The Czarina Completely Prostrated-Municipal Elections in England.

Denied,

London, Nov. 3 .- Several newspapers publish denials received from various sources that the British consulate in Callao, Peru, has been sacked, the consul imprisoned, and his family injured.

English Municipal Elections. London, Nov. 2 .- Municipal elections were held throughout England and Wales yesterday. The returns from 148 buroughs, in 39 of which there were no contests, show that the Conservatives secured 39 seats, the Unionists 8, the Ministerialists 28, Labor 15, Independents 6, Social-QUEENSTOWN, Nov. 2.- The steamship Britannic, which touched this port this afternoon on her voyage from New York to Liverpool, had terrible weather. Throughout the 29th and 30th tremendous seas 80 miles out of her course to escape the fury of the storm.

The Czarina Prostrated.

LONDON, Nov. 2 .- All dispatches received today from Livadia agree that the Czar's death was peaceful and apparently painless. The Czarina is completely prostrated. The attacks of hysteria, for which | Today the Gazette declares bo is mentally Dr. Hershejewski treated her recently, have returned, and threaten to break down her general health, besides inducing paralysis of the feet. Nevertheless, the semi-official statement is that she bears up well under her trouble

The Queen's Condolence. London, Nov. 2.—A court circular issued this evening says: "Her Majesty has received with the deepest concern the sorrowful intelligence of the fatal termination of the illness of the Emperor of Russia. The Queen, who is allied with the Russian imperial family by so many ties, feels the warmest sympathy with the afflicted Empress and her family, as well as with the young Emperor, who is about to become by his marriage her Majesty's grandson, and for whom the Queen entertains sincere affection and regard."

Somebody Blundered. AUCKLAND, N. S., Nov. 2.-The loss of the steamer Wairarapa with most of her passengers during a voyage between Sydney and this port, has caused profound grief throughout the colony. Business is almost suspended. A magisterial inquiry has been ordered, especially to ascertain why the vessel was twenty miles out of her course. The survivors state that the captain did not give an order after she struck, and that there was much delay in lowering the boats. The passengers had been uneasy throughout the preceding day, and many who were vaguely fearful retired in their day clothes. A fund has been opened for the survivors, many of whom lost all their

The Doctors' Quarrel.

London, Nov. 2 .- The Daily News correspondent in Vienna says: The gossip about the Czar's doctors threatens to become as painful as in the case of Emperor Frederick. The Neue Freie Presse's St. Petersburg correspondent says that while at Spala the Czar was feeling better one night and started playing the trombone. Dr. Zacharin, who was occupying a near-by chamber, sent a letter of request that his Majesty allow him to sleep. The Czar indignantly replied that the professor need not remain a single night more, but might | ilar decree is published in the navy orders, leave at once if he wished. Contradictory Reports From the East. Yokohama, Nov. 2.—The second Japanese army has landed in the Gulf of Liantung at a point four days' march from Kinchow, and a battle is imminent. It is stated here that the Japanese forces have completely invested Port Arthur by land and sea, and both armies are being rapidly pushed in the direction of Moukden. It is intended that the Japanese army under Field Marshal Oyama shall attack the Chinese as Kinchow, 40 miles northeast of Port Arthur. Gen. Nodzir's advance column in the meanwhile is approaching Fung Whang, a fortified town on the main road between Wi Ju and Moukden, to which place all the Chinese forces retreated after vacating their position north of the Yalu River. The Japanese expect to de-feat the Chinese at both place and unite their forces in front of Moukden.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 2.—It is announced in the native papers that the Chinese troops have recaptured Kienlien Chang after desperate fighting. The Japanese are said to have been driven out of the place with a loss of 3,000 killed and wounded. Upon good authority it is reported that the Japanese are leaving Port Arthur and its

Both Talien Wan and Port Arthur are in a critical condition. The Central News learns that the capture of Fong Feng Chen leaves the road to Moukden clear for the Japanese. Marshal Yamagata is expected to be within striking distance of Moukden on Nov. 10. It is believed that the city is held by a very large but untrained and poorly equipped

THE QUEEN'S PROXY.

London, Nov. 2. - The Duke of York will epresent the Queen in making visits of condolence. The court will go into full mourning for two weeks, and for a fortnight thereafter will be in half mourning. The Emperor of Germany has announced his intention to send Prince Henry to St. Petersburg to represent the Kaiser at the funeral of the Czar.

A MESSAGE FROM CANADA. The following cablegram was sent this morning by Mayor Kennedy, of Toronto, to the British ambassador at St. Petersbroke over her. On the 30th she steered burg: "Toronto, Canada, tenders the widow of the late Czar of Russia its deep sympathy under the bereavement occasioned by his decease." A STRONG MAN.

Berlin, Nov. 2.—The Cologne Gazette says the new Emperor, Nicholas II. has the reputation of being delicate because he was somewhat weak in his childhood. and physically a strong mi, who knows exactly what he wants. His sympathies are with Germany more than with France. THE WEDDING.

The marriage of Emperor Nicholas II. cess Alix of Hesse is expected to take place soon after the funeral as the laws of the orthodox Greek Church prohibit marriage between Nov. 26 and Jan. 18.

LONDON, Nov. 2.-The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Daily News confirms the report that Princess Alix of Hesse will return with her brother to remain a short time in Germany.

In Moscow and St. Petersburgtevery precaution against Nihilist demonstration has been taken. Nearly all the university students in Odessa, Kieff, Kharkoff, Moscow and St. Petersburg are under observ-

A GOOD BEGINNING. The London Standard's St. Petersburg correspondent says: The young Czar's manifesto is received with open delight, probably unparalleled in the history of Russian official declarations. The dignified and almost affectionate tone is freely compared with the proclamation published upon the accession of the Emperor William III. The dispatches from Moscow say that oppressive stillness and mournful expectation overhung the city. The theaters and other places of the amusement, banks and the exchanges have been closed, and kusiness is at standstill.

The London News, in commenting on Nicholas' proclamation, says: The young Czar could not have begun better. If Russia be allowed to remain in peace and be helped to develop herself she soon will find her way to the front rank of constitutional states.

The Standard says: The manifesto is a pregnant document and its language is worthy of the occasion. Judged by it the Czar has a most deep and acute consciousness of the nature and extent of his responsibilities.

GERMAN MILITARY MOURNING. Berlin, Nov. 3 .- An imperial decree has been issued in the army orders today, commanding the observance of a period of two weeks mourning by the army. A simand the warships are ordered to display mourning-flags for one day and to fire 20 guns on the day of the Czar's funeral.

BERLIN, Nov. 3 .- The National Zeitung says the funeral of the Czar will take place St. Petersburg, probably twelve days

FRANCE AND RUSSIA. Paris, Nov. 3.- Emperor Nicholas II. in a dispatch to President Casimir-Perier yesterday announcing the death of his father, said: "I am certain of the active share which the entire French nation will take in our mourning.' Replying to this dispatch, M. Casmir-Perier said: "The two great peoples remember Alexander II., who a year ago today sent a telegram to President Carnot which drew still closer the bond uniting

A Case Where True Love Did Not Run Smooth.

Her Father Objected to the Manner of Asking,

And Lizzie Disappeared on the Eve of Her Wedding-A William Street Marriage That Did Not Take Place-The House Was Furnished, the Carriages and the Groom Were Ready, But the Bride Came Not.

Everything was ready for a wedding on William street on Wednesday night. The house was furnished, the cabs were in waiting at the door for the drive to the minister's, and the groom was also in readiness. The young couple were to meet at their future home, and go from there to the clergyman's. Eight o'clock came. The best man and the best woman arrived. As before mentioned, the carriages were in waiting, and while the carriages were in waiting so were the groom and the witnesses-all waiting for the bride. Nine o'clock struck. The groom became nervous and the visitors interrogative. At 10 a hurried visit was made to the bride's parents' residence on Grey street. The only news that could be elicited there was the fact that the bride had gone out at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and had not returned. Back to the newly-furnished house the party went and waited until the midnight hour had struck, and the bride came not. The carriages were dismissed and the best man and lady tried hard to comfort the disappointed young man. He took the matter to heart and would not be comexpectant. He had the license and the ring the parents objected. she had not the courage to get married." The young man has been looking for the young lady ever since. He is $300 out in furnishing the house.

A STRANGE ACCIDENT.

W. P. Mihell's Leg Broken by Greyhound

On Richmond Street-A Violent Collision-The Victim's Injuries Serious.

A very curious accident, and one which will probably lay the victim up for months, happened on Richmond street, opposite the ADVERTISER office, about 10 o'clock this morning. The circumstances are very

Mr. W. P. Mihell, a shipping clerk at Lawson & Jones', had occasion to come up town about the hour mentioned. He had been to the postoffice and was returning to his place of employment by way of Richmond street. Mr. Mihell had reached Ladell's store and was walking leisurely when a large greyhound, by a collie, came running at a terrific gait. The greyhound slipped on the wet flagstone and struck Miheif on the right leg. The blow was a heavy one, and with a yell he went down, and being unable to regain his feet was assisted by willing bystanders. Mihell was carried into a store and afterwards removed to his home at 419 Ridout street. He complained of severe pains in the leg which was struck, and two physicians found that the limb had been broken about two inches above the knee. The limb was set, but the break is of such a nature as will confine Mr. Mihell to his home for many months.

The physicians are of the opinion that the break was not caused by the fall, but by the force of the collision with the hound. The latter didn't even stop to make inquiries. In fact, beyond a yelp or two he did not seem to notice the collision.

MANUAL TRAINING IN SCHOOLS.

At the last meeting of the Toronto School Board, a deputation from the Local Women's Council consisting of Mrs. Grant Macdonald, Mrs. S. G. Wood, Mrs. Dignam and Mrs. McMaster, was present in regard to manual training in public schools. Mrs. Wood spoke for the deputation, and presented a resolution submitting for approval of the board the proposition "that the Minister of Education be requested to amend the school laws and regulations to provide: (1) That the public school board or board of education in any it will be easy to operate against the Province of Chi Li. I believe the supposed by resolution passed at a regular meeting of the board, adopt a course of manual training, needle work and the study and practice of domestic economy, for such classes as may be deemed expedient by the board, subject to approval by the Education Department; (2) that a course in manual training be prescribed by the Edu-

The Ever Popular Rhea. "The Lady of Lyons" will be presented at the Opera House next Friday, Nov. 9, by Mme. Rhea, who will appear as Pauline for the first time in London. Rhea's revival of Lord Lytton's famous play has been remarkably successful this season. The play will be almost a novelty to London audiences as it has been so seldom presented here in recent years. Rhea's Pauline is said to be as charming and fascinating an impersonation as her Josephine. Her supporting company includes Mr. W. S. Hart, who made a very favorable impression last year. The advance sale opens Wednesday morning.

> The ownership of the Toronto Opera House was the subject of a contention at Osgoode Hall yesterday. Samuel Perrin, of Detroit, formerly of London, is the present owner of the house, Messrs. Jacobs Sparrow leasing it from him. Formerly C. A. Shaw, a young Detroit man had a half interest in the house, which his father's money, it is alleged helped to purchase. The father, Mr. Chas. A. Shaw, who lives near London, sued his son for the money he says he lent him and received judgment. But young Shaw in the meantime had transferred his interest in the the opera house to Perrin and he had no other assets. Now Mr. Shaw, sen., says that the transfer was improper and made for the purpose of defrauding him and other creditors out of the money. He has made Mr. Perrin a party to the suit .- [Torento Star.

on the occasion of the death of his mother. Tuscan Lodge, of this city has set its annual whist party for Monday, Nov. 26. It is invariably looked forward to as one of the events of the seeson in social and Masonic circles. It is likely that the entertainment of this year will be no exception to the rule. The dedication of the new lodge room of Malahide Lodge, No. 140, Aylmer, will be performed by Past Grand Master Gibson on Monday evening, Nov. 5. A number of London brethren purpose attending the celebration, which is likely to be exceptionally successful.

On Friday, Nov. 16, a chapter of instruction is to be held in the blue room, city. St. John's Lodge, 209a, has postponed its reception of St. Thomas Lodge, which was to be held on Nov. 16. Lazarus in the City.

Mr. Henry Bush, con. 9, London township, whose pamphlets on various subjects concerning prophecy and gospel mysteries are well known throughout this district, favored the ADVERTISER sanctuary with a call this morning. He alluded to the address of the Black Knight in the Opera House in which that speaker expounded the incident of Abraham, Lazarus and the rich man. Mr. Bush admits that Abraham is dead and asleep in Jesus, and will come forth at the resurrection; but with regard to Lazarus, Mr. Bush contends that he is not dead, and is now on the earth in search of the five brethren mentioned, and to persuade them to accept the offer of grace before going to torment. In fact, Mr. Bush asserts that he himself is Lazarus, and stated that for the last 40 years he has been occupied in the work of warning the five brethren mentioned to provent them going to the place of torment. On being questioned whether he did not consider himself Lazarus in a metaphorical sense, Mr. Bush replied in the negative. and repeated that he himself is the original

New Industries to be Set Going.

London Will Manufacture Wire Nails, Barbed-Wire Fencing and Other Products.

The Significant News That Was Printed in Toronto.

It is More Than Verified by an Interview With Mr. W. R. Hobbs.

The following local paragraph appeared in the Toronto press this week, and was copied into the ADVERTISER: "Mr. A. J. Somerville, of the Ontario Lead and Barb Wire Company of Toronto, has been in London during the past few days superintending the work in connection with the Western Nail and Wire Company, nection with the Hobbs Company of that city. It is understood the machinery is now ready to be placed in position, and will be running by Jan. 1." The establishment of any new industry in the city being of interest to every citzen of London, especially in these times when general business has been dull, and many men have been out of work, an AD VERTISER reporter was dispatched to interview a member of the Hobbs Hardware Company to verify the Toronto report. It was hardly to be expected that Mr. T. S. Hobbs, the candidate for the Legislature, would be found at the company's premises just now, but Mr. W. R. Hobbs, though very busy, was interviewed. "Yes," said Mr. Hobbs, "the information which you refer to as having appeared in the Toronto papers, is correct so far as it goes, but it is incomplete, as it only refers to one of the new industries which we intend to bring to London. We do intend to establish a manufactory of wire nails, as soon as the machines are ready. These have been in course of construction for several months, but for obvious reasons the firm has not made the fact public. Now that the matter is made public in Toronto, I may tell you that we intend to establish this entirely new industry almost immediately. It may not be generally known that the wire nail is fast superseding the old cut nail, and a very large quantity of the new nail is now sold every year in Canada. Hitherto the nails required in Western Ontario and other parts of Canada have been manufactured in St. John, N.B., Montreal, Toronto and Hamilton, and shipped to us and other dealers, but when our factory is established here we hope to produce nails by London workmen, that will find a market all over the West. "What are the other industries that your firm intend to bring to London?" asked the | where he lives. The following are the

One is the manufactory of barbed wire. Hitherto the supply of fence wire of this and other descriptions required by Western armers and others has either been manufactured in Montreal and Toronto or imported from other countries. But in 619 Richmond street. R. M. C. Toothe, the future, as in the case of wire nails, we intend, as far as possible, to supply the Western public from the new factory to be established here. Probably 2,000 tons of this wire and its products are marketed every year in the West, so you may have some idea of the possibilities of the industry after it is once in operation. "As to the other industries?" "The new charter of our company authorizes us to manufacture not only the articles I have named, but the manufacture of plumbers' and painters' supplies of every description." "How many hands will you employ in these industries?" "As many as we can find work for," was the reply. 'It will depend, as in our mirror and glass beveling industry, upon the business which we can bring to London. When we found the old Elliott foundry empty, and saw an opportunity to establish that or some other manufactory that would pay us interest on the capital invested, we promised the civic authorities that we would employ at least 25 hards. I am glad to tell you that with the co-operation of our employes we have been able to produce goods that find a market all over Canada, and instead of employing only 25 hands, as stipulated, we now have in our employ between 40 and 50. Necessarily, the plate glass and mirror business takes up a good deal of room, and it will not surprise me if, as the result of adding the new manufactures I have mentioned to our industries, we are compelled very soon to make an addition to the factory buildings. You may rely upon it that our intention is to bring to London as much business in the industries we have now entered on as possible. We predict that within five years our factory employes will be increased by at least 150." RTIFICIAL LIMBS, SURGICAL A RTIFICIAL LIMBS, SURGICAL appliances and supports for deformities of all kinds. I have had 25 years' exterience and the limb I now make is second to none. All work guaranteed. Write for terms before purchasanteed. Law Boyn Lucknow. Ont. ing elsewhere. John Boyd, Lucknow, Ont. This is the Last Day.

