Bright Outlook in The Business World

The successful manner in which Canada has been able to combat the depressing business conditions which have so keenly affected the United States has been instrumental in attracting wide attention to the Dominion.

The business outlook in Canada at the present time is of the most encouraging nature. Spring orders for merchandise are coming in from all over the Dominion, and while these are limited as to the quantity of delivery, the sales are being made on a cash basis.

Independent View of Intercolonial

Something of the worth of the Intercolonial Railway to the Dominion was made clear in a recent article in the Toronto News. The News, it will be remembered, is an independent journal which in its independence leans somewhat toward the Conservatives.

Table with 2 columns: Item, Amount. Total: $6,248,311. Expenditure: $1,111,888. Maintenance of way and structures: $1,180,521.

Statistics compiled from the report of accidents in New England and the Maritime Provinces from advices sent to the newspapers, show that 48 persons were drowned in 42 accidents, but this record is not complete as many mishaps of this nature occur in the thinly settled sections of northern New England and beyond which are never heard of outside the locality in which they occur.

Table with 2 columns: Year, Freight Miles. 1906: 3,149,173. 1907: 3,036,013. 1908: 3,149,173.

There was also a decrease in freight car miles, loaded and empty. Meanwhile, however, the number of tons of freight, and one mile increased. Thus seven per cent. more freight was carried by means of 31-2 per cent. fewer cars.

It may be noted that Mr. Graham put forward a new line of defence against the charge that the management of the Intercolonial is dominated by politics. The total number of employees is 8,291. Of these, 63.3 per cent.—say 5,350—are members of unions, with hard and fast agreements as to wages, promotions, etc.

Bill To Restrict Evils Of Divorce

Ottawa, March 24.—Senator Cloran introduced in the senate a bill entitled an act to restrict the evils of divorce. The bill provides that the offending party to a marriage contract shall have no right to remarry in Canada after obtaining a divorce from the Canadian parliament, and further, that if such party remarry outside the Dominion such remarriage shall be considered invalid and illegal and the remarried person covered that he had by mistake used a deadly drug in compounding the mixture. The druggist, thoroughly fright-

More Than Fifty Ice Drownings

Boston, Mar. 28.—More than half a hundred lives were lost through drowning through the ice in the waters of New England and the eastern provinces of Canada during the winter season just closed which is believed to have been a record one for the number of deaths met in this manner.

Statistics compiled from the report of accidents in New England and the Maritime Provinces from advices sent to the newspapers, show that 48 persons were drowned in 42 accidents, but this record is not complete as many mishaps of this nature occur in the thinly settled sections of northern New England and beyond which are never heard of outside the locality in which they occur.

Most of those who met their death through the ice did so while skating and probably two-thirds of the whole number were children, many of whom were under ten years of age.

Man Barely Escapes Marrying Daughter

Geneva, March 26.—A curious and romantic story is reported from the town of Appenzell. In 1887 a Swiss named Joseph Muller deserted his wife and child, a little girl named Anna, about six months old at Lucerne, and fled to Mexico.

Mrs. Muller died soon after, and Anna was adopted by a prosperous butcher of Lucerne, who gave the girl a good education. Eighteen months ago the butcher sold out his business and bought a large hotel at Appenzell, Anna now a handsome, intelligent girl managing the establishment. Last May, Joseph Muller, Anna's father, who had made a large fortune in America, arrived at the hotel, but as Anna had taken the name of her foster parents, he was not aware of the relationship.

Telegram Saves Him From Taking Poison

Utica, N. Y., March 28.—A fatality was narrowly averted last night when William Brady, a passenger travelling over New York Central from Montreal to New York city, was stopped barely in time from taking a poison sold him through mistake by a Montreal druggist. Brady has the telegram to thank for escaping death.

Stole Jewelry Worth $165,000

San Francisco, Calif., March 26.—The man arrested here yesterday by detectives on the strength of a photograph of Edward Burke, a New York jewelry buyer, wanted for theft of $165,000 worth of pearls and diamonds, is J. R. Bosc, and for the first year he has been in Nevada, where he was supposed to be a wealthy mine owner. He became interested in a mine in connection with J. H. Seaman of Reno and Goldfield, and visited this city frequently in company with Seaman.

Changes Likely in The Shipping Act

Important amendments to the Canada Shipping Act are expected to be made at the session of parliament. Among other changes it is expected that there will be a change in the law relating to certificates of masters and mates. At present all vessels of from one hundred to two hundred tons must have a master with certificate, and those above two hundred tons both master and mate with certificates.

A Bad Bargain.

(From The Christian Advocate.) A story is told of the famous Richard Brinsley Sheridan, that one day when coming back from shooting, with an empty bag, and seeing a number of ducks in a pond, while near by a man was leaning on a fence watching them, Sheridan asked: "What will you take for a shot at the ducks?"

Never Had A Bank Notice.

The News editor met a friend of his on the street the other day intently studying a letter from the Post Office. He had a familiar look to us of a bank notice and we intimated to him that he would have to shortly pay up. "There is a mistake he replied, 'I never gave or took a note in my life, it must be for some other man. We nearly fainted. To think that he had a man in Amherst that a bank notice was an utter stranger to and who was never called up about three o'clock to be notified that it was 'balance day' was beyond our comprehension. He ought to see the one hundred mark without any trouble.—Amherst News.

Just Pudge

He shuffled along with the other 50 or 60 boys as they briskly pursued their way along the sidewalk toward the street in which the municipal baths are situated. Once a week the class, with the exception of a few lofty ones, whose mother considered them too clean to need a bath, or too respectable to bathe with the other boys, tramped along in fours to their weekly wash and swim. As they marched some of their mothers came to the doors to call to their lads as they went by.

