STORY OF MOLLY ELLIS IS TOLD

Girl Who was Kidnapped by Afghan Tribesmen

Mother Murdered and the Daughter Forced Into the Hill Country of India to Retreat of Captors—How She was Rescued.

(Canadian Press.) Simla, April 27.—The story of the kidnapping of Molly Ellis, youthful daughter of the British commander at Kohat, while in the hands of Afridi tribesmen after she had seen them kill her mother in the early morning of April 14, is told in dispatches from Peshawar, where she is resting under the care of her father and Mrs. Starr, a woman physician who played a large part in her rescue.

After their murderous raid, the kidnappers fled to the hills above Kohat, half driving, half carrying their captive up the steep, rocky paths. Throughout the following day she could see the searchers passing in automobiles below her. Her only protection from the severe cold of the hills was a coat belonging to a brutal Afridi named Shehazada, the man who killed her mother.

Next Death. The next four days were a nightmare of alternate traveling and nighting with the girl in an ever-growing state of exhaustion from her physical efforts and the apparently hopeless outlook. Her feet were lacerated from tramping over the stony tracks, and once in the course of the terrible journey she fell fainting at the top of a snow-covered mountain peak.

After six days of traveling they reached her captors' home in the Tirth country. Meanwhile, her father and friendly tribesmen were in progress under the direction of Kull Khan, a famous and influential Mullah, or Mohammedan religious tribune named Mah-mud Akhundzada, where, after much persuasion, he ascertained that the girl was held in a letter of enclosure, eight miles away. Kull Khan managed to have conveyed to the girl a parcel of comforts and a letter of encouragement, and in return received a promise which was reasonably treated by the women of the tribesmen.

Woman Help. Mrs. Starr at this time was near Kanki Bazaar under a native escort, having arrived after adventures which seemed to threaten her mission, with failure, and the Mullah, apparently fearing trouble, sent a letter to her ordering her to turn back. This letter was ignored, and the party reached Kanki.

Soon afterwards Kull Khan informed the Mullah to bring about the transfer of the captive girl to the Mullah's residence, where she was to remain, being carried over the shoulder of one of the tribesmen.

The meeting between the girl and Mrs. Starr was a joyful one, but the danger was not ended, for while they talked the abductors stood around menacingly insisting that Molly was still their captive.

Presently the captors learned that a party of Afridi friendly to the British had arrived at their village and were attacking when the Mullah demanded that Mrs. Starr and her daughter be released. The Mullah became enraged at this insult to the sacred rights of hospitality under his roof.

In this dramatic fashion the balance tilted to the side of the rescuers, and the Mullah's demands were speedily arranged. The tribesmen's demands for a ransom and for the return of the Mullah's property were met on Tuesday of this week Kull Khan and the other rescuers started with the girl on the journey to Peshawar, where there was a joyful reunion between Molly and her father.

FIRST RADIO DEBATE ON PROHIBITION IS BROADCAST TO FANS

Millions hear Wayne W. Wheeler, Anti-Saloon League (right), and Ransom H. Gillett, counsel for association against amendment.

Newark, April 27.—A feature sent out to wireless fans has followed with much interest, a debate on prohibition between Wayne W. Wheeler of the Anti-Saloon League and Ransom H. Gillett, counsel for the association of saloon keepers in New Jersey. Mr. Wheeler, who appears quiet and happy and contented with the glass of water in his hand, is telling his silent listeners that prohibition has brought prosperity to the U. S. and saved thousands of families from starvation, suffering and disgrace.

Mr. Gillett, who looks forlorn and sad, is replying that the 18th amendment is making criminals out of otherwise good citizens who resent an infringement upon their personal rights.

GERMANS BOMB RUHR RAILROADS

Five Explosions Followed by Efforts to Evade the Customs Barriers. Dusseldorf, April 27.—Five bomb explosions on the Ruhr railroads during the night cut railway, telephone and telegraph communications, temporarily interrupting traffic.

French headquarters said the explosions had caused the most serious damage since the beginning of the occupation.

During the confusion the Germans made a series of efforts to run the customs barrier into interior Germany, but large quantities of goods were seized by the French.

The explosions tore up sections of track and blew down the wires alongside in each instance. In one case, near Bonnam, a French troop train, heavily loaded, had a narrow escape.

"P. T." PLAN GIVES CLERK A CHANCE FOR BIGGER PAY

Silverwood Stores Make It Possible Always to Earn More — Personal Trade List Salesman's Best Bet.

"How can a salesman who is coming along into a heavy volume of sales at the counter see room for more earnings ahead of him?"

That is the question that the executives of Silverwood's, the Los Angeles men's clothing store, keep asking themselves—and keep supplying the answer for. It is expensive to train a salesman to the point where he fits into the policy of the store, builds sales and has a list of "P. T." customers. To have him reach a certain point and then leave for fields that seem more appealing means a disadvantage to both the salesman and the store.