If Voters Do Not Register Today They Cannot Vote on Nov. 20.

Young Men, Newcomers and All Whose Names Are Not Already on the Roll Must Attend Personally.

In each of the six wards of the city, a place for registration has been provided. There each manhood suffrage voter, each newcomer and every man 21 years of age who finds his name omitted from the lists now existing, must personally attend TO-DAY OR TO-NIGHT to have his name placed on the new voters' list or he will not be able to vote at the election on Nov. 20 next.

THIS IS THE LAST DAY.

Let no man 21 years of age or upwards take it for granted that he has a vote unwhich is being started in London in con- less he discovers from the chairman of his sub-division or at the central committee rooms of the Liberal Association, Oddfellows' block, that his name is on the list. It has been found that names of well-known citizens ln various parts of the city, have been dropped from the lists prepared at the City Hall, since last election. See to it also that the name of your neighbor, who is in favor of the election of Mr.

Hobbs, is also on the list. The Liberal rooms in Oddfellows' Hall are open day and night, and there any elector can easily find out if his name will be on the list without attending personally and residence in the city on that day. The hours for registration will be from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m., and

The only qualification necessary is residence in the Province for one year before 31st October, 1894, and three months' residence in the city before 31st October, 1894.

Bell Organ and Piano Company, Guelph. Where is the individual who has never heard of the Bell organ or piano? For nearly a lifetime this now celebrated firm have been manufacturing musical instruments, and their fame extends into nearly every land on the globe. From a small workshop they now occupy large and extensive buildings at Guelph, where the output of pians and organs now probably eclipses that of any other concern of the kind in Canada or the States. Their pianos and organs are complimented by the most renowned musicians. Purchasers can rely on the guarantee of the Bell piano or organ. A BRIDE BUT FOUR HOURS. Sad Death of a Young Lady at Lawrence, Mass, LAWRENCE, Mass., Nov. 2 .- Agnes Bogge at 7 o'clock Monday evening, was married to Charles Johnson, of Roxbury, at the house of her father, Charles Bogge. She had been suffering from heart disease for some time, and the excitement of preparing for the marriage had an injurious offect upon her. As the hour for the ceremony approached she became so nervous and weak that a physician advised her parents to have the ceremony performed in her own room, and this was done. Then the bride and bridegroom entered the parlor and received the congratulations of the guests. The evening passed off, but the bride's health showed no signs of improvement and a few minutes after 11 officers of last year were re-elected. o'clock she died.

The Cause of Fevers.

Few people fally appreciate the effects of malaria on the human system. Residents of low-lyiny districts are daily storing away in their bodies the inhaled germs of disease which permeate the air, and even where the location is elevated, too often sanitation is imperfect and emanations from decaying vegetable matter render the air poisonous. The result is a train of bilious disorders, agues, intermittent, and bilious fevers. A good plan is to take a doses of a mild but thorough and

STATE OF TRADE IN THE STATES.

Election Excitement Does Not Help Business.

The Volume of Production Well Maintained-Fewer Failures.

New York, Nov. 2.-R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade bays. The last week of October, with an exciting election near, cannot indicate much of the true condition of business. In some trades the seaweekly review of trade says: The last son is too far advanced for great activity, and in others the supposed effects of the voting hinder transactions, but it is satisfactory that the volume of production is well maintained; that no monetary difficulties disturb; that breadstuffs are a little higher, and that no material decline appears during the week among manufactured products.

The fact that the demand appears to be slacking for some products, may, perhaps, be attributed to uncertainty in the political horizon, while the increase in the working force helps to make a basis for more business here. At present the volume of business transacted is on the whole smaller than last year, and much smaller than in 1892, though the presidential election was then close at hand. The depression of cotton and wheat and the partial loss of the corn crop must be reckoned as causes for the hesitancy in retail distribution of produce.

During the past week the failures have numbered 249 in the United States, against 358 last year, and 50 in Canada, against 28 last year. BRADSTREET'S.

We have the quail hunters still with us, and the only safety for the poor quails is the inability of some of their persecutors to shoot straight. These gentlemen evidently consider themselves a privileged class, traverse the land as if it was all their own, and will soon shoot their game at the farmer's barn, never, apparently suspecting that they do any wrong, or that any farmer has an exclusive right to the game on his premises. They entirely ignore the law which says "Thou shalt not covet," "Thou shalt not steal," and all the laws against trespassing, never thinking it worth while to ask permission before stepping on any person's land to enjoy what they call their sport. But let anyone use the same liberty on the premises of these gentlemen them selves, and he would soon find the tables turned, and perhaps when least expected some farmer will take the trouble to teach these gents where they stand, and the worst of it is that some of our own highly moral neighbors need the lesson as much as any.

SIR OLIVER, THE VETERAN. The Toronto papers report Grand President Mallory as giving a most emphatic denial to the talk of Patron M. P. Ps. going for or against any other party as such. "We have declared our platform and our principles time and again," he said. "They are unchanged. We will not add one plank or take one away for Sir Oliver Mowat or Mr. Marter, Sir John Thompson, Mr. Laurier or Mr. McCarthy, or for anyone else. We will stand alone and form no alliance. The order would not last three months if we joined either Grits or Tories, or any other political faction, and we will fight it out along our own line."

That being so, and Sir Oliver Mowat being admittedly the most influential man in Ontario, and the shrewdest tactician of the day, and with about twice as many straight followers in the House as Mr. Marter, we rather fancy that Ontario's Grand Old Man will show, during the next four years of his administration, that what the able and experienced Mr. Meredith could not accomplish, in the way of overthrowing him, can hardly be accomplished by the untried and inexperienced Mr.

The one unconcealed hope of the 25 followers of Mr. Marter in a House of 94, is that they can raise some revolutionary catch petition to the Lieutenant-Governor in estion, and put Sir Oliver in a box. But his opponents have for more than twenty years been trying to put him in a box, with | day. the result that in every instance they have themselves fallen into the pit which they had digged for a statesman at once wise and courageous. And as for this trick of springing ill-digested revolutionary catch-questions, it seems to be forgotten by some that the instinct of this great Province is the sound British instinct which favors reform, but not revolution. In a Province like Ontario, with no second legislative chamber, it is of the utmost importance that a man of high principles, calm judgment and long experience should hold the helm. It is this feeling which in every general election has rallied thousands of though ful Conservatives to the support of Sir Oliver Mowat payers who petitioned against the present and his candidates, and which in June last caused life-long Conservatives like Princi- mayor and council have broken faith with pal Grant to exclaim, "Ontario cannot afford to dismiss Sir Oliver Mowat." The Province agreed with the sagacious Principal, and added another four years' lease of power to the 22 years of confidence with which the veteran Premier had already been entrusted.

-The Silent World says; "In British India there are 173,000 deaf mutes and only one school for their education." In Ontario, every deaf mute is provided by the Provincial Government with board and education, unless the parents are well able to pay for them. This Province has had its resources husbanded, and is thus able to liberally provide for the insane, the blind, and the desf and dumb, without cost to the municipalities.

Can Debentures be Issued Without a Vote of the People?

The Mayor and Aldermen Say "Yes," and Appeal to Toronto.

City Taxpayers Oppose Course Pursued,

And Demand That the $50,000 Should Not be Borrowed Till the People So Vote.

An unusually interesting question has been raised by a number of the taxpayers of London, the settlement of which may be far-reaching in its effects. It will be remembered that at last session of the Algoma petition, Whitaker vs. Savage. Legislature an act was passed respecting this city. Among other provisions was one worded as follows: "4. Notwithstanding the provisions of any act or law, but with the assent of the ratepayers under the provisions of the Consolidated Municipal Act, 1892, in that behalf, the said corporation may borrow, for any period not exceeding 40 years, such sum, not exceeding $50,000, as to the council thereof may seem meet, and the moneys so borrowed shall be expended for additional hydraulic and steam pumping apparatus, repairing or renewing the sluiceway, and extension of mains, and shall be paid over to the water commissioners for the city of London for those

The original intention was to borrow $125,000, but a large number of taxpayers so strenuously opposed this expenditure that as it passed the Legislature only $50,-

000 was authorized. When the bill was being passed an attempt was made to have it provided that the money could be borrowed without first submitting the money bylaw to the people. Again, the association of taxpayers appeared on the scene, and opposed the measure. They now assert that Mayor Essery and the city solicitor gave assurances that the bylaw authorizing the large expenditure would certainly be submitted to the taxpayers and lawfully voted on. Then the bill was passed, with this provision made, as given in the section above quoted. But the city authorities resolved to dispense with the vote by the people on the question, and consented to give the water commissioners the money without asking the leave of the taxpayers. Accordingly, after a recent meeting of the council, Mayor Essery and the city clerk signed a Council, asking liberty to issue debentures to meet the expenditure of $50,000, and the letter was duly transmitted the other

Up to now, it is understood, the mayor has received no answer to the final letter. Perhaps the reason lies in the new turn which affairs have taken, as will be seen from the following letter which has been received from the clerk of the Executive Council of Ontario, and which, with the explanations that are to follow, have been supplied to us for publication for the information of the public:

"W. D. Buckle, Esq. "Dear Sir,-Re London waterworks extension, I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 16th inst., and the petition of the ratepayers which accompanied the same. The matter will receive consideration. Yours, "J. R. CARTWRIGHT." This letter is a reply to a communication sent to the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council from officers representing the body of taxwaterworks. Their contention is that the the taxpayers, inasmuch as they now seek to have debentures issued for $50,000 without a vote of the people, in direct contravention of the promise made when the petitioning taxpayers withdrew their opposition to the measure when before the Legislature. And they ask the Lieutenant-Governor in council not to give the mayor and coungil the leave which they crave, and, as a safeguard to the interests of the public, to compel the mayor and aldermen to obey the law, which they assert only permits the mayor and council to issue debentures for the $50,000, to be spread over a series of years, when the taxpayers have, by bylaw voted on, agreed to the expenditure. They assert that section 505 of the Consolidated Municipal Act, under which the city authorities proceed, cannot apply to this expenditure, especially after the agreement reached when the subject was before the Legislature soon after the citizens at the polls had voted down a bylaw for similar purposes. Thus the matter stands. It is a serious difficulty, as if the law passed last spring day at Madison Square Garden. Among is observed the debentures cannot issue the sales were the following: unless the people so vote. If a vote is decreed, as it is contended would be fair after the agreement before the law was L. I., $4,100. passed, the citizens may say that the money should not have been expended. In that by Estelle Eric; W. H. Gifford, Syracuse, have to come out of the general taxes within a year. But until the authorities at Toronto, who have been asked to come to the rescue of our civic solons, have considered the whole matter, it is difficult to say what will be the outcome of the affair.

THE WATER IS GOLDEN.

A Stream Discovered in a Michigan Mine-A Natural Gold Cure.

IHPEMING, Mich., Nov. 3 .- A report cores from the Ropes gold mine here that at he bottom level a spring has been struck which supplies a strong stream of highlycolred water, being nearly as yellow as gol, and plainly holding considerable of the precious metal in solution. It is ver palatable and ice cold. Several of th men working in that level have ben in the habit of freely drinking the water and it was noticed that as they drnk the desire for alcoholic stimulants did within them. Some of the men had ben heavy drinkers of beer and whisky, bu since the use of this water, they had newish for any stimulants. Their health an physicial condition is generally imprived, and it is thought that the water is a critable and natural "Gold Cure," not only for the liquor habit, but for general diease of all kinds. There is some talk of encting a huge hospital at the mine, using the waters as a cure-all.

Pacer Robert J. Walks Away from

John R. Gentry.

THE TURF. THE FAVORITE LOST. PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2.—Two thousand five hundred persons were on the grounds when the 2:09 trot was called. Pheebe Wilkes was the favorite. Summary:

A SNAP FOR ROBERT J. PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 2.—The fastest pacer in the world, Robert J., and his greatest rival, John R. Gentry, met in a match race at the Point Breeze track this afternoon for a purse of $2,060. Robert J. was the tavorite. First heat-Gentry led to the quarter, but then Robert J. drew away and won by three lengths. Time, In the second heat Robert J. had the easiest kind of a victory, winning in a walk at the end of the heat. Time, ANOTHER ACCOUNT. Robert J. was sent against his record, paced by a runner, this afternoon at the Point Breeze track, but the best he could do was 2:06. Prior to the trial Robert J. and John R. Gentry met in a match race for a purse of $2,000. Robert J. won two heats rather easily in 2:08 and 2:121, and then Gentry was drawn. Tomorrow Alix will go against her record of 2:033. Fantasy, the 4-year-old trotter, will endeavor to beat her mark of 2:06, and Directly, the champion 2-year-old pacer, will try to lower his record of 2:072.

Paddy Slavin has reiterated his challenge to Peter Jackson to fight one month hence, ten or twenty rounds, for £500 or £1,000,

During the eighth round of a fight in the fight.

FOOTBALL. The mutes and the Belleville city football teams played their final match for the championship Friday afternoon. The mutes won by three goals to none. THE WHEEL.

RECORD-BREAKING. CHILLICOTHE, Ohio, Nov. 2.—This afternoon John S. Johnson at the kite track reduced the record for one-third of a mile from 34 1-5 seconds to 32 2-5 seconds. He also cut the half-mile from 522 seconds to 51 2-5 seconds. Both above records were made by Harry Tyler. WALTHAM, Mass., Nov. 2.—Arthur Porter, of Waltham, this afternoon broke Tyler's three world's records and cut down three world's class A records. Williams and Haggerty, the Waltham tandem team, beat two more world's records and one class A record.

Porter's first attempt was the half-mile flying start, paced. He made the quarter in 25 seconds, 1 2.5 seconds faster than the class "A" record; the third in 34 1-5 seconds, or 1-5 seconds faster than the world's record by Tyler, and the half in 53 seconds, one second faster than his own class "A'

His next attempt was at the one mile paced standing start. His own class "A" record was two minutes. He beat this easily, and but for a swerving of his wheel would have clipped a slice off the world's record, 1:57 3-5. He made the quarter in 33 seconds, the third in 42 seconds, the half in 59 3.5, and the two-thirds in 1:18 2-5. This was 4-5 of a second better than Tyler's world's record on this track.

He made the three-quarters in 1:28 3-5, or 2-5 of a second faster than the world's record, also by Tyler on this track. He finished the mile in 1:58 1-5, within 3-5 of a second of the world's record and 14.5 seconds faster than the class A time.