Others screamed epithets at me for allowing the boys to wake the baby with their tramping. Women hanging their washing out on the lines strung across the narrow streets and alleys exhorted me to "wash 'em clean" or else drown 'em. Whenever we stopped the traffic in crossing a road the luddymen or electric-car drivers would pass their pungent opinions frankly of my ragged regimen. I must admit that he had cause of comment.

As the boys marched along, despite my vigilance, they gradually shed some of their clothing, in order to facilitate the undressing inside the baths.

Waistcoats were removed, scarves stuffed into pockets, clogs unfastened and boots unlaced, until the appearance of my dupes when they lined up outside the baths was at once curious and distressing.

But the most interesting and yet amusing sight was presented by the shuffler, Pudge? A man's morning coat, the skirts of which brushed the ground, was wrapped round his little body and fastened with a safety-pin. Viewed from behind he presented the alarming appearance of a coat with a head perched upon it, moving along with no sign of legs anywhere. Old trashers, several sizes too large for him, covered his stockingsless feet, but, heedless of all these discomforts, he kept pece with the other lads, replying merrily to the scoffs of passers-by.

He was going to his beloved baths; what cared he? As he shuffled along one boot came off, but not deigning to waste valuable time by putting it on again, he carried it along in his hand and cheerfully limped the remaining distance. He always shuffled, but he could shuffle quickly. Had he lifted his feet up his boots might have fallen off.

In his eagerness to get to the baths he always jammed himself in the turnstile, but as soon as I had extricated him he would fly to the nearest available dressing-box, and by simply unfastening the safety-pin and slipping his feet through the tops of his boots without unlacing the latter, his boot would drop off him—an old waistcoat did duty as a shirt—and he would skip off to the nearest wash-tub.

Once out of his clothes he was a pleasing picture. Though small for his age, he was chubby and round, with short, sturdy legs and healthy skin, soon glowing through the warm water.

The din created by the boys in the baths was always deafening. They raced to the tubs, screamed at the top of their voices to each other applying for soap, scrambled in no gentle manner for the best places—so or more wild, naked lads, apparently trying to make as much noise as possible, and bringing sober bathers from the wash baths above to stand on the balcony and smile at the happy crowd of scholars reveling for a time in the relaxation of the stricter discipline of school.

I always stood at the entrance to the tub-room to see that every boy was well washed before he entered the swimming bath. When it came to Pudge's turn he would invariably ask me to turn on the cold shower to the full.

Then he would lift up his chest, stand with feet firmly braced as the cooling water drove down upon him, and show me how long he would endure the breath-grasping shower. When I had told him the number of seconds he had lasted, his eyes would sparkle and his wide grin would reveal his beautiful teeth, which were kept in splendid condition by crusts which constituted a large portion of his daily bread. Once in the plunge bath he was like a lad possessed. He would fall in, roll in and dive off the board at the deep end, as if he were some wild creature of the woods and streams. Often he would have me to time him as he swam a length of the bath. I kept a record of these timings for him in a little dirty pocket book he had. The efforts he would make to break his own record, and the disgust he would evince as well as the thumps he would bestow when some blundering bather got in his way as he trudged along, would divert me from the dullness occasioned by a headache, which the shouting and yelling of the lads never failed to bring on.

The task of looking after the bathers was divided between the teacher and the attendant, but so lads let loose and wild for a quarter of an hour in a swimming bath, require a deal of watching. Every now and then some of the more luxuriously inclined would steal away from the plunge path and unostentatiously work their way round to the wash-tubs, where they would lie and wallow in the warm water. I had left my station at the deep end of the bath to go to the tubs to look for these shirkers. I found one, his color a very deep red.

I ordered him under the shower, and while he was cooling I heard a cry as of fear take the place of the laughing and shouting. I had heard that cry once before, and knew its purport—lads in a panic. When in this state they are worse than sheep. All spoken advice and commands fall then on unlistening ears. They are unreasonable beings, distraught. Making my way as best I could among the lads, some of whom were dancing in terror on the bath side, I hurried to the deep end. There, through the water I beheld Pudge fighting like a demon with a boy much bigger than himself at the bottom of the bath. Anticipating me, the bath attendant dived in and brought the pair of boys to the steps.

So tight was Pudge's grip that we had to shake him to make him release the boy, who was blue and apparently lifeless. The frightened lads crowded round while the attendant and the chief of the bath used their efforts on the unconscious boy. After working for about 20 minutes they succeeded in restoring him.

Meanwhile, I had shepherded the lads into their boxes and hurried them till they were dressed and outside the building.

Already—such is tale-bearing amongst lads—the news had been carried to the restored boy's home. A distraught mother rushed in just when we had dressed the lad, and pouring out maledictions on me and all concerned, took him away.

On inquiry we found that the big boy, who could not swim, had been racing round the side of the bath and had slipped and fallen in. Pudge, after seeing him go under for the third time, had concluded that he was drowning, and had plunged in after him. The thumping he had bestowed on the drowning boy was his application of a few remarks which I had once made about the rescue of drowning persons.

On the day that the big boy came back to school, apparently none the worse for his accident, the chief made a speech to the assembled school, eulogizing Pudge's efforts, and calling for three cheers in honor of his pluck and presence of mind. A subscription containing some farthings and many halfpence was raised and added to by the staff. There was enough to buy some new clothes and boots for Pudge, so that afterward he appeared as a normal boy.

But on the same day on which the chief had made his speech I came across the rescued one pummeling his rescuer as a return for the treatment he had received in the bath. Such is the way of boys.—Manchester Guardian.

Bryan Talks to Young Men

"I have prepared this address for one purpose and for one purpose only; it was to reach the young men and to shame them out of the conceit that it is smart to be skeptical."