One avenue for the increased earnings of the salesman is the prospect of promotion to the position of buyer or executive. That, of course, is limited. There is, then, the increase in sales, a prospect that is not limited. To increase sales that are already large means to hold on to those made in the past—keep the trade of a certain group of customers. This the Silverwood men do through their "P. T." efforts, their "personal trade" following. Each man works to build up this reservoir of accumulated trade and his "P. T. Book" is a valuable volume to him. The salesmen in the shirt department, for instance, have as many as 250 or 300 names of men who wear long-sleeve shirts, or men who at many times of the year have trouble in getting what they want in patterns in sleeve-lengths that they must have. Silverwood's caters to such men, carrying up to thirty-eight-inch sleeves.

When the new shipments arrive these salesmen get out their "P. T." books and begin to round up their long-sleeve customers to invite them to fresh selections. Some are reached by telephone and others by letter. It is in the preparation of letters for these "P. T." names for the salesman that the store is strong on co-operation. On an upper floor is a multigraphing department for the firm's letters and classified addressing equipment. When a salesman wants a letter to the customers regarding a line or a sales event, the firm is glad to back him up if the appeal promises to be successful. Each man is thus given a special letter one or two or three times a year. This, of course, is in addition to the regular mail that the store sends the generally and the "personal" trade letters almost always pull exceptionally well.

MOTORING MADE DIFFICULT, EASTERN STYLE

(N. Y. Times) You may be perplexed by the new system of traffic whistle signals recently instituted in New York or perhaps the red tape of procuring a driver's license has you stumped, but for a resident of the city of H. in Korea, the difficulties of motoring in New York would appear to be as simple as A. B. C. The chief of the traffic squad in New York can learn a great lesson by absorbing the finer points of the automobile rules as laid down by this little Korean city by the Japanese Police Magistrate. Being very courteous, the Magistrate went to the trouble of writing his instructions in English, and left the finer points to be exact quotations are given here with:

SAYS MEN SELDOM BUTTON UP COATS

Fashion Decrees Follow the Habits of Men. "Time was when a man's coat had a dozen buttons and buttonholes down the front," said the Chief Designer of Semi-ready Clothes. "Today the two-button business sack is in greater vogue than the three-button, and the four-button front is about extinct. "Some years ago I designed a one-button coat, for I argued that very few men ever buttoned up their coats after the garment had conformed to their shape. This one-button coat is quite a favorite now for summer styles and fabrics, although I must confess that the athletic styles are in more evidence in the spring, when one does occasionally button up. "The Toggery" on King Street, shows the very latest styles and patterns in Semi-ready Clothes. The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Newfoundland Benefit Society is planning for a party sale that will be held this week and the committee to have charge of the sale has been appointed with the following conveners: Mrs. D. Here are some traffic rules as laid down by the same genius that evolved the system for obtaining an operating license: If you move the car you must watch these order. If you move the car one man must ride it at all times. Don't smoke or don't get drunk on car. You don't running in fire place and assemblable place. If cow or horse come near you must take slowly and if animal had astonished, you must avoid one road side. If two car running same road, one of car must be sundered ken (180 feet) from the other. SAYS DOLLAR SERVES WELL AS FIRST PAYMENT

Bigger One Does Not Necessarily Indicate Better Credit—Nor Does Larger One Scare Off "Dead Beat." Is a dollar a sufficient "down payment" upon the opening of an installment account in the sale of phonographs, pianos, furniture and similar merchandise? Under many conditions it is, according to the views of Lewis P. White, of the Friedman Holmes Company, in San Francisco, Calif. Of course, there should be a certain reservation or reluctance of granting or honesty. For the person who is conscientiously seeking an opportunity to "beat" the store is not likely to balk at the largest "down payment" the merchant could reasonably ask. On the other hand, viewing the customer's ability to pay as distinct from his intention to pay, the important thing for the credit man to know is whether the customer can maintain the periodical small sum payments, and not an extra large "down payment." On the whole, Mr. White does not believe that the "dollar down" idea should be unduly pushed, as a matter of good salesmanship, in closing the prospect, but is convinced that the store's willingness to accept it after careful examination of conditions otherwise satisfactory constitutes a good piece of advertising, and cites many instances where this sort of liberality on the merchant's part has brought people into the store and been productive of heavy increase in business. The chief value of the plan is that it is productive of many customers who would not otherwise be in the market. To gain the use and possession, if not the title, to a piano or phonograph by the simple payment of $1 is so easy that it stimulates desires not consciously entertained before, and starts the prospect planning ways and means, but is convinced that the store's willingness to accept it after careful examination of conditions

TREND OF POLITICS VIEWED BY WOMAN

Farmers' Movement Caused by Economic Oppression, Says Miss Macphail.

Control by "Interests"—A Plea for Representation of Minorities in Parliament—Quebec Province Cited as Example.

(Montreal Gazette.)

Canada's first woman member of the House of Commons, Miss Agnes Macphail, M. P., gave a clear-cut presentation of the existing political situation as she sees it, and of what she considers an ideal state of things for the future, when she addressed the People's Forum last evening in the Church of the Messiah on "The Trend of Politics." Her two chief lines of argument were that the only sound basis for political action is an economic one, and that some electoral organization should be evolved whereby it would be possible for minorities to get representation.