Haggerty and Williams then rode for the paced tandem record, and made the quarter in 25 4.5 seconds, the third in 34 2.5 seconds, both new world's records, and the half in 53 1 5, a new class A time.

Two Firemen Killed-Other Fires. OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 2 .- A fire this morning with a loss of $300,000, fully covered by insurance, wiped out the beef killing and several other departments of the Hammond Packing Company's plant at South Omaha, and resulted in the death of two firemen. John Steel, of the South Omaha fire department, and Hank Peters, a Hammond fireman. The fire originated in the cloak room of the beef killing department, and is supposed to have been caused by alighted tobacco pipe in the pocket of someone's overcoat. The water pressure was low. and only the presence of a fireproof wall prevented the total destruction of the property. Some 350 persons are thrown out of emplopment. [Special to the ADVERTISER.] STRATHROY, Nov. 2 .- The barns of the reeve, R. E. House, were totally destroyed by fire this evening at 9 o'clock, the hotel having a narrow escape, the back part being partly burned. Loss as yet not known; partly insured.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Nov. 2 .- A orce of workmen engaged in excavating around the ramparts of the historic old French fort in this city today, overlooking the Upper River. The massive stone chimney of this fort still stands in perfect condition. The ground which the workmen upturned had not been disturbed in over a century, and in one place two perfect human skeletons and a sabre were found. One of the skulls had a full set of teeth. The bones are believed to be those of the victims of the French and Indian war, relies of which are thick in this locality. The bones were divided among the workmen and relichunters.

WILL INTEREST HOUSEKEEPERS.

The housekeepers of this city and the west will be interested in a new London industry which has just commenced business. The name of the new firm is the "Sunrise Yeast Company," and their whole time will be occupied solely in the manufacture of Sunrise Yeast. This article will be found of rare purity and possessed of many advantages over the numerous yeasts at present on the market, and to satisfy a long felt want the proprietors have fitted up a large factory at No. 237 King street with the most approved machinery. A large and successful business for the new company is assured. Nearly all the yeast cakes sold in Canada are made by an American firm, and it speaks volumes for the enterprise of the promoters of the new firm that they have launched out with the intention of giving Canadians a home-made product. Sample of the goods manufactured by them will be distributed free. Those who like the real home-made-the kind mother used to make -may now have their desire gratified.

His Wife Complimented Him. "An excellent shave, George, and really your hair never was trimmed so becomingly before. You must have changed your barber.

"Yes, I stepped into Sharkey's today. Excellent workmen, everything exactly suit connoisseurs there. This man Sharkey deserves to do the business. We need a first-class barber in London, and from the number of prominent people I see there it is quite evident he's appreciated. I am so well pleased that I purpose telling the boys to drop in and see SHARKEY in the Arcade. Most of the boys call nim Hughie, Canada's leading barber."

-Samuel Plain, a young well-to-do Indian from the Muncey reserve, and the possessor of over 100 acres of land, was ried before Squire Lockwood at the court house yesterday on a charge of stealing a bridle from County Constable Penfold. On Aug. 15 last Penfold drove to Muncey to arrest Jonathan Flaxen. He was accompanied by another officer, and when about a quarter of a mile from Flaxen's house tied his horse to a fence. Penfold was absent an hour or so, and when he returned the only portion of his turnout that could be found was the bex of the buggy. The horse and barness were missing, the shatts of the rig were nowhere to be seen and the wheels had been taken off. The horse was recovered afterwards about six miles away, the wheels were found in a cornfield, but the harness never came back. Washington Doxtater, a county constable, afterwards had business at Plain's and found the bridle in the barn. The case was dismissed.

Sickening Fire in Indianapolis-Eighteen Bodies in a Medical College C: emated.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 3 .- At 3:30 clock this morning fire broke out in the Indiana Medical College. In a few minutes the whole building was in flames. The fire quickly spread to the Scottish Rite building, where the finest Masonic paraphernalia in the west was reduced to ashes. This building was but recently purchased and the estimated loss to the Masons will reach $100,000.

Every section of the college building was leveled to the ground, and a ghastly feature of the disaster was the fact that eighteen bodies stored in vats for dissecting purposes were burned to a crisp. The stench of the burning human flesh was nauseating. The total loss is about $175,000; insurance, $80,000.

One day Mrs. Gass and Miss Dallory went forth together. Not of premeditation. One of Ketler's children was ill and weakly, incipies t consumption, Dr. Rane said; she was a sweet little child, mild and gentle; and Miss Dallory would sometimes carry her strengthening things. It was a terrible shame, she would tell Ketler, that he should let even this poor sickly child starve; and Ketler humbly acknowledged to his own heart that the child was starving; and felt it keenly. The man was as well-meaning a man as Heaven ever sent into the world; anxious to do his duty; but he had signed himself a member of the Trades' Union, and was help-

Miss Dallory wore a print gown, and was altogether a great deal less fine than Jelly. She carried a small basket in her hand, conraining fresh eggs. As she passed Mrs. Gase's that lady was standing at her open parlor window, in all the glory of a gorgeous green satin robe, and white bonnet with bird-of-paradise feather. She dearly loved fine clothes, and saw no reason why she should not wear them.

"Where be you bound to, my dear?" asked the grandly-dressed lady, as Mary stopped.

'I am taking these eggs to little Cissy Ketler. Mrs. Gass, what is to become of all the poor children if this state of things should last much longer?"

"I'm sure I don't know. It goes again' the grain to see 'em want; but when we give 'em food or help, it's just so much premium offered to the father's incorrigible obstinacy and idleness, my dear."
"But the child is ill," said Miss Dallory.

"And so are many other children."
"They'll be worse before long. My dear, I was not talking at you, in saying that. But I don't see where it's all to end. We can't set up hospitals for the women and children, even with the best will to do it. And the will, I, for one, have not. Once get their wives and children took care of, and the men would lead the lives of gentlemen to the end o' the chapter. Here, I'll walk with you, my dear; and we can talk going

She came forth, drawing on her lemoncolored gloves; and they went towards Ketler's. North Inlet looked deserted today. Not a man was lounging in it. The few stragglers to be seen were walking briskly in the direction of the works; as if they had business on hand, and were without their pipes. Mrs. Gass was passing her.

"What's up, Dawson?" "We've been called together, ma'am, to meet Mr. Richard North. He have som'at to say to us. Happen, maybe, he's a-goin to give in at last." "Is he!" retorted Mrs. Gass. "I don't think you need worrit your inside with that idea, Dawson. It's a deal more likely that he's going to warn you he'il sell the works out and out-if he can get any fool to buy

The man passed on. Mrs. Gass, as she turned to Miss Dallory, gave a flourish with her small white lace parasol and a toss of the bird-of-paradise. "Had anybody told me men could be so obstinate, in regard to thinking themselves in the right, I'd never have believed it; but seeing's believing. My dear, suppose we just step on to the works, and learn what matter Mr. Richard has in hand.'

The men, going in at the iron gates, branched round to their own entrance. Mrs. Gass took Miss Dallory to a private one. It led at once into what might now be called the audience chamber, for Richard North was alread haranguing the men in it; a long and narrow room, with a counter running across it. It used to be the pay-room of the men. perhaps some of them, entering now, recalled those prosperous days with a sigh. Richard North did not see the ladies come in. He stood with his back to them, in his usual every-day attire, a plain black frockcoat and gray trousers. His hands rested on the counter as he talked to the men, who faced him on the other side; a crowd of them, all with attentive countenances. Mrs. Gass signed to Miss Dallory to halt; not to conceal themselves from Richard, but simply lest their advance should interrupt what he was saying. And so they remained listening. Richard unconscious that he had any other audience than his workpeople. The matter was this. A contract had just been offered to North & Gass. It was a very large one, and would certainly, if accepted, keep the men employed for some time. It was offered at a certain price. Richard North made his calculations and found that he could accept it, provided the men would work on the former termes; but he could not if the rate of wages had to be raised. Considering the present hopeless condition of the men, imagining that they must have had very nearly sufficient experience of idleness and empty cupboards to bring them to reason, he determined to lay the proposal before them-that they might accept or reject it. In a clear and concise manner he stated this, and the men heard him respectfully to the end. One of them then advanced a few steps before the rest, and answered. Answered without the smallest deliberation; without so much as a pretense of inquiring what the feelings of his fellows might be.

"We can't do it, sir."
Richard North raised his hand for silence, as if the man had spoken before his

"Do you fully understand the case in all its bearings?' resumed Richard; "if not, take time to reflect until you do understand it. Look at it well; take into consideration the future as well as the present. Listen again. This contract has been offered me; it is a good one, as you must know. It will set our works going again; it will be the means of bringing back the business that seems to be drifting more hopelessly away by buying their laundry soap in cakes. from us day by day. It will provide you with employment, with wages that you not Awake" is the best and cheapest you so long ago thought liberal; and will place you again in what may be called prosperity great prosperity as compared with what exists at present. Your homes may be homes of plenty again, your children have sufficient food. In short, both to you and to me, this contract offers just the turn of the tide. I wish to accept it; I see nothing but ruin before my father and myself if I cannot do so; what I see before you I do not care to speak of, if you are not wise enough to see it for yourselves. The decision lies with you,

"We couldn't return at them rate of wages, nohow," spoke up a voice from the unfortunately; I wish it lay with myself.

Shall I take it, or shall I not?"

"It is the last chance that I shall offer you," proceeded Richard. "For your sakes I would strongly advise you to take it. Heaven is my witness that I am honest in saying 'for your sakes.' We have been associated together for many years, and I cannot see the breaking up of old ties without first using every effort to re-unite them. I mustgive my answer tomorrow, and accept this work or reject it. Little time is allowed me for decision, therefore I am unable to give much to you. Virtually the acceptance or rejection lies with you; for, without you, I could not fulfill it; but I cannot help a re-mark in passing, that for such a state of things to exist argues something rotten at the core in the relations between master and man. At six o'clock tomorrow morning the great bell shall be rung, calling you to work as formerly. My men, I hope you will all respond to it."

No, not at the terms offered, was the answer gathered by Richard North from the buzz that rose asound.

"I cannot offer you better. I have said this is the lase chance," repeated Richard. "I shall never give you the option of work ing for me again. The men couldn't help that. The fact was, they only half believed it. One ventured a suspicion that if the works were sold, the new firm might give them work on "Remarkable Cure of Dropsy and Dyspepsia."—Mr. Samuel T. Casey, Belleville, writes: "In the spring of 1884 I began to be troubled with dyspepsia, which gradually became more and more distressing. I used various domestic remedies and applied to my family physician, but received no benefit. By this time my trouble assumed the form of dropsy. I was unable to use any food whatever except boiled milk and bread; my limbs were swollen to twice their natural size; all hopes of my recovery were given up, and I quite expected death within a few weeks. Northrop & Lyman's VEGETABLE DISCOVERY having been recommended to me. I tried a bottle with but little hope of relief; and now, after using eight bottles, my Dyspepsia and Dropsy are cured. Although now 79 years of age I can enjoy my meals as well as ever, and my general health is good. I am well-known in this section of Canada, having lived here 57 years; and you have liberty to use my name in recommendation of your VEGETABLE DISCOVERY, which has done such wonders in my case.'

About the Complexion.

There are two causes of bad complexions -the one dependent upon the conditions of the digestive organs, the other on the conditions of the blood. A remedy like Eseljay's Liver Lozenges, if its use is continued, cannot fail to tone up the complexion, because it acts directly upon the stomach and liver and at the same time purifies the blood. For sallowness or pimples try the continued use of these Lozenges. They are 25 cents a box or five boxes for a dollar.

DAILY ADVERTISER --- SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1894. SUPPLEMENT TO

Motto for the Week:

God calls men when they are busy; Satan when he finds them idle; if Satan finds any man idle he will be sure to find him a job .- [Selected.

Mr. Samuel Burnett Mason, an English wine and spirit merchant, who died recently, left a large sum to his family. In his will he ordered the winding up of the liquor business and directed that neither his son nor any of his heirs mentioned should carry on such a business. We have knowledge of a Canadian license holder who fell sick, and when he saw it was going to be a serious sickness with him requested his wife to go and close up the bar and all liquor dealing at once. In view of a great judgment many change their views regarding the liquor a special committee of the town Elections take place in nearly all the States of our neighboring nation next Tuesday for members of the National House of Representatives, and also in a large number of them for State officers as well. In many of the States the Prohibition party have candidates of their own in the field independent of either of the two great political parties. These "third party" men and women have been working very hard for months, but there are little prospects whatever that they will come anywhere near success in their efforts to elect their candidates. We cannot but admire their zeal and earnestness, but we very greatly question the wisdom of their course. Another ing of the act, and on a requisition of number of these prizes have been week will show what the results have been. We shall be agreeably surprised if they prove at all successful.

In Berlin, Germany, there is a large brewing school where the business, in all its branches, is taught. It is now experimenting on making beer of corn, instead of barley, and it is reported that several brews with it have been made with good success. In Denmark, Holland and Belgium it is now stated on good authority that a good deal of corn is being used by the brewers. In England, it was stated during the excise debate in Parliament a few months ago that not over onethird as much barley is now used in brewing as fifteen years ago, corn and other cheaper materials being substituted. These facts go to show that whatever force there was once in "the barley market" cry against prohibition is fast being destroyed by the brewers themselves. Canadian farmers have little to hope for from the brewers for a future good market for barley.

The Supreme Court's Delay.

Contrary to expectation, the Supreme Court decision regarding the question of the prohibiton jurisdiction of the Provincial and Dominion Parliaments has not yet been given. It will be remembered that this was the first case agued before the court last May. It has been therefore six months under consideration.

The same court has had the constitutionality of the Provinical Local Option Law before them for an entire year. The first argument in that case was made in October of last year, and a second hearing was given later on. When the prohibition question came in sight it was thought that the decision in the first question was being together. These decisions may be is left to the inebriate."

Municipalization in Scotland.

Now that the idea of "municipalizing" the liquor traffic is becoming a somewhat popular agitation with some on both sides of the Atlantic-both in Great Britain, the States and Canada, any facts regarding the movement are attention to the question.

It would appear that the people of Aberdeen, Scotland, have a prospect of being among the first to put the experiment to a practical test. We learn from the Scottish Reformer that council have been considering the matter and resolved to recommend the council to apply to Parliament for a special act conferring special powers to municipalize the business there. The scheme suggested is thus described:

"The council will be asked to promote a bill declaring that after the passing of the act no new licenses for the retail sale of liquor in the city shall be granted, and that none of the existing licenses shall be transferred. Five years after the passing of the act all retail licenses shall vest in the council, who shall, if it is decided to continue the sale, conduct the businesses and apply the profits to public purposes. The sinking fund will be ten per cent, and the council shall, immediately on the expiry of five years after the passtemperance members of the council are in favor of the scheme."

English Inebriate Asylums.

Now that the subject of establishing Provincial Inebriate Asylum is attracting some attention some facts in cal interest.