Thus did the Hon. William Jennings Bryan preface his eloquently impressive address "The Prince of Peace," which he delivered before the students and faculty of Toronto University. The speaking of the Convocation Hall was taken to its limit. There were many people who could not gain entrance and standing on a chair in the doorway Mr. Bryan said in a minute and a half, to use his own words, what he intended to say in an hour and a half inside. Many business and professional men mingled with the students, and when Mr. Bryan entered the hall he was greeted with an ovation which only a body of students know how to tender. There were voices which hailed him as the coming President, and prior to his introduction by President Falconer, the secretary of Varsity Y. M. C. A., Rex Mr. McKay, went so far as to prophesy that Mr. Bryan would be the next President of the United States.

"OPINION DEFINED."
"I know that a man's opinion of what's to be is half wish and half environment, so I can appreciate the wish that furnished at least one half of the motive," said Mr. Bryan in acknowledgement of the kindly expression.

"You possibly have known me through my connection with politics and I am still interested in the science of government, but I am more interested in religion."

"I commenced speaking in the church six years before I began to speak on the stump and I shall be in the church long after I am out of politics."

Government touches on a part of life. Government touches that part of existence which we spend on earth; religion touches the infinite circle of which our present life is a small part.

"If I were to speak on a political theme in my own country I would have to get a majority to agree with me before I could carry any ideas into practice, but when I speak upon a religious theme, no matter where I speak, if I can touch one human heart for good, I have not spoken in vain, no matter what the majority may be against me."

NOT INTELLIGENT TO SCOFF

"There are some who think it a sign of larger intelligence to scoff at all creeds and refuse to go to church. I think there is something offensive in the word liberal as it is sometimes applied to those who think themselves broader than the Christian."

"Tolstoi is right that everyone who has experienced a religious sentiment must know that it doesn't rest upon a superstitious fear of the unseen forces of nature, but that it does rest on man's consciousness of his finiteness amid an infinite universe."

"In this busy life we lead we haven't time to sit down and calculate how much good we do some person. Many a man spends time in figuring, which he out to spend in acting; and in the end he doesn't do as much good as would pay for a copy of the book he figures in."

"The idea that it pays to be good to others is the Confucius idea. When asked what word covered all the relations of life, Confucius replied, Is not reciprocity such a word?"

MEASURE OF SERVICE

"Christ bids us measure our services not by the service that has been rendered, that might be rendered, or that can be rendered, but by the need of those unto whom we minister."

"The man who is only trying to be good when he thinks people are watching him, usually takes a vacation when he thinks they're not looking."

"It is when at college that a man feels stronger than ever afterwards and thinks he knows more than he ever does know. It is the time when he thinks his parents are little old fogies, and that he can't afford to be bound by the rules that govern them."

"When studying theories of creation I finally went back to Genesis, and took my stand on the proposition that God created heaven and earth, for I prefer to assume that there was a designer back of the design and a creator back of creation."

OUR ANCESTORS

"I don't claim that man is descended from the lower animals. If any man can find any pleasure or pride in tracing his ancestry back to the monkey I would not rob him of the satisfaction that he gets out of it. He will certainly not connect me with his family tree without more evidence."

"While man has a physical courage which he shares with the brute, he has a moral courage which he shares with God alone."

"It is as easy for me to assume and believe that God created man as he is to believe that millions of years ago He created the germ of life and endowed it with power which developed into all that we see."

"I don't want to put God so far from me as to lose the consciousness of His presence in my daily life."

THE LAW OF LOVE

"History shows that the nations that have made the greatest progress are the nations that have substituted that law of love and hatred."

"I think fine difficulty comes from this. They don't like to admit the possibility of the miracle. He who can make the world can do anything He wants to do with it."

"No one can deny that God can create a miracle without denying that God is God."

"If my puny arm can suspend the universal law of gravitation, I shall not set the limit of the power of the Almighty arm."

"If we will but live up to the things we do understand, we will be kept so busy doing good we won't have time to think about things we don't understand."

"If a man refused to eat anything until he understood the mystery of vegetable growth, he would starve, but mysteries don't bother us in the dining room; it is only in the church, until you understand a watermelon and its growth, don't be too sure that you know what God would do and how He would do it."

CONCLUSIVE PROOF

"The most conclusive proof that man was made in the image of his Creator is to be found in the fact that all through history men have been willing to die that blessings denied to them might be handed down to their children and their children's children.

"I have spent no time on theology. I joined the church when I was fourteen, and I was too young to know anything about theology. My father was a Baptist, and when I was born my mother was a Methodist. When I grew up I joined the Cumberland Presbyterian Church."

I don't care anything about theology. I think I have grasped the fundamental principles of the Christian religion and the principles of the different churches don't bother me.

LOVE THY NEIGHBOR

"Love is the greatest thing in the world, and when Christ built the Christian religion upon that, He built His house upon a rock."

Some one has said that humility is so difficult to cultivate that one soon becomes humbly in the attempt, and grows proud in his humility.

The great majority of those striving to get money hope to buy peace; but have failed, for they could never get sufficient. Those who have been successful in finance will tell the same story. They have been kept busy saving their money from others, and there has been no peace."

"You can answer a sermon, but no one has yet lived who can answer a Christian life; it is the unanswerable proof of the Christian religion."

"The most far-reaching platform given by the Prince of Peace is, 'Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.'—Toronto News.

Mr. Hazen's Duty

"The immediate abolition of the office of Solicitor General, having in view the reduction of salaried members of the executive and the amalgamation of offices at present existing."

"The reduction of the number of members in the House of Assembly to thirty eight and the division of the province in thirty-eight electoral divisions to be as nearly as possible equal in population, having regard to other interests; lines to be preserved as far as may be and the divisions into ridings to be made by an independent commission consisting of three judges of the Supreme Court."