Miss Macphail's remarks were nothing if not frank and clearly defined. The kings of today, she affirmed, were the banking, manufacturing and transportation interests—they controlled Parliament, they had taken possession of the halls of learning and they had even captured the churches. As for any difference between the Conservative and Liberal parties—when the power passed from one to the other it meant a change of seats, that was all.

Prefacing her remarks by the statement that anything she said regarding political parties or leaders would be said in an impersonal way, Miss Macphail discussed briefly the Liberal and Conservative parties as they had and still existed. They had had a purpose and they had served it well, she thought, adding that there was absolutely no difference between them today. To her mind the basis upon which they rested was the powerfully organized economic groups, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, the Bankers' Association, and the transportation interests, the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National. She had absolutely no objection to that; she considered the only basis for politics was an economic one. They were under a debt of gratitude to the Canadian Manufacturers' Association who had shown them that competition was death and co-operation life. The same co-operation existed today among the banks. The seven presidents were one great brotherhood, and so far as the public were concerned there was only one bank now, for whatever competition existed did not extend to the general public. The same thing was true of the transportation interests.

Three Economic Groups. "The three great economic groups in Canada were within their rights in bringing one hundred per cent. influence to bear on the Government," declared Miss Macphail. "I have no objection to this. But both parties claimed each could serve all the people. I think their claim was unfair; they were not qualified to represent all the people. But they had that oil which brings calm to the most troubled waters—money. They had the money to fool the people into thinking the three economic groups were all the people, and today these interests rule us. Yet there are men in the House of Commons today, loyal, well-meaning men who do not yet see through this delusion."

As an instance of non-representation, she mentioned the case of the agricultural interests. In the House, she said, something was heard of the western farmer's plight, but agriculture was prosperous east of the Ottawa River. Why? Because agriculture in that part of the country was not represented. No walls were heard about the farmers in Quebec because there was no one to wall for him. Yet her audience must know that agricultural conditions in the Province of Quebec were not all they might be. For instance, twenty-six per cent. of the soldiers who had settled on the land here had been forced off by economic conditions.

Farmers' Exodus. "The farmers' movement in Canada had its roots deep in economic oppression," Miss Macphail declared. "Farmers did not co-operate readily, they had not co-operated until forced to do so. It was only when the pressure of the three economic groups became unbearable that they saw they must do something. It had been said that it was the lure of the city that took the farmer from the land; but the basic cause of the exodus was economic depression. The growth of the farmers' movement was outlined, particularly its development in Ontario. Referring to the 1919 election, which resulted in the Druzy Government, Miss Macphail said: "It looked like success, but if anything comes to you that looks like success take a second look at it." She claimed the farmers' party, following that election, had got the taste of power, a most dangerous thing. When once a party got into power by the wrong voting system, whether it was a Liberal, Conservative or Progressive party, she declared, they had one major motive—to get back again.

There are two schools of parliamentary thought in Canada today. One advocated a big progressive party that would include all the good people, no matter what their interests. This the speaker did not subscribe to. The other wished to strive for electoral organization that would make it possible for the minorities to get representation, and of this she was heartily in favor.

"Get for your particular economic group all the representation you can, but don't think that any one group can give the other people all they need," said Miss Macphail. "If you mean by responsible government that the people rule themselves, then we have a very bad example of it today. The three great economic groups are straining every nerve to prevent the formation of new groups in Parliament, but I believe circumstances will bring about some form of government through which groups can be represented. I want to live ten or fifteen years; I think by that time we will have found the solution of this problem."

In answering several questions put to her by members of the audience, she said that she was heartily in favor of the farmers' movement, but that she did not think it was the best way to keep the farmer on the land is to give him good roads, rural mail delivery, the telephone, and a Ford car, also a reward for his labor in proportion to the value of his product. Co-operation between farmers and labor will continue just so long as their joint forces are necessary to subdue the common enemy.

Miss Macphail was greeted by a large and, for the most part, sympathetic audience. Prof. Basil Williams presided.

The Breaking Point

By Mary Roberts Rinehart

(Copyright 1922, by Mary Roberts Rinehart, Published by Arrangement With McClure's Magazine.)

(Continued From Yesterday) So he carried with him the candles and slippers, the dressing-gowns and bed-sheets which were the tangible evidence of their friendliness and Lucy's despair.

Blow! out I go never glow

MAPLE LEAF MATCHES Well worth 15¢ a box

David went out for his first short walk alone, and brought Elizabeth back with him.

I found a rose walking up the street, Lucy, he followed up the stairs, and I brought it home for the dinner table.

Lucy came down, flushed from her first effort over the trunk, but gently hospitable.

"It's fish night, Elizabeth," she said. "You know Minnie's a Catholic, so we always have fish on Friday. I hope you eat it."

She put her hand on Elizabeth's arm and gently patted it. Elizabeth taken into the old brick house as one of its own.

Elizabeth was very happy those days, although things had seemed rather odd at home since the night of Dick's visit, and although Dick himself puzzled her at times.

He came every day, sometimes twice indeed, and she knew that her family was recognizing a tacit engagement.

But for all that it was settled, it seemed strangely unsettled, too. By some tacit agreement even Nina had not been told, or Jim. She did not resent that, although it bewildered her.

