him
Comrade Reports His Bearing in the Crater Charge Magnificent—Fairville Soldier Was in the Forefront of the Bombers

Mrs. Charles Reid of Fairville, has received the following letter from Lieutenant H. W. Ferguson of the 28th Battalion, in which he pays a glowing tribute to her brother, Robert Keenan, who was recently killed while in action. The letter is as follows:
When this reaches you word will already have come to you of the death in action of 49484, Private Robert B. Keenan. As his platoon commander I become nothing less than my duty that I should write to you, his next of kin. My own and my platoon's appreciation of his many sterling qualities when he was with us to share the lot that fate appoints us. And now that he is no longer with us we miss his smiling, chery face more than pen and paper can express. Number 11 platoon of the 28th, was welded together with the cement of friendship and loyalty that comes from personalities just such as Bob's—unselfish, companionable natures that retain their unflinching dispositions under most trying circumstances; men whom it is a pleasure to command; men in whom one can repose implicit confidence; men who have been tested by fire and have stood up to it as only such men can. Bob Keenan was one of those, Mrs. Reid, one of the best, a man who entered the "great game" and played for all the boys of the platoon. We feel his loss keenly, yet we do not mourn his departure. His was a glorious end, and life out here is so uncertain that we all hope that when our turn comes to go it may be in a similar manner, for there can be no regret.

Bob was in the forefront of the bombers that led the rush to that crater on the fatal 13th. The dense cloud of smoke hid everything from view excepting where here and there a swirl of air would reveal the hurrying, moving forms, while all the time the air was alive with rifle and machine gun bullets, shrapnel, shells and bombs of all descriptions. The turmoil and din was terrible. Our men occupied the crater, and evacuated it just before the Germans blew it up.

All through this our men and the Germans were hurling bombs at a few yards distance from each other. The men near Keenan say that his bearing throughout was magnificent. He was hit just as the signal for a retirement, came and he dropped just outside the crater, dead. Our men brought him, most of the wounds, but had to leave the dead so terrible was the continual fire kept up on his spot. However, under cover of darkness those bodies lying outside the parapet were brought in, Bob among the number. From his wound he must have been killed instantly, and so suffered absolutely no pain.

His personal values are now in possession of our Regimental Sergeant-Major R. S. Edwards, and will be forwarded to you in due course. Several letters which came addressed to him here since his demise I am enclosing in this letter so that you may open same and return to their senders.

Bob's body now rests in a little graveyard less than a mile behind the spot where he fell, with around him his gallant comrades of the 28th, each in a grave of his own with a cross upon which is marked the name of the mortal who lies beneath. Do not mourn him. He died that British tradition might live. His grave is now but a roughly made resting place, but he is sleeping peacefully for all that. I shall have it looked after as well as can be done; his comrades are only too willing to undertake this token of respect and regard for a fallen friend, and when it is completed, if I am permitted I shall have a snap shot taken of the place so that you may know by sight Bob's last long resting place in Belgium, where he died for right and justice in the world's greatest struggle for freedom.

With deep sympathy, I remain, Very sincerely yours, HARRY W. FERGUSON, Lieut.

LETTER FROM CHAS. WHALEN
A letter received by Mrs. Charles Whalen of Grand Bay, from her son, Fred, tells of his gratitude for the receipt of a parcel of tobacco from home. He says that his unit expected soon to go into the trenches, and chewing tobacco would be appreciated, as they were unable to smoke in the advanced lines for fear of drawing the Germans' fire. He said he was in good health.