"The reduction of at least one-half of the amount allowed by the Attorney General for settling succession duties, a substantial reduction in the cost of public printing, a reduction in the travelling expenses of members of the executive, a reduction in the controllable expenditure of the province and such changes in the legislative and departmental machinery of the province as will lead to a substantial reduction in the cost thereof."

The foregoing are extracts from a series of resolutions moved in the legislature by Mr. J. D. Hazen, as leader of the opposition, as "reforms desirable in the public interests. We heartily commend them to Mr. Hazen for present consideration."

When he introduced those resolutions as the product of prolonged and deep thought for New Brunswick's welfare, the government of the day indifferent to the public interests, coldly turned them down, to his intense indignation and dismay. Now Mr. Hazen himself is, or soon will be, the head of the government and in a position to put into effect the reforms he urged upon his predecessors five years ago.

If there was need for those reforms in 1903 there is even more need today. We have Mr. Hazen's very recent and very emphatic word for it that the province is in a bad way financially, that its expenditure is increasing out of all proportion to its revenue, that its debt is a burden threatening bankruptcy and that every possible economy must be practiced. Surely he will not ignore this opportunity to save immediately some thousands of dollars of absolutely unnecessary expenditure. New Brunswick does not need six paid ministers and forty-six members, or one for 8,000 of population. Nova Scotia we have, gets along with three ministers and a member for each 12,000 people. Ontario and Quebec elect only one member for each 20,000.

Naturally Mr. Hazen will find it harder to execute than to suggest reforms. He will rob his own pocket if he reduces the Attorney General's fees; but he will save money for the public. He will undoubtedly have trouble with Mr. McLeod and Mr. Grimmer if he abolishes the Solicitor Generalship; but he will have the approval of the public and of his conscience. He may create some dissension in the process of wiping eight legislators off the slate; but this need not distress him. Will he not be doing right?

The people have given you much, Mr. Hazen! And from you they expect much. First of all they require plain dealing and honesty—and honesty and plain dealing require the fulfillment of these your admirable promises!

A Presidential Compliment

The late President McKinley was one of the most amiable men in the world and could be equally gallant. On one occasion a very sweet and attractive woman said to him:

"Mr. President, I do wish my husband had such a temper as yours."

"Thank you," he responded, bowing; "but, really, madam, you ask too much. She didn't quite catch the drift of his reply and looked it."

"You see," he went on, "two such tempers in the same family would be a prodigality of sweets."

The explanation made the drift quite apparent, even if the President hadn't laughed at her, and her face reddened like a girl's.—"Puck."

A New Fashion in Wills.

It is quite time that a new fashion in wills should appear. The old style has been to make wills as full of holes as a sieve for the lawyers to fight about. It now seems to be the growing practice in New York to have one's will subjected to expert antemortem construction and criticism, says the Pittsburg "Gazette-Times." The idea is for the testator to assume that he is dead, and to discover, by an independent expert examination during his life, what is likely to happen to his will after his death.

Daniel S. Remsen, of the New York bar, author of "Remsen on the Preparation and Contest of Wills, recently he said: The plan of submitting wills to a rigid criticism, after they have been made and before the testator's death, is new in the sense of its becoming popular. It is also justified by results. In a majority of cases, such examinations reveal one or more weak spots, and frequently grave errors are found in wills drawn by lawyers of high standing. A little caution on the part of Mr. Tilden would have prevented his fiasco. As a result of his movement, I predict that the rising generation will be spared much litigation and many fortunes will be saved from the blight of family discord.

Jerome K. Jerome, author of "Three Men in a Boat, as well as many later books, plays etc., none of which are quite so uproariously funny as his first famous book, has, according to a story that is going the rounds, a curious fondness for practical jokes, and perhaps in his respect at least a rather peculiar sense of humor. According to the story, Mr. Jerome once wanted a file, so he entered a hardware shop and nodded politely to the youth behind the counter. "Have you got," he said, the last edition of Tennyson's poems?" "No sir," said the clerk. "This is a hardware shop."

"This is a hardware shop," he said. "Oh, said Mr. Jerome, 'I don't care about the binding. Cloth will do well as anything else.'" "But we don't sell books here," the clerk shouted. "This is a hardware shop." "Oh, wrap it up in anything." The clerk, with an oath, came all the way round the counter and put his lips to Mr. Jerome's ear. "Hardware shop! No books! Hardware he shrieked."

About Kissing Mother

A father talking to his capless daughter, said: "I want to speak to you of your mother. It may be that you noticed a careworn look upon her face. Of course it has not been brought there by any act of yours; still it is your duty to chase it away. I want you to get up tomorrow morning and get breakfast. When your mother comes and begins to express her surprise, go right up to her and kiss her on the mouth. You can't imagine how it will brighten her dear face. Besides, you owe her a kiss or two. A long while ago, when you were a little girl, she kissed you. You were not as attractive then as you are now. Through years of childish sunshine and shadows she was always ready to cure, by the magic of a mother's kiss, the little, dirty chubby hands whenever they were injured with those first skirmishes with the rough old world."

Encouraging

Over in the Salmon River Meadows Country, in Idaho, ranged a wild and woolly bunch of long-haired cowpunchers, whose knowledge of the world was confined mainly to trips after cattle into surrounding counties, says "Lippincott's." Into this reckless but verdant community there came the smooth-tongued representative of a Wild West Show, who hired several riders at a high salary to do a hair-raising act, the chief feature being that they should appear to be thrown from their horses and dragged by the foot. After they had practised in a corral for awhile, one of them loosened himself, and, rising from the dirt, disheveled and dazed, inquired: "Say, mister, ain't this rather dangerous? We might get killed."