Her own inclination was to about it from the house-tops. Her father had simply said: "I've told your mother, and word better let it go at that, for a while. There's no hurry. And I don't want to lose you yet."

But there were other things. Dick himself varied. He was always gentle and very tender, but there were times when he seemed to hold himself away from her, would seem aloof and remote, but all the time watching her, almost fiercely.

But after that, as though he had tried an experiment in separation and failed with it, he would catch her to him savagely and hold her there. She tried, very meekly, to meet his mood; was submissive to his passion, and acquiescent to those intervals when he withdrew himself and sat or stood near her, not touching her but watching her intently.

She thought men in love were very queer and quite incomprehensible. Because he varied in other ways, too. He was boyish and gay sometimes, and again silent and almost brooding. She thought at those times that perhaps he was tired, what with David's work and his own, and sometimes she wondered if he was still worrying about that silly story.

But once or twice, after he had gone, she went up-stairs and looked carefully into her mirror. Perhaps she had looked her best that day. Girl-like, she set great value on looks in love. She wanted, frantically, to be beautiful to him. She wished she could look like Beverly Carlyle, for instance.

Two days before, David and Lucy's departure he brought her her engagement ring, a square diamond set in platinum. He kissed it first, and then her finger, and slipped it into place, and she had a sense of something done that could never be undone.

When she looked up at him he was very pale. "Forsaking all others, so long as we both shall live," he said, unsteadily. "So long as we both shall live," she repeated.

However, she had to take it off later, for Mrs. Wheeler, it developed, had very pronounced ideas of engagement rings. They were put on the day the notices were sent to the newspapers, and not before. So Elizabeth wore her ring around her neck on a white ribbon inside her camisole, until such time as her father would consent to announce that he was about to lose her.

Thus Elizabeth found her engagement ring, very noisy over the fish and David's broiled lamp chop. Dick demanded a bottle of Lucy's homemade wine, and even David got a little of it. They toasted the seashore, and the departed nurse, and David quoted Robert Burns at some length and in a horrible Scotch accent.

When they left the laboratory there were people in the waiting room, but he held her in his arms in the office for a moment or two, very quietly, and because the doctor was thin they made a sort of game of it, and pretended she was a patient.

"How now you sleep last night?" he said in a highly professional and very distinct voice. Then he kissed her, very gently, and she said, also very clearly, and whispered, "I lay awake and thought about you, dear."

"I'd better give you this sleeping powder," Oh, frightfully professional, but the powder turned out to be another kiss. It was a wonderful game. When she slipped out into the hall she had to stop and smooth her hair before she went to Mrs. Crook's sitting-room.

It was Jim Wheeler's turn to take up the shuttle. A girl met in some casual fashion, his own youth and the urge of it, perhaps the unconscious indulgence of an only boy—and Jim wore his bit and passed on.

There had been contention in the Wheeler family during all the spring months while he was not looking, and he held her in his arms in the office for a moment or two, very quietly, and because the doctor was thin they made a sort of game of it, and pretended she was a patient.

"We can always get a taxi," was his imperturbable answer to Jim. "I have my imperturbable answer to Jim."

pay pretty good-sized taxi bills without counting the cost. I know you pretty well, too, Jim. Better than you know yourself, and if you had a car, you'd do well not to break your neck in it."

Now and then Jim got a car, however. Sometimes he rented one, sometimes he cajoled Nina into lending him hers.

"A fellow looks like a fool without one," he would say to her. "Girls expect to be taken out."

(To be continued) The Dominion Lodge I. O. G. T. repeated its successful play, "Petrol, the Storm Child," in the Portland Y. M. C. hall last night and delighted a large audience.

When you eat Bran for constipation be certain that it is ALL BRAN!

There is no time to fuss away trying to find out just what some mixed-up cereal with a small bran content can do to ward off the grave illness that constantly looms over constipation sufferers. What your system demands is ALL BRAN! You must have ALL BRAN to give permanent relief! Anything less than ALL BRAN does not have the bulk that gives results! Your physician will recommend Kellogg's Bran because it is ALL BRAN! Kellogg's will do the work; it will give you permanent relief; it will remake your health if you will eat it regularly—because it is ALL BRAN! Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is wonderful for health. It sweeps, cleans and purifies, ridding the system of the dangerous toxic poisons. Yet it is simply a nature-food—nature's own remedy for constipation; nature's way of keeping every body-organ tuned, true.

East Kellogg's Bran regularly to give permanent relief naturally—at least two tablespoons daily; for chronic cases, with every meal. It is as beneficial as a preventive. Its nut-like flavor is delicious. You will like it sprinkled over your favorite hot or cold cereal, or eat it as a cereal. Kellogg's Bran makes delightful muffins, raisin bread, pancakes, etc. It adds a fine flavor to soups and gravies. Have the whole family eat Kellogg's Bran and see the health of every member improve.

All grocers sell Kellogg's Bran.

VILLAS BUILT UPON SITE OF OLD CARTHAGE

Foundations Not Dug Deep Enough to Interfere with Explorers' Work at Ancient City—Tombs Cut Into Rock.

