PRESIDENT FACES ANGRY CONGRESS

Washington, Jan. 16. - President Roosevelt faces the same situation in the Republican party that confronted Grover Cleveland during his last term. He is opposed by an angry and rebellious Congress. Have Not Hept Faith

Toronto, Jan. 16. - "A Government and a party which does not keep faith with the people will sooner or later have to settle with the people, and the Whitney Government has not kept faith,' In this way, Mr. Arch Campbell, M. P., began a brief address at the annual meeting of the West York Liberals, held yesterday afternoon in Dufferin Hall, Weston. He proceeded to point out that for years the Conservatives, led by Mr. Whitney, had declared that when they came into office they would find many things wrong in finance. They had been overhauling the Provincial books, and so far nothing had been discovered. Mr. Whitney and his followers assailed the legislation providing for the succession duties, but they have received $700 .-000 from those duties, and all denunciation of them by the Conservatives has ceased. The Provincial tax on wealthy corporaations had the opposition of the present Ontario Government, but the tax was collected by them quite cheerfully, and would not be given up. The Provincial Conservatives, led by the present Premier and members of his Government, opposed the Temiskaming Railway, which had been the means of opening up much of the immense wealth of the distriet it was to serve, but the railway was retained, and would be extended by the men who were its bitterest enemies

Now for Second Week January Whitewear Sale

This JANUARY WHITEWEAR SALE is a pronounced success. The ladies of London and vicinity have expressed their approval in no unmistakable manner. In volume of sales, first week has totally eclipsed all previous records. And now for a new second week's record. If bewitching daintiness, good quality materials, nicely stitched and finished garments, and excellent values, are any criterion to judge by it will, also, set a new high-water mark in sales. Notice today's list of appealing values.

The Late President Harper.

[From the New York Post.]

The late President Harper was posmuch-criticised class. The methods by which he created a great university on the foundation of a provincial college were profoundly distrusted in more conservative university circles. himself was often mentioned with dislike, and something near contempt. With a tax on the loaf in the morning. These well-known facts we recall, only to add that whatever may be thought of his policies, his personality now appears in a fine and heroic light. No one can consider the admirable fortitude and self-forgetting equanimity he displayed in his long and hopeless fight against pain and death, without perceiving that here was a heroic soul, to which epithets borrowed from trade had no proper application. For the man there remains only admiration; his educational methods are still a suitable object of scrutiny. He habitually deprecated the fame he had attained as a money-beggar—a reputation difficult to avoid by John D. Rockefeller's academic almonerand would have chosen to be remembered by the innovations he framed in university administration and teaching. It was these that fairly gave him his nickname, "the business president." Efficiency was his watchword long before it was Lord Rosebery's; and most of his peculiar policies were based on the conviction that our traditional methods of higher education are backward and time-wasting. Thus at the outset he abolished the long vacations, or rather made them optional with students and professors, continuing the university terms throughout the calendar year. This permitted the diligent student to shorten his course, the provident instructor to accumulate vacations beyond the regulation three is understood to have attempted the re-habilitation of the character of Nero. months, and required the occasional recruiting of the faculty by temporary (quarter-year) appointments from outside. All these changes are in the direction of flexibility, and are likely to be copied. As his administration proceeded along the golden way laid by Mr. Rockefeller, it became evident that admitted no difficulties. When it was discovered that the University of Chicago lacked college life and spirit, college life and spirit were straightway improvised, or at least encouraged, by the appointment of a famous athlete to the faculty, and later by the building of dormitories. Those who likened his extraordinary aptitude for business affairs to that of the "bagman," singularly mistook their They hold a pathos that no crime can man. President Harper's true analogues must be sought in the realms of high finance. It was not for nothing that John D. Rockefeller called the young professor of Hebrew to the headship of a reorganized university. He had many interesting things to say about "Woman, her brain, mental capacity and character," in a paper which he read the other night before the Ethnological Society. "There is no denying the fact," said Dr. Hollander, "that the average female brain is not live fly in the dead man's mou only one inch less in circumference when his hand was placed upon t than the male brain, but it is about five ounces lighter in weight. This does not denote even a comparative the entire brain is not the measure of its intellectual capacity at all, but is a measure of the capacity of all energies taken together. "The portions in which the difference between the male and the female brains is more marked are those which have to do with force, energy and animal passion, all of which women possess in a less degree than men. On the other hand, those portions which But I'll do my best a gudewife aye to be. are concerned with the manifestations For auld Robin Gray he is kind unto me. of feelings and emotions are more strongly developed." Dr. Hollander then proceeded to show how the difference between the brains of the two sexes affected the social and domestic life, and paid many graceful tributes to woman's power of affection, firmness, bravery in calamity and fortitude in time of sickness. Vanity, he stated, is greater in the woman, conceit greater in the man. Again, because she can love so deeply, she can hate fiercely. She can be very generous in actions, the lecturer said, but is not always so in feelings, sometimes appearing as if she lacked Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpen- a sense of justice, but her refined nervous organization renders her sensiwhat passes within.