The fifteenth report of the inspector of retreats, under the Inebriates' Acts of 1879, has recently been published in England. According to it there are now eight such "retreats" to be reported on. The admissions to them during the year numbered, according to this report, just 129, being an increase of fourteen compared to the pre vious year. Three of these retreats are intended for males only and three for females; the others, we fancy, being open to both sexes. The practical difficulties which seem to stand most in the way of the best success of these establishments are enumerated as fol-

1. The law makes no provision for the support of retreats, except from the payment of inmates. The attempt, therefore, to rescue poorer persons by such means is wholly left to private

2. The laws give no power to any one to commit a patient to a retreat without the patient's own desire. PALERMO LOYAL CRUSADERS .-Twenty-eight comrades answered to the roll-call at our last meeting. So clear the responses, so bright the faces, the words of the opening chorus, "Happy and free as the birds are we." seemed fully illustrated. Just now much enthusiasm is evinced by the little people in the preparation of the programmes. Sides have been chosen -"just as they do in division"—as one little tot remarked. The juvenile captains present really bright entertainments-songs, dialogues, readings and recitations—five members constituting a programme. Every possible device for interesting the children and securing their regular attendance is employed. Prizes are offered by Dr. Mac-Crimmon, G.W.A., to those who attend every meeting during the year. A one-fourth of the constituency every awarded. Frequently the children are three years thereafter, take a poll of the given a "treat"—cake, candy or electors on the question of whether fruit. The Good Templars.

IN WALES.—The English Alliance News says: "The annual session of office, being the regular nominees of the English Grand Lodge of Wales of both political parties. It gives the the Good Templar Order, just held at names of the men and the location of Merthyr, reported continued increase in the principality. The session was attended by more members than for many years past. Mr. J. Stanford, of Wrexham, was chosen grand chief Templar." There is also a Grand Lodge dates for aldermen, nominated by one in Wales composed of those who use the Welsh language.

IN ENGLAND.—The HOME GUARD has previously remarked that one of the reasons of the superior success of the Good Templars in England over their co-workers in Canada is the prominence that it gives to public agitation. Agents and lecturers are constantly at work and its vans are also on the move during the appropriate seasons. We learn from the Manchester News that reports 48 members at the close of the the Middlesex (England) District Lodge has arranged and announced for no less than 45 public temperance meetings in that district during the current quarter. Similar efforts would be productive of similar results here.

Four are Republican candidates for aldermen. In Brooklyn there are quite a number of saloon men in the field for election, both parties making some such selections. In Ontario no liquor license holder is legally elegible as a candidate for alderman or councilor.

GREAT BRITAIN.

-Dr. F. R. Lees, one of the oldest and ablest temperance workers in Great Britain, has just been remarking that "Fools in this country were talking about the Gothenburg system of licensing, whilst at the same time in Gothenburg itself there was more drunkenness than in this country."

GENERAL.

-Recently the Vina distillery, of California, exported 65,000 gallons of brandy to Germany. How much of it may come back to the States and Canada as "pure imported wines," only those in the secrets of the business may know.

-Dr. Bode, of Heildesheim, declares that the manufacture of intoxicating liquors in Germany robs the country yearly of 4,500,000 acres; it plunges 32,000 persons into such poverty that they must be supported by the State or by friends; it sends 4,250 persons into compulsory confinement in labor colonies; it has robbed 30,000 of their reason; and it has raised an army of criminals 159,000 strong.

-The late Surgeon Parke, of the Emin Pasha relief expedition, said that he had seen more cases of sunstroke during one field day at Aldershot, England, than during seven years' medical experience in Africa, and attributed the fact to the precautions observed in African expeditions, and especially as regards the use of alcoholic drinks. "Drink," declared Dr. Parke, "is certainly the most powerful predisposing cause of the development of the symptoms of sunstroke."

-A correspondent of a leading English journal gives the following figures, which go to show that the Gothenburg system is not diminishing drunkenness very fast in Sweden. He writes: "One Scandinavian town might do as well as another for illustration, but in order to be perfectly impartial I will take three. Christiania, with a population of 150,000 shows 7,554 arrests on account of drunkenness in the year 1889. In 1890 the number of arrests had increased to 10,096, and in 1891 they had gone up to 11,602. Taking Bergen, a smaller town, of 54,000 inhabitants, the arrests from the same cause were 729 in 1889, 1,122 in 1890, and 1,047 in 1891. Though the third year of comparison open to me was thus fractionally lower than its predecessor, the tendency is unquestionably upwards. The third town I have selected is Trondhjem, which has a population of 25,000. There the police 'drunks' were 533 in 1889, 437 in 1890, and 563 in 1891. Once more the tendency is upwards, though there is some irregularity. Taking those three chief Norse towns, the persons committed for intoxication during the three years were consecutively 8,816, 11,665, and 13,212 in the ag-

FASHIONS OF LONDON.

THE CLOAK REVIEW SPECIAL COR-RESPONDENT'S LETTER.

Enormous Work That Devolves Upon Minute Fashion Writer Now-a-Days-The Latest Mantles and Jackets and the Correct Vogue.

In writing of styles it should be remembered that more interest is centered in what will be worn the next few months than a postmortem of the vogue a score or more of years ago. The writer who undertakes to describe in minute detail the styles of to-day finds an enormous task confronting him, and nowhere can this be more so than here in London. It has been our pleasure to visit some of the warehouses, and a few notes taken en route may interest you.

Although the credit for producing the styles is often given to certain social leaders, this is more frequently due to the ingenuity of the manufacturer. The effect of certain leading retail establishments adapting like styles of garments and displaying the same, has more to do with defining the fashion than is generally supposed.

The tendency here is toward plainer materials, and the descendency of the gaudy patterns makes the work of designing more particular in producing effective combinations. Heavy braiding, which was so popular last season, has given way to the strap of the same material as the garment. Applique is very popular, and its scope knows no limit, being from the most unpretentious to the most elaborate.

The jackets generally are longer in the skirt and the sleeves also have gained in dimensions. Jackets of covert coatings are very popular and fawn color seems to be a leading favorite; tight-fitting jackets of frieze cloth are extensively shown. Besides these, tweeds, serges, amazons and cheviots are popular materials, while a new cloth showing a brilliant ground of color over a camel-hairlike material is in the ascendency. Velveteens also promise well. There is a marked tendency toward the return of the long paletot. The favor shown capes is more marked this season than ever before; the popularity of the golf is so great that doubts are freely expressed as to its continued success. Another noted feature is the re-appearance of elaborately designed buttons. Cornflower blue, with reversible checks, is a favorite color for capes, and black plush seems also to be reviving. In long ulsters for children's wear the Dorothy shape is in the

The silk waist, or evening blouse as it is called here, bids fair to be an attractive feature; they have full bishop sleeves, while the front and back epaulettes are trimmed with black lace insertion.

The outlook for a large demand in fur garments is very promising. The low prices brought at the recent seal sales have placed this fur within the reach of popular demand and the result has been a revival. The three-quarter seal jacket will be a strong rival of the full length garment; full sleeves generally prevail. Necklets of sable are popular, and black fox is considered a fine trimming for cloaks and capes. Of trimmings in general a large assortment is seen in coque and ostrich feather strips, the coloring of which are in plain and many fancy mixtures. Beaver and astrakhan also remain in favor.

A French coat, similar to the men's smoking jacket, is a novelty. It is made of velvet and has an accompanying vest of the same or lighter material; the front is finished with box pleats and is closed with three buttons. Another stylish garment is a brown beaver coat trimmed with skunk, showing collars and cuffs of the same fur; it has pearl buttons, striped seams, and at pleats on the sides are the

One of the children's coats shown us was of velveteen in a new shade, trimmed with fur, showing a large collar and full sleeves. A red serge was also marked; it has the Cavalier collar. Another very stylish garment for the little girl is made of cream corduroy, and has a single cape trimmed with mouffon or a double cape of pique cloth

The tight-fitting paletot will grow in favor as the season advances. One of the leaders shows a new sleeve pleated to the elbow, the collar and revers of which may be sable, skunk or black fox, A fine plush jacket has the upper cape of jasper moire trimmed with ostrich feathers and jet passementerie. Another is the dolman shape, with the back fitting to the figure and a deep pleated cape, the long ends of which are trimmed with jet and passementerie. In seal jackets is a three-quarter with sable trimming; some are tight-fitting around the waist, with full skirt, while others fit close to the back and are open in

Capes are seen in unlimited variety. A pretty one is of soft tan beaver color, trimmed with blue fox; this trimming is also popular for a variety of checked back cloths. A cape characterized as the "Three Deeker" is also very widely shown. A pretty golf we saw was made by trimming a grap tweed or beaver serge with black fox fur. The Cavalry Capes in French gray, black, tan, brown and navy, showing fur collars are very popular with the young ladies, as are also the Broche vicuna cloaks lined with colored shot silk and trimmed with jet. A striking fur cape is in the butterfly shape, showing a high collar made of beaver, skunk, sable or otter. Leopard's hair in gray colors, spotted to represent the animal, is another novelty. Still another has a shoulder circlet of different furs such as otter, etc. with the head of the animal at one end and several tails at the other.

We remark upon the cleverness of a tea gown shown us. It is made of scarlet cashmere with a gathered black silk yoke. draped back and front with lace; the full front is ornamented with a bow and ends of black ribbon. A distinctive feature is the sleeve, which shows a full gathered puff to the elbow, then two frills and a smaller puff of black silk and light scare t cuffs to the wrist, the cuffs being turned back and faced with black silk.

A late novelty here is the handkerchief satchel, which is filled with these necessary articles ready for use. Also one in gloves, made in all shades with points and buttons to match. The chief feature is three small cords cords around the wrist, to match the buttons.-London Correspondence of the Cloak Review.

USED TO FORGET LETTERS.

A New York Man Invents a Device to Assist His Memory.

I have invented the "alwaysbefore-his-eye-wife's letter rack," which hooks over the ears, rests on the chin, and supports one or more letters on a line with the eyeballs, so that a husband provided with the device is glad to mail all letters intrusted to him in the first mail box he meets, says a New York Evening World correspondent. I contend that this "always-before-his-eyes wife's letter rack" is a boon. No husband with deep coat pockets and a poor memory should be permitted to roam around without one.

For the Health of the Eye. Everybody should have his own bed, towel, sponge and soap, make his hand toilet in running water, live and sleep in well-ventilated rooms, and come under the cleansing, refreshing influence of outdoor air and sunshine at least one hour every day of his life, for the health of his eyes. Roller towels, family wash rags and the habit of using a bath or basin of water a second time produce more disea eye and ear than all the fevers on the list of plagues. There are forty-three diseases of the eye and more than half are contagious. Fully twenty-five per cent. of the sore eyes among babies and young children, and eleven per cent. among adults, are preventable. The most common dis ease, granulation of the lids, is contagious, and should be quarantined. In the surgical wards of public and private institutions towels are frequently burned, and bandages and dressings always the moment after use. Cataract patients are put in separate rooms in isolated wards. In all serious cases surgeons change their clothes, and often wear inclosed specta-

Those who are much at home and have plenty of spare time will find an interesting occupation and a capital way to utilize old carpets by converting the pieces into mats. First cut the pieces of carpet about two and a-half inches wide, any length, just as your pieces will best cut. Then ravel out all the wool from the cotton very carefully, so that it will retain the crimpy effect. Of course, the pieces of wool will be the same length when raveled. Then take a piece of jute the size of desired mat and a good stout thread. Now take enough of these pieces of wool to make quite a bunch, perhaps eight to fourteen, and fasten them on by sewing over and over in their centre, letting the ends stick up. Crowd these bunches together rather closely and when you get it done you will have a rather pretty mat. You can make many charming designs, using different colors, or if the colors are put altogether, just as it happens, it will still be Machine and Hand Needlework. The difference between hand-wrought needlework and that done by machinery is regarded by most women as the difference between an art and an industry, and each is valued accordingly. The machine work, of course, approaches nearer to the model of exactness in execution, but it entirely lacks the impress of refinement and individuality of its creator, to which whatever artistic value handiwork may possess is due. There are vulgar souls who value such work solely because of its greater cost and because it cannot be afforded by many, but there are certainly others to whom the real artistic quality of handwrought embroidery laces appeal and to whom they give a delight impossible to machine-made articles. An engraving, if finely executed is beautiful in its way, but can never possess quite the significance and value of its personally wrought as well as personally conceived original .-House and Home.

ABOUT EATING SLOWLY

JEAN W. WYLEY WISELY DISCOURS-ETH IN HOUSE AND HOME.

The "Wonderful" Digestive Organs All

Succumb in Time to the "Gulp" Process of Eating-The Health and Culture Reasons for Eating Slowly.

There is much truth in the homely adage "one man's meat is another man's poison," says Jean W. Wylie in House and Home. Beyond all disputation the same things do not agree with every person, and one way of living certainly does not suit all equally well. And yet, after all, there are many things that are quite as beneficial to one as to another, or, at least would be if we only gave them a fair chance. And here we state positively that there is no one in the world who can "gulp" down either food or drink with impunity, although kind Mother Nature does sometimes seem slow in inflicting punishment for violating her law in this direction. We have beard more than one person asseverate in the strongest terms, "Oh, but my digestive organs are simply wonderful; I can eat anything and everything, and when and as I choose." In course of time, however, we have heard the same persons modify this statement very decidedly and bewail the fact that the "wonderful digestive organs" had at last gone off, as it were, on a strike and refused to work till they received better pay in the form of better treatment.

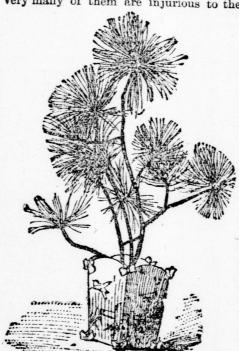

We have seen, too, both men and women literally rush in from work, seat themselves at the dinner-table and make way in a few minutes with a startling amount of food, and then rush back in similar haste to the office, store or school. And here again we have frequently been amazed at the wondrous longsuffering of Mother Nature, though in the end she was sure to give expression to her disapproval of this cruel treatment of the digestive organism.

In order to derive the full and proper benefit from our food, there is but one course to pursue-it must be thoroughly masticated and mixed with the saliva, and to do this it is absolutely essential to take only a small quantity into the mouth at once, and to chew it slowly. There is no exception to the rule: in this, as in all other cases, hurried work is poor work.

Childhood-early childhood-is the right time to begin the performance of this part of our daily task carefully, and every faithful parent should insist on each of his or her little ones eating slowly and chewing its food thoroughly. How much stronger and more durable the teeth would then be and how much less pain and suffering they would then cause. Apart, too, from the hygienic side of the question, how much prettier and finer the table manners of "the great majority" would be.

Everyone at the table should feel it his or her duty to take part in the conversation and to endeavor to make it cheery, entertaining and instructive. There is much criminal neglect in this direction. When scarcely a word is spoken save a request for more vegetables, another slice of meat, a little more tea or a cup of coffee there is really a strong temptation to hurry through with the routine of eating and drinking, and get away from the table as soon as possible. Such ill-bred haste, however, is never a gain-even of time-but in the end a genuine loss. Never be in such a hurry that you cannot do your part toward enlivening the meal with some interesting news, an amusing story or a flash of wit. Try it, and you will ere long find yourself falling into a more rational and much more polite way of eating, and you will be amply repaid by the pleasure you give others, as well as yourself, and the improvement you will notice in your health, even though you considered it good before.

Flowerpot Holders. Many and varied are the flowerpot holders and covers offered for sale; but, alas, very many of them are injurious to the

Here again comes the difficulty of paper covers seldom being in good taste, so we are pretty sure the following exception to the general rule here reproduced from Golden Days will be gladly welcomed by many readers. The cover in question is made of six cardboard divisions, each 8 inches high, and 5 inches wide at the top, and 31-2 at the bottom. These dimensions can, of course, be proportionately altered to suit any size of flowerpot. The divisions are united with bows of ribbon saved from cigar bundles. Each bow requires 11 inches, and a little Japanese picture is painted in water colors on the separate parts, black and white, with just a touch of red, being the prevailing tones. When one is not enough of an artist to make a water color sketch, the decoration can be applied by neatly pasting on each division an unmounted picture.