London, April 19.—(By Mail.)—A party of American excavators who have obtained permission to explore the site of ancient Carthage in collaboration with the Department of Antiquities in Tunisia, have now begun operations in earnest, and already certain discoveries of interest have been made, writes "The London Times" correspondent.

From the point of view both of history and of architecture the possibility of revealing something of the lost splendor of the Punic city of Carthage excites the keenest interest. The story of its destruction by the Romans in 146 B. C. has hitherto discouraged exploration, but the truth is that nobody knows what treasures may be found within the great old sea wall whose ruined stones lie scattered along the coast.

Within the city, in spite of limited means, the explorers have already unearthed sixty-five buildings, sufficient to reveal whatever remains of the ancient city may lie lower down. The sea wall itself, with its pillars, many of them fallen but unbroken, might again lessons in the history of military architecture.

One of the most striking discoveries—that of the "Fountain of the Thousand Vases"—shows a style of underground Punic architecture which is particularly characteristic. The water feeding the reservoir (whence the Carthaginian boatmen got their supplies) flows down a corridor with vaulted arches, which recall the corridors of building in the underground tombs discovered by Pere Delatre.

Some of the most perfect specimens of a Punic mausoleum is to be found not at Carthage, but at Dougga (the ancient Thugga)—a three-story tower sixty feet high with a pyramidal roof. The Libyan-Punic inscription which formerly bore is now in the British Museum; it was not replaced on the monument when it was restored in 1910.

Surprises Expected. Whatever the archaeological value of the Punic remains of Carthage—and there are persons who doubt whether much of value is left—the excavations now going on may furnish surprises. It must be remembered that successive cities have risen on the same site. Ruins of Roman buildings stand on Punic foundations, and the city flourished in the early centuries of the Christian era. Pere Delatre has uncovered much of what remains of the early Christian basilica of St. Cyprilian, and has found bas-reliefs and capitals of pillars ornamented with animals which show an evolution similar to that which took place in Europe. This church, like the Arab mosques which succeeded the Christian basilicas, bears evidence of having been built of materials taken from older Pagan buildings.

The Blame for High Selling Costs

A Government Commission finds that national merchandising is burdened with a too-high cost of selling. To meet this problem, the Commission urges manufacturers to secure "better knowledge of the consumer capacity of markets" and to adapt their "distributive policies more definitely to the needs of the consumer."

National advertising is playing an important part in this economic drama. There is still some national advertising that is conducted without regard to market study and market opportunities.

For every manufacturer who enjoys an equally profitable opportunity to do business in every part of the continent, there are hundreds whose logical markets are sharply bounded by sections and cities.

Why, then, advertise aimlessly to the map? Newspaper advertising gives the manufacturer the key to all markets or any market. Every day everywhere it reaches all who read.

It is as definite in its mission as the railway or the telegraph.

Every manufacturer will be interested in the chapter on this subject in "Today in the Newspaper." Write the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, 484 World Building, New York, for a copy of this book.

Buying Advertising Space Means Buying A Market

Cautious merchants buy advertising space the same as they do merchandise or goods in trade—with a microscope in their hand.

"What do I get for the expenditure?" is the paramount question in the present day merchant's mind. Stunts, schemes, fictitious and proof lacking circulation claims have no attraction for the keen space buyer. That's why the Daily Telegraph and The Evening Times-Star represent solid and steady growth in advertising volume—because they can satisfy the most exacting demands made by local or national space users as to the real condition of their circulation.

The A.B.C. is Your Safeguard

The A.B.C. is a non-profit organization made up of concerted advertising interests—publishers, advertisers and advertising agents; and the object is to produce verified and authentic net figures of circulation.

All local newspapers were invited to become members. The Telegraph and The Times-Star were the only two in New Brunswick to accept.

This Is Raisin Week--Eat More Raisins

SUN-MAID GRAHAM GEMS.

1 1/2 cups graham flour. 1 cup sugar. 1 cup sour milk. 1/2 cup molasses. 3-4 teaspoon soda. 1 teaspoon salt. 2 tablespoons melted butter. 2 cups Sun-Maid seeded raisins. Mix and sift dry ingredients; add milk to molasses, and combine mixture; then add butter and raisins, mix thoroughly and bake in moderate oven twenty to twenty-five minutes.

RAISIN NUT GEMS.

2 cups flour. 2 teaspoons baking powder. 4 teaspoon salt. 2 tablespoons sugar. 1/2 cup Sun-Maid raisins. 1/2 cup walnut meats. 1 well-beaten egg. 2 tablespoons melted butter or shortening. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar together. Add raisins and nuts, cut in pieces. Add milk and beaten egg and mix well. Stir in butter. Pour into greased gem pans and bake in moderate oven thirty to thirty-five minutes. This makes about twelve gems.

RAISIN BREAD.

1 cake yeast. 1 cup lukewarm water. 6 cups flour. 4 tablespoons lard or shortening. 3-4 cup sugar. 1 1/2 cups Sun-Maid raisins. 1 cup milk, scalded and cooled. 1 teaspoon salt. Soften yeast in water. Add two cups flour and lard well creamed with sugar. Beat until smooth. Cover and set aside in a warm place to rise until light--about 1 1/2 hours. Add plumped raisins, salt and remainder of flour and knead lightly until smooth. Put into greased bowl. Cover and let rise until double in bulk. For into loaves and fill greased pans half full. Let rise again until double in bulk and put into hot oven. After thirty minutes reduce heat and bake about thirty to thirty-five minutes longer. This makes two medium sized loaves.