"That's all right," chirped the show's representative cheerfully. Your salary will go on just the same."

The Dog's Cold Nose

When Noah, perceiving 'twas time to embark, Desired the Creatures to enter the Ark, The Dog, with a friendliness truly sublime, Assisted in herding them. Two at a time He drove in the Elephants, Zebras and Gnus Until they were packed like a boxful of screws-- The Cat in the cupboard, the Mouse on the shelf, The Bug in the crack; then he backed in himself. But such was the lack of available space He couldn't tuck all of him into the place; And so, though the rivers rushed over the plain, And down from the heavens fell blankets of rain, He stood with his muzzle thrust out through the door The whole forty days of that terrible pour! Because of such drenching, the Sages unfold, The nose of a healthy Dog always is cold.

A Rhyming Grammar

The following grammar rhyme is by no means new, but contains so much in a nutshell, as it were, that it may be found useful to many of our readers: Three little words you often see Are articles, a, an and the. A noun's the name of anything, As school, or garden, hoop or swing. Adjectives tell the kind of noun, As great, small, pretty, white or brown. Instead of nouns the pronouns stand-- His head, her face, your arm, my hand. Verbs tell something to be done-- To read, count, laugh, sing, jump, run. How things are done the adverbs tell, As slowly, quickly, ill or well. Conjunctions join the words together, As men and women, wind or weather. The preposition stands before The noun, as in or through the door. The interjection shows surprise, As, Oh, how pretty! Ah, how wise! The exclamation called the parts of speech Which reading, writing, speaking teach.

A Chip from the old Block

Brown always was particular to appear to be in a better position than he really was; it was a great failing he had. On one occasion he took his eldest son with him for a walk, and permitted him to play with some other boys while he read his paper. Going home later, Brown inquired: "Well, what did you talk about to those boys in the park?" "Oh," replied the lad. "I told them you were our footman! I did it to keep up appearances, you know."

Of Her Own Accord

The day the doctor called to treat little Kitty for a slight ailment, it was only by the most persistent persuasion that he succeeded in getting the child to show him her tongue, says "Lippincott's." A few days subsequent to this the child said to her mother: "Ma, the doctor don't have to tease me to obey him any more!" "Why not?" "Cause every time I see him going by the house now I stick out my tongue at him!"

TOWN AFFAIRS

It will soon be time for the selection of men who shall sit at the head of Town affairs. We have heard no names mentioned for vacancies. We appeal to our citizens to nominate good sound business men to serve us during the coming year. If our present Mayor is willing to serve us for another year, we would count it to our advantage to have him do so. He has shown himself to be the right man in the right place. If he is unwilling to serve another term then, who next? The business of the Town is the business of each and every citizen. Then let each ask the question, who next?

A good test of whether a man is in your opinion a proper person for Mayor or for Councillor, is for us to ask ourselves the question whether or not he is such a person as we would employ as our agent to do business for us. If I had business amounting to say even one hundred dollars to be negotiated and put through, would I employ as my agent to carry out the trust?

Put the man's name in this blank space and let us ask ourselves the question. If we can answer yes, without any reservation he may be a good man to put in the Council, but if we have any hesitation in saying yes, if he lacks ability, education, integrity or other qualifications necessary, then let us look for another.

The practice of taking anybody that may be nominated and putting him at the head of our affairs, is not a wise one. The best men are none too good for the position.

The question is not one of collecting taxes and paying the bills mainly, but there is a higher question of the improvement of the town generally. The improvement includes not only the mere town business, but the general good and policy which will add to the wealth, comfort and beauty of the whole town.

A question that the incoming council will have to grapple with is that of a water supply system. This has already been put off too long, and now demands the first place.

It is time a united effort was made for the general betterment of our business interests. Let us determine what we want and then get it. If we want more manufacturers, let us get after them. If we want revival in ship building let us work for it. If we want better railway or shipping accommodations, let us make a general move in that direction. Confidence can never be created by doing nothing. Selfishness has ruined many a community. The best men in St. George are needed at this present time to be at the head of affairs and to form plans which can be carried out to place this town in the position which God and nature intended it should occupy.

A SERIOUS PROBLEM

A visit to the Immigration building in St. John at this time presents to a serious minded Canadian a spectacle at once fascinating and alarming. We find here Western Canada in miniature. As our steamships bring these people of so many different nationalities to this centre, our trains take them up and they are distributed throughout the provinces. It is estimated that there are not less than forty nationalities represented in this polyglot citizenship coming into our Canadian life, and which are to make up our future nationality. It is further estimated that every hundredth man in the West is an Italian and every twelfth a Gallican. These considerations will lead every serious minded Canadian to ask himself the question, what of the future? the future in politics, in public morals, in respect for law, in the exercise of religion? Well may the public-minded, patriotic Canadian citizen put such question to himself and to others. As at Babel the confusion of tongues frustrated the building of the tower, so is there cause that we take heed, lest a confusion of tongues and sentiments and ideals delude our nation from her best nationality. There is need that every available agency shall be drafted into the service of moulding this imported life into harmony with our own best and highest ideals, a strong, sturdy Christian manhood.

The Vancouver riots are to be lamented. Mob law is bad law. But these troubles that have already cost the Dominion considerable, may have brought to our notice a fact which may possibly have been overlooked, viz: Japanese life will not assimilate with our own. They are a people who keep to themselves and if allowed to enter in great numbers may in time form a disturbing element, because of this fact.

Yes the whole problem is a serious one and will tax the wisdom of our wisest in their attempt to solve it. The words of E. N. Lewis M. P. are suggestive as well as startling.