How to Make a Dainty and Artistic Toilet Tray Pincushion,

How to Repair Floors and Woodwork.

Your floor has great wide cracks and rough places. Such a floor is better painted than stained, although it is more trouble to fix it in the first place. Large cracks should be filled, and this is tiresome work. Putty is cheap and easy to get, and you can press it in with an old case-knife. If the blade of the knife is broken off half way it will be even better. Plaster of paris fills cracks, too, and when freshly wet up spreads like putty. Mix it up with a little cold water and it is ready for use, but mix only a little at a time, as it hardens rapidly. There is yet another mixture which you can make yourselves, and which is excellent. Shred up paper-newspaper or common wrapping paper-into bits, and pour boiling water over it. When it is soft stir into it a paste. Drain out the surplus water and add some glueabout two or three tablespoonfuls to a quart of the paste-and fill the cracks with it, being careful to trim off the tops smoothly. Otherwise your cracks will make ridges through the paint. When any of these fillings are dry, your floor is ready for painting. It is best to get the mixed paints that come prepared for use, or else get some kindly painter to mix it for you. It takes quite a little judgment and experience to know when paint is of the right thickness to spread well. Get the same painter to select your varnish, for there are many poor varnishes that will not dry, and you do not want to get into any such trouble. Dark brown or red paint make the prettiest Hoors, as the tints can be made to look like black walnut, or cherry, by cautiously adding lamp-black. Be sure to wear your oldest clothes when you are painting, and do not scatter your paint, brushes, and pails around. Keep them as far out of the way and as far out of the smell as possible. Else everyone will wish you had never begun to decorate your room. Wear old loose gloves. They will keep your hands clean, and perhaps save blisters.—Harper's Young People.

If you go out in the rain, come in with wet feet and sit down to work without changing your shoes, expect to take cold; you will be almost certain not to be disappointed! If you are always finding out the faults and weaknesses of your companions and associates instead of their virtues and their loveable points, be very sure you will not be greatly admired or beloved; the world does not care much about cynics and faultfinders!

If you carry sunshine and cheer with you and help daily to lighten the loads with which you must constantly come in contact, you may look for friends on every side and you will be sure to find them! If you persist in eating and drinking what you know does not agree with you, or if you will not take time to masticate your food properly, you may expect to have dyspepsia of every kind, the ordinary varieties and mental and spiritual as well, with all their concomitant evils! If you really want to help reform the world begin with yourself!

How Colors Are Obtained.

A well-known artist has given some curious information regarding the sources from which the colors one finds in a paint box are derived. Every quarter of the globe is ransacked or the material-animal, vegetable and mineral-employed in their manufacture.

From the cochineal insects are obtained the gorgeous carmine and purple lakes. Sepia is the inky fluid discharged by the cuttle fish to render the water opaque for its concealment when attacked.

Indian yellow is from the camel. Ivory black and bone black are made out of ivory chips.

The exquisite Prussian blue is obtained by fusing horses' hoofs and other refuse animal matter with impure potassium carbonate. It was discovered by an acci-

In the vegetable kingdom are included the lakes, derived from roots, barks and Blue-black is from charcoal of the vine stalk.

Lampblack is soot from certain resinous substances. From the madder plant, which grows in Hindoostan, is manufactured Turkey red.

One day, while walking in London, he saw in the window of a picture-dealer a good specimen of his own work. Stepping inside, he asked the name of the

The salesman said the picture was a genuine Landseer and one of the best he ever painted. Taking up the picture and critically examining it, Landseer asked if the dealer would warrant it.

"Most certainly," replied the salesman, 'and what is more, he'll never paint another."

"How's that?" asked the painter. "Gone, sir, gone," answered the man, putting his finger to his forehead; gone, sir, completely off his head, and not likely ever to recover."

Landseer hurried out that he might have a good laugh without betraying his iden and diseased friends, that there is no other statements made."

Laidlaw, LL.D., is pastor. Some months ago, to the great grief and consternation of Mr. and Mrs. McIntosh; their son Aleck was stricken down with a errible swelling of the limbs and throat. Notwithstanding the fact that the boy was under the care of an able and experienced doctor, his condition became most alarming. At this juncture a consultation was held by three of the leading physicians of the city and the result was that Aleck was sent to the hospital, where he might have all the advantages of medical skill, and the constant attention of trained nurses. At the end of four weeks Aleck's condition was more alarming than ever, and his parents were assured that there was no possible chance of recovery for their dear boy. He lay on his hospital bed perfectly helpless, and so swollen from head to foot that he was unrecognizable.

The sorrowing parents, feeling that there was no hope, and that the hand of death had securely grasped their loved boy, wished to have him die in their home. As he was being taken from the hospital, those in charge expressed sorrow that nothing more could be done for the dying

While at home, and at the point of death, a kind neighbor called to see him. A thought-a revelation-came to her mind. A joyous hope filled her motherly heart as she gazed on the dying boy, and witnessed the intense grief of the parents. She remembered having herself used in an extreme case that great life-giver and health-restorer. Paine's Celery Compound. Would it meet this case where the vital spark was almost extinguished? Yes, she had faith that it would. The use of Paine's Celery Compound was suggested to the parents. "Ah! yes, try it-anything-if dear Aleck's life can be saved."

The wondrous Compound was immediately procured and properly administered. The first dose produced results that gave the parents hope. There was a virtue in this medicine that no other remedy ever contained. The boy lived, and the medicine was continued from day to day with results that gave joy and gladness. By the time the fourth bottle was finished young Aleck McIntosh was well, and all his troubles banished. To-day he is as strong and robust as any boy of his age in the city. All the physicians look upon the cure as a marvelous one, and the whole staff of St. Joseph's Hospital rejoice at the lad's re-

"Our son Alexander was taken with swelling of the limbs, and in a few days after the throat was similarly affected. At this stage he was confined to his bed for about two weeks, when he became somewhat better. A short time after he got worse, the swelling affecting his whole body and limbs, He continued in bed under the close attention of one of our best doctors, when a consultation of three leading physicians was held and we were informed that the case was so serious that Aleck would have to go to the hospital where the experience and skill of the whole staff of physicians could be employed and where trained nurses would be in attendance day and night.

"For four long weeks our boy suffered and battled heroically with his disease. At the end of that time we were assured that there was no possible chance of recovery. Everything had been done that could be done, even to tapping, under which operation two gallons of water were taken from the body. For two weeks after this operation he lay perfectly helpless and so swollen from head to foot as to be unrecog-

HOW THE GIRLS ARE TAUGHT TO RIDE A WHEEL PROPERLY.

A Young Man Who Patiently Instructs Them-How He Does It-The First Vault on the Safety and a Sudden Curve to

"Do come with me this morning," ex. claimed a slender young woman, as she excitedly greeted a friend on Wabash avenue yesterday morning. "I am going to take my first lesson in bicycle siding.

"What, you ride the bicycle?" The emphasis on the you was inde-

"Yes, I," replied the slender one, with a dramatic wave of the arm, "even I." "Please don't say anything," she added quickly. "I know I've said all manner of awful things about women who Tide the wheel, but I am willing to forget them now and I wish you would too.

Consistency may be a jewel," she went on. "but it is not progressive. The woman that clings to consistency never gets on, and I am bound to progress if I have to mount a bicycle to do so. Besides, it's quite the proper caper now. The very swellest girls are riding, and I am not going to be left out of all the road and nutting parties that will rage next month. They say it is hard to balance oneself at first, but if the other girls can keep on, I can. Do come.

Here we are now." The two young women stopped for a moment to inspect the shining wheels in the big show window before disappearing down the basement stairway beneath. It was rather dark in the room they entered, the electric lights seeming dim after the brilliant sunshine outside. "This is lovely, isn't it?" said the beaming enthusiast as she viewed the padded walls and the mattress-wrapped posts down the centre of the room. "Just see; you can bump into everything and never get hurt." "But the floor." suggested her more conservative companion; "I should imagine that that would be the most likely to trouble me in case of a

"The young lady will not fall, miss," interposed the dark-eyed instructor as he took a wide belt from the back of a chair. "I will see to it that there will be no falls if the young lady will put this around her waist and then follow my instructions closely."

The enthusiast donned the belt with the help of her friend, who tugged at the stiff leather strap to bring it snugly about the small waist.

"Now the first thing I want to say," began the instructor as he slipped one hand through the long loop stitched to the outside of the belt and held a bicycle with the other, "is never to let go the handle-bar."

"That will be easy enough, I am sure," remarked his pupil, "but perhaps I could hold it better if my gloves were off."

Then finger by finger the yellowish gloves are removed, the instructor meanwhile patiently clasping both belt strap and bicycle. The last little finger is uncovered and the gloves are finally tossed to the friend.

"Now I am ready," announces the young woman.

"Remember, please, never to let go the handle bar," again admonishes the instructor. "Put your right foot on the pedal first, at the same time carrying your dress skirt over as far as you can. There, now you're all right.'

The pupil vaults into the saddle and the wheels begin to revolve. "Where is the place for my other foot?" she shrieks, pawing the air wildly with the unsettled member,

"It's there all right. Put your foot on the pedal as it comes up. Whizz! bump! crash! Deathly silence for a second.

"Are you hurt, dear?" anxiously inquires the alarmed witness of the encounter between post and wheel. "I think not," dubiously replies a faint voice from the confused heap on the floor. The disentanglement of post, wheel, pupil and instructor begins. The last does not look particularly amiable as he helps the future bicycler to her feet and brushes the light dust from his coat. "How stupid of me," apologized the pupil, but, growing technical, "where was that other pedal? Are you sure it is on?" examining the recumbent wheel. "Yes, it is here all right," shortly replies the young man. "Now please do as I tell you. Hold on to the handlebar no matter what happens." "Why, of course I can do that if the pedal will only act properly. It always goes down at the wrong time and comes up when I am not looking for it." "Don't mind the pedal, I say, just hang on to the handle bar." This admonition is given very emphatically. The bicycle is placed upright, the young man slips his hand through the strap at the slender waist and the young woman mounts again. This time there is too much skirt flying to the left, for which compensation is found in a three inch view of tan silk stocking on the opposite side for that front wheel I know I could ride splendidly. Is that really necessary?" The question is put with a most winning smile. "Not at all, miss. It is only a question of knowing how to balance yourself. See here is a single wheel, and I'll keep it going."

A tall wheel with short pedals is rolled away from the wall and the instructor leaps lightly across it. He whirls around a post several times in short circles, sawing the air with his arms in order to keep his balance.

"Oh, I never could ride one of those; it would be so horribly ungraceful. I think the two-wheeled ones are prettier when one is on the right kind of terms with the front one. But didn't I do well for a first lesson?" this to her friend who begins to unfasten the leather belt. "I suppose I'll feel stiff and queer tomorrow; the girls all say they do the day after the first lesson. "Thank you so much," to the young man. "I hope I didn't tax you too much. But now I come to think about it, where were my feet? I don't remember much about them; you only talked about that absurd handle bar."

"The handle-bar is the main thing to understand, miss; your feet will take care of themselves.'

The young man bows the chattering enthusiast and her observant friend up the stairway. Echoes of "green short skirts," "tan leather leggings," "close caps" and "tan leather vests" come back to his ears as he straightens out the practice wheel for the next fair rider.-Chicago Tribune.

THE HANGMAN OF PARIS.

A Much-Hated Individual, Who Is Master

of His Business. Deibler, the Parisian hangman, or 'Monsieur de Paris," as he is often called, is naturally unpopular among his countrymen, although on one occasion he was received courteously and welcomed by the citizens of the place where he was about to show his expert ability as an executioner. This was at Rouen, where he went to guillotine a man named Gamelin, who had brutally murdered a little girl. The feeling against the scoundrel was so strong that Deibler was respectfully saluted by the populace as he went from his hotel to the place of execution. "Monsieur de Paris" is a thorough master of his grewsome calling, and says he never felt at all nervous on the scaffold except when taking part in the execution of Ravachol, the anarchist. After this noted criminal had been bound he was put into the hearse to be conveyed to the place of execution, some distance in the town. Though perfectly livid, he began howling a vile song and kept it up till sembled, but the assistant executioners forced him on the bascule. The howls and imprecations of the anarchist continued with such fury that Deibler for a few moments became unnerved, but he speedily recovered himself. He released the knife, and as it whizzed down the groove the crowd heard the anarchist shout: "Vivela repu-" The official standing by the guillotine affirmed that as the head dropped into the basket the lips distinctly emitted the concluding syllable "blique." Kept His Promise. Richard Vaux, the venerable ex congressman from Pennsylvania, has never been to a theatre in his life to see a theatrical performance, says a Philadelphia Times. An interesting incident is given of his boyhood days over three score years ago. His father, a highly respected and prominent Friend, resided on Arch street, and believed it was best for his children to be trained within the rules of the good old Quaker habits. At that period Ned Forrest was the brilliant young American tragedian and had captivated all the boys of Philadelphia in his character of the Roman Gladiator and big Indian Metamora. Young Vaux naturally desired to see the great actor play, but shrank from going without his father's consent, so one day he ventured to ask his father for fifty cents to get a ticket. The old gentleman kindly replied in Quaker accent: "Richard, I don't begrudge the money, but thee knows I don't approve of playhouses, and wish thee to promise me not to go to a theatre without my permission." The promise was given and his father died suddenly soon after without giving the permission. Richard Vaux has conscientiously refrained from going the theatre

America's First Saving Bank. The first savings bank in America was the Philadelphia Savings Fund Society, organized in 1816. It is still in existence. Later, in 1816, a savings bank was founded in Boston and in 1819 one was started in New York. A savings bank is a bank in which savings are received-small amounts, waich the bank will not pay out except on presentation of the bank book. A national bank is one which, besides its ordinary powers, rights and duties as a bank, has the right to issue bank notes. National banks were authorized by various acts of congress in 1863, 1864 and 1883. The plan of the government was to get the banks to buy government bonds, and to do so it gave them the right to issue notes to the amount of 90 per cent of those they had bought. A savings bank is not a bank of deposit; apart from its character as an issuer of notes, a national bank OBSERVATIONS BY KITES. Securing a Better Knowledge of the Air's Upper Currents.

More accurate weather prediction will probably result from a closer and better knowledge of the upper air currents, and with this and other objects in view efforts have been made for some time to obtain reliable observations of the upper air. In April last H. H. Clayton, of the Bluehill Observatory, at Mass., began some experiments with kites at the suggestion of Professor Langley, of the Smithsonian Institution, in the endeavor to reach an altitude of 10,000 feet. Mr. Clayton, in an article in the Scientific American, says the following: There are several obstacles to the use of kites which I found it necessary to overcome. First, the instability of the hexagon kite with a tail. It is an ordinary characteristic of the wind to increase from a calm to 20 miles an hour in two hours. These variations cause the tail kite to dive and become totally unmanageable, as every school boy knows. Professor C. F. Marvin, of the Weather Bureau, found by experiments that gusts may suddenly increase the pressure upon a flat disk 35 per cent.