WHOLE WHEAT BUNS.

2 cups salsed milk. 1/4 cup sugar or 1/2 cup molasses. 2 teaspoons salt. 1 yeast cake dissolved in 1/2 cup lukewarm water. 4-5 cups coarse whole wheat flour. 1 cup seeded Sun-Maid raisins. Add sweetening and salt to milk; cool, and when lukewarm add dissolved yeast cake and flour; beat well, cover, and let rise to double its bulk. Beat again, and turn into greased baking tins having pans one-half full; let rise, and bake. Whole wheat bread or buns should not rise quite double their bulk in the last rising.

RICH NUT BREAD.

3 cups flour. 2 cups Sun-Maid raisins. 2 cups graham flour. 2 cups molasses. 1 cup sugar. 1 teaspoon salt. 1 cup cinnamon. 1 egg. 1/2 cup milk. 1 cup broken walnut meats. 1 cup Sun-Maid seeded raisins. Sift flour, baking powder, salt, sugar and cinnamon together. Add beaten egg to milk. Stir into flour and mix well. Add nuts and plumped raisins. Pour into greased bread pans. Let stand thirty minutes and bake in moderate oven one hour. This makes two small loaves or one large loaf.

BOSTON BROWN BREAD.

1 cup flour. 1 cup corn meal. 1 teaspoon salt. 2 teaspoons soda. 1 cup graham flour. 1 cup Sun-Maid raisins. 2 cups sour milk or buttermilk. Sift flour, corn meal, salt and soda together. Add graham flour and raisins and mix thoroughly. Stir in molasses and sour milk. Beat well and pour into greased molds. Cover tightly and steam at least two hours. If this is put into one large mold it requires four hours steaming. It will make four loaves if put into pound baking powder cans and will require two hours steaming.

Add to the butter mixture slowly, stirring constantly. Beat vigorously and add well-beaten eggs and plumped raisins. Mix and pour into greased shallow pan. Bake in a moderate oven thirty to thirty-five minutes.

RAISIN ROLLS.

2 cups flour. 4 teaspoons baking powder. 1/2 teaspoon salt. 4 tablespoons butter or shortening. 3-4 cup milk. 3 tablespoons brown sugar. 1 tablespoon cinnamon. 1 cup Sun-Maid seedless raisins. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt, rub in two tablespoons shortening very lightly; add liquid slowly; roll out one-quarter of an inch thick on a floured board, spread with remaining shortening, then with cinnamon, sugar and raisins which have been mixed. Roll like a jelly roll, cut off in 1/2 inch pieces, lay in a well-greased pan, with cut part uppermost. Let rise fifteen minutes, brush top with milk, sprinkle with a little sugar and cinnamon and bake in a hot oven fifteen minutes. This makes twelve rolls.

INQUIRY BOARD URGED FOR SCHOOLS IN BRITAIN Commission Sought to Aid in Thrust-uring Out Reports of Inefficiency. London, April 26.--(By mail).--The efficiency of primary schools was discussed at the final session of the conference of the National Association of Schoolmasters at the old County Hall reports The Westminster Gazette. F. C. Graves (Leeds) moved that the recent persistent, uniformed, unjust and malicious attacks on primary schools called for the appointment of what had been done in the primary schools. There was more of life than the pursuit of food, and the worship of Mammon was not desirable. W. E. Cray of London moved the previous question. While he agreed with all the cover had said, no advantage would be gained by the appointment of a commission. It would simply be a "washout" and a dishonest thing to file with the secretary of state a sworn copy of its constitution, by-laws, rules, regulations and oath of membership, together with a roster of its membership and a list of its officers. ONTARIO DECISION AFFECTS DOMINION

COURT RULING ANTI-TRUST CLAUSES OF CRIMINAL CODE ULTRA VIRES

Probably Means Revision of Clauses, Says President of Wholesale Grocers' Association of Montreal—Important and Far-reaching.

NOTICE

NOTICE TO MARINERS

All persons having any electrical wiring or apparatus installed in their premises, or alterations or additions made to same, are notified, for their own protection, to see that the Contractor obtains a Permit from the Electrical Inspection Department before commencing the work.

THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL ASKED ALSO FOR AN INJUNCTION RESTRAINING THE ASSOCIATION FROM CONTINUING ITS ALLEGED ILLEGAL PRACTICES, AND THIS, TOO, HAS BEEN REFUSED.