"We are now busy laying the foundations of the last great nation, and the better they are the better the superstructure will be. We are building for ourselves and for our children; let us be careful rather than sorry. We have a near example to the south of us. The negro question is supposed to be the vital trouble in store for the United States, but she is now nursing a greater. In 1906, 1,100,000 immigrants, of whom 900,000 came from Russia and southern Europe, entered the United States. Seven hundred and fifty-two thousand stayed in the eastern cities. In 1903 the New York inspector said 200,000 undesirable entered. I was informed by a physician of a large United States city that he had treated children of fifteen who were born in the United States and could not speak a word of English. This physician further stated that he did not believe there would be a real American living in Chicago in twenty years.

OUR DUTY AS CITIZENS

Greetings would not presume to dictate to any of the electors of St. George how they should vote at our Municipal elections. In a town like ours, with no great influx of strangers, our people are all intelligent enough to know the requirements and understand the interests of the town. We hope they are all equally interested. No man or woman is a good citizen who does not take a deep interest in all matters which pertain to the welfare of his town. St. George is, and will be, just what its citizens wish to make it. The world outside of us cannot know us individually, but it forms its opinion of our town, in a large measure, by the wisdom and justice, or otherwise, of the way we administer town affairs.

The ballot is a privilege we should not trifle with. It is the unfailing measure of our conscience and our patriotism, and we will silently estimate ourselves, as will the public, by the way we use it. Without intimating a choice, we urge a conscientious discharge of a sacred duty, as we go to the poll, on the part of every elector.

Tickling or dry Coughs will quickly loosen when using Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. And it is so thoroughly harmless that Dr. Shoop tells mothers to use nothing else, even for young babies. Good, robust health is a great enemy of worry. A good digestion, a clear conscience, and sound sleep kills a lot of worry, which is but one phase of fear, and always thrives best in abnormal conditions. It cannot get much of a hold on a man with a superb physique, a man who lives a clean, sane life. It thrives on the weak—those of low vitality. It is not a very difficult thing to make worry impossible. Many people make it impossible for most kinds of disease to get a hold on them because they have such strong disease-resisting force. Disease always attacks us at our weak point. The great desideratum is to keep one's physical, mental, and moral standards so high that disease germs, the worry germ, the anxious germ cannot gain a footing in our brain. Our resisting power ought to be so great that it would be impossible for our enemies to gain an entrance into the brain or body. To keep ourselves perfectly free from our worry enemies, everything we do must be done sanely. No matter how honest we may be or how hard we may try to get on, if we are not sane in our eating, in our exercise, in our thinking, in our sleeping and living generally, we have the door open to all sorts of trouble. There are a thousand enemies trying to find a door open by which they can gain entrance into our system and attack us at our vulnerable point.

They made record time to the King's highway.

Mr. J. C. Snyder, of the International Harvester Co. installed an engine in Greetings office last week. The work was thoroughly done, the engine working perfectly—on first trial running off twenty-five papers a minute. With this addition to our plant we are prepared to get orders out promptly and satisfactorily. With the improvements we are making from time to time we will soon have one of the best equipped offices in the country. We extend an invitation to everyone to come and see our presses running under power.

Saturday was a glad day at Barre for the strikers for the long looked for strike pay arrived one long line of waiting men were seen at both places where the paying off was done. The Italians were paid off at Miles Block and the English speaking at the Scampini Block.

It is estimated that between 1850 and 2000 men received strike pay Saturday. This morning one of the men said that they could not tell just what their pay roll would amount to but that it came some where between $11,000 and $12,000 dollars. It was also said that there were a large number that could not receive strike pay some placed the number at 700 and others said that there might possibly be that number. One of the head men of the Barre cutters union said that it would be some days before they could tell just how much they had paid out and how many were not entitled to draw strike pay. Of these three thousand cutters in Barre and only 2000 are getting strike pay, the number who are "ineligible" would not be hard to figure.—Montpelier Argus.

NERVOUS

Do You Brood?
Have Morbid Fears?
Toss in Your Sleep?
Your Physical Condition is Below Par and Must Be Built Up. Try Ferro-zine.

All the vital activities of the body are quickened into new vigor by Ferrozine, which contains all the constituents necessary to make nerve strength.
Its first action is on digestion. It stimulates the secretion of gastric juice, ensures perfect digestion and prepares the food so as to be easily assimilated.
Thus everything you eat is converted into nourishment that enriches the blood and lends new strength to the nerves.
By Ferrozine the mind is relieved of those brooding tendencies, of morbid unnatural fears, of unwholesome concentrated attention on things that should be done.

Won't you try Ferrozine?
Won't you give it a chance to win you back to health; it will do it, just as it did for Mrs. Creighton Zinck of Palm St. Lunenburg, N. S., who says: "I want to give my experience with Ferro-zine because I believe it will be of assistance to thousands of women who need it badly. I was very thin, run down in feeb and lacked color. My nerves were in a dreadful state. If anything fell I would jump and start. At night I would suddenly wake up, heart palpitating and all keyed up. Ferrozine went right to work. It restored my poise and balance gave me self-control, cured my nervousness. Ferrozine, increased my appetite and my weight came up so fast that I simply didn't need to use it any longer.
Eight boxes cured me."
Why don't you use Ferrozine also, it certainly will do you good in many ways —sold by all druggists in 50c. boxes.

Labor Trademark--Its Significance.

The union label--what does it mean? This is a question often asked, and it receives a variety of answers. In order, therefore to get it properly before the public it becomes necessary to make application of the principle involved in its use in other directions than from the standpoint of the union man.

Churches organize, adopt names and creeds of faith and refuse to tolerate any infringement upon their right to worship according to their standard of faith and practice. This the union label does for the union workmen.

Clubs and associations adopt insignia of recognition to prevent fraud and imposition. This is the mission of the union label.