E. Douglas Archibald, of the Royal Meteorological Society, revived the scientific use of the kite in 1884, and contributed an account of his experiments to Nature in 1886. By means of two kites, diamond shaped, respectively four and seven feet in diameter, covered with Tussore silk, he achieved an altitude of 2200 feet, and carried up anemometers registering the wind velocity at various heights on the kite string. The kites flown by Archibald were placed one above the other on the same string, but the upper one was probably attached to the back of the lower, because he speaks of the movement of the lower kite being injured in its freedom of movement by the pull of the upper, a result which I verified by experiment at Bergen Point, N. J., in

In the summer of 1890, while experimenting with hexagon tail kites at Bergen Point, I found that the best tandem system was not to fasten one kite to the back of other, but to give each kite its individual string and allow it to branch which it is impossible at present to eluciupward from a main line. This method was so successful that on May 9, 1891, at Bergen Point, with a 10 or 12-mile wind from the west and with five hexagon tail kites to lift the main line, the top kite became a very distant speck, estimated at 4000 feet high by those looking on, although no triangulation of the altitude was made. I have since became convinced that the probable altitude was 6000 feet, but, as it was not measured, I have not so far included it in my records of altitude. The hexagon tail kites carry up a wonderfully steep the guillotine was reached. He endeav- string, but they call for long individual ored to address the enormous crowds as- lines to each kite to prevent the kite tail from becoming entangled with the line excel them. I have Malay tailless kites which would bring to the ground a tail

Since the Malay kite has only two light sticks and can be built of very light paper as well as cloth, it is at home in mild winds of from four to eight miles an hour. Especially thin kites, without even the weight of cord at the edges, will rise to a great height in a dead calm, if the person holding the line walks at the rate of about three miles an hour. The cloth-covered kites are much heavier, for use in strong

I carried to the observatory, which is at the summit of Blue Hill, 640 feet above sea level, fifteen tissue paper kites, to be flown with silk thread. My object was to reach an altitude of 5,000 feet with the top kite at Blue Hill, with small tissue paper kites, and then to place these light kites above a heavy tandem line at Bergen Point, N.J., which had already a record of 5,595 feet on November 7, 1893. The two tandem lines, one above the other, ought to reach a height of two miles, with not over twenty kites. But I found the construction of small kites far more difficult than the large ones, and that in ten days it would be impossible to perfect the apparatus. The highest altitude was made by the topmost of seven kites, on August 1, when a height was triangulated of 3,540 feet above the hill, or 4,180 feet above sea level.

Life Sustaining Fruits, In replying to the query of whether there are any fruits which of themselves are sufficient to support healthy life an exchange says: There are many such, among which may be mentioned the date, banana and plantain, figs when dried, the bean of the caroh, or locust tree, and the fruit of the boababor monkey bread tree, which is eaten by the negroes in West Africa. All these contain sufficient fat, sugar, starch, pecten, gum and nitrogenous matter to support healthy life. Of all these preference must be given to the banana, which supplies to many millions a per manently nutritive food, and to the fruit of the date palm, or Phenix dactylifera, which serves as an exclusive article of aliment in parts of North Africa, Arabia and Persia. "In all Fezzan," says one authority, "the date is the staple food not only for men, but for camels, horses and dogs. Nineteen-twentieths of the population live on dates alone during nine months of the year." In hadji or pilgrimages the price of dates at Mecca and Medina forms the first question asked between the Arab pilgrims going to and returning from the sacred city. Cakes of dates pounded and kneaded into a solid mass constitute the main nutriment of the caravans crossing the Sahara. From the fresh juice of the date wine and also vinegar are made and spirit distilled, while the stones or seeds are roasted and largely used instead of coffee -Pittsburg Dispatch.

HOUSEWIFE. KAISER'S

A CHARACTER SKETCH OF EX-CHAN-CELLOR VON CAPRIVI-

Blood, but No Iron in Him-The Salient Points in the Personality of a Statesman Who Has Just Stepped Down and

"Meine Herren, Wir gehen einer sehr lang Weiligen Zeit entgegen." ("Gentlemen, we have very dull times ahead of us.") So said General Caprivi soon after his appointment in 1890 to a circle of legislative friends. Germany's exciting period, her birth throes and precarious childhood had passed away. The ship of state had weathered the storms and danger of her early voyages, and had at last reached a broad expanse of placid water. Freed from their long struggle with the elements, the crew were now able to turn their full attention to cleaning and trimming the

"Sir," thundered Dr. Johnson, "knowledge is of two kinds-what you know yourself or what you know where to find." The young Emperor had, like his father, an instinct for the man who could best serve him and the state. Such a man he found pre-eminently in Von Caprivi. "Er ist vornehm, klug und mir ergeben, und was wollen Sie mehr?" (The man is of high breeding, clever and devoted to me, and what more could one want?) Since his appointment the German nation has watched his career with ever-increasing appreciation. He has reaped nothing but golden opinions from all. When he stepped into the shoes of "The Man of Iron and Blood," he was a "novus homo," and even more of a mystery and risk than his Imperial master, but now his reputation as a statesman is secure. Now comes the startling announcement that the Emperor has accepted the resignations of both Chancellor von Caprivi and Count zu Eulenberg and has appointed Prince Hohenlohe as Chancellor of the German Empire and Premier of Prussia the officers from which these two have respectively stepped down and out. There is reason to believe that an unavailing attempt on the part of the Emperor to compose the differences between the Chancellor and Count zu Eulenberg was one of the causes that determined his momentious decision, but it can hardly be doubted that there were other causes, date, that led to the resignations. His fight to prevent the adoption of the views of extremists in regard to measures to repress Socialists and Socialism is of too recent date to need extended mention. He insisted upon the adoption of a moderate policy, and it is said the Emperor agreed

Count zu Eulenberg is reported to have strenuously opposed anything but radical measures, and several times it has been reported that the difference of opinion between himself and the Chancellor would lead to the resignation of one or both. The prediction has proved to be true.

A Pen-Portrait of Caprivi. In personal appearance Von Caprivi is & Teuton of the hugest and most impressive type. He might very well pass for a dupbelow. Very high altitudes and valu- licate of Prince Bismarck himself. The able meteorological records can be made resemblance between the two men is most with them, but the Malay tailless kites of the two. And then he has the same that fly with a steeper string than the hexagon and require no hauling down bushy eyebrows. His neck is thick, his if the wind increases from eight to head square and solid, his glance shrewd thirty-five miles an hour-conditions and penetrating. His air is that of unquestionable command combined with the polished suavity of a "fin de siecle" statesman.

Bismarck treads mechanically and heavily like a trooper. General Caprivi's gait is deliberate and elegant, while not lacking in "verve" or emphasis. The whole appearance of the latter proves him to be a man of great force of character and will, blending sagacity with patience, resolution with good humor, and southern fire with a German thoroughness and exactitude. He combines in an unusual degree the "suaviter in modo" with the "fortiter in re."

Bismarck rarely went into general society and rarely, if ever, appeared in the streets. General Caprivi entertained freely and even promiscuously and accepted invitations unrestrictedly. Berlin society knew him well and felt that he was of, as well as among, them. He was noted for his wide range of acquaintances and his familiarity with all his subordinates. Although he never married and was even shy of ladies when a young lieutenant, he was as polished and fastidious in his manners as if he had always lived under the refining influence of women. His polish was one which is never acquired in German camps and barracks. As a speaker Caprivi was superior to Bismarck. The latter had personal weight, the witching spell of a great name, grand carnestness. His words were winged, his patriotism lofty, his loyalty ardent, his power of repartee instantaneous and crushing. But as an offset, his voice was poor, his manner far from suave or polished and the construction of his sentences interminable. His temper was abominable. Caprivi was one of the very best speakers in the Reichstag-terse, cultured, insinuating, forcible, perspicacious and convincing. Von Moltke founded the great modern school of prose writers in Germany. These pupils were taught to speak as they wrote and to write as they spoke. Not the professional writers of the nation, but its professional soldiers—their general staff training bestowed upon them the art of narration in its clearest, simplest and most effective form.

Such soldier-orators, and Von Caprivi was "facile princeps," blended diffidence with audacity and deference with authority. They paid disarming compliments instead of downright cuts, and pleased where they failed to persuade.

Bismarck piled up his matter Cyclopswise -Pelion upon Ossa. Fence and humor and memorable phrases were the dialectical architecture of his successor. In his debate on the East African question before the Reichstag he proposed a "Bullet and Bible" policy as the most efficacious in exterminating the slave trade-the "open sore of Africa."

Caprivi's power of continuous work has been greater than Bismarck's. His judgment is as sound and his knowledge as comprehensive. He had always good taste and fine tact. Bismarck was a mighty fighter and lived in an epoch of battle. Caprivi's battles have been those of diplomacy and peace.

As Good a Hint To-Day as Then. Sixty years ago the incumbent of a church in Hull used to be called Vicar Bromby. Just after the passage of the first reform bill, in 1832, he preached a sermon in which he uttered this wholesome Socratic passage: "In these days we hear a great deal about reform. Let me give you a piece of advice: The best reform is to make one person better. I need not say who that person should be."

POINTS ABOUT POTATOES.

Different Varieties and How They May Be Readily Distinguished.

To the majority of people there are only two classes of potatoes, the good and the poor. Farmers recognize four principal classes, but with the experts who make a study of their development the classes go far beyond such a simple division, while the number of varieties is something overwhelming to a novice in potato lore. At the recent Industrial there were over 200 varieties shown.

Experiments which are now being carried on to increase the quantity of starch in the potato have met with great success.

In Canada attection has been directed rather to the production of new varieties than to improvement by selection within a variety. These new varieties are produced every year, and when one is grown that has some quality which makes it superior to preceding sorts, it is sure to find a foothold with potato growers and so takes its place as a market variety in the class to which it belongs.

Most of these varieties are the product of careful crossing of the best sorts and the gradual development of the resulting seedlings. When one is produced that possesses such characteristics as to separate it from all its predecessors, it becomes the founder of a new class. Each variety derived from it, and resembling it more or less, is given a name to distinguish it from other varieties, but all belong to the same class.

so that while growers recognize both variety and class, dealers acknowledge

The four principal classes are the Burbank, Hebron, Rose and Peerless, the three first being for fall and winter use and the last for spring and early summer. In deciding what varieties to plant, it is well to consider the demands of the market which is expected to furnish buyers, and the kind of soil and treatment required. Each variety has its likes and dislikes, and it will pay the grower to gratify them.

In order to distinguish the different types of potatoes, it may be said that the Burbank class includes all white kidney-shaped potatoes, the leading varieties at this time being "Morning Star," "White Star," "Dandy," "White Flower," "Dutton's Seedling," etc.

The Hebron class includes all fleshcolored or pink and white mottled potatoes, the principal varieties being "White Elephant," "June Eating," "Gen. Garfield," "Albino," etc.

The Rose class includes all red potatoes, but is subdivided into three important sections. The first, illustrated, is made up of all red or rose-colored potatoes that are short and cylindrical in form, as "Early Electric," "Early Mar-ket," "New Zealand," "Everett's Six Weeks," etc.

The second division of the Rose class resembles in shape the Burbank, but the color is red instead of white. The present prominent varieties are "Summit," "Pearl of Savoy," "New York Central" and "Paris Rose."

The third section of the Rose class includes all the other shapes and sizes of red potatoes, such as "Dakota Seedling," "Dakota Red," "Ideal," "Maggie Murphy," etc.

The shape of all potatoes of the fourth or Peerless class is round or oval. As this description is somewhat misleading they may better be defined as large, flat potatoes, being much broader and longer than they are thick. Potatoes of the Peerless class are not generally marketed until spring on account of their superior keeping qualities. The prominent varieties are "Rural Blush," red: "Rural New Yorker," No. 2, white; and "Blue Victor," dark bluish purple in color. The best all round white potato is the "Rural New Yorker," No. 2. It is prolific, vigorous and of excellent quality, while most of the tubers are of a medium and merchantable size

DRAINING A SWAMP.

The Depth and Capacity of Drains That Will Do It.

A correspondent of the Country Gentleman makes this statement and propounds his queries: I am draining a swamp which in some places is muck down three feet and in others not more than two feet, and then it is hardpan. How deep should I lay tile in order to drain it, and how large tile had I better use? The paper answered: The land spoken of is difficult to drain because of the varied character of the soil. If the drains are not placed much below the hardpan where it comes nearest the surface, then the moisture from the places where the muck is deep will often rise to the surface by capillary at-

The objects in draining are many; one is, to carry off the stagnant water in the soil, and another to prevent cold water from rising to the surface by capillary attraction where, by evaporation, the land is cooled and the growth of many of the cultivated plants arrested. In the land described the drains should be laid 31 feet deep and not more than 40 feet apart. One thousand tiles will be sufficient for an acre. Before entering upon the work a few rules should be carefully observed in underdraining

The work should be well done. If there is danger of silt entering the joints of the tiles, strips of tarred building paper 2 by 4 inches wide, should encircle the joints for three-fourths of their upper circumferences. Avoid so far as possible mains and sub-mains; that is, do not join the drains, but make each one parallel or nearly so, to the others, even if the drains have to depart from a straight line, or deep digging has to be resorted to in order to get through high knolls.

Figs. 1 and 2 show the two systems of draining. It will be seen that the main drain in Fig. 1 is not a drain, but a conduit for carrying off water. In some cases these mains are not to be avoided. In that case they should always be a few inches deeper than the laterals and the laterals should enter near the top of the main and at a sharp angle, in order that the flow of water in the main may not be disturbed. In case the laterals enter at right angles or nearly so to the main drain, the capacity of it is reduced, so that it is not difficult to reduce it one half by a little carelessness or by a lack of knowledge of the principles of good

It is always safest to use pipe tile. For a long while in England inch pipes were used, but they had to be furnished with collars in order to keep the joints in perfect line. It was found in practice that a little larger tile without collars was quite as cheap and just as efficient.

Where drains are laid deep and without a fair amount of descent, a two inch tile will carry the water of 2,000 to 5,000 linear feet of drain. From 5,000 to 15.-000 feet a three inch pipe will be required. This of course means that the drains are to carry off only the water which falls upon the land; if additional water is to be carried, then the tiles must be increased in size accordingly. In spongy land, or where it is difficult to get a firm foundation for the tiles. two methods are in vogue. Boards of about six inches width of some fairly durable wood are laid upon the yielding bottom of the ditch. The tiles are laid upon these boards, and where clay is handy they may be partially imbedded with it. In other cases the smaller tiles are placed instead of larger onesthat is, the large tiles are made to serve as collars to keep the tile in line and from sinking. In any case, it may be said that too much pains can hardly be taken in draining this class of land. In time, as the water is carried from the land, the parts of the ditch where no clay is present will be inclined to sink, while the other parts do not; so it might be well to give the ditch extra fall where it leaves the peaty land and enters upon the clay. To give all the information that is desired, a map of the land should have been furnished, giving the size of the field, its surroundings, and the direction of the outlet. My advice to the questioner is to spend a great deal of time upon planning the work before entering upon it. If well done, it will last for a century; if badly done, it is often more expensive to repair the ditch than it was to lay it at the first.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON VI, FOURTH QUARTER, INTER-NATIONAL SERIES, NOV. 11.

Text of the Lesson, Mark iii, 6-19-Memory Verses, 13-15 - Golden Text, John xv, 16-Commentary qy the Rev. D. M.

6. "And the Pharisees went forth and straightway took counsel with the Herodians against Him, how they might destroy Him." In Luke vi, 11, it is written that after Jesus healed the man in the synagogue with the withered hand on the Sabbath "they were filled with madness." The Pharisees and Herodians stand for religious hypocrisy and worldliness. A hypocrite must be an enemy of Christ, for He is truth itself and light and without guile, while James tells us plainly that "the friendship of the world is enmity with God," and John says that "the whole world lieth in the wicked one."