The Attorney-General asked also for an injunction restraining the Association from continuing its alleged illegal practices, and this, too, has been refused. The judgment is of particular interest because anti-trust measures are now before both the Dominion House of Commons and the Ontario Legislature, while the Criminal Code already contains provisions declaring combinations in restraint of trade—other than trade unions—to be illegal and the offence punishable. It was the Criminal Code upon which the Attorney-General relied when he instituted the proceedings which have now failed, but instead of pursuing a direct course and bringing an information against the Association in the criminal courts he pursued the more cautious method of asking the civil courts for a declaration and an injunction. The application was heard by Mr. Justice Ondaatje and was denied by him, an appeal then being taken to the higher division. It is to be noted that while the Appellate Court is unanimous in sustaining Justice Ondaatje's decision the judges have their findings upon a variety of grounds. Mr. Justice Hodgins expresses the opinion that the Attorney-General would be entitled to an injunction, but that no case for an injunction has been made out, while Mr. Justice Ondaatje, in his dissenting opinion, expressed the opinion that the declaration and an injunction should not be made, and that the time and place to determine whether or not the defendants committed a breach of the Criminal Code was in a proceeding instituted under the Criminal Code, rather than in a civil proceeding. In neither of these conclusions is the validity of the law called in question, but the Chief Justice, in his dissenting opinion, expressed the opinion that the Criminal Code was ultra vires of the Parliament of Canada, basing his decision upon the judgment of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in the Board of Commerce case. This case it may be remembered, arose over an order of the Board of Commerce prohibiting certain retail clothes in Ottawa from charging a profit on sales of goods which was a certain percentage on cost, which the Board declared to be fair. The court had to decide whether or not the Canadian Parliament had legislative authority under the British North America Act to give the Board power which was sought to be exercised. The judgment, delivered by Lord Haldane, was that the constitution did not confer such power on the government of the country which was imperilled. Such conditions were absent from the case under review, and the order of Parliament was held to be ultra vires.

OPINIONS ON THE STOCK MARKET

(McDougall & Cowan's Private Wire)
New York, April 27.—Hornblower and Weeks—"Do not think bears will win their short contracts much longer if the market does not break and we do not believe it will break. Houseman—"We think that the market is a little more depressed than cover outstanding short lines and also take on a little long stock for trade."

MORNING STOCK LETTER

(McDougall & Cowan's Private Wire)
New York, April 27.—The significant feature of this market now, is that pivotal stocks meet support at prices slightly below the present levels, and bears are not able to bring out any long stock. In some cases bears are showing signs of weakness as witnessed in Baldwin yesterday. The market is undoubtedly going higher and the first of the month at least should see the start of an advance. The large increase in the ratio of both the N. Y. Federal Reserve Bank and the Federal Reserve System should bring some buying in the market this morning. Good stocks will seem a purchase on small reactions. U. S. is evidently under a cumulative advance this time steel should be in its old position of market leader. Rubber and copper shares should be accumulated at present prices. Cheaper rails look higher. Equipments still seem in the best position.

FAMOUS PARIS MUSEUM.
Hotel de Cluny Occupies Site of Ancient Roman Palace

Gothic and Renaissance style in existence. In a brief description of its history the Travel Bulletin, issued by the French Traveling Office, at 342 Madison Avenue, says that the building occupies the site of a Roman palace said to have been built by the Emperor Constantine Chlorus in 192-309, and was the residence of the early French monarchs. The only relics of the Roman palace are the ruins of the Thermes, or baths. About 1340 the property came into the possession of Abbey Cluny and the abbots built a residence on the site. It was completed in 1480 by the Abbot Jacques d'Amboise and has since remained almost unaltered. James V of Scotland and Mary Tudor (La Reine Blanche), sister of Henry VIII, and third wife of Louis XII, occupied it at different times. The revolution declared it to be national property and in 1833 it was acquired by the archaeologist, A. du Sommerard for his valuable collection of Medieval and Renaissance works of art. At his death, in 1842, the edifice, with its collections, was purchased by the State and united with the Thermes. The museum of Cluny contains a valuable collection of specimens, representative of ancient arts and crafts. Its 16,000 exhibits include sculpture in marble, wood and stone, ivories, enamels, terra cottas, bronzes, furniture, textiles, stained glass, pottery, tapestries, pictures, iron work and jewelry.

ALL FIELD SEEDS TO BE OFFICIALLY GRADED
(Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.)
The Seed Control Act, administered by the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, is undergoing amendment at the present session of Parliament. The amending bill, after receiving the approval of the Agricultural Committee, has had its second reading in the House of Commons. The original act provides for the compulsory grading of only of timothy, alsike, red clover and alfalfa. The grades of these seeds recognized are "Extra No. 1," "No. 1," "No. 2," "No. 3," and "Rejected." The amended act will extend compulsory grading to all kinds of grass and clover seed, flax, sorghum, millet, wheat, oats, barley, rye, corn, buckwheat, sunflower, field peas, field beans, and vetches. Provision is made for including seeds of other kinds of farm crops. The bill also provides for the optional grading for commerce of field roots and garden vegetable seeds. Farmers selling seed on their own premises will not be required to grade seed grain. Grass seed and clover seed, however, sold from the farm must have been officially tested and graded on the basis of a control sample.

Suggestion of Friendly Overtures to Germany

New York Banker Says U. S. and Britain Should Do It—Holds Time is Ripening for Taking Action.