Says America Has Lowest Rates-Wants Better Canadian Ports.

Toronto, Jan. 15 .- Not for years have the railways of Canada had their general case put before the public in a more skilled and interesting manner than in the address of Mr. Charles M. Plans have been made for a new structure in New York which will be a wonder in the way of an ice skating rink. It is to be built of steel, reinforced concrete and glass, and will have an ice surface of 40,000 square feet. This would be about 400 feet long by 100 feet wide. This rink is to be on the second floor of the building. On the first floor are to be stores

Toronto senior hockey teams are getting theirs in good shape this season. They are commencing to call out the old boys already. They have material in that town for one good team, but no more.

Frank D. Woodworth, who has been prominent in Ontario sports for some years, is going to New York to reside. Woody is too good a man to lose, and we can ill-afford to let him go. He has stood for the square thing in sport. We wish him continued prosperity in New York.

The Canadian Rugby Union, at its annual meeting, adopted the intercollegiate game, and it only remains for the Hamilton Tigers to approve of it to make it satisfactory to all concerned. The game as played by the colleges looks the best in sight.

The New England Breeders' Association, which is building a race track at Salem, N. H., does not anticipate any further trouble from those who were making an effort to prevent the opening of the track next summer. Attorney-General Eastman, of New Hampshire, has rendered an opinion on the subject to the governor, as follows: "That the Legislature intended to prevent the legally constituted authorities of the state from prosecuting offenses against our laws, or intended to or have abolished the laws against betting, pool selling, bookmaking and other like kinds of gambling for the benefit of this corporation and its patrons, is most unlikely, improbable and unreasonable, in the light of all legitimate evidence in the case."

-An ex-champion pacing mare died but a few days ago. This was Lottle Loraine (2:05%), and a peculiar fact attaches to her history—that she twice divided the record for pacing mares with another. In 1896, first Pearl C. and then Lottie Loraine paced in 2:061/2, which lowered the record, in the same race. Early the next season still another mare, Pearl Onward, paced in exactly the same time, placing the three at a tie.

· Then, in the fall of that year, Lottle Loraine and Bessie Bonehill paced a dead heat in 2:05%, establishing a new record, but as Lottie beat Bessie for the race, she was rightfully considered the champion.

She was a very game mare, although coming from a family not noted for gameness, but a rough-gaited one that took a lot of persuasion. For several years past she had been in the stud, and leaves foals that are said

The Joe Gans-Mike ("Twin") Sullivan contest, which will be decided under the auspices of the Hayes Valley Club this month, is not causing much interest on the coast or anywhere else, despite the fact, the battle should be a corker. The direct cause of this is attributed to Gans' last fight on the coast, that with Jimmy Britt. When the articles for that match were signed it was taken for granted that Gans, by some hook or crook, would lose, but when his then manager, Al Herford, saw he could not bet a dollar on the proposition that Britt would win, he, it is said, shifted the cut for

When this was reached, it is said, the impression got abroad that the fight was fixed for Joe to lose, with the result Herford managed to place a big chunk of money on his protege. This was giving the public what, in sporting parlance, is termed "the double cross," and Al and those in the play, it is declared, cleaned up nicely. The fighters' end of the money for the five rounds they "monkeyshined" around the ring was $14,000, of which Britt, because he lived up to his agreement to lose on a foul, it is said, received $12,-000, the other $2,000 going to the winner. It does not appear right that Gans, who practically was led about by the nose by his white manager, should be made to bear the brunt of that battle, while Britt, who undoubtedly transacted his own business and was equally as guilty of wrongdoing as Gans, should not be held accountable. Gans' color and his unsavory rep-