7. "But Jesus withdrew Himself with His disciples to the sea, and a great multitude from Galilee followed Him." Worldliness and hypocrisy cause Jesus to withdraw Himself. Religious formalism will never draw the people who are hungering for something that is real. The world with all its unreality has nothing to offer such, but they will follow Jesus to the seashore, or the Salvation Army barracks, or the humblest place of worship where the simple gospel is preached by such as live it out in daily life.

8. "And from Judæa, and from Jerusalem, and from Idumea, and from beyond Jordan, and they about Tyre and Sidon, a great multitude, when they had heard what great things He did, came unto Him." He Himself said, "The works that I do bear witness of Me that the Father hath sent Me" (John v, 36). If there is none of His works in our lives, how can we prove that we are His?

9. "And He spake to His disciples that a small ship should wait on Him, because of the multitude, lest they should throng Him." It is not to the careless, aimless, surging crowd that He reveals Himself and makes His power known, but to such as seek Him with humility of mind and definiteness of aim. His word is always true, "Ye shall seek Me and find Me when ye search for Me with all your heart" (Jer. xxix, 13).

10. "For He had healed many, insomuch that they pressed upon Him for to touch Him, as many as had plagues." It was the healing of the body they sought, not the deeper and more serious healing of the soul. Yet He healed many, for He had compassion upon them, and it was His custom as He healed to preach the word (Math. iv, 23).

11. "And unclean spirits, when they saw Him, fell down before Him and cried, saying, Thou art the Son of God." These demons from the pit knew Him and testified as to who He was, while men knew Him not and received Him not, though they saw His works. In the first chapter of Isaiah He bad said long before that the dumb brutes, the ox and the ass, put His people in Israel to shame.

12. "And He straitly changed them that they should not make Him known." wants no help from them. In John v He says that His Father, and His works, and His word all bear witness unto Him. The light is His witness, for God is light, and in Him is no darkness at all. We cannot be in full fellowship with Him if we seek honor of men rather than the honor which cometh from God only. May His approval be everything to us, and our great ambition to be well pleasing in His sight (John v, 44; II Tim. ii, 15; II Cor. v, 9, R. V.

13. "And He goeth up into a mountain and calleth unto Him whom He would, and they came unto Him." In Luke vi, 12, it is written that He continued all night in prayer to God. He did nothing without much prayer. Are we in any measure like Him in this? After prayer He chose a few out of many to make them a blessing to many (John xv, 16.) Election is always the choosing of some that others through them may be benefited.

14. "And He ordained twelve, that they should be with Him, and that He might send them forth to preach." In the last verse we emphasized "unto Him." Let us here emphasize "with Him" and "forth to preach." Having come unto Him, we must abide with Him in order to be qualified to go forth to preach. "Abide thou with me, fear not," said David to Abiathar (I Sam. xxii, 23), assuring Him that whoever touched the one life touched the

15. "And to have power to heal sicknesses and to cast out devils." His commission in Math. x, 7, 8, reads, "As ye go preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand; heal the sick; cleanse the lepers, raise the dead; cast out devils. Freely ye have received, freely give." While to the 70 He said, "I give you power over all the power of the enemy, and nothing shall by any means hurt you" (Luke x, 19). See what high authority for medical missions, "Preach the gospel; heal the sick.'

16. "And Simon He surnamed Peter." The account of this change of name is found in John i, 42, and reminds us of the change of Abram to Abraham and Jacob to Israel. It is suggestive of the old and the new, the natural and the spiritual. Petros, which is always the word translated Peter, means a piece or fragment of stone, while Petra, on which Christ said He would build His church (Math. xvi, 18), means a large rock, a ledge, a cliff. It is used in reference to Christ in I Cor. x, 4; I Pet. ii, 8. He never said He would build His church on Petros (the man Peter), but on Petra, the solid rock, even Himself and His truth.

17. "And James, the son of Zebedee, and John, the brother of James, and He surnamed them Boanerges, which is the sons of thunder." Young says in his Concordance that this word signifies "sons of rage, soon angry," and refers to their flery zeal, signs of which may be seen in Luke ix, 54, and Mark ix, 38. They, with Peter and the others who were true disciples, were completely changed when filled with the spirit at Pentecost.

18. "And Andrew and Philip and Bartholomew and Matthew and Thomas and James, the son of Alpheus, and Thaddeus and Simon, the Canaanite." Andrew was one of the first two who followed Jesus when John the Baptist cried, "Behold the Lamb of God," and then he brought Simon (John i, 40, 41). Jesus Himself sought Philip, and then Philip brought Nathanael, supposed to be the same as Bartholomew (John i, 43-45).

19. "And Judas Iscariot, which also betrayed Him, and they went into an house." This is a last which shall never be first. He was numbered with them and had obtained part of the ministry (Acts i, 17). but Jesus knew he was a wicked one when He chose him (John vi, 70). Had he been truly one of them he would have sontinued with them (I John ii, 89).

prize medal was cheerfully awarded to the writer last year, at Chicago, by a competent committee, for the most picturesque display of roads. I do not say this boastfully, but because it may encourage others to make a similar collection.

Western North Carolina is very mountainous and therefore a beautiful country, the soil in most instances being a cheerful red, similar to the shade adopted for second-hand cook stoves These vermillion roads wrap themselves around the mountains of Buncombe

County in graceful sweeps, or pour Venetian red cascades over the ridges and hog-backs of Catawba

County. Many of these roads liquify and run over the farms, or slip down into the fields during a shower, and remain there to be called for. I have two stray roads still on my estate that lodged there after a long wet spell in April. The methods of building and repairing roads here are not adopted elsewhere, except along the shores of Lake Victoria Nyanza in South Africa. When the roads are too wet, large irregular stones, ranging from the size of Daniel Webster's head to that of the pee wee egg, are placed in this mud where they disappear, yet may be noticed plainly by be likely to discourage our people, and others who are suffering as I was know all ing which time my wagons have been renewed. Landaus and Victorias are not used much here, but a hickory crotch is attached to an axle-tree of some hard and tenacious wood; a pair of cast off wheels from the wreck of a fourwheel wagon completes the trap, unless one should be high-spirited and want a box, in which case, a common quail trap is nailed on the axle. I enclose herewith a photograph of a machine suited to these roads. It was taken two years ago and shows the wagon looking west.

Naturally the resident here is content with things as he finds them-or as they find him. If a wood tick or a Buncombe County flea should attack a man who equirts a yellow stream into his whiskers, he waits till his whiskers dry and then he is ready for another dose. He also raises whiskers of a color which matches the clay, and so it is not noticed. The corduroy road was also originated in this county. After several generaof the people here are entirely destitute of riding on cordurov roads. But the material for making roads loose, earthy or other fine material be here is good. In fact, that is about mixed with the stones they cannot all that it is good for. The roads are in a sad plight after a long rain and look like a neglected candy pull. I feel very sadly this condition of affairs, for where the climate is so healthful that people under 115 years of age attract no attention it seems a sin to take our pullets to market aboard a roan heifer. We have a glorious climate the year round, and people come here from the four corners of the earth to get rid of their tuburcles; but the roads are so rough that one has to hold in his broader principles with one hand and his appendicitis with the other for miles at a time. If Congress—but that's out of the question when Congress has been in perpetual session for a year, and has developed nothing but paresis. We must go to the polls this year and the next, and the next, with Good Roads at the top of our ticket, and live or die, elect only those men who promise us upon their sacred honor that this platform and this battle cry alone shall

I'm not much of a politician, but we had better stop sending bibles to other nations until we have something to show for roads aside from a long cow trail of dead horses, bleached bones and turkey buzzards outlining a loud smelling quagmire that a barbarian and a cannibal would scorn to use as a war path.-Bill Nye, in Good Roads.

PATHMASTERS.

How Prof. Shaler, of Harvard University, Would Do It.

The Atlantic Monthly contains an excellent article on the subject of country roads, by Prof. N. H. Shaler, of Harvard University. The Professor says:

The question of common ways is treated incidentally, and with no emphasis at all commensurate with its importance. There is practically no effort made to develop specialists in this profession.

The first step towards our new dispensation is to persuade our greater schools to undertake the systematic education of road masters, giving to the task the same care which they devote to the preparation of young men for railway or hydraulic engineering. The next question for the reformer in the matter of road-building concerns the method by which the work of construction, improvement and repair can be insured against the evils of ignor-

St. Thomas' Way.

In building macadamized roads in St. Thomas, the stone is supplied from the quarries in three grades of coarseness; 1, screenings, consisting of the stone dust, and small particles of stone not over five-eighths of an inch in diameter; 2, egg, consisting of what passes over the five-eighths inch screen and will pass through a one and one-half inch ring; 3, tailings, or what is too large for the one and one-half inch screen, averaging from two and one-half to three inches in size. A first coating of the largest size as above mentioned, six inches thick in the middle of the road and four inches at the sides, is laid on a prepared sub-grade and rolled until it is well consolidated. If possible, it is well watered or advantage is taken of wet weather to facilitate the binding of the materials. This is coated over with stone of the second size to a depth of three inches and the road is again thoroughly rolled. On this is placed a layer of screenings sufficient to fill the surface interstices between was born here, the man heaves a sigh the stones and to cover them about scratches the place, and says to the in- an inch. Robinson, of Midhurst,

Eleven Years Sickness-Her Case Pronounced Positively Incurable-She Was Given Up to Die by Two Doctors-Now a Picture of Good Health and Strength.

(From the Barrie Examiner.) Near the village of Midhurst, about six miles from Barrie, stands the smithy of Mr. John Robinson, while within sound of the anvil is his home, where in the midst of a large and leafy orchard dwell the smith and his family. Mr. Robinson is a type of the proverbial blacksmith with "the muscles of his brawny arms as strong as iron bands," but with Mrs. Robinson it has been different. The wife and mother has for a long time been a victim to acute and painful dropsy of the kidneys. Shortly after the birth of her youngest child (now about 13 years) Mrs. Robinson began to take fainting spells, accompanied by violent headaches. This continued through the years that have elapsed, during which time she has obtained the best medical advice available. For about a year she was in constant terror of going insane. Her dull, heavy headache, beating pain in the back and weak swollen legs and body made her case something fearful. To a representative of the Examiner Mrs. Robinson said: "It is some five or six years since I took worse, and since then we have spent hundreds of dollars in medicine and or medical advice. The symptoms of my case were heavy headaches, pain in the back and kidneys and swollen legs. I rapidly grew worse, and last July was given up by two doctors to die, and all my friends and neighbors tell me that they never expected to see me out again. I could not raise myself up, could not dress myself, and had to be assisted in everything. Now I am well and strong, and can put out a big washing without any over exertion. I have also suffered from diarrhea for a number of years, and when spoke of it to my dector he said if it were stopped, worse results would follow. At the urgent request of my son, who was then living in Manitoba, and personally knew of wonderful cures wrought by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I decided to give this remedy a trial. Since using the Pink Pills I have been completely cured and have felt none but beneficial effects. Only the week before I commenced taking the he could not cure me, and that I would likely get worse when spring came. He analyzed my blood and said it was in a fearful state and that my disease was dropsy of be cured. This was about the middle of last January. After the third box of fourteen boxes in all and owe my recovery to this wonderful medicine. I can't praise Pink Pills too much, whatever I say of them," said Mrs. Robinson.

"I recommend them to everybody. I they could not mistake. Again Columbus was left alone to see the great fair. He soon found himself in a crowd of big people, and little people, going as if some special attraction awaited them.

Kit went, too, with occasionally a foot hurt or a fast run necessary to keep from some greater accident.

He peeped into the Irish village, gazed up at Blarney Castle, and wondered if kissing the Blarney stone made cats great as well as men; then on he ran into the Java village. Here he was quickly captured.

Yes, he was arrested, as if by police, and in these little strangers' hands he seemed destined to remain. They put him in a box with sticks across the top. They fed him, but not with the milk he had in such abundance in his own home. He mewed to get away, but the more he mewed the more fun he afforded his little master. Now, Kit Columbus began to think how naughty he was to come away from home without the permission of his mother. He wished Ferdinand and Isabella were along. He felt very lonely. Finally, tired and sleepy, he dreamed of a kittens' fair.

In the kittens' fair there were cages of mice and rats, where cats acted as trainers; also rooms full of little girls and boys getting their noses pinched (And his cap he thoughtfully to make them cry, their fingers stepped on, their hair pulled, all for the kittens' amusement. In his dream he was very happy, but on awakening he immediately realized he was a captive. It was not long, however, before he was taken from his cage for sport, and as his captor's attention was called elsewhere, he glided quickly away, hoping soon to find his own home.

But he ran quickly into the streets of Cairo, and in great fear wondered what those great clumsy animals were I know wild storms are sweeping past, on which people were riding, and Kit had to keep up a lively pace to keep from under their feet. He found himself away from this village, only to confront a cage of monkeys. Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep. The fire upon the hearth is low,

And there is stillness everywhere; Like troubled spirits here and there The firelight shadows fluttering go. And as the shadows round me creep, A chilish treble breaks the gloom, And softly from a farther room Comes: "Now I lay me down to sleep."

And, somehow, with that little prayer And that sweet treble in my ears, My thought goes back to distant years And lingers with the dear one there; And, as I hear the child's amen,

My mother's faith comes back to me, Crouched at her side I seem to be, And mother holds my hands again,

O! for an hour in that dear place! O! for the peace of that dear time Oh! for that childish trust sublime! O I for a glimpse of mother's face! Yet, as the shadows round me creep, I do not seem to be alone-

An Eloquent Appeal.

Miss Frances Power Cobbe, in a dignified answer in the Woman's Signal to Walter Besant's rather depreciating remarks on women's attainments, writes:

Let me, as an aged woman who has seen nearly the whole of the peaceful revolution of our sex whereof Mr. Besant speaks, say one word in conclusion in arrest of such judgment as his on the whole position of women at this moment as competitors with men intellectually as poets, novelists, and journalists, and as candidates for political equality. It is with pain I notice the same tone pervading a good deal of recent journalism.

I think that every woman of experience-be she even the happiest of us all, and blessed with good relatives, health, vigor, and a competencemust yet feel how heavily we are handicapped in the race of life. Nay, I believe this familiar simile is quite inadequate, for it is the strongest horse which is handicapped by artificial weight to reduce it to equality with its rival, whereas we start as naturally the weakest, and have to bear many an artificially adjusted weight beside. Yet I ask, have we not made, are we not making everywhere, and through all the lands, a valiant effort to use as best we can such powers as it has pleased God to gide us? If those powers be (as we are so frequently tauntingly told) but second-rate and inferior; if our heads be an inch or two less in circumference than those of men; if we breathe less deeply, and are less fitted in every way for either manual or mental labor, what then? It is not a reason for giving us double credit for striving still, in spite of all, to use our humble faculties to the uttermost, and for multiplying our two talents to four, instead of laying them by in a napkin because they are not ten? I am not now either denying or granting the assertions of the opponents (chiefly medical and materialistic) of women's claims; but I say that if all they allege be true, it only forms an additional reason why they should regard with additional sympathy our

The House of more, not the less, for their infirmities, so bravely borne and conquered so far as conquest was possible. And why should not every generous man watch with sympathy and admiration women's souls, touched with higher impulses, naturally desire? Even the failures of women have in them, to one who sees conditions women' evements will ever rise to the hanest levels. Perhaps they will never do so, and the generations to come will not see a female Shakespeare any more than we have seen, or are likely to see, a Celtic present. one. But is this any reason for withholding sympathy from human souls (after all we are human!) struggling upward, like pale plants out of a dark place into the sunlight and the air of heaven? We women have always felt, God knows, superabundantly for men in all their struggles and hopes. I would entreat every man now to feel for us in ours, and to watch our efforts and achievements, not with jealous eyes of criticism, or making invidious comparisons, but with the same wholehearted sympathy-glorying in their glory, grieving for their failureswhich, since the world began, women have given to men. If they cannot respond equally generously, then assuredly we are the nobler beings, judged by a scale lottier than that of intellect.