Speaking before the Empire Club of Canada at Toronto, yesterday, Dr. Benjamin M. Anderson, Jr., economist of the Chase National Bank of New York, urged that the British Empire and the United States should make friendly overtures to France, Belgium and Germany, in an effort to bring about a settlement of the difficulties growing out of the reparations question and the occupation of the Ruhr. He said that the British Empire and the United States have largely recovered from war psychology, whereas France and Germany are both still under the excitement and bitterness and terrible tension of feeling of the war. GILLETT'S LYE

Comparatively few people realize to what extent Gillett's Lye can be used to advantage in every home. For instance, with one can of Gillett's Lye and five and a half pounds of lard or grease, ten pounds of good hard soap can be made. Use one tablespoon Gillett's Lye in gallon of water for cleaning and disinfecting refrigerators, sinks, garbage cans, tiled floors, baths and toilets.

He expressed the opinion that the issue is critical and that Germany is nearing the end of her rope. The world may easily have a starving people on its hands if pressure on Germany is not soon relaxed.

ELIXIR OF LIFE DISCOVERED IN SHEEP GLANDS

Adrenalin, Powerful Astringent Which Routs Death, Has Stood Unrecognized Years in Medicine Chest.

A cheap, colorless solution that has had its place on the physician's shelf for some years suddenly has been put to miraculous uses, making the heart beat when the pulse of life had seemed to flicker out. With the restoration of several newborn babies whose lives were saved by the use of adrenalin, the possibilities of adrenalin are only beginning to be guessed. It is likely to be called into use extensively from now on. But it is not a remedy for the unskilled to handle.

Adrenalin is the most powerful astringent known and its use must be prompt and sure. It can be bought by any one in the form of a small ampule, but the physician must make a lightning judgment on when and how to use it. So little is known about the drug that there is ample room for experimentation.

A case was reported last Thursday when three injections were required to restore life in the dead baby born to Mrs. James Miller, of Belmar, N. J. Each time the heart beat for a few minutes and then gave out. The third injection was a strong one of the Isaacson twins to life. In Detroit a baby was restored for six hours by the same means, but in this instance the threat of physician must make a lightning judgment on when and how to use it.

A few weeks earlier Dr. Philip Mininberg, of the Park Maternity Hospital, Brooklyn, reported the first success of this kind recorded, when he succeeded in bringing one of the Isaacson twins to life. In Detroit a baby was restored for six hours by the same means, but in this instance the threat of physician must make a lightning judgment on when and how to use it.

has to be quick and fearless. Adrenalin is technically described as "an astringent principle of the suprarenal gland used as a hemostatic and a heart and vasomotor stimulant." The extract is usually taken from the adrenal or suprarenal glands of the sheep, most potent of the ductless glands.

Adrenalin has another potent quality discovered by Dr. Charles E. de M. Sejour, of Philadelphia. The most important substance in the blood corpuscles is known as hemoglobin, which changes from blue to red as the corpuscles are laden alternately with carbon dioxide or with oxygen. Lungs with oxygen, the hemoglobin is called oxy-hemoglobin. Adrenalin supplies the substance which enables hemoglobin to be converted into oxy-hemoglobin in the lungs. It is life-giving in this respect.

The Isaacson twins were born before their time. They were very tiny, but the girl breathed without assistance. After a gasp or two, respiration stopped in the little boy. His heart apparently ceased to beat. In the ordinary course of events he would be pronounced dead. But Dr. Mininberg took his hypodermic syringe, put a few milligrams of the fluid in the needle, stabbed the point through the infant's chest wall and between two ribs, where he injected the fluid into the surrounding muscles. It was a bold stroke, but it worked.

FROM NEW YORK TO BUENOS AIRES BY RAIL (Scientific American)

The time is approaching, and will come sooner than most people expect, when it will be possible to travel in comfort by rail from New York, Chicago or San Francisco to Brazil, Santiago or Buenos Aires, by the Pan-American Railroad. This great North-South line is a stupendous project. It cannot be stated just when the idea originated, or where. Thirty years ago or more it formed the subject of frequent editorial comment and descriptive articles in the technical press, and particularly in those devoted to railroad construction. We have not heard very much about it of late years; but the work has gone forward intermittently and more rapidly than is generally understood.

The scheme in its entirety involves large figures and heavy costs, the total length of the line being 10,116 miles, which is not so very far short of the combined length of the three shortest of our transcontinental systems. It should be understood that the enterprise does not, and never did, contemplate the building of an entirely new system of that length; for much of the route is made up of already existing stretches of national railroads. Taking New York as a starting point, the line runs to the Mexican frontier, and from thence through Mexico, Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Panama, Colombia, Ecuador, Peru, Bolivia and Argentina, to Buenos Aires. Even today it is possible to travel by railroad from New York to the frontier of Guatemala; but from Guatemala to the Canal Zone over half the line has yet to be built. The longest stretch of uncompleted line is between Peru and Bolivia, where, out of a total of 3,862 miles, only 542 miles has been completed. Also there is a stretch of 127 miles in Bolivia on which work has recently been commenced. The line from Bolivia to Buenos Aires, a distance of 1,060 miles, has been completed. To date 6,500 miles out of a total of 10,116 miles have been built. Increased prosperity, and the inflow of capital to South America, have given new stimulus to the project, and in the opinion of the Pan-American Union this great scheme is at last within measurable distance of completion.