Firms and corporations have distinguishing marks which they jealously guard and protect. So does the organized worker guard and protect the union label.

Authors and writers secure copyrights as a shield from plagiarism of the products of their brain and pen. The union workman uses the label as a shield for the product of their labor and brain.

Inventors secure letters patent to prevent infringement upon their rights. The union label serves the same purpose for organized labor.

The manufacturer places his trademark on the products of his shop or factory. The label performs the same service for the worker who brings forth these products.

It therefore seems plain that the same law which steps in and protects those whose interests lie in these various spheres of trade and commerce should step in and protect the worker in the use of his distinguishing mark.

But the label means even more than this. To the union man it means loyalty and fidelity, compact organization, brotherly love and consideration, fealty to organization, help in time of distress. To the public it means honest work well performed by skilled labor, the best of material fitly joined together by grown up men and women at living wages. It means and honest day's work for an honest day's pay.

"Self preservation is the first law of nature," and it is upon this idea that the workman has acted in organizing and protecting his organization with his trademark--the union label.

The thoughts have been on the positive side of the question involved. There is a negative side, however, which presents a dark and repulsive picture, which will be considered in a future issue of this department.

It suffices to say for the present if it is right to protect the employer it is equally right to protect the employe. By organized labor nothing more than this is asked. To organized labor nothing less will satisfy.--Exchange.

Old And New Friends.

Make new friends, but keep the old; Those are silver, these are gold. New-made friends, like new-made wine Age will mellow and refine.

Friendships that have stood the test Time and change, are surely best. Brow may wrinkle, hair turn gray, Friendship never owns decay; For 'mid old friends kind and true We once more our youth renew.

But, alas! old friends must die; New friends must their place supply; Then cherish friendship in your breast; New is good, but old is best. Make new friends, but keep the old; Those are silver, these are gold.

A Man's "Best Friend"

The best friend man has in the world may turn against him and become his enemy.

His son or daughter whom he has reared with loving care may prove ungrateful.

A man's reputation may be sacrificed in a moment of ill-considered action. The people who are prone to fall upon their knees to do us honor when success is with us may be the first to throw the stone of malice when failure settles its clouds upon our heads.

The one absolutely unselfish friend that a man can have in this selfish world, the one that never deserts him, the one that never proves ungrateful or treacherous, is his DOG.

A man's dog stands by him in prosperity and poverty, in death and in sickness. He will sleep on the cold ground where the wintry winds blow and the snow drives fiercely, if only he may be near his master's side. He will kiss the hand that has no foot to offer; he will lick the wounds and sores that come in encounter with the roughness of the world. He guards the sleep of his pauper master as if he were a prince. When all other friends desert he remains. When riches take wings and reputation falls to pieces, he is as constant in his love as the sun in his journeys through the heavens.

If fortune drives the master forth an outcast in the world, friendless and homeless, the faithful dog asks no higher privilege than that of accompanying him to guard against danger, to fight against his enemies. And when the last scene of all comes and death takes the master in his embrace, and his body is laid away in the cold ground, no matter if all other friends pursue their way, there by the graveside will the noble dog be found, his head between his paws, his eyes sad, but open in alert watchfulness, faithful and true even in death.

Do You Feel Used Up?

You're discouraged and played out--scarcely enough energy to think, and less to work on. The reason? You are run down, blood is thin, nerves are like Indian rubber, not like steel as they ought to be. Use Ferrozone and the cause rich nutritious blood and the body vigor Ferrozone makes, crowds out weakness of every kind. Use Ferrozone and you'll feel like a fighting king--full of energy--filled up with ambition--ever ready to work. Strengthening tonic so potent. Neglect not a day longer. All dealers sell Ferrozone in 50 ct. boxes.

Industrial Insurance In Germany.

It is sometimes asserted--in advance of proof--that accident, sickness, and old age insurance is a burden upon the capital, industry, and commerce of a nation. As Germany is the country which annually does more than other nations in this direction it seems unfair to mention the fact that the years of trial of her system of insurance have been precisely the years in which that nation has forged to the front rank in the world of manufacturers and commerce. The nation has grown rich and the workmen have improved their condition so that they are not anxious to emigrate as formerly. Wages have risen more rapidly than in any other country; the insurance premiums, so far as paid by the employers, are a clear addition to wages; in times of sickness, disability from accident or old age, the workman has a legal right to honorable maintenance and so the degradation of charity is avoided; the cost of accident insurance premiums makes it to the direct and manifest interest of employers to use all possible protection devices to prevent injuries and diseases; the administration of the sickness and invalid funds takes care to provide means of speedy and effective cure of invalids; the committees of administration being employers and workmen together--under conditions favorable to social conciliation; and in every direction the system seems to have promoted civilization and the common welfare. The defects in details are carefully studied by the leading men of the empire and will gradually be corrected; the methods will be unified and simplified; and in the near future the benefits will include larger pensions to widows and orphans and some kind of protection to the temporary unemployed.

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys surely point to weak kidney nerves. The kidneys, like the heart, and the lungs, are the great organs of the body, and their weakness, not in the organs themselves, but in the nerves that control and strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specially prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the kidneys alone is futile. It is a waste of time, and of money, as well as your back aches or is weak, if the urine is light, or is dark and strong, if you have symptoms of Bright's or other distressing or dangerous kidney disease, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative a month--Tablets or Liquid--and see what it can do for you. Druggists recommend and sell.

ment and the Canadian Pacific can judge are that 1908 will be the greatest year yet experienced for desirable immigration. The policy will be far more conservative, however, as regards the "undesirables." It will refuse the immigrants from the slums of Europe. Canada wants new citizens, but she wants men and women who will work; she wants producers and consumers. The policy will be much more conservative in future.