Who Is Responsible?

The Outlook says it believes in the drama as an art and as a resource, but it protests against the reign of vulgar ity, coarseness, and indecency on the stage. At least one play is now drawing crowded houses in New York which ought not to be patronized by a single clean man or woman, and yet hosts of respectable people sit in the chairs and laugh at salacious hints, suggestive gestures, and worse than doubtless stories from the stage. Plays like this are plannedthey cannot be said to be written, for their only innocence is innocence of literary art-to appeal to the prurient curiosity, the slumbering passion, of those who see and hear. They are an insult to the intelligence and purity of the audience; they assume that it comes to be amused by jokes about things which are serious enough to encumber society with a vast amount of moral wreckage. When the purity of women and of families furnishes fun for an evening, it is evident that something is wrong with the audience quite as much as with the stage. Is it impossible to have entertainment without indecency? Is there no wit left save that which plays around for-A lady who happened to possess bidden subjects? Are amusementand the vulgar? These are pertinent questions because the audiences intelligent, and clean people. What right have they to countenance and commend the kind of fun which robs life of its charm, despoils woman of her sacredness, and makes the indecency of the divorce court common talk? It is time to call a halt. The The hardships of the cuisine were managers have their heavy responsibility, but the final responsibility rests on society. Indecent plays will go off the stage when the curtain rises to empty houses; and decent people ought to understand that they are in large measure responsible for the exploitation of vice in the theaters. A Derelict's Travels.

The steamship Arcadia, says The Million, passing to the north of Scotland a year and a half ago picked up off the Orkneys a three-masted British ship and towed her into Kirkwall. The name of the vessel was the Cubana. She had sailed from Newfoundland in October, 1892, with a cargo of copper and ore for Swansea, but encountered a succession of violent storms, which so knocked her about that the crew despaired of saving her and got themselves carried off by a passing ship. That was on Nov. 14, and the Cubana was not expected to float until another sunrise; but somehow or other the ship took charge of herself and made wonderful weather of it, although November and December were bad

The Golden Rule for Animals.

Dr. Albert Leffingwell, in the Arena, discusses the question whether there is not an ethical basis for humanity to animals. He maintains that there is, and he embodies this basis in the following formula:

Our moral duty to all living creatures, from the highest to the lowest form of life, is to treat them precisely MEREDITH. as we ourselves should be willing to be treated for the same objects in view, were we instantly to exchange with them every limitation and circumstance of their condition and form.

This is very simple, being nothing more than the adaptation of the golden rule to the animal creation. What you would have done to you if you were a dog, a hare, a lobster, so should you do to them. Dr. Leffingwell maintains that this would allow us to kill animals for food, but not to torture them for experimental purposes or roast them alive merely to improve their flavor.

What Is the Best Schooling.

Mr. Flower, in a paper in the Arena, entitled "Early Environment in Home Life," makes several sensible suggestions as to the way in which children ought to be taught in early life. The following passages of autobiographical interest may well be taken to heart by parents everywhere:

It would be well to read aloud to your child, and let all members of the home circle manifest interest in the reading by talking about the subject in hand. The schooling which I most prize and that which I believe was by far the most powerful in framing my tastes, desires and aspirations, was received when I was very young, partly from my mother, who never tired of telling me stories of ethical bearing, partly from my father, who through the long winter evenings used to read to my brothers and sister and myself from various works, and as he read he illustrated all obscure passages and explained words which were beyond our comprehension.

M. Notavitch's Bogus Life of Christ.

In the Nineteenth Century Prof. Max Muller has little difficulty in proving that the recent story of the sojourn of Christ in Central Asia, said to have been found in a Lama monastery by M. Notavitch, is either a hoax or a fraud. He quotes the following extract from the letter of a lady who writes from Leh in Ladak:

Did you hear of a Russian who could not gain admittance to the monastery in any way, but at last broke his leg and was taken in? His they were made to feel that God was object was to copy a Buddhist "Life of Christ" which is there. He says he got it and has published it since in French. There is not a single word of truth in the whole story! There has been no Russian there. Nobody has been taken into the seminary for the past 50 years with a broken leg! There is no "Life of Christ" there at all! It is dawning on me that people who in England profess to have been living in Buddhist monasteries in Tibet and to have learnt there the mysteries of Esoteric Buddhism are frauds. The monasteries one and all are the most filthy places. The Lamas are the dirtiest of a very dirty race. They are fearfully ignorant and idolaters pur et simple; no-neither pure nor simple. I have asked many travelers who I have met and they tell the same story.

Millionaires and Their Doctors.

Mr. G. F. Shrady, writing on the pay of physicians and surgeons in the Forum, gives the following facts as to the way in which some American millionaires pay their doctors:

American millionaires are as a rule quite liberal with their physicians, but the attendant who has only one patient must necessarily have something for the sacrifice of his other business. The sums range from $60,000 to $100,000 yearly, with the usual luxurious surroundings. One physician received $87,000 for attending the daughter of a millionaire for two months; another, $60,000 for a vachting cruise of less than six months; and another $2,000 for intubation — an operation performed in a few seconds. A distinguished ear specialist was paid $5,000 for a flying trip from New York to St. Paul, and still another physician received $25,000 for a similar professional visit involving a trip from Philadelphia to San Francisco.

The Food of the Future.

Sir Benjamin Richardson is in many respects one of the most remarkable men of our time. In the current number of the Humanitarian Mrs. Tooley, who is rapidly attaining the first rank among British interviewers, has an admirable paper on this veteran sanitarian-humanitarian on "The Painless Extinction of Life in the Lower Animals," in which it is stated that the fine texture and color. It is confessfood of the future will render all slaughter of animals unnecessary. Sir Benjamin explains this as follows: used for the purpose of street-paving. Take the fresh fruits of the earth, the grasses and the pulses, and transform them into condensed, meat-like animal foods by a process of advanced chemistry. We can already transform some of the substances-for example, we have approached very nearly to the manufacture of fatty acid substances, and we ought to manufacture a substifind out the mechanical process of man | near at hand?

ipulation. In the present scientific day we ought not to need the animals as laboratories for making our food. In the next four or five generations he believes that animals will only be bred as the friends and companions of man. The eating of flesh will cease and the result, he is confident, will be a great benefit to the race.

The Bible Compared With Other Sacred Writings.

Max Muller is not generally known as a religionist, which fact makes his opinion of the Bible, as compared with other sacred writings, all the more interesting. He is, however, generally regarded as the foremost European student of Oriental literature, and his researches among the sacred writings of the East seem to have been especially prolonged. The Christian Commonwealth, of London, introducing the journalistic art of America into the religious field, sends an interviewer to invade the sanctum of the professor, and capture some of his views. This is the result of the foray:

"Would you say that one sacred book is superior to all others in the world?

"It may sound prejudiced, but, taking all in all, I say the New Testament. After that I should place the Koran, which in its moral teaching is hardly more than a later edition of the New Testament. Then would follow, according to my opinion, the Old Testament, then Southern Buddhist Tripitaka, the Taote King of Laotze, the Kings of Confucius, the Veda, and the Avesta. But this is a very rough classification, and not likely to be accepted by others. There is no doubt, however, that ethical teaching is far more prominent in the Old and New Testaments than in any other sacred book. Therein lies the distinctiveness of the Bible. Other sacred books are generally collections of whatever was remembered of ancient times. For instance, in the Veda you get a description of the flood, simply as a deluge; in the Old Testament it takes an ethical meaning, it is a punishment and a reward; there is the difference between the two; and that distinction runs through the whole of the sacred books also, but the distinguishing feature of the Old Testament is that the Jews feel themselves the chosen people of God. That idea runs through the whole book. The Jewish people always referred everything that happened to them, whether happiness or mistortune, to a divine government; it was meant angry or pleased. "'Other religions,' the professor remarked, have been fearfully degraded in the course of centuries, and at the present moment you see high, philosophical culture among educated Hindus, but the streets are full of disgusting idols. Enlightened people will say, "Oh, we don't worship these idols!" but still these disgusting representatives are tolerated, and they ought not to be.'

for them; there was a meaning in it;

"'How would you explain the superiority of the Bible over other sacred books?'

"'I don't explain it, I only accept it as a fact. I don't think you can go much behind it. All sacred books profess to be given by the Deity and to be inspired. Though the Koran was dictated by Mohammed, yet what he said was always revealed to him by the angel; and that idea prevails in all sacred writings. The book is sacred because it is the gift of God; otherwise it would have no authority. Teaching until every wife, mother and sister was in the hands of the priests, who had to reason with their peoples, and there are many things on which you can argue for ever so long without coming to a final result; so the priests cut it short by saying, 'This is divine truth, given to us by immediate revelation of the Deity.'

"'How about the Bible revelation?" shape; we say, not that revelation makes truth, but that truth makes speaks, and what is perfectly certain, what is more certain than anything else, that is to us inspired.' '

It is still a question whether wood or stone is the more durable for street pavements. The laying down of mahogany roadways sounds almost like a dream of Oriental magnificence, but Paris is making the venture.

Even Wiser,

It is unsafe to regard one's self as petter informed than any one else on a subject, no matter how much time and thought may have been given to it.

A good many years ago a wealthy senator from one of the Western States, who was paying a visit to Boston, was invited to a dinner-party at which were present several men conthe financial world. The senator was tion, the writer says: a fluent talker, and expressed his opinions on all subjects introduced with a knowledge.

I read every now and then of women meeting and forming an organization, "the aim of which is to educate women, by means of clubs, to a thorough understanding of all branches of household science.'

Such efforts at educating women in household science appear to me to be only evidences of the proneness of people to begin reformation at the direction. No one can deny this instruction is badly needed in every branch of household science. But is it not child's play for clubs composed of the average housekeepers of today to set about educating other women in the household arts?

of the elementary principles of cookery write cook books, and women who know nothing about housework give instruction in the household arts. And what is the amount of it all? The cook books mislead, and the instruction does not instruct. Nine-tenths of the writing on culinary science is valueiess. Nine-tenths of the instruction in domestic economy is still more so. The sloppy methods of doing housework that are in vogue in nearly every family are a disgrace to the intelligence of the nineteenth century. And until women generally take sufficient interest in home making to induce them to seek earnestly for other and better methods, it is folly to hope for much improvement. It requires as much thought to conduct a household properly as it does to conduct any other department of industry. And housework will never be done systematically or satisfactorily, nor any near approach to the ideal home be made realizes that she is responsible in a large measure for the existing condition of household affairs, and sets herself to work heartily in the right direction to

The Stamp Mania.

A recent paper on the stampcollecting mania in this country and in Europe contained some curious facts which will be interesting to American boys who make philately a hobby.

The most valuable collection of stamps in the world is here stated to wrong end, and work in the wrong be that of Herr von Ferrary of Paris, which is valued at $500,000. The collection, now in the British Museum, which is worth $300,000, comes next.

There are, it appears, a dozen ugly little stamps which if any boy could find on some old letters would bring knows when housework is properly itius of the first issue would be worth done, and scarcely one in ten thousand | $2,000 each. sums. It is said that a stamp market is held Champs Elysees in Paris. Tradeswomen with their aprons full of stamps, bonnes, boys carrying little baskets, gather in crowds in the shade of the trees, chattering, gesticulating and laughing, to buy or exchange their flimsy wares. It is one of the most characteristic sights of Paris.

Two of the governments of South American states are known to be in the pay of wealthy stamp dealers in Europe, and exchange their issues frequently to give their patrons profitable "corners."

The stamp craze began only 40 years ago in Belgium, and it is now a vast business extending over all the civilized world. Every boy probably has made a small investment in it.

Whether it is safe to make large ones in stock so intrinsically worthless is matter for question.

Death.

Ninety-nine of every hundred human beings, says Dr. Cyrus Edson, are unconscious for several hours before death comes to them. All the majesty of intellect, the tender beauty of thought, or sympathy, or charity, the very love of those for whom love has filled all waking thoughts, disappear. I once heard of a lady who it as it is as pleasant as syrup. wrote down in order the particular fears and anxieties which were harassing her, inclosed the paper and sealed it hoping by this kind of mechanical contrivance to be enabled in some sort to dismiss the subject from her mind. FAINTED IN CHURCH.

The Deplorable Condition of a Young Lady in Brockville.

A Case That Created Much Interest Weak Almost Bloodless and Frequently Confined to Her Bed Again Enjoying Complete Health.

[From the Brockville Recorder.] Readers of the Recorder have no doubt ollowed with interest the many instances related in these columns of recoveriescometimes of a very remarkable nature, of persons affected with diseases of different kinds, by the use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Apart from the marvelous recoveries, the accounts were interesting to the people of Brockville and vicinity from the fact that this town is the home of the Dr. Williams Company, and the place where the celebrated medicine is made. The family of Mr. Thomas Humble, residents on Park street north, furnish a case of such recovery no less notable than many previously published, that will be of par-ticular interest in this community. Mr. Humble is an employe of Bowie & Co., brewers, and is well known and highly respected by many of our citizens.
The member of his family whose cure we have mentioned, is his eldest daughter Carrie, a girl of about 19 years of age. The facts in the case were first bought to the notice of the Recorder by Mr. Wm. Birks, a well-known merchant tailor, who on one occasion assisted in removing Miss Humble, who was attacked with a fit of extreme weakness while attending service in the George Street Methodist Church. The other evening a reporter visited the home of the family in question, and upon stating his mission to Mrs. Humble, the story of the case was briefly related, not however, with any desire for notoriety, but rather a determination on her part that it should be given if it might in the least be of benefit to others similarly afflicted. According to her mother's story, Miss Humble's illness dates back to the summer of 1889. Her trouble was extreme weakness and exhaustion, caused by weak and watery blood. She was subject to severe headaches, heart palpitation, and other symptoms which follow a depraved condi tion of the blood. Often while down street on business the young lady would become so exhausted by the walk as to be scarcely able to get home, and she was frequently confined to her bed for weeks at a time, and had to have her meals carried to her. For a period of over three years she was almost continually under medical treatment. The doctor's medicine would prove of benefit while being taken, but as soon as the treat ment was discontinued, the patient would become worse. Her friends were much discouraged and feared she would not recover. In the winter of 1893 Mrs. Humble read of a similar case where a cure was brought about by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This prompted her to give them a trial in her daughter's case who was at the time so weak that she could not leave her room. The result him $10,000 in the market. Of these, was remarkable. There was soon a marked Not one woman in a thousand the one and two pence stamps of Maur- improvement, and by the time two boxes were used Miss Humble appeared to be so much recovered that the treatment was dis-

Miss Humble was sent on a visit to some friends in the United States in the hope that a change of air would mother was then determined to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a further trial, and the result proved most gratifying, as on a certain morning in the week in the | the girl's health has been completely restored, and she is today as well and strong as any girl of her age. Mrs. Humble told the story of her daughter's illness and recovery with an impressiveness that carried conviction of its absolute truthfulness. Miss Humble also corroborated her mother's statement, and they can be vouched for by many of her friends in the church, the Sunday school and others. Dr. Williams' Pink P.lls are an unfailing cure for all troubles resulting from poverty of the blood or shattered nerves, and where given a fair trial they never fail in cases like the above related.