Now that Marvin Hart has tied himself up with light heavyweight Tomr Burns, whom he has agreed to meet at Los Angeles next month, and is exering for a battle with George Gardner, and with nothing definite resarding fight coming from Tommy Ryan, the fight fans are up in the air, so to speak, as to who will be O'Brien's next opponent. He was practically submerged with challenges immediately after his victory over Fitz, none of which, however, bore fruit. His latest and also most direct challenger was Gus Ruhlin, who called upon Jack, at his forced quarters, and begged for a chance to hand him a few of his camphor-preserved wallops. O'Brien looked the big fellow over, figured to the fraction of an inch how far he could make him miss, then informed him that the man who could draw the most money would get his game. There is just a bare possibility that the new Tuxedo Club, which contemplates erecting a fighting arena a few miles outside of Philadelphia, will make a bid for the fight. Not because Managers Rocap and O'Rourke consider it a good match and an excellent drawing card, but because eastern fight followers are starving for a 20-round fight between two men with national reputations, and will fall over themselves hiking to the ringside. It is nearly five years since the Horton law, which made long-distance fights permissible in the State of New York, since which the New York City fans have been feasting on three-round contests. The Tuxedo Club's intended location will be within easy riding distance of New York, and practically only a short jog from Philadelphia, which should make it a paying

Over 2,000 pairs for your inspection. Most men wear trousers, and, indeed, wear out two and three pairs to every coat and vest. We were caught this season with a tremendous stock in almost every grade and fully realize that price cutting must be more than apparent to force out such an immense quantity. You will save almost enough off each pair to buy another.

We have built this gigantic business on the surest and safest foundation a business can have, "Quality."

Cravenette Rain Coats

Even great success demands a penalty; this past season we sold twice the quantity of Cravenette Coats we ever sold in a single season. Our manufacturing plant was put in full swing on these when it should have been making up for the coming summer; in short, we over produced. Over production always cheapens the product, and the public reaps the benefit. We must and will sell over 500 of these in the next few weeks—mark the great reductions.

The weather this forenoon was unfavorable, and consequently there were not many farmers in attendance at the marmany farmers in attendance at the mar-ket. Very few buyers put in an appear-ance, as they apparently expected that there would not be much farm produce offered. The principal supply today was There were not enough, however despite the higher prices paid. So anxious were the buyers of dressed hogs to secure a supply that there was a to see which buyers would place the face to see which buyers would place the first bid on the load. Most of the hogs sold at $9 per cwt. There is no doubt about the scarcity of hogs, and it looks as if the citizens will be compelled to pay high prices for any pork they may buy for some time to come were no potatoes or apples offered, and only one or two small lots of butter eggs, and poultry, which sold at Calves ewt ormer prices.

In the wholesale butchers' section of the market there were about a dozen loads of meat on sale, principally beef, which sold fairly well at $5 to $6.50 per cwt by the carcass. There was a good demand for the few yeals offered, and which sold at higher prices, namely, $8.50 No hay, straw or oats were offered.

In point of the star's acting, the high excellence of her support, and the beautiful staging, everything was satisfactory. Unfortunately, the play, "The Toast of Town," was unworthy of the company. In this instance the play was decidedly not the thing. It is from the pen of the overworked Clyde Fitch, for whose plays of late there has arisen a widespread and clamorous demand. This is good for Fitch, but bad for art. Mr. Fitch has turned out some clever dramas, notably "The Moth and the Flame," "The Bird in the Cage." and "Her Own Way." but in "The Toast of the Town" he has failed completely of duplicating

sioners to Consider. The board of water commissioners for 1906 held its inaugural meeting covered. The sides could be left open yesterday afternoon in the city hall. The two new members, Mayor Judd and Commissioner Saunders, were present, together with Commissioner pany until May 1. Then it became the Darch, who served last year. Mr. -Maro, the magician, will be the Darch, on motion of Commissioner Saunders, seconded by the mayor, was re-elected chairman of the board. He briefly thanked the board and assured praise of Maro's work, not only as a them that he highly appreciated the honor. Several matters of vital importance to the citizens would in the near future have to be dealt with, he said. While the new main had been turned down by the electorate, the fact remained that the board must secure sufficient fire fighting pressure, and since several statements had been made on the platform in the recent election, reflecting upon the supply. Mr. Darch thought it advisable to ask the engineer to make a full report upon it. Attention must at an early date be given to a readjustment of the -A very, pleasant evening was water rates. contract for the Springbank auditorium, as the present agreement ran out Hyatt. on May 1, and then the auditorium would belong entirely to the city. Messrs. George F. Jewell and B. Blandford were reappointed auditors for 1906.

The petition of the Cold Storage Company for a remission of $124 54 for water rates was granted, the account being charged up to the city. Commissioner Saunders though items and exemptions. Chairman Darch said that last year not more than $10 was remitted in this manner.

Engineer Moore pointed out that there were no exemptions now. A communication from A. J. Roberts. secretary of an insurance company, was read and laid over. Maurice Baldwin, of Bathurst street