"The settlers from the Western States are among the most desirable that come to Canada, and there will be a great number of them this year, we believe. Last year there was a great influx from the prairie country, and this will perhaps repeat itself in 1908 with greater numbers from the middle West.

"These settlers are fine, industrious, intelligent people. They know how to farm and they almost always have capital. They are very fine people, the western American settlers, and Canada likes them."

During the afternoon, Mr. Whyte paid a brief visit to President Lucius Tuttle of the Boston & Maine. The two are old friends, having known one another when they were engaged in railroad work in Montreal years ago.

If you think you need a tonic, ask your doctor. If you think you need something for your blood, ask your doctor. If you think you would like to try Ayer's non-alcoholic Sarsaparilla, ask your doctor. Consult him often. Keep in close touch with him.

Ask your doctor to name some of the results of constipation. His long list will begin with sick headache, biliousness, dyspepsia, thin blood, bad skin. Then ask him if he would recommend your using Ayer's Pills.

CORRESPONDENCE

EDITOR GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

DEAR SIR:

To the end of fostering the movement now on foot towards the forming of a Golf Club in our town, will you kindly allow space in your valuable paper for a few observations in this connection.

What I will have to say must necessarily be general. Not only would the amount of space required forbid a minute description of the game, its rules and fine points but also such a description would prove quite uninteresting. It is not utterly meaningless to anyone not already acquainted, at least in some small measure, with this particular sport. While not by any means an expert Golfer myself, I have played the game sufficiently to become impressed with its many splendid features and believe it to be an ideal one for a town such as St. George. Mrs. Chas. H. Lee of St. John has very generously offered her beautiful farm "Mount Vernon" for the use of our prospective Club rent free for the first season. Most people in this vicinity have some knowledge of the natural summer attractions of this charming spot; but only a Golfer can appreciate how admirably suited it is for the game. I am convinced that at a comparatively small cost we might have in St. George one of the very finest Golf links in New Brunswick.

The game is not a strenuous one, requiring skill rather than strength as an essential of proficiency. The fact that it is played with enjoyment by young, middle-aged and those beyond the prime of life--by ladies as well as men, makes it a very sociable game. Business men who are occupied during the day find it a restful refreshing recreation for the evenings which during the summer months are long enough to permit of two or three hours play.

The initial cost of starting almost any game is of course considerable. But an expenditure of from $8 to $10 all that is necessary for each player during the first season; and it is possible to get along for somewhat less.

It is customary for the ladies to organize an auxiliary club, appointing the same officers in the same way as do the men.

Those acquainted with the game, here, are very few in number. But this number is steadily growing and the enthusiasm of many ladies and gentlemen already interested is very gratifying to the promoters and augurs well for the ultimate success of the club. It is quite impossible for the few who have the matter in hand to present it personally to all our citizens and it is desired that any lady or gentleman who is at all interested and would like to learn the game or at least give their support by becoming a member of the Club, will feel that they are cordially welcome to do so.

The course will be laid out within a few days, and play will begin just as soon as the weather conditions will permit.

Thanking you for the space I remain,
Yours very truly,
GOLFER

Ottawa, March 28.--Trouble with its workmen are not all of the ills of the Telegraph at this moment.

David Russell, of Montreal, has threatened John McKane, of Newcastle, with an injunction to be served to-day upon both the Telegraph and Times. Mr. Russell notified Mr. McKane of this yesterday by telegraph. The latter sent a defiant reply. Mr. Russell then advised Mr. McKane that his lawyers were leaving Montreal last night to take possession of the property, "as newspapers only can be bought from me for cash."

Mr. McKane replied that there were lawyers in St. John; that Mr. Russell must have forgotten that he (McKane) had purchased the only liquid asset. Mr. Russell had, the paper, and paid one hundred and eighty-two thousand dollars cash, plus twenty-three thousand dollars since, and twelve hundred dollars a month to keep them up since they were purchased.

An important incident of the trouble appears to be that the name of a prominent New Brunswick politician is on some notes, and Mr. Russell desires to have the name cut off them.

How To Build A Town

To show what might easily be done for St. George, we publish the following sketch of the town of Grand Mere, in the province of Quebec.

Grand Mere is one of the most flourishing little towns in the province of Quebec with a population of about 5,500 people, and an activity far greater than that of many towns of much larger size. This prosperity is due almost entirely to the operation of the big paper mill which is the center of the town's industry. It may at first sight seem incredible that one paper mill should be able to establish and build up such a community; but those who understand how many men are employed at a large paper mill, how much is spent in wages, and how much in general it costs to make a ton of paper, will not be astonished. The Laurentide Paper Company which operates the mill at Grand Mere employed last year during the summer months 1,075 men. During the winter it employs 975 men. Much of their work

Forest Reserved

Montreal, The important announcement was made by Hon. Sydney Flaher at the Dominion Forestry convention here today that the Dominion Government has decided to set aside the whole eastern slope of the whole Rocky Mountains forever as a forest reserve, extending clear from the boundary to the extreme northern limits of the country.

This vast region, he started, would be kept free from settlers, and held for forest growth, which would be cut from time to time under such strict regulations as would preserve it for all time as a forest resource for the west.

The announcement was received with hearty cheers by the delegates. The convention, which is held here for the first time in many years, had a most auspicious opening, the marked features being the introduction of the bi-lingual system, in an effort to interest the people of Quebec in forest conservation and the lively interest in the matter displayed by the Catholic clergy of the province.

When Lieut. Governor Sir Louis Jette formally opened the convention he was accompanied by Hon. Sydney Flaher, Archbishop Bruchesi, Bishop Racicot, Mgr. Lafame and Canon Dault of Laval all of whom took a very active part in the convention.
