 MONDAY EVENING, OCT. 12.

Persecution of the Independent Press.

The members of the Grit clique have inaugurated a systematic war on the newspapers opposed to the present Canadian regime. After having perfected the art of abusing public men, and succeeding by dint of the persistent repetition of false charges, in blackening the character of Canada's foremost statesman so effectively as to secure his overthrow, these people suddenly become solicitous for the restoration of the press within very confined limits, and begin a judicial war on the independent papers that expose their hypocrisies and rascalities. The Mail has been a thorn in the Grit flesh ever since its establishment, and has at least fifty times been the victim of their vindictive vengeance. One C. J. Whelan, who was appointed an Emigration Agent for Ontario, was charged by the London Charity Organization Society, a charitable society that employs detectives for exposing impostors, who fattens on contributions for the poor, with a long list of offences, and the charges were laid before the Chief Emigration Agent of the Dominion Government. This gentleman forwarded the document to the Ontario Government, and, after the lapse of three months, appeared in the guise of a detective, with their Toronto friends for keeping such a man in office. The Mail, as it was not only justified in doing, but as it was absolutely forced to do in order not to lose its character as a newspaper, published a series of articles exposing the character of the man whom the Reform Government of Ontario seemed to delight to honor. On this publication the suit that has ended by the imposition of a fine of $300 on the manager of the Mail Company was based. On the other side Mr. Whelan, with their looks steadfastly bent on the jury, the district judge, and the defendant was forced to say, having been deliberately picked by the prosecution, that he was not guilty of those whose names were called out by the clerk. And he is further noted, that to enable the prosecution to adopt this course the character of the trial had to be so manipulated that it was no longer a private prosecution; but a Government prosecution. It was no longer a private prosecution; but a Government prosecution. It was no longer a private prosecution; but a Government prosecution. It was no longer a private prosecution; but a Government prosecution.

It is said that the answer to Mr. Brylges' charges that deal with the certain quantity of coal shipped at certain stations is that a certain quantity of coal was charged by the bushel and credited by the children, and that Mr. Brylges' entirely overlooked this matter of non-payment. Mr. Carvell will, of course, answer these charges in a paper directed to the Minister of Public Works, and we may, in due time, look for garbled extracts from it in the twin Grit scandal organs of Toronto and Montreal.

Two of the Government organs seem anxious to know whether the Rev. I. E. Bill's expenses in Europe, paid by the Dominion Government, on the pretence of his being an emigration agent, as a reward for his having urged all good Baptists to vote for Mr. Burpee. Why don't they ask the Minister of Customs about it instead of proposing the amendment to their uninformed readers?

ment, appropriateness of epithet, and fitness of satire that was hardly to be found in his quality. Mr. Howe did his work under the very shadow of death, consumption having long since marked him out as its own. After every period of prostration he would renew his work in the same ebullient, bright and intelligent manner as before. His private letters made frequent mention, in a cheerful vein, of the certainty of the fate that soon awaited him, and, although consumption was not left to do its dread work, his end came no sooner than he had anticipated. Mr. Howe loved journalism, but had no strength for the daily drag of office work. We sent him to Ottawa two years ago, and have prized his letters, irregularly as they have come to us, far too highly to think of employing any one else to do the work. He loved his work and made his letters interesting for themselves, regardless of the news they furnished, never writing merely for the purpose of filling a certain space. He showed himself an artist in work by the very of some meritorious verses, which was fully up to the standard of what passes current as poetry, but his genius found its true expression in prose. Palmer Howe would have made his mark in literature if he had used the struggle of a weak constitution with a powerful disease—of an ambitious spirit with a sinking frame—is over, and he rests from his labors. The necessity for writing daily bread, the desire to win a certain fame, and the dread of crossing the path of the Unseen, are passed for him. Mr. Howe was about 30 years old, belonged to Miramichi, N. B., and wrote his first Legislative letters from Fredericton, for the Newcastle Advertiser. He has since, the letters attracting attention for their sparkling and literary merit.

Marriage of Mr. Edward Sears—The Disposal of his Property—Frothy Love The Sears Family. To-morrow a wedding that has excited some little comment takes place. It is that of Edward Sears, Esq., a Director of the Bank of New Brunswick, to the daughter of William Veinling, Esq. There would be nothing very strange about the wedding were it not for the fact that the groom has for nearly 70 years lived a life of single blessedness, while the bride is but little more than half his age. When the announcement of the marriage first began to be whispered round it was hardly believed, and as a general rule was received with an incredulous smile, as Mr. Sears was deemed past the marrying age. It was no less strange than true, however, and a stranger part of the story is yet to be told. The wise ones asserted that Mr. Sears would settle a large sum on his wife, and some from $20,000 to $100,000 were mentioned. This, however, is not the case, as the settlement now in the Registry Office proves. The groom has done a more unusual thing. By the settlement, duly signed, sealed and recorded, he has disposed of his entire personal property and real estate, said to amount to nearly $400,000, but not his wife. On the contrary, the entire amount is placed in the hands of trustees for the benefit of his nieces and nephews, of whom he has about a dozen. The mental effort required to give up all control of such a property must have been a great one, especially for Mr. Sears. It is said that J. J. Kay, Esq., his lawyer, advised him not to make such a disposal of his property, or, rather, for some time could hardly be convinced that the man was sane in his resolve. Fully convinced, at length, of the sanity of his client, the document was drawn up. It occupies about forty pages of legal cap, and is an absolute disposal of his property.

The document commences by setting forth that, owing to the love the donor bears his two brothers, Robert and John Sears, and their children, his nieces and nephews, he has determined to make over to them his property. For this purpose Robert Sears, John Sears, G. Edward Sears and W. Macara Sears are appointed Trustees of the estate, to administer it according to the conditions expressed in the bill of settlement. First, it provides for his own support during his lifetime. The Trustees must allow him, free of rent or taxes, the building at the corner of Germain and Princess streets where he now resides. They must also pay to him the sum of $6000 per annum during the period of his natural life, said amount to be paid quarterly—the first payment to be made in February, 1874.

The next section provides for certain annuities to Sarah Thomas, spinster, his niece, $200; to Anna Maria Blood, another niece, the same amount; to Charles H. Blood, of Norton, King's Co., $50, said annuities to be paid quarterly. The period of his natural life, and the income of his property. One-half the balance of the income is to be enjoyed by Edward and Robert Sears. If Robert dies before Edward the income is to be divided between the children of the two, until Edward's death. It is also provided that "if the said Edward Sears shall hereafter marry and have a child or children" said issue shall share with the children of John and Robert. The other half of income is to be for the sole use and benefit of John Sears during the life of Edward; and if John dies first it is to be divided as the other half. It is next provided that if the said Edward Sears shall die and leave a widow the lot of land in King street known as the "Sears Lot" shall be held in trust, and from income of which there shall be paid to the widow during her life such annuity, not exceeding $1000, as the said Edward Sears shall by deed or will appoint. [In this connection it may be stated that the marriage settlement fixes the amount at $1000.]

The document then transfers the entire real estate of the donor to the Trustees to be held for the benefit of the children of Robert, John and Edward Sears ("if he shall marry and have any"), each child, when the property is divided, to have an equal share. The Trustees are to secure to Ann Sears, and Mrs. Harriet Howard Humphreys, the only two female heirs, their share of the property for their sole use, and entirely free from any marital control. The Trustees are appointed attorneys with full powers to sell, lease or transfer any of the property.—The consent of the donor in writing being first obtained. They also have power to appoint successors, and each one is liable for such amounts only as are paid into his hands.

The deed transfers a number of mortgages, a quantity of stocks, and the following properties in this city: Lot No. 293, on the North side of King street, 40x100, and known as the "Sears Lot." Lots 553 and 554 in Princess street, 80x100, at present under lease to Robert Law and Joseph Miller.

Lot 1211, British street, 40x100, at present leased to James Nichols. Lot 616, at the corner of Princess and Germain streets, occupied by Edward Sears and other tenants.

The Lot known as the old Commercial Bank property in Prince William street, 50x200, under lease to the Corporation of St. John, and used for the Police Station. These are the properties owned by the donor in this city. The rest of his wealth is in bonds, mortgages and stocks. In the Bank of New Brunswick he is a large shareholder, and retains sufficient to qualify him to be a Director. A quantity of the property is in 5-20 bonds. These he divided amongst the different heirs. To Dr. Henry Sears, of New York, he gave $8,000, which he carries to his home to-morrow, accompanied by the newly-married couple.

The father of the three brothers was, Thatcher Sears, and came here with the Loyalists. The "Sears Lot," so called, in King street was drawn by him in the division of the land, he cleared it of the trees, and it has remained in the family ever since. A daughter of his was the first female child born in the City of St. John. She died in 1843. John and Edward have always lived in the city and carried on business. Robert, some years ago, went to New York and started a large publishing house, known as Robert Sears & Co. He issued a large number of compiled works, which had a very extensive sale. A complete set of the books were presented to the Queen, who was graciously pleased to acknowledge the same. This business, however, was not successful, and he failed. At present he is in business in Toronto.

Our best wishes go with the venerable bridegroom, who has thrown off the burden of wealth and retained his fruits, and the happy bride.

Citizens Court. The dock contained nine prisoners this morning, and the court room had the usual number of spectators. A few minutes after ten the wheel of justice commenced to turn, and continued moving until the victims were all disposed of.

James Reardon, for drunkenness in the South Ward, confessed, but said it was his first offence. This excuse is of no use on Monday mornings, so the full penalty of $8 was imposed.

John Thompson was arrested drunk in Church street and carted to the station. The cartage was charged to him, as well as the fine.

John Sullivan, a boy of 18, but a pretty larly looking lad, was charged with the same offence in Pitt street, and fined like the others.

Morris Gallagher and John Riley, arrested drunk in Brussels street, must pay $8 each before they can recover their liberty.

Edward Williams, for drunkenness in British street, was fined the same amount.

William Wilson, a poor trembling old man, was arrested in Water street, and charged against him was more serious, as to the original sin of drunkenness was added that of blasphemy, and of disorderly conduct. The prisoner admitted he was a "little drunk," but not enough to be arrested. On further consideration he decided to plead guilty, and the same fine as the others got was imposed.

John Garrison and Thomas O'Leary were charged with fighting in Mill street. That was the charge on the sheet, but the original charge located the fight in a shop in North street. They both claimed to be fighting in self-defence, and Garrison engaged John Kerr, Esq., to defend him. The case for the Crown was conducted by the Serjeant W. C. Rider, who made the arrest. Several witnesses were called to prove the fighting, one young man describing the whole affair. The two were in the shop, and Garrison says to O'Leary, "Do you hold any spite against me?" and the man answered that "his clergyman taught him to hold no spite against any man." They talked for some time, and at last Garrison embraced O'Leary. The latter considered the embrace much more like a bear's hug than a friendly one. This led to the fight, and four policemen appeared on the scene. Mr. Kerr considered that, under Sec. 15th of the Police Act, there should have been no arrest as the fight occurred in a shop, and there was no evidence that, as required by law, the policemen endeavored to quell the row. The Magistrate dismissed the case. He caused the two men to stand up, shake hands, and bury all hard feelings against each other. After this affecting scene the men left the room.

William Vail, who has been sleeping in doorways, wanted to go to the nice warm pentagon, and his wish was granted.
